Now, political power wasn't the only profit in this case. There was political cash, too—for one of the New Deal city bosses. The railway brotherhoods had to be represented by special legal counsel because the proceedings were obviously of a very special sort. And who do you suppose was the lawyer? An attorney eminent in labor law? An authority on railroad economics? Not under the New Deal. With legal process out the window by act of Mr. Roosevelt, the railway workers were forced to hire someone who knew his way up the backstairs of the White House.

So the railway brotherhoods had to hire Mr. Roosevelt's third-term national chairman—that eminent authority in Belgian paving blocks, Boss Flynn, of the Bronx. This was the man who once appointed the notorious gangster and gunman, Dutch Schultz, as a deputy sheriff of the Bronx. And did Mr. Roosevelt's political manager lend his aid for nothing? The price of his services for the railroad workers was $25,000.

That sort of business must come to an end in this country. Political bosses and one-man government must not be allowed to keep a stranglehold on the rights of our working people. I believe with all my heart in collective bargaining and it must again be free collective bargaining. It must be bargaining for the rights of working people and not for the profit of political bosses.

Now, playing with the rights of labor for political power and political cash is bad enough. But there is something even more dangerous in what the New Deal is doing. Here are the words of Robert J. Watt, one of the top officials of the American Federation of Labor. He says:

"Even as we fight for the survival of our basic freedoms, we find that the Democratic press in many ways is being hog-tied and rendered subordinate to the dictum of a one-man boss. . . ."

Just a week ago at a public forum in New York, this same labor leader said:

"Government intervention has already strangled collective bargaining to death."

Robertson Says Amen

And to this, Railway Brotherhood President David B. Robertson said:

"I should like to say amen to that."

But collective bargaining is only one of the casualties of the rights of workers under the New Deal. Look at what has happened to the white-collar worker.

A friend of mine is an employe in a publishing house. He asked his employer for a raise and the employer agreed. But then the trouble began. The employer filed an application with the appropriate Government bureau.

Seven weeks went by and then what? More information was requested. Two months later the request was turned down. Three months more until an appeal was heard. Another month for a decision that the appeal had been denied. Three and a half months of further delay waiting word that a further appeal to Washington had been turned down. On the last appeal, four months later, the word was finally handed down: "O. K. You can have half as much as you asked."

Thus more than 15 months after the original request, the New Deal settled the case by the old kangaroo court method of splitting the difference. If the request had no merit in the first place, a denial would be fair and proper. But when it's right all the time, 15 months' delay and three appeals to get justice are inexcusable.

Same Throughout New Deal

It is the same all through the New Deal. It has been the same with millions of other white-collar workers and factory workers all over the country. That's why it's time for a change.

It is time to face the fact that the New Deal is a bankrupt organization, living only to extend its powers over the daily lives of our people. It did some good things in its youth, but now it seeks to live on its past. In this great national campaign my opponent has not offered the people of this country even the pretense of a program for the future. He tells the working men and women of America to trust him, to do as they are told and ask no questions.

That is the end result under one-man government always. It is the inevitable end of a philosophy which sees no real future for America. It is the result of a viewpoint that can see nothing ahead but a repetition of its own peacetime failures—a return after the war to unemployment, with leaf raking and doles.

I am sure America will never submit to that dreary prospect. We are going forward to swift, total victory over our enemies abroad. We are going to take the lead in building a world organization for lasting peace, and, here at home, we are going to establish a Government which will make possible a vigorous productive economy with jobs and opportunity for all.

Maintain Social Progress

Only thus can we maintain social progress and make secure the rights of free labor.

With the full backing of our party, Governor Bricker and I stand committed to a program that will insure to American labor the guarantee of free collective bargaining through the National Labor Relations Act, and with freedom from Government dictation.

We stand committed to the proposition that America can and must have both economic security and personal freedom. That program we shall begin to put into effect next January 20.

We shall appoint an active, able Secretary of Labor from the ranks of labor.

We shall abolish wasteful, quarrelsome and competing agencies which are strangling collective bargaining.

We shall establish the fair employment practices committee as a permanent service.

We shall put back into the Department of Labor the functions that belong in the Department of Labor.

We shall do away with special privileges of one group of American workers over another group.

Broader Social Security

We shall see to it that every working man and woman stands equally in the Department of Labor and that the department exists to serve, and not to rule, the working men and women of America.

We shall work for a broader Social Security Act to include those not now covered. Old-age and survivors' insurance is now denied to 20,000,000 of our people. All those who have been left without protection under the New Deal must be included. Public employes who are not now protected by existing systems should, also, be included.

We shall work to widen the provisions of unemployment insurance to include the groups now unprotected.

To all these things we are pledged.

These things Government can and should do. But they alone are not enough. We can have a free labor movement and make social progress only within the framework of a society that encourages enterprise—that provides opportunity for all—that is productive and growing.

To that end we are pledged to remove from the backs of American farmers and businessmen the hordes of bungling bureaucrats and the load of red tape and regulations under which they have staggered so many years.

Necessary regulation of industry and finance will encourage, not discourage, freedom and opportunity. It must be administered by men who believe in the enterprise system and who know that the personal and political freedom of the average American citizen is more important than increased power for a Government bureau.

To Restore Unity

We must have a Government that wants every American to succeed, a Government that will make possible full employment with an ever-increasing standard of living for every man and woman who works for a living.

Above all, we must have an Administration that will restore unity to our country. That means a Government with teamwork in its own ranks—a Government that works in harmony with Congress—a Government that has equal respect for the rights of agriculture, labor and business, and for every race, creed and color.

The years that lie ahead will be largely peacetime years. They will bring great problems and great opportunities. Let us determine now that we shall work together in unity as free Americans under an Administration that believes in the future of America.

Tonight, brave men on far-off battle fronts are fighting and dying for our country. If we are to be worthy of their sacrifices, we must strengthen freedom here at home. That we will do and, with God's help, we will build a future fit for heroes—a land of equal opportunity for all.

Fluffy Stages 'One-Dog Campaign For Dewey'

Pittsburgh, Oct. 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt's little dog Fala had Republican competition today. Fluffy, a Canadian sheepdog wearing an "I'm for Dewey" sign about his collar, greeted Gov. Thomas E. Dewey on his arrival at the station here.

"He's conducting a 'one-dog' campaign for Dewey," explained Owner George Washington Nicola, of Pittsburgh.

Negro Hits WAVES Move As 'Jim Crow'

Pittsburgh, Oct. 20 (AP)—Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council, Washington, commenting on the navy's announcement that President Roosevelt has approved enrollment of Negro women in the WAVES, said today in a statement:

"The campaign for 1,000,000 signatures of Negroes demanding an executive order to abolish all discrimination, segregation and mistreatment of 1,000,000 Negroes in the United States Army and Navy will be intensified by President Roosevelt's belated political gesture of appeasement in approving a limited number of Negro women for admittance to special assignments only in the WAVES, as announced at the White House.

"Jim Crow Pattern"

"It is the same pattern of Jim Crow and unequal opportunities for Negroes under the continued policy of the President.

"The Negroes will not be fooled again by last minute and designing moves to get them to vote a fourth term for President Roosevelt."

In making the announcement, the navy said: "A limited number of especially qualified Negro women" would be commissioned immediately as administrative officers, and that they would assist in planning a program for enlistment of Negro women. The navy estimated the first enlisted women will enter training shortly after January 1.

UMW Vice-President Declares For Dewey

Pittsburgh, Oct. 20 (AP)—John O'Leary, international vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America, declared today the union is supporting Gov. Thomas E. Dewey because he "has promised to give fair administration of the labor laws of this country."

In a statement issued after a conference with the Republican Presidential candidate and Gov. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, O'Leary said:

"We're here today on account of the treatment we got from the present Administration on our last negotiations [for a contract with the coal-mine operators]. We're against President Roosevelt because he is against us. Dewey has promised to give fair administration of the labor laws of this country, to favor no one or no one particular organization, and to give a square deal to all in the administration of the laws."

Hits Latin-American Policy

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20 (AP).—The United States has "tried to buy Latin-American friendship and it hasn't worked," Dr. Fred Field Goodsell, executive vice-president of the American Foreign Missions Board, declared in an address here today. Dr. Goodsell advocated "a Christian basis for our dealings" with South American countries, rather than "loose purse strings."

V-E Plane Cancellations Are Already In Force

Cleveland, Oct. 20 (AP)—Many airplane contract terminations scheduled for V-E day already have taken place and a sudden drop in production immediately following collapse of Germany "is not to be anticipated," Lieut. Col. William W. Phelps, Cleveland area representative for the central procurement district of the Air Technical Service Command, disclosed today.

"When V-E day comes, air warfare will naturally be revised to coordinate all activities in the Pacific theater," Phelps declared in an address prepared for the National Metal Congress.

"Such changes in strategy will bring about changes in materials requirements for airplane production. A sudden drop in production immediately following V-E day is not to be anticipated, as many of the terminations calculated for V-E day already have taken place."

Echo Of His Commander

Kansas City, Oct. 20 (AP)—Private John W. Mitchell, USMC, Republican candidate for the United States House of Representatives, spoke very briefly at a reception by admirers last night:

"Because of Marine Corps restrictions, I shall make no speeches and no promises," and then he added: "I shall not campaign in the usual sense."

MAAS SEES NEW PEARL HARBOR REPORT STIFLED

OCT 21 1944

Declares Administration Hushes Findings of Naval Committee.

SAYS SECRECY TO POLITICS

Reiterates Charge That White House Had Warning Six Hours in Advance of Attack.

St. Paul, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Representative Melvin J. Maas (R.-Minn.) said in an address last night that the national administration is now withholding from the public a new report on Pearl Harbor prepared by an official board of inquiry of the United States Navy.

"It is my intention," Mr. Maas said, speaking at a meeting of the St. Paul Business and Professional Men's Association, "to force the publication of this report before election if it is possible to do so."

Mr. Maas charged that "the high officials of the Government, civilian and military, knew six hours before the attack that Pearl Harbor and the Philippines were to be attacked, and the hour at which the attack was to take place. For some as yet unexplained reason they failed to take steps to notify Admiral Kimmel and Gen. Short in advance of the attack.

Says Administration Interferes.

"I had not planned to make these charges during the present political campaign," Mr. Maas declared, "but I have learned that the Naval Board of Inquiry set up by order of Congress to conduct its own investigation of the Pearl Harbor incident has completed that report.

"It was directed by Congress that this report be presented forthwith when finished. The administration has not permitted this and is seeking to suppress it until after election.

"The administration thus forced me to make my public accusation, in order to try to get the truth to the American people.

Says Roberts Lauded Kimmel.

"There is no element of military security involved in this matter. The Naval Board report would be politically embarrassing to the administration and that is the reason it has not been made public.

"The public has never had the full truth about the findings of the Pearl Harbor Commission, headed by Justice Roberts. After that body had finished its work at Pearl Harbor and was leaving, Justice Roberts shook hands with Admiral Kimmel and said, 'Admiral, I wish to congratulate you on your part in this affair. I am glad that you are in the clear.'

"Yet the published findings of the Roberts commission pinned the blame for Pearl Harbor on Admiral Kimmel and Gen. Short.

"I renew my charge that the President and high officials had word of the Pearl Harbor attack plans six hours in advance and sent no warning. I am informed that after the attack was in progress, Washington sent a commercial telegraph message to Pearl Harbor containing the information."

President Denies Knowledge.

Washington, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt said today he didn't know anything about an assertion by Representative Maas (R.-Minn.), that a Navy report on the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor has been withheld from the public.

At the time Mr. Maas first made the statement, the President said he knew nothing about such circumstances and said that any one with such information should communicate with the Army or Navy investigating boards.

Truman Pledges Good Wages Will Be Paid Copper Miners

OCT 21 1944

Butte, Mont., Oct. 20 (AP)—A promise that the Roosevelt Administration if reelected will see that copper miners "have an honest chance to work at good wages" when the war is over was made here tonight by Senator Harry S. Truman, who also linked rural power-line extension with Democratic post-war plans.

"The power lines will use huge quantities of copper that will mean good, honest jobs that will help you and help those who need electric power," Truman asserted in a radio address from this copper-production center.

"Yes, you people of Montana—miners, ranchers and businessmen alike—have a big stake in the election. You need a forward-thinking, liberal and courageous Administration like that you have had under Franklin Delano Roosevelt," the Missouri Senator said.

Credits Administration

The Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate asserted the Administration built power lines to farm and ranch homes where electricity never could have gone under an Administration "opposed" to the development of our great natural resources and continued:

"If the Democratic Administration is returned to office it will proceed as soon as the war permits to extend the power lines wherever it is feasible to do so."

Truman said he knew "most" of his listeners favored President Roosevelt's reelection and he wanted to urge them to vote, since it is estimated that nearly 30,000,000 persons entitled to vote will not cast their ballots.

Many of them will be soldiers and sailors "discouraged by the cumbersome restrictions upon voting insisted upon by the Republicans," he said, while others will fail to vote because they are busy on other matters.

"Prosperous Country Needed"

"To have jobs in Butte," he said, "we will have to have a prosperous country that will require a huge amount of copper, a country that is building a great future.

"We of the Democratic Administration believe that this country has only begun to realize how many great natural resources we have and what we can do with them."

He added that "labor has made the greatest advances in its entire history under the Roosevelt Administration."

He credited the Administration with the building of great power and reclamation projects like Fork Peck in Montana, Grand Coulee and Bonneville in Washington and the Tennessee Valley Authority to irrigate the lands and provide cheap electric power.

Hitler Didn't Say How They'd March Across U.S.

Clovis, N. M., Oct. 20 (AP)—Mayor E. E. Kraus quoted a German prisoner of war working in the broom corn harvest near Clovis as saying:

"Hitler said we'd march across the United States, but he didn't tell us about pulling cotton and broom corn on the way."

Dewey Conversion Wallace Target

Omaha, Oct. 20 (AP)—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace asserted tonight that "even today, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's conversion to the cause of international collaboration smacks of deathbed repentance."

"While Governor Dewey frantically proclaims his loyalty to the cause of international cooperation, many of his followers in Congress are launching daily torpedoes against Bretton Woods and Dumbarton Oaks," Wallace said in a speech prepared for broadcast to States east of the Mississippi river. The text was made available by his office in Washington.

"Can Swallow Dewey"

"These appeasers — isolationists and America Firsters who fought Willkie to the death—are able to swallow Dewey and Bricker without gagging," the Vice-President continued.

Three overwhelmingly important tasks face America, according to Wallace.

"First," he said, "we must march forward to a speedy victory in war, with a minimum loss of life and the swiftest possible return of our fighting men.

Must Provide Employment

"Second, as an important member of the family of nations, the United States must join with her allies in building a durable and democratic peace, based upon the Four Freedoms and the Atlantic Charter.

"Third, we must make and carry out bold plans for using our resources and capacities to provide steady employment for 55,000,000 Americans and in advancing the standard of life for ourselves and the world under the free enterprise system."

BRICKER ADDS TO ITINERARY

Plans Another Swing East On Campaign Tour

OCT 21 1944

Reno, Nev., Oct. 20 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker tonight added Flint and Detroit, Mich., to his western campaign tour and announced he would make another swing into the East in quest of the Vice-Presidency.

The Republican nominee, who had planned to end his current 9,250-mile trip in Missouri on October 28, said he would go on to Michigan for speeches October 30 and then spend the period from November 1 to 4 in Ohio, Pennsylvania and perhaps the New York city-New Jersey area.

The new dates are: October 30, Flint, at noon; November 1, Detroit, at night (tentative); November 3, Philadelphia, at night; November 4, Youngstown, Ohio, at noon; Akron, Ohio, in the afternoon, and Cleveland, Ohio, at night.

Take-Home Pay

Bricker, invading Nevada today after a six-day run through California, asserted that the American workingman was not as prosperous now as he was in the 20's despite the higher incomes that have accompanied wartime inflation.

The point, said the Republican nominee for Vice-President in a press conference, is that while the pay checks of wage earners might be larger now, they do not have the money to spend as they wish. There is "a big difference," he put it "between his [the wage earner's] payroll wages and his take-home wages."

The Ohio Governor, visiting Nevada for the first time, criticized, both in the press conference and in a speech, what he called New Deal claims of restoring the country to prosperity.

"Good Era For Everybody"

"They shouted long and loud at the New Deal convention in Chicago," Bricker said, "that the country had returned to prosperity." But, he continued, "it is unfair for anyone to take political credit for profits and prices or anything else at the present time."

He declared that "nobody can be better off socially or politically or in any other way in time of war"; that "no money can compensate for the sacrifices of war."

Asked how he would compare the workingman's financial position now with his position in the 20's, Bricker replied: "In the 20's more money was made by the workingman than before or since. It was a good era for everybody."

Wouldn't Advocate Return

He said pay-roll checks now are being "eaten into" by the tremendous burden of Government which is taking more and more toll of the income of labor."

Comparing further the present era with the 20's, Bricker said: "I don't care what the wages are, or what the income is, you can't compare it with the suffering and the death and distress that come in the wake of war. Nobody has a right when soldiers are dying around the world to look upon profit as a measure of the proper service to his country."

Asked if he would advocate a "return to the economy of the 20's," Bricker replied "certainly not."

OCT 21 1944

(ADVANCE)...LONDON, OCT 20-(AP)-THE BOARD OF TRADE DISCLOSED TONIGHT THAT GREAT BRITAIN'S EXPORTS AT THE END OF 1943 TOTALED A LITTLE MORE THAN A QUARTER OF THOSE IN 1938 AND WERE STILL DECLINING THROUGH 1944.

THE BOARD, BRITISH COUNTERPART OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE, PUBLISHED FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE SECURITY SILENCE CLOAKED THEM IN 1941 FIGURES ON THE NATIONAL EXPORT TRADE.

THEY SHOWED, THE BOARD SAID, THE "VERY GREAT SACRIFICE" MADE

BY THE UNITED KINGDOM TO CONCENTRATE PRODUCTION ON THE WAR.
THE PROSPECT WAS THAT THE SACRIFICE WOULD CONTINUE UNTIL THE WAR ENDED, WHEN MANPOWER AND RAW MATERIALS WOULD BE AVAILABLE FOR A DRIVE TO RESTORE THE EXPORT TRADE.
THEN, RESPONSIBLE OFFICIALS OF THE BOARD INDICATED, GREAT BRITAIN WOULD HAVE TO SHOOT ITS EXPORT OUTPUT UP 50 PER CENT OVER PREWAR FIGURES IF THE COUNTRY IS TO MAINTAIN ITS STANDARD OF LIVING AND MAKE ENDS MEET.
THERE IS NO QUESTION OF AN EXPORT DRIVE NOW, IT WAS SAID, ALTHOUGH GREAT BRITAIN STARTED ONE IN FEBRUARY, 1940, TO GET FOREIGN EXCHANGE WITH WHICH TO BUY WAR MATERIALS.
THAT DRIVE WAS SUPERSEDED BY LEND-LEASE EARLY IN 1941, REDUCING THE NEED FOR FOREIGN CURRENCY, AND THE DRIVE SINCE HAS LAGGED.
BOARD OFFICIALS DECLINED TO HAZARD ANY OPINION AS TO WHAT FORM OR WHAT MARKETS A NEW EXPORT COMPETITION WOULD ENVISAGE, OR WHEN.
BUT THE PUBLICATION OF THE FIGURES ALONE WAS TESTIMONY TO THE CONFIDENCE THAT VICTORY WAS SO SURE THERE COULD BE NO SECURITY DANGER.
THE DROP, IN CASH VALUE, BETWEEN 1938 AND 1943 AMOUNTED TO $952,000,000.
LAST YEAR EXPORTS REPRESENTED ONLY 2.8 PER CENT OF THE NET NATIONAL INCOME, AGAINST 10.02 PER CENT IN 1942. NO EXPORT FIGURES WERE AVAILABLE FOR 1944. NOR WERE FIGURES PUBLISHED ON IMPORTS.
ALTHOUGH THE TABLES MIRROR LOSS OF TRADE WITH ENEMY AND ENEMY-OCCUPIED COUNTRIES, THE VOLUME OF TRADE WITH THE MARKETS STILL OPEN HAD BEEN REDUCED BY 1943 TO ONLY TWO-FIFTHS OF ITS PREWAR LEVEL.
WHISKY FURNISHED ONE SPECTACULAR ITEM IN THE REPORT. THE UNITED STATES IS THE CHIEF MARKET FOR WHISKY, TAKING LAST YEAR 3,433,950 GALLONS VALUED AT $24,480,488.

IN 1938 THE GALLONAGE WAS 3,933,622 VALUED AT $22,390,532. THE SHIPMENTS WERE CONTINUED BY DRAINING MATURED STOCKS. IF CONTINUED AT THE PRESENT RATE, BRITAIN--NOW SUFFERING A DOMESTIC SCARCITY IN ALL SPIRITS--WOULD BE DRY IN FIVE YEARS. ONLY A SMALL AMOUNT OF NEW DISTILLING HAS BEEN PERMITTED.
WHISKY REPRESENTED MORE THAN ONE QUARTER OF THE TOTAL OF GOODS FURNISHED EACH YEAR FOR SIX YEARS.
ANOTHER AMAZING ITEM IN THE RECIPROCAL WAR MATERIAL TRADE BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN, WAS BENZOL. IN 1938, 48,840 GALLONS WERE EXPORTED; IN 1942 ONLY 858 GALLONS.
BUT LAST YEAR THE FIGURE HAD RISEN TO 28,016,343 GALLONS. MOST OF IT WENT TO THE UNITED STATES AND PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS ACKNOWLEDGED THE SIZABLE BRITISH PRODUCTION OF THAT ITEM.
TOTAL EXPORT VALUE TO THE UNITED STATES DROPPED TO $77,028,000 LAST YEAR. IN 1938 IT AMOUNTED TO $81,856,000, IN 1939 TO $113,620,000, IN 1940 TO $121,972,000, AND IN 1941 TO $127,016,000. THEN IT SLUMPED IN 1942 TO $94,200,000.
EXPORTS TO CANADA LAST YEAR TOTALED $92,600,000 ~~WHILE EXPORTS LAST YEAR AMOUNTED TO $88,600,000,~~ WHICH WAS SLIGHTLY OVER THE 1938 FIGURE BUT FAR BELOW THE PEAK IN 1941 WHEN IT [illegible] $153,576,000.
NO TOTALS WERE GIVEN FOR VALUES OR VOLUME OF EXPORTS TO RUSSIA.
IN ADDITION TO ESSENTIAL WAR MATERIAL, BRITISH PRODUCTION HAS BEEN PARTLY FOR CIVILIAN NEEDS, INCLUDING THOSE OF OTHER COUNTRIES.
HUGH DALTON, PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRADE, SAID IN COMMONS TODAY THAT WHEN THE DRIVE FOR EXPORTS IS RESUMED, HE WOULD TRY TO BOOST PRODUCTION FOR CIVILIAN NEEDS TO STIMULATE MORALE.
SO FAR, IT IS HIS PRINCIPAL ANSWER TO CRITICISM THAT THE BOARD OF TRADE HAS ANNOUNCED NO PLANS FOR RECAPTURING THE WORLD MARKETS.
SPEAKING AT STOCKPORT TODAY, J.S.DODD, PRESIDENT OF THE ASSOCIATION OF BRITISH CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE, ADDED HIS VOICE TO PLEAS THAT EXPORT TRADE BE EXPANDED.
"WITHOUT EXPORTS ON A LARGE SCALE WE CANNOT HOPE TO IMPROVE THE STANDARDS OF LIVING OF THE NATION NOR CAN WE MEET THE COST OF THE MANY MEASURES THAT WE ARE CERTAINLY GOING TO UNDERTAKE TO IMPROVE THE SOCIAL SERVICES," HE SAID.
MEANTIME, HE ADDED, BRITISH INDUSTRY SHOULD "TAKE A LEAF FROM THE BOOK OF OUR AMERICAN FRIENDS" AND PLAN FOR CHANGED POLICIES WITHOUT WAITING FOR GOVERNMENT INSTITUTIONS TO ACT.

BLACKPOOL, ENG., OCT 20-(AP)-THE DEFEAT OF GERMANY AND JAPAN MUST BE FOLLOWED BY THE PAYMENT OF REPARATIONS, THE TRADES UNION CONGRESS DECLARED IN A RESOLUTION TODAY.

"THE COUNTRIES WHICH HAVE BEEN PLUNDERED AND EXPLOITED TO SERVE GERMANY'S AIM OF CONQUEST AND DOMINATION HAVE A JUST CLAIM TO REPARATIONS WHICH MUST BE PAID TO THE FULL AND CANNOT BE PAID IN MONEY ALONE," THE RESOLUTION SAID.

THE RESOLUTION, ADOPTED ALMOST UNANIMOUSLY, URGED COMPLETE DISARMAMENT OF GERMANY, CONTROL OF GERMAN INDUSTRIES WHICH COULD BE CONVERTED TO WAR PURPOSES. AND CREATION BY THE ALLIES OF AN ORGANIZATION ARMED WITH POWER TO ENFORCE PEACE.

THE ACTION, WHICH WAS ENVISAGED IN THE AGREEMENTS REACHED SEPT. 25 IN LONDON BY THE FRENCH PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT, THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT AND THE INTERALLIED COMMAND, WAS AUTHORITATIVELY INTERPRETED AS MEANING THAT THE FRENCH NOW HAVE FULL CONTROL OVER, AMONG OTHER THINGS, MOVEMENTS WITHIN THE INTERIOR ZONE AND ENTRY OF THE ZONE BY CIVILIANS. THE MATTER OF ENTRY, HOWEVER, ALSO IS GOVERNED BY THE PROBLEM OF GETTING TRANSPORT TO FRANCE AND ALLIED PERMITS.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE FRENCH ZONES HAS BEEN EXPECTED BY SOME OBSERVERS TO BE A SIGNAL FOR FORMAL RECOGNITION BY THE ALLIES OF THE DE GAULLE GOVERNMENT, BUT NO INDICATIONS OF THIS ACCOMPANIED THE ANNOUNCEMENT.

AACHEN, OCT 20-(AP)-AACHEN, A MISERABLE, DIRTY AND SMASHED DERELICT THAT IS NOT REALLY A CITY ANY LONGER, FELL TO AMERICAN FORCES TODAY AFTER SAVAGE RESISTANCE BY ITS GERMAN GARRISON.

THIS CITY, WHICH THE GERMANS HAD SOUGHT TO MAKE THEIR STALINGRAD OF THE WESTERN FRONT, WAS TAKEN WITH AN ECONOMY OF AMERICAN LIVES WHICH WAS FAR BETTER THAN HAD BEEN EXPECTED--IN THE FACE OF THE FACT THAT NO FIGHTING IS MORE HAZARDOUS THAN A STRUGGLE THROUGH THE STREETS OF A RUINED CITY.

AACHEN WAS THE STRONGEST GERMAN POSITION YET ENCOUNTERED BY THE U.S.FIRST ARMY, BUT LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' MEN DID WHAT THEY SAID THEY WOULD DO.

THEY MADE GOOD THEIR ULTIMATUM.

OCT 21 1944

SNIPER RESISTANCE MAY GO ON FOR SOME TIME, BUT THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN DRIVEN OUT OF THE CENTER OF THE CITY INTO ISOLATED POCKETS ON THE OUTSKIRTS WHERE A FEW ARE HOLDING OUT IN TWO OR THREE CONCRETE AIR RAID SHELTERS CONVERTED INTO BUNKERS.

THE ASSAULT FORCES WENT AT THEIR JOB OBLIQUELY, WORKING IN FROM THE SOUTHEAST AND NORTHEAST TOWARD AACHEN'S CENTER AND THEN SLOWLY SQUEEZING.

THIS TACTIC, ALONG WITH SUCH OTHERS AS SHOOTING LANES THROUGH THE BUILDINGS SO THE TROOPS COULD APPROACH THE ENEMY WITHOUT UNNECESSARY EXPOSURE IN THE OPEN STREETS, SAVED AN IMMENSE AMOUNT OF AMERICAN BLOOD.

IF THE GERMAN PEOPLE IN THE CITIES TO THE EAST COULD SEE THE HAVOC WROUGHT HERE BY THE DECISION OF THEIR LEADERS TO FIGHT IN EVERY STREET AND EVERY CITY IT WOULD BE AN OBJECT LESSON THEY WOULD NEVER FORGET.

THE AACHEN CATHEDRAL, RESTING PLACE OF CHARLEMAGNE, IS STANDING WITH ONLY RELATIVELY MINOR SCARS, HOWEVER. THE CLOISTER IS DAMAGED AS IS THE OCTAGON OF THE CATHEDRAL--A SURVIVAL OF THE ORIGINAL OCTAGON OF CHARLEMAGNE.

AACHEN, A CITY OF 165,000, IS THE GATEWAY TO THE INDUSTRIAL RUHR AND RHINELAND BECAUSE FOUR ROADS AND FOUR RAILROADS FAN OUT IN THAT DIRECTION. IT WAS A BASTION OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE, AND IS ONE OF THE MAIN GATEWAYS TO THE REICH. THE PRUSSIAN CITY OF COLOGNE LIES 40 MILES TO THE EAST AND BERLIN 300 MILES FARTHER.

ONCE A HANDSOME AND WELL BUILT CITY, 37TH WITHIN THE REICH, AACHEN WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN ONE OF THE MOST SEVERELY PUNISHED CENTERS OF THE WAR. THE GERMAN SS COMMAND HAD REFUSED AN AMERICAN ULTIMATUM TO SURRENDER.

IT WAS THE FIRST LARGE GERMAN CITY TO FALL TO ANY OF THE ALLIES IN THIS WAR, AND THE FIRST BITTERLY FOUGHT OVER SINCE THE NAPOLEANIC CAMPAIGNS.

THE TOWERING CATHEDRAL, STARTED IN 796, CONTAINED A THRONE OF THE EMPEROR CHARLEMAGNE AND HIS BONES. VARIOUS REPORTS HAVE SAID THE CATHEDRAL WAS SOMEWHAT DAMAGED. SOME 30-ODD GERMAN KINGS WERE CROWDED IN THE CATHEDRAL AND OTHER NEARBY STRUCTURES. ITS FRENCH NAME WAS AIX-LA-CHAPELLE.

RAILROADS RADIATE FROM AACHEN TO ANTWERP, OOSTENDE, COLOGNE AND ELSEWHERE AND IT IS A PRINCIPAL CLEARING POINT FOR GERMAN TRAFFIC ISSUING FROM BERLIN TO WESTERN EUROPE. IN PEACETIME, IT HAD EXTENSIVE CLOTH, GLOVES, LEATHER, CHEMICAL, PAINT AND IRON PLANTS. NEARLY 250 FACTORIES WERE IN THE CITY, AND HITLER CONVERTED THE MAJORITY OF THEM INTO WAR INDUSTRIES.

EARLY IN THE SIEGE OF AACHEN, THE GERMANS SAID THE CITY WAS FOUR FIFTHS DESTROYED. SPRAWLED IN A COAL BLACKENED VALLEY, AACHEN COVERED FOUR SQUARE MILES. THE GESTAPO EVACUATED MOST OF ITS CITIZENRY, BUT A FEW THOUSAND REMAINED HIDDEN IN THE CELLARS OF AACHEN, AND SEVERAL HUNDRED OF THESE FILTERED OUT TO ALLIED LINES.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY, OCT. 20-(AP)-CANADIAN ARMOR AND INFANTRY SHOVED OFF AT 7:30 A.M. TODAY IN A NEW OFFENSIVE WITH A NORTHWARD PUNCH ON A NARROW FRONT AIMED AT GIVING FLANKING INSURANCE TO TROOPS NOW SEALING THE NECK OF THE ZUID BEVELAND-WALCHEREN PENINSULA IN HOLLAND.

THE NEW CANADIAN OFFENSIVE WAS DESCRIBED AS THE SECOND PHASE IN THE JOB OF CLEARING THE ANTWERP APPROACHES, OF WHICH THE ATTACK ON THE SCHELDE POCKET WAS THE FIRST. ANTWERP IS NEEDED AS A SUPPLY PORT FOR THE WESTERN FRONT.

THE ATTACK WENT FORWARD ON TWO MAIN LINES--ALONG THE MAIN ANTWERP-ROOSENDAAL HIGHWAY AND ALONG THE RAILWAY LINE WHICH ROUGHLY PARALLELS IT ON THE WEST.

IN THE FIRST FEW HOURS THE ATTACKING TROOPS GAINED SEVERAL MILES OVER FLAT WOODED COUNTRY.

ONE FORCE, PREDOMINANTLY ARMOR, WAS ROUGHLY FOLLOWING THE RAIL LINE. INFANTRY FORCES STRUCK OUT ALONG THE HIGHWAY.

THE ATTACK STARTED FROM THE AREAS OF CAPPELLEN AND CAMP DEBRASSCHAET, ABOUT EIGHT MILES NORTH AND NORTHEAST OF ANTWERP.

THE ADVANCING TROOPS HAD CLOSE SUPPORT FROM ROCKET-FIRING TYPHOONS AND OTHER FIGHTERS AND FIGHTERBOMBERS WHICH, WORKING ON SIGNALS FROM THE GROUND FORCES, FLEW 116 SORTIES DURING THE FIRST HOUR OF OPERATION.

WITH NINTH AIR FORCE IN LUXEMBOURG, OCT.20-(AP)-AMERICAN FIGHTER BOMBERS RENEWED THEIR ASSAULT ON ENEMY SUPPLY LINES IN WESTERN GERMANY TODAY IN THE FIRST GOOD WEATHER IN A WEEK AND THE RESULT WAS A TWO TO ONE U.S.VICTORY.

A TOTAL OF 86 GERMAN PLANES CHALLENGED THE AMERICAN AIRMEN AND THE YANK FLIERS SHOT 18 OUT OF THE SKIES AND DAMAGED 21 OTHERS WHILE LOSING NINE OF THEIR PLANES. SIXTY OTHER GERMAN PLANES WERE SIGHTED DURING THE DAY BUT THEY REFUSED TO FIGHT.

IN ONE OF THE DAY'S MOST SUCCESSFUL OPERATIONS, THUNDERBOLTS COMMANDED BY COL. ROBERT L.DELASHAW, SAN ANTONIO, TEX., BLASTED A 15-FOOT HOLE IN A DAM NEAR DIEUZE, SPILLING WATER FROM A LARGE LAKE 25 MILES NORTHEAST OF NANCY OVER THE COUNTRYSIDE.

PARIS, OCT 20-(AP)-PIERRE LAVAL, THE EXECUTOR OF HITLER'S ORDERS WHEN FRANCE WAS UNDER THE GERMAN HEEL, HAS BEEN CONDEMNED TO DEATH IN ABSENTIA BY A MARSEILLE COURT FOR HAVING "INTELLIGENCE WITH THE ENEMY," PARIS NEWSPAPERS SAID TODAY.

JEAN GAILLARD BOURRAGEAS, FORMER EDITOR OF THE MARSEILLE PAPER LE PETIT MARSEILLAIS, WAS SENTENCED TO DEATH AT THE SAME TIME. HE WAS TRIED LIKEWISE IN ABSENTIA ON THE SAME CHARGE.

THE WHEREABOUTS OF THE 61-YEAR-OLD FORMER VICHY CHIEF OF GOVERN-

MENT WAS A MATTER FOR CONJECTURE. A RECENT STOCKHOLM DISPATCH SAID LAVAL WAS UNDERSTOOD TO BE LIVING IN SOUTHERN GERMANY WITH THE AGED MARSHAL PETAIN AND OTHER MEMBERS OF THE FUGITIVE VICHY GOVERNMENT.

LAVAL WAS STILL BEYOND THE GRASP OF FRENCH PATRIOTS, TO WHOM DURING THEIR YEARS OF DEFEAT AND HUMILITATION HE WAS THE ARCH COLLABORATIONIST AND TYRANT--THE MOST HATED MAN IN FRANCE.

BY DANIEL DE LUCE
MOSCOW, SATURDAY, OCT 21-(A PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND Ppremier STALIN, IN FRIENDLY COLLABORATION ON EUROPE'S PROBLEMS, MADE "IMPORTANT PROGRESS" TOWARD SETTLING THE DELICATE POLISH DISPUTE AND ALSO DISPOSED SATISFACTORILY OF TWO BALKAN CONTROVERSIES DURING THEIR RECENT CONFERENCE, A JOINT COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED EARLY TODAY.

SUMMING UP IN BROAD TERMS THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF THEIR MOMENTOUS MEETING AND STRESSING THEIR "FREE AND INTIMATE EXCHANGE OF VIEWS," THE COMMUNIQUE REPORTED THAT:

1. DISCUSSIONS WITH LEADERS OF THE BRITISH-BACKED POLISH EXILED GOVERNMENT AND THE SOVIET-SPONSORED NATIONAL LIBERATION COMMITTEE "HAVE NOTABLY NARROWED DIFFERENCES AND DISPELLED MISCONCEPTIONS. CONVERSATIONS ARE CONTINUING ON OUTSTANDING POINTS."

2. AGREEMENT WAS REACHED ON THE REMAINING POINTS IN THE BULGARIAN ARMISTICE TERMS.

OCT 21 1944

3. THE BRITISH AND SOVIET GOVERNMENTS DECIDED TO PURSUE A JOINT POLICY IN YUGOSLAVIA CENTERED AROUND A UNION BETWEEN KING PETER'S GOVERNMENT AND MARSHAL TITO'S LIBERATION MOVEMENT UNTIL AFTER THE WAR WHEN THEY WILL HAVE THE RIGHT "TO SETTLE THEIR FUTURE CONSTITUTION FOR THEMSELVES."

THE COMMUNIQUE STATED:

"THE MEETING TOOK PLACE WITH THE KNOWLEDGE AND APPROVAL OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT, REPRESENTED AT THE CONVERSATIONS BY THE UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR AT MOSCOW, MR. AVERELL HARRIMAN, ACTING IN THE CAPACITY OF OBSERVER."

IN ADDITION TO THE POLITICAL PROBLEMS WHICH CAME UP FOR SETTLEMENT, SAID THE COMMUNIQUE, "THE UNFOLDING OF MILITARY PLANS AGREED UPON AT TEHERAN WAS COMPREHENSIVELY REVIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF RECENT EVENTS AND CONCLUSIONS OF THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE (BETWEEN CHURCHILL AND PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT) ON THE WAR IN WESTERN EUROPE. UTMOST CONFIDENCE WAS EXPRESSED IN THE FUTURE PROGRESS OF ALLIED OPERATIONS OPHALL FRONTS."

AN INDICATION THAT MILITARY MATTERS WERE PURSUED BY CHURCHILL AND STALIN ALSO WAS GIVEN BY A HIGH BRITISH DIPLOMATIC SOURCE WHO TOLD CORRESPONDENTS ON THE EVE OF CHURCHILL'S DEPARTURE FOR ENGLAND THAT IT WAS NECESSARY THE ENEMY LEARN SOME OF THINGS DISCUSSED BY EVENTS AND NOT BY FORECASTS.

MILITARY DECISIONS, WHICH MAY AFFECT THE TIME NECESSARY TO FINISH THE WAR IN THE WEST, NECESSARILY REMAINED TIGHT SECRETS.

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT, THERE WAS HEARTENING INDICATION OF AN EARLY FUSION OF THE LONDON AND LUBLIN FACTIONS, WITH THE DISPUTE OVER THE ILL-FATED WARSAW REVOLT APPARENTLY PIGEONHOLED AND REMOVED FROM DEBATE.

"WHEN MIKOLAJCZYK RETURNS FROM LONDON NEXT TIME," SAID AN AUTHORITATIVE SOURCE, "IT WILL BE TO STAY."

CHURCHILL, WITH HABITUAL CIGAR IN HAND, AND FOREIGN SECRETARYEDEN, FINALLY BOARDED THEIR PLANE AFTER LAST-MINUTE REMARKS WITH STALIN.

U.S.AMBASSADOR AVERELL HARRIMAN WAS NOT PRESENT AS CHURCHILL DEPARTED, HAVING HIMSELF LEFT IN A FLYING FORTRESS THAT MORNING FOR WASHINGTON, WHERE HE WAS TO REPORT TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

MOSCOW, OCT. 20-(AP)-MULTIPLE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE WERE REPORTED SMASHING NAZI RESISTANCE TODAY ALONG A BATTLE LINE FORGED ACROSS VIRTUALLY ALL OF EUROPE FROM SOUTHERN YUGOSLAVIA TO THE BALTIC, WHERE THE GERMANS HAVE ANNOUNCED THE LOSS OF THE EAST PRUSSIAN TOWN OF EYDTKAU TO A TREMENDOUS RED ARMY INVADING PRE-WAR GERMANY.

THE SOVIET WAR COMMUNIQUE NEITHER CONFIRMED NOR DENIED THE GERMAN ADMISSION OF THE CAPTURE OF THE LITTLE FORTRESS TOWN INSIDE THE REICH, BUT IT DESCRIBED FURTHER RED ARMY SUCCESSES IN POLAND, LITHUANIA, CZECHOSLOVAKIA, HUNGARY AND YUGOSLAVIA, WHERE THE COMPLETE LIBERATION OF BELGRADE APPEARED IMMINENT.

BEYOND THE FACT THAT GEN.IVAN D.CHERNIAKHOVSKY FOR MONTHS HAS BEEN PREPARING AN ASSAULT INTO EAST PRUSSIA FROM FRONTIER BASES BETWEEN SCHIRWINDT AND SUWALKI, NO DETAILS WERE IMMEDIATELY AVAILABLE IN MOSCOW ON A SOVIET OFFENSIVE WHICH THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND SAID HAD DRIVEN SEVERAL MILES TOWARD THE EAST PRUSSIAN CAPITAL OF KONIGSBERG.

GERMAN CESISTANCE IN EASTERN HUNGARY WILTED IN THE DEBRECEN AREA, WHERE MARSHAL RODION Y.MALINOVSKY'S SECOND UKRAINE ARMY REPORTED TAKING 11,000 PRISONERS DURING THE LAST SIX DAYS.

THE FLANKS OF MALINOVSKY'S ARMY AND THAT OF COL.GEN.IVAN PETROV MET IN NORTHERN TRANSYLVANIA AS THE RUSSIANS CONTINUED TO CLEAN OUT DISORGANIZED GERMAN UNITS FROM EASTERN CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

RUSSIAN AND YUGOSLAV PARTISAN SHOCK BRIGADES MOVED THROUGH BELGRADE, EXTERMINATING REMAINING SUICIDE SQUADS OF GERMAN MACHINEGUNNERS.

SOUTHEAST OF BELGRADE RUSSIAN TROOPS WAGED OTHER SUCCESSFUL ENGAGEMENTS IN THE ANNIHILATION OF POCKETED GERMANS AND IN A SINGLE DAY, OCT. 18, TOOK 5,900 PRISONERS, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

REPORTS FROM BELEAGUERED BUDAPEST SAID THAT HUNGARIAN TROOPS LOYAL TO REGENTNICHOLAS HORTHY WERE DEFYING THE DEATH PENALTY ORDAINED BY THE NEW NAZI PUPPET GOVERNMENT AND FIGHTING GERMAN SS UNITS IN THE CITY'S STREETS.

IN THE NORTH GEN. IVAN C. BAGRAMIAN'S FIRST BALTIC ARMY STRUCK ALONG THE FRONTIER OF MEMEL TERRITORY AND FURTHER SOUTH GEN. G.F. MOSCOW, OCT. 18-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A HIGH BRITISH DIPLOMATIC SOURCE, ON THE EVE OF PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S DEPARTURE FROM MOSCOW, DECLARED: "ANGLO-AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP IN WAR AND PEACE CAN SAVE THE WORLD, SECURING IT FOR OUR CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN."

THIS SOURCE SAID CHURCHILL'S VISIT "RENEWED UNSHAKABLE BONDS BETWEEN THE ALLIES," AND WARNED AGAINST MISTAKES OF THE LAST WAR "WHEN COMRADESHIP OF THE GREAT ALLIES FELL TO PIECES THE MOMENT THE FIGHTING STOPPED." THIS, HE SAID, MUST NOT BE REPEATED.

THE THREE-POWER FRIENDSHIP, THE BRITISH SOURCE CONTINUED, "IS PRACTICALLY THE ONLY THING THAT CAN SECURE THE WORLD."

HE GAVE THIS RESUME OF THE MOSCOW TALKS:

IN THE BALKAN SPHERE GREAT TACTICAL RESULTS HAVE BEEN ACHIEVED. THERE ARE THREE OR FOUR STATES, EACH WITH A DIFFICULT PROBLEM TO SOLVE, BUT VERY GREAT AND SENSIBLE RESULTS HAVE BEEN OBTAINED.

THE ANXIOUS QUESTION OF POLAND HAS BEEN EXPLORED BY CHURCHILL AND THE DIFFERENCES THAT EXISTED HAVE ALMOST BEEN CLOSED. THERE IS GOOD HOPE OF FULL AGREEMENT AMONG ALL THE PARTIES CONCERNED.

ALLIED OPERATIONS NOW ARE TIGHT-KNOT AND CO-ORDINATED. WERE IT NOT FOR CONFERENCES, THE WORLD WOULD NOT HAVE SEEN SUCH SMOOTH-WORKING MILITARY EVENTS.

BESIDES POLITICAL QUESTIONS, MILITARY MATTERS WERE DEALT WITH DURING THE CONFERENCES.

QUITE APART FROM TANGIBLE RESULTS, THE BRITISH VISITORS FOUND AN ATMOSPHERE OF COMRADESHIP IN MOSCOW THAT WAS MOST CHEERING. CHURCHILL REJOICED THAT GREAT BRITISH AND AMERICAN ARMIES TOO WERE IN THE FIELD, AND THAT RUSSIA NO LONGER HAD THE FEELING IT WAS BEARING THE WHOLE BURDEN ON THE FIGHTING FRONT.

ALTHOUGH ENCOURAGED BY THE SUCCESS OF ALLIED ARMS, WITH INVADING TROOPS NOW ON GERMAN SOIL AT POINTS NEVER ATTAINED IN THE LAST WAR, THE BRITISH DIPLOMATIC SOURCE SAID ALLIED LEADERS TOOK A SOBER VIEW OF THE DATE OF FINAL VICTORY.

THE HUNGARIAN CHANGEOVER THREW THAT COUNTRY IN A DIRE STRUGGLE WITH THE COMMON PIRATE. BRITISH, AMERICANS AND RUSSIANS WOULD NOT BE DAUNTED, HE CONTINUED, BY THE LENGTH AND SEVERITY OF THEIR TASK. THE MORE PROLONGED THE GERMAN RESISTANCE, HE SAID, THE MORE THEIR SUFFERING AND THE FEWER OF THEM LEFT AS A PROBLEM. A TERRIBLE WINTER LIES BEFORE THE GERMANS, COMPRESSED INTO THEIR OWN COUNTRY BY A CIRCLE OF STEEL AND FIRE.

THE GERMANS' SATELLITES HAVE TURNED AGAINST THEM; THEIR MUNITIONS ARE FAILING; THEIR CITIES ARE BEING REDUCED BY FIRE FROM THE AIR; THEIR SUPPLIES OF ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES SUCH AS OIL ARE BEING CUT OFF. TERRIBLE STRESSES WERE SHOWN IN THE ATTEMPT TO DESTROY THE ARCH MISCREANT AND ARCH-MUDDLER (HITLER), AND THERE ARE MANY FRACTURES IN THE STRUCTURE OF THE GERMAN ARMY.

BRITAIN IS DETERMINED, THE DIPLOMATIC SOURCE SAID, NOT TO ALLOW POLAND AGAIN TO BECOME A SORE PLACE IN HER AFFAIRS. BRITISH SYMPATHY WITH THE POLES IS VERY GREAT, HE SAID. NOW THEY HAVE BEEN LIBERATED AS A RESULT MAINLY OF RUSSIAN EXERTIONS AND SACRIFICES, AND THERE IS AN ARDENTLY-CHERISHED WISH FOR GOOD FELLOWSHIP ALL AROUND AND MUTUAL AID.

THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER IS KNOWN TO HAVE AN EXTREMELY WARM REGARD FOR THE CHIEF OF THE RUSSIAN STATE, HIS HIGHLY-COMPETENT COLLEAGUE. HE ALSO HAD KEPT IN CLOSEST TOUCH WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, AND CAME TO MOSCOW WITH HIS FULL ASSENT AND APPROVAL, THE SOURCE SAID.

MOSCOW, OCT 20-(AP)-ALLIED DIPLOMATIC OBSERVERS READ WITH MIXED FEELINGS TONIGHT A TASS DISPATCH TO PRAVDA REPORTING A MASS MEETING OF LUBLIN POLES CHARGING EXILED PREMIER STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK'S GOVERNMENT WITH RESPONSIBILITY FOR "CRIMINAL ACTS OF TERROR."

THE DISPATCH WAS PRINTED A FEW HOURS AFTER LEADERS OF THE LONDON GOVERNMENT IN EXILE AND LEADERS OF THE LUBLIN REGIME OPTIMISTICALLY FORECAST EARLY AGREEMENT.

TASS QUOTED THE LUBLIN NEWSPAPER ORGAN OF THE POLISH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION AS CLAIMING MIKOLAJCZYK'S SECOND VISIT TO MOSCOW COINCIDED WITH ORGANIZATION OF TERRORISM IN LIBERATED POLISH TERRITORY, AND LINKED THE TERRORISTS WITH HIS EXILED GOVERNMENT. HIS FIRST VISIT, THE NEWSPAPER SAID, COINCIDED WITH THE ILL-FATED INSURRECTION AT WARSAW.

CRIES OF "DOWN WITH MIKOLAJCZYK'S GOVERNMENT" RESOUNDED, TASS SAID, AS REPRESENTATIVES OF SOCIALIST, NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC AND WORKERS' PARTIES HELD ANGRY GATHERINGS IN LUBLIN FACTORIES AND HEARD MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION CHARGE THAT TERRORISM WAS INSTIGATED WITH "KNOWLEDGE AND AGREEMENT OF THE SO-CALLED POLISH GOVERNMENT IN LONDON, HEADED BY MIKOLAJCZYK."

TASS SAID PARTY RALLIES PASSED RESOLUTIONS DEMANDING THAT THE COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION GET A PUBLIC DECLARATION FROM MIKOLAJCZYK CONCERNING "CRIMINAL REACTION" BEFORE UNDERTAKING NEGOTIATIONS.

THE RESOLUTIONS CONTENDED THAT THE "DEBAUCH OF REACTION" AROSE FROM AGRICULTURAL REFORMS OF THE COMMITTEE, WHICH SEEKS TO LIQUIDATE THE POWER OF GREAT LANDOWNERS AND TO TURN OUT THOSE ACCUSED OF BRINGING POLAND'S DEFEAT.

(ADVANCE) LONDON, SATURDAY, OCT 21-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND MARSHAL STALIN HAVE MADE IMPORTANT PROGRESS TOWARD ENDING THE LONG DISPUTE OVER POLAND'S FUTURE, HAVE AGREED UPON A JOINT POLICY IN YUGOSLAVIA, AND HAVE SETTLED DIFFERENCES OVER THE BULGARIAN ARMISTICE TERMS.

THIS WAS DISCLOSED TODAY IN A COMMUNIQUE OUTLINING IN BROAD GENERAL TERMS THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE MOMENTOUS MEETINGS AT MOSCOW.

(EDITORS: IT WILL BE MADE PUBLIC AT 7:30 PEW)

THE WIDE RANGE OF THE DISCUSSIONS BROUGHT MILITARY DECISIONS AGREED UPON AT TEHRAN UP TO DATE, COVERED POLITICAL QUESTIONS OF COMMON INTEREST, AND REVIEWED THE MARCH OF EVENTS IN SOUTHEAST EUROPE.

IT WAS DISCLOSED THAT CHURCHILL LEFT MOSCOW THURSDAY MORNING, WITH MARSHAL STALIN BIDDING HIM FAREWELL AT THE AIRPORT.

THERE WERE INDICATIONS THAT STEPS REMAIN TO BE TAKEN BEFORE THE BRITISH-BACKED POLISH EXILED GOVERNMENT AND THE SOVIET-SPONSORED COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION REACH A FINAL ACCORD. BUT FROM THE CONFERENCES BETWEEN THE LEADERS OF THOSE TWO RIVAL POLISH FACTIONS WITH STALIN AND CHURCHILL EMERGED THE CONCLUSION THAT DIFFERENCES HAD BEEN NARROWED AND MISCONCEPTIONS DISPELLED.

BOTH CHURCHILL AND STALIN AGREED ON THE RIGHT OF THE YUGOSLAV PEOPLE TO SETTLE THEIR FUTURE CONSTITUTION FOR THEMSELVES AFTER THE WAR, IT WAS STATED.

OCT 21 1944

SUPPLIES ON THE SHIP THAT DOCKED TODAY IN PIRAEUS INCLUDED NEARLY 4,000 TONS OF WHEAT AND 600 OTHER TONS COMPRISING MEAT, CHEESE AND OTHER FOODS. WITH THE ADVENT OF THE MILITARY LIAISON GROUP, THE BREAD RATION IN THE ATHENS AREA HAS BEEN INCREASED 25 PERCENT AND ANOTHER INCREASE IS EXPECTED.

OCT 21 1944

OTHER TASKS FACING SCOBIE AND HIS STAFF INCLUDE THE OBTAINING OF [redacted] MEDICAL AID FOR THE CONTROL OF MALARIA AND OTHER DISEASES THAT REACHED NEAR-EPIDEMIC PROPORTIONS IN THE EARLY STAGES OF GERMAN OCCUPATION BUT WHICH LESSENED GRADUALLY IN RECENT MONTHS.

AS A RESULT OF ENEMY OPERATIONS AND CIVIL WAR, SOME 200,000 GREEKS ARE HOMELESS AND THE ALLIED ORGANIZATION FACED THE PROBLEM OF OBTAINING SHELTER FOR THESE PEOPLE. RESTORATION OF [redacted] FARMING AND THE FISHING INDUSTRY ALSO IS ON THE AGENDA.

INDICATIONS WERE THAT THE NEW PAPANDREOU GOVERNMENT WOULD BE FORMED BY THE END OF THE WEEK. THE CABINET MEMBERS' RESIGNATION IMPLIED THERE WOULD BE NO CHANGE IN THE PREMIERSHIP OR GOVERNMENT PROGRAM. THE LIBERATOR TEAM BLEW UP A 5,170-TON CRUISER OF THE NATORI CLASS ON MONDAY WITH THREE BOMBS IN A SINGLE RUN, AND DROPPED THREE MORE BOMBS ON A DESTROYER, WHICH WAS LEFT IN A SINKING CONDITION.

ON D-DAY MINUS THREE A COMBAT TEAM LANDED ON THE NORTHERN TIP OF DINAGAT ISLAND AND ON THE SOUTHERN PORTION OF HONOHON ISLAND, WHICH BORDERS ON THE ENTRANCE TO LEYTE GULF, TO SECURE AND CAPTURE ENEMY INSTALLATIONS.

THESE FORCES HAD SMALL MARKER BEACON LIGHTS LAST NIGHT AS A GUIDE FOR THE CONVOY ENTERING THE GULF.

DURING THIS PERIOD PRIOR TO D-DAY, MINE SWEEPING UNITS AND SPECIAL NAVY DEMOLITION SQUADS CLEARED THE APPROACHES TO THE OBJECTIVE AREA. THESE DEMOLITION UNITS CLEARED OBSTACLES FROM THE LANDING BEACHES AND MARKED ANY NAVIGATIONAL HAZARDS IN THE PATH OF THE ATTACK FORCE.

WITH SIXTH ARMY FORCES, LEYTE ISLAND, P.I., OCT. 20-(AP)-FORTY-FIVE YEARS AGO AN OBSCURE YOUNG PRIVATE STILL IN HIS TEENS FOUGHT IN THE FIRST PHILIPPINE CAMPAIGN AND SHOWED UNMISTAKEABLE TALENT IN THE ART OF WAR.

NOW THAT PRIVATE HAS RETURNED TO THE PHILIPPINES AS GENERAL MACARTHUR'S THREE-STAR FIELD COMMANDER.

HE IS TOUGH, TACITURN, 63 YEAR OLD LT. GEN. WALTER KRUEGER, ONE OF THE ARMY'S ABLEST SOLDIERS.

THE COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE 6TH ARMY SPENT FOUR AND ONE-HALF DECADES PREPARING FOR THE BATTLE HE IS NOW DIRECTING.

HE CAME TO THE UNITED STATES FROM GERMANY WHEN HE WAS EIGHT YEARS OLD AND 10 YEARS LATER WAS A TECHNICAL HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT IN CINCINNATI WHEN THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR BROKE OUT. HE ENLISTED FROM HIS HOME AT MADISON, IND.

WAR WAS HIS METIER AND HE TOOK TO ARMY LIFE AS NATURALLY AS AN EAGLE TO THE AIR. THE SOFT-SPOKEN STUDENT QUICKLY ADAPTED HIMSELF TO TAKING ORDERS AND GIVING THEM. HE WAS SENT TO CUBA IN 1898 AS A NONCOMMISSIONED OFFICER UPON ENLISTING AND WHEN MUSTERED OUT THE FOLLOWING YEAR RE-ENLISTED IN THE REGULAR ARMY, SAILING FOR LUZON TO FIGHT UNDER GEN. ARTHUR MACARTHUR. ONE OF THE WEST POINTERS WHO WAS ALSO IN THE FIELD AT THIS TIME WAS GEN. MACARTHUR'S SON DOUGLAS.

PROMOTIONS CAME SLOWLY TO THE PROFESSIONAL SOLDIER IN THE FOLLOWING YEARS AND HE WAS A CAPTAIN IN 1916 WHEN THE MEXICAN BORDER INCIDENT DEVELOPED. HE WAS ELEVATED TO LIEUTENANT COLONEL AND LED THE TENTH PENNSYLVANIA INFANTRY ON A PUNITIVE EXPEDITION. DURING HIS RISE FROM THE RANKS HE BECAME KNOWN AS A STRICT DISCIPLINARIAN BUT AS AN OFFICER WHO DEALT FAIRLY AND WITHOUT PREJUDICE TOWARD HIS MEN.

IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR KRUEGER WAS THE ACTING CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE 8TH DIVISION AND LATER CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE AEF TANK CORPS, FOR WHICH HE WAS AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE MEDAL.

FROM 1922 TO 1924 HE SERVED AS A MEMBER OF THE WAR PLANS DIVISION OF THE GENERAL STAFF AND THE JOINT ARMY-NAVY BOARD. THEN, AS A MAJOR GENERAL, HE WAS GIVEN COMMAND OF THE EIGHTH ARMY CORPS WITH HEADQUARTERS AT SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS. HERE WAS FORMED THE NUCLEUS OF HIS NOW FAMOUS ALAMO TASK FORCE.

IN MAY, 1941, HE BECAME A LIEUTENANT GENERAL, COMMANDING THE 3RD ARMY AND THE SOUTHERN DEFENSE COMMAND. WHEN MACARTHUR FORMED HIS 6TH ARMY IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC IN FEBRUARY, 1943, HE CALLED FOR HIS OLD FRIEND WALTER TO COMMANDH

WITH ASSAULT TROOPS ON PALO BEACH AT LEYTE,PHILIPPINES, OCT.20-(AP)-GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR THREW OVERPOWERING FORCES ON LEYTE TODAY BUT FROM WHERE I HIT THE BEACH WITH A REGIMENTAL COMMANDER IT WAS A GRIM AND BITTER BUSINESS FOR SEVERAL HOURS TODAY.

FOUR LANDING SHIPS SANK AND SEVERAL SMALLER CRAFT ABOUT US WERE SMOTHERED BY JAP SHORE GUNS AND MORTARS. WE MOVED THE LAST 500 YARDS TOWARDS THE BEACH ABOARD HIGGINS BOATS IN A RAIN OF SHRAPNEL AND MACHINEGUN BULLETS.

WHEN, AFTER ETERNAL MINUTES, WE COULD LAND, WE HIT THE SAND AND HAD TO PLOW THROUGH WAIST-DEEP WATER THROUGH GEYSERS THROWN UP BY VERY NEAR MISSES.

WITH AN ARTILLERY MAJOR, HAROLD LEE OF TACOMA, WASH., I CHARGED BEHIND COCONUT

OGS AND FOR HALF AN HOUR WA

CHARGED BEHIND COCONUT LOGS AND FOR HALF AN HOUR WAITED FOR A LULL IN THE SEEMINGLY ENDLESS POUNDING.

AT THE FIRST EASING OF FIRE, WE MADE A RUN FOR A NEARBY BATTALION COMMAND POST AND FLOPPED DOWN AS A SNIPER ON OUR LEFT CUT LOOSE WITH AN AUTOMATIC WEAPON. TWENTY FEET FROM US A CROUCHING SOLDIER GROANED AND ROLLED OVER WITH A BULLET THROUGH THE CHEST. WHILE A MEDICAL CORPSMAN WAS RUNNING TOWARD A GROUP OF WOUNDED IN A PALM GROVE, HIS MIDRIFF WAS SHOT AWAY.

UNTIL MIDAFTERNOON, THE SHIPS UNLOADED DOGGEDLY UNDER ENEMY FIRE WHILE ASSAULT TROOPS REACHED TOWARD THE PALO ROAD, ABOUT A MILE INLAND, AND TOWARD HILL 522 WHENCE MOST OF THE JAP FIRE SEEMS TO BE COMING.

AT LONG LAST, THE STRUGGLING SOLDIERS DRAGGED OUR OWN ARTILLERY ASHORE AND BEGAN ANSWERING THE JAPANESE. OUR OFFSHORE BARRAGE SLACKENED BUT AT NIGHTFALL THE BEACHHEADS WERE STILL HOT WITH SNIPERS.

ABOARD VICE ADM.KINKAID'S FLAGSHIP OFF LEYTE,PHILIPPINES, OCT.20-(AP)-OPERATING IN CLOSE SUPPORT OF THE BOMBARDMENT FORCE WHICH GAVE LEYTE A TERRIFIC POUNDING BEFORE TROOPS WENT ASHORE WERE THE NAVY'S VALIANT LITTLE "JEEP" CARRIERS.

MAKING UP IN NUMBERS FOR WHAT THEY LACKED IN SIZE, THE BABY FLATTOPS SENT FLIGHT AFTER FLIGHT OF AVENGERS AND SWIFT NEW WILDCATS ON DEVASTATING SWEEPS OF LEYTE BEACHES AND SEA APPROACHES.

ON WEDNESDAY WILDCATS POUNCED ON TWO JAPANESE LAUNCHES OFF HINUNDAYAN, AT THE ENTRANCE TO SURIGAO STRAIT, OFF LEYTE'S SOUTHEAST COAST. THE LAUNCHES, LOADED WITH 150 REINFORCEMENTS AND SUPPLIES, ALL WERE DESTROYED. THE FEW SURVIVORS WHO SWAM ASHORE PROBABLY WERE KILLED BY FILIPINO GUERRILLAS.

AVENGERS SET FIRE TO TWO CARGO SHIPS BETWEEN LEYTE AND CEBU THURSDAY. THE SHIPS BURNED FOR 16 HOURS.

FIGHTERS AND TORPEDO BOMBERS TORMENTED HEAVY JAPANESE MOTOR TRAFFIC ALONG THE LEYTE ROADS ON THE DAY PRECEDING THE LANDING. PILOTS REPORTED THAT CLOSE TO 100 JAPANESE LIGHT TANKS WERE CONCEALED BACK OF THE LANDING BEACHES, AND HEAVY STRIKES AND STRAFING ATTACKS WERE DIRECTED AGAINST THESE TARGETS.

AT LEAST ONE STAFF CAR WAS STRAFED AND LEFT BURNING ON THE TACLOBAN ROAD. DOZENS OF TRUCKS, LOADED WITH PERSONNEL AND SUPPLIES, WERE KNOCKED OUT IN VICIOUS LOW-LEVEL FORAYS.

ABOARD A CRUISER OFF DULAG,OCT.20-(AP)-FOR 30 MINUTES BEFORE THE INVASION, I WATCHED THE GUNS OF AMERICAN WARSHIPS POUND THE BEACHES OF LEYTE WITH AN AWESOME DEADLINESS.
A FEW MINUTES BEFORE THE FIRST WAVE OF LANDING CRAFT HIT THE BEACHES, THOSE BIG GUNS SHIFTED THEIR FIRE TO THE HILLS RISING 1,000 FEET.
UNTIL NEARLY AN HOUR AFTER THE FIRST TROOPS LANDED, SUSTAINED FIRE SUPPORT OF THE TANK-LED ASSAULT BATTALIONS WAS SUPPLIED BY THE SHIPS. THE MASSIVE GUN FIRE DREW NOT A SINGLE SHOT FROM THE JAPANESE AGAINST THE SHIPS OFF DULAG, ON THE NORTHEAST COAST OF LEYTE.
HAPPILY, UNLIKE BLOODY PELELIU IN THE PALAU ISLANDS, WHERE INFILADE MORTAR FIRE BLEW UP SEVERAL LANDING CRAFTS, NOT ONE ASSAULT WAVE BOAT WAS HIT AT THIS BEACH LANDING.
CATMON HILL, NORTH OF DULAG, WAS ONE POSITION FROM WHICH THE JAPANESE COULD HAVE LAID DOWN A BLANKET OF FIRE BUT THE BATTLE WAGONS AND CRUISERS TOOK CARE OF IT, ASSISTED BY PLANES.

ABOARD VICE ADM.THOMAS C.KINCAID'S COMMAND SHIP OFF LEYTE, OCT. 20-(AP)-LUCK AND WEATHER WERE WITH THE GREATEST INVASION ARMADA EVER ASSEMBLED IN THE PACIFIC.
RECORDS OF THE PAST 60 YEARS SHOW THAT LEYTE HAS BEEN WHIPLASHED BY TYPHOONS THREE TIMES EACH OCTOBER. THUS THE INVASION WAS UNDERTAKEN DURING THE HEIGHT OF THE TYPHOON SEASON.
THESE COUNTER-CLOCKWISE WINDS, BLOWING AT MORE THAN 75 MILES AN HOUR, COULD WREAK HAVOC AMONG LSTS MOVING ASHORE. HENCE WEATHER WAS VERY MUCH ON OUR MINDS AS THE SIX GROUPS OF LANDING CRAFT, TRANSPORTS, AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND WARSHIPS OF ALL CATEGORIES MOVED TOWARD THE INVASION SCENE.
THE ALL-IMPORTANT WORK OF THE GUN CREWS GOULD BE NULLIFIED BY TYPHOONS.
BUT THE PACIFIC WAS TRUE TO HER NAME. THREE DAYS BEFORE THE LANDINGS, THE CALM FELL. THE GREAT INVASION ARMADA SAILED SERENELY TO ITS MISSION.

SAN FRANCISCO,OCT 20-(AP)-A JAPANESE DOMEI NEWS AGENCY BROADCAST TODAY SAID GEN.PAULINO SANTOS, CHIEF OF THE JAPANESE-CONTROLLED PHILIPPINE CONSTABULARY, WAS ON AN INSPECTION TOUR TO DETERMINE IF THAT FORCE "IS READY" TO MEET THE AMERICAN "ATTEMPT" AT A LANDING IN THE ISLANDS.
THE BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, SAID ALSO THAT GEN.GUILLERMO FRANCISCO, ADVISER TO PUPPET PRESIDENT JOSE P.LAUREL, ASSURED PRESS REPRESENTATIVES THAT NIPPONESE STRENGTH IN THE PHILIPPINES, INCLUDING THE CONSTABULARY, "IS ENOUGH TO GUARANTEE THE SAFETY OF THE COUNTRY FROM ANY ATTEMPT BY THE ENEMY AT INVASION."

SAN FRANCISCO,OCT 20 (AP)-HORRIE LANDSBERG, A MILD-MANNERED FELLOW WITH A SHY GRIN, IS GOING TO BLOW HIS TOP WHEN HE HEARS ABOUT THIS.

THE JAPANESE PROPAGANDA BOYS, ANXIOUS TO SUPPORT THEIR CLAIMS THAT THE AMERICAN FLEET WHICH ATTACKED FORMOSA WAS "ANNIHILATED," EAVESDROPPED ON THE TRANSMISSION OF ONE OF LANDSBERG'S DISPATCHES AS AN ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT. AND THE TRICKS THEY DID WITH IT!

HORRIE, WHO HAS BEEN ON MANY A THRILLING FLEET MISSION, REPORTED OCT.14 FROM A CARRIER OFF FORMOSA HOW AN ATTACK OF JAPANESE PLANES AGAINST THE TASK FORCE WAS SHATTERED.

DOMEI, JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY, TRANSMITTED A GROTESQUELY DISTORTED VERSION OF THAT DISPATCH BY MORSE WIRELESS FOR USE IN THE CONTROLLED

PRESS OF OCCUPIED ASIA. THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION RELEASED THE DISTORTED VERSION AS RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION.

A FEW COMPARISONS:

DOMEI VERSION: "JAPANESE TORPEDO PLANES, BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS CRASHED THROUGH A VIRTUAL CURTAIN OF STEEL PUT UPBY THE UNITED STATES FLEET, AND PLUNGED TOWARD US. . .THE MAJORITY OF THEM, HOWEVER, SLIPPED THROUGH OUR CURTAIN OF FIRE AND HEADED MAINLY TOWARD OUR AIR-CRAFT CARRIERS AND BATTLESHIPS."

WHAT LANDSBERG ACTUALLY WROTE: "BETWEEN 50 AND 75 ENEMY AIRCRAFT ATTEMPTED TO BREAK THROUGH OUR PROTECTIVE SCREEN DURING THE DAY. . . . ALL TOLD, AT LEAST 60 JAPANESE PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN BY FIGHTERS OR ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS. . . ONLY A FEW ENEMY AIRCRAFT, HOWEVER, GOT THROUGH TO THE VICINITY OF THE SHIPS."

DOMEI VERSION: "RIGHT BEFORE THE EYES OF THIS CORRESPONDENT, A DESTROYER WAS ENVELOPED IN FURIOUS FLAMES AND SANK WHEN A JAPANESE PLANE CRASHED ONTO IT."

WHAT LANDSBERG REALLY WROTE: "ONE CRUISER HAD A CLOSE CALL. A PLANE, DESCRIBED AS A JAPANESE SUICIDE BOMBER, DVE FOR THE SHIP, LANDING BARELY ON HER FANTAIL. DAMAGE WAS SUPERFICIAL AND THE SKIPPER MESSAGED: "INSTEAD OF STAYING TO HELP THE DAMAGED SHIPS, THE AMERICAN FLEET IS ALREADY DESPERATELY TRYING TO ESCAPE EASTWARD."

THERE'S NO LANDSBERG COUNTERPART FOR THAT. DOMEI JUST DREAMED UP THAT ONE.

LANDSBERG'S DELAYED DISPATCH WAS TRANSMITTED FROM SAN FRANCISCO TO ASSOCIATED PRESS MEMBERS MONDAY NIGHT OCT. 16 (A130FX, THROU A139FX.)

UNDATED TERAUCHI

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OCT 21 1944

FIELD MARSHAL COUNT JUICHI TERAUCHI, IDENTIFIED BY GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR AS HIS ADVERSARY IN THE FIGHT FOR THE PHILIPPINES, IS JAPAN'S HIGHEST RANKING ACTIVE COMMANDER AND ONE OF HER OUTSTANDING SOLDIERS OF MODERN TIMES.

SHORTLY AFTER PEARL HARBOR EMPEROR HIROHITO DESIGNATED HIM COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF ALL JAPANESE LAND FORCES IN THE SOUTHWESTERN PACIFIC AREA, FROM FORMOSA AROUND TO BURMA, AND PRESUMABLY IT IS IN THAT ACPACITY THAT HE WAS TAKEN OVER IN PERSON DIRECTION OF THE DEFENSE OF THE PHILIPPINES.

TERAUCHI IS 65, THE SON OF ANOTHER FIELD MARSHAL, COUNT MASAKATA TERAUCHI, A DOMINATING FIGURE IN THE EARLY DAYS OF JAPAN'S IMPERIAL EXPANSION AS A RUTHLESS GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF KOREA IN THE EARLY DAYS OF JAPANESE POSSESSION AND AS PREMIER IN 1916-15.

THE PRESENT TERAUCHI, MARKED BY A HIGH-DOMED BALD HEAD POLISHED TO THE SHEEN OF OLD IVORY, HAS BEEN MINISTER OF WAR AND OFTEN HAS BEEN MENTIONED FOR THE PREMIERSHIP. HE WAS COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF JAPANESE ARMIES IN NORTH CHINA IN THE EARLY STAGES OF JAPAN'S CAMPAIGN OF CONQUEST THERE.

AFTER THE FALL OF CORREGIDOR, MAY 7, 1942, EMPEROR HIROHITO ISSUED ONE OF HIS COMPARATIVELY RARE IMPERIAL RESCRIPTS COMMENDING TERAUCHI AND HIS NAVAL COLLEAGUE, ADMIRAL ISOROKU YAMAMOTO, FOR THE VICTORY. LESS THAN A YEAR LATER YAMAMOTO DIED WHEN HIS PLANE WAS DOWNED SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA. NOW TERAUCHI IS CALLED ON TO DEFEND THE PRIZE THEY WON TOGETHER.

ONLY ONE OTHER ACTIVE JAPANESE SOLDIER IS BELIEVED TO HOLD THE RANK OF FIELD MARSHAL, WAR MINISTER GEN.SUGIYAMA.

TOKYO RADIO BROKE A SEVERAL HOURS' SILENCE ON THE PHILIPPINES INVASION TONIGHT (FRI.) TO CLAIM THE SINKING OF ONE TRANSPORT AND THE DAMAGING OF FIVE SHIPS IN TWO DAYS' "REPEATED AND FIERCE ATTACKS" AGAINST THE INVADERS.

(GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE SAID ONE SHIP WAS HIT BY A TORPEDO AND LANDING CRAFT LIGHTLY DAMAGED BY SHORE FIRE DURING THE JAPANESE DEFENSE WHICH INCLUDED ONLY "TWO SCATTERED AIR RAIDS.")

[illegible] BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, ALSO CLAIMED JAPANESE GROUND FORCES ON LEYTE WERE "CUTTING DEEP INTO ENEMY LANDING POINTS" BUT ADMITTED THE INVADERS WERE "HEADING TOWARD TACLOBAN."

IN BOTH ENGLISH AND JAPANESE, BEAMED TO NORTH AMERICA, THE JAPANESE CLAIMED THAT THE DAMAGED SHIPS WERE TWO AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, TWO BATTLESHIPS AND ONE TRANSPORT.

THE ASSERTED DAMAGE WAS SAID TO HAVE RESULTED FROM AERIAL ASSAULTS. THE BROADCASTS MADE NO MENTION OF IMPERIAL NAVAL UNITS, DESPITE THEIR SUPPOSED VICTORY OVER THE THIRD FLEET OFF FORMOSA.

THE JAPANESE-LANGUAGE BROADCAST DECLARED THAT LEYTE ISLAND GARRISON UNITS LATE FRIDAY NIGHT ATTACKED THE AMERICANS HEADED FOR TACLOBAN, ON THE ISLAND'S NORTHEAST COAST, IN "ALMOST SUICIDAL PLUNGES" AND "THREW THEM INTO A STATE OF CHAOS."

(ADVANCE) SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC (DELAYED) CUPID, ORDINARILY A PLAYFUL FELLOW, WON'T PLAY WITH MARINE SECOND LT. GEORGE THOMPSON. AND THEREBY RESTS A SAD STORY IN LOVE-LETTER WRITING.

LIEUTENANT THOMPSON IS, UNFORTUNATELY HE SAYS, CENSOR FOR HIS MARINE UNIT. AND BECAUSE HE READS HUNDREDS OF LOVE LETTERS EVERY DAY HE CAN NO LONGER WRITE AN APPROPRIATE LETTER TO HIS WIFE, MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON, (239 GRANT AVE.) HIGHLAND PARK, NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J.

THIS IS BAD, THOMPSON SAID, BECAUSE HE AND HIS WIFE ARE EXPECTING AN HEIR AND IT'S OBLIGATORY HE CONSIDER CIVILIAN MORALE.

PARTICULARLY HIS WIFE'S. "AND I LOVE HER MORE THAN EVER," HE MOANED.

"EVERY TIME I PUT DOWN 'SWEETHEART,' 'MY DARLING' OR 'DEAREST', I RECALL HUNDREDS OF OTHER MARINES USE THESE TERMS OF ENDEARMENT. AND IT SEEMS AS IF EVERY PRETTY PHRASE I THINK OF HAS ALREADY BEEN USED BY ANOTHER MARINE. FROM THE START MY LETTER SOUNDS IMITATIVE."

CONSEQUENTLY HE COMMENCES HIS LETTERS WITH JUST PLAIN "DEAR."

ONCE HE EXPLAINED HIS RATHER FACTUAL LETTERS TO HIS WIFE WITH, "IF YOU COULD SEE THE DRIVEL I MUST READ DAILY, YOU'D UNDERSTAND HOW CHILDISH ROMANTIC ENDEAVORS ARE." FOR GOOD MEASURE HE ADDED, "I'M GLAD YOU'RE MATURE ENOUGH NOT TO EXPECT SUCH NONSENSE."

OCT 211944

HIS WIFE ANSWERED:

"IF YOUR MEN COULD ONLY READ YOUR EARLY LETTERS TO ME, THEY'D DISCOVER THEMSELVES TO BE MODEST LOVE LETTER WRITERS."

THOMPSON, FORMERLY A SPORTING GOODS SALESMAN IN BOSTON, THEN THREW ORIGINALITY TO THE WINDS AND BORROWED HEAVILY FROM THE LOVE LETTERS HE READ THAT DAY. THAT FAILED BECAUSE THE CULLED PHRASES DIDN'T BLEND.

NEXT HE SOUGHT INSPIRATION AND AT NIGHT SAT DOWN, PEN AND TABLET IN HAND, BESIDE A PALM TREE AND STARED AT THE GOLDEN, TROPICAL MOON WHICH LEFT A SILVERY PATH ACROSS THE PACIFIC.

"INSPIRATION CAME BUT I WAS SOON EMBARRASSED WHEN MARINES STUCK THEIR HEADS OUT OF THE BUSHES AND CALLED FOR OTHER MARINES TO LOOK AT SOME DOPE TRYING TO WRITE A LETTER BY MOONLIGHT," THOMPSON RECALLED BECAUSE "I HAD A HEADACHE FROM STRAINING MY EYES."

HIS WIFE, LIEUTENANT THOMPSON CONCLUDED, WILL HAVE TO BE SATISFIED WITH A SIMPLE, "I LOVE YOU." WHICH, HE SAID, HE MEANS WITH ALL HIS HEART.

LIEUTENANT THOMPSON IS A SON OF MRS. EDITH THOMPSON, (771 [illegible]DLEY ST.) DORCHESTER, MASS.

Yanks Take Tacloban And 2 Leyte Airfields In Philippine Offensive

OCT 22 1944

U. S. Forces Advance Four Miles Inland Along Broad Front

Central Philippine Invasion Successes Accompanied by Stern Warning From U. S. Commander Holding Jap Leaders Accountable for Tortures at Bataan

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, SUNDAY, Oct. 22—(AP)—American invasion forces on Leyte in the Central Philippines, penetrating four miles inland along an 18 mile front, have captured two airfields, the capital city of Tacloban, the town of Dulag and won control of a strait leading to inland seas of the archipelago, headquarters announced today.

The airfields, first to fall into Yank hands as potential bases from which Army planes can expand the air coverage now provided by carrier aircraft, were overrun near Tacloban and Dulag.

As success on success was scored by the largest invasion army yet massed in the Pacific Ocean areas, Gen. Douglas MacArthur solemnly warned the Japanese Government and military leaders they would be held accountable for the tortures at Bataan in 1942 and for any repetitions against either soldiers or civilians.

The First Cavalry Division which overrun Tacloban Airfield the first day of fighting surged into Tacloban itself last night. The capture of Tacloban gave the Americans control of San Juanico Strait between Leyte and the island of Samar.

Americans Push On Duren From Fallen Aachen

Both the airfield and the capital city were abandoned by the Japanese.

Elements of the 96th Division captured Dulag, 20 miles south of Tacloban yesterday without difficulty, then beat off Japanese tanks before beginning a drive up the Leyte Valley.

Headquarters said the Japanese Air Force has made more scattered attacks against some vessels of the 600-ship convoy which brought the massive force from Dutch New Guinea to the invasion scene.

Because of effective attacks by carrier planes of the Seventh Fleet on enemy airfields in the Visayan and Palawan Islands, the Japanese air efforts against shipping in Pedro Bay were restricted to sporadic sneak attacks.

Threaten Strait

The victories in the Tacloban area placed the Yanks on the west shore of a strait leading to the Philippines inland sea.

The captors of Dulag, part of the 24th Corps, were forced to beat off a spirited Japanese tank and infiltration counter-attack before resuming their push beyond that town. Six light enemy tanks spearheaded Japanese artillery and infantry in blows aimed at the advancing columns. American armor suffered some damage before the foe was driven from gun positions and entrenchments they had reoccupied.

The new successes announced came after strong enemy positions, which included concrete pillboxes and prepared artillery positions were eliminated by infiltration to avoid the most costly frontal assaults.

A short distance south of Tacloban, at Palo, where Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent earlier reported the Japanese put up heavy mortar fire resistance against landings, the going still was tough.

Yesterday artillery and divebombers supported the 24th Division's uphill struggle to deepen the wedge in that sector. Divebombers attacked 20 truckloads of Japanese.

Crackling Statement

The General, whose forces have in two days seized control of vital stretches of the east of Leyte in the central Philippines and now have a base for Army bombers to use in augmenting carrier plane raids, issued a statement which fairly crackled with his indignation.

Referring to "unimpeachable evidence" of degradations at Bataan "and even of brutality," the general said:

"For such violations, the Imperial Japanese Government will, of course, be fully responsible to my Government.

"As Commander-in-Chief of the Allied forces in the field, I shall in addition, during the conquest of the present campaign, hold the Japanese military authorities in the Philippines immediately liable for any harm which may result from failure to accord prisoners of war, civilian internees and civilian noncombatants the proper treatment and due protection to which they of right are entitled."

C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press war correspondent, reported that Tacloban airfield was overrun in the first 24 hours of fighting. An Army officer on the scene said the airfield battle cost the Americans less than a dozen men.

MacArthur and Kenney gave close inspection to the airfield.

The field proved something of a disappointment and the inspection led to the opinion considerable work would be required on it.

MacArthur's grim warning was made while his huge invasion forces of Leyte pitted themselves against the selfsame Japanese 16th Division which, after the surrender at Bataan in the forepart of 1942, forced the bedraggled survivors to make the ghastly "death march."

MacArthur addressed his warning to "The commander-in-chief of Japanese military forces in the Philippines, Field Marshal Count Terauchi."

The general said "the surrender of American and Filipino forces in previous campaigns in the Philippines was made in full reliance that they would be afforded the dignity, honor and protection provided by the rules and customs of war."

Yanks Rescued

William Dickinson, in a pool press release, said it was revealed at headquarters today that 83 American officers and men who had been prisoners of war for two and one-half years were rescued several weeks ago.

Two of the men, Lieut. Richard L. Cook, of Los Angeles, and Staff Sgt. Joseph Cole of Plateu, Ala., elected to stay with the Philipino Guerrillas.

All the others are now safe in hospitals in New Guinea. They are in good condition except five who are recovering from bullet and grenade wounds. None are in serious condition.

They were among American prisoners being shipped north when the Japanese transport was sunk by an American submarine. At least two other enemy ships were sunk in the attack.

Other Americans who escaped the sinking craft were hunted down and killed in the water as they swam. Some who got to the beach were picked up by the Japanese and executed.

The 83 escaping Americans were picked up and cared for by Filipino guerrillas.

And Dulag Bases Is Held Imminent

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 21 (AP)—The fall of two Japanese airfields appeared imminent today as troops of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, backed by overwhelming naval and air might, drove inland on all sectors at Leyte in the central Philippines on the second day of invasion.

The 6,000-foot bomber field at Tacloban on the northeast was approached by one force. To the south, another force was on the outskirts of an airfield near Dulag. This force was advancing at such speed that Al Dopking, Associated Press war correspondent, said it was difficult to keep up with the men.

(The New Delhi radio reported, according to Reuter news agency, that Tacloban, the capital of Leyte Island, has been captured.

(There was no confirmation of this report from the Southwest Pacific or Washington).

Japan's 16th Division, remembered for its torture of the Americans and Filipinos who surrendered at Bataan, had succeeded nowhere in mustering a large-scale counter-attack.

Motor Convoys Ripped

Pending the seizure and utilization of land air bases, American planes from escort carriers swooped as flying artillery on the estimated 20,000 defenders of Leyte, blowing up pill boxes and spewing death among motor convoys.

The enemy air force, operating from the few fields in the Philippines which could be momentarily repaired between carrier plane attacks, managed two scattered night raids against small units of the 600-ship convoy which carried the United States Sixth Army and Central Pacific units to the invasion.

Vessel Torpedoed

A communique today acknowledged a torpedo hit on one vessel.

The ground forces, under immediate command of Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger, apparently encountered their most tenacious opposition just below Cancabato Bay at Palo.

There Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent, saw four of the landing ships and several smaller craft blown up by Nipponese shore guns and mortars.

For several hours it was touch-and-go, with the Yanks jumping hip-deep into the water and sloshing ashore through a hail of machine-gun bullets and shells.

Consolidating Positions

"Our ground forces are consolidating their beachhead positions and driving inland on all sectors," read today's communique which MacArthur issued shortly after he had stood in a truck, drenched by rain, before a hand microphone and urged the Filipions to rise and strike blows to speed their deliverance.

"Food and supplies have been landed on schedule against light opposition.

"Our ground casualties in the preliminary operation have been exceedingly light," the communique said.

Huge Force Landed

MacArthur, whose losing fight in 1942 was waged with a courageous but inadequately supplied garrison, deprived in the end of all air and naval cover, brought back to the Philippines the greatest mass of men, planes, warships and tanks ever assembled in the Pacific.

Murlin Spencer, Associated Press war correspondent, said the 600-ship convoy carried at least as many as, and perhaps more than, the number of men landed on D-day in Normandy.

(Inasmuch as Prime Minister Winston Churchill has disclosed that nearly 250,000 men landed in France the first day, such a sizable force for the Philippines operation might well suggest that even greater operations, with more landings on other islands, are in the offing against the estimated 225,000 Japanese defending the Philippines.)

San Jose In Ruins

Every report from the invasion scene, while varying in the degree of opposition detailed, placed the Yanks on the move.

On the south end of Cancabato Bay, Asahel Bush, Associated Press war correspondent, said the town of San Jose was in ruins as a result of the devastating bombardment from warships in Leyte Gulf, which included the battleship California — the one the Japanese thought they sank at Pearl Harbor.

Bush said "what once was San Jose" was on the point of falling. it is on the inland road to Tacloban, capital of Leyte, on the opposite end of the bay.

"No Live Japanese"

Bush said the invaders' attack was so thorough that the advance to the town's outskirts was accomplished "without encountering a sign of a live Japanese."

Tokyo Radio, after considerable silence, came through with claims that the Japanese on Leyte were "cutting deep into enemy landing points" but in the same breath admitted the Yanks were "heading toward Tacloban." The Japanese military waited until today before acknowledging the Leyte landings.

Presumably referring to the vessel MacArthur said had been hit by aerial torpedo, Tokyo claimed the sinking of one transport. MacArthur's communique said it was only damaged.

(NBC, in New York said the Tokyo Radio broadcast a report that the invasion had cost the Americans six aircraft carriers and six battleships.

(The enemy declaration was entirely unconfirmed.)

Plane Toll Boosted

Both MacArthur and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported widespread destruction of enemy planes—pushing beyond 1,400 the total wiped out since October 9 in the air offensive building up to the invasion—and more blows at Nipponese shipping.

(In a communique last night at Pearl Harbor, Nimitz said naval air strikes, coordinated with the landings, resulted in knocking out 87 more planes, sinking a large cargo ship and 5 small craft and damaging 23 ships and 28 small craft. His communique covered actions by planes of carrier task groups from the Central Pacific against Leyte, Cebu and Negros islands and the Manila area on Luzon.)

Jap Tanker Bombed

MacArthur's communique today reporting activities of carrier planes from the Seventh Fleet of the Southwest Pacific area, directed over "the inland waters of the central Philippines," said a 5,000-ton enemy tanker, a freighter-transport, 5 light naval craft and 11 barges were "bombed."

The wording of the communique suggested these were sunk inasmuch as it specified two 5,000-ton fleet auxiliaries, 10 cargo vessels, 6 light naval craft and small ships were "damaged" at a cost of two planes.

4 Planes Shot Down

He also listed the destruction of 80 enemy planes on the ground—a testimonial to the effectiveness of air attacks in rendering enemy Philippine fields useless for take-offs—and the shooting down of four.

MacArthur announced the ground commanders helping him liberate the Philippines.

Under General Krueger are: The Tenth Corps, headed by Maj. Gen. Franklin C. Sebitz, and the 24th Corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge; the Third Engineers Amphibious Brigade, commanded by Big. Gen. William Bunn; the First Battery Division of Maj. Gen. Verne B. Hart; the Seventh Infantry Division of Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold; the 24th Infantry Division of Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, and the Ninth Infantry Division of Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley.

Naval Aides Listed

The massed naval might, unchallenged by any elements of the Japanese fleet, brought together Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, of the Seventh Fleet; Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., of the Third Fleet, and Commodore John A. Collins, of the Australian squadron.

The constant air umbrella was supplied by the United States Far Eastern Air Force and Royal Australian Air Force, headed by Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenny and the Third Fleet carrier planes of Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher.

Rear Admiral Daniel C. Darbey and Rear Admiral Theodore S. Wilkinson commanded the amphibious operations.

The invasion is progressing on schedule, MacArthur said.

Although Tacloban airfield was being repaired, because of its condition General Kenney directed attention to another which fell to invasion forces around Dulag, 20 miles south of Tacloban.

Jap Planes Hit

Japanese aircraft which survived the crushing blows by American Navy and Army airmen have made only two weak raids on the invaders, MacArthur said.

Tokyo radio claimed that Japanese planes sank one American transport and damaged five ships, including two aircraft carriers, two battleships and one transport, but MacArthur said that only one vessel was damaged by a torpedo. He did not specify the type of ship hit.

The Japanese ground forces have not yet succeeded in staging a counter-attack of any consequence. Their artillery and mortars, however, made the going hard for the Americans in the initial beach fighting at some points. Several invading units were pinned down until the Yanks could get artillery ashore, or could summon aircraft and Naval ship fire, to erase the opposition.

But American ground casualties in the preliminary operation have been "exceedingly light," MacArthur said.

Sergio Osmena, president of the Philippine Commonwealth, broadcast a call to Filipinos to strike the Japanese invaders wherever the American soldiers have advanced and can give direct help.

Osmena and six cabinet members went ashore in the wake of the Americans. His Government will take over civil administration where the military situation permits, said Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine resident commissioner to the United States, who also is with Osmena.

Guerrilla Aid Sought

Aid of guerrilla leaders who have harassed the Japanese since their occupation of the Philippines will be sought, Romulo said.

Army and navy planes roamed the archipelago, hitting Japanese shipping and airfields in support of the Leyte invaders.

MacArthur said planes covered the inland waters of the central Philippines, bombing a 5,000-ton enemy tanker, a freight-transport and five light naval craft, and damaging besides two 5,000-ton fleet auxiliaries, ten cargo vessels and six light naval craft. These attacks cost two American planes.

M'ARTHUR WARNS JAPS ON TORTURE

Nipponese Will Be Held Responsible For Brutalities

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Sunday, Oct. 22 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today warned the Japanese Imperial Government that it will be held responsible for the tortures on Bataan and any possible repetitions.

The American commander addressed his warning to "the commander in chief of Japanese military operations in the Philippines, Field Marshal Count Terauchi.

The warning said:

"The surrender of American and Filipino forces in previous campaigns in the Philippines was made in full reliance that they would be afforded the dignity, honor and protection provided by the rules and customs of war.

Even Brutality

"Since then, unimpeachable evidence has been furnished me of degradations and even of brutality to which these gallant soldiers have been subjected, in violation of the most sacred code of martial honor.

"For such violations the Imperial Japanese Government will, of course, be held fully responsible by my Government.

"As commander in chief of the Allied forces in the field, I shall in addition, during the conduct of the present campaign, hold the Japanese military authorities in the Philippines immediately liable for any harm which may result from failure to accord prisoners of war, civilian internees or civilian non-combatants the proper treatment and due protection to which they of right are entitled."

William Dickinson, in a pool press release, said it was revealed at headquarters today that 83 American officers and men who had been prisoners of war for two and one half years were rescued several weeks ago.

Two of the men, Lieut. Richard L. Cook, of Los Angeles, and Staff Sergeant Joseph Cole, of Plateu, Ala., elected to stay with the Philipino Guerrillas.

All the others are now safe in hospitals in New Guinea. They are in good condition except five who are recovering from wounds.

Japs Execute Survivors

They were among American prisoners being shipped north when the Japanese transport was sunk by an American submarine. At least two other enemy ships were sunk in the attack.

Other Americans who escaped the sinking craft were hunted down and killed in the water as they swam. Some who got to the beach were picked up by the Japanese and executed.

The 83 escaping Americans were picked up and cared for by Filipino guerrillas.

Osmena Urges Uprising

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 21 (AP)—President Sergio Osmena, standing on the soil of his homeland, today issued a stirring call to all Filipinos to rise up and fight the Japanese invaders whenever the tide of battle reached their town or neighborhoods.

It was the Philippine Commonwealth President's second proclamation since he came ashore on Leyte with Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur.

The proclamation wasn't interpreted as calling for a general uprising throughout the islands, but where American forces had advanced sufficiently to give immediate military help.

MacArthur Called Friend

He told his people that General MacArthur was a "trusted, tried and true friend of the Filipino people," had kept his promise to return and "is standing now on Philippine soil."

With Osmena when he went ashore were six cabinet members. They came in the ships of the greatest military force the United States ever assembled in the Pacific.

President Osmena's message followed a statement by Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Resident Commissioner to the United States and Secretary of Information, that he is convinced liberation troops will receive the complete cooperation of the Filipino people.

He said he expected his people to volunteer for work on docks and airdromes and even to rise up and battle the hated Japanese when the tide of battle moves toward their towns and villages.

When the military situation permits, the Government will take over civil administration, first of municipal governments, then provisional and, finally, the national administration, Romulo said.

One of the first tasks of the Government will be to contact guerrilla leaders who have harried the Japanese and carried on the battle—unheralded and unknown—since the fall of Corregidor on May 6, 1942, Romulo said.

From the guerrillas will be sought information on actual conditions throughout the islands.

Filipinos, blacked out for two and a half years by severe Japanese censorship of news, will learn from the forces of reconquest that the United States Congress and President were prepared to give the Philippines its long-sought independence even before the July 4, 1946, date originally set by the Tydings-McDuffie law.

They had won their right to independence by their heroism on Bataan and Corregidor.

The late President Manuel Quezon, who dedicated his life to the cause of independence, died in the United States August 1 before he could see fulfillment of his dreams.

On Nashville

Osmena and Romulo went ashore from the cruiser Nashville which carried MacArthur back to the Philippines.

Landing with other American units were Maj. Gen. Basilio J. Valdes, Secretary of National Defense; Ismael Mathay, Commissioner of Budget and Finance; Col. Mariano Erana, Judge Advocate; Col. Alejandro Melchor, military and technical adviser, and Arturo B. Rotor, secretary to the President.

Following is the text of President Osmena's message to his people:

"My fellow countrymen:

"Forces of victory have landed on Philippine shores. They are led by General Douglas MacArthur, trusted, tried and true friend of the Filipino people.

"When he left two years ago he promised to return. That promise has been kept. He is standing now on Philippine soil.

"Your commonwealth government is also on our sacred land once again, but we return not only to take up where we left off. While you were undergoing untold sacrifices opposing Japanese domination, your government wasn't stationary. We have advanced.

"We come not merely to restore our commonwealth government. The Congress of the United States has recognized Filipino loyalty to America, to our beloved nation and to the sacred cause of human freedom. Our independence will not be deferred to 1946, but will follow closely on the expulsion of the brutal Japanese invaders. We return to you, therefore with our early independence assured.

"The freedoms for which our heroes fought and fell from Balintawak to Bataan—for which our gallant forces and an unconquerable citizenry are still relentlessly resisting—is ours at last.

"Real freedom! Ours to enjoy, ours to uphold and ours to preserve. Units are in need of the hour. We must all rally behind the banner of freedom. In this historic moment there cannot be cleavages, differences of thought or feelings of personal ambition or selfish interest. We are all Filipinos. We are brothers united by ties of race and blood. We are one in our love for freedom above life itself.

"Leading us and enjoining us to unite is the spirit of our heroes—Rizal, Bonifacio, Quezon—we must be worthy of them. We cannot falter.

"Strike when the tide of battle reaches your town or barrio (village). On that day strike hard against the enemy—wherever you find him—and fight—fight—without counting the cost. Onward, fellow countrymen, to victory and to freedom!"

Krueger Heads Ground Forces In Philippines

OCT 22 1944

Adm. Kinkaid Commanding 7th Fleet, Adm. Mitscher Leads 3d Fleet Carriers

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Oct. 21 (AP).—Lieutenant General Walter Krueger is in command of ground forces for the Philippines invasion, under personal command of General Douglas MacArthur, the second communique on the invasion reported today.

Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, commander of Allied naval forces in the southwest Pacific, is in command of the 7th United States Fleet. Elements of Admiral William F. Halsey's 3d United States Fleet are providing support. Naval forces include an Australian squadron under Commander John A. Collins.

Under General Krueger are these ground forces:

The 10th Corps commanded by Major General Franklin C. Sebitz and the 24th Corps commanded by Major General John R. Hodge; 3d Engineers Brigade, amphibious, commanded by Brigadier General William Seavy and supporting supply and other troops; 1st Battery Division, Major General Verne B. Hart; 7th Infantry Division, Major General Archibald V. Arnold; 24th Infantry Division, Major General Frederick A. Irving, and 96th Infantry Division, Major General James L. Bradley.

Major General James L. Bradley.

(Bradley went to West Point from Springfield, Mo., and was in the same class as Lieutenant General Omar Bradley, of Moberly, Mo., but they are not related.)

Other supporting elements include the American Far Eastern Air Force and the Royal Australian Air Force, commanded by Lieutenant General George C. Kenney, and 3d Fleet carrier forces under Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher.

Amphibious operations are under command of Rear Admiral Daniel C. Barbey and Rear Admiral Theodore S. Wilkinson.

M'Arthur Blows Up Nipponese 'Victory'

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 21 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has his own way of making a liar out of Tokyo radio.

Last week Tokyo radio "went to town."

It claimed:

United States Task Force 58, under Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, was "annihilated" off Formosa.

Flagship Claimed

The "defeat" had upset Philippine invasion plans by at least two months.

Mitscher's own flagship went down.

This week, when the harsh reality of invasion was thrust upon the Japanese, Tokyo Radio then claimed the operation was undertaken to make up for this "defeat" and, in the alleged absence of Task Force 58, America was forced to combine the Fifth and Seventh fleets.

Mitscher Listed

Today MacArthur blew up the whole thing in Tokyo Radio's face. His communique said in a matter-of-fact fashion while enumerating ground, naval and air units in action:

"Third Fleet carrier forces are commanded by Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher."

50 JAP PLANES, 3 SHIPS SUNK

Nimitz Reveals Score Of New Raids On Philippines

HOLLAND

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 21 (AP)—Continued American carrier-plane attacks on the Philippines during which 50 Japanese planes were destroyed and three ships sunk were reported in a communique late today by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

The Admiral said the carrier-based planes also sank four patrol-torpedo boats and several ammunition barges and damaged two medium cargo ships and two luggers. The strikes took place Friday.

Americans losses totaled three planes, one pilot and one air crewman.

13 Planes Shot Down

Thirteen planes were shot down by the Yank airmen while 37 were destroyed aground. Some of the grounded planes had been damaged previously.

At Coron Bay, northeast of Culion Island, the American naval airmen sank a previously damaged cargo ship, a small coastal cargo vessel and a small escort ship.

Three Japanese PT boats were sunk in Batongas Bay, southwestern Luzon island. One was sent down in Cebu harbor, west of Leyte island where American liberation forces staged the first invasion of the Philippines.

Masbate, Bulan Hit

At Masbate harbor, north of Cebu island, several ammunition barges were destroyed and two medium cargo ships and two luggers were damaged.

At Bulan, southern Luzon, ground installations and the airfield and a hangar were bombed.

Nimitz said that Hellcat fighters, torpedo planes and dive bombers were used in the carrier task-force operations against the Philippines, Formosa and the Ryukyu islands preparatory to the invasion of the Philippines.

Leyte Japs Flee Yanks

By James Hutcheson

With American Troops on Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 21 (AP)—In panic, Japanese defenders of the northernmost sector of the Leyte beachhead took to their heels as the first wave of amphibious troops hit the Philippines shore.

Battle-experienced veterans of the First Cavalry Division were amazed by the weak opposition on this front.

The tanks started inland through coconut trees, searching for enemy positions, exactly one hour after the first assault wave struck. Barbed wire lines were overrun quickly. Behind the wire we found freshly-dug trenches that had been abandoned.

Only a few of our men were wounded.

We found decapitated Japanese behind the beach guns with unfired shells beside them.

Two hours after we hit the beach we still had encountered no opposition.

SHIPS JAPS SANK NOW BLAST THEM

DAVIS

Aboard Vice-Admiral Kinkaid's Command Ship Off Leyte, October 20 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Proud old battleships came back from their Pearl Harbor graves to lead the powerful units of the United States Navy in the blistering pre-landing bombardment of eastern Leyte Island in the Central Philippines.

For three days, big battlewagons which once were mistresses of the sea showed they are still dowager queens. Their 14 and 16-inch rifles supported by cruisers and destroyers, poured 800 tons of exploding steel upon enemy positions from Tacloban to Abuyog, some thirty-four miles to the south.

Perhaps the proudest ship of all was the West Virginia. Left a burning tangled wreck at Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941, she was refloated and rebuilt into a modern fighting machine. She fired her first great salvoes of the war in the pre-bombardment off Leyte. Her vengeance was magnificent to behold.

Further to the south another Navy veteran, the California, once flagship of the fleet, loosed her big guns on Catmon Hill, trouble point for the southern attack force. The California, too, was gravely damaged at Pearl Harbor.

Landing A Bluff, Jap Claims

San Francisco, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Allied landing in the Philippines was termed nothing more than "a bluff" by Sadao Iguchi, spokesman for the Japanese Information Board, in a propaganda broadcast to the Filipino people today.

Another propaganda broadcast from Tokyo (both were recorded by the Federal Communications Commission) said the invasion of Leyte Island was of "no strategic consequence from the standpoint of general defense operations."

Imperial Japanese headquarters broadcast a rescript by Emperor Hirohito saying "The war situation is daily becoming more pressing" and commending three high officers for their part in "defeating the enemy fleet off Formosa."

"Propaganda Fantasy"

Iguchi was quoted as saying the "American claim of having effected the Landings (in the Philippines) with an armada of 600 ships and 250,000 men" was "nothing more than a propaganda fantasy, totally out of proportion to reality." He added the actual size and scale of the invasion forces "are well known to us. We have the situation well in hand."

The broadcast said the Emperor had granted "a gracious imperial rescript of commendation" to the "supreme commander of the Japanese army in the southern regions, the commander in chief of the combined fleet and commander in chief of the Taiwan (Formosa) army."

Text Of Rescript

The imperial rescript was as follows:

"The army and naval forces in close cooperation have intercepted the enemy fleet and after valiant fighting have greatly damaged that fleet. This is worthy of our high praise.

"In retrospect, the war situation is daily becoming more pressing. We desire that you conform to our (conviction) by joining your hearts together and by cooperation."

Japs Acknowledge Landing

(Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, October 17 reported "Japanese fleet units were sighted approaching the area in which United States Pacific Fleet forces have been operating in the western part of the Philippine Sea, but on discovering our fighting strength unimpaired have avoided action and have withdrawn to their bases.

Meanwhile, Japan belatedly acknowledged for the first time in an imperial communique to the homeland today that forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur have landed in the Tacloban area on Leyte Island in the Central Philippines.

in the Wurselen area four miles north of Aachen.

Thunderbolt fighter-bombers ranged ahead of the American attack, showering leaflets and explosives on towns along the highway that leads from Aachen through Duren to Cologne, 40 miles away.

To the northwest the Canadian First Army, with British aid, advanced nine miles in the Dutch-Belgian border region in a drive to clear the Schelde estuary so the Allies can use the great port of Antwerp.

American troops near the German border in The Netherlands advanced within 4,000 yards of an unidentified hub near the Maas (Meuse) River, and the British consolidated their positions southeast of Venray in the secondary actions in this important sector.

Other Areas Quiet

Elsewhere no significant progress was reported in the badly sodden front. Direct air support was cut by rain to a minimum.

The final surrender of Aachen, first large German city to fall into Allied hands, was made by 800 Germans who violated Adolf Hitler's "fight-to-the-death" orders after being hammered into traps from which there was no escape from Leut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' savagely-attacking First Army doughboys.

It was the first formal surrender of German arms on Germain soil in modern history. Tonight the German homefolks still had not been told of it by their propaganda ministry.

Unofficial estimates of the bag of prisoners ranged upward to 10,000 since the Americans issued their unconditional surrender ultimatum to Aachen ten days ago. American casualties during the subsequent all-out assault and house-to-house rooting out of the stubborn Nazis were declared officially to be relatively light.

The German colonel, a professional soldier named Wilsk, made a theatrical show of his capitulation, marching his men out in perfect order in their best uniforms and with highly polished boots. He first signed a paper omitting the unconditional surrender requirement. This the Americans refused to accept.

Colonel Wilsk, after some soul-searching, drew up and signed a new document of unconditional surrender, which he blamed on lack of ammunition and food. He explained that he had hesitated for fear of reprisals against his family in Germany because he was disobeying his Fuehrer's express orders to die on the spot. Later in a prisoner enclosure he wept without restraint.

Surrender Not Significant

Surrender of the rubble heap that is Aachen, leaving the Americans free to prosecute a drive towards Cologne, was, for all its drama, strategically less significant than the new Canadian assault to open the Schelde estuary to Allied supply ships.

In an offensive which field dispatches said gained nine miles in the first 36 hours across wooded country, two Canadian columns threw bridges across the Roosendaal Canal near the Dutch-Belgian border 14 miles north of Antwerp.

A British column under Canadian command kept pace by thrusting through the road junction town of Wuestwezel and four miles beyond it to the Dutch border 17 miles northwest of Antwerp. The Canadians and British formed a solid front.

These advances greatly strengthened the positions of other Canadians at the neck of the South Beveland Causeway leading to the north bank of the Schelde Estuary.

Antwerp, one of the few continental ports taken by the Allies in usable condition, has been effectively blocked for weeks by Germans on both sides of its approach up the Schelde Estuary from the North Sea.

Pocket Being Tightened

The Germans on the south bank of this estuary were being steadily compressed into a smaller pocket. They were withdrawing into a roughly four-sided area of about 20 square miles bounded by the North Sea and the towns of Dreskens, Oostburg and Cadzand.

The Canadians were linking up their forces above the Leopold Canal and generally consolidating their positions in preparation for a final assault on that defense area.

While no effective German resistance had yet been met in any of these operations, it was slow going against machinegun fire, mortars and mine fields in watery and wooded country. Infantry and armor had to slosh through the mud and clean small pockets of Germans out of virtually every thicket.

The Germans were using old French and Belgian shells as impromptu mines and booby traps, and were employing the bouncing Betty type of anti-personnel mine extensively for the first time on that front.

Disclosure was permitted that Maj. Gen. Charles Foulkes of London, Ont., and Maj. Gen. Harry Foster of Montreal were commanding formations of the First Canadian Army. Both have been in action since the first week in Normandy, notably in the flaming battles for Caen.

The Canadian force investing the port of Dunkerque had a flurry of action when the German garrison sallied out and overran a forward position, only to be driven back with losses.

Shelling Near Nancy

On the American Third Army front around Metz and Nancy, there was sporadic shelling, with American artillery particularly seeking to knock out an 11-inch gun with which the Germans have been harassing Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's men for weeks.

Allied planes Friday bore a hole in the 800-foot earthen dam on Lake Etang de Lindrew, 25 miles northeast of Nancy, and by noon Saturday the waters of the Seille River had spread out for miles across enemy communications lines fronting the Third Army.

There and also on the Vosges mountain front held by the American Seventh and French First Armies, there was little or no change in positions, with some sectors taking on the trenched barbed-wired appearance of world war days, complete with mud.

Canadians Gain Four Miles

Seventy miles to the northwest, the Canadian First Army pushed a three-pronged offensive four miles nearer the German stronghold of Roosendaal and Breda in a battle over rain-soaked fields above Antwerp.

West of Antwerp, Canadian troops attacked at 10 A. M. today and entered the outskirts of Breskens, stronghold in the dimishing German pocket south of Schelde estuary. Thrusting into the northern sector of the pocket, the Canadians advanced a mile in two hours with artillery and aerial support, and hopped a water obstacle before Breskens.

British infantry and Canadian tanks entered the road junction of Wuestwezel, 13 miles north of Antwerp on the Antwerp-Breda highway, and sent patrols probing out a mile or two northwest of the town. Two other columns, in twin drives up the roads to Roosendaal, seized Calmpthout and neared the Roosendaal canal.

Closing In On Breskens

This offensive was the second phase of the battle to win use of Antwerp as a supply port. The first phase was drawing to an end west of Antwerp, with Canadians steadily closing in on the German pocket around Breskens below the Schelde estuary.

In eastern Holland, United States forces pushed within 4,000 yards of a German communication strongpoint near the Maas river. British troops meanwhile consolidated positions southeast of Venray on the Dutch battlefront.

British Planes Busy

British warplanes made nearly 1,000 sorties despite bad weather, shooting up German infantry and blasting railroads. Rocket-firing Typhoons operated only 100 yards ahead of advancing British troops in the Esschem sector.

Other planes cut the vital German railway from Venlo to Utrecht in 41 places, virtually destroyed two 30-car trains carrying tanks and gasoline, and shot up five locomotives and 84 trucks.

Aachen Cathedral Safe

A German broadcast declared that "the all-embracing war has only found its beginning in the battle of Aachen" and once again threatened that secret weapons still to be put into use "will prove that the battle was the mere begining of rivers of American and British blood."

After visiting Aachen, Associated Press War Correspondent Harold V. Boyle said that the storied Cathedral, tomb of Charlemagne and one of Germany's greatest religious shrines, still stands virtually undamaged in an area of unspeakable ruin. German artillery is still within range, however, he said.

German communications farther south were crippled when Thunderbolts operating with the United States Third Army bombed and breached the Dieuze dam 25 miles northeast of Nancy, flooding the town of Dieuze and the surrounding countryside with a spreading lake that covered the railroad and highways with two feet of water.

Gains Beyond Bruyeres

A dispatch last night from the Vosges front in France said American and French infantrymen, after repulsing several German counter-attacks, made new gains yesterday toward southwest Germany beyond newly captured Bruyeres and east of the Moselotte river.

German planes appeared in greater numbers over that sector yesterday, but American flyers shot down seven of them, destroyed another, and damaged four in three dogfights.

Aachen Casualties Light

United States casualties in the capture of Aachen were described at supreme headquarters as relatively light. Unofficial estimates of the bag of Nazi prisoners ranged up to 10,000.

The Germans yesterday made two attacks upon the American wall of Aachen, and they apparently were working desperately to tighten their defenses before Cologne.

A Berlin broadcast said Americans had been beaten back in an attempt to cross the Moselle river at Remich, 12 miles southeast of Luxembourg city. All the troops who crossed the river were killed or captured, said this unconfirmed account.

In the struggle to dislodge the German barrier around Antwerp, Allied troops advanced slowly against the Breskens pocket, merging the original bridgehead with the main westward drive. A front-line dispatch said the final phase of that operation was drawing near.

Allied Forces Merge

The 24-hour-old Canadian drive above Antwerp had achieved gains of three to five miles. Units pushing beyond Wuestwezel reached the area of Loenhout, halfway between Antwerp and Breda. Other columns were striking up both sides of the Antwerp-Roosendaal road.

The new advance reached a point seven miles southwest of Bergen op Zoom and its excellent harbor halfway between Antwerp and Rotterdam. Canadians who had taken Woensdrecht, at the neck of the causeway to South Beveland Island, already were only five miles below Bergen op Zoom.

Aachen's Last Defenders Surrender To Americans

London, Oct. 21 (AP) — Eight hundred German troops, the last defenders of Aachen, surrendered unconditionally at noon today and all resistance ended inside and in the suburbs of the first big German city to fall to American arms.

Two thousand prisoners had already been taken by First Army men.

Despite Hitler's orders to resist to death, the 800 Germans surrendered when Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges' doughboys pressed them into hopeless traps at the fringe after taking the center of the city.

Last Nazis Give Up at Aachen; Dramatic Silence Falls on City

Dapper Enemy Commander Balks at Signing Unconditional Surrender—Fears for Safety of Family in Reich—Finally Agrees.

Aachen, Oct. 21 (A. P.).—Eight hundred Germans, the remnants of the Aachen garrison, surrendered unconditionally today, and all organized resistance ended in the city and its suburbs.

The last defenders, who had been ordered by Hitler to fight to the death, laid down their arms at noon after savage infantry attacks had hammered them into traps from which there was no escape.

A dramatic silence suddenly fell over the shell of a city as the guns became quiet for the first time in days.

Capt. Seth Botts, former University of Kentucky engineering student, was preparing to launch an assault on a bunker where the German remnants had a command post when the enemy decided to surrender and hung out a white flag. Capt. Botts and his troops had closed in on the bunker last night, fighting through houses by flashlight in one of the weirdest combats of the war.

Nazis All Polished Up.

Out of the bunker came a slender dapper colonel at the head of 300 troops. They marched smartly in column under the guard of Capt. Botts. The men and officers were all well groomed, with shining black boots. With them was an American lieutenant and 32 enlisted men who had been held captive by the Germans for the past week.

The German commander was taken to the command post of Lieut. Col. John Corley, 308 Clinton street, Brooklyn, in one of Aachen's wrecked buildings. There an American brigadier general waited to receive the commander, who was told he must surrender unconditionally.

Reluctantly the officer wrote out the surrender of his troops and ended the document by saying "Aachen is in American hands and therefore everything belongs to the Americans that was German."

But when the silver-haired American general had the surrender translated he was not satisfied because it did not say unconditional.

Nazi Makes Grave Decision.

The German officer, a professional soldier for twenty-eight years, asked for five minutes to think it over. He said his reluctance was caused by the fact that if he signed unconditional surrender terms he was afraid for his family in Germany. There was silence in the little room as the German pondered with the American watching him intently. In the room with the general and Col. Corley were Capt. Edward Crawford of Somersworth, N. H., and Lieut. John Reynolds, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Finally the German colonel turned, picked up the pen and hurriedly wrote another document. This time he said:

"Aachen—the defending German garrison ran out of food and ammunition. I am forced to give up my command and surrender Aachen unconditionally with all its stores to the commanding officer of the victorious Americans."

The translation was made by Pfc. Sigurds M. Ekis of Washington, D. C., who was acting as interpreter. The surrender was signed at noon. Then the colonel asked and was granted permission to speak to his troops outside the building.

German Speaks to His Men.

There were eight staff officers with him, all as immaculate as their commander. One of them had been a student at Heidelberg, and there were the scars of dueling foils on his face.

The commander climbed onto the hood of a jeep. His men came to attention, and in a voice heavy with emotion he said to them:

"Dear German soldiers. I am speaking to you at a painful moment. I was forced to surrender because we ran out of ammunition, food and water.

"I saw that further fighting was useless. I was acting against orders. I was supposed to fight to the last man. At this time I have to remind you that you are still German soldiers. Please behave as such.

"I also wish you the best of health in your future travels and fast return to the fatherland after hostilities have ended. Return to Germany to help rebuild our country.

"I was refused by the Americans the authority to give the Sieg Heil and Heil Hitler. But we can still do it in our minds."

Then he saluted smartly and stepped down. He was taken under guard to the prisoner cage in the rear.

Other strongpoints, unaware their commanding officer had put up the white flag, fought on. A party was sent to Capt. Botts with a lieutenant under a flag of truce to arrange the capitulation of the others.

Another 200 surrendered en masse when it was explained that their commander had decided to quit fighting and that they were no longer bound to continue the futile struggle. And then the others came out of their hiding places in small groups until 800 were trudging through Aachen's battered streets.

After the surrender was completed a high ranking officer came to the American command post and congratulated the commander of the operation along with Col. Corley and Lieut.-Col. Derril Daniel of Geneva, N. Y.

He grinned and said, "Well, this war is over, isn't it?"

New 67-Ton Nazi Tank Carries Revamped 88

Royal Tiger's Shells Pierce 6-Inch Armor Plate

WITH THE AMERICAN 1st ARMY IN GERMANY, Oct. 20 (Delayed) (AP).—The German Army has thrown into combat a larger and more powerfully armed version of its heavyweight Mark VI Tiger tank.

This new armored behemoth—hopefully dubbed by its creators "the Royal Tiger"—weighs sixty-seven tons, or eleven tons more than its predecessor, which was regarded as one of the world's largest and hardest-hitting tanks.

Its slugging power has been increased additionally by a revamped version of the famous German 88-mm. gun. The gun has increased muzzle velocity, and its shells are said to be able to penetrate six inches of armor.

Van Fleet Gets Command Of 90th Infantry

With the Third Army, Oct. 21—(AP)—Brig. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, 52, a career Army man, assumed command of the 90th Infantry Division today, succeeding Maj. Gen. Raymond S. McLain.

Van Fleet, who rose to the rank of major in the First World War, and who is a graduate both of the University of Florida and West Point, landed in Normandy on D-Day as commander of the Eighth Regiment in the Fourth Infantry Division. Later he became assistant commander of the Second Infantry Division.

A one-time football coach at the University of Florida, his home is at Bartow, Fla. He is married, and has a son and two daughters.

DAM BOMBED, NAZIS FLOODED

Barrier East Of Nancy Cut By Fighter-Bombers

With the United States Third Army, France, Oct. 21 (AP)—A Nazi communications zone backing up the German front line in the Seille river valley east of Nancy was flooded today with lake waters which United States fighter-bombers released by breaching an 800-foot earthen dam.

Twenty-four American Thunderbolts, flying through intense flak without loss, cut a hole in the west end of the dam with 1,000-pound bombs yesterday.

Floodwaters of the lake spread today from near Dieuze, an enemy supply center 25 miles east of Nancy and two miles from the lake, to the village of Moyenvic, nine miles west of the dam.

The attack was ordered for the purpose of hampering German communications.

Roads, Bridges Submerged

After making a reconnaissance flight, Lieut. Col. Cecil Strong, of Brewton, Ala., reported that the Seille river was out of its banks for a distance of 300 to 400 yards on each side, with roads and bridges submerged and the village of Marsal, between Dieuze and Moyenvic, isolated.

Capt. Edward Elbright, Lyons, Kan., air liaison officer with the 35th Infantry Division, said the dam was so well cracked by the first attack that followup squadrons returned with their bombs.

The Thunderbolts, each carrying two 1,000-pound bombs, scored six direct hits. They made a breach at least 50 feet wide in the west end of the old dam, which was 50 feet thick, 20 feet high and impounded 1,500 acres of water.

New Pickup Device Salvages Gliders

An Advanced United States Troop Carrier Forces Base in Holland, Oct. 21 (AP)—An army transport swooped over a sugar-beet field today and successfully used a new pickup apparatus to snatch from the sodden earth one of the gliders which carried troops for the airborne invasion of Holland.

The demonstration was part of the return home of the first of the many gliders salvaged from battlefields after the invasion.

Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, United States Troop Carrier Forces Chief, and Col. Franklin F. Henley of Eastman, Ga., commander of the troop carrier force's service wing, saw a flight of 36 big C-47s take off from this mud-lined airstrip and head into the low-hanging cloud with the gliders in tow.

Nylon Towropes

The setting for the flying pickup from the beet field resembled one end of a football field. Nylon towropes were looped between two uprights similar to goal posts.

A C-47 piloted by Capt. E. L. Stone, of Gorman, Texas, with a special underbelly tow mechanism, flew down a few feet above the waiting glider, piloted by Flight Officer Don C. Stevens, a former Hollywood (Cal.) stunt flyer. The towrope snapped the nylon hawser and pulled the glider into the air.

First Tunnel Factory In Reich Captured

With a United States Infantry Division in Germany, Oct. 14 (AP—Delayed)—American doughboys have captured the first underground factory thus far found inside the Reich—an airplane engine parts plant located in a 1,000-foot railroad tunnel.

An infantry unit patrolling no-man's land a mile west of the Siegfried Line stumbled on the factory t was not in operation, but was rammed with valuable machinery.

The discovery aroused speculation over how much of Hitler's war ndustry is operating underground n view of the terrific air assaults on all German industrial centers.

Lieut. Col Alexander J. Stuart, Jr., 31, of New York, an infantry division ordnance commander, said the plant in the tunnel was packed with hundreds of machine tools, lathes, automatic screw machines, milling machines and other instruments.

French Plants Help Allies

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Oct. 21 (AP).—French and Belgian industry already is working for the Allied armies, Brigadier General John K. Christmas, of the Army Ordnance organization at Detroit, said today. Christmas, here on an inspection trip, said liberated factories were overhauling and rebuilding tank and other engines and turning out some small mechanical products for the armies.

Republican Units Attack Franco Garrisons Again

Kill Guards at Barracks, Ambush Truck Convoy

PARIS, Oct. 21 (AP).—Socialist and Communist newspapers here reported today a new series of attacks by Spanish Republican forces on garrisons and convoys of Generalissimo Francisco Franco. The Republicans were estimated to number 20,000 in the region of Lerida, in Spain.

The Communist paper "L'Humanite" said Spanish guerillas attacked a barracks at Vich, in Catalonia, killing a number of civil guards and liberating several political prisoners. Others ambushed a truck convoy near Gerona and killed a detachment of guards.

The newspaper said Republican partisans set fire to a factory at Seville, killed the police chief at Grenada and attacked a number of Franco garrisons in Andalusia. The Seville factory reportedly was working for the Germans.

Paris Women Rally to Aid War

PARIS, Oct. 21 (AP).—Despite a driving rain, thousands of French women assembled last night for the first mass meeting of women in this country since they were given the right to vote. Speakers at the meeting, sponsored by the new Union of French Women, urged them to continue their work for victory.

Platon Executed, Nice Publisher Sentenced

Marseille, France, Oct. 21 (AP)—Albert Lejune, director of the Petit Marseillais newspaper at Nice was sentenced to death today by the civil court at Marseille for collaboration activities.

At the same time, the Agence Francaise Presse reported that Rear Admiral Rene Platon, former Navy Minister, and the Vichy Administrator for Jewish Affairs, Darwuiet de Pellepoix, had been executed by FFI tribunals several days ago after being convicted of dealing with the enemy.

Reds Cross Tisza River In Drive On Budapest

Romanians Aid in Breaching Last Natural Nazi Defense Line Short of Capital—Outflanking Move on Danube Cuts Foes Escape Route

London, SUNDAY, Oct. 22—(AP)—Powerful Russian and Romanian columns plunged across Hungary's vital Tisza River defense line within 50 miles southeast of imperilled Budapest yesterday, and also cut Nazi escape lines by reaching the Danube 87 miles south of the Hungarian capital in an outflanking drive aimed at crossing into the western half of the tottering Axis satellite nation.

Berlin in a broadcast late last night meanwhile said the Russians had broken through to the Goldap-Gumbinnen highway, from 10 to 18 miles inside German East Prussia, and that the battles on that front "surpass anything previously seen on the Eastern Front."

Axis radio commentators had said earlier that the Russians were at least 15 miles inside East Prussia, and had expanded their attacking front to 100 miles on the eastern and northeastern sides of East Prussia.

Tank-tipped Soviet spearheads were within 25 miles of Insterburg, rail and road junction only 50 miles east of Konigsberg, the capital. By hurling in fresh troops the Red Army forced the Germans to retreat to unspecified "fortified positions" farther inside Germany, said one broadcast by Col. Ernst Von Hammer.

The Goldap-Gumbinnen highway was reached somefhere north of the Rominter Heide, a state game forest, and Berlin stressed the fury of the fighting "which reached a white heat of intensity with Russian artillery pouring shells on German positions like a hailstorm."

Break Expected

Moscow, in telling of the race across Hungary's plains toward Budapest, still was silent on the five-day-old drive on East Prussia, but an Associated Press correspondent in the capital said that "when the news finally is released it is expected to be sensational."

The Soviet bulletin announced the capture of 140 Hungarian towns and villages, including Baja, on the east bank of the Danube 87 miles below the Magyar capital, Csongrad, on the western side of the Tisza [illegible] miles southeast of Budapest, and other localities in between.

A Romanian communique, however, announced that Romanian and Russian troops were fighting stubbornly-resisting Germans near Szolnok, only 50 miles from the capital, after crossing the Tisza, last natural defense line short of Budapest.

A midnight Soviet bulletin said the Russians crossed the Tisza River by night, repulsing all German attempts to stop them, and broke into Csongrad, where an entire enemy regiment was wiped out.

Admit Gains

Red Army units were advancing along several broad, modern highways, and Berlin acknowledged they were well beyond the Tisza and bearing down rapidly on Budapest.

In addition to the huge Soviet offensive in the north Berlin said the Russians had opened a new large-scale drive on a 225-mile front extending southward from Warsaw to Tarnow in Poland and along the Eastern Slovakia border.

The drive "apparently is aimed straight at Krakow," Berlin said.

Krakow Menaced

Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukraine Army last was reported only 37 miles northeast of Krakow, Axis stronghold in Southwestern Poland, and only 75 miles from highly industrialized German Silesia. These troops have been holding a big bridgehead across the Vistula River fo rmonths.

In Eastern Hungary Moscow said that Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's units and attached Romanian forces had sped 25 miles northeast of fallen Debrechen, Hungary's third city taken Friday, cutting another German flight route out of Transylvania and putting the Russians within 97 miles of a junction with Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukraine Army fighting southward through Czechoslovakia.

Other Russian gains in Transylvania put the Russians within artillery range of Satu-Mare, last big Transylvanian town still held by the enemy. The conquest of Transylvania was fast nearing a close. The 16,642 square-mile territory had been taken from Romania in the Vienna award of August 30, 1940 and given to Hungary by a German-Italian dictate.

Tito and Reds Move on Zagreb

Yugoslavs Join Russians in Concerted Drives on Croatia and Budapest.

Moscow, Oct. 21 (A. P.).—Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans, freed for new actions by the capture of their capital, Belgrade, joined with the Red Army today in drives toward the Croatian puppet seat of Zagreb and Budapest, the Hungarian capital.

Zagreb lies 225 miles northwest of Belgrade in the Sava River valley. Budapest is on the Danube 190 miles north of Belgrade.

East and southeast of Budapest, other Russian forces supplemented by Romanian units rumbled up three main highways leading to the Hungarian capital, but they encountered stiff resistance from large German tank and anti-tank forces beyond the Tisza River.

The number of German captives seized in the liberation of Belgrade swelled toward 10,000 as the Russians and Yugoslavs mopped up every corner of the city, digging Storm Troops from cellars and attics of blasted buildings. Large numbers of enemy troops were seized along the Danube and Sava, where they had run in desperation before the wildly celebrating troops of Tito. A great amount of German equipment including tanks and self-propelled guns fell to the conquering Yugoslav - Russian armies after nearly a week of street fighting.

Four Columns Take Belgrade.

Lieut. Velimir Terzich, head of Marshal Tito's military mission in the Soviet Union called the occupation of Belgrade "a very important strategical junction for carrying the offensive into Germany."

Red Star said the city was taken with a four - column drive extending from the southeast to the southwest with a Danube flotilla coming up under the cover of darkness and pouring salvos at the enemy from the rear. Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin directed the Russian attack.

Meanwhile, Marshal Stalin also has announced the capture of Hungary's third city — Debrecen —a conquest that broke the back of German resistance in Eastern Hungary after prolonged and furious armored battle estimated to have cost the Germans and Russians a total of 1,000 tanks.

Official Russian silence still enveloped the East Prussian front. But this was not a source of surprise here, for when the news finally is released it is expected to be as sensational as the announcement of the Romanian drive in August.

[Berlin announced last night that Red Army troops had penetrated twelve miles inside East Prussia on an eighty-mile front. The Germans also said the Russians in Hungary had rolled thirty miles beyond Debrecen, reaching the rail town of Tiszacsege on the Tisza River some eighty-five miles east of the capital.]

The Fourth Ukranian Army group under Col.-Gen. Ivan Petrov was pouring down the Ruthenian highlands for a concentrated drive with the right wing of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine Army in an arc north of Budapest calculated to slice in half the German line between central Hungary and southern Slovakia.

Marshal Malinovsky's left wing was embroiled in a fierce struggle with German rear guards in the vicinity of Szolnok, less than fifty miles southeast of Budapest. With reported chaos within the city, Regent Nicholas Horthy's repudiation of Hitler seemed more than ever mistimed and misplayed as the Germans managed to retain strategic control of the Magyar capital.

At Zagreb, which appeared to be the next big objective of the drive through Yugoslavia, the puppet Premier of Croatia, Dr. Ante Pavelic, has been reported on the verge of flight for some time. Marshal Tito's Partisans have been camping almost on the edge of the city. Good rail routes along the north bank of the Sava from Belgrade could be exploited for a Russian advance northward to join with these Partisan troops.

Southeast of Belgrade, the Russian communique said a total of 17,147 trapped Germans were killed or captured in eliminating an enemy pocket.

Red Invasion Of Norway Is Reported Imminent

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—Underground reports received here by the Norwegian Government in exile said tonight there was "utmost confusion" along the Finnish-Norwegian border, and that a Russian invasion of Norway was expected "at any moment."

The reports added that the Germans were destroying installations in Finnmark, northeasternmost province of Norway.

The Russian air force has made several raids on towns in northeastern Norway, apparently in the last preliminaries to the invasion, these reports said.

Col. Ernst von Hammer, German radio commentator, said tonight the Russians were "concentrating reinforcements on the Norwegian-Finnish border region." He claimed the German "disengaging movements" on the Finnish front were "proceeding according to plan."

King Peter Addresses Reds And Tito's Forces

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—Young King Peter of Yugoslavia congratulated the Red Army and the forces of Marshal Tito today on the liberation of Belgrade.

In a speech addressed to the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, broadcast to Yugoslavia by BBC, the King predicted the reappearance of a "new, free, democratic and federal Yugoslavia" in the near future.

"I am inspired by the deepest gratitude," he said, "to the heroic National Liberation Army and to Marshal Tito, to the fraternal Red army and their great Marshal Stalin, and by reverence for all the heroes and victims who have fallen for our common freedom."

Soviet Newspaper Hails Churchill Conference

Moscow, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia today hailed the Moscow conference between Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill as giving good reason to believe that the Soviet Union, Great Britain and the United States would enjoy an era of increasingly great collaboration in speeding up the defeat of Germany and of strong comradeship in the solution of the peace.

Moscow's morning press and radio gave smash play to Churchill's departure and Stalin's personaliy seeing him off at the airport. An eight-column front-page photograph appeared in the papers.

"The Moscow conferences show that the U. S. S. R. and Britain could find a common language for the difficult Polish question," declared Izvestia. "This question has not been solved, but judging from the communique a considerable success was obtained, and there are reasons to believe the Polish problem will find a satisfactory solution in the near future.

Finds Opinion Similar

"The Moscow conferences and the exchange of opinions prove a great similarity in the opinions and intentions of both sides. This fact is tremendously important when the Allied armies from the east and from the west are knocking at the doors of Germany."

The Stalin-Churchill conferences, with Ambassador W. Averell Harriman representing the United States as an observer, were held "with the knowledge and approval of the United States Government," a joint Soviet-British communique said at their conclusion.

Izvestia said that Poland was one of those questions in which complete unity did not exist between the Soviet Union and Great Britain, but that German efforts to magnify this difference had been in vain.

The Soviet newspaper said southeast Europe in the past has always presented a complication of difficulties and noted that it has been called "the dynamite cellar of Europe."

Hitler Disappointment

"During the last month," Izvestia said, "certain controversies have existed between the U. S. S. R. and Great Britain on a number of questions on this subject. Hitler speculated on the traditions of the past to drive a wedge between Moscow and London. The Moscow conferences prove that Hitler received a great disappointment."

Declaring that unanimity of opinion was reached on questions concerning Romania, Yugoslavia and Greece, Izvestia said these agreements brought no menace to the small nations of southeastern Europe, but on the contrary "open wide the prospects for the development of democracy."

The official Communist party newspaper Pravda said: "The Moscow negotiations, which comprised such a considerable amount of problems, proved once more the growing unity of Allied powers, who have joined all efforts in the defeat of Germany and in security through a solid peace after the war."

Churchill's Departure

Moscow's morning press and radio gave smash play to the Prime Minister's departure and Stalin's seeing him off at the Moscow airport. The papers printed an eight-column front-page photograph.

"The Moscow conferences show that the U. S. S. R. and Britain could find a common language for the difficult Polish question," declared Izvestia.

Not Yet Solved

"This question has not been solved," the editorial continued, "but, judging from the communique, a considerable success was obtained and there are reasons to believe the Polish problem will find a satisfactory solution in the near future."

The editorial said that a unanimity of opinion was reached on questions concerning Romania, Yugoslavia and Greece at the conferences and declared these agreements did not bring any menace to the small nations of southeastern Europe.

It was learned that both Churchill and Stalin expressed regret that President Roosevelt was unable to attend the conferences here. Before leaving Moscow Thursday Churchill said he thought it would be an excellent idea for the three to get together again.

Polish Question

Referring to the delicate Polish question the communique said:

"Important progress was made toward solution of the Polish question, which was closely discussed between the Soviet and British Governments.

"They (Churchill and Stalin) held consultations both with the Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Polish Government and with the president of the National Council and chairman of the Committee of National Liberation at Lublin.

Differences Narrowed

"These discussions have notably narrowed differences and dispelled misconceptions. Conversations are continuing on outstanding points."

There was a heartening indication of an early fusion of the London and Lublin Polish factions, with the dispute over the ill-fated Warsaw revolt apparently removed from debate.

Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who left for London Friday morning, is expected to return to Moscow soon. He was reported to have been confident that the London Poles would give him a mandate for constructing a unified government.

Lublin Massmeeting

A few hours after the leaders of the Polish Government in London and the leaders of the Lublin regime had optimistically forecast early agreement, however, a Tass dispatch to Pravda reported that a massmeeting of Lublin Poles had charged Mikolajczyk's Government with responsibility for "criminal acts of terror."

The Churchill-Stalin meetings produced an agreement between the British and Russian governments to pursue a joint policy in Yugoslavia centered around a union between King Peter's Government and Marshal Tito's liberation movement until after the war when, the communique said, the Yugoslav people will have the right "to settle their future constitution for themselves."

In effect, Stalin has underwritten Churchill's previous Yugoslav policy which led to last summer's pact between Tito and exiled Premier Ivan Subasic.

Churchill-Stalin Talks Lauded By Red Press

New York, Oct. 21—Radio Moscow, in a broadcast to the people of Vienna, Austria, urged the population of the city to revolt and rise against the Germans or face the same fate as the people of Aachen, BBC said today in a German-language broadcast.

Moscow, Oct. 21 (AP)—Moscow's press gave the Churchill-Stalin negotiations profuse praise today, vividly mirroring the good which official Russia believes resulted from the long, numerous and friendly discussions of the two leaders.

Editorials said differences still existed between Great Britain and the Soviet Union on certain European questions but asserted the road appeared clear toward framing a firm, hard peace.

"Important Progress"

A joint communique summing up the 10-day meeting was issued this morning. It said the two leaders made "important progress" toward settling the Polish dispute, reached an agreement on remaining points in the Bulgarian armistice terms and that their governments have decided to pursue a joint policy in Yugoslavia. Military plans for the war also were reviewed.

Agreements at the conference were said to have the full approval of the United States Government, represented by Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Poles In London Denounced Again

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—New attacks on the London Polish Government by adherents of the Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation forestalled any inclination here today to expect a quick solution of the Polish question on the basis of the Moscow conferences just concluded.

Reports of resolutions adopted at a Lublin mass meeting accusing "the so called Polish Government in London headed by (Premier Stanislaw) Mikolajczyk," of fomenting "criminal terrorist acts" in liberated areas of Poland, were broadcast by the Moscow radio.

These broadcasts followed shortly the transmission of the Moscow communique announcing that progress had been made toward a settlement of the long-standing Polish dispute.

Russ Family Gets F. D. R. Gift

Moscow, Oct. 21 (AP)—A gift of clothing, food and household utensils from the White House in Washington, first of 3,000,000 standard war relief kits to be sent to Russian families, arrived in Moscow today.

The recipient was Mrs. Elizaveta Lushkinova, 36, wife of a Red army man who drives an American-made truck at the front, and mother of five children. It bore the following message:

"To a Russian ally: This kit for a Russian family comes from Washington, D. C., from the President of the United States and his family. The sender is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Daughter Writes Letter

"I don't know what to say," the Russian woman said. "We've lived through so much. It's been hard. It's so good to feel your American thoughtfulness that I want to cry."

Valya, eldest daughter of Mrs. Lushkinova, now in the sixth grade in school, wrote the following:

"Dear Mrs. Roosevelt:

"We thank you for the kit. It is pleasant to receive a kit from people in a friendly country which is fighting the common enemy, Fascism. Please accept our best greetings and thanks."

The mother then signed the message.

Town In Lapland Captured By Finns

Stockholm, Oct. 21 (AP)—Sodankylae, in central Lapland several miles northeast of Rovaniemi, has been captured from the Germans, a Finnish communique announced today.

The Finns said the town was seized after hard battles and the Germans were driven north of Sattanen, two miles directly north of Sodankylae.

Sweden Urged to War on Nazis

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 21 (AP).—The newspaper, "Aftontidningen," has suggested editorially that "Sweden should go into the war," declaring that "such action would be convincing evidence of our solidarity with our neighbors." The Social Democratic party newspaper said Swedish military power is sufficient to free Norway from Germany, although it "would be no military promenade."

ALLIED PLANES HIT AT NAZIS ON TWO FRONTS

R. A. F. Strikes Flushing While Liberators Pound Hungarian Railyards

London, Oct. 21—(AP)—R.A.F. Lancasters from England bombed German gun positions today at Vlissingen (Flushing) on the island of Walcheren west of Antwerp, while American Liberators based in Italy smashed at the Gyor and Szombzathely railyards in Northwestern Hungary in an operation co-ordinated with the Red Army.

Three Nazi guns at Vlissingen have been harassing the Canadian advance on the south side of the West Schelde estuary. A Canadian bombardier said he saw one stick of bombs fall right across the gun positions. Other crews saw ships docked at Vlissingen hit and set afire. One R.A.F. plane was lost.

American heavy bombers in Britain were idle today and yesterday because of weather. U. S. Strategic Air Force Headquarters announced that the big bombers in their major raid on Germany Thursday smashed a large German armored combat vehicle plant, an ordnance depot and damaged important railway facilities.

Factory Battered

Photographs showed the armored vehicle plant at Gustavsburg, a few miles west of Mainz, was badly battered. An ordnance plant at Mainz was covered with incendiaries and two railway yards there were blanketed with bombs.

Despite weather, fighter-bombers of the Second Tactical Air Force and American Ninth Air Force flew 2,000 sorties yesterday.

Rocket-firing Mosquitoes of the R.A.F. coastal command set two medium-sized merchant vessels afire in the harbor off Haugesund, Norway, and Mosquitoes teamed with Beaufighters in strafing an armed trawler. One Mosquito was missing.

Thunderbolt and Lightning fighter-bombers of the Ninth Airforce operated in strength from Aachen down the Rhine valley. One Thunderbolt group, commanded by Col. Ray J. Stecker of Hazleton, Pa., was flying over the Ruhr in three waves when it met a formation of about 70 Focke-Wolfes. The top wave of Thunderbolts attacked, and the enemy dived directly into the path of the two other Thunderbolt formations below. Stecker's group shot down 21 German fighters and damaged 13 with a loss of two Thunderbolts.

Maj. John R. Murphy of Fargo, N. D., who accounted for two, said "the sky was full of parachutes as Jerries began jumping out of their planes."

Hungarian Railway Yards Bombed

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—American Liberators from Italy bombed the Gyor and Szombathely railyards in northwestern Hungary in an operation coordinated with the Red Army today, and RAF Lancasters from England returned to blast German installations at Vlissingen (Flushing) in Holland.

Three batteries of big German guns at Vlissingen, west of Antwerp, have been harassing the Canadian advance on the south side of the Schelde although most of the German artillery has been silenced by floods loosed by bomb breaks in the dikes.

Dam Broken

American Thunderbolts tore a breach in a French dam east of the Third Army front yesterday and by midday today the Seille river had surged out of its banks in a widening flood as far as Moyenvic, nine miles from the tapped lake.

Lieut. Col. Cecil Strong, of Brewton, Ala., after a reconnaissance flight, reported that the river was out of its banks for a distance of 300 to 400 yards on each side, with roads and bridges submerged and the village of Marsal completely isolated.

The 800-foot earthen dam was attacked by 24 Thunderbolts at 2 P. M. Each plane carried two 1,000-pound bombs and six direct hits were scored, making a breach at least 50 feet wide in the west end of the old structure, which is 50 feet thick, 20 feet high and impounded a lake of 1,500 acres.

The dam is 25 miles east of Nancy.

18 Nazis Downed

Eighteen German planes were shot down in two dogfights over Cologne and Coblenz yesterday by United States Ninth Air Force fighterbombers.

Dive bombers claimed 228 railroad cars destroyed or damaged, 15 locomotives disabled, two barges sunk and 21 trucks shot up.

More than 1,100 sorties were flown Friday by continent-based American and RAF planes. Nine American and two British fighters are missing.

'Spike Bomb' For Rails

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—A "spike bomb" is being used by American bombers to rip up railroad tracks inside Germany.

It resembles a 500-pound bomb and has a two-foot spike attached to the nose. The idea was developed because regular delayed-action bombs often ricocheted from the tracks and embankment instead of exploding on the targets. This one sticks where it hits.

Cologne Depot A Shambles

Stockholm, Oct. 21 (AP)—Cologne's central railway station, with its maze of tracks previously supplying German armies in the west, looked "like a glowing mass of old iron" last Monday, an eyewitness returning from Germany said today.

U-BOATS BACK IN ATLANTIC

British Disclose Resurgence Of Submarine Warfare

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—Some German U-boats are once more operating along the Atlantic sea lanes to Britain in a resurgence of submarine warfare, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander disclosed today.

The British navy chief also declared that a British battlefleet capable of tackling the entire Japanese navy had started toward the Pacific, elaborating an earlier announcement by Prime Minister Churchill that "a large portion" of such a fleet already was gathered in the Indian Ocean.

Alexander disclosed the new submarine menace in reporting arrival in Britain from North America of the largest convoy in history, without loss. The convoy was composed of 167 ships, covered an area of nearly 26 square miles and carried more than one million tons of food and war equipment.

Optimists Wrong

Only one "very cautious" U-boat was reported near the convoy, and the Admiralty does not fear greatly any attempt by the enemy to send submarines in strength back to underseas raids, Alexander said. But he added bluntly that, although "superoptimists" had called the war against U-boats won, "they were wrong."

"These U-boats are perhaps more shy, cautious and nervous than were their predecessors which fought out that earlier grim and bloody battle of the Atlantic," he said, "but the fact is that some U-boats, at least, are back in the old hunting grounds."

Time Will Show

One Nazi commentator speaking of the "intensified U-boat war" said over the Berlin radio today that "jubilations on the enemy side" over the submarine warfare situation "are somewhat premature," that German U-boats "are in constant contact with the enemy." "Time to come will show the correctness of measures taken by the German U-boat command," the enemy speaker said.

Elaborating on Churchill's earlier disclosures, Alexander said the first part of a vast armada was now on its way to join American forces for a campaign in which Japan's military strength "will be systematically and ruthlessly destroyed."

"We hope to place in the Pacific a fleet capable in itself of fighting a general action with the Japanese navy," he said. "I hope that the censor will not object if I tell you that the movement of at least a part of that vast fleet, and its mighty attendant train, is already under way."

Horthy 'Refugee' In Reich, Report

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Germans announced tonight that Admiral Nicholas Horthy, who as regent of Hungary tried to pull that hapless Nazi satellite out of the war, had sought and been granted refuge in Germany.

A broadcast by the German Transocean agency said that Horthy after the failure of his armistice move last Sunday due to the coup of the Hungarian Nazis with German aid, "signed his abdication and resigned all privileges as regent," and then informed the German minister in Budapest that he "would like to take up residence in Germany."

So, the Germans said, he and his family were sent there in a special plane.

The German broadcast did not explain why he would have chosen Germany as a refuge after having stated in his broadcast petition for an armistice with the Allies last Sunday that "it is obvious to any sober-minded person that Germany has lost the war."

While the coup by the pro-Nazi Ferenc Szalasi has kept Hungary in the war as a German ally, the Red army, supported by Romanian troops, has continued its drive into Hungary, which still is reported tottering near chaos.

Horthy Placed In Germany

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—Admiral Nicholas Horthy, former Hungarian regent, is in Germany, Berlin's Transocean News Agency, declared today.

A dispatch of the German news agency, DNB, said Horthy left Budapest in a special plane, accompanied by his family and by Lieutenant Field Marshal Vattay, former chief of the Military Chancellory, and Major General Brunsik.

Horthy's Government fell and gave way to a more pro-German regime after he addressed an appeal for an armistice to the Allied governments last Sunday.

R. A. F. Pilots Lauded For Rommel's Death

London, Oct. 21—(AP)—Eight R. A F. Typhoon pilots were given official credit last night for fatally wounding Field Marshal Erwin Rommel after bombing a Nazi field headquarters in a farmhouse July 17 near Caen. The German radio announced Rommel's death last Sunday.

After scoring ten direct bomb hits on the farmhouse, the Typhoons led by Wing Commander J. R. Baldwin of Bath, raked over "an important looking staff car" with 20 millimeter cannons.

Netherlands Drafts Plan For Check on Inflation

London, Oct. 21—(AP)—The Netherlands Government has made all preparations for a quick throttling of currency inflation when Holland has been freed of Germans, it was announced tonight.

Secrecy will be maintained as to the exact measures contemplated, however, until the Germans have been driven out.

Says a British Fleet Is Moving to Pacific

Bromley, England, Oct. 21 (A. P.).—Great Britain hopes "to place in the Pacific a fleet capable in itself of fighting a general action with the Japanese navy," First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander declared today.

"The movement of at least a part of that vast fleet and its mighty attendant train is already under way," he said.

Flying Bombs Fall On Southern England

London, Oct. 21 (A. P.).—The Germans directed flying bombs at southern England and the London area early today, but no damage or casualties were immediately reported.

BERRY KILLED

London, Oct. 21—(AP)—J. Douglas Berry, 28, fourth son of Lord Kemsley, prominent British publisher, has been killed in action in Italy, it was disclosed tonight.

A director of the Sheffield Telegraph and Star, Ltd., Berry joined the Grenadier Guards in 1939.

"Blithe Spirit" For GIs

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—Peggy Wood and Foreen Lang of the original Broadway cast of "Blithe Spirit" have arrived here to play the comedy for American troops in England and France. Others in the troupe include the actress Claire Luce, Rolly Peters, Virginia Berton and Geoffrey Lumb.

ALLIED FORCES PUSH AHEAD ON ITALIAN FRONT

Eighth Army Advance in Po Valley Captures Cesenatico

Rome, Oct. 21—(AP)—Eighth Army

troops advanced into the Eastern Po Valley in two directions today, capturing the coastal town of Cesenatico 18 miles below Ravenna in a drive up the Adriatic coast and making what was described as "considerable progress" northwestward along the Rimini-Bologna Highway.

The Savoi River was reached on a four-mile front north of occupied Cesena, the highway junction 12 miles southeast of Forli and 50 miles southeast of Bologna.

New Zealand armored units smashed through rearguard German parachute troops in the Adriatic advance, raising hopes that the Eighth Army might soon bring its superior armored forces to bear on the plains stretching ahead into the rich Po Valley area.

The advance carried the New Zealanders across the Montaletta River and to the Granarola River, both of which flow into the Adriatic between Cesanatico and Cervia, the latter about five miles up the coast.

Fifth Army Gains

East of the Bologna-Florence highway the Fifth Army captured additional hill features and held against German counter-attacks. The heaviest fighting occurred north and northeast of newly captured Livergnano. The Germans increased their artillery fire and supported their troops with tanks and self-propelled guns.

British troops who drove into Cesena from the south ousted the Germans in street-to-street fighting, and only the western outskirts of the old fortress city remained to be cleared. Northwest of Cesena the British set up a bridgehead across the Savio at a point where a road bridge had been blown up by the retreating enemy.

Fierce Fighting Rages

Fierce fighting continued on the U. S. Fifth Army front south of Bologna, where the Germans were estimated to have ringed the city's defenses with ten divisions. Americans and South Africans faced the task of blasting the Nazis from entrenched mountain positions.

(The British radio quoted Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in Italy, as saying in a broadcast to Italian patriots in Bologna that "liberation of the city is imminent." The broadcast, recorded by U. S. Government monitors, called upon the patriots to attack the German garrison.)

Polish troops fighting once more with the Eighth Army after their earlier stirring breakthrough of the Gothic Line made considerable advances in the mountainous sector about 15 miles south of Forli, capturing Civitella di Romagno and Galeata, the latter a highway junction.

Prisoners taken on the Fifth Army front said their divisions had received reinforcements made up entirely of Austrian Nazi party officials—described as fanatical party members but a bit old for soldiers.

Allies Only 18 Miles From Ravenna Port

New York, Oct. 21—The British radio today quoted Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in Italy, as saying in a broadcast to Italian patriots in Bologna that "the liberation of the city is imminent." The BBC broadcast, reported by United States Government monitors, called on Italian patriots to attack the German garrison.

Rome, Oct. 21 (AP)—Eighth Army units burst through the rear guards of German parachute troops on the Adriatic sector today and occupied the coastal town of Cesenatico, 13 miles above Rimini and 18 miles from Ravenna, their next coastal objective.

New Zealand and Canadian troops northeast of the fortress town of Cesena made similar swift advances. Cesena was occupied and Allied troops were clearing one last enemy pocket on the western outskirts of the town, which is 12 miles southeast of Forli, boyhood home of Mussolini, on the Rimini-Bologna road.

"Considerable progress has been made by troops of the Eighth Army in the Po Valley, north of the Rimini-Bologna road," the Allied communique said.

Not A Breakthrough

While successes on the Adriatic sector do not mean a breakthrough of the German line, the fact that New Zealand armor has been able to thrust a little farther into the Po Valley raised the hope that the Eighth Army might yet be able to bring its superior armored forces to bear in the wide plain stretching ahead. There are many river barriers in the area, however.

The Fifth Army, which is driving north toward Bologna, captured several high spots, but still was engaged in heavy fighting, particularly in the area north and northeast of Livergnano. There the Germans increased their artillery fire and were backing up their troops with tanks and self-propelled guns.

High Ground Taken

On both sides of Highway 65 (the Florence-Bologna Highway), British, American and South African troops nevertheless managed to capture more high ground.

British troops advanced into Cesena from the south. They captured about 150 Germans.

British forces also drove out northwest of the town and set up a bridgehead across the Savio river at the southern road bridge which was blown up by the retreating Germans. Farther south patrols found the Germans holding the river bank in strength.

Poles Also Advance

Polish troops, again fighting with the Eighth Army, made considerable advances in the central mountain sector, capturing Civitella di Romagno and Galeata.

Prisoners captured on the Fifth Army front said their divisions had received a unit of reinforcements composed almost entirely of Austrian Nazi party officials. They were reported to be fanatical party members, but a bit old for soldiers.

The Mediterranean Allied Air Force flew more than 2,000 sorties yesterday in support of ground operations and lashed targets in Germany again.

Allied naval units bombarded shore installations on the French-Italian frontier, working in cooperation with ground troops.

On the Swiss-Italian Frontier, Oct. 21 (A. P.)—Hundreds of workers were killed in yesterday's low-level Allied air assault on industrial areas in Milan a report reaching here today said. The sound of bomb explosions in Milan were distinctly heard in Berne, 125 miles away.

Other Allied squadrons attacked Bologna, Modena and Genoa and severe damage was caused in Genoa.

Naples Set Port Record

Allies Cleared Wrecked Harbor Three Months After Capture

ROME, Oct. 21 — (AP). — The wrecked harbor of Naples,—cluttered with sunken hulks and littered with debris when Allied troops entered the city Oct. 3, 1943,—was converted in three months to handle "a daily average of cargo which, from the point of volume, made it the greatest port in the world," the Allied naval command announced today.

So far this year 3,700 merchant ships have sailed from Naples.

BRITISH FLIERS HARASS FOE IN NORTH GREECE

Land Forces Drive Toward Lamia, 95 Miles Above Athens

Rome, Oct. 21.—(AP)—British aircraft flying from newly-occupied Greek airfields are harassing Nazi troops fleeing northward through Greece, and British land patrols are approaching the town of Lamia, 95 miles northwest of Athens, Allied headquarters said today.

There were no reports of clashes between the retreating enemy and and troops. The Germans were believed to have withdrawn from Lamia, which is about 52 miles south of Larisa.

Attacks From Italy

Allied war planes from Italy joined the Greek-based craft pummeling transport and highways along the entire escape route through Yugoslavia. Unloading of Allied troops and supplies for Greek civilians continued at Piraeus and other ports.

Lamia is at the head of the Gulf of Lamia, on whose south shore is historic Thermopylae Pass, and is 65 miles northwest of Thebes, whose occupation was announced by the Allies yesterday.

It was at Thermopylae Pass early in 1941 that the British fought a covering action for Allied troops evacuating Greece after a withdrawal from the Mount Olympus sector.

British Closing In On Greek Town

Rome, Oct. 21 (AP) — British patrols are closing in on the Greek town of Lamia, about 100 miles northwest of Athens, Allied headquarters announced today.

German troops are believed to have withdrawn from the town. It is 65 miles beyond Thebes, which Allied troops were reported yesterday to have occupied.

At Head Of Gulf

Lamia is at the head of the Gulf of Lamia and beyond the historic Thermopylae Pass where the British fought a grim covering action for Allied troops evacuating Greece after withdrawal from the Mount Olympus sector early in 1941.

The Germans knocked the Tommies out of the pass late in April, 1941, but not without severe losses.

Today, the Germans were traveling at a more accelerated pace in the opposite direction and the communique said British aircraft flying from newly occupied Greek airfields were harassing the retreat.

Iran Rejects Offers Of 3 Nations For Oil

Teheran, Oct. 19 (AP—Delayed)—Iran has rejected American, British and Soviet propositions for oil concessions and has postponed further discussions until after the war, it was disclosed today.

Since January, 1944, Premier Mohammed Saed explained to the foreign press, "American and British oil companies individually approached the Iran Government to obtain the same petroleum concession in the southeast Persian region of Baluchistan." He said members of the Iran Parliament attacked the Government for wishing to grant a concession, and added:

"A Government crisis occurred and one of the causes of the fall of the former Government was the petroleum question."

The Soviet Government's propositions were reported made two weeks after the Government decided September 2 to postpone the question. Representatives of American Standard Vacuum and Sinclair oil companies and British Shell Oil had negotiated with Iran, the Premier said.

British Capture Haka, 50 Miles South of Tiddim

Burma Center in Chin Hills Falls in Rapid Advance; Foe Held Near Kweilin

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 21 (AP).—British 14th Army forces have occupied Haka, a district center in the southern Chin Hills region of western Burma, in a twenty-mile advance over rugged country, a Southeast Asia communique disclosed today.

Haka is fifty miles south of Tiddim, whose capture was announced two days ago, making the gain one of the most rapid of the prolonged Burma campaign. It is twenty miles below Falam, administrative center captured yesterday.

Japanese forces were declared to be withdrawing eastward. On the road directly eastward from Tiddim, the British 5th Indian Division was reported making progress against some opposition toward Fort White, fifteen miles distant over the crest of the Letha range of hills. Farther south, in the coastal district north of Akyab, the Japanese were stated to have withdrawn from positions northeast of Buthidaung.

In upper Burma, combat patrols of the British 36th Division occupied Mohnyin, on the railway 10 miles southwest of Hopin and eighty miles southwest of Myitkyina.

BRITISH FLEET HITS NICOBARS

Islands In Bay Of Bengal Get Heavy Going Over

Aboard a British Carrier in the Indian Ocean, Oct. 21 (AP)—British eastern fleet units operating in long-range liaison with the Americans in the Pacific have just completed their most prolonged mission of carrier-borne air attack and inshore bombardments—a foray into the Nicobar Island group in the Bay of Bengal.

The targets of the task force under Vice-Admiral Sir Arthur John Power on the fleet's seventh sally inside the range of enemy land-based aircraft were mainly the northerly Car Nicobar Island and Nancowry harbor.

Aerial bombs and shells from the ships during the initial attack which lasted two and a half hours struck new airstrips and construction machinery on Car Nicobar.

Japs Unprepared

The enemy appeared unprepared for the first attack.

It was made with the entire task force, including carriers which stood close to the shoreline, broadly advertising the British strength and baiting the Japanese to come out and fight.

The challenge was refused, except for heavy flak over the attacked anti-aircraft positions, which were under the spotting of flying observers calling the British shots.

No damage was suffered by the ships during the entire mission. One bomber and three fighters were lost.

[The Tokyo radio, which announced Thursday that the Nicobar Islands had been attacked the preceding Tuesday and Wednesday, had claimed the sinking of one British carrier and one destroyer.]

Island Shelled Again

A simultaneous air strike on Nancowry harbor blew up a medium-sized enemy ship, damaged several small vessels and started fires in shore installations.

Car Nicobar was shelled again at night.

The damage was then assessed and air and ship attacks were repeated two days later on the original targets. This time the element of surprise was gone and the Japanese were ready with an aerial counterattack.

Japanese army fighters engaged in dogfights with carrier fighter cover as the task force steamed leisurely close inshore.

Enemy Fighters Defeated

The carrier-borne air arm defeated the enemy fighters "decisively," an official statement said, and the Japanese lost at least eight fighters. Some of these were seen falling into the sea in flames.

"Further attempts by the enemy to interfere with the movement of the fleet failed," the announcement added.

The eastern fleet has now struck with air power and bombardments at the Andamans, the Nicobar Islands, Sumatra and Java against only slight opposition.

British Eastern Fleet Blasts Nicobar Islands

Abroad a British Aircraft Carrier in the Indian Ocean, Oct. 21 (AP)—The British Eastern Fleet has bombarded the Nicobar Islands day and night this week with coordinated air strikes and feints as a long-range diversion in liaison with the American landings in the Philippines.

Carrier-borne planes downed at least eight Japanese fighter planes in dogfights over the fleet off the island of Car Nicobar, the northernmost of the Nicobars, which lie between Sumatra and the Andaman islands in the Bay of Bengal.

Three air arm fighters and one bomber were lost during the entire operation. Surface ships were undamaged.

The action was the British Eastern Fleet's most prolonged mission of the war.

Chinese Troops Hold On Kwangsi Front

Chungking, Oct. 21—(AP)—The situation in the Hunan-Kwangsi sector remains unchanged, with Chinese troops holding the Japanese at bay on a front 23 miles northeast and north of the provincial capital of Kweilin, a Chinese communique said today.

Hingan, on the railway 35 miles northeast of Kwellin, is now a base for enemy drives west, south and Southwest.

1,000 INJURED AS RIOT RAGES IN GUATEMALA

Acting President Ponce Is Overthrown in Bloody Revolt

Guatemala City, Oct. 21—(AP)—Crowds in Guatemala's capital sacked the homes of former President Jorge Ubico and former Chief of Secret Police Jose Bernabe Linares, as unrest continued today after a 12-hour revolution in which more than 1,000 persons were wounded and the Government of acting President Gen. Frederico Ponce overthrown.

The number slain was not immediately known. Wounded were given medical attention by the Red Cross and at private hospitals.

Triumverate Rules

Control of the Government was in the hands of a triumvirate of two young officers and a civilian, leaders of youthful officers and university students who precipitated the revolution. There was no indication of a counter-revolutionary attempt.

Former President Ubico, who had been accused of continuing control of Guatemala through his successor, General Ponce, was reported already out of the country, en route to New Orleans. The chief of secret police took refuge in the Peruvian Embassy.

Acting President Ponce, now interned in the Mexican Embassy, surrendered yesterday with his cabinet and other high officials after the revolutionaries, armed with modern weapons and tanks, blew up the forts of San Jose and Matamoros and threatened destruction of the national palace.

The new regime is headed by Maj. Francisco Javier Arana, 32; Capt. Jacabo Arbenz, 28; and Jorge Toriello, a civilian. The triumvirate began today forming a cabinet.

General Is Killed

Crowds milled tonight around the national palace, while patrols of young civilians, armed with weapons, controlled the city. The police force was interned in its own headquarters, and civilians policed the city, with Boy Scouts directing traffic.

Gen. Frederico Corado, commander of the Guatemala Guard, was killed yesterday at the beginning of the revolt.

Tonight, Toriello told the Associated Press:

"We are decided most firmly to maintain freedom of the people. We want to prove that Guatemala can enjoy real and effective democracy. We will act as the people want, and we will enforce every action for the people's benefit. We control the whole nation, and in a few days we will be able to provide a constitutional Government."

Rebels Holding Guatemala

Guatemala City, Oct. 21 (AP)—A triumvirate composed of Capt. Jacobo Arben, Major Arana and Jorge Toriello, a civilian, was in control of the government of Guatemala today following a revolution of young army officers and university students.

The regime of President General Federico Ponce was overthrown in the uprising which produced a 12-hour battle yesterday in the streets of this capital. Gen. Federico Corado, commander of the guard, was killed at the beginning of the revolt.

Revolt in El Salvador

San Salvador, Oct. 21—(AP)—While revolutionary forces supporting two rival candidates fought one another and against government troops, President Andres Ignacio Menendez of El Salvador resigned today "for reasons of health," and was succeeded by a third presidential aspirant, Col. Osmin Aguirre y Salinas.

An official bulletin issued by the Aguirre government said members of the Union Democratic Party, supporting Dr. Arturo Romero, last night attacked members of the Social Democratic Unification Party, who were attempting to install Gen. Salvador Castaneda Castro in the presidential palace. Both sides clashed with government forces which sought to maintain order. There were an undisclosed number of dead and wounded as result of the engagements.

U. S. Flyers Raid Rangoon Area, Enemy Says

San Francisco, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Rangoon area of Burma was hit by 68 American planes flying in three waves Friday (Japanese time), the Tokyo radio said today in a report recorded here.

The Japanese claimed destruction of "four P-38's, of which two are unconfirmed, while two P-51's and four PA-47's were heavily damaged in aerial combat.

Japanese losses, the report said, were one plane "which body-crashed against an enemy plane and slight damage to ground installations."

Harriman's Air Dash To U. S. Indicates European Review

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—The rush trip of Ambassador W. Averell Harriman from Moscow to Washington today foreshadowed a general review of European problems by President Roosevelt and the State Department.

Harriman reached Washington this morning after a 57-hour plane trip from Moscow.

His return caused speculation that Ambassador John G. Winant in London also would be brought home to join in the consultations. Winant and Harriman were both here last May and the envoy to London said at that time that he might return in the fall.

Focused On Poland

The results of the Churchill-Stalin conference concluded this week in Moscow focused attention on Polish and Balkan questions as those most likely to come up for urgent discussion. There were some indications, however, that the conferences might cover virtually the whole field of European affairs.

There are, for example, questions of the relative policies of the United States and Great Britain toward the Franco Government of Spain. The British on occasion have spoken favorably of this Government's conduct in the war in Europe, but American officials are very cool toward it and privately say this Government would not in any way interfere with forces in opposition to Franco.

Another current issue in western Europe is that of recognition of the de Gaulle regime in France. Edward R. Stettinius, Under Secretary of State, said yesterday the British and American governments were acting jointly in this matter.

Report On Moscow Talks

Harriman brought to Washington a first-hand account of the Moscow talks which were regarded here as having succeeded to a considerable extent in laying the basis for future Anglo-Soviet cooperation in Europe and in the broader field of world security organization.

The impression here was that the effect of the settlements will be to secure Russia's political influence in those areas along her European frontier which she has argued are necessary to her security.

On the record at least the United States has taken no part in negotiations to that end.

Harriman In D. C. With Moscow Report

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Ambassador W. Averell Harriman arrived from Moscow today with a first-hand report of the Stalin-Churchill conference for President Roosevelt.

The State Department announced that he made the trip in 57 hours.

The department said of the trip only that he had been called home for consultation and would report to Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull during his stay.

"Practical" Work Seen

The conference between Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill is believed by officials here to have laid a practical basis for friendly cooperation in post-war Europe between Communist Russia and the capitalist empire of Great Britain.

To the extent that the United States may have to work with these two powers in practical questions of European politics and in the proposed world security organization, American interests likewise are said to have been considerably, though indirectly, advanced by the accomplishments jointly announced by the two leaders last night.

Polish Question

The only point on which the conference did not meet the expectations of American diplomatic officials was the failure to bring together the rival Polish groups, one sponsored by Russia, the other by the United States and Britain. But it was said that the progress reported by Churchill and Stalin very likely points the way to an early closing of this gap in the United Nations' ranks.

An exact appraisal of the settlements of Anglo-Soviet conflicts in the Balkans was impossible pending fuller knowledge of the details worked out. To some authorities who have followed recent Balkan developments closely, it appeared certain that Churchill had agreed that Britain must fully recognize Russia's primary interests in some countries where British and French influences formerly predominated.

Wooing Of Tito

The situation up to the time of Churchill's arrival in Moscow had reached its most aggravated state in Yugoslavia. There for more than a year the British had sought to woo Marshal Tito from his close association with the Russians. At the last moment, about the middle of last month, as Red armies approached Yugoslavia, Tito suddenly cut short the wooing.

It was evident that he had listened to British persuasions, but when the time came had decided to stick with the Russians. It looked like a terrific blow to British prestige in the Balkans, but last night's announcement that Churchill and Stalin had agreed on a joint policy for Yugoslavia is regarded as repairing at least some of this damage.

Interest In Bulgaria

The British probably are more interested in Bulgaria than in any other of the Balkans, because of its relationship to the Dardanelles and the Mediterranean-Suez lifeline to India.

The announcement said only that the two leaders had settled their differences over the Bulgarian armistice terms, and it was believed here that this meant that the terms had been found agreeable to the British along the general lines worked out by the Russians.

Allies' Agency In Italy States Self-Rule Policy

Commission Report Says It Will Yield Control at Earliest Possible Time

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—The Allied Control Commission, in a report to the public today, said that "the policy of the United Nations is to place upon the Italian government the fullest responsibility for administration at the earliest possible moment."

The report covers the period of Allied Military Government in Italy up to Aug. 22. Since then the commission has been redesignated as the Allied Commission and, pursuant to the declarations of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at Quebec, has adopted a policy of turning more and more self-government over to the Italians.

The commission said that it "must and does work through the Italian authorities" and that "local governments will and must be used to the hilt."

Here are some of the observations made in the report:

The Germans are spreading anti-Allied government propaganda among Italian patriots "as energetically as they can, but this is being counteracted by giving encouragement to the patriots."

Most of the patriots at this stage of the war have "very little idea of the aims and ambitions of the six political parties in Italy, but they are keenly alive to the fact that something drastic must be done about politics in the very near future and, being mostly young and active men, they are keenly susceptible to influence and require leadership from the Italian government."

Months before Rome was liberated "its people had heard the promises of the Allies to feed and clothe them. Therefore Rome, like every other city which the commission has administered, had high hopes—too high to be met in the face of the primary exigencies of military operations in Italy and elsewhere in the Mediterranean." The military government "is sensitive to the needs, but it cannot ask the Army to stop the battles near Florence, nor could it ask that the landings at Anzio or Toulon be postponed. The Romans, like the people of other cities, require time to absorb the simple fact that the war continues and that sacrifices for an Allied victory must continue. Rome now appreciates the fact."

The military government in Rome and the Vatican have worked very closely in caring for refugees.

Col. Cochran Gets D.S.M. For Burma Invasion Role

Honored for Leading Air-Borne Attack Last March

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—Colonel Philip D. Cochran has won the Distinguished Service Medal for carrying out the first air-borne invasion of Burma, the War Department said today. The medal was given Colonel Cochran by General H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces.

The citation said: "Colonel Cochran personally organized a special air task force known as the '1st Air Commando group,' and with brilliant leadership, tactical genius and executive ability, carried his mission to a successful completion, thereby making possible the first air-borne invasion of Burma on March 5, 1944."

Colonel Cochran, the citation said, "establishes a formula for conquering, by air-ground maneuvers, the seemingly impregnable fortress which central Burma had been since the Japanese moved in in 1942.

Colonel Cochran's home is at Erie, Pa.

Navy Day Reminds U. S. Tough Battle Certain In Pacific

30. 24 — 19769

Progress Shortens, Strengthens Enemy's Defense, Supply Lines

By HAMILTON W. FARON

Washington, Oct. 21—(AP)—A bitter, savage war through steaming jungles and frozen wastes—and over shell-splashed seas—faces American armed forces even after defeat of Germany.

These are the cold facts that Navy men realize with the approach of another Navy Day next Friday, as they plow steadily ahead in the long job of forcing the Japanese back into their inner defense ring.

That the Pacific war—primarily a naval campaign—will become tougher as it progresses ever closer to the inner citadel of Japan, built about the enemy homeland, Manchuria and coastal China, seems a certainty.

To Strengthen Enemy

For one thing, the American advances will to some extent benefit Japan by forcing a concentration of enemy strength. Navy Secretary Forrestal has pointed this out, saying that particularly in the air, concentration of enemy strength will mean harder opposition for American forces.

Military experts generally agree. They point out also that as Japan consolidates its defenses its supply lines will be shortened, making it easier for the Nipponese to move men and supplies about the fighting fronts.

As enemy lines are shortened by American forward thrusts, our lines lengthen, making more difficult the problem of keeping the far-flung fighting forces supplied. Then the Japanese Navy may play a part. It has stayed pretty much in hiding since a disastrous defeat east of the Philippines when it attempted to delay conquest of the Marianas.

Naval Showdown Unlikely

That Navy still is strong despite the battering it has been given by American warships, submarines and planes. Some military experts have estimated that it includes probably a dozen first-class battleships, at least as many good aircraft carriers and many supporting warships of all types.

Naval men don't question the result if the Japanese Fleet could be brought into combat with the American Sea and Air Forces which now constitute the greatest Navy in the world. But it is considered unlikely that the Japanese High Command will decide to risk a showdown in a mighty fleet engagement.

American Armed Forces are expected to do the greater share of the fighting still to come at sea, in the air and on land against Japan. In fact, Ralph A. Bard, Undersecretary of the Navy, has said they "will bear the brunt" of the battle.

Bard explained that upon the defeat of Germany, "many of the Allied Armies will demobilize, including our own to some extent." On the other hand, Prime Minister Churchill has told the House of Commons that much of the British Fleet now is in the Indian Ocean for the war against Japan.

Little help can come from China, where Japanese forces even now are enlarging their territory of conquest and forcing abandonment of some American airfields. Those fields must be regained, or others closer to Japan must be obtained, before American aerial might can be turned against the enemy's industrial centers in a bombing campaign such as that conducted against Germany.

Only the Superfortresses—B-29s—now can hit the Japanese homeland with any degree of effectiveness. Distances are too great for anything but occasional raids by other types of planes.

Strain On Shipping

Supply problems, however—complicated by the vast distances in the Pacific—are the dominant factor in any consideration of the Pacific campaign. Shipping facilities of the United States will be strained to the utmost as the American Pacific bases move farther west toward Japan. When the length of the run is doubled—as it quite likely will be eventually—the number of ships moving materials must increase in a corresponding ratio, or shipments must be delayed. Enough ships for a doubled length of supply lines just aren't available now.

For Japan, the supply problem stacks up on the credit side. With her lines shortened by American advances, Japan will need fewer ships—counteracting the terrific toll inflicted by American submarines and planes. Also, Japan, is believed to have vast stock-piles of most essential materials built up in the home area—enough, many experts believe, to keep the Nipponese war machine supplied for months, possibly years, after new acquisitions are cut to a mere dribble.

And, wholly aside from these problems based upon distances and supplies, there's a concrete question: "How good is the Japanese Army?"

The best answer seems to be that it is a highly trained and effective fighting organization, but lacking in the mechanization which now dominates American forces. How it will react to combat with the fast, mobile American Army remains to be shown. It has not been tested yet, for thus far most of the American ground campaigns in wresting island after island from the Japanese have been against enemy marines or garrison troops.

Possibly the test will come in the Philippines if the Japanese decide to gamble great strength in an attempt to hold those valuable islands. If not, it seems now that the ultimate clash with Japan's Army probably will be delayed until the American forces move into the enemy's "home area."

'Secret' Label Put On Pearl Harbor Report Draws Fire

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—The "secret" label attached to a navy court's report on Pearl Harbor added new heat tonight to the political controversy over the disaster, with Representative Maas (R., Minn.) contending this was an "alibi for not giving it to the public."

Chairman Reynolds (D., N. C.) of the Senate Military Committee, a frequent critic of the Administration, told reporters he saw no reason why it should be secret.

"Too Many Secrets"

"There are too damn many secrets," Reynolds said. "It looks to me like it's time for the American people to know how Pearl Harbor happened. The Japanese certainly know, and the only reason for keeping anything secret is to keep it from the enemy."

The fact that the report has been completed with part of it marked "top secret"—the navy's highest security classification—and the remainder "secret" was made known last night by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal.

The court, headed by Admiral O. G. Murfin (retired), placed the secrecy designations on its report and on the record of its proceedings. Forrestal made public a letter to Murfin saying he would ask Admiral Ernest J. King, the fleet commander in chief, to review the report and proceedings "with a view to determining how much thereof bears such a relation to present military operations as to require that it be accorded these high security classifications."

Cole Okays King Stand

Representative Cole (R., N. Y.) one of those who has urged that the facts concerning Pearl Harbor be made public before the election, told reporters he thought Forrestal was following the proper procedure in submitting the report to King.

Cole, a member of the House Naval Affairs Committee, commented, however, that he did not see how it could have major security importance now unless there was information in it which would shake the morale of navy men and their confidence in their leaders.

In Boston, an attorney for Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, navy commander at Pearl Harbor, who was recalled from active duty after the disaster, asserted that Forrestal's "suggested procedure is a specious pretext to keep the truth of Pearl Harbor hidden until after the election.

Sees Responsibility Placed

The attorney, Charles B. Rugg, added in a statement that presumably the report "places the responsibility for the Pearl Harbor catastrophe," and said Kimmel "is entitled to hear the verdict of the report promptly."

Maas and other Republicans have contended that a full report on Pearl Harbor would show that responsibility for the Japanese success extended into high places in Washington.

The naval court was established in response to a Congressional resolution, adopted last July, directing the War and Navy departments to make investigations "forthwith" into the circumstances of the Pearl Harbor attack. There has been no word as to whether the army inquiry has been completed.

Report Advisory

The navy report is merely advisory to Forrestal. Navy regulations specify that proceedings of a court of inquiry "are in no sense a trial," and such courts are convened "solely for the purpose of informing the convening authority (Forrestal) in a preliminary way as to the facts involved in the inquiry, and when directed, to aid him with opinions and recommendations."

There was no indication at the Navy Department as to when King might conclude his study.

$3,800 Work Prize Won By Chinese at Navy Yard

Suggested Way of Pre-Packing Tubes for Cables

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—James T. Wong, son of a Chinese miner, has received a $3,800 award for a suggestion which developed a time-saving method of prepacking bulkhead electric cable stuffing tubes at the Mare Island, Calif., Navy Yard.

Mr. Wong, a Mare Island electrician, hit upon his prepacking idea in correcting a mistake of another employee. As he pulled the cable out of the tube he noticed that the packing clung to it, coming out in one piece. A hand-powered machine was rigged up to make the packing "doughnut" and later a faster machine was manufactured. Previously the packing was stuffed in after the cable had been drawn through the tube.

Senate Considers Whether to Show Movies in Chamber

Washington, Oct. 21—(AP)—Those staunch guardians of the traditions and customs of the United States Senate—the gentlemen of the committee on rules—ran smack up against a knotty question today.

The question before the group, which in the past has been less than enthusiastic about modern gadgets in general:

Shall motion pictures be shown in the Senate chamber?

As a matter of historic fact, a few reels actually were run off in that hall this week. But Wall Doxey, the Senate's sergeant-at-arms, made it clear this was experiment, not precedent. Furthermore, the screen was taken down quickly.

Whether it ever is allowed to go up again depends pretty much on the verdict of the Rules Committee whose chairman is Senator Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia.

Roosevelt Urges U. S. Help Enforce Peace

President Calls for World Organization With American Representative With "Authority to Act"—Favors Force If Necessary

New York, Oct. 21—(AP)—President Roosevelt called tonight for a world organization with power to enforce peace by force, if necessary, and for an American representative in the organization with Congressional "authority to act."

In an address prepared for a Foreign Policy Association dinner at the Waldorf Astoria, the Chief Executive said also that a Republican victory would toss Congressional leadership to "inveterate isolationists" who are not "reliable custodians" of American foreign policy in a world which requires international cooperation to preserve peace.

Mr. Roosevelt said a projected council of the United Nations, proposed by the Dumbarton Oaks agreement, must have the power to act quickly and decisively to keep peace by force if need be.

"It is clear," he asserted, "that, if the world organization is to have any reality at all, our representative must be endowed in advance by the people themselves, by Constitutional means through their Representatives in the Congress, with authority to act."

An Important Issue

Mr. Roosevelt said "a question of the men who will formulate and carry out a foreign policy of this country is in issue in this election—very much in issue. It is in issue not in terms of partisan application but in terms of sober, solemn facts—the facts that are on the record.

"If the Republicans were to win control of the Congress in this election inveterate isolations would occupy positions of commaning influence and power."

Regarding the administration's foreign policy, Mr. Roosevelt pledged postwar Germany would be shorn of every "single element of military power—or of potential military power" and "stern punishment" for war leaders responsible for the "agony of mankind."

He asserted, also, that the administration had no unconstitutional secret commitments in foreign relations.

"After my return from Tehran," Mr. Roosevelt said, "I stated officially that no secret commitments had been made. The issue then is between my veracity and the continuing assertion of those who have no responsibility in the foreign field—or, perhaps I should say, a field foregin to them."

Answers Criticism

After the end of a day which saw him campaigning through the rain for the millions of votes New York City will cast November 7, the President dealt point-by-point with criticism leveled at administration foreign policies by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. But not once did he speak Dewey's name.

But there was no mistaking his meaning when he remarked:

"These days—and I am now speaking of October, 1944—I hear voices on the air attacking me for my 'failure' to prepare this nation for this war and to warn the American people of the approaching tragedy.

"These same voices were not so very audible five years ago—or even four years ago—giving warning of the grave peril which we then faced."

Mr. Roosevelt asserted that America and her Allies are "entirely agreed that we shall not bargain with the Nazi conspirators," or leave them a shred of open or secret control of instruments of government. Nor, he said, will they be left a single element of military power or potential military power.

No Slavery for Reich

German people, he pledged, will not be enslaved, but there will be stern punishment for those in Germany "directly responsible for this agony of mankind."

Thus, apparently, the chief executive gave his answer to Dewey, who contended in a speech last Wednesday that the administration had no plan for dealing with Germany and that this had resulted in the shedding of American blood.

The President said he was not talking with "rancor or snap judgment," and that he was speaking without losing his temper or head.

He added solemnly that he believed at the end of the last war and still believes now that enduring world peace has no chance unless America co-operates in winning and maintaining it. Words, he said, must be backed with the deed.

Amplifying that point a bit later, the President said:

"The council of the United Nations must have the power to act quickly and decisively to keep the peace by force, if necessary. A policeman would not be a very effective policeman if, when he saw a felon break into a house, he had to go to the townhall and call a town meeting to issue a warrant before the felon could be arrested."

Must Have Authority

It is clear, he asserted, that if a wor'd organization is to have reality "our representative must be endowed in advance by the people themselves, by constitutional means through their representatives in the Congress with authority to act."

The chief executive said he was quoting history and going by the record in declaring that a majority of Republican members of Congress voted against Selective Service in 1940, repeal of the Arms Emargo in 1939, lend-lease in 1941 and extension of selective service four months before Pearl Harbor.

If Republicans were to win control of Congress in the coming election, the President said, "inveterate isolationists would occupy positions of commanding influence and power."

He listed some as:

Sen. Gerald P. Nye, whom he described as one of the most influential members of the Foreign Relations Committee. He said the North Dakota Senator would become also chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

Rep. Joseph W. Martin, who would be in line for Speaker of the House, was reported by Mr. Roosevelt as having balloted against arms embargo repeal, Lend-Lease, Selective Service extension, arming of merchant ships and reciprocal trade agreements.

"The chairman of the powerful committee on rules," he added, "would be none other than Hamilton Fish."

There are many others like these in Congress, he added, and every one of them now is campaigning actively for the Republican ticket.

While admitting that there have been isolationist Democrats, Mr. Roosevelt said they had been few and far between and had not obtained positions of leadership.

No Isolationist Support

"And I am proud of the fact," he went on, "that this administration does not have the support of the isolationist press—and I mean specifically the McCormick-Patterson-Hearst-Gannett press."

At another point, Mr. Roosevelt said that "one of the leading isolationists who killed international co-operation in 1920 was Sen. Hiram Johnson," the Californian who would become foreign relations chairman in the event of a Republican victory.

"I know," he said, "the American voters wil bear that in mind."

Again in historical vein, the President said that "the heavy hands of isolationism" dominated foreign policy of Republican administrations after 1920. Much of the Navy's strength was scuttled, he said, and, as in the Teapot Dome case, some Navy resources were "handed over to friends in private industry."

Tariff Walls Raised

Tariff walls were raised, blocking international trade, he asserted, and there was snarling at former Allies and encouragement to American investment of $2,500,000,000 in Germany.

Petitions for America to join the World Court, he said, were rejected or ignored.

Answering Republican campaign doctrine, Mr. Roosevelt said the American people know he and Secretary Hull are thoroughly conversant with the Constitution and know that the two of them can't commit America to any unconstitutional secret treaties or guarantees.

Roosevelt's Address

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Following is the prepared text of an address by President Roosevelt at a Foreign Policy Association dinner here tonight:

Tonight I am speaking as a guest of the Foreign Policy Association—a distinguished organization composed of Americans of all shades of political opinion.

I am going to talk about our American foreign policy.

I am talking without rancor or snap judgment.

I am speaking without losing my temper or losing my head.

When the first World War was ended, I believed—I believe now—that enduring peace in the world has not a chance unless this nation is willing to cooperate in winning it and maintaining it. I thought then—I know now—that we have to back our words with deeds.

A quarter of a century ago we helped to save our freedom but we failed to organize the kind of world in which future generations could live in freedom. Opportunity knocks again. There is no guarantee that it will knock a third time.

Desperate Fight By Enemy

Today, Hitler and the Nazis continue the fight—desperately, inch by inch, and may continue to do so all the way to Berlin.

And we have another important engagement in Tokyo. No matter how long or hard the road we must travel, our forces will fight their way there under the leadership of MacArthur and Nimitz.

All of our thinking about foreign policy in this war must be conditioned by the fact that millions of our American boys are today fighting, many thousands of miles from home, for the defense of our country and the perpetuation of our American ideals. And there are still many hard and bitter battles to be fought.

The leaders of this nation have always held that concern for our national security does not end at our borders. President Monroe and every American President following him were prepared to use force, if necessary, to assure the independence of other American nations threatened by aggressors from across the seas.

"Principle Has Not Changed"

The principle has not changed, though the world has. Wars are no longer fought from horseback, or from the decks of sailing ships.

It was with recognition of that fact that in 1933 we took, as the basis for our foreign relations, the good neighbor policy—the principle of the neighbor who, resolutely respecting himself, equally respects the rights of others.

We and the other American republics have made the good neighbor policy real in this hemisphere. It is my conviction that this policy can be, and should be, made universal.

At inter-American conferences, beginning at Montevideo in 1933, and continuing down to date, we have made it clear to this hemisphere that we practice what we preach.

Philippine Action As Pattern

Our action in 1934 with respect to Philippine independence was another step in making good the same philosophy which animated the good neighbor policy.

As I said two years ago: "I like to think that the history of the Philippine Islands in the last 44 years provides in a very real sense a pattern for the future of other small nations and peoples of the world. It is a pattern of what men of good will look forward to in the future."

I cite another early action in the field of foreign policy of which I am proud. That was the recognition in 1933 of Soviet Russia.

For 16 years before then the American people and the Russian people had no practical means of communicating with each other. We reestablished those means. And today we are fighting with the Russians against common foes—and we know that the Russian contribution to victory has been, and will continue to be, gigantic.

Republican Condemnation

However, certain politicians, now very prominent in the Republican party, have condemned our recognition.

I am impelled to wonder how Russia would have survived against German attack if these same people had had their way.

After the last war—in the political campaign of 1920—the isolationist Old Guard professed to be enthusiastic about international cooperation.

While campaigning for votes in 1920, Senator Harding said that he favored with all his heart an association of nations "so organized and so participated in as to make the actual attainment of peace a reasonable possibility."

However, after President Harding's election, the association of nations was never heard of again.

Johnson's Seniority

One of the leading isolationists who killed international cooperation in 1920 was Senator Hiram Johnson. In the event of Republican victory in the Senate this year—1944—that same Senator Johnson would be chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. I know the Americans voters will bear that in mind.

During the years which followed 1920 the foreign policy of the Republican administrations was dominated by the heavy hand of isolationism.

Much of the strength of our navy was scuttled—and some of the navy's resources were handed over to friends in private industry—as in the unforgettable case of Teapot Dome.

Tariff walls went higher and higher — blocking international trade.

There was snarling at our former Allies and at the same time encouragement was given to American finance to invest 2,500,000,000 in Germany, our former enemy.

Rejection Of World Court

All petitions that this nation join in the World Court were rejected or ignored.

After this Administration took office, Secretary Hull and I replaced high tariffs with a series of reciprocal trade agreements under a statute of the Congress. The Republicans opposed these agreements—and tried to stop the extension of the law every three years.

In 1935 I asked the Congress to join the World Court. The Democrats in the Senate voted for it, 43 to 20. The Republicans voted against it 14 to 9. Thus we were prevented from obtaining the necessary two-thirds majority.

In 1937 I asked that aggressor nations be quarantined—and for this I was branded by isolationists in and out of public office as an "alarmist" and "war-monger."

Warnings Of Danger

From that time on, as you well know, I made clear by repeated messages to the American Congress and by repeated statements to the American people the danger threatening from abroad—and the need of rearming to meet it.

In July, 1939, I tried to obtain a repeal of the arms embargo provisions in the neutrality law which tied our hands against selling arms to the European democracies for defense against Hitler.

The late Senator Borah told a group, which I called together in the White House, that his own private information from abroad was better than that of the State Department—and that there would be no war in Europe.

And it was made plain to Mr. Hull and me that, because of the isolationist vote, we could not possibly hope to attain the desired revision of the Neutrality Law.

Hitler Attack On Poland

This fact was also made plain to Adolf Hitler. A few weeks later he brutally attacked Poland—and the Second World War had begun.

In 1941, this Administration proposed and the Congress passed, in spite of isolationist opposition, the Lend-Lease Law—a practical and dramatic notice to the world that we intended to help those nations resisting aggression.

These days—and I am now speaking of October, 1944—I hear voices on the air attacking me for my "failure" to prepare this nation for this war and to warn the American people of the approaching tragedy.

These same voices were not so very audible five years ago—or even four years ago—giving warning of the grave peril which we then faced.

Tribute To Stimson

There have been, and there still are, in the Republican party distinguished men and women of vision and courage, both in and out of public office, who have vigorously supported our aid to our Allies and all the measures that we took to build up our national defense. And many of these Republicans have rendered magnificent services to our country in this war as members of this Administration. I am happy that one of these distinguished Americans is our great Secretary of War, Henry Stimson.

Let us remember that this very war might have been averted if Mr. Stimson's views had prevailed when, in 1931, the Japanese ruthlessly attacked Manchuria.

The majority of the Republican members of the Congress voted against the selective service law in 1940; they voted against repeal of the arms embargo in 1939; they voted against the lend-lease law in 1941 and they voted in August 1941, against extension of selective service—which meant voting against keeping our army together—four months before Pearl Harbor.

I am quoting history to you. I am going by the record. And I am giving you the whole story and not merely a phrase here and half a phrase there picked out of context in such a way that they distort the facts.

I happen to believe that, even in a political campaign, we should all obey that ancient injunction—thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.

The question of the men who will formulate and carry out the foreign policy of this country is in issue in this election—very much in issue. It is in issue not in terms of partisan application, but in terms of sober, solemn facts—the facts that are on the record.

If the Republicans were to win control of the Congress in this election, inveterate isolationists would occupy positions of commanding influence and power.

I have already spoken of the ranking Republican member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Hiram Johnson.

One of the most influential members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—a man who would also be the chairman of the powerful Senate Committee on Appropriations—is Senator Gerald P. Nye.

Presumable GOP Speaker

In the House of Representatives, the man who is the present leader of the Republicans there, and who undoubtedly would be Speaker, is Joseph W. Martin. He voted against the repeal of the arms embargo, against the lend-lease bill, against the extension of the selective service law, against the arming of merchant ships and against the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, and their extensions.

The chairman of the powerful Committee on Rules would be none other than Hamilton Fish.

There are many others like them in the Congress of the United States—and every one of them is now actively campaigning for the national Republican ticket this year.

Can anyone really suppose that these isolationists have changed their minds about world affairs? Politicians who embraced the policy of isolationism—or who never raised their voices against it in our days of peril—are not reliable custodians of the future of America.

Democratic Isolationists

There have been Democrats in the isolationist camp, but they have been few and far between, and they have not attained positions of leadership.

And I am proud of the fact that this Administration does not have the support of the isolationist press—and I mean specifically the McCormick-Patterson - Hearst-Gannett press.

The American people have gone through great national debates in the recent critical years. They were soul-searching debates. They reached from every city to every village and to every home.

We debated our principles and our determination to aid those fighting for freedom.

Obviously, we could have come to terms with Hitler, and accepted a minor role in his totalitarian world. We rejected that!

We could have compromised with Japan, and bargained for a place in a Japanese-dominated Asia by selling out the heart's blood of the Chinese people. And we rejected that!

"Not To Bargain With Tyrants"

The decision not to bargain with the tyrants rose from the hearts and souls and sinews of the American people. They faced reality; they appraised reality; and they knew what freedom meant.

The power which this nation has attained—the moral, the political, the economic and the military power—has brought to us the responsibility, and with it the opportunity, for leadership in the community of nations. In our own best interest, and in the name of peace and humanity, this nation cannot, must not, and will not shirk that responsibility.

There are some who hope to see a structure of peace, completely set up immediately, with all the apartments assigned to everyone's satisfaction, with the telephones in, the plumbing complete, the heating system and the electric ice boxes functioning perfectly, all furnished with linen and silver—and with the rent prepaid.

The United Nations have not yet produced such a comfortable dwelling place. But we have achieved a very practical expression of a common purpose on the part of four great nations, who are now united to wage this war, that they will embark together after the war on a greater and more difficult enterprise—that of waging peace. We will embark on it with all the peace-loving nations of the world—large and small.

Our objective, as I stated ten days ago, is to complete the organization of the United Nations without delay and before hostilities actually cease.

Peace, like war, can succeed only where there is a will to enforce it, and where there is available power to enforce it.

Power Asked For Council

The council of the United Nations must have the power to act quickly and decisively to keep the peace by force, if necessary. A policeman would not be a very effective policeman if, when he saw a felon break into a house, he had to go to the town hall and call a town meeting to issue a warrant before the felon could be arrested.

It is clear that, if the world organization is to have any reality at all, our representative must be endowed in advance by the people themselves, by constitutional means through their representatives in the Congress, with authority to act.

If we do not catch the international felon when we have our hands on him, if we let him get away with his loot because the town council has not passed an ordinance authorizing his arrest, then we are not doing our share to prevent another world war. The people of the nation want their Government to act, and not merely to talk, whenever and wherever there is a threat to world peace.

Need Of Cooperation

We cannot attain our great objectives by ourselves. Never again, after cooperating with other nations in a world war to save our way of life, can we wash our hands of maintaining the peace for which we fought.

The Dumbarton Oaks conference did not spring up over night. It was called by Secretary Hull and me after years of thought, discussion, preparation and consultation with our Allies. Our State Department did a splendid job in preparing for the conference and leading it to a successful termination. It was another chapter in the long process of cooperation with other peace-loving nations — beginning with the Atlantic Charter conference and continuing through conferences at Casablanca, Moscow, Cairo, Teheran, Quebec and Washington.

It is my profound conviction that the American people as a whole have a very real understanding of these things.

Security Of Constitution

The American people know that Cordell Hull and I are thoroughly conversant with the Constitution of the United States and know that we cannot commit this nation to any secret treaties or any secret guarantees which are in violation of that Constitution.

After my return from Teheran, I stated officially that no secret commitments had been made. The issue then is between my veracity and the continued assertions of those who have no responsibility in the foreign field—or, perhaps I should say, a field foreign to them.

The peace structure which we are building must depend on foundations that go deep into the soil of men's faith and men's hearts—otherwise it is worthless. Only the unflagging will of men can preserve it.

No President of the United States can make the American contribution to preserve the peace without the constant, alert and conscious collaboration of the American people.

"Determination Of People"

Only the determination of the people to use the machinery gives worth to the machinery.

We believe that the American people have already made up their minds on this great issue, and this Administration has been able to press forward confidently with its plans.

The very fact that we are now at work on the organization of the peace proves that the great nations are committed to trust in each other. Put this proposition any way you will, it is bound to come out the same way; we either work with the other great nations, or we might some day have to fight them.

The kind of world order which we the peace-loving nations must achieve, must depend essentially on friendly human relations, on acquaintance, on tolerance, on unassailable sincerity and good will and good faith. We have achieved that relationship to a remarkable degree in our dealings with our Allies in this war—as the events of the war have proved.

"New Thing In History"

It is a new thing in human history for Allies to work together, as we have done—so closely, so harmoniously and effectively in the fighting of a war, and—at the same time—in the building of the peace.

If we fail to maintain that relationship in the peace—if we fail to expand it and strengthen it—then there will be no lasting peace.

As for Germany, that tragic nation which has sown the wind and is now reaping the whirlwind—we and our allies are entirely agreed that we shall not bargain with the Nazi conspirators, or leave them a shred of control—open or secret—of the instruments of government.

We shall not leave them a single element of military power—or of potential military power.

But I should be false to the very foundations of my religious and political convictions, if I should ever relinquish the hope—and even the faith—that in all peoples, without exception, there live some instinct for truth, some attraction toward justice, and some passion for peace—buried as they may be in the German case under a brutal regime.

We bring no charge against the German race, as such, for we cannot believe that God has eternally condemned any race of humanity. For we know in our own land how many good men and women of German ancestry have proved loyal, freedom-loving, peace-loving citizens.

There is going to be stern punishment for all those in Germany directly responsible for this agony of mankind.

"Not Going To Be Enslaved"

The German people are not going to be enslaved—because the United Nations do not traffic in human slavery. But it will be necessary for them to earn their way back into the fellowship of peace-loving and law-abiding nations. And, in their climb up that steep road, we shall certainly see to it that they are not encumbered by having to carry guns. They will be relieved of that burden—we hope, forever.

The task ahead of us will not be easy. Indeed, it will be as difficult and complex as any task which has ever faced an American Administration.

I will not say to you now, or ever, that we of my party know all the answers. I am certain, for myself, that I do not know how all the unforeseeable difficulties can be met.

"Faith Job Can Be Done"

What I can say to you is this—that I have unlimited faith that the job can be done. And that faith is based on knowledge gained in the arduous, practical and continuing experience of the past eventful years.

I speak to the present generation of Americans with reverent participation in its sorrows and in its hopes. No generation has undergone a greater test, or has met that test with greater heroism and greater wisdom, and no generation has had a more exalted mission.

For this generation must act not only for itself, but as a trustee for all those who fell in the last war—a part of their mission unfulfilled.

It must act also for all who have paid the supreme price in this war—lest their mission, too, be betrayed.

And finally it must act for the generations to come—which must be granted a heritage of peace.

Utopia Not Expected

I do not exaggerate that mission. We are not fighting for, and we shall not achieve, Utopia. Indeed, in our own land, the work to be done is never finished. We have yet to realize the full and equal enjoyment of our freedom. So, in embarking on the building of a world fellowship, we have set ourselves to a long and arduous task, which will challenge our patience, our intelligence, our imagination, as well as our faith.

That task requires the judgment of a seasoned and a mature people. And this the American people have become. We shall not again be thwarted in our will to live as a mature nation, confronting limitless horizons. We shall bear our full responsibility, exercise our full influence, and bring our full help and encouragement to all who aspire to peace and freedom.

We now are, and we shall continue to be strong brothers in the family of mankind—the family of the children of God.

F. D. R. Braves Rain In Open Auto On N. Y. City Tour

OCT 22 1944

President Roosevelt's New York address will be broadcast at 9.30 o'clock tonight by stations WCBM and WBAL.

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt, huddled in the rear seat of an open car as a cold rain alternated from a heavy downpour to a misty drizzle, made a four-hour campaign swing through New York city today.

Although at times he barely was visible to the thousands of persons who lined the streets, the President, wearing an old felt hat and navy cape, cheerfully waved at the shouting crowds.

Visits WAVES School

His tour, which included inspections of the Brooklyn army base, Brooklyn Navy Yard and Hunter College WAVES Training School as Commander in Chief of the armed forces and an appearance and brief talk at an Ebbets Field rally for United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, ended with a motor trip through Harlem, Times Square and the garment district.

After receiving an ovation from the crowds lining Seventh avenue in the heart of the garment section, the President went to Mrs. Roosevelt's apartment to rest for his talk tonight before the Foreign Policy Association.

"Deserves Well Of Mankind"

The President told his listeners at Ebbets Field that his "old friend Bob Wagner" deserves well of mankind and should be returned to the Senate for another term. Mrs. Roosevelt was with him in the car during the brief talk.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia estimated that 16,000 persons braved a drizzle to attend the rally and commented, "It must be affection to come out in this weather." The seating capacity of the park is 32,000.

Standing bareheaded in his open car on a ramp in the center of the ball park, the President said he came "to pay tribute to my old friend Bob Wagner."

Is A Dodger Rooter

"I have a confession to make," the President stated. "I've never been in Ebbets Field before, but I've rooted for the Dodgers. And I hope to come back to see them play."

"But my chief reason," he added, "is to pay tribute to my old friend Bob Wagner. We served together in the Legislature—I hate to say how many years ago. . . .

"And we are close friends because we have the same ideals of service to fellow man . . . If everyone knew of the help Bob Wagner has been to mankind, there would not be any question about his going back to the Senate for another six years."

Crowd Sets Up Chant

The lower stands were well filled and spectators took up part of the space in the upper stands as Roosevelt entered the park. A chant, "We want Roosevelt," swelled from the crowd as his car moved up the ramp for him to speak.

Thousands of persons, some huddled under umbrellas, others leaning from windows of apartment houses and other buildings, lined the route of the President's tour.

Army officials said nearly 40,000 soldiers and civilians saw Roosevelt at the Brooklyn army base, while a naval spokesman estimated that 47,000 persons on the navy yard day shift greeted the President.

Passes Through Forest Hills

The motorcade sped through Forest Hills after leaving the Ebbets Field rally.

Shortly after noon the 26-car caravan crossed over the Tri-Borough bridge into the Bronx amid cheers and flag-waving from spectators, who, police said, numbered 7,500.

There was a pelting rain as the Presidential party headed for the WAVE training school at Hunter College. About 15,000 persons stood along Fordham road as the motorcade passed by, police said.

The President, shedding the secrecy that has surrounded his travels since America entered the war, arrived at the New York port of embarkation's Brooklyn army base at 7.13 A. M. and began his tour of the base at 9.58 A. M., riding in the open car with LaGuardia, Brooklyn Democratic Leader Frank Kelly and John J. Cashmore, Brooklyn borough president.

Soldiers and civilians greeted the President during a five-minute ride about the base. Most of the crowd watched from windows, a steady rain beating down on the Presidential car.

Cheered On Departure

Outside the gates Roosevelt was cheered as he left for the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Sitting beside the President, and apparently enjoying the rain, was Fala, Roosevelt's black scottie.

It was Roosevelt's first public appearance outside Washington since the campaign reached the intensive stage, and it presaged other political trips for him.

Already scheduled are speeches in Philadelphia next Friday and in Boston probably the night of November 4. Chicago and Cleveland are other likely appearance spots.

Thirty-seven reporters, photographers and radiomen accompanied the President from Washington, the first time they have boarded a Presidential train since Pearl Harbor.

Others In The Party

On other wartime trips he either has been unaccompanied by correspondents or has taken with him only the White House reporters of the three principal news services.

Also in the President's party were Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Presidential secretaries Stephen Early and William D. Hassett; Robert Sherwood, the writer, who recently left the Office of War Information to join the White House staff, and Vice-Admiral Ross T. McIntyre, the President's physician.

Mrs. Roosevelt joined the party shortly before the President began his tour of the city.

First Political Rally

Early said Roosevelt had no intention of concealing himself today behind voluntary censorship.

His appearance at Ebbets Field marked the first time of the campaign that the President has turned up at a political rally, although he will repeat next Friday at Philadelphia's Shibe Park.

His opening campaign speech in Washington last month was at a dinner meeting of the AFL Teamsters Union, where admission was by ticket only. What other talks he has made have been delivered by radio from the White House.

Area Rich In Votes

The region he covered is an area normally rich in Democratic votes and carries within its confines the principal hopes of the Democrats for capturing New York's 47 Electoral College votes.

Party leaders were jubiliant over the President's decision to take the 1944 campaign on the road. Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan said the New York trip would give that city's voters a chance to look and judge for themselves the state of Roosevelt's health.

Thus—with the New York trip as an opener—the fourth-term campaign appears to have wound up in the footsteps of Roosevelt's third-term race. In 1940, as in 1944, he said he would have no time for the usual campaigning.

Speeches Near The Close

But he ended up with several inspection trips and public speeches near the campaign's close.

Then, as now, New York city was among the places he visited.

Tonight's speech may be Roosevelt's reply to the foreign policy address of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey delivered here Wednesday night. Dewey attacked what he termed the Roosevelt Administration's "personal secret diplomacy." Roosevelt disclosed to his news conference in Washington yesterday that he heard the Dewey broadcast.

Early declined to classify tonight's foreign policy speech as political or non-political. But the Democratic National Committee will foot the bill for radio time.

It Photographs The Invisible

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A new robot, which photographs the invisible, makes pictures of such things as the wave of heat rising from a human hand, and which would, the makers say, photograph a ghost, was announced to the Optical Society of America here today.

The report was made by Norman F. Barnes and S. Lawrence Bellinger, of the General Electric Company.

The new thing which makes the photographic miracles possible is an electronic timing tube. Air itself becomes visible if the photo flash is brief enough.

In Millionth Of A Second

This tube takes a picture in one millionth of a second. It produces the flash and at the same time regulates the exposure time. The picture is taken so fast, the report declared, that the light from the flash bulb has time to travel only 1,000 feet before the picture is over.

Light's speed is 186,000 miles per second. Actually, the photo is taken in much less time than that of the 1,000-foot journey of the flash. If there were a telephoto lens on the apparatus trying to take a picture a couple of blocks away, the light couldn't get there quick enough.

Taken In Two

The pictures of invisible air in motion are taken in two ways. If a lot of air is photographed, the method is shadowgraphed. This air will cast an ever-so-faint shadow, which the fast camera photographs.

But if the amount of air is slight, like the breath from human nostrils, then a different system must be used. There isn't enough shadow. But there is a difference in the density and temperature of the air coming from the nostrils.

A method called the Schlieren system will make such air changes visible to a photographic plate. This method requires a special optical system.

The result is a peculiar-looking blur on the photo, a blur which on close examination is seen to be a tangle of the differing air currents moving in the nostril breath.

War Tool Surplus Disposal Problem

OCT 22 1944

By HUDSON PHILLIPS

New York, Oct. 21—(AP)—Machine tools will pose one of the most intricate problems in disposal of the fabulous mountain-high pile of surplus war goods and materials left after final victory.

Excess machine tools are not comparable to surplus shoes, clothing, canned goods and a myriad of other materials which eventually must be disposed of by the Government.

This is because machine tools are necessary for mass production of the hundreds of consumer items to be built after war—things like automobiles, refrigerators, stoves, washing machines and so on.

Metal products would have a crude appearance if it were not for machine tools—giant presses, for instance, which in one operation shape flat pieces of sheet steel into automobile fenders. Prices also would be higher, a $25 watch costing perhaps $1,000.

What about the surplus when heavy cutbacks hit the makers of airplanes, ships, ordnance and hundreds of other war items?

These surplus machine tools will come under the head of second hand machinery. Assuming final victory arrives by 1946, many of them will have seen about four years of grueling wartime operation—under pressure three shifts, 24 hours a day, for 365 days each year.

Still Life in Them

But this does not mean these machine tools will be worn out. In normal times such machinery lasts about 30 years with proper care, another 15 years after overhauling. Their life in wartime is about 10 years and 15 more if used normally after rebuilding.

Charles A. Simmons, president of the Simmons Machine Tool Corp., of Albany, N. Y., has been rebuilding machine tools for about 30 years. Formerly chief of the Available Tools Section of WPB, he has some ideas on how to treat this second hand machinery.

Simmons estimates that after the war there will be approximately 350,000 surplus machine tools originally worth $2,000,000,000.

His greatest fear is that when the time comes to again start using peacetime machinery, the Government will have failed to set up a system for quick removal of surplus machine tools from plants as well as for providing adequate warehousing and a method of speedy disposal.

"I'm afraid that, otherwise, manufacturers are just going to push all they don't need into an old storeroom—or, still worse, out into a vacant lot because of a lack of strage space," Simmons says.

"If they do this, a lot of parts will be lost, some broken and the tools will be pushed into a heap—anything to get them out of the way for starting an assembly line to make peacetime goods."

Might Scrap Relics

He says this will pave the way for speculators eventually taking them off the Government's hands at only a fraction of their original cost.

'Some of the machine tools pushed asid eso hastily will be just what another American manufacturer may want," Simmons says. 'Many companies are using outmoded, antiquated machines.

"If all machine tools over 30 years old were scrapped in the United Stats, there would be no surplus."

He thinks 15 per cent of the surplus could be sold almost immediately after the war at a good price—something like 75 to 85 per cent of what they cost new.

"For the rest," Simmons says, there should be a period of approximately three years for the Government to sell all the used machine tools it can to industry at reasonable prices, perhaps even as low as 25 cents on the dollar for some models."

In the meantime, he believes there should be a ban on machine tools not more than five years old being sold outside the country. Those from five to 30 years old might easily find acceptance in foreign markets, he adds.

"I think the disposal of these surplus machine tools should be Lend-Lease in reverse," Simmons says, "with foreign companies taking our second best machinery and we keeping the best ourselves."

DEWEY PLANS CLOSING TOUR OF MIDWEST

G. O. P. Nominee to Devote Final Week to East Coast

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 21—(AP)—Obviously happy over the reception he received in Democratic Pittsburgh Gov. Thomas E. Dewey spent a rainy Saturday completing plans for his final campaign push through the Midwest.

The Republican presidential nominee, who leaves Monday on a swing through Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Chicago, is expected to devote the closing week of his campaign to the East Coast.

The executive mansion was tuned in for tonight's broadcast by President Roosevelt before the Foreign Policy Association in New York City.

Aides indicated the Governor would be ready to answer any rebuttal by Mr. Roosevelt to Dewey's foreign policy speech in New York City last Wednesday, in which he assailed what he called the President's "personal secret diplomacy."

Despite dismal weather, the candidate and Mrs. Dewey were smiling broadly as they stepped off their special train today after an overnight run from Pittsburgh, where they received a warm reception yesterday.

In his broadcast, Dewey accused the Roosevelt administration of "playing with the rights of labor for political power and political cash."

The itinerary for the rest of his campaign is being kept fluid, with several possible speaking dates left open. The only announced engagements for next week are broadcasts in Minneapolis Tuesday night and Chicago Wednesday night. There will be a three-hour stopover in Milwaukee on the way between those two cities.

Dewey will speak in Buffalo October 31 and in New York City's Madison Square Garden November 4. He will travel to Boston for an address November 1.

New York, Oct. 21—(AP)—The Republican National Committee announced today that the "reaction to the labor speech delivered by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey at Pittsburgh was so good that the speech will be rebroadcast Monday, October 23, from 9:30 to 10 P. M., E. W. T., over the Mutual Broadcasting System."

The Republican presidential candidate spoke in Pittsburgh last night.

Lindbergh Bagged Jap Plane, Report

Passaic, N. J., Oct. 21 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew on combat missions during his recent trip and is unofficially credited with shooting down a Japanese plane, the Passaic Herald-News said in a copyrighted article today.

The newspaper said Lindbergh's assignment as a civilian expert for the War and Navy Departments took him to front bases and on fighter plane flights leading to encounters in which aggressive action had been a matter of necessity.

Made Daring Flight

Dispatches at the time of departure for the Pacific said he would investigate high-altitude plane performances.

At one base, the Herald-News said, "he awed the young fighter pilots by taking out a Lightning on a flight into Jap territory after only five hours of practice, an unheard-of feat," and he often strained the range limits of planes, once returning just as his gasoline suppl ywas exhausted.

Resigned Commission

Lindbergh resigned his army commission before the war and was not recommissioned when hostilities began. He is now with the United Aircraft Corporation, manufacturers of navy Corsair fighters. The Herald-News said its article was brought to his attention by associates at the firm's Hartford (Conn.) plant, who reported Lindbergh asked them to say he had no comment to make.

The pioneer New York-to-Paris flyer has been taking part this week in the first joint army-navy conference called "to evaluate and compare the performances of all types of fighter aircraft" at Patuxent (Md.) experimental air station.

BALDWIN SAYS WILLKIE COLD TO 4TH TERM

Stand Given With Dewey's Nomination—Widow Asks End of Speculation

Hartford, Oct. 21—(AP)—Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin said today that Wendell Willkie told him "emphatically" on the final day of the Republican National Convention that he would not support President Roosevelt for a fourth term.

(Governor Baldwin's statement was followed a few hours later by a fervent appeal by Mrs. Willkie that all conjecture be ended as to whether her husband would have supported the Presidential candidacy of Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Dewey in the coming election. Mrs. Willkie's statement was issued at her home in Indiana)

Formal Statement

The Connecticut chief executive, close political ally and friends of Willkie, related in a formal statement that he was with the 1940 G. O. P. Presidential nominee in New York when word reached them that the Chicago convention had nominated Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Willkie, Baldwin recalled, turned to him and said "emphatically":

"Well, you can rely on one thing. I will not support the President in his campaign for a fourth term."

The Governor said that he kept Willkie's statement to him a secret, but had decided to make it public now "to defend the memory of a great man from political opportunists who seek to use his memory for political capital when he is no longer around to defend himself against misrepresentation."

Follows Hurley Statement

The Governor's statement, which his office said "answered to much debated question" of whether Willkie would have supported Mr. Roosevelt or Governor Dewey, was issued on the heels of a recent assertion by Robert A. Hurley, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, that Baldwin had "surrendered his standing as a Willkie Republican" and had become a "Hoover Republican."

Baldwin, candidate for re-election, contended that former Governor Hurley was now giving "belated praise" to Willkie "in an attempt to make political capital for his own advantages."

In telling of his last visit with Willkie, Governor Baldwin said:

Called on Willkie

"In order to attend the commencement in New York when my son was a member of the class graduating from the USNR Midshipmen's School at Columbia, I left the 1944 Chicago Convention two days before it closed and came back East. On the morning of the last day of the convention, I called at Mr. Willkie's office in New York.

"He was as friendly and affable as ever, and he talked freely and frankly of politics and national affairs. We spent half the day together, and I was with him when the word came that Tom Dewey had been nominated. I will never forget his words after he heard the actual news of Tom Dewey's nomination, which had been a foregone conclusion after Mr. Willkie's withdrawal following the Wisconsin primary. It was the moment when man speaks with candor and without restraint. It was a moment when man is most likely to speak from the heart rather than the mind, when he is most liable to reveal his most innermost thoughts.

"And that is what Mr. Willkie did."

Second Statement

When informed of Mrs. Willkie's appeal Governor Baldwin issued a second statement from his Hartford office.

Said the Governor: "I have been asked by the newspapers to comment on Mrs. Willkie's statement. I sympathize with her feelings and agree with what she says about those who were neither Mr. Willkie's personal nor political friends, but who, by misrepresentation and innuendo try to make people believe that Wendell Willkie, if living, would have supported a fourth term candidate. Let his record speak for itself."

OCT 22 1944

Rushville, Ind., Oct. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie made a fervent appeal today that all conjecture be ended as to whether her husband would have supported the Presidential candidacy of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York or President Roosevelt in the coming election.

Since Mr. Willkie's death October 8, there has been much speculation as to the possible effect on the coming election if Mr. Willkie had formally announced his support for either Presidential candidate.

"I am distressed," Mrs. Willkie said in a formal statement, "because many people are saying that they knew how Wendell Willkie intended to vote in the coming election.

"I am sure he had not made his decision.

"No one could speak for him while he was living; and I ask, out of respect for his memory, that no one should attempt to speak for him now."

QUIT GUESSING: MRS. WILLKIE

Widow Says None Knows How Husband Would Have Voted

Rushville, Ind., Oct. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie made a fervent appeal today that all conjecture be ended as to whether her husband would have supported the Presidential candidacy of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York or President Roosevelt at the coming election.

Willkie, who was once a Democrat, received more votes than any other Republican nominee in history when he was the 1940 Presidential standard bearer. Since his death, October 8, there has been much speculation as to the possible effect on the coming election if Mr. Willkie had formally announced his support for either Presidential candidate.

"I am distressed," Mrs. Willkie said in a formal statement, "because many people are saying that they knew how Wendell Willkie intended to vote in the coming election.

Decision Not Made

"I am sure he had not made his decision.

"No one could speak for him while he was living; and I ask, out of respect for his memory, that no one should attempt to speak for him now."

Mrs. Willkie's statement followed by only a few hours a declaration by Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut at Hartford, Conn., that Mr. Willkie told him "emphatically" on the final day of the Republican National Convention that he (Willkie) would not support President Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Baldwin Gives Opinion

Governor Baldwin, a close political ally and friend of Willkie, related that Willkie turned to him and said:

"Well, you can rely on one thing. I will not support the President in his campaign for a fourth term."

The Governor said he had kept Willkie's statement a secret, but now had decided to make it public "to defend the memory of a great man from political opportunists who seek to use his memory for political capital when he is no longer around to defend himself against misrepresentation."

Dewey Support Seen

H. Fred Willkie, vice-president of the Joseph E. Seagram and Sons Distilling Company, of Louisville, Ky., said within 24 hours after the death of his brother, that the former Presidential candidate would have "come out in favor of Governor Dewey."

"I think he eventually would have come out for Dewey if Dewey should have become more liberal, especially in his foreign policy," Fred Willkie said. "I believe the pressure being exerted by my brother was bringing Dewey around to that liberalism."

Fred Willkie made his statement after Drew Pearson, Washington columnist, said that Wendell Willkie had told him he was inclined to favor Roosevelt because of the President's foreign policy.

His Law Partner's Opinion

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21 (AP).—Carl M. Owen, New York law partner of Wendell Willkie, was quoted by "The Chronicle" tonight as stating "I can say most emphatically that under no conditions would he have supported the Roosevelt administration" in the Nov. 7 election. Mr. Owen was here on a business trip.

Mr. Owen was represented as saying:

"He (Mr. Willkie) earnestly desired that Mr. Dewey should so supplement the Republican platform by explicit and unequivocal statement that there would be no doubt that Mr. Dewey was committed to those international policies to which Mr. Willkie was so ardently devoted. At the time of his death, I think he was still reserving judgment. It is my personal belief, based on my talks with him, that he would have found the statement made by Mr. Dewey in his Charleston, W. Va., speech to have been sufficiently explicit and to have shown that Mr. Dewey and Mr. Willkie were in accord on international policies."

Mr. Owen said he referred to Mr. Dewey's statement, made the night Mr. Willkie died: "We are pledged to work with all our hearts and souls to bring about a lasting peace through international organization with adequate force to back it up."

"The insidious attack on America's inner spiritual confidence" she said, "has been going on for a long time. But this year it has been sharply dramatized for us by two men—Earl Browder and Sidney Hillman.

"For one thing, Earl Browder is the only man in America who has written a book which claims to be an exposition of Mr. Roosevelt's actual post-war foreign policy. According to Mr. Browder, Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy follows the Communist party line 100 per cent."

Turning to Sidney Hillman, Mrs. Luce said that "off and on for more than twenty years Hillman has been doing business with the Communists and doing the Communists' business.

"Let us look, for a moment, at the P. A. C. (Political Action Committee)—that newly laid egg by the little Hillman hen out of a big red rooster.

"If the Communist-infested P. A. C. should succeed in electing a President and in defeating the Congressmen who have dared to say what I have said, then believe me—the surviving members of Congress will be under continuous threat of political pressure from the Communist-infested P. A. C."

Mrs. Luce Charges Communism 'Bought Into' Democratic Party

BOSTON, Oct. 21 (AP).—Representative Clare Boothe Luce, Republican, of Connecticut, said tonight that "Communism, through Sidney Hillman, has bought, paid for and acquired the biggest single interest in a great American institution, the Democratic party."

Mrs. Luce declared that "if Franklin Roosevelt should be re-elected, in dealing with Russia he would be dealing with a country that had the power to subject him to political pressure at home through the ballot box."

A vote for Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for President, "is a vote against any international pressure group working within the American government," she said in a prepared speech, an advance copy of which was released by the Massachusetts State Republican Committee.

Orphan Son of U.S. Pilot Flying In From England

Michigan Grandmother to Meet Baby at LaGuardia Field

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 21 (AP).—Mrs. William Maloney departed today for New York, where she will meet her six-month-old grandson, Kenneth Barry Maloney, who was born after his American Army Air Forces pilot father was killed in action and orphaned at birth by the death of his English mother.

The baby, to arrive by plane at LaGuardia Feld from England, has no other immediate relatives in England, for his maternal grandmother, grandfather and aunt were killed when bombs struck their home. The father, Lieutenant Kenneth Maloney, a veteran of 101 missions, was killed when his plane crashed after he had waited until his crew had parachuted to safety. He had been decorated several times for bravery.

Mrs. Maloney said a visa had been obtained for the child last Saturday and that a member of the Women's Army Corps had volunteered to supervise the infant's trip across the ocean.

Free News Is Pictured As Keystone Of Peace

Chicago, Oct. 21 (AP)—Citing practical steps taken thus far to achieve a world free press, Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, told the National Editorial Association today that "none of the world organizations or systems now being discussed for the peace to come can possibly succeed unless the first basic step is taken to assure unhindered flow of information."

"Peace can only be attained by short-circuiting self-seeking, predatory governments through letting the people of each nation really know the peoples of other nations through the medium of a world-wide free press and freedom of international news exchange," said Cooper.

"Simple Principle"

"It is plain that the world must learn to apply the simple principle of peaceful community life that each of us knows in our home neighborhood."

Cooper said "channels of international communication were long used, systematically and usually clandestinely," not to inform the peoples of many nations about the truth "but to make them fear and hate the peoples of other nations."

"Russia never has known freedom of the press as we know it," Cooper said, "but the declaration of Moscow drawn up by United Nations representatives, including our Secretary Hull, who took with him to Moscow a year ago my letter about freedom of the press, specified a free press for conquered Italy.

Prior To World War I

"Your comment could be that Russia is willing to have a free press in every part of the world except Russia! But how much can we blame Russia? Prior to the first World War the Russian news agency was controlled by Germans. With the outbreak of war, the Czarist government took it over.

"Bear in mind that this was no different from what all other European governments were doing. But Russia has made tremendous strides in many ways since revolutionary days.

"With the Allied countries, except Russia and China, enforcing the principle (of a free press) at home and with Russia and China joining in requiring it of the enemy countries you have got nine-tenths of your world in line.

S. American Problem

"That is, except South America, where, had it not been for the upsurgence of Fascism and Nazism in Europe there would have been no interruption to the admirable progress that the peoples of that continent were making in the matter of freedom of international news exchange.

"Eradicate forever the principles that brought on this war in Europe and Asia and South America will do its part."

FREE FLOW OF NEWS CALLED PEACE BASIS

Cooper of Associated Press Asserts a New World Order Is Doomed Without It

OCT 22 1944

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—Citing practical steps taken thus far to achieve a world free press, Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, told the National Editorial Association in a luncheon address today that "none of the world organizations or systems now being discussed for the peace to come can possibly succeed unless the first basic step is taken to assure unhindered flow of information."

"Peace can only be attained by short-circuiting self-seeking, predatory governments through letting the people of each nation really know the peoples of other nations through the medium of a world-wide free press and freedom of international news exchange," said Mr. Cooper. "If government will only stand aside, with a beneficent attitude toward the effort, the principle of community interest and understanding can, through truthful news exchange, ultimately come true internationally. Then you will need neither pact nor military power to enforce friendly relations in international society.

"It is plain that the world must learn to apply the simple principle of peaceful community life that each of us knows in our home neighborhood."

Mr. Cooper said "channels of international communication were long used, systematically and usually clandestinely," not to inform the peoples of many nations about the truth "but to make them fear and hate the peoples of other nations." To avoid this in the future, he said, there must be "full equality as to availability of news at the source, and adequate transmission facilities at uniform nondiscriminatory rates."

Prospects in Russia

Remarking that the principles of freedom of information were "well established" in the United States, as well as in the press of Great Britain and its commonwealths, Mr. Cooper presented this view of conditions elsewhere:

"Russia never has known freedom of the press as we know it but the declaration of Moscow drawn up by United Nations representatives, including our Secretary Hull, who took with him to Moscow a year ago my letter about freedom of the press, specified a free press for conquered Italy.

"Your comment could be that Russia is willing to have a free press in every part of the world except Russia! But how much can we blame Russia? Prior to the first World War the Russian news agency was controlled by Germans. With the outbreak of war, the Czarist Government took it over. Bear in mind that this was no different from what all other European Governments were doing.

But Russia has made tremendous strides in many ways sicne Revolutionary days. Only recently Russia established freedom of religion. It has adopted the technique of the press of the democracies in many things and one day the Government of Russia will be so strong that it can well afford the boon of a free press.

Progress in South America

"With the Allied countries, except Russia and China, enforcing the principle (of a free press) at home and with Russia and China joining in requiring it of the enemy countries, you have got nine-tenths of your world in line. That is, except South America, where, had it not been for the upsurgence of fascism and nazism in Europe there would have been no interruption to the admirable progress that the peoples of that Continent were making in the matter of freedom of international news exchange. Eradicate forever the principles that brought on this war in Europe and Asia, and South America will do its part.

"How men have learned to live together peacefully in communities, and the things that contribute to that achievement," said Mr. Cooper, "is something which all of us, certainly all of us who love our children and our grandchildren, need to think about very, very seriously.

"It has become commonplace to say that the world has become small, that it is one big community. It is easy to say, but it is difficult to feel. It is a constant source of astonishment to me to have one of our war correspondents in my office one day, then see his signed articles from the war fronts only a couple of days later."

Mr. Cooper disavowed "in emphatic terms any intention of discussing international political questions" in his proposals for attaining a world-wide free press, and added:

"The peoples of most nations do not know the truth about peoples of other nations, and it is a matter of considerable astonishment to many when I say they have never had adequate means of knowing each other.

"The principle of freedom of information is vitally important. We have got to search our hearts to see what, as individuals, each of us can do. So far as I am concerned, this program of vital objectives will not become obscured by selfishness. The objectives must be obtained for all.

Voices Need for British Action

"Though we have gained a positive declaration here from the Congress and acceptance of the principles involved by the State Department, they are not that far along anywhere else. An expression by the British Parliament in terms worded like our Congressional resolution would bring to the British press and its great news agency a needed benediction for the new militant idealism of Reuters. This is particularly needed in England because there the great news agency is going it alone, completely separate and apart from the influence of the British Government for the first time in history."

Mr. Cooper said in conclusion: "There is ample reason to hope that the nations of the world may come to know each other well enough to live together in amity and cooperation. But certainly, none of the world organizations or systems which are now being discussed for the peace to come can possibly succeed unless the first basic step is taken to assure unhindered flow of information.

"You who are adept at intimate community leadership, know better than I how to make people understand this. You know, as well as anyone else, the frightful cost of this war in lives and suffering. You know how to awaken the people to the fact that this effort to get these principles adopted everywhere is their responsibility—or, once again, the next war is their war."

Resolution Hails "Crusade"

Following Mr. Cooper's talk the editorial association's advisory Council adopted a resolution expressing its "profound appreciation of the great crusade waged" by him "for the right of all men to get, send and publish the news," for "the freedom of the press, and for the enlightenment of the people everywhere as a means of perpetuating peace."

The council resolution also expressed the hope that there might be a sustained effort toward keeping the people aroused to the importance to them of having the peace conference adopt an international compact such as that suggested in the resolution adopted by Congress Sept. 21.

our Congressional resolution would bring the British press and its great news agency (Reuters) a needed benediction for the new militant idealism of Reuters.

Dewey Called Wrong In Talk About Veterans

Chicago, Oct. 21 (AP)—Dr. Charles E. Merriam, vice-chairman of the National Resources Planning Board, declared yesterday: "The recent statement of Governor Dewey that the board recommended that the veterans be kept in service after the war in order to relieve unemployment is misleading and untrue."

Dr. Merriam said in a statement that the June, 1943, report of the board advocated a "sweeping and comprehensive program for returning veterans" and that the conference report summed up a line of argument for delayed military demobilization, "but recommended just the opposite course."

KENT COOPER'S KEY TO PEACE

World Free Press Only Solution, Says AP Chief

Chicago, Oct. 21—(Special)—Permanent peace can only be attained through letting the people of each nation really know the peoples of other nations by means of a world-wide free press and freedom of international news exchange, Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, told members of the National Editorial Association here today.

Asserting that communities live peacefully because the people of a community know each other, Mr. Cooper said the world must learn to apply internationally the simple principle of peaceful community life that each knows in his home neighborhood.

Only A Start Has Been Made

Already steps have been taken to advance this idea, he said, emphasizing, however, that only a start has been made in the battle for freedom of information throughout the world.

The American press has interested itself in the principle; Reuters, the British news agency, has wholeheartedly agreed to the proposal; both the Republican and Democratic conventions adopted planks favoring freedom of news exchange and Congress followed suit by adopting a bi-partisan, concurrent resolution unanimously to the same effect, Mr. Cooper said.

In addition, he said, news reports indicate that some sort of a statement of national policy has been prepared by the State Department and may possibly be announced soon.

Free Press And Russia

Admitting that the job of obtaining a free press may prove hardest of all in Russia, Mr. Cooper said, nevertheless, that "one day the Government of Russia will be so strong that it can well afford to grant the boon of a free press."

"Without mutual international acquaintance," Mr. Cooper said, "the future is just too horrible to contemplate.

"The longer men concentrate on war, the more ghastly war becomes. I have had a number of first-hand descriptions of what the people of Great Britain have had to endure from the latest Nazi vengeance, the buzz bomb, and there has been a good deal of rumor about the second Nazi vengeance weapon, the huge rocket bomb.

As To Transocean Rocket Bombs

"Maybe it is now safe to hope that they will never get a chance to use it. The Nazis may not, before the conclusion of this war, be able to send rocket bombs across oceans. But I do not understand how any observer of scientific development can doubt that such incredible implements of destruction will be hurled across oceans if we have another war.

"So if the future is to be anything that we care to contemplate, if the engines of war are to be what they will be, it is plain that the world must learn to apply internationally the simple principle of peaceful community life that each of us knows in our home neighborhood.

Obscured By Its Simplicity

"Now actually, there is no secret about it at all. It is so simple that we fail to recognize it. Communities live peacefully because the people of a community know each other. The peoples of most nations do not know the truth about peoples of other nations, and it is a matter of considerable astonishment to many when I say they have never had adequate means of knowing each other.

"In fact, the channels of international communication were long used, systematically and usually clandestinely, not to make them know and understand but to make them fear and hate the peoples of other nations.

"Right up until this war, most of the principal news agencies outside the United States were controlled by or were subservient to their governments, and what they reported as news, and what they did not report, reflected that fact.

"Hitler, on coming into power six years before the war, took control of all media of publication, and completely regimented every form of public expression into his propaganda machine.

"I was in Germany one year before this war began and I found the peoples of other nations being depicted by the German press and radio as so monstrously fictional as to seem like peoples of another planet.

"It was something like that in the first World War, though not so openly malignant. Not only were the large European agencies under a government control or influence, but it was fashionable to serve the crown—not the people.

"Such a situation has never been created in our country. The United States Government, for example, has not taken over the AP. As a matter of fact, it would not be an easy thing to do and it couldn't be done secretly at all since the AP is a membership corporation, having no stock issue that could be bought."

Mr. Cooper said he developed the conviction that there could be no durable peace unless the channels of international news and information were opened wide at the time of the last war.

Then Another World War

Failing in an effort to have such guarantees included in the Versailles Treaty, Mr. Cooper began to stress his convictions within the AP itself, he said, and the foreign staff of the agency was instructed to deliver human-interest stories of the peoples of all the world to American newspapers.

The AP joined with the United Press and the International News Service in disseminating abroad the true story of American activities, he continued, but before the advantages of this policy could be fairly assessed, another world war intervened.

Wallace Tells Farmers Dewey Will Cut Income

Says Republicans Would End Parity Funds; Warns on Split With Labor Vote

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 21 (AP).—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace declared tonight that farmers can expect their income to be cut in half "within a few years" if a Republican administration is elected.

Mr. Wallace said in a prepared campaign speech that after the last war farm prices plummeted downward during the administration of President Harding because a Republican Congress refused to provide price supports or stabilizing controls.

"I do not say that farm prices this time will fall as fast as in 1920 should Dewey be elected," Mr. Wallace added, "but I do predict that under a Republican administration the net farm income will be cut in half within a few years.

"The farmers are depending too much on the legislation which they think assures them of 90 per cent of parity for two years after the war ends. The legislation is no good unless it is backed up by appropriations of future Congresses.

"The present Congress has done all it can to assure farmers that prices won't go lower than 90 per cent of parity for two years after the war. But if the next Congress is Republican, will it carry out with hard-cash appropriations, perhaps running into the billions of dollars, the promises made by a Democratic Congress?"

The Vice-President accused Republicans in Congress of consistently opposing farm-aid legislation, and asserted that their party "has worked unceasingly for two generations to split labor and agriculture."

"Farmers should never co-operate with big business as against labor," he said. "Those farm leaders who do so are cockeyed."

Mr. Wallace said President Roosevelt "picked the farmers out of the mire in 1932 when they had no net income" and by his labor policies made it possible for the unions to increase their membership fivefold. He called the President "the one man in the United States who, more than any other, deserves the confidence of farmers and workers," and concluded:

"Roosevelt is the doorway of opportunity to the farmer and worker. The Governor of New York is the doorway of opportunity merely for Wall Street."

Senator Ball's Stand Gratifying To Wallace

Minneapolis, Oct. 21 (AP)—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, here for two days of speeches supporting the Administration, said today that he was "gratified" with Senator Joseph H. Ball's "battle for permanent peace" and his recently expressed dissatisfaction with Governor Dewey's foreign-policy stand.

Senator Ball, a Republican, had said that he could not support Dewey's Presidential campaign.

Vice-President Wallace said, smilingly, however, that Senator Ball still might find before the November election that the Republican candidate's views were satisfactory to him.

The Vice-President predicted re-election of President Roosevelt and said the Roosevelt farm vote in the mid-West is "better than I expected."

SOCIAL GAINS LAID TO PEOPLE

Bricker Says Neither Party Can Claim All Credit

Salt Lake City, Oct. 21 (AP)—Neither the Democratic nor the Republican party, Gov. John W. Bricker declared tonight, can claim "exclusive credit" for the progress of social legislation.

Rather, the Republican candidate for the Vice-Presidency said, the credit is due to "the faith and the charity of the American people."

"The New Deal," he added in a prepared speech released by his campaign staff, "would have us believe that until it came to power, no interest was ever shown in social legislation or the welfare of the common man."

3. 24— 19775

Calls It Characteristic

The Ohio Governor said:

"The New Deal cannot rightfully claim exclusive guardianship of the nation's social conscience. Recognition of social justice and humane consideration for the oppressed, the sick, the poor and the aged is an historical characteristic of the American people.

"The genuine progress of social legislation in the United States is something for which neither political party nor any specific set of social forces can claim exclusive credit."

Says Each Helped

Each party has helped, he remarked, "but the impetus sprang from the faith and the charity of the American people—from their recognition of social ills and their demands that something be done."

It also must be determined, Bricker continued, how the needy can be helped without perpetuating the causes of need, and how under any social security plans "we can discourage indolence and lethargy, promote initiative and thrift, and press forward toward an ideal more precious even than security—American opportunity."

The Republican nominee disclaimed any intention "to detract from the credit due this Administration for the steps forward taken in welfare programs."

GOP Role Called Vital

On the other hand, he reported, the Republican party "has played a vital role in promoting social progress," and Republican Administrations contributed such developments as the Sherman Anti Trust Act, the Pure Food and Drug Act, the Federal Children's Bureau, the Railway Labor Act, Federal Farm Board and original Home Loan Act."

Bricker, visiting Utah for the first time, said at Provo the Democrats were stressing foreign affairs because "they know they would be overwhelmingly defeated" if the November election campaign were cast on domestic issues."

Tomorrow Bricker and Mrs. Bricker will attend a broadcast of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

Roosevelt Is No Diplomat, Says

Gov. Bricker

Provo, Utah, Oct. 21 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker declared today that President Roosevelt's "vaunted indispensability for foreign affairs is pure myth."

Mr. Roosevelt, said the Republican candidate for Vice-President "proved himself anything but an able diplomat in international affairs" at the London Econmic Conference of 1933.

The Ohio Governor, coming to Utah after a one-day tour of Nevada, took this tack after saying the Democrats were stressing foreign affairs because "they know they would be overwhelmingly defeated" if the current campaign were based on domestic affairs.

Pure Myth, He Says

"The New Dealers," he remarked, "believe that they have been able to keep the people in the dark on foreign affairs so that their high-sounding phrases and noble platitudes will sound persuasive.

"The New Deal candidate's vaunted indispensability for foreign affairs is pure myth. The tragic story of the World Economic Conference in 1933 proves it to be a myth."

The London conference, Bricker said, offered an opportunity to stabilize world currencies and revitalize world trade.

Dissension Charged

But, he continued, America's delegates "lacked purpose and direction. They lacked definite instructions and they lacked authority. . . . Senator Pittman repudiated Secretary Hull's proposals. Dissension broke out among the American diplomats.

"When they seemed on the verge of a minor agreement, Mr. Roosevelt promptly repudiated it."

Then, Bricker asserted, came "President Roosevelt's blighting message to the conference, blasting all hope."

He declared that the message ended the conference, that Britain's Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald "felt that Mr. Roosevelt had repudiated a fair understanding by his action and that Secretary Hull "was crushed by the development."

Declaring that the conference gave Germany free reign "to go ahead in her own way" and showed that the nations of the world "were incapable of getting together to stall her designs on the world" Bricker asked: "President Roosevelt could have saved the London conference. Why did he squelch it?"

"Economic Isolation"

Bricker said history alone would give the answer, "but this we do know: In that situation the President took a course of economic isolation in a conference that opened up to him the widest opportunity for international accord."

Bricker announced last night that his current four-week western tour, which was scheduled to end October 28 in Missouri, would be extended to includes speeches in Flint and Detroit, Mich., October 30, and that a second swing into the East would be made between November 1 and 4.

To Speak In Ohio

Bricker will speak in Toledo, Ohio, November 1. An appearance in the New York city-New Jersey vicinity has been arranged tentatively for November 2. On the night of November 3 he will deliver an address in Philadelphia and on November 4 he will wind up his campaign with speeches in Youngstown, Akron and Cleveland, Ohio.

Nation-wide broadcasts are planned for the Detroit, Philadelphia and New York vicinity address.

SOLDIERS ROUT PICKET LINE AT BOMBER PLANT

Irate Servicemen Destroy Placards of Strikers in Kansas City

Kansas City, Oct. 21—(AP)—A group of service men, aroused by a work stoppage which paralized the huge North American Aviation Company's bomber plant, stormed the plant entrances today dispersing pickets and tearing up union placards.

Only a skeleton force of pickets was on duty because of the usual Saturday afternoon holiday. All but one left when the soldiers and sailors, who assembled earlier in downtown Kansas City, appeared.

The service men seized his placard which bore the inscription "NAA-CIO-UAW, Local No. 31," tore it up, and then destroyed several others. Another group moved on to other gates likewise tearing down placards.

The remaining picket told the men that this was a holiday and said no workers were due to report until Monday.

"Well, we'll be back then, and they'd better get in," shouted one of the soldiers.

No One Is Hurt

Military police patrolled the street in jeeps but did not interfere.

No one was injured.

About 40 service men were in the crowd that left downtown Kansas City for the bomber plant "to talk to the pickets." Others joined them on the way and by the time they reached the plant there were an estimated 75 or 80 men in the throng.

At the same time, officials of the plant and leaders of Local No. 31, United Automobile Workers (CIO), unaware of the servicemen's activities, met in Kansas City, Kas., in an effort to settle the dispute which paralized the factory, now the only producer of B25 Mitchell bombers.

Servicemen began congregating at 12th & Baltimore, 10 miles from the Kansas City, Kas., plant in midafternoon stating they were going to march on the factory and remove the picket line which prevented entry of workers earlier today.

Appeal Is Ignored

Maj. J. L. Hodgin, in charge of the local military police detachment, urged the soldiers and sailors to disperse, telling them there were only three pickets on duty inasmuch as the night shifts normally did not work on Saturday.

Approximately 40 of the men ignored his appeal and started for the plant by automobile and street car.

The soldiers and sailors marched through taverns, shows and other pleasure spots near the intersection, center of Kansas City's amusement zone. In each place they stopped men in uniform asking them to join the group. In shows, they interrupted the performances and shouted their invitation to other servicemen to come along.

Major Hodgin and Lieut. (j.g.) D. D. Hughes of the Navy Shore Patrol, talked to the group, at the city's busiest intersection urging them to drop the idea.

"I don't blame you, but I don't think it will do any good," the major said.

"I want to go home. I don't want to be killed on the last day of the war," interrupted an unidentified service man.

"How about us going out and just letting the men in who want to work?" shouted another one.

When it was explained that there were only three pickets and no workers the men wanted to attend the conciliation meeting at the plant.

"I don't think it would be a good idea to go over," he told them. "Army officials are meeting with the labor men and plant officials and hope to open the plant up Monday.

"I'm afraid of what might happen if you go out there."

Immediately after the major ended his talk about 40 of the men left for the plant.

The meeting of the labor leaders and plant officials, convening about that time, was arranged jointly between John W. Livingstone, regional director of the UAW-CIO, and Marshall Beaman, director of industrial relations for North American.

Earlier, the Regional War Labor Board announced it had taken jurisdiction over the work stoppage which began Thursday when about 2,000 employes of the company's modification plant left their jobs after complaining that lessening of activity was causing transfer of some employes to the main plant. The employes said classifications and wage scales were lower at the main plant.

Pickets today stopped workers attempting to enter the central buildings.

Erickson Gets Truman 'Blessing' In Montana

Butte, Mont., Oct. 21 (AP)—Senator Harry S. Truman, stopping over in this copper-mining city on his transcontinental speaking tour for the Roosevelt-Truman Democratic ticket, pitched into Montana's bitter Gubernatorial fight today to lend his support to Leif Erickson, the Democratic nominee.

Erickson, justice of the State Supreme Court who is seeking to unseat Republican Governor Sam C. Ford, drew the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee's indorsement at a rally last night in the Fox Theater in which Truman also:

1. Asserted Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, "had to be smoked out" before the public knew "how he stands on foreign policy" and that "a fellow who has to be smoked out is not to be trusted."

2. Came out in favor of the removal of what the South and West have called discriminatory freight rates by asserting "no one section ought to be favored over any other section on railroad or any other kind of freight rates."

3. Promised that the Roosevelt Administration, if reelected, will extend rural power lines and see that copper miners "have an honest chance to work at good wages."

Saying "there isn't any use to ect a Democratic President unless you elect a Democratic Congress," Truman called for the reelection of Democratic Representatives Mike Mansfield and James F. O'Connor, and declared.

"And you would do well to put your State machinery in the hands of a Democrat like Leif Erickson who will cooperate with the national government."

Truman remained here for conferences with Senator Murray (D., Mont.) and other party leaders.

Sees F. D. R. Reelection

Murray told reporters Mr. Roosevelt "will carry the State easily" and that Mansfield and O'Connor would be reelected.

"The betting is 3 to 1 on Roosevelt here," Murray said.

He said the Governor's race is a tight one, but that "Erickson will win by about 20,000 votes," although the "betting odds favored his opponent yesterday, 6 to 5."

5 Killed, 100 Injured In Navy Ship Explosion

Landing Craft Is Shattered in Harbor at Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21—(AP).—The Navy announced tonight that at least five men were killed and more than 100 were injured, some critically, when a landing vessel was shattered today by an explosion which set afire three similar craft in an adjoining dock.

Two hours after the blast, which occurred Los Angeles Harbor, the fire still was being fought by city ship fluctuates," Murray said.

"The copper companies and the power interests are supporting Ford while the Farmers' Union and labor are backing Erickson."

Truman moves out tonight for stops at Mobridge and Aberdeen, S. D., tomorrow.

AACHEN, GERMANY, OCT.21-(AP)-COL. GERHARDT WILCK, THE GERMAN COMMANDER OF AACHEN, SURRENDERED FORMALLY AND UNCONDITIONALLY TODAY TO A SMALL GROUP OF BEGRIMED AMERICAN SOLDIERS, AND LATER AT A PRISON CAGE HE BROKE DOWN AND SOBBED.

THE RESERVE WHICH HAD BOLSTERED THE SLENDER COMMANDER ALL THROUGH THE HUMILITATION OF CAPITULATION DESERTED HIM ENTIRELY.

"IT WAS EMBARRASSING TO SEE THE GUY," SAID CAPT.ERHARD DABRINGHAUS, ROSEVILLE, MICH. "HE SAID HE KNEW HE WAS GETTING A HOT POTATO WHEN HE TOOK OVER THE DEFENSE OF AACHEN AND THAT HE WANTED TO SURRENDER, BUT HAD NO OTHER CHOICE AS A SOLDIER THAN TO FIGHT."

A SLIGHT, ELDERLY AND STIFF FIGURE, HE CAME OUT OF HIS LAST FORTRESS--A FOUR-STORY COMBINATION AIR RAID SHELTER AND BUNKER WITH EIGHT-FOOT THICK WALLS--AT 11 A.M., UNDER A WHITE FLAG CARRIED BY TWO AMERICAN ENLISTED MEN WHO HAD BEEN AMONG 33 CAPTIVES.

AN HOUR LATER HE WAS TAKEN TO HIGHER HEADQUARTERS, WHERE THE SURRENDER WAS MADE FORMAL.

THE CAPTAIN OF THE AMERICAN COMPANY INVOLVED WAS SETH BOTTS, A NATIVE OF SHARPSBURG, KY., WHOSE RESIDENCE IS HUNTINGTON, W.VA. TOLD THAT HE HAD ACHIEVED A GREAT HONOR BY CAPTURING THE MAN WHO DIRECTED THE ENEMY DEFENSE IN THE SIEGE OF AACHEN, BOTTS REPLIED:

"WE JUST HAPPENED TO BE ON THIS LITTLE PIECE OF GROUND WHERE HE WAS."

THE GERMAN COMMANDER SURRENDERED WITHOUT ASKING OR RECEIVING ANY TERMS. IN HIS HURRY HE EMERGED FROM HIS BUNKER 40 MINUTES AHEAD OF THE DEADLINE SET BY CAPT. BOTTS AND LT.WINFORD CHANCEY OF ALBANY, GA., FOR HIM TO COME OUT OR HAVE HIS SHELTER SMASHED ABOVE HIM.

WHEN WE ENTERED THE BUNKER WE FOUND 250 GERMAN CIVILIANS IN THE TOP FLOOR. ONE OF ITS ROOMS WAS FILLED WITH GERMAN WOUNDED. THE REST OF THE CAPTURED TROOPS WALKED OUT OF AACHEN IN LONG, MELANCHOLY COLUMNS OF FOUR.

BY DARK LAST NIGHT THIS OUTFIT HAD FOUGHT FORWARD TO WITHIN THREE BLOCKS OF THE BUNKER, GOING DOWN INTO SMASHED CELLARS AND BASEMENTS WITH FLASHLIGHTS TO ROOT OUT THE GERMANS. THIS MORNING STREAMS OF FIRE SEALED OFF THE BUNKER'S EXITS AND ENTRANCES.

CAPT.BOTTS TOOK UP A STATION AS A SNIPER BUT HE SAID "I DIDN'T KILL ANYBODY--YOU NEVER DO, YOU KNOW."

THE GERMAN COMMANDER WAS CUT OFF AND DONE FOR, AND AT 10:55 A.M. OUT HE CAME. TWO OF HIS OFFICERS WALKED BEHIND THE TWO ENLISTED MEN THE GERMANS HAD CAPTURED A FEW DAYS AGO.

THE GERMAN OFFICERS SAID MERELY THAT THEY WANTED TO SURRENDER AND LT.CHANCEY RESPONDED "WE'LL GIVE YOU 45 MINUTES TO PICK UP YOUR WOUNDED AND COME OUT." THE GERMANS RETURNED TO THE BUNKER AND IN FIVE MINUTES CAME MARCHING OUT.

GERMAN CIVILIANS STOOD ALONG THE PRISONERS' LINE OF MARCH. SOME WERE EXPRESSIONLESS. OTHERS SMILED AND WAVED. ONE WOMAN RUSHED FROM A DOORWAY WITH A POT OF HOT COFFEE AND POURED CUPS FOR THE GERMAN TROOPS AS THEY WALKED ALONG.

WUESTWEZEL IS ON THE ANTWERP-BREDA HIGHWAY.

THE RATE OF ADVANCE BY THE BRITISH AS WELL AS THE ROUGHLY PARALLEL CANADIAN COLUMNS FARTHER TO THE WEST WAS STEADY RATHER THAN SENSATIONAL. THE CANADIAN SPEARHEADS WERE APPROXIMATELY LEVEL WITH TWO ROADS LEADING NORTH TO ESSCHEN AND ROSENDAAL.

ON THE LEFT FLANK A STRONG FORCE HAD PUSHED BEYOND CALMPTHOUT THOUGH THERE STILL WERE SNIPERS AND MACHINEGUN POSTS BEING MOPPED UP IN THE VILLAGE. TO THE RIGHT A COMBAT GROUP HAD PROGRESSED SOME FOUR MILES NORTH OF MARIA-TER-HEIDE.

WITH THE U.S.NINTH AIR FORCE IN LUXEMBOURG, OCT 21-(AP)-LT.GEN.GEORGE S. PATTON, JR., PERSONALLY REQUESTED THE AIR ATTACK ON THE DIEUZE DAM, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY AS THE WATER CONTINUED TO POUR ACROSS GERMAN POSITIONS IN THE MOSELLE RIVER VALLEY MORE THAN 24 HOURS AFTER AMERICAN THUNDERBOLT PLANES HAD BLASTED A 15-FOOT HOLE IN THE 60-FOOT-THICK WALL.

THREE SQUADRONS OF FIGHTER-BOMBERS COMMANDED BY LT.COL.JOSEPH L. LAUGHLIN OF OMAHA, NEB., ATTACKED THE DAM ACROSS THE SEILLE RIVER YESTERDAY, LOOSING TONS OF WATER FROM THE LINDER WEITHER, A 1,600-ACRE LAKE, FLOODING THE NEARBY TOWN OF DIEUZE, 25 MILES EAST OF NANCY, AND ALL RAIL INSTALLATIONS IN THE AREA.

THE HUGE DAM WAS BUILT MORE THAN 100 YEARS AGO, BUT RECENTLY IT WAS REINFORCED BY THE GERMANS.

THE THUNDERBOLTS, MAKING THEIR FIRST APPEARANCE IN DAM-BUSTING OPERATIONS IN THIS THEATER, DIVED THROUGH HEAVY ANTI-AIRCRAFT BARRAGES, BUT NONE WAS SHOT DOWN. THE TASK ORIGINALLY HAD BEEN PLANNED FOR HEAVY BOMBERS, BUT WAS ASSIGNED TO FIGHTER-BOMBERS BECAUSE OF THE PRECISION NATURE OF THE JOB.

RECONNAISSANCE PILOTS SAID THAT TWO HOURS AFTER THE ATTACK THE WATER HAD SPREAD EIGHT MILES WEST OF DIEUZE. THE MOSELLE WAS RISING TODAY.

"THE SKY WAS THICK WITH FLAK BURSTS AND TRACERS, BUT THE BOYS FLEW RIGHT THROUGH IT," SAID LT.FRED TREMBER OF 10535 89TH STREET, OZONE PARK, N.Y., A RECONNAISSANCE PILOT WHO PHOTOGRAPHED THE ACTION.

"THE BOMBS MADE A TREMENDOUS FLASH WHEN THEY HIT AND I SAW CHUNKS OF CONCRETE FLYING AROUND."

LAUGHLIN REPORTED, "WHEN WE GOT OVER THE DAM THE FLAK WAS A LOT HEAVIER THAN WE HAD EXPECTED. I DIVED FROM 7,000 FEET AT 450 MILES PER HOUR AND RELEASED MY BOMBS AT 100 FEET. WHEN I LOOKED BACK AFTER

PULLING UP, I SAW THEM EXPLODE ON THE WEST SIDE OF THE DAM NEAR THE SLUICE."

LT.DONALD STODDARD OF 247 EIGHTH STREET, TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, SAID HE SAW BOMBS SMACK DIRECTLY INTO THE DAM SLUICE. "THE MUDDY WATER STARTED POURING OUT OFITHE LAKE," HE SAID. "IT LOOKED LIKE LAVA FLOWING OUT OF A VOLCANO."

PILOTED BY RHODES, WHOSE HOME IS AT 919 ROSSELLE ST., JACKSONVILLE.

FLA., THE "FLYING BOX CAR" WAS IN REGULAR FORMATION ON A MISSION OVER HUNGARY WHEN IT HIT THE PROP WASH OF THE BOMBER AHEAD. FIRST IT LOST SPEED. THEN, WHEN RHODES DIVED FOR MOMENTUM, THE PLANE BEGAN TO DIP CRAZILY FROM SIDE TO SIDE. FIRST THE RIGHT WING, THEN THE LEFT SLANTED AS RHODES PUT FULL PRESSURE ON THE AILERONS. THEN SUDDENLY, THE BIG BOMBER FLIPPED OVER ON ITS BACK AND SAILED UPSIDE DOWN AS IT NEARED THE TARGET.

OCT 22 1944

RHODES AGAIN GAVE THE AILERONS PRESSURE, AND FINALLY SUCCEEDED IN GETTING RIGHT SIDE UP AFTER LOSING 4,000 FEET ALTITUDE. BUT AS HE RADED AHEAD TO REJOIN THE FORMATION, THE CREW NOTIFIED HIM THAT FOUR BOMBS, ARMED AND READY TO EXPLODE, HAD JARRED LOOSE IN THE FLIP-FLOP. IT WAS LIKE BEING NOTIFIED THAT SOMEBODY HAS JUST DROPPED A LIGHTED TORCH IN THE GAS TANK -- ONLY MORE SO.

TWO OF THE FOUR 500-POUNDERS CRASHED THROUGH THE BOMB BAY DOORS. THE OTHER TWO RATTLED AROUND, THREATENING TO MAKE LITTLE ONES OUT OF BIG ONES OF THE WHOLE PLANE AT ANY SECOND. FINALLY, CPL. ROBERT W. TRUSSELL, 21, OF 1446 ALBANY AVE., ST. PAUL, MINN., CRAWLED INTO THE BOMB BAY AND AFTER SEVERAL MINUTES OF TICKLISH STRUGGLE SUCCEEDED IN KICKING THE TWO 500-POUNDERS OUT OF THE PLANE.

CHUNGKING, OCT.21-(AP)-THE BLOCKADE OF THE BURMA ROAD MUST BE BROKEN IN ORDER TO DEFEAT JAPAN'S LARGE, SELF-SUFFICIENT ARMIES IN CHINA, "WHICH ARE NOT LIKELY TO SURRENDER EVEN IF THE JAPANESE ISLANDS ARE TAKEN," THE AMERICAN REVIEW SAID TODAY.

THE REVIEW DISCLOSED THAT APPROXIMATELY 24,000 SQUARE MILES OF CHINESE TERRITORY HAVE BEEN REGAINED IN THE YUNNAN PROVINCE OFFENSIVE SINCE CHINESE FORCES, TRAINED, EQUIPPED AND ADVISED BY THE Y-FORCE OPERATIONS STAFF UNDER BRIG.GEN.FRANK HORN OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., CROSSED THE SALWEEN RIVER MAY 11.

REITERATING THAT THE PURPOSE OF THE DRIVE IS TO REOPEN THE BURMA ROAD BY JOINING THE NORTHERN PART OF THE ORIGINAL ROAD WITH THE LEDO ROAD NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION IN NORTH BURMA, THE REVIEW SAID THAT ESTABLISHMENT OF A STRONG SUPPLY BASE IN CHINA OVER THE LEDO-BURMA ROAD "IS REGARDED AS ESSENTIAL TO DEFEAT THE STRONG JAPANESE FORCES IN CHINA."

THE SALWEEN FRONT IS AT THE END OF THE WORLD'S LONGEST AND MOST DIFFICULT SUPPLY LINE. AREAS IN THE VICINITY OF LARGE TOWNS ARE STUDDED WITH MOUNTAINS, HILLS AND KNOLLS, EACH FORMING A SEPARATE DEFENSE POINT.

YET MORE THAN 400 POPULATED PLACES UNDER JAPANESE DOMINATION FOR TWO YEARS HAVE BEEN LIBERATED AND THE BURMA ROAD HAS BEEN OPENED AS FAR AS THE OLD CITY OF LUNGLING, NOW UNDER CHINESE SIEGE.

THE ANCIENT WALLED CITY OF TENGCHUNG, THE PRINCIPAL JAPANESE BASE ON THE SALWEEN FRONT FOR TWO YEARS, FELL SEPT.14 AFTER ITS DEFENDERS WERE VIRTUALLY EXTERMINATED IN A SUICIDAL RESISTANCE THAT LASTED 51 DAYS. OCT 22 1944

THE REVIEW DESCRIBED THE Y-FORCE (Y FOR YUNNAN PROVINCE) AS THE LARGEST MILITARY MISSION IN THE WORLD AND SAID THE TRAINING AND EQUIPPING OF CHINESE ARMIES WAS CONTINUING.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS,LEYTE,PHILIPPINES,SUNDAY, OCT.22-(VIA ARMY RADIO)-(AP)-THE RESCUE OF 83 AMERICAN OFFICERS AND MEN WHO HAD BEEN JAPANESE PRISONERS OF WAR IN THE PHILIPPINES FOR TWO AND A HALF YEARS WAS REVEALED TODAY.

THE MEN ESCAPED FROM AN AMERICAN-TORPEDOED JAPANESE TRANSPORT, EVADED THEIR CAPTORS' GUNS WHICH WERE TURNED ON THE TRAPPED PRISONERS AND WERE HIDDEN BY FILIPINO GUERRILLAS UNTIL REMOVED FROM THE ISLANDS SEVERAL WEEKS AGO.

AN ARMY PRESS RELEASE SAID TWO VOLUNTARILY REMAINED BEHIND WITH THE GUERRILLAS AND THE REMAINDER ARE SAFE IN NEW GUINEA HOSPITALS. THOSE STILL IN THE ISLANDS ARE LT.RICHARD L.COOK OF LOS ANGELES AND STAFF SGT.JOSEPH COLE, PLATEAU, ALA.

"ALL OF THE MEN ARE IN GOOD CONDITION, EXCEPT FIVE RECOVERING FROM BULLET AND GRENADE WOUNDS," THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID. "NONE IS LISTED AS SERIOUS."

THE AMERICANS HAD BEEN HELD IN THE DAVAO, MINDANAO, PENAL COLONY SINCE THE FALL OF BATAAN AND CORREGIDOR. THEY WERE FORCED TO LABOR ON AN AIRFIELD, AGAINST THEIR PROTESTS AND WITH INSUFFICIENT FOOD AND CLOTHING.

WHEN AMERICAN PLANES STARTED ASSAULTS ON THE SOUTHERN PHILIPPINES, THE JAPANESE BEGAN MOVING THEIR PRISONERS TO OTHER CAMPS, EVIDENTLY ANTICIPATING INVASION.

THE SURVIVORS WERE TIGHTLY PACKED IN THE HOLD OF ONE SHIP IN SUCH A CONVOY WHEN IT WAS ATTACKED BY AN AMERICAN SUBMARINE. THEIR TRANSPORT AND AT LEAST TWO OTHER ENEMY SHIPS WERE SUNK.

"THE JAPANESE GUARDS DELIBERATELY FIRED ON THE AMERICANS TRAPPED IN THE HOLDS AND SEEKING TO ESCAPE FROM THE SINKING SHIP," THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID.

"OTHERS WERE HUNTED DOWN AND KILLED IN THE WATER AS THEY SOUGHT TO SWIM FOR SHORE, TWO MILES DISTANT. SOME WERE PICKED UP BY ENEMY PATROL BOATS AND AT LEAST 30 WERE LATER BRUTALLY EXECUTED.

"AFTER ESCAPING DEATH FROM SUCH SAVAGERY AND HOURS OF HARD-SHIP, 83 OF THE AMERICAN OFFICERS AND MEN MADE SHORE AND WERE CARED FOR BY FILIPINO GUERRILLAS UNTIL PICKED UP AND TAKEN SOUTH BY SUBMARINES AND PLANES."

ONE OTHER MAN, WHOSE NAME WAS NOT GIVEN, ESCAPED FROM THE GUNFIRE BUT DIED LATER AND WAS BURIED IN THE CEMETERY OF A SOUTHERN PHILIPPINE VILLAGE.

ALL THE SURVIVORS TOLD VIRTUALLY THE SAME STORY OF THEIR ORDEAL. LT. JOHN J.MORRIS OF SPRINGFIELD, O., ACTED AS THEIR SPOKESMAN.

HE SAID THE MEN TAKEN FROM MINDANAO WERE MARCHED TO A VESSEL IN DAVAO BAY AUGUST 20. THEY WERE HEMMED IN BY ROPES, TIED TO THE OUTSIDE MEN IN THE GROUP, AND GUARDED BY ENEMY SOLDIERS WITH MACHINE GUNS AND AUTOMATIC RIFLES.

THEY WERE PACKED SO TIGHTLY IN SHIPS' HOLDS THAT THEY COULD HARDLY SIT DOWN.

"THE HEAT WAS TERRIFIC," SAID MORRIS, "AND THE JAPANESE HAD FASTENED THE HATCHES OVER THE HOLD SO THAT THERE WAS PRACTICALLY NO VENTILATION.

THEY TRAVELLED FOR 18 DAYS IN THIS CLOSE CONFINEMENT, WITH INSUFFICIENT FOOD AND LESS THAN A CUP OF WATER DAILY. ALL BUT THE STRONGEST WERE EXHAUSTED.

TWO BOMBING ATTACKS, WHICH THE MEN HEARD FROM THEIR STIFLING QUARTERS BELOW DECKS, AND A LONG WAIT IN A SOUTHERN PHILIPPINE HARBOR PRECEDED THE SUBMARINE RAID WHICH SANK THE SHIPS.

WHILE WORKING ON THE MINDANAO AIRFIELD, THE MEN WERE HOUSED IN FOUR SMALL BARRACKS. THEY RECEIVED 500 GRAMS OF RICE PER MAN DAILY AT FIRST, BUT THIS WAS REDUCED TO 300 GRAMS, PLUS A FEW VEGETABLES. LIMITED AMOUNTS OF SALT WERE PROVIDED, DESPITE THEIR WORK IN THE GRUELLING SUN, AND ON MANY DAYS THEY RECEIVED NO SALT.

GUARDS OFTEN BEAT THE LABORERS WITH CLUBS TO FORCE MORE WORK. LATER, ALLEGING AN ESCAPE ATTEMPT HAD BEEN FRUSTRATED, THE JAPANESE CONFISCATED THE PRISONERS' SHOES, INCLUDING THOSE DOING PICK AND SHOVEL WORK ON TERRAIN WHICH REPEATEDLY LACERATED THEIR FEET.

Americans Expand All Positions on Leyte; Whole Western Front Flames as Allies Attack

OCT 23 1944

YANKS EXPAND POSITIONS ON LEYTE ISLAND

Work Begun On Bases For All Arms For Future Operations

Schatter

MacArthur Headquarters, Leyte, Monday, Oct. 23 (AP—By Army Radio)—Steady expansion of American ground force positions on all Leyte Island fronts today paralleled the beginning of work on what a communique called a "great base for all arms for future operations."

Simultaneously, Gen. Douglas MacArthur in a proclamation to the Filipino people declared the Americans had come "as a prelude to the liberation of the entire territory of the Philippines."

Seat Of Government Se Up

He declared the seat of the island's Government had been reestablished under President Sergio Osmena, of the Commonwealth Government, who landed with the troops.

Enemy forces on Leyte apparently are withdrawing westward after their "preliminary defeat," the communique reported.

aid work had begun to pre- the captured airfields near acloban and Dulag for American use, as other preparations commenced to make Leyte a great offensive base for future campaigns.

Voids Laurel's Regulations

MacArthur's proclamation declared the laws and regulations of puppet President Jose P. Laurel's "republic" government are "null and void" in areas "free of enemy occupation and control."

The authority of the Commonwealth Government will be extended by "constitutional process" to liberated areas as soon as they are freed and the "military situation will otherwise permit," the proclamation said.

The Commonwealth Government is "subject to the supreme authority of the Government of the United States."

The headquarters communique reported the Japanese supply problem already had become difficult and might become worse.

Jap Raids "Ineffective"

The Japanese attempted "minor and ineffective" air raids on American shipping off Leyte, the announcement said. Allied bombers, however, were extremely active in bombing flank bases in the Philippines and other Southwest Pacific areas.

Heavy bombers unloaded 94 tons of explosives on Mindanao, smashing buildings and other installations. Among the targets was Cagayan, principal communications center in the northern part of the island, which was attacked without enemy opposition.

Medium bombers and fighters also attacked Mindanao, the latter strafing 23 trucks on Sayre Highway. They also damaged two small vessels off Sarangani Island. Medium bombers hitting the Visayan Islands, in the central Philippines, sank three small freighters and probably sank four more.

Night reconnaissance planes continued to harass the vital oil center of Balikpapan, Borneo, among other widespread attacks reported in the communique.

These gains were announced yesterday.

On the southern front the Yanks beat off two strong Japanese counterattacks and seized Dulag town, an important road junction, and its nearby airdrome. They pressed inland toward San Pablo, seven miles west of Dulag.

Yanks Take Tacloban

On the northern front the Americans took Tacloban, the island's capital, and its airfield. In this push they overran the towns of Palo and San Ricardo, on the flanks of the beachhead they established Oct. 18-19.

In his communique Sunday Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in command of the liberation forces, said his troops advanced "in all sectors an average depth of four miles." He added "strong enemy defenses, carefully prepared with concrete pillboxes and supporting artillery positions, were skillfully enveloped by infiltration and the enemy was forced to withdraw. Direct assault was thereby avoided and our casualties consequently remain light."

The General asserted the Japanese were "already showing signs of lack of maneuverable cohesion in the face of the skillful tactics of our local commanders."

Enemy air interference with the troops ashore and the 600 ship convoy armada offshore was confined to small dawn and dusk raids. One American vessel was damaged and there were casualties aboard. Ship anti-aircraft gunners blasted three Japanese bombers out of the air.

OCT 23 1944

Capture of Tacloban city and its airdrome gave the Yanks control of the southern end of strategic San Juanico strait. It leads northwestward to the Samar sea and to the very heart of the central Philippines.

Fire Power Blasts Foe

WITH 6TH ARMY BEACHHEAD ON LEYTE, Philippines, Oct. 23 (Monday) (AP).—With both ends of the eighteen-mile Leyte beachhead at Tacloban and Dulag firmly in American hands, Lieutenant General Walter Krueger's 6th Army's superior fire power is now coming into play against the Japanese's delaying action on this island.

McDaniel

The ground forces are still calling upon Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's 7th Fleet for close inshore bombardment support against enemy resistance pockets in the low hills near the center of the American front.

Soon after the mist and smoke blanket which enveloped the harbor last night lifted this morning, the six-inch guns of a cruiser began rapid firing, battering positions along the road leading into Leyte Valley.

Unloading of equipment continued uninterrupted. Barges, emptying their cargoes, were bright with lights as the supplies moved to the beach and up the highway toward Tacloban airfield.

Government Re-Established

TACLOBAN, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 23 (Monday) (AP).—Against a background of anti-aircraft fire, General Douglas MacArthur today announced establishment of the temporary seat of the Philippine commonwealth government in this recaptured island capital.

With President Sergio Osmena standing beside him, General MacArthur opened a dramatic ceremony with a brief radio address to the Filipino people re-establishing on Philippine soil a government based on the sacred right of self-rule."

OCT 23 1944

His audience included hundreds of American Army officers and men and naval officers, and townspeople of the liberated city who cheered lustily at the end of the general's address.

Proclamation Is Read

His chief of staff, Lieutenant General Richard K. Sutherland, then read a proclamation the commander in chief previously had issued, announcing re-establishment of the commonwealth government in freed territory and nullifying the authority of the Japanese-supported Philippine "Republic."

President Osmena then addressed his countrymen who have been under Japanese rule since early 1942.

[The ceremony was broadcast to the United States by the Army Signal Corps.]

When General MacArthur was introduced the towns people broke into shouts of "Viva! Viva!" and applauded loudly.

"A great nation," said the general, "has been reborn in arms. . . . A great nation, consecrated in the blood of its citizens and dedicated to human liberty." . . .

The general said he was re-establishing the Commonwealth government "on behalf of my government," and promised them the restoration of rights denied them during their subjugation.

"With your children's laughter again to brighten your days," he added.

MacArthur's Proclamation

GENERAL MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippine Islands, Oct. 23 (Monday) (AP).—The text of the proclamation issued today by General Douglas MacArthur follows:

To the people of the Philippines—whereas the military forces under my command have landed on Philippine soil as a prelude to the liberation of the entire territory of the Philippines, and whereas the seat of the government of the Commonwealth of the Philippines has been re-established in the Philippines under President Sergio Osmena and the members of his Cabinet, and whereas under enemy duress a so-called government styled as the Republic of the Philippines was established on Oct. 14, 1943, based upon neither the free expression of the peoples' will nor the sanction of the Government of the United States and is purporting to exercise executive, judicial and legislative powers of government over the people;

Now therefore, I Douglas MacArthur, General of the United States Army and Commander in Chief of the military forces committed to the liberation of the Philippines, do hereby proclaim and declare:

1. That the Government of the Commonwealth of the Philippines is, subject to the supreme authority of the Government of the United States, the sole and only government having legal and valid jurisdiction over people in areas of the Philippines free of enemy occupation and control.

2. That the laws now existing on the statute books of the Commonwealth of the Philippines and the regulations promulgated pursuant thereto are in full force and effect, and legally binding upon the peoples of the areas of the Philippines free of enemy occupation and control.

3. All laws, regulations and processes of any other government in the Philippines than that of the Commonwealth are null and void, and without legal effect in areas of the Philippines free of enemy occupation and control, and I do hereby announce my purpose progressively to restore and extend to the people of the Philippines the sacred right of government by constitutional process under the regularly constituted Commonwealth government as rapidly as the several occupied areas are liberated, and the military situation will otherwise permit, and I do enjoin upon all loyal citizens of the Philippines full respect for and obedience to the Commonwealth of the Philippines and the laws and regulations and other acts of the duly constituted government whose seat now firmly is re-established on Philippine soil.

DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR,
General, United States Army,
Commander in Chief.

600 SHIPS USED IN LEYTE LANDING

ABOARD ADMIRAL KINKAID'S FLAGSHIP, Leyte Gulf, Oct. 20—(AP)—(Delayed)—Nearly 600 invasion craft, forming the greatest convoy ever assembled in the Pacific, threaded their way through the heavily mined entrance to Leyte Gulf and landed 6th Army troops along a 40 mile beach against relatively little enemy resistance.

The landings, which launched the U. S. drive to re-take the Philippines, were preceded by furious air strikes from two of Admiral Halsey's fast carrier groups and by accurate bombardment from battleships, cruisers, and destroyers.

So effective was the preparatory bombardment, troops on north and south beaches moved inland standing up. They drew no immediate fire except on the beach closest to Tacloban where there was small caliber rifle fire.

The commanding general of the 6th Army, Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger, is confident the campaign is off to a successful start.

"Thanks to the Almighty," he said, "the splendid work of our Navy, its air arm and the courage and gallantry of our 6th Army troops, all landings on Leyte have been successful. I am confident of the success of this operation."

Vice Adm. Thomas Cassin Kinkaid, commanding the central Philippines attack force, was pleased that the Japanese airforce made only feeble attempts to interrupt the operations.

"Halsey's strikes to the north," he said, "which wiped out so many planes was extremely important indirect support with a direct effect on the success of this operation. Those enemy planes undoubtedly would have been used against us this morning if they had not been knocked out."

FILIPINOS HAIL YANKS' RETURN

Parade Is Added To Personal Expressions Of Joy

William J. Dunn, CBS radio correspondent, broadcast this account of the welcome Filipinos are giving American forces on Leyte Island.

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippine Islands, Oct. 22—Never in my wildest dreams did I expect to witness scenes such as those which greeted American troops returning to the Philippines.

Little children, hardly 3 years old, certainly not old enough to have a memory of any days before the Japanese occupation, shouted and danced in the streets of Tacloban. They waved two fingers in the famous "V" sign and shouted in piping voices: "Vic-tor-ee, Victor-ee."

The first Americans to enter the city were greeted with mingled laughs and cheers. What cheers. They were almost inarticulate because of the emotion behind them.

Wave From Every Window

Filipino women, dressed in their colorful costumes which are a vivid combination of the Orient and Occident, waved from every window and every doorway. Old men threw smiling salutes at everyone in uniform.

Most of the Americans have never heard the Filipino greeting "May boo hy" before, but they caught on fast. And before long Yanks and Filipinos were exchanging loud "Mah boo hy's" at every meeting.

Homes were thrown open and the people, shyly for the most part but heartily, offered their limited hospitality.

"It Is We Who Are Glad"

Some of the incidents were almost embarrassing.

"As I walked along one of the lone streets in just about the dirtiest uniform in existence, an old man grabbed my hand, shook it enthusiastically, and to my complete amazement said, "Thank you," and walked away.

I entered one home and met a clean-cut youngster who had been a student at Santo Tomas University in Manila before the Japs came. I told him how glad I was to be back in the islands.

"No, sir," he said, "it is we who are glad. It is impossible for you to understand. And I cannot tell you how we feel."

Filipinos' Parade Jubilant

During the afternoon several hundred Filipinos staged a parade in the business section of the city. It was a brilliant affair marked by much flag-waving and jubilant shouting. The celebration was completely spontaneous in marked contrast to a "celebration" which the Japs had staged only a few days ago.

It seems that several days before we landed the people of Tacloban got word that the Americans were on their way back. The effect on the people was so immediate that the Japs sensed what was up.

Japs Celebrate "Victory"

The Jap commander made a formal announcement saying an American invasion was impossible, that a whole convoy of American ships had been destroyed off Formosa, that 800 planes, seven carriers and 13,000 marines had been destroyed.

Then to celebrate the great Jap "victory" the commander ordered a full-dress parade to be followed by a grand ball to last for three nights.

The entire Jap garrison turned out for the parade with trappings polished and brass gleaming. Only a handful of civilians fell in behind them. The rest of Tacloban stayed behind closed doors.

U. S. Navy Provides Music

On the first night of the grand ball the United States Navy provided music through its softening-up routine along the neighboring beaches.

Our first landings were made on the three islands at the mouth of Leyte Gulf and the worst typhoon in 10 to 20 years swept the city.

Between the shelling and the wrath of the elements the Japs lost all interest in their majestic festivities. By the fourth night they were rapidly losing all interest in Tacloban.

U. S. Troops Liberate Palo, Philippine Town

By MURLIN SPENCER

Palo, Leyte Island, P. I., Oct. 22 (AP)—The little Philippine town of Palo today cast off its forced affiliation with the Japanese Greater East Asia Coprosperity Sphere, and "we thank God for that," Bishop Manuel Mascarinas told liberating troops.

American soldiers freed the town of 3,000 yesterday and then fought off Japanese counterattacks during the night.

What is it like to live under the Japanese?

Bishop Mascarinas answers:

"At first they tried treating us as friends but they don't know what friendship means. Then they began suspecting us as being guerrillas and only a few days ago they took one of us out on the bridge and killed him."

The bishop welcomed me as the first American correspondent to reach the town. It has been little damaged.

The Japanese dead lined the macadam road leading into it. As I arrived soldiers were tossing Japanese bodies in the swift flowing river. The townspeople were huddled together in a conference.

"Ever since the Japanese had forced this American family out of its home in 1942 and they had lived with Filipino guerrillas—always scared—always on the move—never any time to catch their breath—never any feeling of security.

"But there came a time when the wife became sick and couldn't be moved. The Japs were reporting moving in on the guerrilla barrio (village).

Urged To Flee With Them

"The guerrillas pleaded with the American to save himself and his child and to flee with them. But he refused without a moment of indecision.

"We never heard from him again. But we learned this is what happened: When the Japanese approached the American calmly shot his wife. Then he shot the child. He then took cover and opened fire on the Japs. He killed many before they finally got him."

Tinnell said he told me the story because it typified in a small way the courage of thousands of Americans who escaped from the Japanese in 1942 and have been hiding with and fighting by the side of the guerrillas.

Osmena Tells Roosevelt Filipinos Kept the Faith

Says They Have Shown Trust in America Never Weakened

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Philippine people, by their ceaseless resistance to the Japanese, have shown that their trust in the United States never weakened, President Sergio Osmena today told President Roosevelt in a message from Leyte.

Replying to a message Mr. Roosevelt addressed to Osmena at the time he landed in the Philippines with General Douglas MacArthur, Osmena said:

"By means of leaflets and radio, I immediately broadcast your message to the Philippine people, who, by their ceaseless resistance to the Japanese, during the darkest days following the fall of Bataan, have shown that their trust in the United States never weakened. This message of yours, Mr. President, will increase their gratitude to the people of America and will give their morale additional bolstering.

"The Philippine people will take up again their onward march toward independence under your guidance and with your inspiration. The name of America will be blessed by a grateful people for the advent of a new age of freedom and security which has begun for the races of the Pacific area. The forces of tyranny and barbarism in the Far East have been broken along with their evil plans for slavery, exploitation and domination as a result of the assertion of power of the United States as witnessed in your solemn reaffirmation of the American principles of equality, freedom and justice and in this first blow against the enemy."

American On Mindanao Shot Wife And Child To Foil Japs

By RICHARD BERGHOLZ

With American Rangers in the Philippines, Oct. 17 (AP—Delayed)—A tragedy of the Pacific war in which an American civilian guerrilla fighter killed his sick wife and child to keep them out of the hands of the Japanese and who was slain himself after he had shot many of the enemy was disclosed to me today by Ranger Lieutenant Leon Tinnell.

I met the lieutenant when I landed with the Rangers who went ashore on Dinagat and other islands in Leyte gulf several days before Yank assault waves hit Leyte beaches.

"Most Unforgettable Man"

The lieutenant told me "the most unforgettable man I knew who was fighting with brilliance in Mindanao was an American—a civilian who had taken to the hills with his wife and baby.

Japanese Told They Face Attempt to Destroy Them

'Crush Anglo-America' Rally Hears of U. S. 'Boasting'

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22 (AP).—The Japanese people were told today by Seizo Kobayashi, president of the Imperial Rule Assistance Political Society, that "the enemy, with great military strength and numerical superiority, is attempting to destroy us."

The Tokyo radio, in a domestic broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said Kobayashi addressed a "Crush Anglo-America" rally at Fukuoka, on Kyushu Island, which American Superfortresses have bombed several times.

Repeating Japanese propaganda accounts of a Japanese victory off Formosa, Kobayashi warned that despite "tremendous blows" against American forces the United States was "further boasting of the greatness of its power."

A Domei news agency broadcast beamed overseas said Taketora Ogata, president of the Board of Information and vice-president of the Imperial Rule Assistance Association, Japan's totalitarian party, outlined a country-wide campaign by the "Crush Anglo-America" movement. He said its theme would be "promotion of group spirit."

THIRD ARMY PUSHES WAY UP TO SAAR

Canadian-British Forces Squeeze Germans In West Holland

London, Monday, Oct. 23 (AP)—The whole waterlogged Western Front from Holland to the Belfort Gap burst back to life yesterday as the British and Canadians launched a cleanup squeeze on the western Dutch flatlands and the American Third Army made a new thrust eastward to the Saar.

The Germans, surprised, reeled back before the attacks.

Their robot bomb was seen for the first time in the front line battle zone. They were noted "in some numbers" over the United States First Army front, which includes the Aachen area. At what they were aimed was not clear and where they fell was not disclosed.

British Strike At Dawn

The new Allied offensives threatened German hopes of maintaining their block on Antwerp and holding the Americans from the Rhine.

Striking at dawn yesterday in a surprise offensive, the British Second Army drove within less than four miles of the Germans' Dutch bastion of Hertogenbosch and put a giant squeeze on southwestern Holland in concert with a Canadian drive from the north.

The Canadians, meanwhile, seized Esschen, 16 miles above Antwerp, and also captured the stronghold of Breskens south of the Schelde.

Dam Break Aids U. S. Advance

The United States Third Army at the same time broke forward in a push east of Nancy, in France, advancing two miles in the sector below enemy defenses inundated by the bursting of a dam by air assault.

The British offensive sliced two and a half miles toward 'sHerto-fought back with anti-tank bazookas and rapid-fire weapons.

Meanwhile at the northern tip of the Dutch corridor, the Germans abadoned the villages of Opheusden and Doodewaard, between the Waal and Dutch Rhine, nine to ten miles northwest of Nijmegen. British forces entered the heavily mined towns. The reasons for German withdrawal were not clear immediately.

Two Canadian battle groups of armor and infantry deepened the wedge north of Antwerp, and were pushing the Germans back toward their strong points of Bergen Op Zoom, Roosendaal, Breda, and Tilburg. The Germans are believed to have concentrated in this sector large portions of their 100,000 to 150,000 troops estimated to be holding in western Holland.

Gain Ten Miles In Two Days

The Canadians had gained ten miles in two days, taking 500 prisoners, and the Germans were stung into counterattacks, but they still had not made a firm stand.

In France, supreme headquarters reported increased activity east of Epinal—about 40 miles below Nancy—near Brouvelieures and Bruyeres in the offensive toward the Vosges passes into Germany. Brouvelieres itself was reported taken from the Germans.

The German high command said some Nazi advanced units were pressed back in this general sector before the Vosges.

At Aachen, the American First Army had pushed a mile east toward Duren, and four miles to the northeast of the conquered city. One United States division was inching through the streets of Wurselen.

This division was meeting the heaviest artillery and mortar fire it had yet encountered. The Germans fought back with a tank-led counterblow yesterday and a bomber attack, and were defending each house in the town situated on high, commanding ground.

Ten-Mile Strip Flooded

Wrecking of that barrier, personally ordered by Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, flooded an area ten miles long and up to a mile wide, inundating or isolating four towns along a line nine miles southwest of Dieuze. Some of the sternest German resistance has been offered in this area.

The British lashed out on the long-dormant western flank of their deep Nijmegen salient into Holland and caught the enemy by surprise. The attacks struck in from the northeast and southeast of 'sHertogenbosch, a highway hub, and famed in history under the name of Bar Le Duc as the scene of epic sieges in struggles for the Low Countries centuries ago.

By noon the advance had carried well over 2,000 yards—with British flail tanks beating up thickly-planted minefields, especially along the eight-foot-high dike roads crossing the boggy terrain. Other tanks smashed up Nazi resistance nests. The Germans fought back with anti-tank bazookas and rapid-fire weapons.

Two Towns Abandoned

Meanwhile at the northern tip of the Dutch corridor, the Germans abandoned the villages of Opheusden and Doodewaard, betwen the Waal and Dutch Rhine, nine to 10 miles northwest of Nijmegen. British forces entered the heavily-mined towns. The reasons for German withdrawal were not clear immediately.

The new British drive menaced the already-wavering German grasp on the Dutch coastal region.

Two Canadian battle groups of armor and infantry deepened the wedge north of Antwerp, and were pushing the Germans back toward their strongpoints of Bergen Op Zoom, Rosendaal, Breda, and Tilburg. The Germans are believed to have concentrated in this sector large portions of their 100,000 to 150,000 troops estimated to be holding in western Holland.

Canadians Take Esschen

Forty miles to the west, the Canadian army took Esschen, five miles below Roosendaal on the Antwerp road, after a night attack. This victory, capping an 11-mile advance, bolstered the Allied grip on the narrow causeway to the west leading to Schelde estuary islands, where German guns deny Allied ships the sea lane to Antwerp.

BERLIN CITES RED DRIVE IN EAST PRUSSIA

Fall Of 12-Way Junction On Escape Route In Hungary Reported

London, Monday, Oct. 23 (AP)—Russian troops hurled the enemy across the Norwegian frontier on a 40-mile front yesterday, capturing nickel mines and driving to within 17 miles of the Nazi naval base at Kirkenes.

Berlin meanwhile announced that other Soviet forces were now 21 miles inside German East Prussia and shelling the strategic rail city of Tilsit.

Cut East Prussia Highway

Red army units attacking East Prussia from the north reached the Niemen river opposite Tilsit in a 15-mile advance, and farther south other troops in a 21-mile pentration from the east overran the Rominter forest, cut the Gumbinnen-Goldap highway, and began assaulting Gumbinnen and Goldap, Berlin said.

As the East Prussian offensive entered its seventh day, Moscow still had not mentioned the battle.

The Russians, however, reported that their troops had advanced 12 miles closer to Budapest in Hungary, had captured the big eastern Hungarian junction city of Nyiregyhaza and other points near the southern Czechoslovakian border; had toppled the north Yugoslavia communications town of Sombor, and forced the Sava river beyond Belgrade.

Supported By Arctic Fleet

In northern Finland the Soviet Karelian army under Gen K. A. Meretskov, supported by the Red Arctic fleet, reached the Norwegian frontier on a front extending from Vuoremi on the Barents Sea inland to Lake Kuotsjarvis. Nickel mines in the Petsamo area which where ceded to Russia by defeated Finland were torn from the enemy.

At Vuoremi the Russians were 20 miles east of Kirkenes, the Nazi naval base from which German planes and ships have preyed on Allied lend-lease shipments moving through the Arctic to Murmansk. At Kuotsjarvis Lake, where the Arctic highway leads into German-held Norway, the Russians were only 17 miles south of Kirkenes.

Norwegian underground reports to London said a Russia ninvasion of Norway, held by the Germans since the spring o f1940, was imminent.

German Losses Called Heavy

A midnight Soviet bulletin said that Meretskov's troops, moving across terrain often without roads, had inflicted heavy losses on the Germans retreating into Norway. The enemy, raked by Soviet artillery and Red bombers, abandoned much equipment.

Torpedo boats of the Red fleet also sank two German transports and three auxiliary vessels in Varanger fjord, the late bulletin said.

Premier Stalin announced the fall of Nyiregyhaza in eastern Hungary. It is a 12-way road and rail junction and its capture and that of other near-by localities but another Axis communication line into northern Transylvania and eastern Czechoslovakia.

16 Miles From Czech Border

Pushing 13 miles northeast of Nyiregyaza the Russians captured Demecser, only 16 miles from the southern Czechoslovakian border and 40 miles from Uzhordo, Hungarian-annexed Czechoslovakian town through which passes the last Nazi escape route.

At Demescer the Russians were within 72 miles of a junction with Col. Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukraine Army pushing down through Czechoslovakia from the north.

Satu-Mare, last big Transylvanian town still held by the enemy, already was outflanked and on the verge of falling. The Russians took 11 localities in an arc on its approaches, including Seini, 18 miles to the east.

The midnight bulletin said 2,000 Germans were slain at Nyiregyhaza, and that a total of 3,000 enemy troops were killed and several thousand captured during the day in Hungary.

Move On 70-Mile Front

In the drive on Budapest the Russians were moving toward the Magyar capital from the south and southeast on a front of more than 70 miles. A Romanian bulletin told of heavy fighting only 50 miles southeast of the city, but this was not confirmed by Moscow.

Berlin said the Russians, cutting clear across the "waist" of German-annexed Memel territory in advances of 12 to 15 miles, had forced German troops to withdraw to the southern bank of the Niemen or Memel river on both sides of Tilsit.

"Hard fighting with the pursuing enemy developed, especially at Tilsit," a broadcast said.

Within Range Of Tilsit

The smash put the Red army within close artillery range of Tilsit, a town of 60,000 population.

Col. Ernst Von Hammer, German radio military commentator, also disclosed that the Soviet troops attacking into the eastern end of the junker province had reached an area just south of Gumbinnen, 21 miles inside Germany.

The Transocean Agency broadcast claimed that other Soviet units were halted at Goldap, 19 miles south of Gumbinnen and on the southeastern side of the Rominter heath hunting grounds of Nazi sportsmen.

"German lines in the Rominter forest were withdrawn and an enemy breakthrough averted," von Hammer said, as the Germans moved up battalions of Heinrich Himmler's home army.

Soviet-Finnish Ties Near

Stalin, in Message to Paasikivi, Hopes for Friendly Relations

LONDON, Oct. 23 (Monday). (AP).—Premier Josef V. Stalin is looking forward to an early resumption of Soviet-Finnish relations, the Moscow radio said early today.

In acknowledging the well wishes of Juho K. Paasikivi, president of the newly organized Finland-Soviet Society and a key figure in peace negotiations, Stalin said: "I thank you sincerely for your congratulations. I do not doubt that gradually relations will be established between the Soviet Union and Finland on the basis of mutual respect and collaboration."

GERMANS BEATEN BACK ALONG ARCTIC HIGHWAY

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 22 — (AP) Finnish troops fighting north of Kemijaervi are pushing the Germans northward along the Arctic highway toward Pelkosenniemi and Petsamo the Selsinki communique said today.

The Germans were reported fighting delaying action along the highway which is the only all-weather route in Lapland.

Near the Swedish border the Finns reported gains near Marrasjaervi and in the Tornio river valley.

Military commentators in Helsinki were quoted by the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet as optimistic over a quick end to the campaign to drive the Germans out of Finland in accordance with their armistice terms with Russia. Earlier they had forecast a possible Winter war.

Churchill Back From Stalin Visit

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill returned to London today by air from his conferences in Moscow with Marshal Stalin.

Mr. Churchill was met at the airfield by Mrs. Churchill; Lord Swinton, marshal of the RAF; Sir Charles Portal, chief of air staff, and Air Vice-Marshal Collier, deputy air officer in chief. The Prime Minister wore the uniform of an air commodore of the RAF and looked fit and well.

Mr. Churchill's conversations with Marshal Stalin lasted from October 9 to 18. He left Moscow by air October 19.

The Prime Minister is expected to make a statement to Commons this week on his Moscow talks.

U. S. BOMBERS POUND REICH

1,100 Heavies Hit Hamm, Munster, Hannover, Brunswick

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—A fleet of more than 1,100 American heavy bombers, attacking without loss, bombed northern Germany's rich industrial belt from Hamm and Munster east of Hannover and Brunswick today. Two of the 750 covering fighter planes did not return, and they were believed to have landed in friendly territory.

All of the bombing was done by instruments through overcast clouds. No enemy aircraft were encountered and anti-aircraft fire was generally moderate.

Fighter pilots reported the destruction of 13 locomotives and 25 railway cars, and the destruction or damage of five barges and five small steamboats. Two gas manufacturing plants were shot up.

RAF Lancasters escorted by fighters made a heavy attack this afternoon on the German inland port and railway center of Neuss, just across the Rhine west of Dusseldorf, and 20 miles northwest of Cologne. No planes were lost.

Nazi Headquarters Raided

The RAF's Brazilian Typhoon squadron, named in honor of Brazil, that had been credited with mortally wounding Nazi Field Marshal General Erwin S. Rommel July 17, attacked a "heavily defended headquarters area" in the Breskens pocket, where Canadian troops are driving to clear the Schelde estuary.

Pilots of the four-cannoned fighter bombers said "fully a dozen of our bombs landed inside the wire and burst among houses and barns." The headquarters was enclosed in high wire fences and surrounded by a concentration of anti-aircraft batteries.

Obstacles facing the Canadians' two-pronged push at Breskens and north of Antwerp were hit by other rocket-firing Typhoons taking their directions from ground-troop observation posts. A railway bridge at Terheijden behind the German troops in Holland was wrecked with 500-pound bombs.

Night Sweep Over Holland

Mosquitos swept over Germany and Holland during the night, patroling roads and railways leading to the battle front, and crossings between Leer and Meppel and in the Munster area were bombed and strafed. A road convoy was strafed and hits scored on a bridge near Vlissingen (Flushing).

Weather which had kept Eighth airforce Liberators and Fortresses at home for two days was still soupy enough over Europe to delay today's attacks on the four railway and industrial cities that are north and east of Cologne.

Hamm, 60 miles northeast of the Rhine river port that is believed to be the next goal of the American First army, has had its railway yards bombed eight times before by Eighth airforce heavies. Their last strike was three weeks ago.

Munster, site for airforce installations and industrial plants, caught its first raid in three weeks by American planes. Hannover's rubber plant had only been bombed three times previously and twice this year by Eighth airforce heavies. Messerschmitt 110 parts are made at Brunswick, which had been hit 15 times previously by Yank airmen.

Reports from German citizens arriving in Stockholm indicated the constant Allied aerial offensive was leaving its mark.

A woman from Stuttgart said only one house in every 25 was left standing.

Berlin householders have been warned there will be no central heating this winter and reports of "No gas" have been prevalent for days.

Four big guns at Vlissingen, on the island of Walcheren, which had been harassing Canadian positions across the Schelde south of Breskens, haven't fired a shot since a picked force of RAF Lancasters bombed them at noon yesterday.

Flyers Risk Own Lives Rather Than Hit Troops

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—The crew of the United States Eighth Air Force flying fortress "Cargo for Margo" risked their lives by flying home a load of loose explosives rather than jettison them on American ground troops, it was disclosed today.

Lieut. Donald A. Jones, of Goose Creek, Texas, the pilot, said half of the bomb load hung over Cologne. He ordered the bomb doors shut while the bombardier attempted to replace the pins in the live bombs. The bombardier and two other crewmen were wounded when one of the fuses exploded, knocking a hole in the plane's belly and rolling incendiaries around in the plane.

Other members of the crew finished the job and the men landed safely in England.

German Debt 126 Billion

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP).—The Berlin radio announced today that Germany's national debt totals 315 billion marks. At the pre-war official rate of exchange of 40 cents to the mark, this would amount to $126,000,000,000.

Volunteers Sought For Nazi Guerrillas

Stockholm, Oct. 22 (AP)—Nazi recruiting offices were opened in Germany today to enroll "volunteers" for Adolf Hitler's so-called Volksturm, or guerrilla army.

Swedish correspondents in Berlin gave no indication that Germans were queuing up to sign the rolls, but said appeals were plastered everywhere in the streets to "volunteer under Nazi colors."

Sixteen-year-olds were especially singled out in the appeals, and were told by the press it was their duty to do as Berlin did in 1813 when Germany's most famous artists and scientists enrolled.

Siegfried Line Depth Doubled, Sweden Hears

Stockholm, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Siegfried Line has been doubled in depth by emergency defense works stretching back 30 to 40 miles, Swedish newspaper correspondents in Berlin quoted German military spokesman as saying today.

The main characteristic of the defenses are tank ditches 25 feet deep and 15 feet wide, the stories said.

BRITISH DISCUSS POSTWAR MARKETS

LONDON, Oct. 22—(AP) A British chorus on the danger of losing post-war markets to American industry swelled last week through official, trade, industry and labor circles.

The trades unions Congress reaffirmed its contention industry should be state owned and operated.

Parliament spent a day discussing the under-industrialization of Wales, and a government white paper deplored the great machine and output margin the American cotton textile trade held over Lancashire's looms.

It was revealed that British 1943 exports, with output confined to war needs and civilian essentials, were 71 per cent below 1938 in volume and 52 per cent under 1938 in value.

That sharpened all the cries that the Americans would be more than ready to step in at the war's end and capture markets which the British felt they should continue to share in large proportion.

It redoubled the protests that lend-lease restrictions on use of raw materials would hamper British manufacturers.

Not even the news that hundreds of British good-will salesmen have been dispatched throughout the world stilled the clamor.

They would have nothing to sell until the products could be made and shipped, protestants said.

The government, accused in many directions of inaction, took one definite step in the form of a white paper on civil aviation. Its international control provision was not expected to be accepted by the United States but it gave British representatives a working plan for the Montreal air conference opening tomorrow and the Chicago conference next month.

Death Of Lord Davies In Action Announced

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—Major Lord David Davies, 29, reputedly the wealthiest man in the British army, has been killed in action with the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, it was announced today.

Lord Davies previously had been reported missing in action when he was taken prisoner August 16, but he persuaded his German captors to surrender instead.

His father, the late Baron of Llandinam, contributed $8,000,000 to charities.

MAN-MADE PORTS VICTIMS OF GALE

Invasion Might Have Been Wrecked By Later Start

Supreme Allied Headquarters, Paris, Oct. 22 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's historic decision to go ahead with the invasion of Normandy on June 6 despite risky weather may have saved the whole Allied assault from a disaster as stark as that which wrecked the Spanish Armada in 1588 in the same treacherous channel, it was disclosed officially today.

If the operation had been delayed beyond June 6 to take advantage of proper tide conditions, it probably would have been launched in calm water on the night of June 17-18, and might have been swamped by a 700-to-1 chance gale which broke over the channel at dawn June 18.

Havoc Termed Widespread

As it was, high Allied officers, who directed and carried out the task of building two artificial ports in England and transporting them to Normandy's beaches, told correspondents here that the gale created widespread havoc.

Through three days that storm almost destroyed one great beach port which the Americans had two thirds completed at St. Aubin. It damaged the port which the British had slightly more than half finished at Arromanches, hurting it so badly that the landing of supplies was put about a week behind schedule at a crucial time in the beachhead expansion.

Rear Admiral William Tennant, planning and operations control officer, in charge of these harbors, said there was only a fractional chance—a ratio of half a day in a year—that such a "winter" storm would hit the beaches in June. But it did, hurling 14-foot waves against the uncompleted structure of breakwaters and piers.

Lacked Shoal Protection

The American port was hardest hit because it was on deeper, more shifty sands, and lacked the protection of a shoal.

"It was very sad that after all their work, energy, and great drive the Americans had put into building their port that the gale should have wrecked such a large part of it," Tennant said.

"Fortunately at that time they were on the point of capturing Cherbourg, and it was decided they should assist the British with all they could save of their pier roadway, that the deepwater breakwater of caissons should be abandoned, but that the blockship breakwater should be extended, strengthened and double-banked, with the port becoming a shallow water harbor. As such, it has functioned since shortly after the gale and has landed its quota of tens of thousands of tons of stores."

Have Done Their Job

The British port handled 45 per cent of all British supplies put ashore up to the time that other port facilities became available for the 21st Army Group front.

By now the British concrete port and the American breakwater-guarded harbor have done their job.

"One day now along will come a normal winter gale, and that will be the end of it all," Admiral Tennant said.

Brig. Marvin Walter, in charge of the shore party for construction of the ports, said that altogether it took about 1,300 men to get the British port into operation—virtually completed in 21 days.

DAVID LARDNER KILLED BY MINE

Companion Correspondent, Russell Hill, Is Injured

With the United States First Army Near Aachen, Oct. 19 (AP—Delayed)—David Lardner, correspondent for the New Yorker magazine, was injured fatally and Russell Hill, correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, was injured today when their jeep was blown up by road mines near Aachen. The jeep driver also was killed.

Lardner, son of the late noted humorist Ring Lardner, and Hill were returning from the smashed German city to a press camp when they ran into a mined area. One report said the jeep touched off a string of seven anti-vehicular mines.

Lardner had joined the First Army press corps only a few days ago on his first war assignment. Hill is a veteran correspondent of the western desert campaign and of North Africa. He narrowly escaped capture by the Germans as he fled before them in the invasion of Yugoslavia and Greece in 1941.

Lardner died of injuries which the doctors said he suffered when he was thrown from the jeep. Hill suffered a broken arm and cuts and bruises.

Rejected For Army Service

Lardner, 25, father of two children, joined the editorial staff of the New Yorker in 1939, later becoming its movie critic.

Harold Ross, editor of the magazine, said in New York that Lardner had asked for an overseas assignment after being rejected for military service because of poor eyesight. He was unable to go overseas for the magazine, Ross said, because the magazine was allowed only one correspondent on the Western Front and another staff member previously had been assigned.

Lardner left the New Yorker a little more than three months ago to join the Office of War Information in London. He later rejoined the New Yorker as a war writer on the Western Front when the magazine was allowed a second correspondent.

Had Written One Story

He had written only one story as a correspondent—an article from Luxembourg which appeared in the magazine's current issue.

A brother, James P. Lardner, was killed in 1938 during the Spanish civil war while fighting for the Loyalists as a volunteer in the International Brigade, members of the Lardner family said.

David Lardner is survived by his wide, Mrs. Frances Chaney Lardner; a son, Joseph, six months old, and a daughter, Katharine, two years old; his mother, Mrs. Ellis Lardner, and two brothers, Ring, Jr., a motion-picture writer, and John Lardner, a writer for Newsweek magazine.

General Harmon Again Leads Old 'Hell On Wheels' Division

With the United States Second Armored Division in Germany, Oct. 22 (AP)—"Old Gravel Voice" is back in the saddle again as boss of this famous "Hell on Wheels" division, and he has speared it into the Siegfried Line.

He is Maj. Gen. Ernest N. Harmon, known to American tankmen around the world as "Hard-Boiled Harmon" and he has fought more battles and killed more Germans and taken more prisoners than any other armored commander under the flag.

For the first time Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of American ground forces, permitted today the disclosure that Harmon had taken over again the leadership of the Second Armored Division—the outfit which he originally landed under fire in French Morocco in November, 1942.

Gives Up U. S. Post Command

And he gave up "a bigger" job back home for a chance to lead his veterans into combat again.

Last July this 50-year-old general—a tartar to his officers but called the "enlisted men's buddy" by his GIs who man his tanks—was rewarded for an unequaled fighting record in Africa and Italy by assignment to command the 23d Corps at Camp Bowie, Texas.

But Harmon did not want rank so much as he wanted action. In a personal letter to Bradley he asked for a chance to crack the Germans again. When Maj. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, then commander of the Second Armored Division, was elevated to a higher post, Bradley offered Harmon his old "Hell on Wheels" division.

Promptly Bridged Albert Canal

"Old Gravel Voice"—he talks like a concrete mixer in low gear—flew the ocean and took command on September 12 in Belgium. He promptly bridged the Albert Canal under fire and sent his tanks rolling across Holland and into Germany.

That was only the latest of many successes Harmon has had against the Germans.

One of the founding fathers of the armored force, he took command of the "Hell on Wheels" division the first time in July, 1942, and landed the bulk of it at Safi November 8 of that year. It was one of the major factors in the three-day conquest of French Morocco.

Attack First, His Formula

After the Germans mauled the American tanks in the disastrous Kasserine Pass battle, Harmon was rushed up and took command of the First Armored Division. He found the Germans were attacking every day at dawn and pushing the Yanks back 500 yards.

"You attack at dawn tomorrow and start shoving them back," he told his armored force. He stuck to that simple formula for the rest of the Tunisian campaign which ended with his tankers rounding up 42,000 Germans and Italians to the south of Bizerte.

Military Delicacies Out

When five German generals refused to ride in the rear of a truck containing troops—they wanted private vehicles — Harmon told them bluntly:

"You are free to walk, gentlemen. I am too busy at the moment to consider military delicacies."

They climbed into the truck.

Harmon later took his First Armored Division to Italy and spearheaded the breakthrough from the Anzio beachhead, through Rome and pursued the battered Germans north to Arno. His men killed and captured thousands of Germans.

LARGER TIGER TANK USED BY NAZIS AGAINST YANKS

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY IN GERMANY, Oct. 20.—(Delayed)—(AP) The German army has thrown into combat a larger and more powerfully armed version of its heavyweight Mark VI Tiger tank.

This new armored behemoth — hopefully dubbed by its creators "the Royal Tiger"—weighs 67 tons, 11 tons more than its predecessor which was regarded as one of the world's largest and hardest-hitting tanks.

Its slugging power has been increased additionally by a revamped version of its famous 88 millimeter gun. The gun has increased muzzle velocity and its shells are said to be able to penetrate six inches of armor.

On French Indo-China

Paris, Oct. 22 (AP)—The French War Ministry took the first step today toward enlarging French forces for an expedition to regain French Indo-China, calling upon reserve officers and men and civilian volunteers to register at the ministry's colonial center.

French Merchant Shipping Program

Paris, Oct. 22 (AP) — Post-war French merchant shipping will be carried on by Government-owned and controlled corporations, the newspaper Parisien Libere quoted Transport Minister Rene Mayer as saying.

Companies such as the French Line, which enjoyed state subsidies before the war and whose tonnage now is requisitioned for war purposes, will find themselves replaced by two or more state public-service corporations, Mayer said.

In the past "these subsidies were as costly for the state as direct operation would have been," he declared. The companies will be subject "to strict control of the state, which will name their directors," he said.

The companies are being operated now by provisional directorates named by the Transport Ministry.

France's Martyrs Accorded Tribute

Paris, Oct. 22 (AP)—France paid tribute today to its marytrs on the eve of the opening of a drastic purge of the nation's quislings, estimated officially at around 100,000 persons.

The anniversary of the German execution of 28 hostages at Chateaubriant for the assassination of a Nazi officer was marked by ceremonies at scores of communities. In Paris 18 street squares were renamed for them.

In Southern Clermont Ferrand, possessions of France's No. 1 quisling, Pierre Laval, estimated at $8,000,000, went on the auction block. Two days ago Laval was sentenced to death in absentia by a Marseille court.

The first defendant to go on trial tomorow will be Georges Suarez, a director of the now suppressed Paris daily Aujourdhui, who is charged with treason and dealing with the enemy. He faces a maximum penalty of death by shooting.

Suarez is only one of an estimated 10,000 persons arrested in the Paris area alone on collaboration accusations.

Spanish Guerrillas Raid Town Near French Border

Reported Driven Back Into France by Guards

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Oct. 22 (AP).—Spanish Republicans who raided Spanish territory in the Roncesvalles Valley near the frontier village of Valcarlos last night were driven back into France, leaving a number of dead and wounded prisoners in the hands of Spanish border guards, according to reports from the region today.

BRITISH DRIVE FOR RAVENNA

Boats And Bicycles Used In Pursuit Of Germans

Rome, Oct. 22 (AP)—British tanks manned by New Zealanders have speared seven miles into the Po Valley north of Cesena in Italy, while other Eighth Army troops using boats and bicycles in pursuit of the retreating Germans on the swampy Adriatic coast sector are approaching Cervia, six miles north of captured Cesanatico, Allied headquarters announced today.

The New Zealand tank drive toward the road junction of Mensa swung the German line around to a north-south axis behind the Savio river and brought the British up to a broad front along that stream after the crossing of numerous lesser water barriers.

Except where Indian troops have crossed the river south of Cesena, the Nazis were strongly entrenched on the west bank, moving into defenses built when the enemy thought the Allies would make a seaborne landing north of Rimini.

Marshes, Swamps Before British

Heartbreaking obstacles of terrain—marshes, swamps and flooded streams—confronted the British advancing toward Cervia, only 12 miles below Ravenna. In one instance a commanding officer, standing in a small boat, directed his men swimming across a stream.

Eighth Army patrols which crossed the Savio north of Cesena met heavy shellfire and withdrew because of the impossibility of obtaining reinforcements. One small bridgehead west of Cesena on the Rimini-Bologna highway (No. 9) was under heavy shell and Nebelwerfer fire.

Cesena was cleared entirely of the enemy.

Fifth Army Inches Forward

On the Fifth Army front south of Bologna the advances continued to be measured in yards. American troops secured Monte Cuccoli, Monte Grande and Monte Crere, dominating heights in the area about five miles south of Highway 9 running between Bologna and Imola.

Ground troops received constant close support from the air and two German counterattacks against the new hill positions were repulsed.

Monte Grande is a 2,200-foot stony knob overlooking the streams coursing northward into the Po Valley. With the mud-stained, weary Americans firmly in command of the hill—one of the last major features which dictated the gruelling fighting in this area—the Germans were faced with the necessity of conceding ground in the Adriatic coastal sector and making a new alignment on their Italian front.

Fresh Troops Face Yanks

Earlier in the week the Germans threw new troops taken apparently from the coastal sector into the line blocking the Americans' slow but steady advance on Bologna. This would indicate the Germans intend to make an all-out effort to hold the communications center of Bologna as a hinge for a fanning movement into new positions.

British troops, meanwhile, captured Monte Della Acqua, west of the road leading to Imola, which is 20 miles southeast of Bologna.

Polish troops pointing toward Forli, Mussolini's boyhood town 20 miles southeast of Imola on Highway 9, fought their way forward in the mountains south of the road. They captured Monte Grosso, about two miles north of captured Civitella di Romagno. There was heavy fighting in the mountains north of Galeata, now in Allied hands. The Poles captured Monte Della Forche in that area.

BRITISH TAKE LEMNOS PORT

Landing Is Made On Island Guarding Dardanelles

Rome, Oct. 22 (AP)—The British broom sweeping the Germans out of the Aegean has reached the northern extremity with a landing on the strategic island of Lemnos, guarding the entrance to the Dardanelles.

A Royal Navy communique announced today the capture of the port of Mudros on the south coast of the island after a 30-hour battle. Four hundred prisoners were taken, the communique said.

Lemnos has an area of 150 square miles and was one of the first Greek islands captured by the Germans in the early part of their 1941 Balkan campaign. Its population is predominantly Greek with a small Turkish minority. Mudros is at the head of a land-locked bay which has naval value.

Fall Of Island Imminent

Turkish reports early in September said the Germans had begun evacuation of key personnel from the island, and Cairo reports yesterday said fall of the island was imminent.

[The British Broadcasting Corporation later reported the entire island of Lemnos and all of the Cyclades group had been freed.]

The Royal Navy communique said British forces landed on the west coast of the island at dawn on October 16 and, after street fighting in the town, captured Mudros at 1 P. M., October 17.

Cleanup On Mainland Continues

Some troops of the German garrison attempted to escape in small boats, but were driven back to the shore by naval gunfire and suffered numerous casualties. The cruiser H. M. S. Argonaut on October 18 destroyed a large German tank-landing craft near the island.

The British drive to clear the Germans from the Greek mainland continued without letup as carrier-based RAF planes attacked rail transport in the Volos area on Greece's middle eastern coast. The strafing planes knocked out one locomotive and damaged 20 rail cars the Germans were using to move their forces northward.

These attacks were followed by an air raid on the island of Coo in the Dodecanese.

On the night of October 19 the British destroyers Termagant and Tuscan invaded the Gulf of Salonika in the northern Aegean and drove a German destroyer ashore.

$120,000,000 In Supplies

Allied headquarters announced provision had been made for six months' emergency civilian supplies for Greece amounting to approximately 780,000 tons valued at $120,000,000. The supplies are provided partly by the United States and the remainder by Britain.

This aid will be administered by a unit called "The Military Liaison Force For Greece" and is composed primarily of British officers but includes a small number of American officers.

In addition to handling relief-supply problems, the unit will aid the Greek Government in repatriation of an estimated 200,000 persons who fled their homes to safer areas of Greece in the past three and a half years during German occupation to escape civil strife, enemy operations and reprisals.

Allied headquarters announced that 600 Germans and Italians who were hiding in Athens had given themselves up since the liberation of the capital.

Pope Receives K. Of C. Chief

Vatican City, Oct. 22 (AP)—Pope Pius received Francis P. Matthews, of Omaha, Neb., supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, at a private audience today.

Washington Officer Honored

With the United States Fifth Army, Italy, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Distinguished Service Cross was presented today to Col. J. C. Fry, of Washington, D. C., a native of Sand Point, Idaho, and regimental commander of the 350th Infantry, for "extraordinary heroism" on Monte Battaglia in the face of repeated enemy counterattacks.

Fresh Disorders Reported In Palermo

Rome, Oct. 22 (AP)—Rome press dispatches said today that new disorders occurred yesterday in the Sicilian capital of Palermo, where 19 persons were killed and more than 100 wounded in street fighting between Italian troops and a mob Thursday.

The accounts said the police were forced to fire on a group of "strikers" who broke into a theater on the Piazzi Verdi, but apparently none was killed or wounded.

A bomb was thrown in a public market and a grenade was hurled at sentries guarding a public utility, the dispatches added.

Ten leaders of the Sicilian separatist movement were said to have been arrested and charged with distributing unauthorized pamphlets.

Says Red Cross Workers Are Already In Reich

Rome, Oct. 22 (AP)—Basil O'Connor, chairman of the American Red Cross, who is inspecting Red Cross facilities in Italy, said today that Red Cross workers are already in Germany and that his organization is formulating plans for operations there.

He said $9,000,000 in clothing has been distributed in Italy and that the budget for services to the armed forces in the Mediterranean theater was nearly $7,000,000 annually.

O'Connor was received by Pope Pius XII this morning.

Lieutenant To Get CMH For Bravery At Anzio

Fifth Army Front in Italy, Oct. 22 (AP)—Lieut. Beryln Newman, 33, Baraboo, Wis., who recently was returned to the United States, will be presented with the Congressional Medal of Honor for outstanding bravery as a platoon leader of the 34th Division on the Anzio beachhead last spring.

Newman singlehandedly knocked out three enemy machine-gun nests, killed two Germans, captured two others and took 11 prisoners. He was injured later by a mine explosion.

ANTI-SOVIET BIAS ASSAILED

Russ Publication Says Russia Will Protect Self

Moscow, Oct. 22 (AP)—Russia's intention to protect herself against anti-Soviet prejudices of the members of any future international security organization was expressed today in the publication War and the Working Class.

Discussing the Soviet Union's insistence on a unanimous vote of the great powers for dealing with any alleged case of aggression, the magazine said "it is difficult to forget that the League of Nations did not find it necessary to expel Poland for seizing Vilna, or Italy for invading Ethiopia, but voted for expulsion of the Soviet Union when it deprived Germany of a springboard prepared for invasion."

Increase In Prestige

The article said that although Russia's prestige had increased during the war, "nevertheless, anti-Soviet prejudices are very tenacious. One can't forget about 20 countries which are possible members of the security organization and which have not yet established normal diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

"These circumstances prove an open unfriendly attitude. Therefore, it is not to be expected that the Soviet Union would await an impartial decision of 'a majority of the countries' in discussions affecting its vital interests."

Assails Pope And Franco

Moscow, Oct. 22 (AP)—Pope Pius XII and the Franco regime in Spain were the twin targets of an article in the Soviet publication War and the Working Class, today which said the Pope might be called the "godfather" of the Spanish dictatorship.

The article, written by F. Golubev, demanded "the liquidation of the center of the Fascist infection in Spain for the future security of Europe."

Describing Franco as "Hitler's faithful servant," the article charged that Spain continued to supply Germany with raw materials and acted as a subversive agent in South America.

Cites U. S. "Reactionaries"

"Franco," it continued, "in the past has been supported by reactionaries in England and the United States who were called Munichites later. Today the Vatican accords all possible support to Franco's regime. As he loses his main support—Hitlerite Germany—Franco looks to other forces for aid. One of his best allies is the Vatican. Pope Pius XII could be called Franco's 'godfather.'"

The article said the Cross of Pope Pius XI had been given to Franco for "special service to the Lord and to the church." It also said the editor of the Catholic Herald had explained the Vatican's friendship with Franco as inspired by "the Soviet danger."

American Oil Statistics

Moscow, Oct. 22 (AP)—The magazine War and the Working Class in an article today cited American statistics showing that the United States controls 57 per cent. of the world's oil resources, Great Britain 27 per cent. and the Soviet Union 11 per cent.

The article said companies in possession of Arabian oil concessions have been inspired by the hope of dominating European markets as well as organizing a low-cost export business, and asserted there were reasons to believe profits totaled 100 per cent.

Mentions British Fears

The magazine said the British feared cheap Arabian oil would break the price for their output from their Iranian fields.

The article said there was a split among American oil interests over the international oil development.

"Influential political and economic circles in the United States fear South American oil will lose its European markets because of competition from Near East oil and the latter will flood over into the internal American market, threatening the domestic output," the article stated.

MOUNTAIN FIGHTING RAGES NEAR TIDDIM

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon,

Oct. 22—(AP) The "battle of the peaks" was joined in western Burma today with the Fifth Indian division engaging Japanese troops holding prepared positions in heights towering 8,000 feet south of the recently captured Tiddim.

This operation was part of the British Fourteen army's slowly progressing effort to throw the enemy beyond the Chindwin river.

Farther south in the Arakan hill district West African troops advanced from the Sangu river valley to the Kaladan river line against retreating Japanese who had made a tentative thrust against the Allied line of communications from India.

Says Jap Ships Race To Escape U. S. Planes

Chungking, Oct. 22 (AP)—Japanese ships in the south China Sea are racing northward to escape destruction by American planes, Chinese reports today said.

Many of the ships which steamed northward under emergency orders after the battering given seacraft in coordinated attacks by United States naval planes and land planes of the United States 14th Air Force have reached the coast of northern Fukien province.

Chinese War Minister Ho Ying Chin, in an interview, said the time for a decisive battle between the Allies and Japan was drawing near.

"Final victory is well in sight," he declared.

CHINESE HALT JAPS IN LIUCHOW DRIVE

CHUNGKING, Oct. 22—(AP) The Chinese High command announced today that successful Chinese counterattacks along the Kwangsi West river front near Kweiping and Pingnam had slowed up the Japanese drive toward Liuchow.

The communique also said Chinese regulars had thrown back the Japanese who are attempting to push southward from Ningsiang, west of Changsha in a drive possibly intended to strengthen the enemy's flanks west of the Canton-Hankow and Hunan-Kwangsi railways.

The situation near Kweilin, strategic Kwangsi province city, where the Japanese last were reported 23 miles northeast and north of the town was described by the high command as unchanged.

The communique said Chinese troops launched a counterattack Oct. 21 against Japanese forces eight miles southwest of Kweiping and by nightfall had smashed their way into enemy positions. The same day, the high command said, Chinese troops recaptured two points within nine and a half miles of the southern outskirts of Pingnam and three points within six miles north of the town.

Liuchow, in the approximate center of the southern province of Kwangsi, is 90 miles southwest of Kweilin and 78 miles northwest of Kweiping. Pingnam is east and slightly north of Kweiping.

Japanese forces in the Kweiping-Pingnam sectors were subjected to heavy and incessant attacks by planes of the U. S. 14th Air Force in support of Chinese ground troops.

The high command reported only minor activity in the Lungling-Mangshih areas of the Burma road front during the past three days.

In sweeps on this front American planes destroyed a bridge at Wanting and heavily damaged another. Bridge approaches at Hsenwi also were damaged. Other planes destroyed a bridge 56 miles southeast of Mangshih.

GUATEMALA TENSE UNDER REBEL RULE

New Regime Orders Civilians to Turn in Arms—Dead May Reach Hundreds

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Oct. 22 (AP)—Order is being re-established slowly in Guatemala following the revolution Friday, when the Government of Acting President Gen. Frederico Ponce was overthrown.

Some clashes still were occurring between followers of General Ponce and supporters of the triumvirate that took over the Government. Although the Capital calmed down generally, the situation still was regarded as tense, with many observers believing a counter-coup was being organized.

The new regime is headed by Maj. Francisco Javier Arana, 32 years old; Capt. Jacobo Arbenz, 28, and Jorge Toriello, a civilian. The Guatemalan radio today announced a proclamation by Major Arana ordering all civilians to deposit their arms at police stations.

Warned of New Outbreaks

The broadcast asserted that "some of the people's enemies" still were on the loose and said that civilian guards must capture them and be alert against possible acts of violence inspired by the defeated faction.

The revolutionary junta canceled a demonstration of support that was being organized today by Guatemalan women.

A radio bulletin also announced the establishment of a revolutionary Government in Quetzaltenango Province.

Gen. Frederico Corrado, commander of the Guatemala Guard, was killed yesterday at the beginning of the revolt.

FDR MAY PROPOSE USE OF U.S. TROOPS TO ENFORCE PEACE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—(AP) Allocation of quotas of troops, warships and planes to be used as United States security forces is expected to be proposed to Congress under President Roosevelt's call for arrangements to act quickly with other nations to suppress future Hitlers.

This is understood by officials here to be the plan behind the President's declaration in his foreign policy speech in New York last night that he believed the United States delegate to the proposed World Security council should have advance authority from Congress to act each time a breach of the peace developed.

The President was not specific but there was no question among officials here that what he had in mind was pre-authorization of the use of limited complements of this country's armed strength to preserve or restore peace.

With this declaration, Mr. Roosevelt stated his position on one of the two outstanding questions remaining to be answered after the Dumbarton Oaks conference of British, American, Russian and Chinese representatives had drafted a world organization plan.

The other question is whether each of the five great nations on the proposed security council should have a veto on action against itself. This problem may be tac[k]led by leaders of the United States, Britain and Russia in a meeting possibly late next month.

The issue of how to provide American forces if and when the United States decides to participate in the world organization is not a part of the Dumbarton Oaks plan but a domestic question.

As contemplated by authorities here, this is how the issue would work out:

The first approach to the problem by Congress will come when, assuming United Nations approval of the organization, a treaty guaranteeing United States participation goes to the Capitol. Under this treaty the United States would commit itself to use force whenever the world security council decided it was necessary.

Probably shortly afterward, another treaty would provide that the United States furnish certain number of ships, planes and men which would always be available for quick

FAVOR PRICE LIMIT BOOST FOR HOMES

Plan to Spur Private Construction Wins WLB and OPA Approval.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP) To revive war housing construction, the War Production Board and Office of Price Administration have reached a compromise increasing the price limit on homes which private builders are permitted to erect, it was learned today.

The agreed limit, however, falls short of the increase sought by the National Housing Agency. Since it has not yet been approved by NHA, officials of both other agencies refused to disclose the proposed figure.

NHA sources expressed belief, however, that NHA Administrator John B. Blandford, Jr., would accept any "reasonable" increase which gave promise of inducing private contractors to break ground for new dwellings in war industry centers.

The NHA had asked WPB to boost the present limits, $6,000 generally and $7,500 in areas of high building costs like Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland, to $7,500 and $9,000.

Declaring that such an increase would jeopardize its rent ceiling structure, OPA entered strong objections.

The NHA countered with the argument that inflationary pressure might be relieved by building more houses, thus bringing supply closer to demand. Inflation already exists, housing officials said, since many of the $6,000 houses have been resold by their war worker occupants for much higher amounts.

Meantime, they said, the original war housing program, intended to care for workers newly entering industrial cities, is drawing to a close. The so-called 1942 program launched this summer to provide dwellings for resident war workers caught in the housing pinch, has thus far failed to produce a single house, while the newer H-3 program, for individual hardship cases and returning veterans, appears equally static.

The WPB officials who participated in the conferences last week expressed confidence they had found a formula, acceptable to OPA, which would break the log jam.

There was indication, too, that some of the rigid rules prescribing who may occupy the authorized houses, might soon be relaxed, as a third and final step in NHA's proposed program.

Dead Yank's Baby Son Flies To U. S.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Little Kenneth Barry Maloney arrived at LaGuardia Airport from England today, the youngest passenger ever to cross the Atlantic in an army transport plane unaccompanied by any member of his family.

The 6-month-old, 17-pound boy was brought from the British Red Cross to the New York chapter, American Red Cross, by Lieut. Evelyn Anderson, of the Army Nurses' Corps, who had been on duty in Great Britain.

His paternal grandmother, Mrs. William Maloney, of Grand Rapids, Mich., had traveled to New York to meet her grandson, but was not at the airport when the plane arrived.

Kenneth's father, an American Air Forces pilot, was killed in action before the baby was born and the mother, an English girl, died in childbirth.

His maternal grandmother, grandfather and aunt were killed when bombs struck their home.

N. A. M. Assails Secrecy In Lend-Lease Program

Says Business Is Relying on Rumor in Post-War Plans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP).—The National Association of Manufacturers said today that governmental disagreement over disposition of the lend-lease program, coupled with "intense secrecy," is causing American companies dependent on foreign markets to "rely on rumor and conjecture" in mapping their post-war programs.

The struggle in government, the N. A. M. told its 12,000 member-companies in a special bulletin, is between one group of officials "working for a business-like settlement of lend-lease material that has a peace-time use, and another group which would cancel all lend-lease accounts and even continue lend-lease under another name after the war.

"Hundreds of thousands of businesses in all countries of the world will be affected, for good or for bad," the N. A. M. commented, "by the outcome of the struggle between these two groups—not to mention the American taxpayer.

And all officials who are directly concerned in the program, even those who are constantly seeking the advice of industry, are under strictest orders from above not to give private business any inkling of the exact details of their plans.

"As a result of the intense secrecy surrounding the official program, thousands of companies who depend heavily on foreign markets in normal times are forced to rely on rumor and conjecture in mapping out their post-war programs."

Penicillin Is Shipped For U. S. War Prisoners

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—The American Red Cross sent 5,000 tubes of penicillin by air express to the International Red Cross at Geneva to be used for American prisoners of war held by Germany, it was announced today.

Other medical supplies also have been shipped to supplement those provided by German military authorities.

BEA DISCLOSES INCREASE IN PENICILLIN OUTPUT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—(AP) Production of penicillin by the end of this year should be about 200,000,000,000 units a month—enough to treat 250,000 cases of infection monthly, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today.

The bureau said 2,100 hospitals are receiving the product which is made from mold. The Bureau estimates the material will mean a new source of annual income of $50,000,000, some of which will find its way back to the farm.

Meanwhile prices have dropped from $20 per hundred thousand units to $3.25 and the BAE predicted it will go still lower.

The armd forces get first call but BAE said more penicillin is being allocated for civilians every day.

During the entire year 1942 production amounted to only about 100,000,000 exford units—an arbitrary standard for measuring germ killing powers.

AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA RETURNS WITH REPORT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—(AP) The rush trip of Ambassador W. Averell Harriman from Moscow to Washington today foreshadowed a general review of European problems by President Roosevelt and the State department.

Harriman reached Washington yesterday after a 57hour plane trip from Moscow.

His return caused speculation that Ambassador John G. Winant in London also would be brought home to join in the consultions. Winant and Harriman were both here last May and the envoy to London said at that time that he might return in the fall.

The results of the Churchill-Stalin conference concluded this week in Moscow focused attention on Polish and Balkan questions as those most likely to come up for urgent discussion. There were some indications, however, that the conferences might cover virtually the whole field of European affairs.

Child Labor Market

Boston, Oct. 22 (AP)—Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, today declared that "there are 3,000,000 workers under the age of 18 who must be pushed out of the labor market, and return to school after the war—at least for the transition period."

BOMBER WORKERS VOTE TO RETURN TO BENCHES TODAY

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 22.—(AP) Employes of the North American Aviation company's bomber plant, where irate servicemen dispersed pickets and tore down union placards, voted today to return to work at 7 a. m. Monday.

Members of Local No. 31, United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) voted at a mass meeting to return to work on recommendation of their executive boar The board's action came after a group of 127 workers, whose discharge from the company's modification plant precipitated the walkout which closed the huge bomber factory, voted to urge the other employes to return to their jobs.

The discharged employes, a spokesman said, were to appear at a mass meeting later today to recommend that the plant be reopened and their individual cases be left in the hands of the regional war labor board.

A group of service men marched on the closed plant yesterday, dispersed pickets and destroyed union placards. The service men told the one picket who stood his ground that they would return Monday to see that workers were admitted.

The plant normally does not operate on Sundays. It is now the only producer of B-25 bombers.

The walkout started Thursday in the modification center, workers there saying they were protesting transfer of employes to the main plant where classifications and pay scales are lower. North American officials countered with individual telegrams to the 127 employes they described as leaders in the movement notifying them their employment had been terminated.

PAC His Idea, Murray Asserts

Pittsburgh, Oct. 22 (AP)—Philip Murray, CIO chairman and president of the United Steel Workers of America, today told 2,000 Political Action Committee workers that he "assumed full responsibility" to the CIO for the formation of the PAC.

His recommendation to form the PAC had been made to the CIO executive board, he said, before Sidney Hillman, present PAC head, "appeared in the picture."

He said the recommendation was offered because he believed it for the good of labor to organize a political committee and because in the 1942 Congressional elections "you stayed at home—or at least a great many of you did," and the result was a "reactionary Congress in the midst of the New Deal."

Murray said the PAC had been "castigated" as a Communistic and subversive organization. "Of course," he added, "that's a lie and the people who fulminate those statements know they are lying."

He said the "same diabolical interests" resorted to the same kind of campaign in 1936.

ACTORS HOLD F. D. R. DINNER

Sinatra, Lahr, Ethel Merman, Others "Stage" Testimonials

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—That part of the Broadway world which favors a fourth term made its political view known in song and satire tonight at a "Broadway-for-Roosevelt dinner."

Frank Sinatra made a speech, Ethel Merman sang a new song—"Don't Look Now, Mr. Dewey, But Your Record Is Showing"—and there was a message of greeting from the President himself to the crowd of approximately 3,000 that jammed the Hotel Astor's grand ballroom.

Bert Lahr portrayed Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, and Jackie Gleason impersonated former President Herbert Hoover in a skit, "Mr. Hoover's Dummy," by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman.

Not The First Booth

Quentin Reynolds said he had "too much respect for the intelligence of Clare Boothe (Luce) to think for a moment that she believed her own words when she said 'the President lied us into war.'"

"It is not the first time a person named Booth treacherously assaulted a President of the United States," he added.

Reynolds said "Governor Dewey, as far as I know, has never been in the theater, but he has learned the technique of convincing audiences by the repetition of half and quarter truths."

The President's Words

President Roosevelt said in his message that "the cultural history of a democracy is as important as its political history," adding:

"That is why I welcome with so much pleasure the vital interest taken in the public affairs of this nation, domestic and international, by so many of the outstanding artists and scientists of this country as exemplified by your committee."

QUITS PRESIDENCY OF FREEDOM HOUSE

Dorothy Thompson Resigns In Feud With Rex Stout

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Differences of opinion between columnist Dorothy Thompson and writer Rex Stout over treatment of Germany after the war resulted today in Miss Thompson offering her resignation as president of Freedom House, an organization with world freedom as its announced goal.

In a letter made public by George Field, secretary of the organization, Miss Thompson said her action was prompted specifically by "premature publicity" given Stout's letter of resignation from the board of directors Friday.

"Poppycock," Says Stout

Stout said he resigned because of a reference to him in one of Miss Thompson's columns in which she asserted that those who advocate stern revenge on Germany give the Nazis propaganda material they can use to stiffen resistance. Stout termed this view "poppycock."

Asserting Stout's letter was made public before she had an opportunity to read it and "even before Freedom House itself had received it," Miss Thompson wrote Field that, in view of the publicity, she was certain that unless she resigned "it will be assumed that Freedom House underwrites my views on the specific issues which have caused the dispute."

F D R, DEWEY MAP INTENSIVE DRIVE FOR KEY STATES

G. O. P. Nominee Leaves Today to Outline Farm Program in Middle West.

HEADS FOR MINNESOTA

President Plans Speech in Philadelphia on Attitude Toward Business.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A personal contest between President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for votes in populous and critical Eastern and Midwestern states is in prospect for the final two weeks of the campaign.

Mr. Roosevelt, who committed himself in a major foreign policy speech in New York Saturday night to unprecedented powers the U. S. representative in a world peace agency, planned two and possibly four more addresses in his drive for a fourth term.

His next and fourth frankly political speech will be in Philadelphia's Shibe Park Friday night. Chicago and Cleveland have been mentioned as possible choices for other vote-seeking speeches and he has a speaking date in Boston, probably Nov. 4.

Governor Dewey sets out from Albany again today on the campaign trail. His aides have indicated that in the first speech of the western swing—at Minneapolis Tuesday night—he will outline his views on a postwar agriculture program. Dewey had no immediate comment on the President's foreign policy speech.

Dewey to Speak in Chicago

The Republican candidate will speak in Chicago Wednesday, in Buffalo Oct. 31 and in Boston Nov. 1 and in a windup appearance in New York's Madison Square Garden on Nov. 4. Other speeches are being considered.

The President has set a course for a down-the-stretch fourth term drive almost parallel to that which culminated in his shattering the two-term tradition in 1940.

He has decided to alternate in Chief Executive and candidate roles as he did about this time four years ago. In battered fedora and Navy cape familiar to earlier campaigns, he has set out in heavy-balloting territory looking for votes which his political counselors believe may hold the answer to the Nov. 7 election.

Democratic leaders have made no secret of their glee over what they call "this fighting mood." They say he can "make votes" where they count.

Republicans say they are happy, too, that he is now "out in the open." Governor Dewey himself interpreted Mr. Roosevelt's decision to campaign actively as an effort to "reverse a trend" to the Republican side.

FDR to Talk on Business

Mr. Roosevelt made it plain in his foreign policy speech in New York that he was going to step up the tempo of his campaigning and not pull any punches. His speech in Philadelphia Friday night will deal with the administration's attitude toward business.

Mr. Roosevelt took a soaking, 50 miles of it, on a four-hour drive which paraded him in a rain-swept open car past tens of thousands of New Yorkers on Saturday. Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said the Chief Executive's physician, Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, had examined him immediately after the tour and found no ill effects. And McIntire himself told reporters that "it's much better than an even chance that he won't be a patient" as a result of the outing.

Willkie Vote?--'No One Knows'

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Russell W. Davenport, campaign manager for the late Wendell L. Willkie in 1940, said tonight that Willkie had not "made up his mind" about either 1944 candidate and that "no one in the world knows what his final position in this election would have been."

In a speech prepared for broadcast and distributed in advance by the Independent Republican Committee for Roosevelt, Davenport said:

"It is a known fact, spread on the record by Mr. Willkie himself just a few days before his death, that he had not yet made up his mind. As he himself declared, he was not satisfied with the platform of either party—not satisfied with the pronouncements of either candidate.

"No One In World Knows"

"He had, therefore, set himself the task of pressing for clearer commitments from both sides—commitments, especially, on that most critical issue of our time, the issue of American foreign policy.

"Mr. Willkie had not yet finished that task. And no one in the world knows what his final position in this election would have been."

While asserting that he also was "not satisfied with the pronouncements or commitments of either of the candidates in this election," Davenport said, he was "impressed" with what he called President Roosevelt's "firm and tangible steps taken in the direction of mutual peace."

Points To Roosevelt's Speech

He said the President, in addressing the Foreign Policy Association last night, "made it unmistakably clear that our representative in the future peace organization must be endowed, by constitutional means, with the power to act for us."

"Mr. Roosevelt," Davenport said, "has worked and is working with the determination and foresight that point on the compass of destiny where I believe America must go."

Asserting that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican Presidential nominee, had "failed to deal with the crucial problem of the power of our representative to the United Nations," he said Dewey's election "would constitute in effect a repudiation of the efforts of millions of independent-minded citizens who have worked and fought for years in the cause of international and collective peace."

Called "Shameful Thing" To Do

"Since Mr. Willkie's death some former friends and associates have tried to claim knowledge of which candidate he would have chosen," Davenport said. "They quote some one thing that he said to them, and try to draw from that quotation Wendell Willkie's final conclusion. This is a shameful thing to try to do. . . . For certainly no one has a right to speak for Wendell Willkie."

Declaring there is "only one issue in this campaign—the issue of peace," Davenport said that since 1940 President Roosevelt "has been working with skill and determination for mutual action among the peace-loving peoples of the earth."

"It is true that most of his action has of necessity been the hard and bloody action of war," Davenport said. "Yet he has not waged isolated war. The very structure of the war that he has waged is a mutual—a collective—structure."

1920 Campaign Parallel Noted

Drawing a parallel between the present campaign and that of 1920, Davenport said "as in 1920, the Republican candidate is surrounded by powerful men whose political careers are vested in opposition to mutual action of any kind. And as in 1920, the candidate has not repudiated the support of those men."

He said the "Harding Republicans" were only "half-determined to prevent another war," adding "the deadly inference is that the Dewey Republicans are the half-determined men of today."

FLYNN SLAPS BACK AT DEWEY

Accuses Governor Of "Loose And Malignant Lying"

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Edward J. Flynn, former Democratic national chairman, today accused Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of "loose and malignant lying" in his comments at Pittsburgh Friday night on Flynn's connection with the railway labor panel proceedings in 1943.

"In his now well-known and characteristic way he states only a part of the facts and in such order as to give the impression that my connection with the matter had some relation to the President's action and his participation in the mediation of the differences between the brotherhoods and the railroads," Flynn said in a statement released by the Democratic National Committee.

Says Dewey Knew It Was False

"Dewey," he added, "knows that this is a deliberate falsification."

The Republican Presidential nominee asserted in his Pittsburgh speech that there was "political cash" in the brotherhood case "for one of the New Deal city bosses" and that the brotherhoods "had to hire" Flynn. "The price of his services for the railroad workers," Dewey said, "was $25,000."

Roosevelt Drops Politics For Time

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Committed to unprecedented powers for America's spokesman on a world peace council, President Roosevelt doffed his campaign gear today and retired once more behind a curtain of censorship which conceals his wartime movements.

The curtain will be pulled aside again next Friday night, however, for his fourth big political speech of the fourth-term drive in Philadelphia's Shibe Park. The Chief Executive may be "on the record" much of the time from then until election day.

He has a speaking date in Boston, probably November 4, and Chicago and Cleveland have been mentioned as likely spots for more oratorical efforts to sway votes. Furthermore, the special train which brought Mr. Roosevelt to New York for a round of political activities yesterday had a newly rigged out press car.

Reporters figured it wasn't fixed up just for trips to New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

TRUMAN TO SPEAK ON FOREIGN POLICY

WITH TRUMAN ENROUTE TO MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 22 — (AP) Senator Harry S. Truman disclosed today that he will follow up President Roosevelt's attack on the Republican foreign policy with a major address of his own at St.

Paul, Minn., tomorrow night.

The President's fourth term running mate, who heard his chief's New York address Saturday night, over radio in his special campaign car, told reporters it "was a grand speech and one with which every thinking American will agree. The President names names and I plan to add a name or two to the list of Republican isolationists."

Truman asserted that "Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, tried to convince the people he is not an isolationist but a man is known by the company he keeps. Even if Mr. Dewey's words as to his own views could be taken at face value they are meaningless as long as isolationists dominate his party in the Senate, in which treaty making power is vested by the Constitution."

Gannett Assails Roosevelt On Isolationist Charge

Terms Accusation 'Unjust and Entirely False'

ROCHESTER, Oct. 22 (AP). — In a telegram sent to President Roosevelt tonight Frank Gannet, publisher of the Gannet newspapers criticized the Chief Executive for the latter's description of the Gannett papers as "isolationist" in an address last night in New York.

Mr. Roosevelt had told the Foreign Policy Association" and I am proud of the fact that the Administration does not have the support of the isolationist press—and I mean specifically the McCormick-Patterson - Hearst - Gannett press."

"In calling the Gannett newspapers isolationist you are guilty of a gross misrepresentation which I resent," read Mr. Gannett's telegram. "Not one of these papers could, by any stretch of the imagination, be correctly characterized as isolationist. . . . The intimation that I as head of this group of newspapers am an isolationist is likewise unjust and utterly false.

"I urged you in 1935 to call a conference in the neutral atmosphere of Washington of leaders of important European nations to remove the causes that were fast bringing on the present and greatest of all tragedies. But you poohpoohed my appeal and little or nothing was done to bring about international co-operation and understanding that might have prevented this frightful, ruinous, costly war. My attitude then certainly was not that of an isolationist and never has been."

REGISTRATION REACHES PEAK

Associated Press Survey Made In 13 Large Cities

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Registration for the Presidential election, 16 days away, is at an all-time peak in the nation's largest cities, an Associated Press survey showed today.

Including the service men and women who have applied for ballots, slightly more than 12,000,000 persons have qualified for voting in cities of more than 500,000 population.

The number registered in these cities in 1940, a banner year in most sections of the country, was 11,215,461, compared with 9,393,748 in the "off year" 1942.

St. Louis Expects Drop

Each of 13 cities over the half-million mark reports higher registration than in 1940 except St. Louis, which expects a drop of 18,000 to 20,000 when official figures are available.

Whether this year's record registration will produce a correspondingly high vote will not be known, of course, until election night or even later in cities which do not count their military ballots with the others.

In 1940 the 13 cities' combined vote was approximately 10,000,000, or more than one fifth of the total pouplar vote of 49,815,312. Their combined vote dropped to around 6,650,000 in 1942.

Increases Over 1940

Here are the registration increases over 1940:

New York	216,675
Chicago	198,192
Philadelphia	13,076
Detroit	108,088
Los Angeles	96,974
Cleveland	9,771
Baltimore	33,441
Boston	16,042
Pittsburgh	40,993
San Francisco	40,776
Milwaukee	8,812
Buffalo	2,640

Milwaukee registration continues until next Friday night.

MEANWHILE BRITISH TROOPS IMMEDIATELY TOOK OVER THE AREA EVACUATED BY THE ENEMY. AS YET THE ENEMY HAS NOT THROWN TANKS AND IT IS BELIEVED HIS ARMOR IS VERY SCARCE IN THIS SECTOR. THE COUNTRY, SWAMPY AND BROKEN BY NUMEROUS CANALS AND SOAKED BY RAIN, IS ENTIRELY UNSUITABLE FOR A GREAT DEPLOYMENT OF TANKS, WHICH MUST STICK TO THE ROADS.

THE GERMANS, WITH DUG-IN INFANTRY POSITIONS, 88'S, MORTARS AND ONE OR TWO TANKS, CAN PRESENT A STRONG DEFENSE ON ALL ROAD APPROACHES.

AP22 MOSCOW, OCT 22-(AP)-THE RUSSIAN SUPREME COMMAND STRENGTHENED THREE HUGE TASK FORCES TODAY FOR THE JOB OF CARRYING THE WAR INTO AUSTRIA AS A SOVIET ARMY PINCERS STABBED DEEPLY ACROSS THE HUNGARIAN PLAINS NORTHEAST AND SOUTHWEST OF BUDAPEST.

THE ARMIES OF MARSHAL RODION Y.MALINOVSKY, IN THE CENTER, GEN.FEODOR I.TOLBUKHIN ON THE SOUTH AND COL.GEN.IVAN PETROV ON THE NORTH STEPPED UP THE TRIPLE OFFENSIVE WHICH MAY SOON CRIPPLE THE NAZI DEFENSE OF THE SOUTHERN TERRITORY OF THE REICH.

PETROV, IN NORTHEASTERN HUNGARY, WAS DIRECTING THE PUSH OF HIS FOURTH UKRAINIAN ARMY TOWARD CENTRAL SLOVAKIA WHERE A LARGE AREA IS OCCUPIED ALREADY BY SLOVAK PATRIOTS.

(THE BERLIN RADIO SAID TODAY THAT SOVIET TROOPS HAD ENTERED NYIREGYHAZA, HUNGARIAN TOWN 30 MILES NORTH OF FALLEN DEBRECEN AND ABOUT 30 MILES SOUTH OF THE CZECHOSLOVAK BORDER.)

PETROV AT THE SAME TIME IS AIMING TO SEVER THE NORTH AND SOUTH COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN SLOVAKIA AND HUNGARY WHILE CLEARING THE TRACK OF THE TRANS-SLOVAK RAILWAY LEADING WESTWARD INTO MORAVIA.

THE TERRAIN IN HIS SECTOR IS DIFFICULT, RANGING FROM HILLS TO JAGGED MOUNTAINS WHICH SOON WILL BE SNOWCAPPED, MAKING IT VIRTUALLY IMPOSSIBLE FOR PETROV TO STAGE ANY SORT OF A BLITZ. NEVERTHELESS, SLOVAK SUPPORT MAY PROVE A LARGE FACTOR IN QUICKENING HIS ARMY'S PROGRESS.

MALINOVSKY IS ENGAGED IN A FRONTAL ATTACK AGAINST BUDAPEST FROM SPRINGBOARDS ON THE WEST SIDE OF THE TISZA RIVER 50 TO 70 MILES SOUTHEAST OF THE MAGYAR CAPITAL.

OCT 23 1944

NAZI MASTERY OVER THE PRO-HORTHY HUNGARIAN ARMY UNITS HAS KEPT THE WEHRMACHT IN CONTROL OF THE VITAL RAILWAY NET RADIATING OUT OF BUDAPEST. WITH EXTREMELY SHORT SUPPLY LINES AND THE VARIETY OF SECONDARY RAIL ROUTES AVAILABLE THE NAZIS YAVE BEEN ABLE TO SHIFT FORCES FASTER THAN MALINOVSKY.

THE RUSSIAN GENERAL'S IMMEDIATE ASSIGNMENT APPEARED TO BE TO GRIND DOWN ENEMY RESERVES AND ARMOR IN AN EFFORT TO CONTAIN THE BULK OF GERMAN STRENGTH ON HIS FRONT WHILE PETROV'S AND TOLBUKHIN'S COLUMNS RUN THE FLANKS.

TOLBUKHIN'S FORCES ARE POISED TO THE SOUTH, HAVING LIBERATED THE YUGOSLAV CAPITAL, BELGRADE, AND APPEARED TO BE DEVELOPING AN OFFENSIVE, ALONG WITH YUGOSLAV PARTISAN TROOPS, ALONG THE SAVA RIVER TOWARD ZAGREB AND BUDAPEST.

IT ENUMERATED THESE POINTS:

1. THAT THE PHILIPPINE COMMONWEALTH GOVERNMENT IS "SUBJECT TO THE SUPREME AUTHORITY OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES" AND IS THE ONLY GOVERNMENT WITH LEGAL JURISDICTION OVER PEOPLE IN PHILIPPINE AREAS FREED FROM THE ENEMY.

2. THAT EXISTING COMMONWEALTH LAWS ARE IN FULL FORCE IN THOSE REGIONS.

3. THAT LAWS OF THE PUPPET "REPUBLIC" ARE "NULL AND VOID" IN LIBERATED TERRITORY AND THE "SACRED RIGHT OF GOVERNMENT BY CONSTITUTIONAL PROCESS UNDER THE ...COMMONWEALTH GOVERNMENT" WILL BE EXTENDED TO AREAS AS THEY ARE LIBERATED AND "THE MILITARY SITUATION WILL OTHERWISE PERMIT."

DAYTON,O.,OCT.22-(AP)-GERMANY'S VENGEANCE WEAPON--THE ROBOT BOMB--WAS DUPLICATED AT WRIGHT FIELD 60 DAYS AFTER PARTS COLLECTED FROM DUDS WHICH FELL IN ENGLAND ARRIVED HERE, THE AIR TECHNICAL SERVICE COMMAND REPORTED TODAY.

MAJ.GEN.BENNETT E.MEYERS, ATSC DEPUTY DIRECTOR SAID HOWEVER, THE WEAPON "IS NOT A COPYING JOB BECAUSE WE HAVE NO INTEREST IN A WEAPON WHICH DESTROYS AT RANDOM."

"THE AMERICAN MIND TENDS TO ACCURATE DESTRUCTION OF MILITARY OBJECTIVES ONLY, NOT IN HITTING HOMES AND CIVILIAN POPULATIONS," HE ADDED.

FIVE OF THE COMMAND'S 12 LABORATORIES--POWER PLANT, AIRCRAFT, EQUIPMENT, RADIO, AND MATERIALS--COOPERATED UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF THE ENGINEERING DIVISION TO ASSEMBLE THE PARTS SHIPPED IN, AND THE COMPLETED JOB WAS TESTED IN THE HUGE WIND TUNNEL AT WRIGHT FIELD.

THE JET IMPULSE ENGINE WAS "DOPED OUT" AND A MODEL MADE OF ALLOYS SIMILAR TO THOSE FOUND IN THE GERMAN ORIGINAL. THE FORD MOTOR CO. NOW IS PRODUCING THE ENGINES FOR FURTHER EXPERIMENTS.

RESEARCH BY JACK & HEINTZ CO. OF CLEVELAND DISCLOSED THAT THE BOMB, AFTER BEING LAUNCHED FROM A TRACK, WAS CONTROLLED BY A COMPASS DEVICE PRE-SET FOR A DESIRED DIRECTION. HOWEVER, CROSS WINDS AFFECTED ACCURACY.

IN ADDITION TO FORD, AND JACK & HEINTZ, OTHER COOPERATING MANUFACTURERS ON EXPERIMENTAL MODELS ARE REPUBLIC AVIATION CORP., AIR FRAMES AND ASSEMBLIES, AND MONSANTO CHEMICAL CORP., CATAPULTING ROCKETS.

THE ROBOT HAS A HIGHLY STREAMLINED FUSELAGE WITH STUBBY WINGS OVER WHICH IS MOUNTED THE ENGINE. MOTIVE POWER IS SUPPLIED BY RAPID EXPLOSIONS OF GASOLINE IN A COMBUSTION CHAMBER, WITH THE FORCE DIRECTED OUT THE OPEN REAR END OF A TUBE.

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON, OCT.21-(AP)-THE ALLIED CONTROL COMMISSION, IN A REPORT TO THE PUBLIC TODAY, SAID THAT "THE POLICY OF THE UNITED NATIONS IS TO PLACE UPON THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT THE FULLEST RESPONSIBILITY FOR ADMINISTRATION AT THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE MOMENT."

THE REPORT COVERS THE PERIOD OF ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT IN ITALY UP TO AUGUST 22. SINCE THEN THE COMMISSION HAS BEEN REDESIGNATED AS THE "ALLIED COMMISSION," AND, PURSUANT TO THE DECLARATIONS OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AT QUEBEC, HAS ADOPTED A POLICY OF TURNING MORE AND MORE SELF GOVERNMENT OVER TO THE ITALIANS.

THE COMMISSION SAID THAT IT "MUST AND DOES WORK THROUGH THE ITALIAN AUTHORITIES" AND THAT "LOCAL GOVERNMENTS WILL AND MUST BE USED TO THE HILT."

HERE ARE SOME OF THE OBSERVATIONS MADE IN THE REPORT:

THE GERMANS ARE SPREADING ANTI-ALLIED GOVERNMENT PROPAGANDA AMONG ITALIAN PATRIOTS "AS ENERGETICALLY AS THEY CAN, BUT THIS IS BEING COUNTERACTED BY GIVING ENCOURAGEMENT TO THE PATRIOTS."

MOST OF THE PATRIOTS AT THIS STAGE OF THE WAR HAVE "VERY LITTLE IDEA OF THE AIMS AND AMBITIONS OF THE SIX POLITICAL PARTIES IN ITALY, BUT THEY ARE KEENLY ALIVE TO THE FACT THAT SOMETHING DRASTIC MUST BE DONE ABOUT POLITICS IN THE VERY NEAR FUTURE AND, BEING MOSTLY YOUNG AND ACTIVE MEN, THEY ARE KEENLY SUSCEPTIBLE TO INFLUENCE AND REQUIRE A LEAD FROM THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT."

TANKS SPEARHEAD YANK ADVANCE ON LEYTE; NAZI LINES BUCKLING IN WESTERN HOLLAND

AMERICAN FORCES THREATEN TO TRAP RETREATING JAPS

MC DANIEL

Control Coastal Approaches to Important Valley on Island.

WIN HILL POSITIONS

U. S. Warships Bombard Enemy Entrenched in Concrete Pillboxes.

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Oct. 23.—(Via Army Radio) — (AP) American ground forces tonight held the main coastal approaches to Leyte valley after winning dominating hill positions and fighting through swamps that had impeded the westward thrust of their invasion front on Leyte island in the central Philippines.

Spearheaded by tanks, the Doughboys drove stubborn Japanese from the hills blocking the northern entrance to the valley while other forces threaded the swamps at the southern anchor of the line.

Threaten to Encircle Japs

These advances threatened to encircle Nipponese defending the southern end of the front, who already were in retreat northwestward. Doughboys of the Seventh division were in hot pursuit. They overran the enemy's hedgerow defenses in an effort to catch the fleeing Japanese.

Yanks of the 24th division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, knifed out from Palo in the northern sector. They combined surprise and overwhelming firepower to seize an important hill southwest of the town of about 3,000, overrun earlier.

A heavy bombardment by American warships standing off Leyte in the gulf dislodged the Japanese from their concrete positions atop the hills. When the bombardment lifted the enemy started to reoccupy their dugouts. American infantrymen, however, outraced them and gained the summit through sniper and machine-gun fire.

The southern spearhead, paced by tanks led by Lt. Col. Herbert R. Edmonsen of Gainesville, Ga., hurtled strong enemy defenses in its thrust from Dulag. This operation as well as the action to the north was developing in terrain ideal for armored warfare.

Palo, the hub from which the northern thrust was stemming, is about 14 miles above Dulag.

Both east coast ends of Leyte valley, which roughly parallels the eastern coast of the island, are held by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's assault forces. The valley is about 25 miles wide at its lower end, on the gulf, tapering to a width of about 10 miles at the northern end on Carigara bay. It is about 35 miles long and is crossed by many rivers.

Jap Islands Bombed

(A communique today from Adm. Chester W. Nimitz at Pearl Harbor told of aerial strikes at Japanese island positions in the western Pacific but made no mention of new carrier aircraft attacks on the Philippines. Such sweeps over the Philippines were launched daily for a week by the air arm of Adm. William F. Halsey's Third fleet. The last reported raid was on October 20, U. S. time.

(Indications were that the operation developing from Dulag was driving the Japanese northwestward up the open valley. Their retreat could be cut off by the American thrust from Palo, thus forcing the Japanese into the hills where his supply problem would become precarious.

(The immediate objective of the Dulag forces appeared to be San Pablo, seven miles inland on a highway leading to the coast. Beyond San Pablo is Burauen, where the roads turns north toward Dagami, a highway terminal.)

As these ground drives developed Tacloban became the temporary capital of the first free government in the islands since the Japanese conquest of 1942. The Commonwealth authority was proclaimed by MacArthur and inaugurated by President Sergio Osmena who had returned with the liberation forces.

Jap Laws Called Void

The bark of anti-aircraft guns punctuated MacArthur's reading of the proclamation pronouncing "null and void" the laws promulgated by the invaders and their puppets.

Both MacArthur and Osmena addressed the remainder of the subjugated archipelago by radio, informing the inhabitants that the Leyte landings were but the prelude to freeing the entire country.

This campaign of liberation, MacArthur said, would unfold from Leyte, already being developed as a great base for future operations. Much of the activity centered about the Tacloban and Dulag airdromes.

(Recognition of this possibility came from the Tokyo radio which broadcast a Domei news agency dispatch saying "Japan is now on the defensive." The broadcast quoted Masanori Ito, a naval commentator, as saying the invasion of the Philippines was "welcomed" because it offered "another opportunity to deal crushing blows on the mainstay of the enemy's Pacific forces."

on Leyte Island's southern front, today overran strong Japanese defense positions and were trying to trap enemy troops retreating up the wide Leyte Valley.

Associated Press War Correspondent Al Dopking, on the southern front, reported that Yank Seventh Infantry Division troops, led by tanks, were moving up the open valley inland from Dulag where one of the first American beachheads was established. The troops engaged in the action were under command of Lieut. Col. Herbert Edmundson, of Georgia.

The country leading northwestward from Dulag is flat and ideal for tank warfare.

Flanked By Peaks

The Leyte Valley, over which the forces of liberation are moving, is 25 miles wide on the southwest. It tapers to ten miles wide on the northeast. The valley is flanked by mountain ranges with peaks rising up to 1,300 feet.

(The action west of Dulag appeared to center on the highway leading from the east coast to the roadside town of San Pablo, seven miles inland. Beyond that town was Burauen, west end of the provincial road. There it turns northward toward Dagami, highway junction.

May Flee To Mountains

(Supposedly, the Japanese on the southern front were retreating northward up the open valley or falling back into mountain positions on the southwest of the valley.)

Meanwhile, Tacloban, the provincial capital. Occupied by the Yanks after they took the airfield in that sector, became the temporary capital of the first free government of the Philippines in more than two years.

Building Big Bases

As his troops pressed forward, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced preparations already are under way for construction of a great base for future operations around the captured airdromes of Tacloban and Dulag.

The supply problem for Japan's 16th Division already is becoming difficult after their "preliminary defeat" and should they be forced into the hills might become acute, MacArthur said in his communique.

The role of this strategic island, in the heart of the Philippines, was underlined by the announcement that work has commenced on the two captured airfields and other installations to prepare "a great base for all arms for future operations."

Flank Bases Bombed

The announcement concerning the enemy's supply problems apparently referred to the effect of paralyzing aerial blows against communication lines and flank Japanese bases. These strikes continued, with bombers hitting other Visayan islands, surrounding Leyte, and Mindanao as well as more distant bases.

In return, the Japanese made "minor ineffectual" air raids against American shipping.

C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press war correspondent on the Sixth Army beachhead, reported that the army's superior firepower was coming into play against Japanese delaying action in that sector near the center of the American front. However, fleet units supported the infantrymen with inshore bombardments against enemy resistance pockets in low hills along the road leading to Leyte Valley.

No Details Given

The communique did not specify the preparations which have begun to groom Leyte as a great striking base. Its phraseology, however, indicated that its harbor facilities, as well as the airfields, would be utilized, possibly to base naval forces.

Bomber raids on other Visayan Islands sank three small freighters and probably sank four others. Heavy units blasted Mindanao with 94 tons of explosives, starting fires at Cagayan, principal port and transportation center in the northern part of the island. No opposition was encountered there.

Fighters strafed a 23-truck convoy on Sayre Highway, Mindanao, and medium bombers destroyed barracks and float planes in the interior.

Other raids included fire-kindling attacks on Balikpapan, Borneo oil center, by night reconnaissance planes.

Yanks, Led By Tanks, Drive To Trap Foe In Leyte Valley

New York, Oct. 23—The Japanese news agency Domei "has announced that British troops have landed on the Nicobar Islands in the Indian Ocean," a British broadcast said today. CBS recorded the broadcast.

LEYTE BATTLE NO PUSHOVER

Broadcast Says Fight Is Not Easy As Indicated

San Francisco, Oct. 23—Royal Arch Gunnison, Mutual network reporter, said in a broadcast from Leyte today that American positions on the Philippine island proved "how firmly the United States" has put herself back in the Far East, "but it has not been as easy as the communiques indicate."

Gunnison said the enemy defensive forces of an estimated 225,000 are scattered throughout the archipelago and have been cut in half by the American landing on Leyte.

"Submarines and air power can keep them from moving between islands," he said.

Expect Hard Fight On Luzon

He added "we expect the Japanese to fight hard on the island of Luzon."

In another Mutual broadcast, Gordon Walker likened the capture of Tacloban, Leyte's capital, to that of Cherbourg, in France. Both, he said, are key supply bases and communication centers.

Walker said the most impressive sight on the beaches was little groups of Filipino women coming down from the hills to thank the Americans for their liberation. They went back wearing GI clothing and carrying foodstuffs.

Supplies were being unloaded at Tacloban while artillery flashes were seen behind the city, he said.

4 Divisions Wiping Out Japs

William Chickering for the Blue network reported that four American divisions were wiping out the Japanese 16th Division.

He said the steady roar of artillery was pacing the American advance and Allied planes constantly were overhead.

Filipinos, he added, are bringing in "amazingly accurate information.

Chickering termed the display of gratitude of liberated Filipinos as an "unforgettable" sight.

Arthur Feldman of the blue network interviewing a 21-year-old Filipino, asked "where were you during the American bombardment before the invasion?"

"I climbed a coconut tree," the Filipino replied.

Force With MacArthur Believed 100,000 Up

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—A restudy of dispatches indicates that the striking force which Gen. Douglas MacArthur put ashore on D-day in the Philippines may have amounted to between 100,000 and 150,000 men.

This compares with first estimates that upward of 250,000 men went ashore in the first phases of the landing in the Leyte area.

Dispatches from the island since then have identified the Seventh, 24th and 96th Infantry divisions, the First Cavalry Division and the Third Engineer Brigade as being ashore the first day. The normal strength of an American division is about 15,000. The size of a brigade varies with particular operations and requirements, but often is in the vicinity of 12,000.

These organizations therefore would account for about 72,000 men. Service units in battle zones usually are about 30 per cent. of the size of actual combat forces. To these groups would be added a small number of attached units, specialists and other personnel, bringing the total strength to approximately 100,000.

The possible presence of other divisions not immediately identified might lift the total to about 150,000.

New Rule Set Up In Philippines

Tacloban, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 23 (AP)—Constitutional government under the American flag formally was restored to the Philippines today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur while warfare still surged near Tacloban, the temporary capital.

Cheers of liberated Filipinos mingled with speeches by General MacArthur and President Sergio Osmena.

"We are here in this capital city of the province of Leyte," said MacArthur, "to establish under the protection of American (arms) the (foundations) of your commonwealth government and thereby initiate the restoration to the Philippine peoples of the sacred right of self-rule."

Puppet Rule Ended

He announced all laws of the Philippine commonwealth government again are "in full force and effect and legally binding upon the peoples of the areas of the Philippines free of enemy occupation and control."

The ceremony was on the steps of the white stone Leyte provincial capital building. An honor guard bulged the assembly call as General MacArthur and President Osmena rode up from the harbor jetty together.

Cabinet Members There

"You can still hear the echo of our guns, but in their echo there is being reborn the new and greater Philippine nation, a nation consecrated in the blood of its citizens," said MacArthur. "For you we are no conquering army. We are an army of free citizens, like yourselves determined unto death that Democratic processes shall not pass."

General MacArthur introduced President Osmena, who, with six members of his Cabinet, landed behind United States liberation forces on Leyte beach. They came from the United States.

Yanks, Filipinos Mix

Hundreds of American servicemen mingled with the Filipinos who swarmed in front of the Leyte capital building to hear MacArthur's proclamation.

MacArthur said all Japanese and the puppet "republic's" laws are null and void and added: "I do hereby announce my purpose progressively to restore and extend to the peoples of the Philippines the sacred right of government by constitutional process under the regularly constituted commonwealth government as rapidly as the several occupied areas are liberated and the military situation will otherwise permit."

Osmena Thanks U. S.

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Commonwealth President Sergio Osmena, in his first message sent from the Philippine Islands to President Roosevelt, thanked the American people today for the "immense war effort" which enabled the Philippine Government to return to its homeland.

The message, described as a cable from the island of Leyte, was released by the White House. Actually it appeared to have been a radio message, but Stephen Early, press secretary, said, with a grin, that "we look forward to the early re-establishment of cable connections with the Philippines."

Osmena said he felt certain that "this military operation, which has begun so well, will prove once again, as did the battle of Bataan, that our two countries are linked together by imperishable ties of understanding and friendship."

Filipinos Return to Palo

WITH AMERICAN FORCES AT PALO, Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 22 (Delayed) (Via Army Radio) (AP).—Long lines of Filipinos were streaming back tonight into Palo, second Leyte Island town of any size to be liberated by American forces.

Their town virtually untouched by the terrific American naval bombardment, and their steel bridge, pride of Palo, still standing, the people returned from the nearby hills. Normally, Palo had a population of around 3,000.

The Japanese killed the town as surely as if they had destroyed it. They were cruel to the people. They fixed store prices and then bought out the merchants with worthless Japanese invasion money. Today the stores are closed because the stocks went with the Japanese as they retreated.

The Americans had a hard time last night when the Japanese counter-attacked, but drove them off, killing a score or more. Private Lester Hudson, of Plainsville, Me., stopped several of the charging Japanese with grenades.

More than a hundred of the villagers were sheltered in a convent when the Americans landed. The town's only American, Joe Henry Barber, lived in Elizabethtown, N. C., in 1900. He has a Filipino wife and ten children. The Japanese interned Barber two years ago.

Lieutenant James McGaffin, of West Roxbury, Mass., led one of the first American units into Palo. With him were Staff Sergeants Arthur Hands, of New Haven, Conn., and Lloyd Hess, of Oklahoma.

83 Heroes of Bataan Are Liberated

New Yorkers in Group Safe in U. S. Hands—Men Escaped as Sub Sank Prison Ship.

Headquarters, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 23 (Via Army Radio) (A. P.).—The rescue of eighty-three American officers and men who had been Jap prisoners of war in the Philippines for two and a half years was revealed today.

The men escaped from an American-torpedoed Jap transport, evaded their captors' guns which were turned on the trapped prisoners and were hidden by Filipino guerrillas until removed from the islands several weeks ago.

An Army press release said two voluntarily remained behind with the guerrillas and the remainder are safe in New Guinea hospitals. Those still in the islands are Lieut. Richard L. Cook of Los Angeles and Staff Sergt. Joseph Cole, Plateau, Ala.

"All of the men are in good condition, except five recovering from bullet and grenade wounds," the announcement said. "None is listed as serious."

The New Yorkers Rescued.

Among those rescued were First Lieut. Bert Schwarz of 96-111 65th Road, Forest Hills, Queens; Pfc. J. J. Macowski, 652 Leonard street, Brooklyn; Private John R. Bennett, 69 Albemarle street, Hempstead, L. I., and Private Walter E. Gardner, 175-18 111th avenue, Jamaica, Queens.

The Americans had been held in the Davao penal colony on Mindanao since the fall of Bataan and Corregidor. They were forced to labor on an airfield against their protests and with insufficient food and clothing. When American planes started assaults on the southern Philippines the Japs began moving their prisoners to other camps, evidently expecting invasion.

The survivors were tightly packed in the hold of one ship in such a convoy when it was attacked by an American submarine. Their transport and at least two other enemy ships were sunk.

Some Yanks Executed.

"The Japanese guards deliberately fired on the Americans trapped in the holds and seeking to escape from the sinking ship," the announcement said. "Others were hunted down and killed in the water as they sought to swim for shore, two miles distant. Some were picked up by enemy patrol boats and at least thirty were later brutally executed.

"After escaping death from such savagery and hours of hardship, eighty-three of the American officers and men made shore and were cared for by Filipino guerrillas until picked up and taken south by submarines and planes."

One other man, whose name was not given, escaped from the gunfire but died later and was buried in the cemetery of a southern Philippine village.

All the survivors told virtually the same story of their ordeal. Lieut. John J. Morris of Springfield, Ohio, acted as their spokesman.

18 Days in Ship's Hold.

He said the men taken from Mindanao were marched to a vessel in Davao Bay on August 20. They were hemmed in by ropes, tied to the outside men in the group, and guarded by enemy soldiers with machine guns and automatic rifles. They were packed so tightly in ships' holds that they could hardly sit down.

"The heat was terrific," said Lieut. Morris, "and the Japanese had fastened the hatches over the hold so that there was practically no ventilation."

They traveled for eighteen days in this close confinement, with insufficient food and less than a cup of water daily. All but the strongest were exhausted.

Two bombing attacks, which the men heard from their stifling quarters below decks, and a long wait in a southern Philippine harbor preceded the submarine raid which sank the ships.

Brutality at Work.

While working on the Mindanao airfield, the men were housed in four small barracks. They received 500 grams of rice per man daily at first, but this was reduced to 300 grams, plus a few vegetables. Limited amounts of salt were provided, despite their work in the grueling sun, and on many days they received no salt.

Guards often beat the laborers with clubs to force more work. Later, alleging an escape attempt had been frustrated, the Japanese confiscated the prisoners' shoes, including those doing pick-and-shovel work on terrain which repeatedly lacerated their feet.

Also included in the group were Capt. Robert G. Blakeslee, Glenn Falls, N. Y.; Second Lieut. Edward S. Tresniewski, Cohoes, N. Y. and Private Marbo A. Caputo, Fort Edward, N. Y.

New Yorkers Are Named

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Oct. 22 (Delayed) (AP).—The first eighty-three American prisoners of war to be rescued from the Philippines include the following: Captain Robert G. Blakeslee, of Glens Falls, N. Y.; First Lieutenant Bert Schwarz, 96111 Sixty-fifth Road, Forest Hills, L. I.; Second Lieutenant Edward S. Tresniewski, Cohoes, N. Y.; Private First Class J. J. Mackawski, 652 Leonard Street, Brooklyn; Private John R. Bennett, Hempstead, L. I.; Private First Class Michael Pulice, Carlsbad, N. J.; Private Marbo A. Caputo, Fort Edward, N. Y.; Private Walter E. Japan On Defensive, Tokyo Radio Admits

San Francisco, Oct. 23 (AP)—"Japan is now on the defensive," a Japanese naval commentator, Masanori Ito, said today in a dispatch transmitted by Domei news agency.

Ito's statement came in the course of remarks in which it was claimed that Japan "welcomed" the American invasion of the Philippines because it offered "another opportunity to deal crushing blows on the mainstay of the enemy's Pacific forces."

The speaker compared Formosa with Pearl Harbor but then said:

"However, a considerable difference exists in the present circumstances, compared to three years ago. That difference is that Japan is now on the defensive, while three years ago she was on the offensive."

The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Claims Four U. S. Ships Damaged

Domei also asserted that four more American ships had been damaged by Japanese bombers in Leyte Gulf of the Philippines.

The broadcast listed the four as two destroyers, a transport and an aircraft carrier. Previous Tokyo claims asserted a transport and a destroyer had been sunk and five other ships damaged in the gulf.

MacArthur's HQ Moves Far In 2½ Years

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 23 (AP). From the girls' high school in Melbourne, to Brisbane, to Papua, to Dutch New Guinea, to Leyte Island—that is the progress of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Southwest Pacific Headquarters in two and a half years.

The headquarters itinerary shows how the war in the Pacific changed from one of desperate defense to deep thrusting attacks.

Two Thirds Of The Way

MacArthur has progressed approximately 3,200 miles from his first Australian headquarters. It is another 1,850 miles to Tokyo.

As the Yanks moved northward and, finally right out of Australia, except for handfuls of troops winding up affairs here, much of the color and excitement has gone from what were actually garrison cities.

Gone, too, are some of the petty annoyances inescapably attendant on packing cities with scores of thousands of carefree, easy-spending visitors. The Australian pound has returned to its own. Taxis are no longer "for Americans only."

10,000 American Sons-In-Law

But the garrison time discomforts are already forgotten as reports flow in telling of new conquests by Australia's erstwhile guests. What Australians will remember will be the friendship made with Americans. Australians, too, now have more than 10,000 American sons-in-law.

GERMAN ATTACKS FORCE CANADIANS TO QUIT BRESKENS

'Confused' Situation Reported in Fighting Along Schelde Estuary.

BRITISH DRIVE AHEAD

Hammer at 'S-Hertogenbosch Shielding Entrance to Dutch Lowlands.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 24—(AP) The British Second army early today hammered at 'S-Hertogenbosch, the German shield for all of western Holland, and the enemy defenses seemed about to buckle, but Canadian forces to the southwest were reported withdrawn from Breskens on the south shore of the Schelde river estuary in a "confused" situation.

The Canadian First army had taken Breskens, a ferry port on the long waterway leading to Antwerp, Sunday and had pushed beyond. Late dispatches from Supreme Allied headquarters at Paris, however, said the Canadians had retired from the town last night and that there was see-saw fighting in the area.

Nazi Battalion Wiped Out

In their advance on 'S-Hertogenbosch, the British wiped out a whole battalion of the 712th German infantry division and took 500 prisoners, including one regimental and one battallion commander.

The hard-driving Tommies, smashing in on 'S-Hertogenbosch from three directions, rocked the Nazis back approximately six miles in liberating the important towns of Schinjndel, Middelrode, Olland and Bruggen. They received tumultuous welcomes from the Dutch populace.

Fresh momentum was given the British offensive against the western flank of the Holland bridgehead by a new attack launched at midnight from the south side of the Zuid Willemsvaart canal, southeast of 'S-Hertogenbosch. The Germans tried desperately to regain their balance and realign their defenses, but were handicapped by an obvious shortage of artillery in this sector.

Dempsey's vanguards fought into the outskirts of Berlicum, two and a half miles due east of 'S-Hertogenbosch; reached St. Michiels Gestel, three and a half miles southeast of the fortress town, and were fighting for a bridge across the Dommel river at Boxtel, six miles to the south.

British Drive on City

An upper British spearhead, approaching the city from the northeast along the railroad from Oss, was reported within five miles of 'S-Hertogenbosch. A flooded countryside and thousands of anti-personnel mines added greatly to the difficulty of the Allied advance.

'S-Hertogenbosch, a city of 41,000 also known as Bois Le Duc, is a junction of five rail lines and an important center of motor roads and waterways. The Nazis captured it May 12, 1940, after German troops in Dutch uniforms seized its vital bridges and defense centers.

German military commentators, conceding British gains in the area, said the obvious aim of the new offensive was to cut off German forces south of the Maas (Meuse) and Waal Rhine rivers and to gain elbow room for a general drive into central Holland.

Canadian troops, sweeping north from the liberated town of Esschen on the Belgian-Dutch border above Antwerp, were reported little more than three miles from Rosendaal and threatening to flank the heavily fortified German bolt position of Bergen op Zoom, seven miles to the west and slightly south.

Schoondijke, three miles south of Breskens in the Scheldt pocket, was taken yesterday by Canadian infantry, eliminating another strongpoint of the Nazis trapped in that sector. The town, which has a normal population of 2,000, was reported in ruins when the Canadians entered.

A dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent William F. Boni said the Canadians today had attacked Fort Frederik Hendrik, a mile from Breskens, and "heavy going" seemed likely before the Germans could be driven from that strongpoint. The Nazis, he said had laid low in the fortress while the Canadians swept into Breskens, but opened an attack when the Canadians penetrated the outer rim of its defenses.

Nazi forces on the south side of the estuary now are estimated to number fewer than 4,000 men, while some 11,000 are believed to occupy partially flooded Walcheren island and the South Beveland peninsula on the north side.

Guns Control Estuary

The German radio claimed tonight that long-range Nazi guns still effectively prevented Allied supply ships from entering the estuary although field dispatches said these guns on the north side of the river had been reduced to one battery.

A Nazi commentator said "the Canadians now seem to aim not only at the liquidation of the German bridgehead but also at frustrating a retreat to Walcheren and South Beveland." The chief remaining enemy stronghold was at Cadzand, near the coast west of Breskens.

Activity on the American First army front was limited to mopping up in the Wurselen area northeast of Aachen, whose fall finally was admitted tonight by the Berlin radio.

The Germans were reported to have abandoned plans for mass civilian evacuation of the Rhineland and instead were trying to isolate their soldiers as much as possible from the civilians, who were weary of the war.

"In some cases the German people are ready to toss in the towel," an American officer on the First army front reported. "Many do not hesitate to talk to the troops and to tell them they are foolish to continue fighting."

It was believed the Germans abandoned their mass evacuation plan because of lack of housing in central Germany, where many cities already are badly damaged by Allied bombing.

Mud Slows Patton

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army troops, sorely handicapped by almost continuous rain and deep mud in northeastern France, fought into the village of Bezange-La-Petite, 19 miles east of Nancy, but were forced to withdraw by dug-in German tanks.

To the south other Yank units had reached Hill 284, west of Moncourt, and held two-thirds of Moncourt forest, but had not yet penetrated the town of Moncourt, a front dispatch said tonight.

Berlin reported new American troop concentrations on the Moselle river at Pont-A-Mousson, 16 miles south of Metz, and predicted that an encircling drive would be attempted on Metz. It boasted, however, that the famous fortress city was impregnable with its ring of 22 forts on either side of the Moselle.

The American and French Sixth army group was reported maintaining "heavy pressure" in the Vosges mountains, where it was probing for a passage to the southern Rhine valley. Several more villages were entered northeast of Epinal and Allied spearheads were said to be within 15 miles of Bonhomme pass.

British-based American heavy bombers were grounded by thick weather, and even fighter operations over the continent were curtailed by fog.

second day, the Tommies captured Schijndel, Midlerode, Olland and Bruggen. The Dutch gave them tumultuous welcomes.

The vanguards of Lieut. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's force reached the outskirts of Berlicum, St. Michiels Gestel and Rosmalen. They also reached a bridge at Boxtel on the Dommel river.

300 More Prisoners

More than 300 prisoners were taken today, making the two-day total 800.

The Canadian army swept on from Esschen, on the Dutch-Belgian border 16 miles north of Antwerp, after an 11-mile advance in two days, and hammered methodically toward Roosendaal, four miles ahead.

The attacks here, which were assuming the proportions of a general offensive to clear the sea lanes to Allied-held Antwerp as a supply port, had pressed the Germans from two sides into the Breda box—a 40-by-20 mile rectangle below the Maas river.

British Take 4 More Towns In Holland

London, Oct. 23 (AP)—Six Allied armies pounded the tight-drawn Nazi defense band from Holland to Switzerland's border today with an unceasing pressure aimed at opening cracks that will permit a smash to Berlin.

The rain of blows was not yet a grand coordinated offensive, but it was intended to hammer the enemy line ever thinner and to mask the timing and place of the main attack.

The assault was on against the shrinking south Scheldt pocket west of Antwerp, the Breda box north of Antwerp, the hard-held doorway from Aachen, the upper entrance of the Saar Valley, and the Vosges passes.

British Take Four Towns

The British Second Army advanced more than five miles and captured four key towns today, moving within two and a half miles of the key Dutch rail and road city of 's-Hertogenbosch.

(The English translation of 's-Hertogenbosch is "forest of the dukes." The name is formed from hertog, meaning duke; bosch, meaning forest, and the prefix 's which is Dutch for "of the." The city of 's-Hertogenbosch is the captial of the province of Brabant.)

Striking on the west flank of the salient in the Netherlands for the second day, the Tommies captured Schijndel, Middelrode, Olland and Bruggen. The Dutch gave them tumultuous welcomes.

The vanguards of Lieut. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's force reached the outskirts of Berlicum, St. Michiels Gestel and Rosmalen. They also reached a bridge at Boxtel on the Dommel river.

300 More Prisoners

More than 300 prisoners were taken today, making the two-day total 800.

The Canadian army swept on from Esschen, on the Dutch-Belgian border 16 miles north of Antwerp, after an 11-mile advance in two days, and hammered methodically toward Roosendaal, four miles ahead.

The attacks here, which were assuming the proportions of a general offensive to clear the sea lanes to Allied-held Antwerp as a supply port, had pressed the Germans from two sides into the Breda box—a 40-by-20 mile rectangle below the Maas river.

Canadians Gaining

The Canadians were about to outflank the German coastal anchor at Bergen op Zoom, four miles ahead.

West of Antwerp the Canadians captured Breskens and Fort Frederik-Hendrik, a mile farther west. On the south side of the pocket the Canadians took Schoondijke, pinching the Germans into a canal-sliced area only 5 by 8 miles.

The German hold on the Scheldt was fast slipping with the capture of the controlling enemy guns at Breskens and Fort Frederik-Hendrik. Only one battery—there were three two days ago—remained in action in the Vlissingen (Flushing) area on the north side of the estuary after Allied heavy-bomber attacks.

Americans Gain Mile

Lieut. Gen. Cortney H. Hodges' United States First Army pushed a mile east toward Duren after capturing its first major German city, Aachen, and was clearing the enemy from the area around the village of Wurselen, three miles northeast of Aachen.

It was here—other Americans were last reported six miles southeast of Duren, which is 20 miles from Cologne on the Rhine—that the Germans apparently feared the main blow was coming.

A Berlin broadcast said the First Army seemed to have completed its regrouping, brought up "vast" tank reinforcements and could be expected to attack at any moment somewhere along a 16-mile front between Geilenkirchen and Stolberg.

Front Rain-Soaked

The front from Aachen to the Vosges was rain-soaked, and clouds at tree-top height also made an immediate offensive seem unlikely.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army restlessly poked an attack at the Germans toward the upper Saar Valley, capturing Bezange la Petite, 19 miles east of Nancy, and fighting in Moncourt, 19 miles from the Saar.

The Germans fought under difficulties, caught in the rear by a bombing which broke a dam two miles southeast of Dieuze and flooded the Seille Valley for ten miles.

More Villages Entered

The American Seventh Army also wedged deeper into the approaches to the Vosges passes northeast of Epinal past captured Brouvelieures and Bruyeres.

Three more villages, Domfaing, Vervezelle and Belmont were entered, and two more miles sliced off the distance to Bonhomme Pass, now 15 miles away.

The British drive was reinforced by the jump-off of a third column at midnight from the south side of the Zuid Willemsvaart Canal, southeast of 's-Hertogenbosch.

4,000 Yards Gained

This attack gained 4,000 yards by daylight, reached the outskirts of Schijndel and cut the Schijndel-Boxtel road about five miles south of 's-Hertogenbosch.

The other two columns, striking out yesterday east and northeast of 'sHertogenbosch, were about three miles from that hub at the nearest points.

—Six Allied Armies Attack From Holland to the Vosges.

On the British Front in Holland, Oct. 23 (A. P.).—The British Second Army advanced more than five miles and captured four key towns today, moving within two and a half miles of the key Dutch rail and road city of 'S Hertogenbosch.

Striking on the west flank of the salient in the Netherlands for the second day, the Tommies captured Schijndel, Middelrode, Olland and Bruggen. The Dutch gave them tumultuous welcomes.

The vanguards of Lieut. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's force reached the outskirts of Berlicum, St. Michiels Gestel and Rosmalen. They also reached a bridge at Boxtel on the Dommel River.

More than 300 prisoners were taken today, making the two-day total 800.

New York, Oct. 23—The Berlin radio tonight said arms and munitions were being distributed to the Cologne regiments of the people's army in the belief that they soon will have occasion to use them. The broadcast said 9,800 anti-tank guns had been sent to Cologne and other weapons were on the way.

Rhinelanders Call On Troops To Quit, Report

By Don Whitehead

United States First Army Headquarters, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Germans have abandoned their plans for a mass evacuation of civilians of the Rhineland and now are trying to isolate the soldiers as much as possible from the people who are weary of the war and frequently urge the troops to lay down their arms, it was reported.

Orders have been issued to the police to keep contact between soldiers and civilians to a minimum to prevent the spread of war weariness through the ranks of the army.

Held Ready To Quit

"In some cases the German people are ready to toss in the towel," an American officer said. "Many do not hesitate to talk to the troops and tell them they are foolish to continue fighting, while one case has been reported of a woman who cursed a soldier for not calling it quits."

It is believed the Germans abandoned their plans for a mass evacuation because of the lack of housing to take care of 10,000,000 Rhinelanders in central Germany where the cities have been badly bombed.

At present civilians are being removed only in the immediate combat areas.

Men, Boys Organized

Males from 16 to 60 are being called up for Heinrich Himmler's Volkssturm, which is being organized to fight "with pitchforks" and to harass Americans from the rear as they press deeper into the fatherland.

Some youths of 14 are being impressed into this so-called Peoples Army.

These civilians are being issued old Italian rifles with 30 rounds of ammunition.

AMG Officials Seek Anti-Nazi To Act As Burgomaster

Aachen, Germany, Oct. 23 (AP)—The citizens of this corpse of a city were trying to return to it in large numbers today, and American Military Government officers set out immediately to find and appoint a burgomaster who is anti-Hitler and who held a civic office prior to 1933.

The AMG assumed control of Aachen at noon. Earlier it had appeared there would be almost no military government job to do, because there was nothing much to govern.

It has turned out otherwise, for the citizens are slipping back in straggling groups and guards have been placed at the city's entrances to make certain the civilian return does not become a stampede.

Population About 200

The population now is about 200—compared with the normal population of about 160,000—but still a much greater number than was here Saturday.

Sixteen orders of the United States Army have been posted. They set up a curfew extending from 6 P. M. to 6 A. M., prohibit public or private gatherings of more than five people, bar Nazi music and the Nazi salute, and in general make it clear that the American forces are here as conquerors.

Six men are on the list of candidates for burgomaster. He will be paid—if at all—by the people who live here and those who will return later. The list is in the hands of military government officers headed by Major Thomas F. Lancer, former New York State police official.

The first job of the military government is to find out how much of the city's water system can be repaired, then to turn the pick-and-shovel work over to the Germans themselves.

This is the American army plan being followed here, as Major Lancer and Major Pelham St. George Bissel, also a New Yorker, outlined it:

Food—No American army rations are to be given German civilians. Captured German food will be made available to them only after they have signed papers acknowledging that this is a debt owed by the city of Aachen to the United States Government.

Water—The water supply is to be restored by German labor and German material, with the American officers giving only their advice and help as consultants.

Telephones Up To People

Telephone and Lights—These are up to Aachen; the American Army has no interest in the matter.

Administration—The burgomaster is to be selected from among those known to have been anti-Hitler and to have held office prior to Hitler's regime. City police will be selected on a similar basis, except that in addition they must be more than 50 years old—in other words, not likely to have been successfully indoctrinated by the Nazis.

The people of Aachen are eating on the average of two meals a day, partly from captured German stores and partly from food which some are recovering for working on a day-by-day basis at near-by German farms.

HE WAS THIRSTY, NOT BLOODTHIRSTY

With an Infantry Division in Belgium, Oct. 19 (Delayed), (A. P.).—Searching all of an abandoned farmhouse except the attic, Sergt Victor J. Agacinski, 204 22d street, Brooklyn, returned to his post with two gallons of cider and fourteen eggs.

A couple of buddies, eying the cider, asked where he got it. They returned later without any cider but with three German soldiers they captured in the attic.

DAVID LARDNER DEAD NEAR AACHEN

With the First United States Army Near Aachen, Oct. 19 (Delayed) (A. P.).—David Lardner, correspondent for the New Yorker, was fatally injured today when the jeep in which he was riding struck a mine near Aachen. He was the son of the late Ring Lardner, the humorist.

Russell Hill, correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, suffered a broken rib, cuts and bruises. The jeep driver was killed.

Mr. Lardner had joined the First Army press corps only a few days ago on his first war assignment. Mr. Hill is a veteran of the African campaign.

They were returning from the smashed German city to a press camp when they ran into a mined area. One report said the jeep touched off a string of seven anti-vehicular mines.

Mr. Lardner, 25, father of two children, was rejected by the Army for poor eyesight. A brother, James P. Lardner, was killed in 1938 during the Spanish civil war while fighting for the Loyalists as a volunteer in the International Brigade.

David Lardner is survived by his wife, Mrs. Frances Chaney Lardner; a son, Joseph, 6 months old, and a daughter, Katharine, 2 years old; his mother, Mrs. Ellis Lardner, and two brothers, Ring Jr., a motion picture writer, and John, a writer for Newsweek magazine.

Nazi Puppets' Capital May Be In Salzburg

London, Oct. 23 (AP)—A possibility that the Nazis may be setting up Salzburg, in the German Tyrol, as the capital for the puppet government of their onetime Balkan and other allies, was reported today through European underground channels.

Romania's Antonescu, Serbia's Nedic and Bulgaria's Tsankov were described as already established in Salzburg. Representatives of a Finnish national committee were reported present. Mussolini was said to be established some distance away in Bavaria.

DFC Cluster Awarded Airborne Force Leader

Allied Airborne Army Headquarters, England, Oct. 23 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, of Los Angeles, commander of the United States troop carrier forces, was awarded by Lieut. Gen. Louis Brereton, commander of the First Allied Airborne Army, the oak leaf cluster for his Distinguished Flying Cross.

The decoration was in recognition of his heroism in the Holland invasion as air commander of the British and American troop carrier forces.

His citation said he disregarded his personal safety to fly with the leading elements in the first day of the operation and flew on three succeeding missions.

FRANCE TO WAGE WAR AGAINST AXIS

PARIS, Oct. 23 — (AP) France intends to wage war against the Axis "by all means possible" and should have a voice in all negotiations concerning the war and the peace, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault said today in announcing Allied recognition of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and his cabinet as the French provisional government.

Bidault spoke to the press within a few minutes after conferring with de Gaulle, to whom he imparted the news of the joint American-British-Soviet Union step.

De Gaulle was pleased but not greatly surprised, according to the foreign minister. Bidault added that, for Frenchmen, de Gaulle long had been their chief and the savior of the nation's unity and honor.

"France now has the place she deserves in the concert of great nations," said Bidault. "She has something to contribute there and her participation will be useful not only to herself but to all nations."

Representatives of the three major Allied powers—Jefferson Caffery for the United States, Alfred Duff Cooper for Britain and Alexander E. Bogomalov of the Soviet Union—accompanied by Maj. Gen. George Vandier for Canada, which with Australia, Brazil, Peru and Venezuela, recognized the new government, presented their credentials to Bidault.

The four representatives were received jointly by Bidault. They presented a note saying their respective governments recognized the "de facto authority headed by General de Gaulle as the provisional government of the French republic."

Bidault replied that henceforth all four would be accredited as ambassadors to France.

DEATH VOTED FOR SUAREZ

Paris Journalist Convicted Of Assisting Germans

Paris, Oct. 23 (AP) — George Suarez, veteran Paris journalist, was convicted tonight of collaborating with the Germans during the four years' occupation of France and was sentenced to death after a trial lasting less than six hours.

The court ordered confiscation of all of Suarez's property. The courtroom crowd cheered the verdict. The court emphasized the severity of its verdict by attaching to it the brand of "national indignity."

The trial was the first of a series during which the Government intends in the next six months to deal with 100,000 persons accused of giving aid and comfort to the Germans.

Accused Pleads Innocent

Suarez, formally charged with intelligence with the enemy, pleaded innocent at the opening of the trial in the gloomy old Palais de Justice. He faltered in the prisoner's box and paled as the four-man jury composed of two clerks, a hospital guard and a doctor brought in their verdict after 30 minutes' deliberation.

The journalist's editorials written during German occupation were read to the jury. He may appeal the verdict to a higher court and, failing there, appeal directly to Gen. Charles de Gaulle as chief of state.

Suarez, editor of the Nazi-sponsored newspaper Aujourd'hui during German occupation, is alleged to have received $15,000 monthly from the Germans.

Greeted by Mild Outburst

There was a mild outburst from the packed courtroom audience as Saurez was brought in through the back of the defendant's box by four guards a few seconds after four jurors and two alternates had been drawn. Judge Auguste Ledoux, in a fur collared red robe, presided.

Saurez, who faces a possible death sentence if convicted, bit his lips nervously but managed a blank smile when his lawyer walked over to the box.

Tre defendant, who patriots say was chosen by the Germans for propaganda talents, was formally charged with intelligence with the enemy.

Germany Held Not Enemy

Denying the accusation, the defense said in its opening statement that after the armistice in 1940 Germany no longer was "an enemy" hence there could be "no intelligence with the enemy."

The prosecution countered that while the armistice ended hostilities, it did not end a state of enmity between France and Germany.

The defendant and Judge Ledoux spent 19 minutes in open discussion of his writings which form the bulwark of the state's charges against Suarez.

Briton Defense Witness

Then Suarez called six witnesses —three men an dthree women— who testified the journalist had made great efforts to help them in personal affairs with the Germans, saving one man's son from deportation.

A middle-aged Britisher, Harold Alvin, interpreter for the Allied armies, fainted four times in the anteroom awaiting his turn as a witness. He testified Suarez obtained his release after four years' imprisonment in Germany.

The outcome of the Suarez trial is expected to furnish some precedent for the trials of hundreds of other prominent pre-war writers accused of working for Nazi-dominated periodicals now suppressed.

Death Sentence Given To Paris Journalist

Paris, Oct. 23 (AP)—George Suarez, veteran Paris journalist, was sentenced to death at Paris' first purge trial on his conviction today of intelligence with the enemy during the German occupation.

Suarez, who was director of the Nazi-sponsored newspaper Aujourd Hui during the occupation, can appeal to the Cassation Court and if his fails has the right to make a further appeal directly to Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Only five hours was required for the submission of evidence against Suarez, who was alleged to have received $15,000 a month during Nazi rule.

Nation's Major Concern

Only a moderate crowd filed into the gloomy halls of the old Palais de Justice for the first of a series of trials, in which the Government intends, in six months, to deal with more than 100,000 accused of conniving with the Germans.

Suarez was calm as the trial started.

Contrary to the impression which may have been created by publicity given the recent women's fashion shows in Paris, it is the purge of Quislings which has become the nation's major concern along with economic recovery.

Vast special judicial machinery has been set up on a nationwide basis to handle the purge. Altogether some 254 courts with one or more judges presiding over each are being established by the Ministry of Justice and they are expected to begin operation all over France within two weeks.

Bewildering Situation

The contrast between last week's fashion shows and this week's trials is typical of the bewildering situation left by war:

Plush cosmopolities with fistfuls of money swank around the Ritz bar, while workers in the hinterland clamor for the reopening of their factories and hundreds of thousands of war victims wait for shelter and clothing. . . . Couturiers fuss about fabrics, while the national diet is 50 per cent. deficient. . . . The public bewails the black market while supporting it out of habit. . . . Some people are muttering that the de Gaulle Government is Fascist, while others express fear it is bringing in Communism—newspapers feel impelled to shout "There's a war on" to people who only a few weeks ago were crushed under Nazi rule—and Patriots are rubbing elbows with people who helped betray their friends.

1,451 Probes Begun

This last great anomaly now is undergoing a frontal attack. Last Monday alone 1,451 collaboration case investigations were begun by a panel of special magistrates who form the second phase of the purge system between the initial arrests and formal trials.

Although military tribunals all over France have been condemning hundreds to death for overt acts of treason the more subtle cases of "collaboration" will be tried by civil courts with judge and jury, including women for the first time in French history.

In four days last week 2,000 new charges were filed in the Paris area alone, where it is estimated 10,000 people are under arrest and several hundred more are coming in daily.

French Daily Decorate Grave Of Yank Flyer

American Air Force Headquarters, France, Oct. 23 (AP)—In the American war cemetery at Remy there stands among the rows of white crosses a highly polished propeller blade from a Lightning fighter plane, and the grave which it marks is covered daily with fresh flowers.

Thus do Frenchmen honor the memory of Lieut. Houston L. Braly, Jr., a P-38 pilot from Brady, Texas, who died while blowing up a German ammunition train.

Not even the Germans—when they were here—were able to prevent the French from paying this tribute. The Nazis removed the flowers the first time they appeared and issued stern warnings, but the next day there were four times as many flowers and the pilot's name was engraved on the propeller taken off his wrecked plane.

Braly was killed August 2 when he and three fellow flyers swooped down on a German troop train carrying 1,000 men and large quantities of ammunition which had been sidetracked at Remy for several days. Maquis had sent word of its position.

Braly's plane was the last over the target, and the blast of the exploding ammunition cars ripped off the tail and a wing of his plane. He died in the crash, but at least 50 Germans were killed and the ammunition train was wrecked.

The 22-year-old Texas now belongs to France.

Pierre Laval's Antiques Spurious, Auction Fails

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Auction of the property of Pierre Laval today at Chateldon, his Government-seized estate, was a failure because "most of Laval's famous antique furniture was not genuine," the American Broadcasting Station In Europe said tonight in a French-language broadcast recorded by the Office of War Information.

Nevertheless, the sale attracted a big crowd to the estate near Clermont-Ferrand and bidding was lively. The official news agency, Agence Francaise Presse, reported that 1,100,000 francs was realized at the first day's session.

It said that three white neckties —Laval always wore white neckties—brought 300 francs, and a silver soup tureen sold for 59,000 francs.

Army's V. D. Rate Triples Since D-Day

Paris, Oct. 23 (AP)—The United States Army's venereal disease rate in France has jumped to three times what it was in Britain, Lieut. Col. Paul V. Padget, of the army's division of preventive medicine, said tonight.

Colonel Padget added, however, that captured records showed the rate below that of the German army when it was in Paris.

Russian Armies Smash 19 Miles into East Prussia

Moscow Reports Nearly All of Memel Territory Is Conquered.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 24—(AP) Powerful Russian armies in a two-way plunge into pre-war Germany have overrun 1,400 towns and villages, stabbing 19 miles into East Prussia from the east on an 87-mile front, conquering nearly all of Memel territory on the north, and trapping the Axis garrison in the Baltic port of Memel, Moscow announced last night.

In a huge offensive supported by thousands of guns, tanks and planes the Russians crossed into the Nazi homeland for the first time after fighting their way back on the long road from Moscow and Stalingrad.

Stalin Announces Drive

Premier-Marshal Stalin in a special order of the day announced that Third White Russian army troops led by the brilliant young Jewish tank expert, Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky, had captured 900 towns and villages, 500 of them German, in an attack from the east.

A Soviet bulletin then announced the capture of 500 towns and villages in the reconquest of Memel territory, a 1,099-square-mile area ceded to Germany by Lithuania March 22, 1939, under German pressure.

The Russians cleared the entire north bank of the Niemen river from Lithuania to the Baltic, surrounded Memel with a 25-mile steel arc anchored on the Baltic north and south of the city, and prepared to hurdle the Niemen on the road to Konigsberg, East Prussian capital.

Moscow declared that all of Memel territory had been won except for Memel city and a few surrounding localities. Russian troops advancing on the city from the north along the coast captured Scheipenthoms, nine miles from Memel; took Dinwethen, only four miles to the east; and captured Starrischken on the Kurischefs Haff lagoon nine miles south of the city.

Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's First Baltic army also broke through to the lagoon coast down to the Niemen estuary, and thence along the river to the Lithuanian town of Jurbarkas. Berlin broadcasts said the Russians already had attempted to cross the Niemen and seize Tilsit, a large rail city.

The Memel garrison's only chance of survival was escape by sea, a risky undertaking because of the acknowledged superority of Soviet attack planes in the area.

Report Goldap Captured

The smash by Chernikhovsky's troops into East Prussia, now a week old by Berlin's account, was the deepest Allied penetration yet of Germany. And a late Berlin broadcast said the Russians now had reached the Angerapp river, 17 miles west of fallen Goldap, for a total penetration of 35 miles inside East Prussia.

The Third White Russian army's attack into East Prussia was on both sides of the Kaunas-Konigsberg highway, aimed straight toward strategic Insterburg and Konigsberg, East Prussian capital.

Schirwindt, a German village on the Lithuanian border 10 miles north of the highway was seized; from there the line runs southwest to capture Ebenrode (Stallaupon-en) seven miles inside East Prussia, thence south to Goldap on the southeastern edge of Rominten forest. The seizure of Goldap was the deepest penetration announced by Moscow.

From Goldap the line runs southeast through Filipow to Suwalki, in the heart of the triangle of that name. The triangle, former Polish territory, was annexed to East Prussia after the conquest of Poland.

20 Miles From Insterburg

At Walterkehnen, 12 miles north of Goldap, the Russians were within 20 miles of the rail hub of Insterburg.

From Goldap the line runs southeast through Filipow to Suwalki, in the heart of the triangle of that name. The triangle, former Polish territory, was annexed to East Prussia after the conquest of Poland.

Hint Crossing Into Norway

Germany is the eighth country invaded by the Russians, and Berlin implied that Soviet Arctic troops also entered a ninth by crossing into Norway from northern Finland.

Premier Stalin's first order of the day announced Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Alpine troops on the Arctic front had captured all the nickel mining area around Petsamo and cut the Rovaniemi-Kirkenes highway as they converged on Kirkenes, German naval base in Norway.

Among the localities taken in that area, which by Finnish cession to Russia gives the Soviets a common frontier with Norway, was Salmijarvi, 18 miles south of Kirkenes and just across the border on the Finnish side. Berlin said the Russians were nearing Kirkenes, attacking along the highway from Salmijarvi. This announcement apparently means that the Russians already have crossed into Norway.

The valuable nickel mines in the Petsamo area were operated by Canadian interests to whom the Soviet union has agreed to pay $20,000,000.

Finns Driving From South

Finnish troops driving up from the south were within 140 miles of a junction with the Russians who captured Salmijarvi.

Moving along the Arctic highway, the Finns seized German positions at the Kitisenjoki river crossing, 30 miles north of Sodankyla. Fifty-three miles to the southeast they captured Savukoski, and 86 miles to the southwest they captured Kolari along the Muonio river frontier with Sweden.

The Moscow bulletin also announced fresh gains in eastern Hungary, in the mountains of eastern Czechoslovakia, and in Yugoslavia.

REDS CUT 19 MILES INTO EAST PRUSSIA ON 88-MILE FRONT

Russians Also Capture Key Town in North Finland—Push Into Norway Hinted.

London, Oct. 23 (A. P.).—The Russians have invaded East Prussia to a depth of nineteen miles on an 88-mile front, Premier Stalin announced tonight. This was the first confirmation received from Moscow of an offensive which the Germans have been reporting for several days.

Earlier today, in an order of the day, Stalin said that the Russians had captured the town of Salmijarvi in northern Finland. The Berlin radio implied that the Red Army may also have invaded northern Norway in a drive to slice off arctic shore bases for German planes and submarines.

Troops of the Third White Russian front "supported by the massed blows of artillery and aircraft, have broken through the permanent, deeply echeloned German defenses covering the frontiers of East Prussia," Stalin said.

The Lithuanian and East Prussian towns captured included Schirwindt, Naumestis, Virbalis, Kibartai, Eydtkau Goldap and Ebenrode. The Berlin radio said that the Russians were attacking along the road leading from Salmijarvi to Kirkenes, Norway. Salmijarvi is on the Finnish-Norwegian border and an attack along the road apparently would put the Red Army over the boundary.

"Deep penetrations" in Nazi lines between Goldap and Suwalki were acknowledged.

The Germans said the front now was 150 airline miles long from besieged Memel, northernmost German claimed city, and Augustow in the Suwalki sector at the southeast corner of East Prussia.

Moscow remained silent on the campaign which the enemy has reported for a week. German broadcasts said the Russians had pulled up on both sides of the rail center of Tilsit, a city of 50,000 on the Niemen River.

"Attacks and counter-attacks are alternating in rapid succession," Berlin said of East Prussia, "several Luftwaffe squadrons were put in the air for defense."

Huge Pincers Move Develops.

From German accounts it appeared the Red armies were developing a huge pincers aimed at the strategic city of Insterburg, fifty miles east of Konigsberg, East Prussian capital.

At the extreme tip of the eastern front, the Russians on the Arctic Sea pulled up to the border of Norway on a wide front within striking distance of the Norwegian iron export harbor of Kirkenes ,a German submarine and air base posing a constant threat to the Murmansk and Archangel convoy routes to Russia.

Two Good-Sized Cities Taken

Far to the south where the Russians were less than 130 miles from Austria and 180 from Vienna, Moscow announced victories both in Hungary and Yugoslavia. Sombor, in Yugoslavia, a place of 32,000 and a communications center 95 miles northwest of liberated Belgrade, was toppled. So was Nyiregyhaza, Hungarian city of 56,000, close to the Czechoslovakia border. At captured Baja, on the Danube, the Russians were nearest to Austria and Vienna.

Wide penetrations of East Prussia were acknowledged by Berlin, but Moscow remained silent on the campaign. German broadcasts said the Russians had pulled up on both sides of the rail center of Tilsit, a city of 50,000 on the Niemen river.

"Attacks and counterattacks are alternating in rapid succession," Berlin said of East Prussia, "and several Luftwaffe squadrons were put in the air for defense."

Nazis Report 2 Divisions Crushed

The Germans asserted they had encircled and crushed two Soviet divisions east of the Hungarian town of Szolnok, taking most of the Russians captive.

In reaching the frozen Norwegian border, the Russians overran the rich Finnish nickel mines which have been nurturing the German war machine.

A Finnish communique said the Finns reached Savoukoski and Pelkosenniemi in north-central Finland, meeting no resistance. The Finns were above the Arctic Circle and they forced the Kitisenjoki river, capturing German positions.

Berlin acknowledged that another Russian column, in a 21-mile penetration from the east, overran the Rominter Forest . nd was pushing on toward the towns of Gumbinnen and Goldap.

Insterburg Believed Goal

From German accounts it appeared the Red armies were developing a huge pincers aimed at the strategic city of Insterburg, 50 miles east of Konigsberg, East Prussian capital.

In the Arctic advance, Moscow said the Soviet Karelian army under Gen. K. A. Meretskov, supported by the Red Arctic fleet, hurled the Germans back on the Norwegian border in northern Finland on a front from Vuoremi, on the Barents Sea, inland to Lake Kuotsjarvis.

At Kuotsjarvis the Russians were only 40 miles from Kirkenes.

From their Debrecen-Nviregyhaza bases the Russians were fanning out through the famous Tokaj ine country in Hungary.

Last midnight's war bulletin from Moscow said 2,000 Germans were killed at Nyiregyhaza of a total of 3,000 Nazis slain and several thousand captured during the day in Hungary.

Southeast of Budapest the Red army was fighting within 50 miles of the Hungarian capital and south of captured Baja on a 30-mile front between there and Sombor, also in Russian hands. In northern Yugoslavia the Russians cleaned out a large area near the east bank of the Danube.

Zemun, large suburb north of Belgrade, was captured by Russian and Yugoslav Partisan troops which forced the Sava river in a three-mile advance.

Moscow, Oct. 23 (A. P.).—Russian forces introduced a great new threat to the entire German position in southeastern Europe today by swiftly developing an attack through northeastern Hungary which, unless checked shortly, can cut the Nazi lifeline between Budapest and Vienna.

[Hungarian troops are digging trenches around Budapest for the defense of the capital, a London broadcast recorded in New York by CBS said today.]

An army of Cossacks and tanks drove northwest of the fallen Magyar keypoint to Debrecen in the direction of Kassa, which controls the pass into Slovakia and a way through Moravia and Bohemia to Prague, Czecho-Slovakian capital.

To the north of this attacking group, Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukranian Army appeared ready to join in the assault, exploiting his newly won positions south of the Carpathian Mountain passes.

Patriots Await Reds.

Strong patriot Partisan forces in Czecho-Slovakia awaited the onrushing Soviet armies which today were reported already attacking German communications leading back onto the Bohemian plateau. A junction of the Czecho-Slovak and Russian fighting groups appeared imminent.

Capture of positions in central Slovakia by the Russians would represent a probable disaster for Hitler's High Command, which is seeking desperately to hold on to Budapest and Vienna. It would endanger not only Vienna and Budapest but Bratislavia and all the German held territory to the south.

With yesterday's announcement of the capture of Nyiregyhaza, north of Debrecen, and the slaughter of 2,000 Germans, less than ninety miles remained between Gen. Petrov's most westward troops in Czecho-Slovakia and other big Red Army units moving northward in lower Hungary. Farther to the east the distance is even smaller.

The Red Army's Hungarian front was about 180 miles long, extending from the Yugoslav border to the place of the new breakthrough along the shoulder of the Tisza, beneath the Slovak frontier.

Patriarch's Letter To Stalin Shows New Tie

Moscow, Oct. 23 (AP)—The growing warmth of relations between the Orthodox Church and the Kremlin was emphasized today with the release of a letter from Acting Patriarch Alexeis to Premier Stalin in which the churchman addressed the marshal as "Our Dear Supreme Leader Whom God Has Sent Us."

The letter announced the clergy, which previously had raised a considerable sum for tanks for the Red army, now is raising another fund to aid families of Soviet servicemen.

Tito Takes 3 More Towns

London, Oct. 23 (AP)—Marshal Tito today announced the capture of Omis, Adriatic harbor and strong point, southeast of Split.

His communique also reported the capture of Backa Topola, Belgrade-Budapest railway point, 20 miles from the Hungarian border and Backa Palanka, on the Zagreb Belgrade railway.

Poles' Hopes Wane For Russ Accord

London, Oct. 23 (AP)—Grave pessimism over prospects of an early accord with Russia and the Soviet-sponsored Polish National Liberation Committe prevailed today within Poland's Government here, despite the official report of progress in settling their dispute.

Back from his second mission to Moscow, Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk postponed until tomorrow his report to the Cabinet on the situation. This delay strengthened belief that the Premier did not bring from his conversations with Marshal Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and the Lublin committee official a basis for any agreement which his Government will accept.

Polish officials privately described as unjustified the elation which developed in Britain and the United States over the joint Anglo-Soviet communique which said "important progress" had been made toward ending the long dispute. These same sources reported that both Russia and the Liberation Committee increased their demands upon the London Government over those presented during Mikolajczyk's first trip to Moscow.

BRITISH BOMBERS RIP ESSEN, BERLIN

Blast Walcheren Island in Holland and Shipping Off Norway.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 24. — (AP) A mighty force of British bombers battered the German railway center of Essen and Berlin last night, the Air Ministry announced early today, following up daylight raids on Walcheren island in the southwestern tip of Holland and shipping off Norway.

More than 1,000 heavy bombers carried out the night attacks.

The surprise announcement came just before 1 o'clock this morning and indicated that other targets also were hit.

The statement said:

RAF Hammers Essen

"Last night aircraft of the RAF bomber command were over Germany in very great strength, with the great armament and railway center of Essen as the main objective. Berlin was also bombed."

Such an early announcement of a night action by the RAF was unusual.

In addition to the daylight blows by British-based U. S. Bombers, Fortresses and Liberators of the U. S. 15th Air Force hammered objectives near Munich, Regensburg and Augsburg in southern Germany and in western Czechoslovakia.

Preliminary reports said the daylight raiders and their escort of Lightnings met no enemy aircraft. Yesterday, 2,500 American and British planes speared deep into Germany without a single loss and meeting only one enemy plane.

Fortresses from the 15th Air Force struck in Czechoslovakia, while the Liberators attacked in Germany. They encountered flak over most targets, and heavy clouds forced the majority of the bombers to drop their explosives with the aid of instruments.

Hit Brenner Pass Targets

Other Liberators from Italy bombed objectives near the Brenner Pass railway line into northern Italy, while tactical air force Thunderbolts flying through almost solid cloud banks over the Po valley strafed and bombed enemy transport.

RAF Lancasters escorted by Spitfires attacked gun emplacements on the Dutch island of Walcheren this afternoon, making the second assault in three days by British heavies on German batteries which have been harassing the Canadian ground forces. Four bombers were lost.

Previously well placed 12,500 pound earthquake bombs had breached the Walcheren sea wall and engulfed high caliber Nazi guns that had been hampering the Canadian advance into Breskens.

Most U. S. Eighth Air Force planes remained at their bases in England today because of bad weather on the continent.

British bombers set four vessels on fire and damaged a fifth in two attacks on German shipping off Norway today, an Air Ministry communique said.

Coblenz Is Also Hit By German Bombs

Supreme Allied Headquarters, Paris, Oct. 23 (AP)—The German city of Coblenz, target of Allied raids, also was showered with German bombs recently, Lieut. Col. Paul Douglas, of Paragould, Ark., disclosed today.

Douglas was leading a Thunderbolt formation over the city when they encountered a number of German fighter-bombers. The Germans—sighting the Thunderbolts—released their bombs and extra gas tanks on Coblenz. In the ensuing air battle, several German fighters were shot down.

"There is no question but that the Germans now have more planes than pilots and their pilots often bail out as soon as they have us on their tail and before we can open fire," Douglas said. "They know they can get another plane."

On returning from this mission, which was his 119th, Douglas looked out to see his wing afire. After a trip in which he twice was on the point of parachuting out but decided not to because he was over German territory, Douglas brought his plane in. He was unhurt despite flames which roared just outside his cockpit and an explosion which almost blew him out of the plane.

Bombers Attack Czech, Reich Targets

London, Oct. 23 (AP)—Heavy bombers from Italy attacked western Czechoslovakia and German objectives today near Munich, Regensburg and Augsburg.

Achieving complete mastery of European skyways, 2,500 American and British planes roamed hundreds of miles into Germany yesterday attacking six separate targets without a single loss.

It was the first time an armada of this size has escaped at least some minor battle casualties. Only one enemy aircraft was seen and it was destroyed. Antiaircraft fire generally was moderate and inaccurate.

Worked In Three Waves

The bombers worked in three waves, two in daylight and one at night, attacking Nazi industries and communications struggling to keep Hitler's armies on the Western front.

More than 1,100 United States Flying Fortresses and Liberators with 750 fighters attacked Hamm, Munster, Hannover and Brunswick. Returning, they passed a formation of RAF Lancasters, with a strong fighter escort, going out to attack the inland port and railway center of Neuss, near Dusseldorf.

Hamburg Attacked

A small force of Mosquitos attacked Hamburg and other objectives in western Germany last night.

One group of American fighter bombers destroyed or damaged 13 locomotives, 25 railway cars, five barges, five steamboats and two gas plants.

Two fighters which failed to return to home bases, landed safely in France.

Churchill Moscow Report Awaited

London, Oct. 23 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, back in Britain after ten days in Moscow, is expected to report to the House of Commons this week on his conferences with Premier Stalin and other Soviet officials.

Churchill returned to London by air yesterday. He spent a night in Italy en route home from Moscow, it was announced.

Also Spent Day In Cairo

Churchill, accompanied by Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the British General Staff, conferred with General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander in the Mediterranean.

Churchill also spent 24 hours in Cairo, conferring with Britain's army and navy commanders. Britain's participation in the Pacific war was believed a likely topic of the discussions.

CONFLICT SEETHES IN NORTHERN SPAIN

Franco's Troops Clash With Republican Forces

London, Tuesday, Oct. 24 (AP)—Northern Spain is seething with armed conflict, the Spanish national radio disclosed early today, as Spanish Republican forces wage persistent guerrilla warfare with Gen. Francisco Franco's regular Spanish army.

The national radio said the fighting was centered in Navarra on the Spanish-French frontier and other advices told of skirmishes at various points in the Pyrenees.

The extent of the uprising was not clear.

Headquarters of the Spanish Republicans in London said the guerrilla warfare to overthrow Franco was mounting rapidly. Franco's radio claimed that the "infiltration of Spanish Reds into Navarra can be considered over."

Gathered For Cleanup

A dispatch from Lerida, Spain, said earlier that Spanish troops were gathered for a cleanup of guerrilla forces which had infiltrated into the Aran Valley in the eastern Pyrenees west of Andorra during the week.

Latest reports indicated the guerrillas were in some strength as borne out by disclosures that they had challenged regular Spanish troops.

The Spanish radio identified them only as "groups" and acknowledged that some still were roaming the Navarra Mountains.

Authoritative British sources said they had no reports of any general uprising in Spain.

A Spanish national radio broadcast gave what it described as an "eyewitness" report of the clashes at the frontier.

U. S. Troops Disarm Rebels

"American soldiers disarmed several groups of Spanish Reds who recrossed the frontier after being defeated and pursued by the Spanish forces guarding the Spanish-French frontier," it said. "Forty individuals were disarmed by soldiers of the French army.

"Fugitives still are roaming through the mountains of Navarra. Some of them in groups are being pursued by the national forces.

"In general, it seems that the infiltration of Spanish Reds into Navarra can be considered over, as many of them are surrendering without arms.

"When taken prisoner all express disappointment at not finding conditions favoring formation of a so-called army of liberation."

Loyalists Recapture Canejan

The Lerida report said Spanish troops had recaptured the village of Canejan by an encircling movement and thus closed the main exit for Republicans seeking to cross into France.

Republican sources in London asserted the revolt against Franco began some months ago on a small scale, now involves several thousand men, and additional recruits are being added daily.

It is being directed by a Spanish guerrilla high command under the political leadership of a "supreme junta of national unity," these sources said. The junta is dedicated to the overthrow of the Franco regime by force, the "deliverance of our country from traitors and the establishment of a government of national unity," the republicans asserted.

The current activities were described by the Spanish republican leaders here at Hotel Espanol (Spanish house) as "the beginnings of great battles in Spain."

Rebels Hold Four Towns

The German-controlled Oslo radio said today that four frontier towns in the Pyrenees border region were captured by Spanish republicans after a four-day battle, and similar reports of clashes have been carried by the Berlin radio recently.

Spanish republicans in London asserted the guerrilla high command has begun the issuance of periodic communiques similar to those of Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia, and is making nightly broadcasts from underground radio stations in Spain.

It was said here that the guerrilla operations are being concentrated in three major provinces—Galacia, the northwesternmost province bordering on Portugal; Estramadura in the southwest, and Andalusia in the extreme south.

Army Private Accused Of Murder In London

London, Oct. 23 (AP)—An American Army private was accused today of being the accomplice of a pretty 18-year-old blonde dancer in the slaying of George E. Heath, 35, widely known operator of a special taxi service and called "the man with the cleft chin."

The army announced that Private Karl G. Hulton, of Boston, had been charged with murder. The girl, Elizabeth Marina Jones, was booked on a similar charge ten days ago. Both were arrested by Scotland Yard detectives.

Heath, shot in the back, was found October 6 in a ditch beside a lonely road outside London.

Under normal procedure, Hulton will be tried by an army court-martial board and the girl by a regular British court.

Upstate Soldier Weds in Ulster

Belfast, Oct. 23 (A. P.).—Staff Sergt. Jack Edgar Daley of Cincinnatus, N. Y., today became the first American married in the 299-year-old First Presbyterian Church at Comber, in the County Down. The bride is Miss Janie Elizabeth Cochrane.

AMERICANS GAIN BEFORE BOLOGNA

Eighth Army Enlarges Grip on Adriatic by Taking Cervia.

ROME, Oct. 23 — (AP) Despite new German reinforcements, American Fifth army troops today consolidated newly-won positions in bitter fighting eight miles south of Bologna, while the British Eighth army enlarged its grip on the Adriatic sector in Italy by capturing Cervia, 12 miles below Ravenna.

It was slow, difficult progress for the Allied armies striving to break into the Po valley of northern Italy.

The Americans were about one mile south of Pianaro on highway 65, a main road leading into Bologna. Since capture of Livergnano was announced a week ago, the advance up highway 65 has measured less than two miles. The latest won positions were on dominating heights, however.

Despite heavy German resistance and counterattacks, Canadian troops established a bridgehead a mile wide and a thousand yards deep across the Savio river two miles north of Cesena, 50 miles southeast of Bologna on the main Rimini-Bologna highway. German troops were still holding the west bank of the Savio in great strength in some places.

The British also enlarged their bridgehead across the Savio west of Cesena.

Heavy fighting was in progress on the southern outskirts of Frassineto, about five miles southwest of Castel san Pietro on highway nine. The battling was bitter also in the vicinty of Pizzano, four miles west of Frassineto.

8th Army Captures Cervia In Italy

Rome, Oct. 23 (AP)—Eighth Army troops inching their way up the Adriatic coast have occupied Cervia, on the coastal road four miles north of Cesenatico and only 12 miles below Ravenna, but bad weather again hampered operations on the Fifth Army front, Allied headquarters announced today.

Cervia, 19 miles above Rimini, is on the main highway from Rimini to northeastern Italy.

The communique said the Allied bridgehead over the Savio river has been enlarged.

Hampered By Floods

The British troops enlarged their bridgehead despite difficulties caused by the rising river waters. Two miles north of captured Cesena, Canadian troops established another bridgehead a mile wide and two miles deep in the face of heavy German resistance and counterattacks by tanks and infantry.

Heavy fighting was reported in the southern outskirts of Frassineto, about four miles southwest of Castel san Pietro on the Bologna-Rimini highway.

New Disorders In Palermo Reported

Rome, Oct. 23 (AP)—New disorders were reported over the week end in the Sicilian capital of Palermo, where 19 persons were killed and more than 100 wounded last Thursday in fighting between Italian troops and a mob.

Rome press dispatches said police were forced to fire on a group of "strikers" who broke into a theater on the Piazzi Verdi, but apparently there were no further casualties.

The dispatches also reported a bomb was hurled into a public market and a grenade was thrown at sentries guarding a public utility.

Leaders of the Sicilian Separatist Movement were said to have been arrested and charged with distributing pamphlets.

McNarney Assumes Mediterranean Post

Rome, Oct. 23 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney assumed his duties today as deputy supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean theater under General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson and as commanding general of the North African theater of operations of the United States Army, it was announced officially.

He succeeds Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, now in command of the Sixth Army group in France.

McNarney arrived at an Italian airfield this morning from Washington, where he was deputy chief of staff under Gen. George C. Marshall.

Change Effective November 1

Effective November 1 the North African theater of operations of the United States Army becomes the Mediterranean theater and McNarney will be commanding general of American army forces in that theater.

McNarney is 51 years old. He graduated from West Point in 1915 as an infantry officer and later transferred to the air service, becoming one of the pioneers of army aviation.

(In Washington, the War Department, announcing McNarney's new post, said Lieut. Gen. Thomas T. Handy, chief of operations, will succeed McNarney as deputy chief of staff, and that Maj. Gen. John E. Hull will succeed Handy.)

BRITISH PASS THERMOPYLAE

Joined With Greek Patriots They Capture Evvoia

Athens, Oct. 23 (AP)—British troops pushed today through ancient Thermopylae to Lamia, approximately 100 miles northwest of Athens and 50 miles south of Larissa, approximately 100 miles northwest of Athens and 50 miles south of Larissa, as they pursued the Germans retreating in northern Greece.

A combined force of British troops and Greek patriots, meanwhile, forced the surrender of Khalkis, chief city on the large mountainous island of Evvoia (Euboea) adjacent to the Greek mainland north of Athens. All German troops have been cleared from the island with the capture of a small number left behind in a German evacuation.

Valona Reported Liberated

Increasing demolitions were becoming a factor in the advance northward, with road mines delaying heavy transport in the Lamia area.

[Cairo radio said tonight that Albanian patriots had liberated the Albanian port of Valona, which lies almost straight across the Strait of Otranto from Brindisi, Italy, and about 50 miles north of the Greek border.]

Strike Greets Food Ship

What should have been one of the most joyous occasions since the liberation of Athens, the arrival of the first food ship, was marred today by a strike of dockyard workers.

Unloading of the ship at the port of Pireaus was carried out by the British Ordnance Corps with the assistance of only 20 Greeks.

The strike was a consequence of the debased condition of Greek money. Payment of dockyard workers is the responsibility of the Greek Government, but the Government is without funds since the drachma's value has dropped until it is not acceptable.

Evvoia, Aegean Isle, Cleared Of Nazis

Rome, Oct. 23 (AP)—The large Aegean island of Evvoia (Euboea), adjacent to the Greek mainland north of Athens, has been cleared completely of Germans, Allied headquarters announced today.

The island is a mountainous stretch of 115 miles and 33 miles at its greatest breadth. It is separated from the mainland by a narrow channel, the northern part of which is known as the Channel of Atalanti.

Garrison Captured

Dispatches from Athens said the island's chief city, Khalkis, surrendered to a combined force of British and Greek Patriots and that a small number of troops left behind in a German evacuation were taken prisoner.

The Germans pulled out of the island leaving 250 men holding Fort Gouves, on the northeast coast, the Athens advices said.

The strategic north Aegean island of Lemnos has been occupied by the British and all of the Cyclades group was reported freed today as German forces on the mainland continued their flight through northern Greece.

Mudros Seized

Seizure of the port of Mudros, on the south coast of Lemnos, which guards the entrance to the Dardenelles, was announced yesterday.

The communique said British forces landed on the island's west coast at dawn on October 16 and after a 30-hour battle captured Mudros, taking 400 German prisoners.

The British land drive to clear the Germans from Greece continued without letup as carrier based RAF planes attacked rail transport in the Volos mid-coastal area. Strafing planes knocked out one locomotive and damaged 20 rail cars the Germans were using to evacuate their forces northward.

Allied headquarters announced that six months' emergency civilian supplies for Greece, amounting to about 780,000 tons valued at $120,000,000, had been provided for by the United States and Britain.

Anthony Eden In Cairo

New York, Oct. 23—The Bern radio today said in a broadcast recorded by CBS that "according to unconfirmed news, British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden now is in Cairo, from where he intends to go to Ankara."

-Mile Burma Gain Reported By British

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 23 (AP)—The British 36th Division, which captured Mohnyin in north Burma, 70 miles southwest of Myitkyina on the railway 200 miles north of Mandalay, has made an advance six miles to the east toward Kazu, today's Southeast Asia communique announced.

The advance promised a linkup with other Allied forces patrolling south of Kazu, 13 miles below Myitkyina.

In western Burma, further gains were made from captured Tiddim toward the Chin hills stronghold of Fort White, 20 miles to the southeast, where the Japanese were falling back on Kennedy peak. West Africans crossed the upper Kaladan river, in the Orakan area.

CHINESE AGAIN PUSH FOE BACK

Counterattacks In Two Areas Make "Appreciable Gains"

Chungking, Oct. 23 (AP)—Successful Chinese counteroffensives 21 miles north of Kweilin and along the West river front 160 miles farther south were reported tonight by the high command.

The communique said Chinese launched counterattacks against Japanese forces 12 miles southwest of Hingan, 21 miles north of Kweilin, October 21 and had scored "appreciable gains." The attacks apparently were designed to smash the enemy's threat to Kweilin.

Driven Back Six Miles

The Japanese last week drove to a point 18 miles west of Hingan in an attempt to outflank Kweilin, former site of a large United States air base, but the high command said the invaders had been driven back six miles by the counterattacks.

The Chinese offensive in the Kweiping and Pingnam areas has checked an enemy drive on the American air base at Liuchow. Chinese ground forces in the area were strongly supported by planes of the United States 14th Air Force, the high command said. Kweiping is about 78 miles south of Liuchow, and Pingnam is east and slightly north of Kweiping.

The high command said Chinese forces had driven into Japanese positions eight miles southwest of Kweiping and had captured five enemy strong points near Pingnam. Heavy fighting was continuing, it added.

Seeks Educated Youth Unit

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek today formally launched a movement for the enlistment of the initial 100,000 of China's educated youth in China's fighting forces.

Declaring one division of educated youth would be equivalent to raising China's striking power by ten ordinary divisions, Chiang called for volunteers to "serve as privates who actually do the fighting, breach and seize the enemy defenses and serve as the real vanguards of the people."

"Now that the war has reached its decisive stage, all our efforts must be directed toward the final triumph," he declared, adding that the situation was even more serious than on the eve of the 1911 revolution.

Chinese Troops Drive Japs Back On 2 Fronts

Chungking, Oct. 23 (AP)—A Chinese counterattack upon Japanese forces 21 miles north of Kweilin has brought "appreciable gains," the high command announced tonight. The communique also said Chinese counterblows against the Japanese on the West river front had achieved considerable success.

The Chinese attacks north of Kweilin, apparently designed to smash the enemy's threat to the Kwangsi province city by either direct or outflanking operations, were launched October 21, the high command said. Chinese regulars assaulted Japanese positions about 12 miles southwest of Hingan, main enemy supply base, and brisk fighting continued.

Last week the Japanese drove to a point 18 miles west of Hingan in an attempt to outflank Kweilin, but the high command said they had been driven back six miles and were being checked.

Three Jap Naval Vessels Sunk

During the week of October 12 to 19 the 14th Air Force sank a Japanese cruiser, a destroyer and a third naval vessel of 225 feet, and, in addition, sank or probably sank enemy vessels totaling 45,900 tons, an operational summary said.

The cruiser and destroyer were accounted for by a Liberator during the early morning of October 16.

The summary listed 31,000 tons of Japanese shipping as damaged. The Japanese losses did not include 62 miscellaneous craft of less than 100 feet sunk, eight of less than 100 feet probably sunk and 224 of less than 100 feet damaged.

Japan's Air Losses

Enemy losses in air combat were seven fighters and one bomber destroyed, two fighters probably destroyed and seven fighters damaged. Nine Japanese fighters and two bombers were destroyed on the ground. The 14th Air Force lost one plane in combat.

Known enemy casualties were 219 troops resulting from air missions in support of Chinese ground forces. Fifteen bridges were destroyed or damaged during these missions.

IWO BOMBED BY U.S. PLANES

Nimitz Also Reports Raids On Yap And In Marshalls

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 23 (AP)—American heavy bombers dropped 49 tons of explosives on Iwo Island in the Volcano group, 750 miles south of Tokyo, last Friday, shooting down or damaging five of eight Japanese interceptors. One Liberator was lost.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported the raid today, along with aerial slashes at enemy positions on Yap Island, in the western Carolines, and in the Marshall Islands. One plane was lost in the Marshalls but the pilot was rescued.

Three Jap Planes Shot Down

Three enemy planes definitely were shot out of the skies over Iwo, one was probably destroyed and a fifth damaged.

A navy search Liberator bombed and strafed a small Japanese cargo vessel west of Iwo on Saturday.

In support of ground troops mopping up on Peleliu and Angaur islands, in the Palau group of the western Carolines, marine planes dropped incendiaries on dugin enemy units. They also bombed a lighthouse and gun emplacements on Babelthuap Island, to the north.

The communique made no mention of further carrier plane attacks on the Philippines, in support of the reoccupation by ground forces under command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Fires From Shell Hole

Bungard was moving forward with an infantry outfit on the afternoon of D-day when a fleet of Jap tanks came rolling over a hill in pairs. He got into position in a shell hole which protected him up to the chest and waited for the Japs to come within range.

The first Jap tanks were within 200 yards when he opened fire with his rocket launcher. His first shot damaged one of the leaders, his second blew its turret off.

20 Tanks In Attack

The other tank of the first pair was only 50 yards away, its guns spitting fire. Bungard, aiming carefully, halted it with one shot.

As the rest of the tank fleet, estimated to have numbered 20 in all, sought to spread out over the ridge, Bungard took aim again.

Three hits were enough to disable another tank, and he turned his attention to a fourth. This one he got with two shots.

That was enough for the rest of the Jap tanks and they fled back over the ridge.

Almost Like A Movie

"I'd find it hard to believe if I hadn't seen it myself," related Corporal John A. Heisler, of Wausau, Wis. "I was just a few feet away from Bungard when he went into action. It was almost like a movie. He was stopping everything that he fired at."

By dropping a grenade down its hatch, Heisler himself destroyed a Jap tank which had bogged down in a swamp.

MECHANIC'S SKILL SAVES A BOMBER

hydraulic lines and electrical systems with fluid spraying everywhere. Capt. Robert A. Hannagan of Bakersfield, Cal., the pilot, ordered the ship lightened and crew members chopped away the ball turret.

Then the engineer, Tech. Sergt. Carroll C. Cobb, of Augusta, Me., made his way through the bomb bay with an axe on his shoulder. He chopped off bits of tubing from the tail turret and from the damaged nose turret and practically rebuilt the hydraulic system with the assistance of the bombardier, First Lieut. Joseph Feke of 147 Riverdale avenue, Yonkers, N. Y.

Each time Sergt. Cobb made a repair he had to crawl through to the pilot and ask him to test the system. Three times they tested before the flaps and brakes worked.

NEW YORKERS HONORED

With the Americal Infantry Division, Somewhere in the Southwest Pacific, Oct. 22 (A. P.)—It's a long way from skiing down the snowclad slopes of Norway to lugging a communications radio through the tropical jungles of the Southwest Pacific, but Pfc. Sverre E. Clem has done it and has received the Combat Infantryman Badge for commendable performance of his duty while in action on Bougainville.

He was born in Norway but his home now is at 402 Bay Ridge Parkway, Brooklyn.

Other New Yorkers decorated for outstanding service with the veteran Americal Division are Pfc. Jacob Spritzer, son of Mrs. Paul Spritzer of 78 West 68th street, and Pvt. John A. Rogers, nephew of Mrs. Theodore Goodwin of 72 Seventh avenue. Both have received the Good Conduct Medal.

Bazookaman's Eight Shots Kayo 4 Jap Tanks, Rout 16

By Sergt. Ray Fitzpatrick

[Marine Corps Combat Correspondent]

[Distributed by the Associated Press]

Somewhere in the Pacific, Oct. 12 (Delayed)—A 20-year-old marine bazookaman in combat for the first time on strongly fortified Peleliu fired his weapon eight times and knocked out four Japanese tanks in a wild burst of action that took only ten minutes.

The exploit is related here by admiring comrades of Pfc. Robert Bungard, of Diamond, Ohio. They say they owe their lives to his cool head and amazing marksmanship.

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea (A. P.).—Out of ammunition and punctured with bullet holes after an attack by thirty Jap Zeros, the Liberator bomber "Hannagan's Mad House" limped home because of the technical skill of a flight engineer.

Christenson and the S.S. Antigua. Both were operated by the War Shipping administration.

The Antiqua was under Navy charter. She received a bad hole forward of the deckhouse on the starboard side and was towed to port by the salvage vessel deliverer, with the aid of the ocean-going tug Mataco.

Each ship is approximately 7,000 tons.

Curtin Thanks Americans for Aid to Australia

Offers MacArthur and His Troops 'Deep Gratitude' for Defense Garrison

PERTH, Australia, Oct. 23 (AP).—Prime Minister John Curtin today expressed the deep gratitude of Australia to the American forces and their commander in chief, General Douglas MacArthur.

"Now that the great bulk of United States forces have moved from the mainland of Australia," Curtin said, "I offer them and their great commander in chief, General MacArthur, the deep gratitude of the Australian people and government.

"Australians will never forget the feeling of deep relief which swept this country when United States forces first landed here early in 1942. During their stay we have learned much from them and they have come to know Australia and Australians better.

"The contacts made will, I am sure, prove permanent in many cases, and to this end arrangements have been made to smooth the way for any United States servicemen who desire to live permanently in Australia."

Guatemala's Ex-Chief In Mexico, Envoy Says

Mexico City, Oct. 23 (AP)—Guatemalan Ambassador Eduardo Mayora said today ex-President Federico Ponce, of Guatemala, is en route to Mexico City by special plane accompanied by some of his former Cabinet members and army officers.

Honduras Battles Reported

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Oct. 23 (AP)—Honduran sources here, quoting censored wire reports from El Salvador, said today that fighting was continuing inside Honduras, with the revolutionaries obtaining "important victories" at San Marcos in Ocotepeque.

Honduran residents here said several officers and soldiers of Gen. Tiburcio Andino Carias' forces had joined the invading rebels in the San Marcos area over the weekend.

Gen. Crerar Ill in Britain

OTTAWA, Oct. 23 (AP).—Lieutenant General Henry D. G. Crerar, commander of the Canadian 1st Army, has been ill in Great Britain for the last three weeks, but will return to his post in the next few days, the government announced today.

Shirley Temple Dedicates Lights

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 23 (A. P.).—Shirley Temple, youthful screen star last night dedicated the illumination of the Niagara Falls cataracts at the official opening of the Seventh Victory Loan Drive in Welland county, Canada.

"It's a toss-up between here and Hawaii for my honeymoon," she said after seeing the falls.

Miss Temple expressed envy for screen star Ronald Colman, who sat unnoticed in Queen Victoria Park Saturday when Mayor G. R. Inglis and Councilman W. F. Connell of Niagara Falls, N. Y., gave the lights illuminating the cataracts their first workout since September, 1942.

De Gaulle Regime Recognized By Allies as Rule of France

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP) Under the leadership of aggressive General Charles de Gaulle, the republic of France emerged today from four dark years of defeat, occupation and the ravages of war to take control once more of its own destinies as a sovereign nation already promised a position of power in the councils of peace.

Two actions by its Allies marked the renaissance of the Republic:

1. The United States, Great Britain and Russia at noon Eastern War Time simultaneously recognized the regime of which General de Gaulle is president as a "provisional government."

2. General Dwight D. Eisenhower turned over to this administration virtually all metropolitan France except the Western Front combat zones, by declarng the non-combat area to be an "interior zone." That includes the capital of the provisional government, Paris.

Not since German invaders enveloped the shattered nation in the Summer of 1940 had France attained such stature in the family of nations or such control over its own affairs.

Recognition by the three great powers was accompanied by similar action of other nations, including Canada, Australia, Brazil, Peru and Venezuela.

The United States named Jefferson Caffery as its first ambassador. He arrived in Paris only a few days ago to be a "representative" to the de Gaulle administration which until noon today was considered to be only a "de facto authority" rather than a government.

Immediately after announcing recognition the United States undertook several adjustments to bring its relations with the new France in line:

1. The State department announced that business and professional people who can show a good military or civilian need for their presence in France may obtain passports to go there although transportation facilities are "extremely meager."

2. Diplomatic and financial authorities predicted the early unfreezing of $1,000,000,000 of French assets in this country, including about $900,000,000 credited to the bank of France as well as heavy private holdings. The bank of France assets are presently under attachment by the bank of Belgium in New York state because of the assumed loss of certain Belgium gold deposits at Paris in 1940. Special arrangements are being worked out to lift the attachment.

3. Treasury officials said the question of reopening business communications between the United States and France was under consideration. Action is expected in about ten days.

United States

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The text of the State Department announcement of recognition of the de Gaulle regime as the Provisional Government of France:

The Government of the United States has today recognized the French de facto authority established in Paris under the leadership of General de Gaulle as the Provisional Government of the French Republic. A communication in this sense has today been addressed to the Provisional Government. Mr. Jefferson Caffery will, if agreeable to the Provisional Government, assume the duties of Ambassador to France.

This action on the part of the United States Government is in harmony with its policy toward France as publicly enunciated from time to time by the President and the Secretary of State.

As the Secretary of State in his speech of April 9, 1944, stated, it was always the thought of the President and himself that Frenchmen themselves should undertake the civil administration of their country and that this Government would look to the organization then known as the French Committee of National Liberation to exercise leadership in the establishment of law and order. In accordance with this policy agreements were entered into between the Supreme Allied Commander and the de facto French authority headed by General de Gaulle covering the administration of civil affairs in France and other related subjects.

In accordance with the procedure envisaged in the civil affairs agreement, an "interior zone" has been established to include a large part of France, including Paris. The agreement provides that in the interior zone the conduct of the administration of the territory and responsibility therefore will be entirely a matter for the French authorities.

Today the vast majority of Frenchmen are free. They have had opportunity during recent weeks to demonstrate their desire to have the duties and obligations of Government assumed by the Administration which is now functioning in Paris and which has been reconstituted and strengthened by the inclusion of leaders of the valiant forces of resistance within France.

The intention of the French authorities to seek an expression of the people's will at the earliest possible date, following the repatriation of French prisoners of war and deportees in Germany, has been made known on different occasions. Pending the expression of the will of the French people through the action of their duly elected representatives, the Provisional Government of the French Republic, in its efforts to prosecute the war until final victory and to lay the foundation for the rehabilitation of France, can count on the continued, full and friendly cooperation of the Government of the United States.

Others Grant Recognition

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Australia, Brazil, Peru and Venezuela added their recognition of the French Provisional Government today.

Olafur Thors, Independent, Is Named Prime Minister

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—A change of government in newly independent Iceland was reported today by the Icelandic Legation here.

Olafur Thors, leader of the Independent party, heads the new Cabinet as Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs, succeeding Dr. Bjorn Thordarson. The new Cabinet consists of two members each from the Independent, Labor and Socialist parties.

The legation said Dr. Thordarson's nonpartisan Cabinet resigned after a disagreement over domestic economic problems.

Two Subs Lost With Skippers Who Starred At Sinking Japs

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—The fortunes of war have removed two thorns in the side of the Japanese, a pair of American submarine skippers whose craft are long overdue.

The navy today listed the U. S. S. Herring and the U. S. S. Golet as missing and the presumption is that they were lost to Japanese counteraction in the Pacific.

Each had a complement of 65 men. The next of kin have been notified.

Each Had Won Silver Star

In command of the Herring was Lieut. Com. David Zabriski, Jr., of Los Angeles, and the skipper of the Golet was Lieut. Com. James S. Clark, of Palo Alto, Cal. Both commanders won the Silver Star for raids on Japanese shipping.

The Golet is a new type of submarine which is considered a naval secret and its tonnage was not given. It was commissioned November 30, 1943, at Manitowoc, Wis. The 1,525-ton Herring was commissioned at Portsmouth, N. H., May 4, 1942.

The losses brought to 32 the total of American submarines sunk by enemy action or otherwise lost since the Pearl Harbor attack. One, the Sea Lion, was destroyed by its own crew to prevent capture at Cavite when the Philippines fell. Two others were lost in training exercises, and the Japanese got the remainder.

March Worst Month

The last submarine lost was the Flier on September 19, a month in which three failed to return from far-reaching patrols. The worst month was March of this year when four were lost.

Submarines and destroyers have borne the brunt of the navy's losses in the Pacific. An official tabulation shows that the destroyers have contributed 45 to the total of 194 combat vessels lost. The total also includes one battleship, six carriers, six heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, four destroyer escorts and 97 miscellaneous vessels.

Britain Can't Pay Us Back, Compton Says

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Representative Compton (R., Conn.), just back from the European war theater, said today that Great Britain "isn't going to be able to pay us anything after the war" on lend-lease balances.

He said nations which have not contributed, in men, money and other ways, toward winning the conflict should "kick in" to pay the debts of those which have contributed.

"Economically and financially," Compton said, "England is in tough shape. . . . We might as well be realistic about the whole thing—Britain isn't going to be able to pay us anything after the war."

MORE INTERNATIONAL AIRLINES URGED IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP) Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental and Western Air lines, said today the United States was "large and powerful enough in relation to other countries in the world, to support a relatively greater number of international airlines."

Frye testified at a Civil Aeronautics board hearing on applications for post-war air routes over the north Atlantic. Two companies, Pan-American and American Export lines, have been certified to fly the ocean and several domestic carriers now want to compete with them by offering one company service from points all over the United States. The two certified companies do not operate inside the borders.

Stimson Gets File On Pearl Harbor

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—An army board, following precisely a precedent set by navy investigators, submitted its report on circumstances of the politically debated Pearl Harbor disaster to Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, today and put the highest secrecy classification on part of it.

The rest of nearly 5,000 pages of record and findings, was classified "secret," as was the navy's. The "secret" classification is only a little less binding than the "top secret" label.

Airing Before Election Urged

There have been demands, in Congress and out, that the Pearl Harbor story be told before the election.

The army's record, the announcement said, will be reviewed for security by appropriate military authorities, which means that the unnamed authorities will determine how much, if any, must be kept secret.

That task, in the navy's case, was assigned to Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet.

The army's Judge Advocate General, Maj. Gen. M. C. Cramer, will review the file. The navy's Judge Advocate General had drawn the task of looking over that agency's findings to determine its legal acceptability.

Stimson Also To Review Report

Secretary Stimson, the army announcement said, also will review the army findings. Secretary Forrestal, in the announcement of the navy procedure, said he would review that record and on it determine what future action is to be taken.

Lieut. Gen. George Grunert heads the three-man army board. Other members are Maj. Gen. Henry D. Russell and Maj. Gen. Walter H. Frank. Admiral O. G. Murfin (ret.) is chief of the navy's court of inquiry.

Like its navy counterpart, the army investigating board has almost exclusively fact-finding duties.

Whether court-martial action against any individuals, or other action, is to be taken will be determined on the basis of facts brought out.

ARMY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 23 (A. P.).—The War Department announced today the names of 2,231 Army casualties in the Asiatic, Central Pacific and European areas. Included in the list are the following with their next of kin:

Army Releases Veteran Running For Congress

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—An honorable discharge for Major John E. Lyle, Texas Democratic Congressional nominee, has been approved by the War Department, and he has gone to Texas to be mustered out of the army.

News of the approval of Lyle's application for a discharge was released here by army officers who said the veteran of the Italian campaign arrived in Washington on October 19 by air after 19 months overseas and had departed the next day for Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Wounded in Italy, Lyle was promoted from a captaincy shortly after his successful race against Representative Kleberg (D., Texas). Lyle's home is in Corpus Christi.

Man, Woman Held As Spies

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP) — The Justice Department today announced the arrest of a father and foster daughter on charges of conspiracy to violate the espionage statutes.

The father, Simon Emil Koedel 62, was arrested at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., and Marie Hedwig Kodel, 26, was arrested in New York city.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the two collected information on military developments, particularly on shipping in the port of New York prior to Pearl Harbor, and that the data was delivered to the German consulate in New York city to be forwarded to the Nazis.

Hoover said special agents developed information that both Koedel and his foster daughter frequently visited New York waterfronts. He said they observed names of ships in port and reported on convoy activities.

RAILROADS WILL NEED BIG REPAIRS AFTER WAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP) Railroads have not outstripped industry generally in war profit benefits a railroad spokesman said today, and will need a post-war net operating income of a billion dollars a year in order to properly rehabilitate war-worn properties.

Those assertions were made before the Interstate Commerce commission by J. A. Parmelee, director of the Bureau of Railway Economics, Association of American railroads, at the opening hearing of the question of restoring or abandoning emergency freight rate and passenger fare increases.

The 10 per cent in passenger fares and a three to six per cent increase in freight rates were ordered March 18, 1943. The freight rates, however, have been under suspension since May 15, 1943. The passenger fare increases are still in effect.

Roosevelt's Tour in Rain Leaves Him 'No Sniffles'

Early Reports He Is 'O. K.' After Visit to New York

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP).—Presidential Secretary Stephen Early told reporters today that President Roosevelt has "no sniffles, nothing" as a result of his long ride in the rain through New York City Saturday.

"I talked to him yesterday on the phone and again this morning," Mr. Early said. "He's O. K. Admiral Ross McIntire (his physician) wasn't worried a bit about that trip."

Mr. Early said arrangements for the President's trip to Philadelphia for a speech Friday night were up to local authorities to perfect and that the same was true for projected visits to Chicago and Boston.

The White House announced today that James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director, will deliver a radio address Oct. 30 under the auspices of the South Carolina State Democratic Committee. Mr. Byrnes, who has offices at the White House and is referred to frequently as Mr. Roosevelt's "assistant President," will speak on a network and at an hour to be announced later.

Mr. Early said in announcing the speech that Mr. Byrnes would discuss "the vital issues of the forthcoming election."

772 Plants Authorized by WPB To Begin Civilian Production

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP) The War Production board announced tonight that it had authorized $152,441,000 worth of civilian production in 772 manufacturing plants having labor and machinery not needed for war work.

Included are $10,735,000 worth of vacuum cleaners, $35,971,000 worth of bed springs and innerspring mattresses, and $15,537,000 worth of household aluminum ware to be made over the next 12 months.

With WPB granting applications for such "spot" authorizations at a rate of 350 a week, the 12-month civilian production total is expected to climb rapidly in the next few weeks.

"Spot" authorizations for civilian production are those made "on the spot" by WPB field offices to take care of firms and workers left idle by war production cutbacks.

WPB said that plants employing fewer than 50 workers have received 71 per cent of all the "spot" approvals.

Consumers' durable goods accounted for more than two-thirds of the total volume of products approved. Among the items are $874,000 worth of lawn mowers, $655,000 worth of typewriters, $1,629,000 worth of electric irons in addition to production previously approved, a few bicycles, silverware, furniture, electric lamps, office supplies, church goods, fountain pens, mechanical pencils, jewelry and sporting goods.

Harvesting machinery to a value of $5,091,000 was authorized, as well as automotive parts, building materials, and plumbing and heating items.

The WPB region for which Boston is headquarters had the largest number of approvals, 129.

Some of the 772 manufacturing plants involved received more than one approval. The total number of approvals was about 1,000.

WOMAN DENIES SPYING CHARGE

Arrested With Foster Father, She Is Held In Bail

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Marie Hedwig Koedel, 26, pleaded innocent today in Brooklyn Federal Court to a charge of conspiracy to violate the espionage statutes and was held in $25,000 bail.

The Justice Department in Washington and the FBI announced earlier in the day that the girl and her foster father, Simon Emil Koedel, 62, had been arrested. The man was arrested at Harpers Ferry, W. Va.

The FBI charged that the two collected information on military developments, particularly on shipping in New York harbor, prior to Pearl Harbor. The couple rode ferries in the harbor and observed shipping operations through field glasses, the FBI said.

Living In Harpers Ferry

E. E. Conroy, chief of the New York FBI office, said the father had been living in Harpers Ferry since he was excluded from the territory included in the army's Eastern Defense Command.

He also charged that the young woman had attempted to enlist the services of men companions in obtaining information.

Koedel, according to the FBI, claimed to be a chemist when he sought information concerning arms equipment, particularly tanks.

The Federal bureau said the man and girl delivered their data to the German consulate in New York city and were paid by Johannes Bischoff, identified by the FBI as a key figure in the Nazi espionage system through an intermediary in the United States.

Man Born In Germany

Conroy said Koedel was born in Germany, but became a citizen of the United States in 1912. The young woman, Conroy added, was born in Brooklyn and had worked there as an elevator operator.

Koedel served in the United States Army from 1908 to 1911, Conroy said, but was arrested in 1915 in England on suspicion of espionage and later returned to Germany, where he served as a captain in the German army. Upon his return to this country he became a motion-picture operator.

Eric A. Johnston On Post-War Jobs

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, asked tonight for greatly expanded post-war employment in the distribution field and said 2,000,000 jobs could be supplied if each employer in the service trades hired only one more employe.

"We can't expect too much of the manufacturing industries," he said, "In 1940 they employed 10,000,000 people. The number has risen until now, in 1944, they employ 16,000,000. In 194x our manufacturers—big and small—will do a whale of a job if they can employ 14,000,000."

—o—

In an address before the first session of a two-day marketing conference sponsored by his organization, Johnston said:

"The biggest opportunities for new employment will come in the fields of trade, finance, service and what the economists call 'miscellaneous.' The last is always the hardest to define; it's the man who cuts your grass or stokes your furnace."

He told the several hundred wholesalers, retailers and representatives of related industries that the United States has 30,000,000 workers on farms, in factories, mines and construction work who fill "the industrial pipeline full of merchandise," but less than 20,000,000 to distribute such goods.

—o—

Edward N. Allen, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, said American retailers would have to distribute at least $110,000,000,000 of goods yearly after war against $74,000,000,000 in 1929 and a record high of $91,000,000,000 last year.

He said the Government will no longer be a customer in peacetime and retailers will have to change their pre-war distributive setup in order to move such a huge amount of merchandise.

—o—

Howard E. Blood, chairman of the distribution committee of the National Association of Manufacturers and head of the Norge division of Borg-Warner Corporation, took the Office of Price Administration to task for some of its policies.

"The OPA's actions prove they still believe they should not only protect the country from unnecessary price rises," he said, "but should squeeze the unit profit structures and should set individual prices even at the no-profit level whenever manufacturers' over-all profit position would, in the judgment of OPA, make that endurable."

Blood said Chester Bowles, OPA head, "gives the impression that materials will cost no more than before the war. I wish he were my purchasing agent and could make good on that."

—o—

B. Earl Puckett, vice-chairman of the board of the American Retail Federation, said citizens seeking surplus goods should not be artifically branded speculators. He said there should be one price for all buyers of excess merchandise however.

He said he disagreed with some trade quarters who felt groups which were no retailers as of a given date should be kept from buying surplus goods.

GANNETT DENIES ISOLATION LABEL

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 23 (A. P.).—Frank Gannett, publisher of the Gannett newspapers, says President Roosevelt was guilty of gross misrepresentation in calling the Gannett newspapers isolationist.

Mr. Gannett's assertion was contained in a telegram to the Chief Executive last night after the President, in his Foreign Policy Association speech Saturday night said he was "proud of the fact that the administration does not have the support of the isolationist press—and I mean specifically the McCormick-Patterson-Hearst-Gannett press."

"In calling the Gannett newspapers isolationist, you are guilty of a gross misrepresentation which I resent," read Mr. Gannett's telegram. "Not one of these papers could by any stretch of the imagination be correctly characterized as isolationist. The intimation that I as head of this group of newspapers am an isolationist is likewise unjust and utterly false.

"I urged you in 1935 to call a conference in the neutral atmosphere of Washington leaders of important European nations to remove the causes that were fast bringing on the present and greatest of all tragedies. But you pooh-poohed my appeal and little or nothing was done to bring about international co-operation and understanding that might have prevented this frightful, ruinous, costly war. My attitude then certainly was not that of an isolationist and never has been."

F. D. R. Speech May Be Indoors

Philadelphia, Oct. 23 (AP)—In the event of heavy rain, President Roosevelt's scheduled open-air address at Shibe Park Friday night will be transferred to Convention Hall, the committee on arrangements said today.

Advance Pledge To Police Peace Urged by Ball

He Says Future Aggressors Would Sneer at Agency Lacking Power to Act

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP).—Senator Joseph H. Ball, Republican, of Minnesota, said tonight that unless all nations in an international peace agency pledge in advance the forces necessary to put down aggression the organization "will be simply a debating society, without power to act, and future aggressors will sneer at it just as Hitler sneered at the League of Nations."

In a prepared address urging prompt creation of a powerful peace agency, Senator Ball said that if Congress reserves the right to consider each particular case before American forces can act against aggressors, other nations will make similar reservations.

This will mean, he said, that "we'll have no more certainty of international law enforcement than we had in the 20's and 30's."

Senator Ball spoke to the Foreign Policy Association a few hours after he announced in Washington that he would support President Roosevelt in the election campaign. He did not mention either Presidential candidate by name in his speech but he said that they as well as Vice-Presidential and Congressional candidates should make clear whether they favor a plan whereby each nation would declare war to preserve peace or a plan in which "the world community of nations does a policing job on international outlaws."

One of the main lines of attack against the United Nations security organization, he said, is a demand that any final action creating such an organization should be postponed until all peace settlements have been agreed upon. These demands, he continued, "have a familiar ring, because they are the same arguments used twenty-five years ago by opponents of the League of Nations."

Asserting that the world security-organization would be preserving peace, not making war, Senator Ball said that he could not see "where the constitutional authority of Congress to declare war is concerned in the slightest."

"It appears to me," he said, "that either under the general welfare or the national defense clause the Congress has full constitutional authority, in the light of the world situation today, to provide in advance for whatever world policing is considered necessary to prevent another great war."

"Not A Copying Job"

Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, ATSC deputy director, explained that the American version of the robots was "not a copying job, because we have no interest in a weapon which destroys at random."

"The American mind tends to accurate destruction of military objectives only, not in hitting homes and civilian populations," he added.

Research by Jack & Heintz Co., of Cleveland, showed, Meyers said, that after launching from a track, the bomb was controlled by a preset compass but that cross-winds affected its accuracy.

Other Manufacturers

Manufacturers reported as cooperating on experimental models, in addition to Ford and Jack & Heintz, were the Farmingdale N. Y. plant of the Republic Aviation Corporation, air frames and assemblies; Monsanto Chemical Company, catapulting rockets.

The robot's jet propulsion engine is mounted over a streamlined fuselage with stubby wings. Its motive power is supplied by rapid explosions of gasoline in a combustion chamber with the force directed out the open rear end of the tube-shaped engine. The fuselage contains, in addition to a war head, fuel, control equipment and compressed air tanks to power control units.

'Robomb' Powder Fuel To Be Made In Indiana

Charlestown, Ind., Oct. 23 (AP)—An announcement from the War Department in Washington today disclosed that powder to be used as a "rocket propellant" would be made in the new $28,000,000 addition to be built at the Indiana ordnance works here.

The announcement did not state more specifically how the powder would be used, but unofficial conjecture estimated it might be consumed as "robomb" fuel.

Associated Press Wirephotos to-[illegible] day showed a reconstructed robomb undergoing tests in a wind tunnel at the army air force's laboratory in Wright Field, Ohio.

U. S. Engineers Duplicate German Robot Bombs

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 23 (AP)—American engineers duplicated German robot bombs at Wright Field here 60 days after receiving parts from duds which fell on England.

The Air Technical Service Command at Wright Field, the army's gigantic aviation laboratory, formally announced recreation of the "buzz" bombs and disclosed that the Ford Motor Company already was producing jet-impulse engines for the robots "for further experiments."

CAPT. GENTILE, U. S. ACE TO BE MARRIED NOV. 29

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 23 — (AP) Capt. Don S. Gentile, 23, fighter pilot who destroyed 30 enemy planes in Europe, and Miss Isabella Masdea, 20, of Columbus will be married here Nov. 29.

Gentile, now stationed at Wright field in Dayton, and Miss Masdea were childhood friends at Piqua.

The wedding date was disclosed by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Masdea.

Their Only Son Killed, Gen. Patch Notifies Wife

Captain Dies in Action in Attack on Enemy in France

STAUNTON, Va., Oct. 23 (AP).—Lieutenant General Alexander M. Patch, commanding the American 7th Army in France, notified his wife here today that their son, Captain Alexander M. Patch, the third, twenty-four, had been killed in action.

The radiogram, handled through the War Department, said: "Mac killed instanly yesterday while assaulting enemy positions in France."

Captain Patch, the general's only son, had just returned to duty after treatment for wounds received Aug. 28. Commissioned from West Point in 1942, he had been overseas this year with the 79th Division in command of a rifle company.

His wife and young son reside at Evanston, Ill.

'Apples' Keep Byrd From F. D. R. Rally

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 23 (AP)—The harvesting of "a very large apple crop" will prevent Senator Byrd from addressing a mass meeting on behalf of the fourth term candidacy of President Roosevelt here October 31.

Simon Sonnenberg, head of the Holt Street Independent Voters' League, sponsors of the Roosevelt-Truman-Daughton rally, tonight made public a note he had received from Byrd in reply to his invitation to speak here for Roosevelt at such a time as suited his convenience.

It read:

"In answer to your telegram, I regret to advise you that conditions are such here (Winchester) in connection with the harvesting of a very large apple crop that I am unable to accept your invitation. My three boys are in the service, and the burden of the work here has fallen entirely on me."

For[illegible]erdale [illegible]er Comes Out For Dewey

Miami, Fla., Oct. 23 (AP)—The Fort Lauderdale Daily News announced in a front-page editorial today its support of the Republican Presidential ticket of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Gov. John W. Bricker.

R. H. Gore, former member of the Democratic national executive committee and former Governor of Puerto Rico, is publisher of the News.

"The Daily News takes the position that the Democratic party is now a Communist party," said the editorial, "and is attempting a steal of the party of Jefferson and Jackson."

The newspaper took no side in 1940, but supported Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936.

Carol And Party Leave New Orleans For Brazil

New Orleans, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Argentine steamship Rio Tunuyan, with former King Carol of Romania and his party aboard, left here today en route to Buenos Aires. The royal party spent a week in port, staying aboard ship.

Their request to disembark and visit the city was denied by the Immigration Department. The party is to leave the ship at a Brazilian port.

Carol was accompanied by Elena Lupescu, his chancellor and others. They boarded the ship in Mexico.

Asked whether he planned to seek recovery of his throne, Carol declared that he was going to Brazil and "my plans do not extend beyond there."

The Tunuyan is scheduled to make stops at Havana, Puerto Caballo, Venezuela and Pernambuco en route to the Argentine capital.

Reports Elimination Of Lice From Army

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP)—The cootie, which loused up the last war for millions of Americans, has been "completely eliminated" from this one as a result of the powerful new insecticide, DDT, Dr. W. E. Dove told the National Pest Control Association today.

But the doctor, chief of the division of insects affecting man and animal of the United States Bureau of Entomology, warned that it was no miracle chemical. "It is promising for other insects," he said, "but we still are unsure of how it can be used by civilians."

He related that DDT—dichlorodiphenol-trichloroenthane — halted an incipient and "potentially serious" epidemic of typhus fever, which is transmitted by body lice, last spring in southern Italy.

CALL DUMBARTON PLAN INADEQUATE

Chicago, Oct. 23 (A. P.).—The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom today suggested that the United Nations hold a full-dress conference to revise the Dumbarton Oaks proposals to provide an international structure "more democratic in character."

A resolution of the league's executive board termed the proposals "a negative premise of 'keeping the peace'" instead of the "positive achievement of 'making the peace.'" The resolution also asserted the plans were concerned with "maintaining the status quo rather than dealing affirmatively with the political and economic realties of a dynamic world."

"We would therefore urge," said the resolution, to be sent to the President and Secretary of State, "that a full conference of the United Nations be assembled at the earliest possible moment;

"That the United States use its great leadership . . . to remodel the draft proposals so as to provide a world structure more truly international in character and democratic in function; a structure flexible enough . . ." to meet world social and economic problems.

In another resolution, the league characterized the unconditional surrender policy as fuel for the "deliberate misrepresentations of the Goebbels propaganda machine."

DEWEY TO ANSWER ROOSEVELT SPEECH

G.O.P. Nominee to Reply to President on Foreign Policy Tonight.

EN ROUTE WITH DEWEY TO MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 23 — (AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey announced tonight he would "fill in the gaps" in President Roosevelt's recent foreign policy speech when he addresses the nation tomorrow night from Minneapolis.

The Republican candidate for President told a packed news conference on his special train that he was pigeon-holeing the farm speech he had prepared for Minneapolis in order to bring out what he said Mr. Roosevelt "forgot" in a New York city broadcast last Saturday.

Commenting on the President's criticism of G.O.P. "isolationists," Dewey declared, with a steely smile:

"I don't think I'll bother with Mr. Roosevelt's isolationists; He has two of them as committee chairmen, but everybody knows about that."

He declined to name them and when the names of several senators were hurled at him questioningly, he exclaimed:

"What a bunch of Washington correspondents you are."

Mr. Roosevelt had named Senators Hiram Johnson (R-Calif), Gerald P. Nye (R-N.D.), Hamilton Fish (R-N.Y.) as among the "inveterate isolationists" he said would assume commanding positions if the Republicans win control of Congress this fall.

Changes Speech

The Governor's decision to switch topics for his Minneapolis broadcast apparently was made on his campaign train today. Up until last night it was generally believed he would devote the first part of his present Midwest swing to a discussion of agricultural problems.

This belief was strengthened by his release of the New York State Farm commission study on the eve of his departure from Albany this morning.

But, meeting with reporters in the press room car as his train steamed from Buffalo toward Cleveland, the Governor twitted Mr. Roosevelt's assertion, in his Saturday night speech, that Republican orators were quoting statements "out of context."

"Mr. Roosevelt, I'm afraid, took his history out of context in that speech last Saturday night," Dewey said. "His memory seems to fail him on large areas of recent history so I'll fill in the gaps in my speech at Minneapolis tomorrow night.

"I had intended making a farm speech, but I thought I could delay that a few days so as to fill in the context which Mr. Roosevelt forgot in his speech of Saturday night."

Asked if he would discuss the question of empowering the United States representative in a projected postwar security organization to authorize use of American armed peace forces without waiting for congressional approval, Dewey said:

"I doubt if I'll go into any details I don't know to what extent I will commit the party or myself to a precise formula on a matter which is still subject to negotiation. That is something that must be worked out between the executive and legislative branches and I am sure it will be successfully."

Silent on Ball

This was one of the questions raised by Senator Joseph A. Ball (R-Minn), whose refusal to endorse his party's standard bearer has cast a political question mark over Minnesota's 11 electoral votes.

The New York Governor has said he had received no confirmation of reports that Ball planned to support Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term on the foreign policy issue. Ball, last reported in Washington, was not included on the Minneapolis reception committee scheduled to meet the Dewey train tomorrow noon. Senator Henrik Shipstead (R-Minn) was listed, along with Gov. Edward J. Thye, Mayor Marvin Kline and others.

Dewey, asked if his Minneapolis speech would "contain anything of interest to Senator Ball," replied:

"I have no idea."

Then, after a long pause, he added:

"I believe the speech will be of interest to all good Americans."

Declining to be drawn out, Dewey contended he had stated his foreign policy views "in the clearest possible language" when he addressed the New York Herald Tribune Forum last Wednesday.

"May we put it this way," a reporter began, "do you see eye to eye with President Roosevelt. . . ."

"Practically never," Dewey cut in.

To Go To Chicago

The candidate said no decision had been made as to when or where he will deliver the farm speech he had planned for tomorrow night. No subject has been announced for the address he is scheduled to make in Chicago Wednesday night, but it was considered unlikely that he would deal with farm problems there.

He said he expected to have a report Thursday or Friday from his counsel, Charles Breital, on the question of calling a special session of the New York Legislature to extend the Nov. 7 voting hours in that state.

The State C.I.O. and several New York city organizations have urged such action on the ground that heavy registration may make impossible for day defense plant workers to vote.

TRUMAN ATTACKS G.O.P. SENATORS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 23. —(AP) Applauding the decision of Senator Joseph H. Ball (R-Minn.) to suppport President Roosevelt, Senator Harry S. Truman tonight challenged Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to demand the defeat of eight Republican "isolationist" senators to back up his "strong foreign policy" assertions or "the people must assume he is another Harding."

In a statement timed to capitalize both on Ball's opposition to the Republican standard bearer and on Dewey's scheduled appearance here tomorrow, the Democratic vice presidential candidate referred to the Republican nominee's indorsement of "a strong foreign policy" and added:

"If Mr. Dewey meant it, he would ask for the election of a Senate that would support a strong foreign policy and the defeat of the eight isolationists who were nominated by the Republicans.

"The American people are entitled to know his answer, and if he refuses to give a sincere, straightforward answer to that question, the people must assume that he is another Harding.

"Mr. Dewey is coming to Minneapolis Tuesday. He can answer that question then. At all events, in view of the nearness of the election, I call upon Mr. Dewey to give his answer to the American people promptly."

The statement followed a major foreign policy speech at a luncheon of Democratic leaders in which Truman described as Republican "isolationists" seeking re-election Senators Taft of Ohio; Nye of North Dakota; Tobey, New Hampshire; Danaher, Connecticut; Davis, Pennsylvania; Reed, Kansas; Wiley, Wisconsin, and Millikin, Colorado.

SOLDIERS SEIZE UNION PLACARD

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23—(AP) A group of soldiers, several of them wearing overseas service ribbons, seized a placard from a union picket today near the busy downtown intersection of 12th and Baltimore and removed an American flag which had been attached to the sign.

The spokesman for the soldiers, a sergeant wearing several service ribbons, ordered the picket to take the flag off the placard. The picket, representing the Painters' District council No. 3 A. F. of L., refused.

"I fought for that flag overseas, and I don't like to see it profaned by that sort of thing," the sergeant said. "Take it off."

When the picket again refused, the sergeant grabbed the small flag from the placard and held it in his hand. The rest of the soldiers, whose number by this time had increased to several score, surrounded the picket while the sergeant warned him not to place another flag on his sign.

"We aren't going to bother you," witnesses quoted the sergeant, "but if you try to put a flag on this sign again we'll not only take it off, we'll tear your sign up, too."

Union officials did not identify the picket, but said he was protesting use of non-union painters in redecoration of a liquor store. They had no comment immediately.

TEAMSTERS RAP 'STATLER' STORY

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 23 — (AP) The International Teamsters, monthly publication of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, chauffeurs, warehouseman and helpers (A.F.L.), today described the now-famous Oct. 2 "Battle of the Statler" in Washington as "a modern repetition of the Blouchard blunder," preceding the defeat of James G. Blaine in the presidential race of 1884.

The publication said the Republican party and press was "trying to make a mountain out of a mole hill" of the accounts of the alleged altercation between unionists and two naval officers in Hotel Statler after President Roosevelt had addressed the Teamsters' convention.

The International teamster article included a number of statements from unionists who accused the Navy officers of accosting union members and starting fights with them. The statements, the article added, now are in the possession of Sen. Green (D.-R. I.), chairman of the Senate committee which investigated the affair.

Republican newspapers, the International teamster said, charged that Union President Daniel J. Tobin "led a mob in a drunken brawl in a bar room in the Statler hotel and that as a result of the inciting speech made to the Teamsters' convention and banquet by President Roosevelt, this so-called gang of Teamsters assailed two naval officers."

The publication reiterated a denial that Tobin had taken part in any altercation. It said Tobin had left the banquet hall in company with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and other friends and that he "knew nothing of any brawl and did not participate in any brawl."

BRICKER ASSAILS ROOSEVELT RECORD

DENVER, Oct. 23.—(AP) Gov. John W. Bricker tonight cited what he called a "consistent pattern of contradictions" in President Roosevelt's utterances.

Then, referring to Republican presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey, the Ohioan remarked: "What a relief it will be for the American people to listen to a man who does not talk in terms of expediency."

Bricker, Republican candidate for Vice President, said Americans could understand when Prime Minister Churchill declared he did not intend to preside at the liquidation of the British Empire, and when Premier Stalin advocated a strong Poland at Russia's frontiers.

"But when a New Dealer speaks up," Bricker added, "the only thing certain about what he says is that the stage is being set for another term for Mr. Roosevelt."

Wants Senate Vote on Treaties

DENVER, Oct. 23 (AP).—Governor John W. Bricker declared today that he believed the Senate should continue to ratify any treaties with other nations.

The Republican Vice-Presidential nominee took this position at a press conference when asked for comment on President Roosevelt's suggestion that America's representative at the peace conference be endowed in advance, by constitutional means, with authority to act.

"I am in favor of living within the Constitution and carrying on negotiations within constitutional power," said the Ohio Governor who came here for a major campaign speech tonight.

He asserted he did not favor "giving great blanket authority to the President of the United States in international affairs any more than I am in respect to national and domestic affairs."

"The Congress of the United States—the New Deal Congress—almost ruined this country by giving him unlimited power and a blank check," Mr. Bricker added.

Asked for his opinion on reciprocal trade agreements, Mr. Bricker replied that they would need a "complete overhauling" after the war, but that world currencies first should be stabilized.

"We can't make America a dumping ground for cheap-labor products from abroad," he remarked.

Former Army Grid Captain Dies In France

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, PARIS, OCT. 23-(AP)-IT WILL BE A LONG, COLD WINTER INSIDE GERMANY--IF THE WAR LASTS THAT LONG--ONE IN WHICH THE MIGHTIEST AIR BLOWS EVER STRUCK IN THE WHOLE RECORD OF THE ALLIES' RISING BOMB POWER BILL BE CONCENTRATED UPON A KNOCKOUT.

THE WORLD OUTSIDE HAS NO CONCEPT OF THE STAGGERING RUIN ALREADY WROUGHT BY AIR UPON GERMANY.

BUT GRANTING THAT THE GERMAN PEOPLE, WITH GESTAPO PISTOLS AT THEIR BACKS, CANNOT QUIT HOWEVER STARK THE BOMB TERROR, THERE IS THE QUESTION OF HOW LONG THE GERMAN ARMY ITSELF CAN BE SUPPLIED TO FIGHTING STRENGTH WITH THE CONTINUED, MOUNTING DEVASTATION OF WAR INDUSTRY AND TRANSPORT.

GERMANY IS KNOWN TO HAVE PUT AS MUCH INDUSTRY AS POSSIBLE UNDERGROUND, AND TO HAVE SPREAD AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE TO THE SOUTHEAST. BUT MUCH VITAL INDUSTRY CAN'T BE MOVED OR BURIED.

IT IS HIGHLY DOUBTFUL IF THE GERMAN ARMY COULD LONG CONTINUE IN EFFECTIVE OPERATION IF THE WHOLE RUHR WAR INDUSTRY WERE LOST BY CAPTURE AGROUND OR NEAR TOTAL RUIN FROM THE AIR. AND ONE OR THE OTHER OF THOSE THINGS SEEMS CERTAINLY GOING TO HAPPEN.

THE ALLIED NORTH FLANK ALREADY THREATENS THE RUHR. BUT EVEN IF THE NAZIS COULD STIFFEN ENOUGH TO HOLD THEIR LINE THROUGH THE WINTER, IT IS HIGHLY PROBABLE THE RUHR WOULD BE IN A STATE OF ALMOST TOTAL DEVASTATION BEFORE SPRING.

AT A CANADIAN ARMY COMMAND POST IN THE SCHELDE POCKET, OCT. 23-(AP)-THIS AFTERNOON THE FIRST COMPANY OF AN ONTARIO INFANTRY OUTFIT SENT WORD BACK THAT THEY HAD REACHED THEIR INITIAL OBJECTIVE IN A BACKDOOR ATTACK ON FORT FREDERICK HENDRICK AND THAT 20 GERMAN PRISONERS WERE SURRENDERING.

BUT 40 MINUTES LATER THE CANADIANS STILL WERE FIGHTING FROM APPROXIMATELY THE SAME POSITIONS IN THE OUTER PERIMETER OF THE FORTRESS DEFENSES AND IT APPEARED LIKELY THERE MIGHT BE HEAVY GOING BEFORE THE GERMANS WERE DRIVEN OUT OF THAT COASTAL STRONGPOINT.

THE NAZIS HAVE TURNED THE FORT INTO A 1,000-YARD-SQUARE AREA CONTAINING CONCRETE EMPLACEMENTS FOR AT LEAST EIGHT COASTAL GUNS WITH A RANGE OF 30,000 YARDS. THEY HAVE BUILT A MAZE OF PILLBOXES, BUNKERS AND COMMUNICATION TRENCHES THROUGH WHICH THE DEFENDERS CAN WALK HALF A MILE WITHOUT SHOWING THEIR HEADS ABOVE GROUND.

AFTER AN ARTILLERY BARRAGE DESIGNED TO KEEP THE GERMANS' HEADS DOWN, THE CANADIANS LAUNCHED A DIRECT ATTACK OVER THE MAIN SCHELDE DIKE LEADING TO THE FORT FROM BRESKENS, A MILE AWAY, WHICH WAS CLEARED BY THE SAME TROOPS YESTERDAY.

HE BRIGADIER WHOSE TROOPS ALSO CLEARED THE GERMANS FROM THE VILLAGE OF SCHOONDIJKE, THREE MILES BELOW BRESKENS, TODAY WENT UP WITHIN 500 YARDS OF FORT FREDERIK HENDRIK LATE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON. WITH ONE OF HIS COMMANDERS HE STUDIED THE FORT THROUGH HIS GLASSES, BUT SAW NO MOVEMENT.

THE OFFICERS, DECIDING THERE WAS NO ONE THERE, CLIMBED ONTO A BUNKER. THERE WAS NO FIRE FROM THE GERMANS. THEY STROLLED BACK TOWARD BRESKENS, STILL IN PLAIN VIEW, WITHOUT DRAWING A SHOT.

A PATROL THEY THEN ORDERED TO GO INTO THE FORTRESS GOT WELL IN AMONG THE DEFENSES WHEN THE MEN SUDDENLY WERE FIRED UPON BY MACHINE-GUNS FROM SIX DIFFERENT ANGLES. THE PATROL WAS ORDERED BACK HASTILY AND ARTILLERY WAS CALLED TO PUMMEL THE GERMANS.

WHILD ETAILS OF THE CONFERENCES WERE NOT DISCLOSED, THEY WERE DESCRIBED OFFICIALLY AS PURELY MILITARY IN CHARACTER.

AMONG THOSE WITH WHOM CHURCHILL TALKED WERE GEN.SIR BERNARD PAGET, BRITISH COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF IN THE MIDDLE EAST, AND AIR VICE MARSHAL SIR KEITH RODNEY PARK, AIR COMMANDER IN THAT THEATER. THE PRIME MINISTER CONFERRED WITH THEM FOR THREE HOURS FRIDAY MORNING -- THE DAY FOLLOWING HIS DEPARTURE FROM MOSCOW.

THE PRIME MINISTER'S ENTIRE STAY HERE WAS DEVOTED TO OFFICIAL BUSINESS. THOSE WHO SAW CHURCHILL SAID HE WAS IN EXCELLENT SPIRITS AND SEEMED ENTIRELY SATISFIED WITH THE RESULTS OF HIS TALKS WITH PREMIER STALIN IN MOSCOW.

CHURCHILL AND HIS PARTY STAYED AT THE VILLA OF LORD MOYNE, BRITISH RESIDENT MINISTER IN THE MIDDLE EAST. WITHIN SIGHT OF THE PYRAMIDS. HE SHUNNED ALL FANFARE DURING HIS STOPOVER, TAKING BOTH LUNCH AND DINNER IN THE VILLA WITH A SMALL INFORMAL GROUP.

DURING BOTH MEALS THE PRIME MINISTER MAINTAINED A CEASELESS FLOW OF CONVERSATION CONCERNING HIS VISIT TO MOSCOW, BUT DID NOT MENTION A WORD OF POLITICS, IT WAS SAID.

BY STEPHEN BARBER (350)

ATHENS OCT. 19-(DELAYED)--(AP)--ONE OF THE TOUGHEST GUERRILLA WARFARE TASKS UNDERTAKEN BY AMERICANS WAS WAGED IN THE MOUNATINS OF GREECE BEFORE THE ALLIED INVASION, IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY.

AN AMERICAN ARMY COLONEL--WHOSE NAME CANNOT YET BE MENTIONED--LED AN OUTFIT OF 250 GREEK-SPEAKING AMERICANS WHO LIVED AND FOUGHT FOR NEARLY FOUR MONTHS WITH GREEK GUERRILLAS.

THE YANKS HAD NO ORGANIZED SUPPLY LINES AND LIVED ON GOATS' MILK, CHEESE, AND BLACK BREAD AS THEY HARRIED THE NAZIS.

"OUR JOB," THE COLONEL SAID, "WAS TO STIFFEN THE ANDARTES (GREEK GUERRILLAS)."

"WE PARACHUTED INTO GREECE. WE WERE TO WORK IN CLOSE COOPERATION WITH A BRITISH RECONNAISANCE REGIMENT WHICH WAS IN ABOUT THE SAME STRENGTH AS OURSELVES. OUR TARGETS WERE THE MAIN EXIT HIGHWAYS AND THE ATHENS-SALONIKA RAILROAD."

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO GIVE FIGURES NOW ON HOW MANY GERMAN TRUCKS AND TROOP TRAINS WERE DESTROYED ON THE ROADS AND RAILWAYS DURING THE PAST FEW MONTHS, AS RESULTS HAVE NOT BEEN FULLY TABULATED. IT IS KNOWN THAT THE GERMANS DARED NOT MOVE TRAINS FASTER THAN 10 OR 12 MILES AN HOUR OR LET ROAD CONVOYS BUNCH TOGETHER WITH LESS THAN 500 YARDS BETWEEN TRUCKS, CONSIDERABLY HAMPERING THEIR WITHDRAWAL.

"WE CARRIED A COUPLE OF BAZOOKAS WITH EACH GROUP," THE COLONEL SAID. "A SHELL IN A LOCOMOTIVE TEARS THE TUBES AND IT IS A LONG REPAIR JOB. THE SECOND SHELL WE SLAPPED INTO THE SECOND CAR OF THE TRAIN OR THE LAST CAR, WHERE JERRY USUALLY PLACED HIS ARMORED CAR. BY THAT TIME, THE TRAIN WOULD BE BROUGHT TO A STANDSTILL. WE WOULD SPRAY IT FROM END TO END WITH MACHINEGUN FIRE AND THEN BEAT IT.

"BY THE END OF THE CAMPAIGN, WE REACHED THE POINT WHERE THE GERMANS WERE UNABLE TO GET GREEK CREWS FOR THE LOCOMOTIVES, BUT THE SWINE HAD AN ANGLE FIGURED FOR THAT. THEY PUT A FLATCAR IN FRONT OF THE LOCOMOTIVE WITH A BARBED WIRE CAGE OF HOSTAGES ABOARD IT." HE CONTINUED.

OCT 24 1944

"ATTACKING ROAD TRANSPORT WAS MUCH THE SAME. WE HID IN THE HILLS, WATCHING THE ROAD THROUGH THE DAY AND, IF IT LOOKED WORTHWHILE, SLIPPED DOWN AT NIGHT AND LAID MINES. A COUPLE OF TIMES WE PULLED OFF BIGGER SHOWS WITH THE SUPPORT OF BRITISH MORTAR CREWS AND GAVE THE ROAD CONVOYS A REALLY GOOD PASTING."

BATTLE CASUALTIES HAVE BEEN COMPARATIVELY LIGHT BUT THE DISEASE RATE, SAID THE COLONEL, WAS HIGH, PARTICULARLY FROM MALARIA. "WE HAD ONLY ONE DOCTOR WITH US AND THE BRITISH HAD ONE--AND THAT'S NOT MUCH TO COVER A WHOLE COUNTRY," HE SAID.

ATHENS, OCT. 21 (DELAYED)-(AP)-BRIG. GEN. PERCY L. SADLER, DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF MILITARY LIAISON IN GREECE, ASSERTED TODAY THE UNITED STATES IS INTERESTED IN THE BALKANS ONLY IN FEEDING HUNGRY PEOPLE AND NOT IN POLITICS.

OCT 24 1944

EMPHASIZING THAT BALKAN RELIEF IS [illegible] A 50-50 COMMITMENT BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN WITH THE ALLOCATIONS ARRANGED BY THE COMBINED CIVIL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE IN WASHINGTON, SADLER SAID IT WAS PROBABLE, HOWEVER, THAT THE BULK OF THE SUPPLIES WOULD COME FROM ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

OCT 24 1944

THERE ARE 63 U. S. OFFICERS IN THE MILITARY LIAISON SPREAD ACROSS THE BALKANS AND ALL HOLD KEY POSITIONS WORKING PARALLEL WITH SIMILAR BRITISH REPRESENTATIVES IN EACH ZONE, SAID SADLER, WHOSE HOME IS WESTMINSTER, MD. "ALL WE WANT TO SEE IS AN EQUITABLE DISTRIBUTION," HE STATED, "AND WE INSIST THAT WE BE PERMITTED TO SEE WHAT BECOMES OF THE SUPPLIES -- THAT THEY DO NOT FILTER DOWN INTO THE BLACK MARKET. AT THE MOMENT WE ARE WORKING ON A PRICE CONTROL SYSTEM WHICH WILL ENABLE THE SUPPLIES TO REACH EVERYONE, ALTHOUGH THE NEEDY WILL BE SUPPLIED THROUGH THE RED CROSS."

SADLER SAID HIS FIRST IMPRESSION OF THE FOOD SITUATION IN LIBERATED GREECE WAS "DEFINITELY BETTER THAN ANTICIPATED" ALTHOUGH HE POINTED OUT THAT THE CRITICAL CURRENCY SITUATION HAD RESULTED IN A MALDISTRIBUTION OF SUPPLIES."

LEYTE GULF, PHILIPPINES

LEYTE GULF, PHILIPPINES, OCT 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE FIRST PLANE TO LAND IN AMERICAN-CONTROLLED PHILIPPINES WATERS CAME DOWN AMIDST GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S TREMENDOUS CONVOY-FLEET JUST BEFORE DARK TONIGHT, LESS THAN EIGHT HOURS AFTER AMERICAN TROOPS POURED ASHORE AND SECURED BEACHHEADS FOR 20 MILES, FROM TACLOBAN TO DULAG, ON LEYTE ISLAND.

THE PLANE IS AN ARMY CATALINA CARRYING COURIERS FROM THE SIXTH ARMY, AND SOME NEWSPAPERMEN. IT WAS FLOWN BY THE FAR EAST AIR FORCES--A SEA RESCUE SQUADRON CREW.

AS THE "CAT" CIRCLED OVER LEYTE GULF THE IMMENSE PANORAMA OF SHIPPING SPREAD BENEATH US. ALTHOUGH THE BEACH UNDER US (DULAG) REPRESENTED ONLY A SMALL PART OF THE AREA UNDER ATTACK, THE CONCENTRATION OF SHIPS WAS GREATER THAN ANY I HAD SEEN IN ANY PACIFIC OPERATION HERETOFORE. SMALL BOATS SHUTTLED BETWEEN BATTLEWAGONS, CRUISERS, LST BOATS, LCI BOATS AND THE BEACH UNTIL NO WATER AREA REMAINED EMPTY FOR MILES AROUND.

THE FLIGHT NORTH WAS TENSE. WE SKIRTED THE JAPANESE STRONGHOLD OF MINDANAO WITH NO GUNS ABOARD EXCEPT .45 CALIBER SIDEARMS.

DESPITE THE DANGER, MAJ. D.D. CORLETT, OF SEATTLE, WASH., FLIGHT SURGEON, CHEERFULLY PREPARED LUNCH AND COFFEE ON A MINIATURE GALLEY STOVE.

PASSENGERS WERE MAJ. C.A. BREWER AND LIEUT.COL. H.A. FUCCI AND THE COURIERS LIEUT. N.C. NIELSEN, OF CENTER, COLO., AND CAPT. RICHARD KROLIK, OF SCARSDALE, N.Y. THEY SQUEEZED

IN WITH THE CREW AND ME.

THE PILOTS, LIEUT'.F.F.MOSS, OF PORTLAND, ORE., AND H.B.REMINGTON, OF DALLAS, TEX., LANDED JUST AS THE RED ALERT SIGNALS FLASHED. COLONEL FUCCI DISEMBARKED IN AN OUTRIGGER CANOE MANNED BY GRINNING FILIPINO NATIVES. ALMOST SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE RED ALERT A SMOKE SCREEN WAS LAID DOWN BY ALMOST EVERY SHIP IN THE BAY TEN MINUTES LATER I COULDN'T SEE THE WINGTIPS OF THE PLANE.

WE POSTED T/SGT.D.W.BROWN, OF JOLIET, ILL., ON THE BOW AND RADIOMAN SGT.R.B.BEAN, OF LUBBOCK, TEX., WITH NAVIGATOR LIEUT.M.A.LESTER, OF SACRAMENTO, CALIF., AT OTHER POINTS WHILE WE SAT ABOVE THE GUN BLISTERS TO PREVENT THE RAMMING OF SHIPS AS WE DRIFTED.

OCT 24 1944

THE FIRST CRAFT TO ANSWER OUR SHOUTS WAS A SMALL LCVP (LANDING CRAFT, VEHICLES AND PERSONNEL) WHICH RESPONDED: "WE CAN'T HELP YOU, WE'RE LOST TOO."

WE TIED UP AND DRIFTED TOGETHER UNTIL FINALLY A HUGE TRANSPORT LOOMED AHEAD AND PERMITTED US TO MOOR OFF THE STERN.

THREE HOURS AFTER LANDING WE WERE STORED FOR THE NIGHT IN COMFORTABLE NAVY BUNKS.

(ADVANCE FOR RELEASE 9 P.M., EASTERN WAR TIME, TUESDAY, OCT. 24)

(ADVANCE) (WX) PHILADELPHIA,OCT. 24-(AP)-A PLEA THAT THE COMING PEACE BE NOT CONSIDERED AS AN END IN ITSELF, BUT "AS PART OF A PATTERN THAT WE SEEK TO DRAW FOR SOCIETY AS A WHOLE," WAS MADE TONIGHT BY THE EARL OF HALIFAX, BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES.

"IT FOLLOWS THAT BETWEEN NATIONS," HE ASSERTED, "PEACE CAN NEVER MERELY BE THE ABSENCE OF WAR. THERE CAN BE NO TRUE PEACE UNLESS JUSTICE IS ALSO PRESENT."

THE AMBASSADOR, SPEAKING IN THE PHILADELPHIA ACADEMY OF MUSIC, SAID, "WE CAN TEST THIS ASSERTION BY EVENTS WITHIN OUR OWN EXPERIENCE. FOR FIVE YEARS THERE WAS ABSENCE OF WAR FROM POLAND, FOR FOUR YEARS THERE WAS NO WAR IN OCCUPIED EUROPE. BUT THE 'PEACE' OF POLAND AND OF OCCUPIED EUROPE WAS THE PEACE OF THE CONCENTRATION CAMP, AND ITS PURVEYORS HAVE BEEN THE UNIFORMED MURDERERS OF THE GESTAPO."

"IF IN 1940 THE NAZIS HAD BROKEN THE RESISTANCE OF BRITAIN," LORD HALIFAX CONTINUED, "THERE MIGHT HAVE BEEN THIS SORT OF 'PEACE' IN THE WORLD; BUT THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN NO SORT OF JUSTICE. WHEN THEREFORE WE PRAY FOR THE PEACE OF JERUSALEM, WE DO NOT MERELY DESIRE THAT THERE SHOULD BE NO FIGHTING IN HER STREETS. WE ARE PRAYING FOR THE PRESENCE OF THAT QUALITY OF JUSTICE WHICH ENSURES PEACE, AND WHICH, ABOVE ALL OTHERS, DISTINGUISHES A SOCIETY THAT ACCEPTS THE MORAL LAW FROM A SOCIETY THAT REPUDIATES IT."

THE AMBASSADOR TOLD HIS HEARERS THAT DURING THE SECURITY CONFERENCE AT DUMBARTON OAKS IN WASHINGTON "THERE WAS A MEMBER OF THE BRITISH DELEGATION WHO NEVER APPEARED IN ANY OF THE PHOTOGRAPHS AND TOOK NO ACTIVE PART IN THE DISCUSSIONS. X X X HE MADE NO ATTEMPT FOR FORCE HIMSELF UPON THE COMPANY'S ATTENTION; BUT IN SPITE OF HIS UNOBTRUSIVE WAYS, HE WAS, I THINK, QUITE AN IMPORTANT PERSON. THAT MAN, HALIFAX SAID, "WAS WILLIAM PENN." PREMIER GEN.KUNAIKI KOISO WARNED THE JAPANESE PEOPLE TODAY THE PACIFIC WARHAS REACHED A CRITICAL POINT WHILE MASANORI ITO, NIPPON NAVAL COMMENTATOR, ACKNOWLEDGED THAT "JAPAN IS NOW ON THE DEFENSIVE."

RADIO TOKYO BROADCASTS, PICKED UP BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, QUOTED THE PREMIER AND THE COMMENTATOR BUT UNDERSCORED THEIR REITERATED CLAIMS OF A GREAT JAPANESE VICTORY OVER AN AMERICAN CARRIER-TASK FORCE OFF FORMOSA IN RECENT ACTION THERE.

KOISO, OBSERVING THE AUTUMNAL GRAND FESTIVAL, SAID JAPAN'S ENEMY "STILL POSSESSES A POWERFUL FORCE OF WARSHIPS AND MEN AND LOOKS FORWARD TO VICTORY RELYING ON HIS MATERIAL STRENGTH. THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT THE ENEMY WILL REINFORCE HIS FORCES AND, BY CONCENTRATING A MORE POWERFUL STRENGTH, AGAIN ATTEMPT TO SMASH OUR STRATEGIC DEFENSE. X X X a tokyo broadcast last night (mon) asserted that the american position on leyte island in the philippines was only a "highly precarious toehold" and would be "crushed like an eggshell once japanese forces launched fullscale counteroffensive operations.

the enemy's appraisal of gen. douglas macarthur's return to the philippines was contained in a propaganda dispatch by the government news agency domei, which credited Jap military quarters.

the broadcast, recorded by the associated press, said the invasion force was "very much limited in strength without even tank support" and continued:

"indications are that macarthur, knowing himself the very precarious position of his invasion troops on leyte is making a frantic effert to land reinforcements in order to strengthen the toehold which his men so far have been able to secure on the tiny island."

"against this enemy attempt to consolidate his toehold on leyte beach, according to the same military quarters, there are strong indications that japanese forces are confidently making full preparations to engagement the american invaders in a battle that would crush them once and for all."

CARRIER PLANES ATTACK JAPANESE FLEET MOVING THROUGH SULU SEA TOWARD LEYTE

OCT 24 1944

ENEMY WARSHIPS SEEK TO BOMBARD INVASION FORCES

Nimitz Communique Indicates Two Groups of Ships Are Involved.

BIG BATTLE RAGES

German Radio Says Nipponese Aircraft Bomb U. S. Fleet.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 24—(AP) American carrier planes are attacking Japanese battleships and cruisers moving eastward in the central Philippines, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today and Axis reports made the unconfirmed claim that enemy planes were turning it into an aerial slugging match by attacking American warships.

Nimitz' terse communique indicated there were two groups of Japanese warships specifying they were moving through the Sibuyan and Sulu seas.

(German radio was heard in London saying both land-based and navy-based planes of the Japanese launched large scale attacks Tuesday on the American invasion fleet in Leyte gulf and also were attacking a second battle fleet "in waters not further specified.)

Battle Going On

(The broadcast said "the battle is still going on.")

Nimitz' communique said further details were unavailable.

Talked Of Digging Japs Out

Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr. commander of the Third Fleet which is sending its carrier planes against the Japanese warships, three days ago observed aboard his flagship "we may have to go in and dig the Japanese fleet out."

One of the Japanese forces could be moving through the Sulu Sea from the southwest, planning to move on through the Mindanao Sea in the southwest Philippines toward Leyte Island.

Strictest radio silence always is necessary for fleet security when the armadas are in striking distance.

The wording of the communique —"enemy forces moving eastward through the Sibuyan and Sulu seas" — might indicate that two Japanese forces were on the prowl.

One could be moving through the Sulu sea from the southwest, planning to move on through the Mindanao sea in the southwest Philippines toward Leyte island.

The other could be moving through the Sibuyan sea southeastward toward the Visayan sea and Leyte island, which Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces invaded last week.

Shallow narrow passages around Leyte prevent Adm. Halsey's warships from closing for a surface engagement. However, with Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's carrier forces now within aerial striking distance of the Japanese, the Third fleet logically could meet the enemy forces without itself being subjected to attack from imperial units which presumably are wholly lacking in vital aerial support.

No Carriers Mentioned

Nimitz' failure to mention the presence of any Japanese carriers might indicate the enemy is trying to slip heavily gunned surface ships close to the western side of Leyte island and subject MacArthur's ground forces to severe bombardment.

The move by units of the enemy fleet apparently was one of desperation, made without vital air support. It may well prove suicidal for the Imperial surface units involved.

The enemy strategy undoubtedly was to steal secretly into the inland seas of the south and central Philippines, where it virtually would be impossible for Halsey's mighty Third fleet to move, and to surprise MacArthur's forces with a terrific bombardment from the sea.

Such a daring move might have been worth the losses the enemy fleet undoubtedly would have suffered in retiring. However, detected far out of range of the ground forces hammering ahead on Leyte, the Japanese face the prospect of very heavy losses from Mitscher's bomber and torpedo planes.

With virtually every Japanese airplane in the Philippines knocked out in the aerial invasion by Mitscher's aircraft, and staging bases neutralized too recently to have been repaired, the Nipponese must rely solely upon their ships antiaircraft guns for defense.

Jap Air Power Destroyed

Most of Japan's carrier air power was destroyed in the Philippine sea battle. In that engagement, fought entirely in the air, Mitscher's pilots destroyed 402 enemy naval planes in one day off the Marianas when the enemy attempted to interfere with the American invasion of Saipan island.

The Mitscher forces made possible the destruction or damaging of nearly a score of enemy warships the following day when the American aircraft gave chase to the enemy fleet and overhauled it shortly before dusk.

Japan presumably has not recovered from that blow to her naval air arm. There has been no evidence anywhere since that she has been able to build up her carrier force and supply it with aircraft and, more important, with trained pilots.

The Japanese may have guessed that the powerful Third fleet had retired from the Philippines area when they planned to strike MacArthur at Leyte. That fleet has roamed the Western Pacific for two months, striking devastating blows at the Palau islands in the Western Carolines; at Marcus island, the Ryukyus in Japan's front yard, Formosa and the Philippines. It packed so much power that imperial warships turned and made for their bases when they caught one sight of it.

It is possible the enemy figured that even American might could not sustain such a great force at sea so long without time out for resupplying.

Passage Through Islands Risky

The geography of the Philippines makes passage through the islands from east to west virtually impossible for anything even as small as a destroyer. For this reason, it long has been anticipated that whenever American forces landed on any of the islands, the enemy might attempt to inaugurate a Philippines express, similar to the Tokyo express which operated in the Solomons for so many months in 1942 and 1943.

Today's terse communique did not make clear whether the Japanese high command was attempting to supply its beleaguered forces on Leyte as well as closing in for a shelling of the American liberation army.

In the Solomons, the Nipponese used the Tokyo express both for bombardment and supply, with varying success. They were badly defeated many times, beginning with the night battles of Nov. 13 and 15, 1943, in which they lost more than thirty warships sunk or damaged.

American Units Land On Samar Island, Report Says

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 24 (AP)—American liberators of 11 towns in the central Philippines drove ahead on Leyte Island today through almost impassable muck and bitterly resisting Japanese.

(Press dispatches from the front to the Melbourne Herald in Australia reported an American tank column had established a bridgehead on Samar Island, the link between Leyte and Luzon islands.

Cleared By Censors

(Fielder's dispatch from Tacloban, cleared by military censors, said Gen. Douglas MacArthur capitalized on the rapid advance on northern Leyte to send his troops to the fifth island to be invaded since his return to the Philippines.

(Invasion of Samar was not mentioned by other correspondents nor by MacArthur's own communique.

(A road leads up the west coast of Samar from the shores opposite Tacloban to the northern tip, 15 miles southeast of Luzon, on which Manila is situated.)

Airfield Captured

The southern column on Leyte, units of the Seventh Infantry Division, captured San Pablo airfield in a seven-mile advance stemming westward from the beachhead at Dulag. The doughboys occupied the field after a grueling march of 12 circuitous miles through dense undergrowth and in broiling heat, reported Alva N. Dopking, Associated Press war correspondent.

Only rear-guard snipers opposed the infantry, following dispersal of light resistance by American Sherman tanks. The bulk of the Japanese force was in full retreat.

Hampered By Muck

Meanwhile, Sixth Army troops moved northwestward from Tacloban, at the northern tip of the 20-mile Leyte east coast front. Muck and slime proved a greater obstacle in the south than the Japanese, and sometimes left the advancing Yanks without the support of their tanks.

The coastal road south from Tacloban to Palo was entirely in American hands. However, most of the road between Palo and Dulag is in Japanese hands.

Paced By Tanks

Palo and Dulag anchored the westbound arms of a potential trap reaching out to engulf Nipponese 16th Division elements—the torturers at Bataan—in a 140-square-mile area bounded on the east by the coast and on the west by a valley road from Burauen to Santa Fe.

There was a violent fight at Palo. All Monday night the Japanese counterattacked fiercely and it was not until this morning that it was broken bloodily. Then the Americans resumed a slow push west of Palo.

"There are signs that the Japanese have sensed the growing danger at the southern end and already are pulling out to the northwest.

Rear Guards Fall Back

Other enemy rear guards at the extreme north end of the Leyte front retreated before First Cavalry troops which last night pushed three miles northwest of Tacloban.

(Reuter reported that the German Transocean News Agency, quoting a Tokyo message, said: "Almost four and a half American divisions were landed on Leyte Saturday evening according to military quarters in Tokyo.")

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique listed not only the liberation of 11 towns on Leyte but also the complete occupation of the three small islands of Suluan, Dinagat and Homonhon, guarding the entrances to Leyte Gulf. Patrols had been put ashore on those islands one week ago today, preparatory to last Friday's landings on Leyte.

Ten of the first 11 towns liberated lie within seven miles of Tacloban.

Towns Are Listed

Reading down the coastal highway they are Tacloban, San Fernando, Sagkahan, Burayan, San Jose, Marasbaras, Pawing, Guindapunan and Palo. Calampanan, the tenth town, is in the low-lying hills inland from the highway, about midway between Tacloban and Palo.

Dulag is the only town listed as liberated on the southern sector of Leyte.

Filipinos Return

In contrast with the round-the-clock massive air cover of American carrier-based planes, the Japanese managed only small night attacks, but the communique today said these were ineffectual and that anti-aircraft guns of warships shot down a dive bomber.

Front-line dispatches told of Filipino women and children, who took to the hills when battle-wagons of the 600-ship convoy opened up the pre-invasion shelling, coming down into liberated communities where they were issued food and clothing.

Despite the bitter fighting around Palo, Murlin Spencer, Associated Press war correspondent, said the town itself was intact and its 3,000 residents returned to their homes.

Only Toe Hold, Japs Say

(Tokyo's radio's version of the situation for American consumption, as recorded last night in the United States by the Federal Communications Commission, was that the Yanks on Leyte have only a "toehold." The announcer boasted that the Americans "would be crushed like an egg shell once the Japanese forces launched full-scale counter-offensive operations." In the same breath, however, he said MacArthur was landing reinforcements.

(At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz issued a communique late Monday which told of a 49-ton Liberator raid last Friday on Iwo, in the Volcano Islands, 750 miles south of Tokyo, during which five of eight enemy intercepters were shot down or damaged, against the loss of one four-engined raider.)

Augmenting MacArthur's communique today that ground forces on Leyte "are steadily progressing along the entire front," front dispatches said the task hasn't been as easy as communiques might indicate. They added, however, that the work of supply was going well and drew a parallel between Tacloban, captured on the second day of the invasion, and Cherbourg, on the Normandy front in Europe, as a port.

TANKS FERRIED OVER STRAIT TO ATTACK SAMAR

Americans Gain 7 Miles in Push Inland From First Beachhead.

WARSHIPS SHELL FOE'S LINE

U. S. Forces Push Through All But Impassable Muck to Score Gains on Leyte.

Melbourne, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—The Melbourne Herald's war correspondent declared in a field dispatch from Tacloban today that the Americans have crossed San Juanico Strait and established a bridgehead on Samar Island in the central Philippines. Blaine Fielder, the correspondent, said that the bridgehead was established yesterday on the second major Philippine island to be invaded.

He said that a tank column drove up the highway to a point from which it ferried across to Samar. Gen. MacArthur, capitalizing on the brilliant American successes in the Tacloban area, had pushed the force across the strait, he added.

This was not reported by any other correspondents, nor was it contained in Gen. MacArthur's communique today.

Samar is the only big land link between Leyte and Luzon, on which Manila is situated. The narrow San Juanico Strait separates Leyte from Samar, and San Bernardino Strait, about fifteen miles wide, lies between Samar and Luzon to the northwest.

One of the largest of the Philippine Islands, Samar forms the northern border of the Gulf of Leyte and combines with Leyte Island to form San Pedro Bay, an arm of the gulf in which most of Gen. MacArthur's huge sea invasion force has been reported.

OFFICER GOT JAP WAR DATA

U. S. Lieutenant Spent Seven Months On Mindanao

By RICHARD BERGHOLZ

With the American Rangers in the Philippines, Oct. 23 (AP—Delayed)—Lieut. Leon Tinnell, of the army air force, whose wife lives at St. Louis, returned recently after spending more than seven months behind Japanese lines on Mindanao Island fighting with the guerrillas and gathering information which played a key part in the drive back to the Philippines.

Tinnell went to Mandanao by submarine. He came out the same way. During those seven months he radioed information back to American headquarters which resulted in the sinking of more than 50 enemy ships.

Reported Troop Movements

Tinnell told headquarters when and where Japanese troops were moving; what installations the enemy was building and where. Then he came out weighing only 126 pounds—17 under normal. He was sick with malaria. But the Japanese had never caught up with him nor wounded him.

Now Tinnell is back in the Philippines again. But this time he did not have to sneak in by submarine. He heads a picked group of reconnaissance troops which landed with the Rangers on Homonhon Island, in the mouth of Leyte Gulf.

Instead of the three men he had on Mindanao, Tinnell's patricular unit now has 29—16 Filipinos and 13 Americans. They are highly trained in reconnaissance, and demolition, their job, is about as hazardous as can be found.

"I've been in every theater of war except China-Burma-India," said Tinnell. "I used to be a radio gunner on Liberators and Flying Forts. I am used to action, lots of it.

Volunteered For Assignment

"When I came to the Southwest Pacific and they asked for volunteers for a 'secret assignment,' I took the leap.

"I'm not sorry. The close calls I've had scared me. Sure. But at least I have the satisfaction of knowing I helped sink some Jap ships and kill some Jap soldiers.

"And I've seen Filipinos wage deadly effective guerrilla war against the enemy. I've seen how they made the Japs so scared of them that they no longer dared to leave their camps to move inland except in force.

"When I left, the guerrillas controlled a large section of one Philippine island. And I mean controlled it. Sure, the Japs could drive them out of town whenever they wanted to. But they couldn't hold it without diverting strength.

Traitors Died Regretting

"The Japs worked hard to buy Filipino fifth columnists. I know one case where they paid 1,000 pesos for information. That's a staggering sum to most Filipinos and a few turned traitor, but died regretting it.

"Sometimes the Japs moved into guerrilla villages and ruthlessly killed everyone who didn't escape and then burned the village to the ground.

"This only made the guerrillas more deadly.

"The guerrillas were well organized. Most of them had had army training before the war. They lived quite well off the land, but were pinched for ammunition, weapons and medical supplies.

Many Americans In Group

"Many Americans were among them, including soldiers who escaped from Luzon and civilians who took to the hills rather than surrender. One American guerrilla leader was an insurance salesman in Manila. There were many like him, men with no previous military experience, men who learned to fight the Japs where it hurt the worst—behind the lines.

"Naturally, guerrillas rely on ambush. But when Japs come in force they let go with all the firepower they can muster and then take to the hills to fight another day.

"The women fight right along with the men. Everyone fights the best he can. Thousands have been sworn into the United States Army even as they waged guerrilla warfare. I know men, both Filipinos and Americans, who have been commissioned as high as colonels for their part in guerrilla warfare.

"In areas the Japanese controlled they've built walls around villages with only one entrance. Every Filipino as he passes through is required to bow to the sentry. Now the Filipino is a proud man and doesn't forget humiliation. He will remember and hate the Jap as long as he lives. Now that the tide is turning the hunter will become the hunted."

THIRD AIRFIELD HELD ON LEYTE

American Troops Advance Despite Mire And Heat

MacArthur Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 24 (AP)—Overcoming Japanese resistance, mire and heat, American liberation forces pressed the reconquest of Leyte Island today, seized another airfield and freed numerous towns.

[A field dispatch to the Melbourne Herald reported American tanks, ferried across San Janico Strait from Leyte, established a bridgehead on Samar Island.

[The dispatch, from Blaine Fielder, Herald correspondent, has not been officially confirmed, nor has the action been reported from any other source.

May Seek To Silence Guns

[The operation may have for its immediate objective the silencing of Japanese artillery on southern Samar which could menace Tacloban, provisional Philippine capital, and Allied shipping in Leyte Gulf and the narrow strait.

[Samar is the island link between Leyte and Luzon, on which Manila is situated. It is more than 100 miles long and is separated from Luzon by San Bernardino Strait. That strait, 15 miles wide, is said by veteran maritime men tc be one of the most treacherous water courses in the world.]

While ground forces at the northern end of the Leyte battlefront repulsed a bitter all-night enemy counterattack near Palo, the southern arm battled around from Dulag through mire and heat to seize the San Pablo airfield. This was reported by Al Dopkins, Associated Press correspondent.

Now Hold Three Airfields

The action apparently occurred after the issuance of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Tuesday communique, which merely said the outskirts of San Pablo had been reached. Three airfields now are in American hands. The others are at Tacloban, at the northern end of Leyte, and at Dulag. The Tacloban field already is in limited operation.

Seventh Division troops struggled through dense undergrowth under a broiling sun to take the San Pablo field. Their circuitous march of 12 miles represented an advance of seven miles. They were paced by medium tanks which knocked out light enemy opposition, leaving only rear-guard snipers to be cleared out by the infantry.

Ahead of the southern column was San Pablo, a roadside town, and Burauen, where the road swings northward up the wide Leyte Valley toward Tacloban. The enemy was in full retreat northwestward from the San Pablo area, apparently sensing the developing move to entrap him.

Planes, Ship Guns Called In

Dive bombers and the fire of American warships lying in Leyte Gulf were called upon to contain the stubborn counterattack west of Palo. It apparently was the most bitter opposition that had yet developed. The battle raged through Monday night. The attack was "bloodily thrown back," MacArthur reported, and by dawn units of the Tenth Corps again were on the move.

Other elements of the Tenth Corps meanwhile advanced three miles north of Tacloban, which is six miles north of Palo, in pursuit of retreating Japanese.

Summing up the successful operations since the initial landings last week, MacArthur reported the liberation of three islands—Dinagat, Suluan and Homonhon—and the communities of Tacloban, San Fernando, Sagkahan, San Jose, Marasbaras, Dulag, Palo, Pawing, Guindapunan, Calampanan and Burayan. The three islands, at the mouth of Leyte Gulf, were occupied prior to the landings on Leyte.

[Radio Tokyo meanwhile broadcast Domei news agency reports of American reinforcements reaching Leyte and of new American carrier aircraft raids on Luzon. Domei also reported new Japanese air attacks on Allied shipping in Leyte Gulf.]

Manila's Airfields Raided, Japs Say

San Francisco, Oct. 24 (AP)—American carrier-borne planes raided airfields on Luzon Island in the northern Philippines today, the Japanese-controlled Manila radio reported.

A domestic broadcast said 22 planes raided airdromes in the Manila area, where they were met by Nipponese interceptors.

This would indicate that Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's powerful carrier force is still hammering the Philippines in support of the American invasion of Leyte. Carrier action in the islands was not mentioned in yesterday's Pacific fleet communique.

Routed, Japs Claim

Domei, the Japanese news agency, in a propaganda broadcast to the Philippines, said the Manila raiders were routed by Japanese land and air defense units.

The agency said the Japanese air force took advantage of improved weather conditions early today to attack "enemy surface craft in Leyte Gulf and also the task force in adjacent waters." Domei termed the attacks "repeated" and "fierce" and said they "lasted well into the afternoon. . . . Early reports indicated the Japanese airmen in these sustained attacks achieved great results the exact extent of which are now being checked.'

Attack Unconfirmed

There was no Allied confirmation of these attacks.

Domei also said "Japanese ground forces in the Leyte sector continued to assault the American invading troops who are now making frantic efforts to expand their beachheads near Tacloban.

The agency did not mention capture of Tacloban, provincial capital, and its airfield, by American forces.

LEYTE INVASION

BEATS SCHEDULE

U. S. Fliers Saw Weaknesses in Jap Philippine Defenses.

ABOARD FLAGSHIP OF U. S. THIRD FLEET IN WESTERN PACIFIC, Oct. 22—(Delayed)—(AP) The Philippines invasion has been speeded and the whole American timetable of Pacific war may have been advanced by the discovery by American naval fliers of Japanese weaknesses.

September carrier plane strikes against the Japanese in the Philippines gave the Americans their first satisfactory observation of the enemy there since the islands fell early in 1942.

Hundreds of American planes flew over the islands from Luzon southward. These pilots saw evidence of large Japanese concentrations at certain places.

But in the central Philippines they sighted places where the Japanese were highly vulnerable and which could be reached by troop transports.

Piecing this information together and measuring their own strength and the extent of preparations already completed, the Americans were able to set a new D-day for the Philippines.

Mud Called Chief S. Leyte Foe

With the 24th Corps on Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 24 (AP)—Mud, not Japanese, has proved the principal foe of the 96th Division in the southern sector, with men struggling almost neck deep through the slime in their efforts to reach and kill the scattered defenders retreating before them.

Armor in some sectors has bogged down completely. One patrol advancing through deep swamps near Catmon Hill left vehicles behind and plunged ahead without the support of their tanks. Men jumped from clump to clump of wiry swamp grass only to sink shoulder deep. They are pulled ahead by rope in the hands of their comrades.

Everyone digs in by late afternoon for another miserable night in foxholes. Then comes the daily downpour and everyone tries to bail out 18 inches of water and slime before crawling down into the muck for the night.

That is the war as we have seen it so far on the southern part of the Leyte front.

4,000 Guerrillas Aid Leyte Invasion

By William B. Dickinson

[Representing the Combined American Press]

With General MacArthur, Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 20 (Via Army Radio — Delayed) — Four thousand armed and organized guerrillas, including a few Americans, aided in preparations for the landing of United States forces on Leyte Island and will join with the Yanks in battling the Japanese.

The guerrillas are led by Col. Ruperto Kangelon, a Filipino. Second in command is a former United States PT boat skipper.

Defense Data Collected

The guerrillas collected detailed information as to Japanese strength and dispositions. This information was transmitted fully to American headquarters by secret means. A typical report, for example, might describe a certain point of land and reveal that the four Japanese there had a machine gun.

The guerrillas were given a schedule of operations in advance of the landings to permit them to evacuate civilians from threatened areas and to forewarn them when to go into action. Discussing this phase of invasion preparations Gen. Douglas MacArthur said we may lose a few more men in the actual landing but the ultimate benefits will far outweigh any loss of surprise which may result.

Eyewitness Tells of Sudden Burst of Fire From Enemy Positions in High School.

By ASAHEL BUSH

With a Veteran Regiment in Tacloban, Oct. 21 (Delayed) (A. P.).—All of Tacloban, capital of the province of Leyte, was firmly in American hands tonight, scarcely thirty hours after the First Cavalry's initial landing, but the job took a bit of doing.

At first it looked easy. When the advance elements of Major Leonard F. Smith's unit— the same outfit that captured Tacloban airfield yesterday—marched into the center of town at 11 A. M today, there was no sign of the enemy. There was only a continuous throng of Filipinos lining the streets and plugging the intersections. The Filipinos waved tattered, faded American flags produced from hiding and rushed forward with offerings of food for the troops.

But as the leading American patrols crossed the main street and pushed down Independence avenue toward the high school, their progress was suddenly interrupted by enmy fire from the school buildings and from a hill beyond. The Yanks dispersed, taking whatever cover they could find and returned the fire.

Brooklyn Is There.

I crouched uncomfortably with T/4 Robert del Castillo, an artilleryman of 76 Sheffer street, Brooklyn, in a nest of barbed wire behind an earth barricade fronting the high school. Bullets dug little pits in the asphalt street and at least one man was wounded.

Soon it became apparent that we were not yet present in sufficient force to attempt an attack against enemy positions of unknown strength, and a withdrawal was ordered. The Filipinos who had been watching the proceedings looked puzzled at this unexpected backward movement, following so closely upon our triumphal entry, and I for one was a little embarrassed.

It wasn't long, however, before the outfit came up in force. Then a series of thrusts was undertaken both to the north and to the east and by 4 o'clock the whole of the blunt peninsula on which Tacloban is built was under control.

Women and Children Wounded.

During the fighting one of the inevitable tragedies of war occurred. The American forces were belatedly notified that the retreating Japanese had taken some Filipino civilians along as hostages. Before the ruse was discovered a number of helpless civilians were badly wounded.

They made a pathetic spectacle — little naked children stained with blood, silent and uncomprehending; their mothers likewise were wounded, but wailing less from their own pain than from distress over the plight of their children.

Celebrate With Enemy's Beer.

A great deal happier was the discovery that in their flight the Japanese troops contributed large stocks of saki and beer to the Filipinos' celebration of the liberation of Tacloban.

Scores of Filipinos trudged along happily with cases of beer on their heads. Even children carried it. Two 12-year-old girls laughingly carried a case between them.

It came from the large stocks of beer and saki left behind by the garrison of 1,000 Japanese troops that hastily fled to hills yesterday under heavy bombing and artillery fire.

Vengeful Filipinos hacked up one Japanese who was killed inside the city.

Brig.-Gen. Verne D. Mudge, the divisional commander, estimated that 300 Japanese were killed while the division suffered ten men killed and twenty-five wounded as the city fell.

People Well Dressed.

Tacloban is a city of contrasts in native and modern architecture. Most Filipino homes are built on stilts with contrasting thatched or corrugated metal roofs. There are many masonry buildings, including the white, provincial Capitol.

Tacloban is on a thumb of land jutting above Cancat to Bay and with water on three sides. Gen. Mudge expressed the belief that the Japanese decided against trying to defend it because it would be a natural trap when the Americans established their line across the thumb's base.

Most of the people in town were moderately well dressed. Many of the women, in gay colors, contrasted sharply with the ragged natives of the villages along the way to Tacloban. The town had suffered virtually no bombardment damage. The bombardment was accurately directed against a 150-foot ridge, rising like a misplaced backbone on a tangent from the town where 200 or 300 Japanese had been reported the previous day.

Jap Troops on Leyte Tortured Remaining Americans, Filipinos

TACLOBAN, Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 23—(delayed)—(AP) It has been a miserable and frightening two and a half years for the people of Leyte since the Japanese came and particularly so for Tacloban's three remaining citizens of American ancestry.

Robert Price, 33, is one of the three. His brother Joe is another and Joe Mooney who worked for the Prices is the third.

The three were immediately suspected of collusion whenever there was an outbreak of guerrilla activity on Leyte or more recently whenever there was an American air attack on the island.

"On every one of these occasions," Price said, "we would be routed and hauled off to jail, not only ourselves, but our children and our Filipino wives and mothers.

"I guess we had trials if you could call them trials. The Japs would take you upstairs and ask you a few questions. If they weren't satisfied with the answer they would beat you and then tie your hands and feet behind your back and hang you by the arms from a cross beam."

Price showed scars on his wrists. "Once," he continued, "I hung there for an hour and a half. All I would have to do was kick my feet and I would spin around like a barbecue."

The Prices and Mooney spent nearly half their time in jail since the Japanese arrived on May 26, 942 and the rest of the time hiding or working under duress for the enemy.

The Prices' father, Walter Price, a captain in the American army and native of Philadelphia, stayed in the Philippines after the war in 1898 and in 1911 founded the Leyte Land Transportation company which in time became Tacloban's dominant business and made the Prices the town's most influential family.

The elder Price, 68, was taken to a concentration camp in January, 1943 along with Tacloban's other full blooded Americans—Joseph Barber, a farmer; Mrs. Haines, the school superintendent, and Mr. Radcliffe, a shipping agent. Walter Price writes occasionally that they are well.

Robert Price said most of the small American garrison here at the start of the war was commanded by a Col. Cornell and was taken prisoners by the Japanese.

Jap Beer Used In Celebration

By James Hutcheson

With United States Troops in Tacloban, Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 22 (AP—Delayed)—Fleeing Japanese troops contributed large stocks of saki and beer to the Filipinos' celebration of the liberation of Tacloban.

When veteran troops of the First Cavalry Division arrived in the provincial capital a day ahead of the D-day schedule, they were met by deliriously happy Filipinos.

The gayly dressed Filipinos lined the streets and windows, shouting, grinning, waving their hands and flags. Maj. Gen. Verne D. Mudge, division commander, estimated 500 United States flags were on display.

Carry Beer On Heads

Scores of Filipinos trudged along happily with cases of beer on their heads. Even children carried it. Two 12-year-olds girls laughingly carried a case between them.

It all came from large stocks of beer and saki left behind by the garrison of 1,000 Japanese troops that hastily fled to hills yesterday under heavy bombing and artillery fire.

Vengeful Filipinos hacked up one Japanese who was killed inside the city.

General Mudge personally received 40 surrendering Formosan laborers after his tank battered through an upset truck which the enemy had set up as street block. The Formosans held their hands aloft and appeared happy to be captured.

Provisional Capital

Tacloban, a city of 30,000 and the largest on Leyte Island, is the first important town to fall to the invading Americans. (It is now the provisional capital of the Philippines, patroled by the Seventh Cavalry Regiment.)

Conquest of the town came four hours after Gen. Douglas MacArthur was turned back by a blasted bridge as he attempted to go up by jeep to inspect the advance lines.

General Mudge ordered one of his regiments to take the town one day after the men swept ashore and advanced speedily against surprisingly light opposition to control roads up to two miles inland. Tacloban is about six miles by road from the original beachhead.

Lumbering mechanized buffaloes, tanks and jeeps swarmed about the roads of the sector.

City Of Contrasts

General Mudge, who in the late afternoon underwent sniper fire on a swift tank reconnaissance of Tacloban, estimated 300 Japanese were killed while the division suffered 10 killed and 25 wounded.

Tacloban is a city of contrasts in native and modern architecture. Most Filipino homes are built on stilts, with contrasting thatched or corrugated metal roofs. There are many masonry buildings, including the white, provincial capitol.

Tacloban is on a thumb of land jutting above Canvabato Bay, with water on three sides. General Mudge expressed the belief that the Japanese decided against trying to defend it because it would be a natural trap when the Americans established their line across the thumb's base.

Town Little Damaged

Most of the people in town were moderately well dressed. Many of the women, in gay colors, contrasted sharply with the ragged natives of the villages along the way to Tacloban. The towns suffered virtually no bombardment damage.

The bombardment was accurately directed against a 150-foot ridge, rising like a misplaced backbone on a tangent from the town where 200 or 300 Japanese had been reported the previous day.

General Mudge personally inspected the ridge, even before the native huts on its sides had been searched for snipers. Ten minutes after the general descended two snipers opened fire from a hut 50 feet from the trail. They were annihilated.

Joyful Filipinos End Yanks' Parade

With American Rangers, the Philippines, Oct. 19 (AP—Delayed)—Loreto, first large Filipino town to be liberated in the American drive back to the Philippines, greeted its deliverers with tears, cheers and ceremonies.

Many of the 7,000 people of Loreto, largest town on Dinagat Island at the mouth of Leyte Gulf, swarmed over the beach to welcome the American Rangers who landed nine miles north of Loreto two days ago.

(The Americans landed on Dinagat and Homonhon islands two days before the main invasion of Leyte Island, and cleaned out Japanese units which might have interfered with the passage of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's convoy between the islands en route to Leyte.)

Cry With Joy

Old and young, among them armed guerrillas, cheered and waved flags which they had guarded for more than two years. They embraced the Rangers and some of them cried with joy.

The Rangers themselves choked up a bit.

As soon as the Rangers reached the beach they started a parade down the main street. But it didn't last long. Women ran through the ranks to embrace the Rangers and men grabbed hold of the hands of all the soldiers they could reach. Soon the military lines were broken and each Ranger had a small parade of his own group of admirers.

Town Is Toured

Then came the ceremonies. Ranger officers paid their respects to Tomas Caduan, the gray-haired Mayor, and his official staff. Loreto's police chief, Odon Galido, led the official tour of the town, pointing to buildings burned and shelled by the Japanese before the enemy left Loreto last August.

Galido pointed out the Catholic and Aglipayan Philippine independent church buildings gutted and marked by fire. The churches were looted by the Japanese.

Filipino Scout Hid 3 Years On Leyte

With the First Cavalry on Leyte, Oct. 22 (AP—Delayed) — Sergt. Antonio Maringo, United States Army Filipino scout, reported for duty today at division headquarters for the first time in nearly three years. And he hadn't been AWOL.

He was captured by the Japanese on Luzon and promptly escaped. He fled to Tacloban, in Leyte, where he lived in the guise of a civilian until the Americans returned. Then he took his uniform out of hiding and reported for duty.

He had a happy reunion at headquarters with Col. Charles Sheldon, of El Paso, Texas, chief of staff to Maj. Gen. Verne D. Mudge. Sheldon and Maringo served together in the islands between 1935 and 1937.

He Wants to Fight.

Dulag, Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 21 (Delayed), (A. P.).—A young Filipino sat on the ground leaning against the crumbled walls of the Dulag church, talking to a couple of doughboys. He had just come through the Japanese lines to join the Americans. He looked tired but hungry. His wife had been wounded and his baby killed in the fighting.

Across the village square he could see the smoulering ruins of what had once been the thatch-topped homes of 5,000 Filipinos. There wasn't much left standing—only the crumbled walls of the old church and part of a schoolhouse.

He looked across at the white statue of Dr. Jose Rizal, Filipino hero who led the revolt against Spanish rule. It stood untouched by the bombardment. He ran his fingers along the blade of his long, wicked looking knife.

"I'm mighty glad to see you," he told the doughboys. "I knew you would come."

"The Japs took most of our food," the young Filipino said. Then he ran his finger along the knife blade again. "I want to fight, too."

Yank Officer Decides Who's Mayor Of Palo

Palo Village, Leyte, Oct. 23 (AP—Delayed)—The first political dispute of this village of 5,000 since American troops took over was settled today by Lieut. Col. Alva Carpenter, of Fort Wayne, Ind., civil affairs officer of the 24th Division.

Simeon Militante and a chap named Alvarado both claimed the Mayoralty of Palo. Militante was elected in 1941. Alvarado was his deputy when the Japanese took over.

Alvarado stayed and claimed the Mayor's job when Militante left and was later arrested by the Japanese. Ultimately, the Nipponese released Militante, but Alvarado continued to hold office.

Colonel Carpenter decided to recognize Militante as Mayor.

ALLIES TIGHTEN GRIP ON DEFENSE KEY TO HOLLAND

British Second Army Breaks Into Streets of Vital Rail Hub.

TROOPS CAPTURE BEST

Canadians Smash onto South Beveland Island in Heavy Fighting.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 25—(AP) Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's British Second army fought into the streets of 'S Hertogenbosch from the northeast yesterday and last night tightened its iron grip on the Nazis' defense key to western Holland as another spearhead closed in from the south.

Four columns which originally advanced on the Dutch cathedral city and rail center have now formed junctions bringing the city of 45,000 under siege from the northeast and southeast. Only the south Willem canal separates the two British forces on the east.

Close in on 'S Hertogenbosch

In closing on 'S Hertogenbosch, the British occupied Hintham, one mile to the east, St. Michaels Gestel, four miles to the southeast and several other small Dutch villages and towns.

A field dispatch declared the capture of 'S Hertogenbosch would imperil the entire German force estimated at between 60,000 and 70,000 men in western Holland, and go far toward breaking the enemy's blockade of the great port of Antwerp. The Germans were reported rushing reserves into the area.

The three-day British offensive northward from Eindhoven had captured nearly 1,500 prisoners and it appeared tonight that Nazi defenses were crumbling all along a 12-mile front. A captured German Colonel admitted the sudden British offensive had taken the enemy command completely by surprise.

"The Boch has taken a hard knock," a British staff officer told Associated Press Correspondent Roger Greene.

The Germans still held the main business section of 'S Hertogenbosch, with the south Willems canal between them and the attacking British. Two other armored British columns, lunging in from the east and the south, were little more than two miles from the communications hub. There was conjecture whether the Nazis would fight for the Dutch city until it was destroyed as they did for their own town of Aachen.

The left wing of the British advance captured the long and bitterly defended German bastion of Best, six miles northwest of Eindhoven, after an advance of five miles.

Canadians Battle on Schelde

Canadian forces, battling to clear the Schelde estuary approaches to Antwerp, drove across a causeway onto south Beveland island, which sprawls along the northern side of the Estuary, and pushed nearly a mile and a half inside the island to within a few hundred yards of the town of Mairie.

The bold punch onto the island was made in darkness at 4:30 a.m., with infantry, tanks and armored cars leading the way. With daylight the attackers were given air support and advanced steadily in severe fighting.

Two other Nazi strongholds north of Antwerp and east and north of the causeway—Bergen Op Zoom and Rosendaal—were threatened by the Canadian push beyond the island.

The ferry port of Breskens, across from Vlissingen (Flushing) on largely-flooded Walcheren island at the entrance to the estuary, was held firmly by the Canadians, though hard fighting was in progress for Fort Frederik-Hendrik, just west of the town. A field dispatch said Allied bombing had knocked out all but one of the Germans' long-range guns at Vlissingen, which have effectively blocked the sea entrance to the Schelde.

A mistaken report last night that the Canadians had withdrawn from Breskens was believed to have been caused by confusion over the withdrawal of a small Canadian patrol from Fort Frederik-Hendrik. Neither side held the fort tonight.

Drive on Tilburg

Possibly a fourth German stronghold in Holland was threatened by the strong British offensive which began over the week end. It was reported that one column of Tommies, after reaching Boxtel, six miles south of 'S-Hertogenbosch, had swung west in a thrust on Tilburg, a city of 81,000 only eight miles away.

The British offensive was ravaging the neat Dutch countryside, destroying homes and flattening entire villages in its path as the Germans staged house-to-house resistance. Yet the Dutch people stood before their smoldering homes and cheered the liberating Tommies.

The German radio conceded that British troops were fighting in the outskirts of 'S-Hertogenbosch and that the Canadians had gained on the Rosendaal front. One report placed the Canadians within two miles of Rosendaal, which is 21 miles due north of Antwerp.

For another day there was no Allied report of action on the First army front inside Germany, but a German military commentator reported that an American attack southeast of Geilenkirchen, 12 miles north of Aachen, had been repulsed. He said the Americans were trying to gain "good attacking positions" for a general offensive.

The first snows of winter added to the weather difficulties of American and French troops in northeastern France. The German radio reported American artillery was laying a heavy barrage on Metz. Street fighting continued in Maizieres-les-Metz, a short distance north of Metz, with the Americans holding about three fourths of the town. An Allied communique said gains were made in the Vosges Mountains against "stiff resistance."

The Germans are using at least one cavalry regiment in the Vosges, headquarters reported. The mounted troops are supplied with the finest available equipment, including fur-trimmed uniforms. They dismount to do their fighting, but can carry much heavier equipment for mountain fighting than can an infantry regiment.

British Troops Storm Into Key Dutch City

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—British troops fought into the streets of the key Dutch road center of 's-Hertogenbosch tonight. German defenses apparently were crumbling on a 12-mile front south of the ancient fortress town.

The British offensive was one phase of a squeeze drive in concert with the Canadian First Army against some 40,000 Germans fighting to hold southwestern Holland and keep the Allies from using Antwerp as a supply port.

The Squeeze

An assault ring was shaping around 's Hertogenbosch, with the northernmost British column reaching the city. Scottish troops swinging up from the south cut the road leading to Eindhoven.

Nearly 50 miles to the west, Canadians cut off the causeway to the Schelde estuary islands, where enemy cannon block the sea route to Antwerp, and fought within three to five miles of the strongholds of Roosendaal and Bergen op Zoom.

Canadians Hold Breskene

A dispatch from supreme Allied headquarters in Paris said that Canadian units fighting to clear the south bank of the Schelde estuary held the ferry port of Breskens firmly today and were along or across a road all the way to Schoondijke, three miles south of Breskens. The Germans have been squeezed into a pocket in this area.

An earlier dispatch had reported that the Canadians who took Breskens on Sunday had withdrawn from the town and that a confused situation prevailed there.

Ambush Indicated

A front-line dispatch written before the evacuation of Breskens, indicated that German troops in Fort Frederik Hendrik, less than a mile west of the town, had ambushed the Canadians.

Canadian officers, who drew no German fire when they purposely showed themselves within 500 yards of the fort, decided it was unoccupied. The Germans opened fire suddenly, however, when the Canadian troops entered the outer rim of the defenses.

Fort Believed Demolished

Demolition patrols which later moved beyond Breskens to Fort Frederik Hendrik withdrew, presumably leaving that bastion's powerful coastal batteries out of action. Neither side now occupies the fort, the Paris dispatch said.

'North of Antwerp Canadian troops cut the causeway leading to the islands in the Schelde estuary. Their artillery had previously commanded this area.

Along the main 475-mile front facing east toward Germany persistent Allied pressure scored no major gains, and the winter's first widespread snow sharpened the plague of weather that has hampered the Allied armies for weeks.

The 'S-Hertogenbosch Fight

Front-line reports indicated that the Germans in the 's-Hertogenbosch area were suffering from lack of artillery support. The British were using a powerful force of infantry, tanks and artillery.

Three British columns were driving on the city. The northernmost one, having captured the village of Rosmalen, fought its way westward into the outskirts of 's-Hertogenbosch during the early morning darkness. Two more columns were slashing forward from the south and east.

New Border Crossings

To the west, Canadian troops neared Roosendaal in their drive to flank the German anchor of Bergen op Zoom. An Allied communique, reporting new crossings of the Dutch border north of Antwerp, announced gains northward along the Antwerp-Roosendaal railway. The Paris radio said the Canadians were less than three miles from Roosendaal.

The Canadians were within about five miles of Bergen op Zoom. This port and Roosendaal are two of the main German strongholds in southwestern Holland.

The pinch-off of the causeway to the west bottled up the Germans on South Beveland and Walcheren Islands, where enemy guns also prevent Allied use of the water lane to Antwerp.

Aachen Sector Inactive

The sector around Aachen was not active, but to the south German big guns, apparently railway weapons, hurled from 16 to 20 700-pound shells into the Third Army area. The projectiles are believed to have come from guns having a range of about 30 miles. The bombardment was made under the cover of rain and heavy clouds to escape aerial observation.

The German radio reported that Allied guns were pounding the fortress of Metz with a heavy barrage. Street fighting for possession of Maizieres les Metz to the north continued, with the Americans now holding about three fourths of the town.

The first dent in the high morale of a group of German officer candidates taken from a school in Metz to go into the Nazi front lines was noted near Amanvillers, five miles northwest of Metz, when 11 surrendered after being bombarded with leaflets.

Nazi Attacks Repulsed

The enemy made several counter-attacks, with armored support, near Luneville, farther south, but headquarters reported that all were repulsed. Northeast of Luneville Allied troops consolidated their gains to the vicinity of Moncourt.

The eastward rush of Allied troops northeast of Brouvelieures was continued by forward units which crossed the Mortagne river at several points. The Allied communique said gains were made in the Vosges Mountains against "stiff resistance."

First U. S. Woman Captured Near Trier, Germans Report

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—The Berlin radio reported today the capture of Mrs. Gertrude Le Gendre, 42, believed to be the sister of Stephen (Laddie) Sanford, American international polo player.

The broadcast said Mrs. Le Gendre, along with two American staff officers, had been taken prisoner on the Western Front near Trier, and described her as the "first American woman" to be captured.

Berlin said she was "the daughter of a Dutch carpet manufacturer, John Sandfurt, from Amsterdam, and belongs to the upper 400 of New York." She was said to have been on the road to Wallendorf, which the Americans held temporarily, when one of the escorting officers and the driver were hit by shots. The other officer waved a handkerchief in surrender, the German Transocean news agency quoted her as saying.

Identity Not Doubted

[At Amsterdam, N. Y., a spokesman for the estate of the late John Sanford, carpet manufacturer, said there was "no doubt" that Sanford's daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Sanford Le Gendre, was the person mentioned in the Berlin broadcast.

[The New York Post said Mrs. Le Gendre had gone to France five years ago with Isabel Townsend Pell, who recently was identified as the legendary "Fredericka," or "the girl with the blonde streak," who was active with the Maquis in southern France.]

Mrs. Le Gendre came to London about a year ago to work for the Red Cross, and sources here believed she went to Paris to continue welfare work for Allied troops.

Called Liaison Officer

The Berlin radio said she had come to France "as liaison officer between the 'Allied Expeditionary Forces Club' and the United States Army," and had been in Paris when someone suggested that she visit the American lines in Wallenorf.

Her husband, Sidney Le Gendre, was reported in Washington, on leave from naval duty in the Pacific. Her home is in Charleston, S. C.

McLain's Corps Is 19th

With the United States First Army in Germany, Oct. 24 (AP)—The American Army Corps which Maj. Gen. Raymond S. McLain is commanding was identified today as the 19th Corps. Appointment of General McLain, native of Kentucky and resident of Oklahoma City, to a corps command was announced yesterday.

Gen. Patch Buries Son, Grimly Returns to Front

Brief Service Held in Vosges for Young Company Commander

A UNITED STATES 7TH ARMY COMMAND POST, France, Oct. 24 (AP).—Captain Alexander M. Patch 3d, only son of the Lieutenant General commanding the 7th Army, was buried yesterday in a little American cemetery a short distance behind the southern sector of the western front where his father's forces are fighting.

The twenty-four-year-old commander was killed on Sunday by a direct hit from a German 75-millimeter anti-tank gun while leading an attack in the Vosges Mountains.

A brief service was held in a little Protestant church, with burial in the United States Army cemetery a short distance away. Immediately afterward, the captain's father grimly returned to his duty, which yesterday consisted of a front-line tour. Captain Patch's death came in the midst of intense fighting in the Vosges foothills and forests where German resistance has been growing increasingly stronger. He was a member of an outfit which only recently took over a sector of the front of his father's army.

Earlier he had participated in his unit's capture of Cherbourg and subsequent advance through France. He was wounded in a shoulder recently and had returned to combat just a few days before he was killed.

You Gargle The G In 'S-Hertogenbosch

[By the Associated Press]

'S-Hertogenbosch is one of Europe's oldest nd most romantic towns as well as one of southern Holland's most successful commercial cities.

The town derives its name from Duke Godfrey of Brabant, who granted it municipal privileges in 1184. The name literally means "the duke's woods"—hertog being the Dutch word for duke and bosch the word for woods. It often appears on maps in the French variant Bois le Duc.

The apostrophe "s" prefix to the name is the Dutch form of the genitive case.

The name of the town is pronounced "ser'-togggaen-bos" with the "g" gargled.

Population 41,000

"'S-Hertogenbosch is the capital of North Brabant province and has a population of about 41,000. It is located at the confluence of the Dommel and Aa rivers. It is connected with the Maas, three miles to the north, by the canalized River Dieze. Rail and motor routes fan out from the town.

It was considered impregnable during the Middle Ages because of marshes surrounding it until Stadtholder Frederic Henry took it by storm in 1629.

Details of Attack Withheld; Assault on Britain Renewed

White Russian Found Guilty Of Aiding Nazis

Paris, Oct. 24 (AP)—The second of Paris' civil "purge" trials convicted Boris Theodossienko today of collusion with the Germans, but he escaped the death penalty because of evidence that he had also worked against the Nazis. Theodossienko, a White Russian cab driver, received a seven-year prison term.

Russian On Trial In Paris

Paris, Oct. 24 (AP)—Boris Theodossienko, a White Russian accused of working for Germans throughout the occupation, went on trial today after a Paris journalist, George Saurez, was condemned to death in the first of a series of collaborationist prosecutions.

Suarez appealed the death sentence, imposed for his collaborationist editorials in the daily publication Aujourd'Hui during the German occupation.

Paris newspapers generally expressed the sentiment that "justice was done" in his six-hour trial Monday. The Socialist Populaire called the doomed man a "traitor to his country and a traitor to human thought" and declared the decision was "sane justice which nobody can doubt."

State's Charges

The state charges that Theodossienko started working for the Germans in France immediately after Germany invaded Russia and that he proposed to organize an "anti-Bolshevik" Russian corps to fight alongside the Germans, but failed. He then entered the Todt construction organization as a chauffeur, the state asserted.

The state charged further that in mid-August when the Americans were approaching Paris, the White Russian appropriated the role of a major in the French Forces of the Interior, appearing one day at the head of four Russians with whom he proposed to start a corps to fight against the Germans. Prosecutors said his real identity was discovered a few days after the capture of Paris.

Paris Paper Accuses Franco.

Paris, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—The newspaper Combat, criticizing censors' deletions from articles dealing with the Spanish situation, said today the Franco regime was seeking to discredit the De Gaulle government by picturing south France as in turmoil. It said some 40,000 armed Germans within Spain remained a menace to France and the Allies.

Combat cited last month's agreement under which the press recognized the legality of military censorship while the Government renounced all other types of censorship. Cuts in stories on conditions along the Spanish border violated this agreement, the newspaper contended.

"We place our readers on guard against news from Franco's headquarters," Combat said.

Paris, Oct. 24 (AP)—United States military pipelines and truck convoys bound for the front are being looted of thousands of gallons of gasoline and tons of rations by black-market gangsters, the army newspaper Stars and Stripes reported today, quoting Lieut. Col. Earl R. Chase, chief of the petroleum division of the Normandy base section at Cherbourg.

The racketeers sell the fuel and food at inflated prices in Paris and other inland cities, the paper said.

Dittmar Reveals Holdouts Against Duty in New Home Guard

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—Lieutenant General Kurt Dittmar, German military commentator, disclosed today that there had been some holdouts in Germany against the call to join the new home guard, the Volkssturm, but asserted that most Germans now have fallen into line.

Street Lights Blaze In Rhineland Cities

With the United States First Army in Germany, Oct. 24 (AP)—American pilots have observed street lights turned on fully several nights recently in the Rhineland cities of Cologne, Duisburg and Dusseldorf.

There are a number of possible explanations; That the Germans were forced to put on lights to move heavy and urgent military traffic; that rioting or other trouble had broken out; that the lights were turned on by foreign "slave" workers acting as saboteurs.

The lights first were observed October 11, and have appeared intermittently since.

Havas Political Writer To Head French Agency

Paris, Oct. 24 (AP)—Martial Bourgedn, veteran of more than 20 years of political reporting for the Havas News Agency, was appointed director general of the Agence Francais Presse today. He succeeds Leon Rollin, who resigned three weeks ago under Communist fire.

The Ministry of Information also announced appointment of nine directors, under a September 30 ordinance which created the Government-financed agency.

Rollin has assumed editorship of the newspaper Liberation.

GERMAN BANDS TO BLARE NO MORE

Stockholm, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—German military bands have been dissolved under Nazi mobilization plans and musicians will carry guns instead of horns and drums, a dispatch from Berlin said today.

Germans Use Tanks in Bid To Stem Reds in Prussia

Russians Drive to Within Six Miles of Rail Hub of Gumbinnen.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 25—(AP) The Red army, battering ahead against a desperate defense bolstered by four fresh Nazi tank divisions, dug deeper through the ast Prussian forests yesterday, conquering at least 14 heavily-fortified strong points on an expanding front more than 35 miles wide and pressing within six miles of the big rail and road hub of Gumbinnen.

The Soviet communique, in announcing these hard-won gains of as much as ten miles by Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian army, disclosed that a new thrust threatening East Prussia from farther southeast had captured the Polish-border bastion of Augstow and 50 other population centers on a 20-mile front from Augustow to Suwalki.

Reds Slow Down

The Russian announcement indicated that the first great rush of Cherniakhovsky's men, which carried them more than 20 miles into the German Junkers' homeland, had slowed down, but that the frenzy of fighting had increased.

In a single day, it said, 125 German tanks and self-propelled cannon were knocked out and more than 3,000 Germans were slain as the enemy launched counterattacks repeatedly with armor and infantry.

All were repelled by the Russians, Moscow said, despite the swift bolstering of the Nazi line by the SS "great Germany" and "Hermann Goering" divisions and two other armored divisions following the first Soviet breakthrough.

Captured Germans said they had orders to throw the Russians out of East Prussia at all costs, and the Soviet communique dwelt on the stubbornness of the defense, both in East Prussia and around Augustow in the bloody Suwalki triangle. Augustow fell after the Russians broke through great obstacles of hewn timbers and mines in the dense forests between Lakes Necko and Sajno and built rafts on which they crossed the Bistre canal into the town.

There and in East Prussia the Russian advances of the day were of the slow-grinding powerhouse variety.

Now the powerful Soviet mechanized army group was moving into position for a new series of thrusts against stubbornly-fighting German defenders. These included the newly-organized Nazi home guard, but Moscow dispatches said these poorly-armed makeshift forces failed to meet the initial test, many being readily killed or captured in the first great breakthrough. One report said many hid in the woods until the Russians passed, then returned home.

Regular German armor, recovering from the initial shock, was counterattacking west of the East Prussian town of Goldap, held by the Russians, and was massed on the eastern and southeastern approaches to Gumbinnen, which bars the direct route to Insterburg and Konigsberg.

Yet the Russians pushed on, the communique listing centers captured as including Szirguponen, six miles southeast of Gumbinnen, and Trakehnen, nine miles east and slightly south of Gumbinnen.

Bombers Hit Gumbinnen

Overnight Soviet bombers hit Gumbinnen, Insterburg and Angerapp, but Moscow still did not confirm a German statement of Monday that the Red army had reached the Angerapp river, 17 miles west of fallen Goldap and 35 miles inside East Prussia.

The German high command acknowledged that the great battle for East Prussia continued "with the utmost violence," but contended new Soviet attacks were "warded off or checked."

The Germans were using their cities as fortresses in the Aachen manner, and the Russian answer was the same as that of the Americans.

Overshadowed by the conflict in East Prussia, other Russian armies continued the speedy prosecution of their drive in southeast Europe.

The Moscow communique announced capture of the big Czechoslovak town and railway station of Huszt (Chust) and ten other centers in the Carpatho-Ukraine district.

Advancing In Hungary

In the final sweep to clean up Transylvania, the Russians broke into Satu-Mare, the one remaining important city held by the enemy.

In Hungary the Russians and Romanians advanced northwest of Szeged, capturing the railway junction city of Kiskunhalas, 70 miles south of Budapest, and Janoshalma, near by.

The Berlin radio, broadcasting a late report from the high command, said that in Hungary as well as East Prussia the Russians still were pouring in reinforcements.

Moscow was silent concerning operations of the First Baltic Army which has surrounded Memel and pushed within easy artillery range of the East Prussian north border city of Tilsit.

Reds Advance in East Prussia

Another Soviet Army Is Poised on Niemen River for Drive Into Junker State.

BULLETIN.

London, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—The capture of several heavily fortified strongpoints in East Prussia and the Nazi base at Augustow in Poland, seventeen miles southeast of Suwalki, was announced tonight by Moscow.

Moscow, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—Russian penetration of German territory to a depth of at least nineteen miles in East Prussia was proclaimed today in the first Moscow announcement of a powerful Red Army offensive that already has captured 400 Nazi towns and villages.

Summarizing results of a thrust from western Lithuania that the Germans have been reporting for a week, a Russian communique said Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian Army had broken through frontier defenses on an eighty-seven-mile front on the east.

Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's First Baltic Army cleared the way to spring into the homeland of the Junkers from the north—and may already have done so.

Part of Memel Stands Alone.

The Soviet bulletin announced Gen. Bagramian's troops had occupied all of Memel territory except the port of Memel itself, where the German garrison was cut off, and had massed along the Niemen River, East Prussia's northern border, from the Baltic to Jurbarkas in Lithuania.

Twenty salvos from each of Moscow's 224 victory guns saluted the achievements of Gen. Cherniakhovsky and Gen. Bagramian—disclosed on a day that brought announcement of nearly 1,500 towns seized by Red armies from the Norwegian border in the Arctic to Yugoslavia in the south.

Gen. Cherniakhovsky's offensive, which gave the Russians a solid footing on German soil for the first time, drove directly westward on each side of the main highway and rail routes from Kaunas, Lithuania, toward Insterburg and Konigsberg. Insterburg, a hub of five railways thirty-seven miles from the border, appeared the immediate strategical prize.

Reds Near Gumbinnen.

Late dispatches said the Russians were approaching Gumbinnen, on the main westward route only fifteen miles east of Insterburg and sixty-three miles from Konigsberg, East Prussian capital.

By official account, Gen. Cherniakhovsky's forces have made their deepest penetration of German territory at Goldap, south of the Kaunas-Konigsberg line. At captured Walterkehnen, twelve miles north of Goldap, they were only seven miles from Gumbinnen.

[A German broadcast last night said the Russians now had reached the Angerapp River, seventeen miles west of Fallen Goldap, for a total penetration of thirty-five miles inside East Prussia. Berlin declared further that on the north Gen. Bagramian's forces, already within shelling range of Tilsit, had attempted to cross the Niemen and capture that fortress city on the south bank of the stream.]

Insterburg Hears Guns.

Insterburg, where the sound of the Red guns already was said to be audible, lies twenty-nine miles south of Tilsit. If Insterburg falls, the northern city would be threatened with encirclement.

With Memel effectively isolated by land, Gen. Bagramian is moving most of his forces southward to East Prussia. The Niemen, a formidable water barrier, still is to be crossed, but his troops already are keeping considerable German strength committed at Tilsit.

Gen. Bagramian's First Baltic Army captured 500 populated points in virtually cleaning up Memel territory, a 1,099-square-mile area ceded to Germany by Lithuania in 1939 under German pressure.

In a battle for the frozen wastes of Norway's northcap, Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Alpine troops deployed for miles along the Norwegian frontier after cleaning up the nickel mine area around Petsamo.

nounced officially the ad cut the highway to Kirkenes, ig German naval base in Norway.

[A Berlin announcement indicated they already had crossed into Norway.]

The Russians also announced gains in Hungary and Yugoslavia.

Warsaw Evacuees Reported Slaughtered By Gas In Camp

Moscow, Oct. 24 (AP)—A horrible aftermath of Warsaw's lost fight for freedom is being staged by German executioners at Oswiecim, the notorious concentration camp 30 miles west of Krakow.

Reports received from underground channels today said the first Polish civilians evacuated from Warsaw after the insurrection there was ended reached Oswiecim October 14 and were killed in gas chambers the same day. It is estimated that this group totaled 12,400, mostly women and children.

All Polish males between the ages of 16 and 60 capable of physical labor were sent on to Germany for slave-gang service.

Liberation Committee Reports

The Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation today gave this version of what happened to the people of Warsaw:

Of the original population of more than 1,000,000, there were 400,000 Jews. These were exterminated during the years of German occupation.

When fighting broke out inside Warsaw August 1, the Germans removed up to 250,000 civilians to the Pruszkow camp on the road to Lodz.

A quarter of a million Poles are believed to have perished in the city during the 63-day struggle. They died from bombings, shellings, fire, famine and epidemics.

About 250,000 still were alive when the Germans compelled capitulation of the liberation forces.

Divided Into Two Groups

The Poles at Pruszkow and those removed from the ruins of the capital this month were divided into two groups, those fit for labor in Germany and those not.

At Oswiecim, meanwhile, the German SS (Elite Corps) management began on October 7 "making room" for vast numbers of new inmates. This camp held an estimated 168,000 prisoners, 100,000 of them Poles. About 13,000 Poles were killed as a kind of "practice" for truly large-scale slaughter as soon as the Warsaw survivors began to pour in.

The first caravan from the Warsaw area, bearing gaunt mothers with sick children in their arms, enfeebled middle-aged people and men dazed by their experiences, was unloaded at Oswiecim on October 14. They were led in batches of hundreds into low-ceilinged, airtight concrete disinfection chambers. While the guards watched through glass windows, they were killed methodically with poison gas.

The underground reports indicated that other caravans from Warsaw were arriving at Oswiecim almost daily, but definite information concerned only events through October 14.

Report Budapest Evacuated.

London, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—The Rome radio said today that the Germans had ordered the evacuation of Budapest, capital of Hungary. Russian troops last were reported within fifty miles of the great Danubian city.

Front dispatches said elements of Hitler's new home guard, mobilized last week among civilian men from 16 to 60, had been killed or captured in the big break through in East Prussia.

ALLIED PLANES CROSS SWEDEN

Large Force, Believed British, Out On Night Mission

London, Wednesday, Oct. 25 (AP). A strong force of Allied planes flew over Sweden last night, dispatches from Stockholm said, possibly striking at German shipping or lending a supporting hand to the Russian offensive in East Prussia.

A Stockholm communique said Swedish anti-aircraft guns opened up as a "great number" of Allied planes, presumably British, came in over the west coast as far south as Halmstad, 55 miles below Goteborg, and then turned north.

The night operations followed up daylight dive-bombing attacks by American fighter-bombers on German transport in the vicinity of Kassel and Hamburg — attacks which went unchallenged by the German air force.

Special Typhoon Raid

While the American Mustangs and Thunderbolts battered German locomotives and rail lines, rocket-firing RAF Typhoons carried out a special raid on what the Air Ministry described only as "an important military target" at Dortrecht in Holland. The planes attacked for an hour two large buildings in a park with 43,000 pounds of explosives.

There was no heavy bomber sequel by daylight to the RAF's big operation of Monday night when more than 1,000 Lancasters and Halifaxes dropped 4,500 tons of explosives and incendiaries on the German industrial city of Essen.

American heavies were held at their bases both in Britain and Italy during the day because of adverse weather, the first time this month that at least one of these forces was not in action.

Snowstorm Encountered

The attack on Essen by British Lancaster and Halifax heavy bombers was made despite the first snowstorm of the year, intense ground fire and resistance from strong forces of German night fighters. Eight RAF planes were lost.

The bombing was done through heavy clouds after Pathfinder planes had marked out the target with flares. Because of weather, detailed results were not observed, but fires from the many explosions lighted up the skies as the formations headed home.

The assault was intended to wipe out repairs the Germans have made on the Krupp armament works since last March, when, air officers said, six large-scale blows ruined two thirds of the armament factory.

The RAF Bomber Command announced that the Essen raid brought the total bomb tonnage dumped on the Ruhr during October to 19,000, with Essen, Duisburg, Dortmund and Bochum receiving the heaviest blows.

Fighters Attack RAF Bombers Over Essen

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—Strong forces of German night fighters, saved for defense of prize targets, swarmed up over Essen last night to challenge a fleet of 1,000 RAF heavy bombers which attacked the great armament and railway center in the heart of the Ruhr.

The bombers, which flew through the first heavy snowstorm of the season over the Western front, also encountered the fiercest ground barrage they have met on their last seven trips to the Ruhr.

While the heaviest were unloading their bombs at Essen a small force of fast Mosquitos shot on across northern Germany and attacked Berlin.

Blinding Snowstorm

Thick clouds began enveloping the bombers as they started across France and soon they were flying through a blinding snowstorm. It was not snowing at Essen, but the sky was so black that Pathfinder planes had to circle the city repeatedly during the attack to lay color markers for the bombers.

"An enormous glow over an area of two or three miles was the only sign we had of the success of our attack," said a bombardier.

Eight Raiders Missing

A saturation attack of the Krupp works, which occupy a large part of Essen, the night of March 5, 1943, marked the beginning of the Allies' all-out strategic bombing offensive. Six large-scale blows put two thirds of the Krupp works out of business for a while. Last night's attack was to undo repairs since made to the factories.

Essen also has two large railroad yards and inland harbor facilities.

Eight of the British raiders failed to return.

Buzz-Bomb Lull Ends

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—The Germans struck twice at Britain last night with their flying bombs, ending a 48-hour lull that followed 11 successive nights of attack.

The double assault, which appeared more intense than any recent raids, was met by terrific anti-aircraft fire but a number of the robots penetrated the barrage.

One crashed in the center of a town in southern England, plunging into a garage and setting fire to many automobiles and trucks. Gasoline tank explosions rocked the whole town and flames shot 100 feet into the air. An elderly couple living above the garage was critically injured.

SPANISH OFFICERS CALLED TO REVOLT

Republican Group Makes Bid To Regular Army

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—The first open call for a new civil war in Spain has been issued by the underground newspaper, Conquest of Spain, which urged that officers of the Spanish army take up arms against Generalissimo Franco and the Falange, Spanish Republican headquarters here announced today.

Conquest of Spain is the official newspaper of the Republican junta which operates from secret headquarters in Madrid and presumably is published in the Spanish capital.

First Bold Call

Its call for revolution, the first so bold, although the paper has been attacking the Franco regime and the Falange party consistently, appeared in its 36th issue, published within the last three days, Republicans here said.

"We call upon the chiefs and the officers of the Spanish army to take up arms shoulder by shoulder with the people against Franco and Falangism," the paper said.

Official German news agencies, meanwhile, were terming the internecine clashes along the Pyrenees border a Franco defense against "a Red invasion" from France and reporting that Republican thrusts into Spain had been routed.

Recruit Officers On Border

Reports from Paris said Republican guerrillas, fighting the Franco forces along the border, were recruiting officers of the regular army into their ranks—possibly as a result of the newspaper's call—and that a definite struggle to seize contro from Franco was under way.

A correspondent of the Paris newspaper, Liberation Soir, said strife was raging throughout the Spanish peninsula, with the guerrillas under the direction of the Republican junta which has been directing underground resistance from Madrid for several years. He said several factories had been seized by the Republicans and that they had made several effective raids on communications, destroying many trains.

Official Spanish reports today insisted the border raids of the last three weeks, staged by Spanish Maquisards who previously had operated with the French Maquis against the Germans in France, had failed and the raiders were cut off and facing annihilation. The Republicans said the fighting was mounting in scope and intensity.

Troops Clear Aran Valley

A dispatch from Lerida, Spain, said Spanish army troops had recaptured Canejad and cleared the Maquisards from the Aran Valley in the Catalonian Pyrenees, the main escape route for the republicans who infiltrated into Spain from southern France.

Army officers were quoted as saying the Maquisards were operating in groups of little more than 100 and that they now faced capture, surrender or annihilation. Those captured with arms face summary execution.

In Paris Spanish republicans said clashes had extended deep into Catalonia and were rising in intensity. The republicans were said to be operating from bases in the Toulouse area, reportedly given them by the French in return for their help in fighting the Germans during the occupation of France.

Paris newspapers complained that French censorship was preventing full details of the situation in Spain being made public. The newspaper "Combat" reported about 40,000 Germans, who fled from France into Spain, had been regrouped and formed into a "regular army, fully equipped."

The Spanish Embassy in London issued a statement denying that large numbers of Germans had crossed from France into Spain. The embassy said only 1,200 had crossed and that they had been interned.

Meanwhile, official quarters in London watched developments in Spain closely, but said they had no confirmation of rumor of a general uprising.

Spanish Maquis Escape Cut

Lerida, Spain, Oct. 24 (AP)—Spanish army forces recaptured a frontier village yesterday in the Aran Valley and closed the main exit for Spanish Republican Maquisards who infiltrated Spain from France.

Today the forces of General Franco were moving down the valley in an effort to liquidate completely the dissidents.

The Maquisards are operating in groups of a little more than 100. Army officers said they now had the choice of resisting until death or capture, or of disbanding for an attempt to escape through the heavily guarded passes which are banked with snow and which tower more than 10,000 feet. Those captured with arms face possible execution.

Extent Of Clashes

Spanish Republicans in Paris said the border clashes had extended deep into Catalonia and were rising in intensity. The Maquisards were veterans of excursions against German occupants of France and were said to be operating from bases in the Toulouse area of France. They were reported to have held several villages, at least long enough to liberate anti-Franco political prisoners.

(In some cases Franco policemen were taken back into French territory, the Paris report said. It was reported in Paris that the French Forces of the Interior gave the Spanish Republicans bases for operations in reward for the part they played against the Germans. The Spanish clashes have proceeded for three weeks.)

Clash Reports Vary

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—Conflicting reports of armed clashes in Spain reached London today and it was not yet clear whether the action involved only frontier skirmishes or an organized and formidable revolt against Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Falangist regime.

An authoritative source cautioned against overestimating the extent of the hostilities. Official quarters said they had no information confirming reports of a general uprising.

It was pointed out, however, that strong, well-equipped Maquis forces, including a high percentage of Spanish Republicans, were in southwestern France near the Spanish border.

Number Not Known

A responsible source stated it had not been learned how many of these Spanish Maquis had been crossing the border into Spain or to what extent they were in contact and collaborating with guerrilla forces of the Spanish Republican junta.

Spanish Republican headquarters here said the guerrillas were active in three major provinces of Spain—Galicia, in the northwest; Estremadura, in the south and Andalusia, in the south.

Franco's Spanish national radio told of clashes between regular Spanish troops guarding the frontier and "several groups of Spanish Reds" from France, obviously to create the impression that the situation was well in hand, with most of the rebels surrendering or fleeing back across the French border.

4,000 "Reds" Held Killed

The German radio, while stressing the superiority of Franco's regular troops, said today that 4,000 "Reds" already had been killed in the frontier fighting—a rather high figure for the casualties of "several groups." The German report also mentioned that, while the Spanish village was recaptured by Franco's men, the "Reds" still held three villages.

The Spanish embassy tonight issued a statement denying reports that 15,000 German soldiers escaped from France into Spain and now "control or influence the Spanish police." The statement said that during the withdrawal of German forces from France "only 1,200 Germans in all" entered Spain and that all were interned.

Norway Landings Reported

Allied Bombings Also Increase on Sites Used by Nazi Forces

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—Recurring rumors of Allied landings in Norway have been heard in London for more than a month, but always without official confirmation, and a new outbreak of reports today was met by the same official silence both here and in Stockholm.

Communiques have reported an increase in Allied bombings of Norwegian sites used by the German forces in the occupied country.

Churchill To Speak On Visit To Stalin

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that he would make a "shortish statement" Friday concerning his meetings with Premier Stalin in Moscow last week.

He was cheered as he took his seat on the Government bench for the first time since returning from the Soviet capital.

Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk summoned his exiled Cabinet into special session for a report on the status of Polish-Soviet relations after his trip to Moscow.

It appeared unlikely there would be any public statement by the Polish Government on its position until after Churchill speaks.

Woman Artist Describes Prefabricated Ports

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—Mrs. Masika Lancaster told members of Parliament today all about the prefabricated ports which made the Normandy landings possible—a secret she had kept until the British and United States governments announced it.

Mrs. Lancaster, wife of an officer, made the original cardboard models from which the two ports were constructed at a cost of $100,000,000. An artist, she has no technical or engineering training.

FLANK THREAT TO BOLOGNA

Yanks Capture Town Southeast of Po Valley Hub

Rome, Oct. 24 (AP)—A flanking threat to Bologna, key German communication and supply center in northern Italy, has been developed by American capture of Frassineto and further gains to the east. Frassineto lies five miles southwest of Castel San Pietro, Po Valley town 13 miles southeast of Bologna on the lateral Rimini highway.

Capture of Castel San Pietro would put the Americans in open country and in a position to use the all-weather highway for a smash on Bologna from the east, cutting behind strong German forces opposing the American frontal offensive against Bologna from the south.

Stiff German resistance, rough terrain, barb-wire entanglements and demolitions have held up this assault.

Advance Toward Imola

East of the American First Army forces moving on Castel San Pietro, other Yanks advanced two and a half miles along a highway toward Imola, another junction point on the Bologna-Rimini highway and seven miles southeast of Castel San Pietro. The American advance in this area swept up Fontanelice, seven miles southwest of Imola.

Farther east along Highway 67 British troops pushed north from Portico toward Forli, also a junction point on the Bologna-Rimini highway, 20 miles southeast of Imola.

On the Eighth Army front in the Adriatic sector Monte Cavallo, west of the Savio and south of Cesena, was captured by Indian troops. Along the Adriatic coast other Eighth Army forces advanced a half mile beyond Cervia and Canadian forces enlarged their bridgehead across the Savio, north of Cesena.

Canadians Beat Off Tanks

Strong German tank attacks hurled at the Canadians were beaten off with the Nazis suffering heavy casualties.

A British bridgehead across the Savio west of Cesena was battered by a heavy German artillery barrage but the Tommies held their ground. Supplies were being moved to them by tanks.

The British north of Cervia reported encountering only rearguard action from the Germans and apparently Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring is withdrawing his troops from the Adriatic sector.

British forces are now within 1[illegible] miles of Ravenna on the coast.

Meanwhile the Clandestine radio "Milano Liberta," declared the "time is short" and that the Po Valley must be liberated as soon as possible to guarantee food for northern Italy. The broadcast called on the people of Lombardy and Piedmont to revolt against the Germans.

Americans Near Big Po Valley Junction

Rome, Oct. 24 (AP)—American troops of the Fifth Army battling down the northern slopes of the Apennines approached today within four miles of Castel san Pietro, large Po Valley junction town on the Rimini highway 13 miles southeast of Bologna.

Headquarters announced this American column had captured Frassineto, southeast of Castel san Pietro, after a heavy battle.

Thick minefields, demolitions and barbed wire entanglements held up another force advancing on Monte Belmonte. A communique said the most bitter fighting centered around that feature.

Advance Two Miles

On the southeast other Fifth Army troops drove for two and a half miles along the highway to Imola, another junction point on the Rimini-Bologna road, and captured the village of Fontanelice. It lies seven miles southwest of Imola.

British forces battling along Highway 67, in the sector to the east, pushed beyond the road junction of Portico on the way to Forli. On the Fifth Army left flank South African troops operating northeast of Vergato seized a hill dominating the Prato-Bologna highway.

Bridgehead Enlarged

Indian troops captured Monte Cavallo, west of the Savio river and south of Cesena, on the Eighth Army front, and on the Adriatic coast other Eighth Army forces advanced half mile beyond Cervia. Canadian forces enlarged and strengthened their bridgehead across the Savio river north of Cesena.

German tanks and infantry counterattacked the Canadians, but the latter held firm, the announcement said.

West of Cesena, where British troops hold another bridgehead across the Savio, the Germans were hurling a heavy weight of shells. Tanks were moving up most of the supplies for the British infantry.

Flood conditions made for difficult going on the Eighth Army front, but the troops were meeting only slight enemy resistance.

CONN, IN ITALY, GAINS WEIGHT

190-Pound Billy Entertains GI's In Bari Opera House

By SID FEDER

Bari, Italy, Oct. 24 (AP)—Mr. Billy Conn, the noted Pittsburgh Pagliacci, opened the season in triple-tiered Bari Opera House last night with a three-act production that might have shocked Bach but pleased Gus Q Fan no end.

Jacobs Beachcombers will be interested to learn that the most notable change in Mr. Conn is that he's grown up to be a heavyweight. The Pittsburgh pretty boy, who couldn't get over 175 carrying an anchor as a civilian, has added inches to his neck, shoulders and arms since joining the Air Corps.

Now Scales 190 Pounds

He now tips the beam at 190 without the aid of even a ham sandwich—which is something you can't get in this land of C-rations, anyway. A small part of this displacement is taken up by what Tut Tabor, Oakland (Cal.) middleweight member of Conn's touring troupe, calls the "second front."

But the Tommies and GI's who packed the musically historic three decks were given quite a show as Mr. Conn played a tune on Johnny Ebarb, California clouter, for three heats.

Billy's timing was a bit off, which is only natural—Prof. Joe Louis, who was here a few weeks ago, exhibited the same lack of tonal quality—but Conn still moves around like a guy with a double hotfoot and still has a left hand that can spear a piece of chicken meat at five paces.

Baltimorean In Troup

Conn's troupe, piloted by Lieut. Maury Schwartz, of San Francisco, is here for a 10-week tour of Italian war-front bases after a trip around England, which started as a three-week jaunt and finally required three months.

After Italy it is possible the entire show may return to tour United States camps.

The troupe includes a half dozen E. T. O. champions, including Tabor, a likely post-war prospect; Heavyweight Leo Matrasini, of Baltimore; Lightweight Harold Raskin, of Chicago; Welterweight Joe Lucignano, of Hoboken, N. J.; Featherweight Jerry Peceraro, of Brooklyn, and Bantam Porty Marino, of Santa Barbara, Cal.

Others are Eighth Air Corps Champs Jimmy Wade, of Detroit, light-heavy; Lew Cecere, of Batavia, N. Y., welter, and Ray Wyzsinkowicz, of New York.

Actress And Flyer Wed After Romance On Ship

Florence, Italy, Oct. 24 (AP)—Betty Brewer, of Hot Springs, Ark., member of Katharine Cornell's American theater wing troupe touring war zones in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," was married today to Lieut. Robert A. Hester, fighter pilot from Kingsport, Tenn.

The romance began aboard a ship which brought the cast and a number of flyers to the Mediterranean theater.

The entire cast and a number of air-force friends attended the ceremony at St. James American Episcopal Church here. Chaplain Lieutenant Colonel Edward M. Pennell, Jr., former rector of St. Andrew's Cathedral of Honolulu, officiated.

Eden Halts Homeward Trip For Cairo Talks

Cairo, Oct. 24 (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, returning from the Churchill-Stalin conferences in Moscow, has stopped off in Cairo for what is announced officially as a "rest," but he has had some conferences with Egyptian officials.

Eden conferred with the new Egyptian Prime Minister, Ahmed Maher Pasha; the United States Minister, S. Pinkney Tuck, and others.

Greek Cabinet Again Made Over

Athens, Oct. 24 (AP)—Premier George Papandreou announced tonight the formation of a new Greek Cabinet, and at the same time his Finance Minister disclosed arrival of "large amounts" of gold from London to help stabilize the drachma.

The new Cabinet, in which Papandreou will hold the Ministries of War and Foreign Affairs, includes representatives of eight political parties and two independents. Only three of the 17 members served with the Greek Government in exile in Cairo.

Volos Freed

Greek guerrilla fighters have liberated from the Germans the port of Volos on the eastern coast, and the town of Trikkala in the Pinios Valley, 60 miles west of Volos in central Greece, it was reported here today.

Nicolas Askoutsis succeeded himself as Minister of Communications, and Philip Dragoumis as Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs. Panoyotis Kanellopoulos, former Minister of Finance and Reconstruction, became Marine Minister.

Mercantile Marine—Peter Hallis, Popular Republican.
Public Assistance—John Nicolitsas, Popular Republican.
Transport—Stephen Stephnopoulo, Popular Republican.
Labor—Miltiades Porphyrogenis, EAM.
National Economy—Ilias Birimokosts, EAM.
Justice—Nicolas Avraam, Liberal.
Press—Peter Garyfalas, Socialist Union.
Communications—Nicolas Askoutsis, PEEA.
Finance—Alexander Svolos, Peea.
Posts and Telegraph—August Theologhitis, Republican Union.
Agriculture—John Zevgos, EAM.
Marine—Panoyotis Kanellopoulos, Union.
Premier's Under-Secretary—Constantine Vlahothanasis, Social Democrat.
Hygiene—Constantin Maroulis, Liberal.
Interior—Philip Manouilidis, Social Democrat.
Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs—Philip Dragoumis, Independent.
Minister Without Portfolio—George Cartalis, Independent.

Former Minister of Justice Theodore Tsatos was dropped and the Ministries of Education, Supplies and Aviation were left vacant.

Fluctuations of the drachma were not checked by announcement that a shipment of gold had been received from Britain and that other substantial sums in foreign exchange were due. Its inflation reached new heights today at 2,000,000,000,000 to a gold sovereign. The price improved in a few hours to 1,500,000,000,000 then fell again.

80 Bodies in Athens' Sewers

ATHENS, Oct. 24 (AP).—Eighty bodies were washed out of Athens' sewers by heavy rains today, presumably last-minute victims of Gestapo shootings before the Germans fled from the city before advancing British liberation forces.

Only 9,000 Jews Escape

ATHENS, Oct. 24 (AP).—Only 9,000 of the 90,000 Jewish population of Greece are known to have escaped German shootings and deportations, the newspaper "Democratic" reported today.

JAP FORCES CLEAR HIGHWAY IN BURMA

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 24—(AP) In a drive aimed at cutting the main escape route for the Japanese out of the Chin hills area of western Burma, Indian troops have cleared 11 miles of the Tiddim-Fort White road and are within two miles of enemy-held Kennedy Peak, Allied headquarters said today.

Planes of the Eastern Air command maintained close support of the ground forces in the Tiddim area while other aircraft attacked enemy river and motor transport.

Indians Gain 11 Miles

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 24 (AP)—Troops of the Fifth Indian Division driving southeast in Burma's Chin Hills from Tiddin on the heels of retreating Japanese have advanced 11 miles along the Fort White road and now are within two miles of the enemy stronghold at Kennedy Peak, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten announced today.

U. S. PLANES RIP JAPS AT KWEIPING

CHUNGKING, Oct. 24—(AP)—Chinese forces have inflicted heavy casualties on the Japanese eight miles southwest of Kweiping, the Chinese announced tonight, and the U. S. 14th Air Force said fighters and medium bombers made concentrated strafing attacks on enemy troops in the area for two days.

The Japanese in this southern Kwangsi province area are driving toward Liuchow, 95 miles southwest of the key Kwangsi defense center of Kweilin, and the site of a U. S. air base, the Chinese High command said.

The American fliers killed more than 135 Japanese troops during the attacks in the area. The fighters, guided by panels laid out by Chinese forces, poured a heavy concentration of bombs on the area in the big bend of the West river, and repeatedly strafed Japanese positions. Enemy troops were forced into the open by Chinese action and were heavily strafed.

The Japanese counterattacked Chinese positions six miles north of Pingham Sunday, the High command said, and fighting continued there tonight, as well as on other sectors of the West river front.

In the north, fighting continued about 21 miles north of Kweilin, but no change was reported since the announcement last night that the Chinese were counterattacking in this area, making "appreciable gains."

Enemy Resumes Drive On Yank Base In China

Chungking, Oct. 24 (AP)—Counterattacking Chinese forces have inflicted heavy casualties on Japanese troops in bitter fighting eight miles southwest of Kweiping, in Kwangsi province, from which the enemy has been thrusting toward the United States air base at Liuchow, a Chinese communique declared today.

Continued heavy fighting also was reported at Pingnam, east and slightly north of Kweiping, where the Japanese were said to have resumed offensive operations after being halted for a time by Chinese counterblows.

Liuchow is about 78 miles northwest of Kweiping.

In northern Kwangsi no further change was reported in the situation 21 miles north of Kweilin, where the high command yesterday said Chinese forces had made appreciable gains.

China Recognizes De Gaulle

Provisional Regime Accepted; Turkey to Name Envoy

CHUNGKING, Oct. 24 (AP).—China, following the lead of the United States Great Britain and Russia, formally recognized the De Gaulle regime today as the provisional government of France.

NAVY DECOMMISSIONS BATTLESHIP OKLAHOMA

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 24—(AP) The famous American battleship Oklahoma, capsized and sunk during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, entered a decommissioned status last Sept. 1, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz disclosed in a press release today.

Several torpedo and bomb hits capsized the Oklahoma within 10 minutes Dec. 7, 1941, during the Japanese sneak attack on the big naval base. She was salvaged and the war-scarred battlewagon was put in drydock in December, 1943.

Soon after the Oklahoma capsized rescue workers cut through the hull of the overturned battleship and saved 32 members of her crew.

Nimitz's announcement gave no indication as to what use might be made of the Oklahoma's hull, but her decommissioning means she will never serve as a warship again.

Food Brought By Air During Peak Of Battle

Peleliu, Palau Island, Oct. 7 (AP—Delayed)—Huge unescorted planes of Transport Air Group carried 84,000 pounds of emergency rations to marines on Peleliu and evacuated scores of wounded men while the battle raged at its bitterest around the Caroline island airstrip, the navy disclosed today.

TAG ships—Curtis Commandos of Maj. Gen. Louis E. Woods' Fourth Marine Air Wing and Douglas skytrains of an army troop carrier command—made the hazardous flight to Peleliu after dumping their mail at other island bases.

The feat was accomplished when navy supply vessels were hampered because of heavy seas and jagged coral reefs.

FIFTEEN ON PLANE RESCUED AT SEA

Honolulu, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—Fifteen persons, including a crew member from Maplewood, N. J., reached here safely today after the successful emergency landing of their multi-engine Navy seaplane in mid-Pacific, away from an established base. The New Jersey man is Ensign Alfred Matheson.

Their Coronado flying boat was forced down 1,000 miles at sea, approximately midway between San Francisco and Honolulu, its destination. First one and then another of its four engines quit.

"We circled as long as possible, to drain as much gas as possible, and by that time a Coast Guard patrol vessel had reached the area and lighted up the sea with flares," said Lieut. Anthony Stinis, 36, of Orinda, Cal., the skipper.

The patrol ship's whaleboat removed all personnel and stood by for two days, but before a tender could arrive to salvage the flying boat a storm arose. The plane flipped on its back and sank.

The survivors remained aboard the cutter eight days and then were transferred to a Honolulu-bound warship.

Bolivia Sends Minister For U. S. Parley On Tin

La Paz, Bolivia, Oct. 24 (AP)—President Gualberto Villarroel's secretary today announced that Foreign Minister Victor Andrade would leave for Washington this week to participate in negotiations for United States purchase of Bolivian tin.

The negotiations are under way between Bolivian mine owners and United States Government agencies.

GUATEMALA CALM

Guatemala City, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—Complete order has been restored here, the new three-man government which ousted acting President Gen. Frederico Ponce in last Friday's revolution yesterday announced appointment of a "streamlined" cabinet.

The Guatemala radio said there were minor skirmishes Sunday night ending in capture of several "terror automobiles" from which persons described as Ponce followers fired upon persons in the capital's streets.

A dispatch from Mexico City said Gen. Ponce and nine members of his party arrived there in a special plane yesterday afternoon.

Paper Reports General Strike In San Salvador

San Jose, Costa Rica, Oct. 24 (AP)—The newspaper La Hora, quoting air travelers from San Salvador, said today a general strike began there yesterday, similar to that which provoked the downfall of President Maximiliano Hernandez Martinez May 8, 1944.

Directed against the new government of Col. Osmin Aguirre y Salinas, who took office three days ago, the strike was said to have closed commercial establishments, banks, schools and newspapers. The paper said fear was expressed regarding possible disturbances.

SHIPS IN COLLISION

Mexico City, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—The 7,480-ton Mexican freighter Juan Casiano and perhaps twenty-five of her crew were lost off the Georgia coast before dawn Friday after colliding with an unidentified vessel which also may have sunk, the Mexican Petroleum Administration announced last night.

The administration said it had received word that eleven of the Juan Casiano's crew were picked up by a rescue vessel and taken to Wilmington, N. C. A passing steamship bound for New York was reported to have picked up twelve or thirteen more, but the fate of the remainder of the crew of forty-five was uncertain.

The Juan Casiano, largest vessel operated by the Petroleum Administration, was en route from Tampico to New York when the collision occurred. Because of the darkness the other ship was not identified and it was not known whether she survived the crash.

Kuriles Winter No Bar To Raids, Tokyo Warns

San Francisco, Oct. 24 (AP)—Winter has come to the northern Kuriles, but that will bring no relief from the American raids, the Tokyo radio warned today.

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said "Winter operations" have begun in the area and that American raiding planes have been equipped with cold-weather accessories to prevent icing.

"Such invasional attempts carried out by the enemy despite the cold-weather season cannot be underrated and indeed require strict alertness on our part," the broadcast added.

Tokyo Reports Kuriles Raid

San Francisco, Oct. 24 (AP)—A daylight raid on Paramushiro and Onnekotan islands in the Kuriles by American bombing planes was reported today by the Tokyo radio in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

The radio said that six B-24s made the raids, but claimed that Japanese fighters "intercepted and heavily damaged" two of the six and "that no damage was sustained by our side."

Jap Official Warns Of Loose War-Talk

San Francisco, Oct. 24 (AP)—The Japanese have been officially told that they should maintain a neat tight-rope balance in their conversation about the war.

"Excessive indulgence" in war talk and the discussion of "false reports" are dangerous practices, said Takahiko Okada, speaker of the lower house in the Japanese Diet, during a Tokyo war rally address.

"On the other hand," he said in the speech, which was broadcast and heard by the Federal Communications Commission, "should the thoughts of man or public opinion be suppressed too strenuously it may be cause for an explosion."

Possibility Of Disaster

Okada cited an old saying that "If one does not talk he feels as though his stomach is filled and may some day burst open."

Such an "explosion," or bursting open, might "start a movement that might eventually become a disaster to the nation," Okada said.

Cabinet Meeting Held in Tokyo

San Francisco, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—Tokyo radio said the Japanese Cabinet met today in regular session with Premier Kuniaki Koiso and "deliberated upon current problems." The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

MARTIAL LAW ENDS IN HAWAII

President Restores Civil Rule To U. S. Territory

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—With the lifting of martial law in Hawaii today by Presidential proclamation, civil government ruled in that territory for the first time since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

The proclamation also restored the right of habeas corpus in Hawaii, continued suspension of which had created a controversy between military and civilian officials.

President Roosevelt simultaneously issued an executive order directing Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, to designate a military commander for Hawaii and authorizing the commander to prescribe the territory or any part as a military area whenever military necessity exists.

No Longer Needed

In his proclamation lifting martial law the President said "the public safety no longer requires that the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus remain suspended or that martial law continue. . . ."

Suspension of the writs of habeas corpus led to a conflict between Federal Judge Delbert E. Metzger and Lieut. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., commanding general of the army's Hawaiian department.

Fined General $5,000

Judge Metzger had ruled that if the jurisdiction of civil courts in the islands was restored in part, as was done in 1943, it must be restored in full, including the right to grant a habeas corpus writ.

When Richardson refused to honor such a writ Metzger fined him $5,000 for contempt of court. The general replied with a military order, which he later rescinded, prohibiting trial of habeas corpus cases and prescribing a fine of $5,000 for judges disregarding his order.

The President since has pardoned General Richardson.

SECURITY TALKS MAY TAKE PLACE IN U.S. IN WINTER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 — (AP) The United States government hopes to play host in January to a full dress United Nations conference aimed at creating a World Security organization along the lines of the plan drafted at Dumbarton Oaks.

Prior to that time, possibly next month acting Secretary of State Stettinius disclosed today, President Roosevelt may meet with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin to complete the Dumbarton Oaks plan. The major unsettled question is voting procedure in event one of the great powers should be accused of aggression and threats to the peace.

Date Not Decided

The place and date for the United Nations conference have not been decided, Stettinius said, but he made it plain at his news conference that this country would seek to play host. Other officials have indicated a good possibility that the historic meeting, comparable to the Versailles conference of 25 years ago in its peace planning aspects, will be held in the United States.

Stettinius said, in response to questions, that the forthcoming presidential election is certainly a consideration in the planning but he did not say just how.

It is evident that whoever is elected President next month will take office before the date of the projected United Nations conference and determine the role which the United States would play there.

Politics came in for another brief reference when Stettinius, in estimating the time required to do the work ahead, noted that President Roosevelt has two busy weeks ahead (before election), and said after that the President would be very tired.

The Undersecretary added that he did not know, therefore, whether the President would be able to arrange a meeting next month with the other great men, as Stettinius called them. Inquiry as to whether he was certain that the Chief Executive would meet with Churchill and Stalin brought from Stettinius the explanation that there were several ways of perfecting the Dumbarton Oaks plan—diplomatic exchanges, a meeting of foreign ministers, or a sort of second Dumbarton Oaks session.

Leaders to Meet Soon

He said he did not know what method would be followed but left open the possibility—which most informed officials think is a probability—that the President will meet with the British and Soviet leaders in the near future.

At any rate, Stettinius said, it may be possible to send out invitations in December for the United Nations gathering and, since the governments probably would not want to send their delegates just at Christmas time, the conference could then be held sometime in the early Winter.

Before the Dumbarton Oaks conferences, the state department had hoped that the international meeting to set up a world organization could be held this Fall, certainly before the end of the year. Stettinius noted that the Dumbarton Oaks talks had lasted about a month longer than expected and finally had ended in an incomplete plan.

If the United Nations approve the Dumbarton Oaks plan, possibly with modifications, in a January conference, it is expected to take several months to get the treaty ratified by the various governments —in the United States by the Senate. After ratification, some time will be required to set up the organization physically.

Jap Ship To Transport Relief Supplies

OCT 25 1944

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—The Japanese ship Hakusan Maru will leave Japan October 28 to pick up relief supplies at the Soviet far eastern port of Nakhodka for Allied prisoners of war and interned civilians, the State Department announced today.

Acting Secretary of State Stettinius said the Japanese Government had informed the department through neutral channels of its decision to send the boat to Nakhodka, 60 miles east of Vladivostok. He added that some 1,500 tons of accumulated supplies have been moved from Vladivostok to the port, which was made available by the Russian Government.

The supplies are destined for American, British, Canadian and Dutch nationals in Japanese hands.

Stettinius said an effort will be made to place on the boat any mail which can be forwarded in time.

Surplus Army Dogs To Be Mustered Out

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—Between 500 and 1,000 members of the army's K-9 Corps are going to be mustered out of service by January 1 and some of them will be offered for public sale—possibly at $1 each.

The Quartermaster Corps said today that most of the dogs—shepherds, farm collies, Doberman pinschers, boxers—Would be declared surplus property for disposal by the Treasury Department. Many of them have been on sentry duty for the Coast Guard and are no longer needed for that chore. Others have proved to be gun-shy or otherwise lacking in combat qualities.

The army's prime objective is to find good homes for them. First of all, their former owners will be given a chance to reclaim them. But in cases where former owners are unable to take them back, they'll be offered to the public.

Army Denies Dances Held for Prisoners

OCT 25 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. —(AP) The Army denied today that dances have been held for prisoners of war at their camps in this country.

Col. Frances E. Howard, director of the Prisoner of War division of the Corps of Military Police, declared that an inquiry showed no foundation for an overseas soldier's complaint about such a dance at the Stewartstown, Pa., camp housing German prisoners. The soldier said he was told about the dance in a letter from his girl friend.

"This thing has been investigated thoroughly and I find there was no dance for prisoners there," Howard said. "What may have happened is that our military police on guard duty at the camp may have had a dance that this girl attended but the prisoners certainly weren't admitted."

'Don't Worry', Chief Plea Of Yanks Held By Foe

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—"Dear Mom and Pop, don't worry!" Nine out of ten of the 65,000 or more American prisoners of war put this admonition in their letters.

Army officials today revealed this typical plea to the folks back home during the first press tour of the Prisoner-of-War Information Bureau at the United States War Department. This is the "only official source of information in the United States concerning Americans who are in prison camps of our enemies," they said.

10,000 Civilian Internees

Americans held by enemies include about 10,000 civilian internees, about 75 per cent. held by the Japanese, in addition to the military men and civilians who worked with United States services who are counted as war prisoners.

About 500 women civilians are held in German camps, but no nurses or WACs.

Quickest way to get word of a prisoner of war is to write the Prisoner-of-War Information Bureau, Provost Marshal General's Office, War Department, Washington, D. C.

This bureau has copies of all information coming into this country about war prisoners.

Even information written by prisoners to relatives or friends is included in the files.

The public can expect more infantrymen reported as war prisoners soon, but so far the majority have been airmen, the bureau says.

German camps where Americans often are reported to be include Dulag Luft, where all airmen go first; Oberwesel, on the bank of the Rhine, where the enemy pumps them for information.

Also Stalag Luft I, about 100 miles southeast of Berlin, and Stalag Luft III, with a view of the bay across from Sweden, the camp where all airmail is censored.

Hull Checkup Termed Going Satisfactorily

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—E. R. Stettinius, Jr., Under Secretary of State, said today that Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, who is in the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital, is getting lots of rest and his examinations are proceeding satisfactory.

Hull went to the hospital last week with a throat ailment. Associates announced at the time that he was going there for a checkup.

NAVY GIVES DATA ON NEW HELLCAT

Washington, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—The Navy has thrown a new Hellcat into the Pacific which is bringing down Jap planes on a 31 to 1 ratio, a major contribution to the sweeping advances of the past six months. A few details of this superfighter were disclosed today—but no more than the Zero pilots already have discovered to their dismay.

The new ship is called the F6F-3. It supersedes the earlier Hellcat which itself was superior in speed, armor, armament and fire power over Jap fighters.

In the new edition, the engine cowling has been further streamlined, stepping up the speed which already was better than 400 miles an hour; painting has been changed to increase speed and provide camouflage; a new type aileron increases maneuverability; a revamped windshield increases visibility; armor plate behind the pilot has been widened, giving him better protection.

The new ship mounts six .50 caliber machine guns, also can carry rockets and bombs. Pilots say it handles beautifully in a dive, takes off nicely from flattops and can out run the fastest Zero ever made at any altitude.

The improved Hellcat did an impressive job helping the landings in southern France, also.

They are being turned out on a mass production basis by the Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation, at Bethpage, L. I.

Regulations Are Issued to Halt War Production by Easy Stages

OCT 25 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—(AP) James F. Byrne, director of war mobilization and reconversion, today issued regulations designed to halt war production by easy stages in plants where this would be advantageous but whose products are no longer needed by the armed forces.

One provides that where the product "is desired for use by any responsible governmental agency other than the contracting agency or by responsible civilian agencies for use in civil relief for liberated and occupied countries, work-in-process (on war contracts) should be completed to the extent desired by such agencies."

Another directs that production under war contracts should continue "where it is considered that additional processing is required for reasons of safety, to clear or avoid damage to production equipment, or to avoid immediate complete spoilage of work-in-process having a definite commercial value."

Where the contractor wishes to retain work-in-progress for his own use, the regulations direct that an inventory check be made at an agreed stage of production.

The War Mobilization and Reconversion act directs that work on war contracts is to be stopped as soon as the war need for the product ceases "unless the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion finds that the continuation of some or all of the work-in-process under any such contract will benefit the government or is necessary to avoid substantial physical injury to a plant or property."

NO NEWS ON PETRILLO

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—(AP) President Roosevelt said today he has no further news on James C. Petrillo, musicians union head, who recently turned down a Presidential request that the union remove its ban on the making of records and transcriptions for two record companies.

F. D. R. SAYS HE KEEPS PLEDGE

Roosevelt Contends He Isn't Campaigning 'In Usual Sense'

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt contended this afternoon that he is keeping his pledge to eschew election campaigning "in the usual sense."

During a press conference at which he mentioned plans for additional campaign speeches, Mr. Roosevelt was asked:

"May we assume that you are now campaigning in the usual partisan political sense?"

Gives Impromptu Lecture

He used the question as an excuse to give the press an impromptu lecture, the gist of which was that, in his opinion, he has been living up to that part of his July 20 acceptance speech at San Diego in which he said:

"I shall not campaign in the usual sense for the office. In these days of sorrow, I do not consider it fitting. Besides, in these days of global warfare, I shall not be able to find the time. I shall, however, feel free to report to the people the facts about matters of concern to them and especially to correct any misrepresentations."

The President—who thus far has delivered three campaign speeches and is scheduled to deliver at least three more—did not have the acceptance speech passage before him when he replied to the question implying that he had departed from its pledge.

Had List Of Papers

He welcomed the question, he said, because it gave him an opportunity to say some newspapers that think they are reputable had taken to quoting half a sentence from his acceptance speech. He had a list of all those newspapers, he said, adding that this matter of partial quotation was a habit they had fallen into. He didn't know, he said, where they had got the habit from.

Then he undertook to quote from memory what he had said at San Diego. He apparently was under the impression that he had then put the whole passage aforementioned into a single sentence and that its opening sentence—so frequently quoted by his critics—had appended to it a list of exceptions. He had said, he contended, that he would not campaign in the usual sense except to answer things that are misrepresentations or gross misstatements of fact.

"All In Record"

It was all in the record, unfortunately, he said, and when asked: "unfortunately for whom?" he added—for those who had misquoted his speech.

Mr. Roosevelt had opened his regular Tuesday afternoon press conference by telling the assembled reporters that a very small percentage of them were going to be disappointed to learn that he didn't ever have any sniffles as a result of his campaign tour of New York in the rain Saturday.

Won't Confirm Date

Under subsequent questioning he announced that his scheduled campaign speech at Philadelphia Friday will be followed by one at Chicago, but he would not confirm reports that Saturday has been chosen for his appearance in the Illinois metropolis. He also declined to say what his Chicago topic will be. He never knew what he was going to speak about until just before the appointed occasion, he insisted.

He discouraged reports that he would include a Buffalo stop in his campaign itinerary, and he declined to comment on the announcement yesterday by Senator Ball (R., Minn.) that he would support Mr. Roosevelt and possibly make some campaign speeches in his behalf.

Ball Opposition

The Minnesota Republican based his opposition to his party's Presidential nominee, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, and his support for Mr. Roosevelt on their respective positions on foreign policy as revealed in their campaign utterances to date.

Edward R. Stettinius, acting Secretary of State, when invited at a press conference earlier in the day to comment on the position taken by Senator Ball, declined, saying he thought the President probably would prefer to comment on that himself.

MRS. ROOSEVELT LISTS ISSUES

OCT 25 1944

Holds 4th Term Is Not as Important as Third.

Washington, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today she believes the question of a fourth term is not as much a major issue in this campaign as the third term was in 1940

The First Lady told her news conference that she formed this opinion from letters she has received and questions she has been asked on speaking trips.

The three big things in the minds of the people at the present, she added, seem to be:

1. How we are going to have jobs for everybody after the war.
2. The winning of the war.
3. What foundations are being laid for future peace.

"It seems," she said, "that the three are really tied together. How they line up in importance I don't really know, but it would seem that the way you lay the foundation for peace is the way you go about creating jobs."

Mrs. Roosevelt told the women reporters that touring New York for four hours in the rain Saturday had no effect on the health of either the President or herself.

"In fact," she remarked, "it seemed to do the President good."

Mr. Roosevelt, she continued, hadn't been in contact with real crowds for a long time, adding that she thought contact with crowds is always a stimulating thing, "because you get a better impression of how people feel."

30. 24 — 19845

Mrs. Roosevelt termed Senator Ball's (R.-Minn.) declaration for the President's re-election "courageous."

4,000,000 JAPS TO BE FACED

OCT 25 1944

Patterson Points Out Need Of Men To Win In Pacific

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, declared tonight that military forces capable of dealing with a Japanese army of at least 4,000,000 will be needed to win the war in the Pacific, but he gave a renewed assurance that United States soldiers will not be kept in the army longer than necessary.

Patterson said in an address before the Bar Association of New York city that the Japanese now have 4,000,000 men in uniform and are calling up an additional 1,000,000 youths in the 17 and 18 year group.

Long After Germany Quits

Predicting that Japan will continue to fight long after Germany surrenders, Patterson added:

"That Japanese army will be destroyed but it will be destroyed only by a three-way attack—land, sea and air—in the greatest strength that we can deliver. There will be no final victory until we can put ashore, supply and reinforce infantry, artillery and tanks strong enough to destroy the ground forces of Japan.

"We must be prepared to battle our way to the heart of their country against a fanatical foe firmly dug in and ready to fight to the death.

"We will require an army large enough to do this job. However, we will release men from service as fast as military operations will permit. On that, our policy is plain and has been all along.

No Contrary Suggestion

"We will not keep in service one man more than we need to carry out our military responsibilities in winning the war. . . . No contrary suggestion has ever been made by anyone with authority to speak on the subject."

Thus Patterson hit again at the contention of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, that the Administration does not plan to release men as quickly as possible.

Although he described the Philippines invasion as "one of the great military achievements of the war" Patterson pointed out that Leyte "is 2,000 miles from Tokyo and the fact remains that we have not yet met the main Japanese strength."

Shortages To Last Beyond Nazi Defeat

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—William Y. Elliott, director of the Office of Civilian Requirements, said today that certain shortages will continue after the German collapse.

"It is perfectly certain that shortages of cotton textiles, of leather, of a few materials like tin, crude rubber, some chemicals and lumber and paper products will remain for some time after victory in Europe," the War Production Board vice-chairman asserted.

Eire Trip Sets Record For Commercial Flight

New York, Oct. 24 (AP) — Establishment of a new transatlantic, non-stop commercial flight record of 14 hours 17 minutes from La Guardia Field to Foynes, Eire, was announced today by James M. Eaton, vice-president of American Export Airlines.

The new record—one hour and 13 minutes faster than the previous best time — was made by Capt. Charles L. Blair, Jr., who piloted an Export Line plane carrying 14 passengers and a full cargo load, Eaton said. The plane left New York Sunday and arrived in Eire yesterday.

Tough Fight For Senate 'Advance Consent' Seen

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.), supporting President Roosevelt for reelection, said today that the President's proposal that Congress give advance consent to the use of United States armed forces to oppose aggression probably would face a "tough fight" in the Senate.

Ball expressed hope, in a press conference at the Waldorf Towers, that what he described as isolationist Senators seeking reelection would be "eliminated" at the polls.

He declined to name them, asserting he did not believe in "purge lists." He said the voters knew them.

Declaring the procedure for sending armed forces into action against aggressors was one of the most vital issues involving future peace, the Senator said:

"President Roosevelt has hit it squarely. Governor Dewey has ducked it."

BREWSTER SAYS BALL AND WILLKIE DIFFERED

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 — (AP) Senator Brewster (R.-Me.) said today in a statement that Senator Joseph H. Ball, Minnesota Republican who yesterday endorsed President Roosevelt, and Wendell L. Willkie "had not been on speaking terms for many months," and that Willkie considered Ball "chiefly responsible for upsetting" his 1944 presidential aspirations.

Brewster said that, in the light of this relationship, "the attempt by the opposition to portray Ball as the successor to Willkie is most unfortunate."

Pacific War Gains 'Ahead Of Plans'

OCT 25 1944

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 24 (AP)—The war in the Pacific "is ahead of schedule," Vice-Admiral Randall Jacobs, USN, chief of naval personnel, said today.

In a speech prepared for graduation exercises of Navy V-12 students at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Admiral Jacobs asserted: "We have progressed by slow, bitterly fought stages to the point where we can attack the enemy in the Pacific at places of our own choosing.

Prelude To Victory

"The stage in which we find ourselves is the prelude to ultimate victory. But no one, least of all the men who are out in the Pacific, can say how long this prelude to victory will last or what will be the cost in men and material."

Admiral Jacobs gave great credit to "the process by which it proved possible to train the greatest citizen naval force in history." He said that total personnel in the navy numbered more than 3,000,000, of whom only about 10 per cent. were in service before Pearl Harbor. At present, he added, naval vessels are being commissioned at the rate of 12 every day.

Five of Seven Sailor Sons At Mrs. O'Brien's Funeral

At Medford, Mass., Service From Many Parts of World

MEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 24 (AP).—Five sailors today attended the funeral of their mother, who gave all seven of her sons to the Navy. From many parts of the world the sons gathered to attend the last rites of Mrs. Edward W. O'Brien, fifty-one years old, who died Saturday, only a few days before she was to have christened the Navy's newest battleship as a tribute for having given her boys to the fleet.

A solemn high mass of requiem was sung at the Immaculate Conception Church in near-by Malden with the Rev. Paul H. Doherty as celebrant. Committal services were held at Oak Grove Cemetery in Medford.

The return of the O'Brien boys was arranged by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee as soon as their mother's death was announced. Present were Seaman First Class Richard, thirty-one, and Paul, twenty-four, who were transferred from the same vessel in mid-Atlantic to another craft which sped them to port; Apprentice Seaman Walter, twenty-seven, who came from boot camp at Sampson, N. Y.; Ship's Cook Joseph, thirty-three, who is stationed at Boston, and Seaman First Class Leo, nineteen, who left England by plane Saturday, an hour after his mother died, and arrived early today. Ship's Cook John, twenty-three, was on his way from a vessel in the Caribbean, but did not arrive in time for the funeral.

No word had been received at the O'Brien home as to when Boatswain's Mate Second Class Thomas, twenty-six, stationed in the Pacific, expected to arrive.

PUERTO RICO COURT BARS RELIEF FUND

Boston, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—The First District United States Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld a decision of the Supreme Court of Puerto Rico in granting an injunction blocking distribution of $16,000,000 in emergency relief funds to 250,000 needy and unemployed.

The Puerto Rican court granted the injunction on petition of Celesino Iriate Miro, a senator, who contended that the insular relief council unlawfully authorized the allocation and extension of the fund for the year 1944-45, although there was no appropriation authorized by the Insular Legislature.

The twenty-five-page opinion of the three-ju[illegible] court said in part:

"The supreme Court of Puerto Rico has held that the object and purpose of the relief act is to appropriate the total sum of $16,000,000 once only for the purpose of relief during the emergency caused by the war, whatever the duration of the emergency may prove to be. Under these circumstances it seems to us that re-appropriation would not effectuate the Legislature's object and purpose but would more than the Legislature intended for the purpose it had in mind."

Attorney Asks Release Of Findings On Kimmel

Boston, Oct. 24 (AP)—James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, was asked today by counsel for Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, Pearl Harbor commander on December 7, 1941, to make immediate release of the naval court of inquiry findings as to his client's innocence or guilt.

In a telegram to Forrestal, Attorney Charles B. Rugg said:

"For nearly three years he (Kimmel) has borne public blame for the Pearl Harbor disaster. He has requested and has been denied a court-martial. His treatment has been un-American.

"In your letter to Admiral (G. Orin) Murfin (president of the court of inquiry), released to the press on October 20, you intimate that the facts, now three years old, found by the court may be withheld as 'secret' or 'top secret' on the ground that disclosure would interfere with the war effort.

"Certainly release of the findings of the court as to Kimmel's innocence or guilt cannot affect the war. Past injustices cannot now be remedied.

"Simple justice and common decency require immediate public announcement of the court's findings as to Kimmel's innocence or guilt."

Halifax Says True Peace Is Built on Justice

Hails Principles of Penn at Tercentenary; Roberts and Edge Also Speak

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24 (AP).—Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, said tonight that "peace can never merely be the absence of war."

There can be no true peace without the presence of justice, he asserted in an address at a celebration of the three-hundredth anniversary of the birth of William Penn, describing the "peace" of Poland and of occupied Europe as "the peace of a concentration camp."

"If in 1940 the Nazis had broken the resistance of Britain, there might have been this sort of 'peace' in the world; but there would have been no sort of justice," he said.

Lord Halifax urged a peace based on many of the principles set down three centuries ago by Penn, who "turned his mind to the problems which were being debated at Dumbarton Oaks many years before any of the other representatives had thought of paying any attention to them."

In the years following 1918, he said, "we placed the claims of what we thought was peace above the claims of what we knew was justice."

Stating that injustice, and thus war, arises not from the nation itself but more fundamentally from its peoples, Lord Halifax said: "a multitude of little wrongs by inconspicuous men and women may pave the approach to some crowning infamy which spells a people's doom."

The peoples of the world, "can never be indifferent to events, however apparently remote, which may threaten world peace and with that, their own," he asserted.

Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, in another address prepared for the celebration, said that Penn in a treatise written in 1693, "analyzed the problems invloved and anticipated and met the obstacles and objections then, and now, raised against any attempt to weld nations into some sort of government which should prevent aggression and guarantee international safety, security and order."

Penn's statements, said Justice Roberts, went so far as to state that sovereign princes would not lose any of their sovereignty in a union of nations.

Governor Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, praised Penn "for his great contribution to the establishment of law and order in New Jersey."

"He was at least a century ahead of his time in establishing freedom of religion, in guaranteeing the liberties and rights of the common man, in advocating the principles of true democracy," he said.

Cutter Lands Survivors Of Mexican Freighter

Southport, N. C., Oct. 24 (AP)—The Navy Department announced today that 11 survivors from the Mexican freighter Juan Casiano were brought ashore here Sunday afternoon after having been rescued at sea by a Coast Guard cutter Thursday night.

While reports from Mexico City told of the loss of the ship and reported it had collided with an unidentified vessel which also may have sunk, the Navy Department said it had heard nothing of a collision. It said the ship apparently had broken in two in the heavy seas as hurrican winds swept that area.

CIVILIAN PLANE LIKE BIG SHIP

OCT 25 1944

Post-War Craft Modeled After C-46 Commando

St. Louis, Oct. 24 (AP)—The Curtiss-Wright Corporation today disclosed details of a civilian version of the famed C-46 Commando which it hopes to begin delivering in 1945 to major airlines.

Already "on order" by Eastern Air Lines, Inc., and National Airlines, the civilian model outwardly duplicates, except for a few design changes, the plane which makes up the bulk of the fleet now carrying supplies to China over the Himalaya Mountain "hump."

Inside, however, luxurious accommodations for 36 or more persons will replace the bare boards and folding benches the army is using, the "mockup" or model displayed today indicated.

As planned, civilian transports will cost around $300,000 each, said C. W. France, general manager of the St. Louis plant. Discussing the reconversion model, known as CW2OE, France said at a press conference the Commando was the biggest and fastest twin-engined transport now in service.

To Weigh 48,000 Pounds

The civilian type will be built to cruise 235 to 242 miles an hour and will weigh around 48,000 pounds. It has a wing spread of 108 feet, is a shade more than 76 feet long and stands nearly 22 feet high. It will be powered by two 18-cylinder Wright engines, rated at 2,200 horsepower, the same engines which power the B-29 Superfortress. It is designed to carry 15,900 pounds.

BOY GLADDENS GRIEVING HOME

Baby Son Of Killed Army Pilot Arrives From England

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP). Solemn, wide-eyed Kenneth Barry Maloney, aged 6 months, already has started to fill in part of the gap made in the family when his army pilot father, Lieut. Kenneth Maloney, was killed in England, according to Mrs. William Maloney, the baby's grandmother.

Not more than a half hour after she arrived from New York with the baby, who came to this country via army transport from Britain, Mrs. Maloney looked at her husband and said, "the baby will help, won't he?"

Totally Unimpressed

Totally unimpressed by the international stir he has caused, "Kenny," as his new family calls him, gurgled happily as he was whisked off to his new home, complete with a playroom, his own nursery and a dog.

Awaiting the baby was his 7-year-old uncle, Johnny Maloney, who informed the infant he had stayed home from the second grade just to see Kenny.

But the baby merely reached for a bright red airplane his 2-year-old cousin, Michael Terry Eardley, was carrying, and grinned.

House Full Of Children

Kenny slipped into the routine of the big house, which for years has been full of children. "Our house wouldn't be a home if we didn't have children here," Mrs. Maloney said, recalling that in addition to their own four children she and Mr. Maloney have reared five others.

The baby's mother was reported to have died when the child was born.

It was through special arrangements with the army and Red Cross that the youngest Maloney was brought across the ocean to Grand Rapids.

Party Leader Sees Timing Planned.

St. Paul, Oct. 24 (A. P.).—The Republican party in Minnesota is "looking forward to mobilizing every bit of its energy to win in November" and not "backward to Senator Joseph H. Ball who at no time had any intention of supporting the Republican presidential candidate," Mrs. Chris Carlson of Blue Earth, Minn., Republican national committee woman, said in a statement today.

Mrs. Carlson said Senator Ball, Minnesota Republican who announced yesterday he would support President Roosevelt, "timed his statement so that it would do the most damage to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and the most good for President Roosevelt."

State Senator J. V. Weber, secretary of the Stassen for President preconvention campaign, termed Mr. Ball's action "the vilest double-cross in the history of Minnesota politics" in a statement which continued:

"He has double-crossed not only himself but the one man who made him—Commander Stassen, former Minnesota Governor. He has double-crossed a multitude of men and women who accepted him upon his appointment."

Says Stassen Is Wronged.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 24 (A. P.).—Victor A. Johnston of Minneapolis, who directed the campaign for Republican presidential delegates pledged to Lieut.-Commander Harold E. Stassen in Wisconsin last spring, declared today that United States Senator Joseph E. Ball of Minnesota, "has done a great disservice to Harold Stassen by his treacherous double cross of the Republican party."

Senator Ball announced yesterday that he would support President Roosevelt.

"I know of my personal knowledge that Senator Ball does not represent the views of Harold E. Stassen," Mr. Johnson said, "and I am sure that Commander Stassen now serving in the South Pacific must be heartily ashamed of him."

Willkie Letter Offered Vowing War on New Deal

Said He Sought 'Removal of Present Administration'

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 24 (AP).—A letter purportedly written by the late Wendell L. Willkie in which he said he had dedicated himself "to the removal of the present administration from office" was made public here today.

The letter was addressed to Earl L. Jolly, general agent for an insurance firm in Evansville, Ind., who submitted a photostatic copy of it to Eugene C. Pulliam, publisher of "The Indianapolis Star." The letter was published today in "The Star." It follows:

"New York,
May 2, 1944.

"My Dear Mr. Jolly:

"I want you to know how much I appreciate your writing to me at this time. Needless to say, I am deeply grateful for your thoughtfulness and your expression of good will.

"As you know, I am and have been dedicated to the removal of the present administration from office, but I firmly believe the only way this can be accomplished is for the Republican party to measure up to the responsibility it is seeking.

"No one can be more anxious than I am for the party to so measure up and no one will work harder than I to bring this about.

"Again, many, many, thanks for your interest.

"Cordially,
"WENDELL WILLKIE."

"Mr. Earl L. Jolly,
"1694 North 7th Street,
"Terra Haute, Ind."

The date of the letter was a little more than a month after Mr. Willkie withdrew as a Republican Presidential candidate this year after failing to get any pledged delegates in the Wisconsin primary.

Sabetha, Kan., Oct. 24 (AP)—Alf M. Landon, former Kansas Governor, told a Republican meeting tonight that Roosevelt's foreign policy—"unconditional surrender"—was "costing the lives of untold numbers of American soldiers.

"Unconditional surrender," Landon asserted in his prepared address, "has never been defined. Everyone is entitled to draw his own conclusions, including the Germans.

"Strangely, our American broadcasts to the Germans themselves are more specific and make a lot more sense than what Mr. Roosevelt is willing to say to the American people.

Official Broadcast View

"Our official broadcasts overseas make it clear, over there, that we are not fighting Germans because they are Germans, but because they support a system that threatens us."

The 1936 Republican Presidential nominee brought Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., into his talk, declaring:

"To pile blunder on blunder we have the most unbelievable proposal of Morgenthau to destroy every German factory and turn Germany into an exclusively agricultural country.

"We see Mr. Roosevelt lending weight and emphasis to the Secretary of the Treasury's proposal by taking him to the last conference in Quebec with Churchill and leaving the Secretary of State at home.

"Morgenthau's Folly"

"We have a tough enough job for our soldiers to crack the final shell of the fanatical German resistance without Morgenthau firing them anew with the desperate courage of despair. The war in Europe has been prolonged by Morgenthau's folly."

"We must face the facts," Landon added. "Instead of a hard-boiled hoss trader, Roosevelt is like the sap that is always grabbing for the check."

Landon said future war or peace was being decided in the European arrangements—more than at Dumbarton Oaks. "Yet, Mr. Roosevelt has retreated to the isolationism which was the policy of his administration from 1932 until after the 1940 election, and which encouraged the aggressions of Hitler. He is holding himself aloof from the decisions in Europe."

HITS FDR ON JAPAN

Cites Oil, Steel Sent to Tokyo; Raps 'Scuttling' of Economic Parley.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 24—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declared tonight that American participation in a world peace organization "must not be subject to a reservation that would require our representative to return to Congress for authority every time he had to make a decision."

The New York Governor, matching in general the stand taken by President Roosevelt in a foreign policy speech in New York Saturday night, threw in the following reservation, with the added declaration that Mr. Roosevelt has demonstrated he "cannot work with a Congress of his own party:"

"Obviously Congress, and only Congress, has the constitutional power to determine what quota of force it will make available and what discretion it will give our representative to use that force."

"I have not the slightest doubt," Dewey said in a broadcast, "that a Congress which is working in partnership with the President will achieve the result we all consider essential and grant adequate power for swift action to the American representative."

Hits Shipments to Japan

The Republican Presidential candidate accused Mr. Roosevelt of having permitted the shipment to Japan of "as much as three million barrels a month of oil, the heart's blood of war, for use against China and for storage against America," up until four months before Pearl Harbor.

"Let those who claim to have exercised great foresight remember these lessons in history," he said "And let us as a nation never forget them."

Moreover, he declared, the first two administrations of the New Deal sent 10 million tons of scrap iron and steel to Japan, "unchecked by my opponent until Oct. 16, 1940."

"The weight of that scrap iron alone," he said, "was 10 times the tonnage of the whole Japanese navy."

Dewey, discarding the farm speech he had prepared for this Midwest center, replied indirectly to the challenge of Senator Joseph H. Ball, Minnesota Republican who has switched his support to Mr. Roosevelt on the foreign policy issue, by declaring:

"I have emphasized, as my opponent has not, that 'We must make certain that our participation in this world organization is not subjected to reservations that would nullify the power of that organization to maintain peace and to halt future aggression.'

"That means, of course, that it must not be subject to a reservation that would require our representative to return to Congress for authority every time he had to make a decision."

Expressing belief that "We cannot build an understanding and a purpose for our future if we are to continue to have abuse from the President of the members of Congress," the G.O.P. candidate said:

"Those who would attempt to ride rough-shod over Congress and to dictate the course it should follow before it has even been acquainted with the facts are trifling with the hope of the world.

Raps "Stubborn Course"

They are deliberately in my judgment, seeking to precipitate a hardening of minds. If this stubborn course is pursued, it can only result once again, as in 1919, in a disastrous conflict between the President and the Congress.

"To that I will never be a party."

Having announced in advance that he intended to "fill in the gaps" that he said Mr. Roosevelt "forgot" in his foreign policy speech, Dewey declared:

"How election times change men's memories!"

By "deliberately" scuttling the 1933 London Economic Conference, the New York Governor said, President Roosevelt committed "the most completely isolationist action ever taken by an American President in our 150 years of history."

"It was that event," he added, "that led at least one European statesman to say there was then nothing ahead in Europe but war."

He did not name the statesman.

Asserting at the outset that he had tried to keep peace aims out of partisan debate, Dewey said:

"Unhappily, however, last Saturday night, my opponent once again sowed among us the seeds of disunity. He made a long speech on foreign affairs. We had hoped he would speak to the American people as grown-ups and tell us what our foreign policy is and where it is going.

Asks About Smaller Nations

"We had also hoped to hear some word of cheer about the smaller nations, so important to the conscience of the American people—some word about the fate of Poland, some hope for the people of Italy, some assurance that the Scandinavian countries which have suffered so much, and the other small countries, might soon be admitted to their full membership in the work for organized peace.

"But Mr. Roosevelt gave us none of that. Instead, he sat by the fireside and dreamed of yesterday. He paraded before the American people the ghosts of the dead past. He told us a few bits of history, carefully elected, and then said in effect, 'ask me no questions, you are not entitled to know where we are going. Just leave everything to me.'"

Dewey, who told a news conference earlier that he was happy indeed to note that "my demand of last Wednesday for recognition of the de Gaulle government of France has borne fruit," disputed what he called Mr. Roosevelt's contention that "the heavy hand of isolationism governed our country in the 1920's."

The President, he argued, inherited "a progressively improving structure of international cooperation—from the Disarmament Conference of 1921 led by Charles Evans Hughes, through the great Kellogg-Briand pact of 1928, in which most of the nations of the world renounced war as an instrument of national policy."

But, he declared, under President Roosevelt's early leadership "America did her own bit toward the breakdown of international cooperation for peace."

"Mr. Roosevelt now speaks fondly of the League of Nations," he said. "But it was he who in 1933 said this of the league: 'We are not members and we do not contemplate memberships.'" sertion that ... cans would assume positions of command if the Republicans gain control of Congress this fall, Dewey listed the present G.O.P. leaders of Congress and read telegrams of support from several of them. One, which he attributed to House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, said:

"When elected President, you can count on enthusiastic support of the Republican House of Representatives to carry into effect your plan for United States leadership in organization to cooperate with other nations for world peace."

Asserting he would continue to insist on a bi-partisan approach to post-war peace plans, Dewey said:

"The avoidance of future wars is too important to be in the sole custody of any one man—of any one group—or of any one party. It is too important to hang by the slender thread of one man's continuity in office."

G.O.P. Legislators Pledge Aid on Peace

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 25 — (AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, released tonight the following telegrams from members of Congress whom he described as potential "leaders" of the next session, if the Republicans win in November:

"I am in hearty accord with your discussion of plans for permanently organizing international peace, and I am confident that a Republican Senate will loyally support you in this great objective.

"Signed: Arthur Vandenberg, chairman, Senate Republican Conference committee."

"Your statements in the Herald-Tribune Forum speech give vigorous support to the cause of security and increase confidence in the establishment of the United Nations before cessation of hostilities which is vital prerequisite to a peace that will prevail.

"Signed: Warren Austin, chairman Republican National convention Foreign Relations sub-committee."

"Concerning your foreign policy speech, I thoroughly approve your discussion of a necessary world organization and am confident it would be confirmed and ratified by nearly all Republican senators.

"Signed: Robert A. Taft, chairman Republican Steering committee".

"Your statements in support of a postwar organization and your vigorous leadership in developing and clarifying our country's foreign policy have my respect and approval. Your views will be accorded enthusiastic and loyal support by Republicans of the Senate and by the American people.

"Signed: Wallace H. White, Jr. acting minority leader, United States Senate."

"Enthusiastically endorse your proposals for a permanent organization to bring about world peace. A Republican senate will back you up.

"Signed: Kenneth Wherry, Republican whip United States Senate."

"When elected President, you can count on enthusiastic support of the Republican House of Representatives to carry into effect your plan for United States leadership in organization to cooperate with other nations for world peace. I shall personally be very pleased to follow your splendid leadership in bringing this plan into reality.

"Signed: Joseph W. Martin, Jr. Republican leader, House of Representatives."

OCT 25 1944

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 24 — (AP) Following is the text of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign address here tonight:

It is mighty good to come back again to Minnesota, the state of that gallant leader, Commander Harold Stassen. As a great governor and as a bold and courageous leader of opinion, he rendered services to his country equalled only by his present services in the Navy.

To the people of Minnesota he gave something else very precious and too long absent from our national life. He gave teamwork government, not one-man government.

Commends G.O.P. Governor

As a result when he left for the Navy, there was a first-class man ready and able to fill his shoes. That man has so ably and successfully conducted the affairs of the state that everyone agrees you will re-elect by an overwhelming majority, my good friend, Governor Edward J. Thye.

The experience of the people of Minnesota under these great Republican administrations points the way toward the progressive, forward-looking teamwork government the people will install in the nation next January 20.

I had intended to talk tonight about some of the problems of the American farmer. I have deferred that talk so that I can, without delay, correct some errors and omissions in the speech of my opponent of last Saturday night. But before doing so, I want to here and now repledge my adherence to the farm program of the Republican platform, which was drawn by the farm leaders themselves.

The wide fluctuation of prices of farm products that followed the last war will not be tolerated. A floor will be placed and maintained under farm prices with assurance of seal up crop loans. A proper farm program will be created and so operated that it will leave with the farmers the administration, the control and operation of their program without domination or dictation from appointed bureaucrats.

On three great objectives, we, the American people, are wholly agreed. We are determined to carry through this war to swift and total victory. We are determined that the United States shall take the lead, even before victory in the war is won, in the establishment of a world organization to prevent future wars. We are determined that our fighting men shall find when they return victorious a vigorous and productive America, the kind of America in which there will be jobs and opportunity for all.

Sought Unity for Peace

It was for the purpose of keeping our unity for peace that, last August, I lifted our peace plans wholly out of partisan conflicts—by joining hands with Secretary Hull in work on the proposed organization to prevent future wars.

In my addresses on that subject I have tried to keep it out of partisan debate.

OCT 25 1944

Unhappily however, last Saturday night, my opponent once again sowed among us the seeds of disunity. He made a long speech on foreign affairs. We had hoped he would speak to the American people as grown-ups and tell us what our foreign policy is and where it is going.

"We had also hoped to hear some word of cheer about the smaller nations, so important to the conscience of the American people—some word about the fate of Poland, some hope for the people of Italy, some assurance that the Scandinavian countries which have suffered so much, and the other small countries, might soon be admitted to their full partnership in the work for organized peace.

F.D.R. Talked of Past

But Mr. Roosevelt gave us none of that. Instead, he sat by the fireside and dreamed of yesterday. He paraded before the American people the ghosts of the dead past. He told us a few bits of history, carefully selected, and then said in effect, "ask me no questions — you are not entitled to know where we are going. Just leave everything to me."

OCT

Now, Mr. Roosevelt said, in that speech, "I am giving you the whole story." But the isolated bits of history he gave were only a very small part of the story. I had intended to talk tonight about some of the problems of the American farmer. I have deferred that talk so I could, without delay, look with you tonight at the vital events my opponent left out of what he called "the whole story."

My opponent says the heavy hand of isolationism governed our country in the 1920's. Does he mean to apply that term to the three great Republican secretaries of State, Charles Evans Hughes, Frank B. Kellogg, and Henry L. Stimson, his own present Secretary of War? If so, I am afraid he has a convenient memory. It was my opponent himself who said of the day he took office, the 4th of March, 1933, "the world picture was an image of substantial peace. International consultation and widespread hope for the bettering of relations between the nations gave to all of us a reasonable expectation that the barriers to mutual confidence, to increased trade and to the peaceful settlement of disputes could be progressively removed."

Cites Peace Pacts

And that was the truth. My opponent did inherit a progressive improving structure of international cooperation—from the disarmament conference of 1921 led by Charles Evans Hughes, through the great Kellogg-Briand pact of 1928, in which most of the nations of the world renounced war as an instrument of national policy.

But it was on March 5, 1933, that Adolph Hitler made himself dictator of Germany. That was a fateful year, Germany walked out of the disarmament conference. Germany and Japan quit the League of Nations. And tragically, under the leadership of Mr. Roosevelt, America did her own bit toward the breakdown of international cooperation for peace.

Mr. Roosevelt now speaks fondly of the League of Nations. But it was he who in 1933 said this of the League: "we are not members and we do not contemplate membership."

Rejects League Collaboration

He rejected the policy of collaboration with the League which had previously been established, and in 1935, the American representative at Geneva was instructed "that we desire to follow our course independently."

Here are two parts of the story my opponent conveniently forgot. Now let's look at some more.

It was also in 1935 that instead of the policy of consultation with other nations, an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress adopted the fruitless Neutrality act and the President signed it.

But it was in 1933 that we really had our last chance to bring order out of the chaos of international money exchange and trade. The London economic conference had been labored over for months by Republican Secretary of State Stimson. Yet, as one of his early acts as president, Mr. Roosevelt deliberately scuttled that conference. That was the most completely isolationist action ever taken by an American president in our 150 years of history. It was that event that led at least one European statesman to say there was then nothing ahead in Europe but war.

Government Warned of Danger

Year after year, from 1933 to 1939, our representatives in Berlin and Tokio in their confidential reports which are now partly made public, warned of the growing danger.

Year after year, our chiefs of staff reported on the utterly impoverished and pitifully small manpower of our army. Year after year, the Budget bureau, which is under the personal direction of the President, cut down the amount requested. It was right in the Fall of 1939, after the second World War had actually begun, that Mr. Roosevelt's budget bureau cut out 552 million dollars of amounts certified by the Army for critical and essential items.

OCT 25 1944

It was in January, 1940, that Mr. Roosevelt told the Congress that $1,800,000,000 for National defense was, in his judgment, "a sufficient amount for the coming year" although he admitted that it was "far less than many experts on national defense think should be spent."

It was in that month that I called publicly for a two-ocean navy, a concept which Mr. Roosevelt still later called "just plain dumb."

Recesses Congress in 1940

It was in those terrifying days of the Nazi blitz, in May of 1940, that he told us we should not become "discombolated." Then, with France about to fall, he publicly announced on June 4 that he saw no reason for Congress to stay in session. It was an election year—so in that hour of national peril he said that a continued session of Congress would serve no useful end except, sarcastically, the laudable purpose of making speeches.

It was that American Congress which refused at that historic time to go home. It stayed in Washington and worked.

It was that Congress which then passed the National Selective Service act, sponsored by a Republican congressman and an anti-New Deal Democrat. It was that Congress that stayed after it had been told to go home, which ran the appropriations and authorizations for National defense up to 12 billion dollars.

Here, then are some more chapters of the story—all of which my opponent conveniently forgets. But the American people will not forget them when they go to the polls in November.

Completes FDR Story

In his speech of last Saturday night, my opponent did remember the Washington Arms conference by which, for the first time, we succeeded in restricting Japan to an inferior naval relationship of 5-5-3. But he forgot that he was supposed to be telling "the whole story." He complained that we "scuttled" part of the strength of our Navy. But that is not what he said at the time. Then, in a magazine article, Mr. Roosevelt asked America to trust Japan and complained of "the delay in the scrapping of United States ships as provided for and pledged in accordance with the treaty." What he also forgot last Saturday night was that as late as 1934, he called the Washington Arms conference, a "milestone in civilization."

How election times change men's memories! If we are going to learn the lessons for future use, we have to keep the record straight.

Send Scrap Iron to Japs

It was in that year, 1934, that Japan served notice of termination of the limitation treaty which kept her navy inferior to ours. Yet, it was in the first two administrations of the New Deal that this country sent ten million tons of scrap iron and steel to Japan, unchecked by my opponent until October 16, 1940. The weight of that scrap iron alone was ten times the tonnage of the whole Japanese navy.

Mr. Roosevelt said last Saturday that we could have "compromised" with Japan, "by selling out the heart's blood of the Chinese people." Well, let's see what he did.

In addition to scrap iron, he permitted the shipment of as much as three million barrels a month of oil, the heart's blood of war, for use against China and for storage against America. It continued to flow until July of 1941, four months before Pearl Harbor.

Let those who claim to have exercised great foresight remember these lessons in history. And let us as a nation never forget them.

Now, my opponent in his speech actually blamed a handful of Republicans for our failure to go into the World court in 1935.

Insulted Integrity of Congress

That was when Mr. Roosevelt was still on the crest of his leadership, with three-fourths of the United States Senate Democratic. Even with the help of nine Republicans he still could not muster a two-thirds vote. Since then he has warred with Congress at every major turn. He has insulted its integrity and its members have learned the bitter lesson that legislation asked for one purpose, is twisted to another. This is a sad foundation on which to build the teamwork necessary for the future. That's why it's time for a change.

Three times in recent months I have discussed at length what I consider the sound and successful program for lasting peace. I have emphasized that this work must be pressed forward without waiting for the end of the war. I have emphasized, as my opponent has not, that "we must make certain that our participation in this world organization is not subjected to reservations that would nullify the power of that organization to maintain peace and to halt future aggression." That means, of course, that it must not be subject to a reservation that would require our representative to return to Congress for authority every time he had to make a decision. Obviously Congress, has the constitutional power to determine what quota of force it will make available, and what discretion it will give our representative to use that force.

Must Cooperate With Congress

I have not the slightest doubt that a Congress which is working in partnership with the President will achieve the result we all consider essential and grant adequate power for swift action to the American representative. But those who would attempt to ride rough-shod over congress and to dictate the course it should follow before it has even been acquainted with the facts are trifling with the hope of the world. They are deliberately, in my judgment, seeking to participate a hardening of minds. If this stubborn course is pursued, it can only result once again, as in 1919, in a disastrous conflict between the President and the Congress. To that I will never be a party.

I deeply believe that we cannot build an understanding and a purpose for our future if we are to continue to have abuse from the President of the members of Congress.

None of us has been all-wise in these matters. Individual Congressmen and Senators of both parties have made mistakes. Individual citizens have made mistakes. Every one of us—both in and out of office—has made mistakes.

Interested in Congressional Action

I am not interested in the mistakes of any individual—in either party. I am interested—the people of this country are interested—in what the next Congress will do. We must not find ourselves after next January 20th, stalled on dead center as a result of this series of recriminations between by opponent and the Congress. He has already demonstrated that he cannot work with a Congress of his own party. It is unmistakably clear that our future demands that we have a new Chief Executive who can and will work with the new Republican Congress beginning next January 20th. We must be able to go forward harmoniously and effectively if we are to meet the mighty problems of peace.

Who will lead the next Senate and the next House? Well, here are the acknowledged leaders today:

Senator Wallace H. White, Jr., of Maine, acting minority leader of the United States senate.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, chairman of the senate Republican conference committee.

Senator Warren R. Austin of Vermont, chairman of the Republican National convention Foreign Relations subcommittee.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Chairman of the Republican Steering committee.

Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, Republican senate whip.

Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, the minority Republican leader of the house of representatives.

Reads White's Telegram

I hold in my hand a telegram from each of these gentlemen. Let me read you the wire from Senator Wallace H. White, the acting minority leader of the United States Senate. It reads:

"Your statements in support of a post-war organization and your vigorous leadership in developing and clarifying our country's foreign policy have my respect and approval. Your views will be accorded enthusiastic and loyal support by Republicans of the Senate and by the American people."

Now let me read a wire from Joseph W. Martin, whom my opponent last Saturday night conceded is likely to be the next speaker of the House of Representatives. It reads:

"When elected president, you can count on enthusiastic support of the Republican House of Representatives to carry into effect your plan for United States leadership in organization to cooperate with other nations for world peace. I shall personally be very pleased to follow your splendid leadership in bringing this plan into reality."

Country Must Be Unified

I have made public the rest of these messages tonight. Here is the kind of unity we need in this country—the kind we will need so desperately in these important years ahead.

From the beginning of this campaign I have insisted that organization for world peace can and must be a bi-partisan effort. I shall continue to insist on that approach The avoidance of future wars is too important to be in the sole custody of any one man—of any one group—or of any one party. It is too important to hang by the slender thread of one man's continuity in office.

Only with the unity now demonstrated by the telegrams I have read to you tonight from the next leaders of the Congress and the Senate can we achieve the kind of action necessary to preserve peace. Only with a Chief Executive who will work with the Congress in harmony can our future be assured.

Our work for future peace must and will become on January 20th next year, a bi-partisan effort, bringing to it the ablest men in our country from both political parties.

Must Not Fear the Peace

That sense of unity can also be brought to our domestic affairs. With a president who will cooperate with the Congress, we need not fear the peace. For agriculture, for labor and for business, we have an unlimited future before us, if we will seize it and unite to bring it about.

Certainly, this is the least we can do in the name of those who are fighting today to make that future possible. With God's help we shall unite America and go forward once again.

BRICKER ADDS SIX SPEECHES

To Make Strong Bid For Missouri, Truman's State

On Bricker Train, Oct. 24 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker, deciding to make a strong bid for the home State of his Democratic rival for the Vice-Presidency, tonight added six speeches to his Missouri program.

The Republican nominee thereby increased to nine the addresses he will make on the home grounds of Senator Harry S. Truman October 27 and 28. They will be topped by a nation-wide broadcast the night of October 27 from Kansas City.

Bricker's staff said the Kansas City speech would be one of the major addresses of the Republican national campaign.

Rear-Platform Talks

The new Missouri engagements will be talks from the rear platform of his special train on Saturday at Harrisonville, Rich Hill, Nevada, Lamar, Neosho and Aurora. He previously had arranged to speak at Joplin and Springfield.

Another addition was made to the Bricker program for Kansas in the form of a rear-platform appearance at Newton Friday afternoon. The additions increase to 114 the number of speeches Bricker will have made when he completes his four-week, 10,000-mile Western campaign swing.

The Ohio Governor, speaking at Pueblo, Col., asserted that the white-collar worker and the farmer were "the neglected men" of America, and contended that something should be done for them for the sake of the nation's economic and social stability.

'The Neglected Man'

He pictured "the neglected man" as the counterpart of "the forgotten man" whom, he added, "the New Deal said the Government owed a living but did nothing to provide him a productive job with good pay."

"The neglected man," Bricker said, "is the white-collar worker, the clerk, the stenographer, the bookkeeper, the small manufacturer, the small merchant, the struggling professional man and many others."

He declared that "what has happened to this great majority of our people is one of the most tragic developments in our time," adding that they had been "outraged by Government extravagance, diction and the double-talk of New Dealers."

Passes War Prisoners

As Bricker walked through the Pueblo depot he passed a dozen German war prisoners who eyed curiously the crowd participating in a demonstration of America's democratic process. The Governor was not aware of the identity of the group, which had paused here en route.

At a Pueblo press conference he asserted that if the Republicans took over the administration in Washington, they would begin as soon as possible a "dismantling of the tremendous powers vested in the Presidency."

'Half Democrats'

Bricker also spoke briefly from his train at Colorado Springs, Walsenburg and Trinidad.

As he approa[illegible] Texas for speeches tomorrow [illegible] Worth and Dallas, the Vice-Presidential nominee was asked if he had planned any conferences with Democrats who have threatened to turn against the national Administration. He replied that he had scheduled no formal conferences, "but I likely will see a lot of Democrats." He remarked that the last time he appeared in Dallas "half of the audience were Democrats."

BRICKER NAMES FORGOTTEN MAN

Nominee Says White Collar Worker Is Neglected.

Pueblo, Col., Oct. 24 (A. P.).—Gov. John W. Bricker today pictured the white-collar worker and the farmer as the neglected men of America, and said that for the sake of the nation's economic and social stability something must be done for them.

"They have been outraged by Government extravagance, dictation, and the double-talk of New Dealers," the Republican nominee for Vice-President asserted in a prepared speech released by his campaign staff.

"They accept all this as a part of the war program—but they expect Government to have some plans for them when the war is over. They do not want to be neglected forever."

The Ohio Governor wound up his two-day bid for Colorado's six electoral votes with stops at Colorado Springs, Walsenburg and Trinidad.

Contradictions Consistent.

Speaking last night before a crowd that packed the Broadway Theater in Denver, Mr. Bricker declared that President Roosevelt's utterances were marked by a consistent pattern of contradictions.

"Perhaps," the Ohioan remarked, "he merely changes his mind frequently. Perhaps he lacks the vision to foresee the direction events are taking.

"On the other hand, perhaps it is in keeping with the policy, 'we planned it that way.' There is some reason to think so."

Gov. John C. Vivian of Colorado introduced Gov. Bricker to a Denver audience estimated at 2,000 persons. 1,000 more clustered about the theater entrances.

Knows Forgotten Man.

In his Pueblo speech Mr. Bricker said that the New Deal in its youth talked much about "the forgotten man," although "no one quite knew who he was supposed to be."

He asserted that the "experimenters and the planners" told "the forgotten man that the Government owed him a living but did nothing to provide him a productive job with good pay."

Describing the present day counterpart of the forgotten man as "the neglected man," Mr. Bricker added:

"He is the white collar worker, the clerk, the stenographer, the bookkeeper, the small manufacturer, the small merchant, the struggling professional man and many others. He constitutes the great middle class who work for a salary or for an uncertain income."

Bricker Signed Appeal For Refugees, Report

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—The War Refugee Board said today that Gov. John W. Bricker's name was signed to an appeal President Roosevelt received last May for the establishment of temporary havens for European refugees in this country.

In a statment, the board asserted that the Republican Vice-Presidential candidate in a speech yesterday at Denver "assailed the action of President Roosevelt in providing temporary haven in the United States for the duration of the war for approximately 1,000 refugees from Italy."

The board, set up in the executive office of the President, consists of Secretaries Hull, Stimson and Morgenthau.

The statement listed 72 names as signers of the appeal which was initiated by the late Alfred E. Smith. Bricker was one of them, along with 17 other Governors, a number of college presidents, and other notables.

Victim Of Japs Made Oral Will

Los Angeles, Oct. 24 (AP)—Just before a Japanese submarine submerged with 100 captured American seamen on its deck, most of them with their hands bound, one of them made an oral will.

The story was told today by one of 23 survivors in a petition for probate of the will of First Mate Clement Carlin, of the torpedoed ship. It was filed in Superior Court.

The officer left his entire estate, estimated at $10,000, to one of his four brothers, John M. Carlin, Glendale (Cal.) defense worker.

Affidavit Offered

As proof of the will, there was offered the affidavit of Charles E. Pyle, member of the sunken merchant ship crew, who was rescued by an Allied seaplane. He said:

"On July 2, 1944, I was a member of the S. S. Jean Nicolet, a merchant ship of the United States Maritime Commission, which was at that time operating in the Indian Ocean. On that day the Jean Nicolet was torpedoed and sunk. A member of the crew was Clement Carlin. . . . We had left the torpedoed ship in a lifeboat. An hour after the torpedoing, our lifeboat was approached by a Japanese submarine and all of us were taken on board the deck of the surfaced sub.

"First, the Japs shot the youngest member of the crew, a boy of 17, as a warning, then for four hours they subjected us to beatings. . . . In the lifeboat, Carlin made an oral will. He said, 'I would like to state what I would like to have you, Charley Pyle, do regarding my property if you come out and I don't, and you can do the same thing for me. It is my desire that my brother, John M. Carlin, of Glendale, Cal., have all my property regardless of what it is. . . .'

Carlin Killed By Japs

"First Officer Carlin was killed by the Japanese on that date . . . The Jap submarine submerged with 100 men on the deck outside. They bound the hands of all those who showed signs of life and left unbound only 23 of us whom they had beaten so severely they had given us up for dead. . . . We 23 who were not bound were picked up by Allied flying boats while we were floating on the water soon after the sub submerged."

Pyle has been recovering from his injuries in an Oakland (Cal.) naval hospital.

NEGRO SAILORS FOUND GUILTY OF TREASON

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24—(AP) A court martial board today brought in a "Guilty" verdict for the 50 negro sailors who refused to load ammunition following the Port Chicago disaster of last July, but whether the men must pay the penalty for mutiny or a lesser offense was not immediately determined.

Mutiny can be punished by death, but the lesser charge of "Conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline" carries a maximum penalty of 15 years. The board deliberated 45 minutes after a lengthy trial.

Defense Cousnel Lt. Gerald Veltmann, who pleaded that the sailors were moved by fear and not revolt when they declined to load ammunition, was notified he might present evidence before the Board this afternoon concerning mitigating circumstances in individual cases. Presumably the degree of guilt thus will be fixed on an individual or group basis.

FOR WORLD BODY LINK TO CONGRESS

Long Beach, Cal., Oct. 24 (A. P.).—Representative Ward Johnson (R.-Cal.) today made public a telegram he has sent to Secretary of State Hull proposing that under the Dumbarton Oaks agreement, a committee of the Senate and House Foreign Affairs committees act with the United States delegate to the United Nations Security Council in authorizing the use of armed forces to suppress aggression.

He proposed that the chairmen and the ranking minority members of the Foreign Affairs Committee be members of the committee vested with such power.

"Such a committee would be representatives of the people and the two houses of Congress," Mr. Johnson's telegram said. "It would allow practically instant action on our part."

WHILE ONE OBVIOUS OBJECTIVE OF THE BRITISH AND CANADIANS IS THE CLEARANCE OF THE GERMANS FROM THE VICINITY OF THE BELGIAN PORT OF ANTWERP, GERMAN MILITARY COMMENTATORS IMPUTED A BROADER STRATEGIC AIM TO THE ASSAULT ON 'S HERTOGENBOSCH. THEY SAID THAT LT. GEN. SIR MILES C. DEMPSEY'S MEN WERE ATTEMPTING TO CUT OFF GERMAN FORCES SOUTH OF THE MAAS (MEUSE) AND WAAL RHINE RIVERS AND TO GAIN ELBOW ROOM FOR A GENERAL DRIVE INTO CENTRAL HOLLAND.

OCT 25 1944

BY LAST NIGHT VANGUARDS OF THE THREE BRITISH COLUMNS WERE 2 1/2 MILES NORTHEAST OF 'S HERTOGENBOSCH AT ROSMALEN, FOUR MILES EAST OF THE CITY AT BERLICUM AND FOUR MILES SOUTH OF IT AT ST. MICHIELS GESTEL. THEY ALSO WERE FIGHTING FOR A BRIDGE ACROSS THE DOMMEL RIVER AT BOXTEL, SIX MILES TO THE SOUTH.

IN THEIR ADVANCE THE BRITISH WIPED OUT A WHOLE BATTALION OF THE 712TH GERMAN INFANTRY DIVISION AND TOOK 500 PRISONERS, INCLUDING ONE REGIMENTAL AND ONE BATTALION COMMANDER.

THE NAZIS CAPTURED 'S HERTOGENBOSCH MAY 12, 1940 AFTER GERMAN TROOPS IN DUTCH UNIFORMS SEIZED THE CITY'S VITAL BRIDGES AND DEFENSE CENTERS. A CITY OF 41,000 POPULATION, 'S HERTOGENBOSCH IS A JUNCTION OF FIVE RAIL LINES AND IS AN IMPORTANT CENTER OF MOTOR ROADS AND WATERWAYS. IT SLAO IS KNOWN AS BOIS DE DUC.

ABOVE ANTWERP CANADIAN TROOPS SWEPT NORTH FROM CAPTURED ESSCHEN THE BELGIAN-DUTCH BORDER AND WERE REPORTED LITTLE MORE THAN THREE MILES FROM ROOSENDAAL AND THREATENING TO FLANK THE HEAVILY FORTIFIED GERMAN POSITION OF BERGEN OP ZOOM, SEVEN MILES TO THE WEST AND SLIGHTLY SOUTH.

OCT 25 1944

WEST OF ANTWERP THE CANADIANS WERE ENGAGED IN SEE-SAW FIGHTING WITH THE GERMANS POCKETED IN THE BRESKENS AREA. BRESKENS, A FERRY PORT ON THE LONG WATERWAY LEADING TO ANTWERP, WAS TAKEN SUNDAY, BUT A DISPATCH FROM SUPREME ALLIED HEADQUARTERS AT PARIS SAID THE CANADIANS HAD RETIRED FROM THE TOWN LAST NIGHT.

A FRONT DISPATCH, WRITTEN BEFORE THE EVACUATION OF BRESKENS, INDICATED THAT GERMAN TROOPS IN FORT FREDERIK HENDRIK, LESS THAN A MILE WEST OF THE TOWN, APPARENTLY HAD ATTEMPTED TO AMBUSH THE CANADIANS.

CANADIAN OFFICERS, WHO DREW NO GERMAN FIRE WHEN THEY PURPOSELY SHOWED THEMSELVES WITHIN 500 YARDS OF THE FORT, DECIDED IT WAS UNOCCUPIED. THE GERMANS OPENED FIRE SUDDENLY, HOWEVER, WHEN THE CANADIAN TROOPS PENETRATED THE OUTER RIM OF THE DEFENSES.

THE TOWN OF SCHOONDIJKE, THREE MILES SOUTH OF BRESKENS, WAS CAPTURED BY CANADIAN INFANTRY.

ACTIVITY ON THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY FRONT WAS LIMITED TO MOPPING UP IN THE WURSELEN AREA NORTHEAST OF AACHEN YESTERDAY.

TO THE SOUTH TROOPS OF THE AMERICAN THIRD ARMY FOUGHT INTO THE VILLAGE OF BEZANGE-LA-PETITE, 19 MILES EAST OF THE FRENCH CITY OF NANCY, BUT WERE FORCED TO WITHDRAW BY DUG-IN GERMAN TANKS. OTHER AMERICAN UNITS HAD REACHED HILL 284, WEST OF MONCOURT, AND HELD TWO-THIRDS OF THE MONCOURT FOREST, BUT HAD NOT YET PENETRATED THE TOWN OF MONCOURT, A FRONT DISPATCH SAID LAST NIGHT.

THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY IN THE WEEK WHICH ENDED LAST FRIDAY CAPTURED 16 GERMAN OFFICERS AND 1,428 ENLISTED MEN, BRINGING ITS TOTAL NUMBER OF PRISONERS SINCE D-DAY, JUNE 6, TO 80,556. IN THE SAME WEEK, THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY TOOK 38 GERMAN OFFICERS AND 2,730 ENLISTED MEN, BRINGING ITS TOTAL SINCE D-DAY TO 77,631.

PARIS, OCT 24-(AP)-FRANCE'S RELATIONS WITH SPAIN, ALREADY DISTURBED BY FRONTIER INCIDENTS AND IDEOLOGICAL FACTORS, WERE STRAINED FURTHER TODAY WHEN THE MADRID RADIO CRITICIZED GEN.CHARLES DE GAULLE FOR NOT PREVENTING SPANISH REPUBLICANS FROM MAKING RAIDS INTO SPAIN FROM FRANCE.
THE BROADCAST, HEARD HERE EVEN WHILE THE AMBASSADORS OF THE UNITED STATES, BRITAIN, RUSSIA AND CANADA WERE OFFICIALLY INFORMING THE DE GAULLE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT OF ITS RECOGNITION BY THEIR COUNTRIES, SAID:
"DE GAULLE MAY NOT SPEAK OF INDEPENDENCE AND SOVEREIGNTY TO GAIN THE RECOGNITION OF THE GREAT POWERS IF HE SHOWS HIMSELF INCAPABLE OF DOMINATING THE SITUATION CREATED BY THE SPANISH REDS."
NEVERTHELESS, DIPLOMATS HERE EXPECT FRANCO SOON TO RECOGNIZE THE DE GAULLE GOVERNMENT.

MAASTRICHT, HOLLAND, OCT 24-(AP)-NEARLY 500,000 DUTCH, MOSTLY VITALLY NEEDED COAL MINERS, ARE FACING A WINTER OF THE MOST CRITICAL FOOD SHORTAGE IN FOUR YEARS OF WAR.
BECAUSE THE GERMANS STRIPPED THE COUNTRY BEFORE RETREATING AND BECAUSE FOOD FOR CIVILIANS IS TIED UP IN THE SAME BOTTLENECK AS ALLIED MILITARY SUPPLIES, THE DUTCH MINERS NOW HAVE LESS FOOD THAN THEY DID DURING GERMAN OCCUPATION.
THIS CITY'S UNOFFICIAL MAYOR, MAJ.LEO SENECAL, FORMER MAYOR OF CHICOPEE, MASS., AND NOW CIVIL AFFAIRS OFFICER FOR THIS DISTRICT, DECLARED THE DUTCH FOOD SITUATION WAS THE WORST IN EUROPE WITH THE EXCEPTION OF GREECE.
TUBERCULOSIS IS DOUBLE THAT OF PREWAR TIMES IN THIS MINING AREA AS THE RESULT OF GERMAN EXPLOITATION OF THE WORKERS.
BESIDES THE SHORTAGE OF FOOD THERE ARE CRITICAL SHORTAGES OF SOAP AND CLOTHING. DESPITE THAT, THIS AREA IS THE CLEANEST AMERICAN TROOPS HAVE BEEN IN. HOUSEWIVES MAKE UP FOR THE LACK OF SOAP BY BACKBREAKING SCRUBBING.

THE JAPANESE LANDED AT CARIGARA ON THE NORTH COAST OF LEYTE THE MORNING OF MAY 26, 1942, COMMANDEERED 78 OF THE PRICE FAMILY'S BUSSES AND ROLLED INTO TACLOBAN THE SAME NIGHT. FOR THE FIRST SEVEN MONTHS THE INVADERS TREATED THE FILIPINOS IN GENERAL WITH DECENCY ALTHOUGH THE PRICES WERE FORCED TO GIVE UP THEIR HOME AS A JAPANESE OFFICERS' CLUB.

THEN THE GUERRILLAS FIRST BECAME ACTIVE AND THE JAPANESEBEGAN MEETING THEIR FIRST IMPORTANT REVERSES IN BATTLE. THE ENEMY CONFISCATED ALL SHORT WAVE RADIOS IN TACLOBAN. THEY IMPRESSED THE SERVICES OF ALL FILIPINOS TWO DAYS WEEKLY. THEY REQUISITIONED FOOD. GRADUALLY, AS SHORTAGES INCREASED, THE VALUES OF THE JAPANESE OCCUPATION PESOS DECLINED UNTIL A WEEK'S WAGES FOR THE AVERAGE FILIPINO WOULD BUY SCARCELY 50 POUNDS OF RICE.

TACLOBAN IS UTTERLY POVERTY STRICKEN. SOME FORTUNATE FAMILIES BOAST A FEW CHICKENS, A FEW PIGS, BUT ALMOST WITHOUT EXCEPTION HOMES ARE RAMSHACKLE AND CLOTHES ARE MAKESHIFT GARMENTS OF FLOUR SACKING OR BURLAP WITH ONLY HERE AND THERE A TATTERED COTTON PRINT DRESS OR WELL PATCHED PAIR OF WHITE DUCK TROUSERS.

DIVISIONS. AND HERE IN THIS CAPITAL CITY CONDITIONS ARE UNLIKE THOSE OF THE BLACK DAYS OF BATAAN AND CORRETIDOR.

IN THOSE TIMES THERE NEVER WAS ANY QUESTION AS TO WHOSE PLANES WERE OVERHEAD OR WHERE THE HEAVY FIRE ORIGINATED. IT WAS ALWAYS THE ENEMY'S.

OCT 25 1944

HERE, ALONG THE ROADS AND OVERHEAD, EVERYTHING IS UNCLE SAM'S. THE PLANES CARRY THE WHITE STAR OF THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCES, NOT THE RED BALL OF JAPAN'S RISING SUN.

DURING OUR LAST DAYS IN THE PHILIPPINES IN 1942 I COULD COUNT ON ONE HAND THE NUMBER OF TRUCKS LEFT, AND AMERICAN AIR STRIKES WERE LIMITED TO THREE OR FOUR FIGHTER PLANES. FOOD FOR US AS WELL AS FOR FILIPINO CIVILIANS WITH US WAS BARELY ENOUGH TO MAINTAIN OUR STRENGTH.

OCT 25 1944

IT'S A DIFFERENT STORY NOW.

THE ROADS ARE JAMMED WITH EQUIPMENT OF ALL TYPES AS SHIPS ALONG THE BEACH DISGORGE MATERIAL IN AN INCREASING FLOW.

NAVY CARRIER PLANES OVERHEAD BACK THE GROUND FIGHTING IN DIVEBOMBINGS AND STRAFINGS UNINTERRUPTED BY JAPANESEINTERCEPTION IN THE AIR OR BY ENEMY ACKACK.

JAPANESE BOMBERS USED TO POUND CORREGIDOR AS MANY AS 15 TIMES A DAY AND I WATCHED OUR OVERWORKED ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNNERS FIRE SHELLS WHICH HADN'T THE RANGE TO REACH THE ENEMY.

ON BATAAN, FILIPINO CIVILIANS COWERED UNDER THE JAPANESE FIRE, OR DRIFTED AIMLESSLY ATTEMPTING TO FLEE.

OCT 25 1944

BUT IN TACLOBAN TODAY AMERICAN SOLDIERS ARE SEIZED IN THE ARMS OF GRATEFUL, THANKFUL FILIPINOS.

IT'S A GOOD FEELING TO RETURN TO THE PHILIPPINES WITH SUCH

OWERFUL FORCE AFTER SEEING OUR HEARTBREAKING, HELLISH DEFEAT ON ATAAN AND CORREGIDOR.

THE RADIOMAN WAS IN GOOD SHAPE WHEN THEY PULLED HIM OUT.

IT WAS THE THIRD TORPEDO HIT SCORED TO DATE IN THE WAR ON THE VESSEL, SKIPPERED BY CAPT.RAY THURBER, OF HOQUIAM,WASH., WHO WAS IN A BARBER'S CHAIR HAVING HIS HAIR CUT WHEN THE ALARM WAS SOUNDED.

BY ORDERING THE SHIP TO BE BACKED, THURBER PROBABLY SAVED IT FROM TAKING A FATAL HIT NEAR THE ENGINE ROOM.

THE TORPEDO HIT PORTSIDE JUST FORWARD OF THE BRIDGE SUPERSTRUCTURE. A FLAMING BLAST SHATTERED THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT CREW'S BERTHING COMPARTMENT AND THE CONCUSSION KILLED VIRTUALLY EVERY ONE THERE.

A JUNIOR MEDICAL OFFICER WAS BADLY BURNED ABOUT THE FACE BUT HE URGED HIS COLLEAGUES, LT.CMDR.JOSEPH M.HANNER, BLOOMINGTON, IND., AND LT.CMDR.BERNERD C.KINGSBURY, SAN FRANCISCO, "DON'T WORRY ABOUT ME."

OCT 25 1944

ONE OF THE SHIP'S HEROS WAS LT.JOHN S.MCANALLY, OF INDIANAPOLIS,IND., ASSISTANT ENGINEER. AFTER ANOTHER MAN FAILED, HE WENT DOWN TO THE SICKBAY AND CLOSED THE SCUTTLE THROUGH WHICH OIL WAS FLOODING.

MARINE CAPT.WILLIAM C.CHIP, OF NEW CASTLE,PA., FORMER BLOCKING BACK FOR THE NAVY FOOTBALL TEAM AT ANNAPOLIS, HELPED CLOSE ALL THE WATERTIGHT DOORS. HE WAS TOPSIDE WHEN THE TORPEDO HIT.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, OCT 25-(AP)-THE GERMAN RADIO REPORTED EARLY TODAY THAT JAPANESE PLANES HAD LAUNCHED LARGE-SCALE ATTACKS TUESDAY AGAINST THE AMERICAN INVASION FLEET IN LEYTE GULF OFF THE PHILIPPINES AND AGAINST A SECOND BATTLE FLEET "IN WATERS NOT FURTHER SPECIFIED."

"THE BATTLE IS STILL GOING ON," THE NAZI BROADCAST SAID, QUOTING A TOKYO DISPATCH, AND ADDED, "BUT NO DETAILS HAVE YET BEEN RELEASED."

THE BROADCAST SAID PLANES OF BOTH THE JAPANESE ARMY AND NAVY HAD JOINED IN THE ATTACK.

THE GERMAN REPORT MENTIONED ONLY AIRCRAFT AND GAVE NO INDICATION THAT THERE HAD YET BEEN AN ENGAGEMENT OF NAVAL UNITS.

HONOLULU, OCT. 24-(AP)-LIEUT.GEN.ROBERT C.RICHARDSON, JR., ARMY COMMANDER OF THE HAWAIIAN DEPARTMENT AND GOV.INGRAM M.STAINBACK OF HAWAII, IN SEPARATE PRESS CONFERENCES TODAY ANNOUNCED THE LIFTING OF MARTIAL LAW IN THE ISLANDS.

THE ACTION BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ALSO RESTORED THE PRIVILEGE OF HABEAS CORPUS. HAWAII HAS BEEN UNDER MARTIAL LAW FOR NEARLY THREE YEARS.

GOV.STAINBACK, WHO HAS WAGED A LONG FIGHT FOR ABOLITION OF MARTIAL LAW IN THE TERRITORY, ANNOUNCED CREATION OF "A MILITARY AREA" SIMILAR TO STRATEGIC REGIONS ON THE UNITED STATES MAINLAND.

"I REJOICE WITH THE CRTIZENS OF THE TERRITORY IN FULL RESTORATION OF THEIR CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS AND OF CIVIL GOVERNMENT," THE GOVERNOR SAID. "HENCEFORTH CIVILIAN OFFENDERS WILL BE TRIED IN CIVIL COURTS IN ACCORDANCE WITH AND SUBJECT TO CONSTITUTIONAL SAFEGUARDS.

"THE WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS X X X IS NOW UNEQUIVOCALLY RESTORED. X X X HAWAII NOW IS ON THE SAME FOOTING AS OTHER AREAS OF THE UNITED STATES SUCH AS THE EAST COAST, WEST COAST, SOUTHERN SEA FRONTIER, AND ALASKA, ALL OF WHICH HAVE BEEN DECLARED MILITARY AREAS BY PRESIDENTIAL ORDER.

"X X X TERMINATION OF MARTIAL LAW DOES NOT ELIMINATE MILITARY REGULATION OR MATTERS RELATED TO MILITARY SECURITY, SUCH AS THOSE GOVERNING THE CURFEW (10 P.M.), RESTRICTED AREAS, ALIEN ACTIVITIES, AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS, ETC., MOST OF WHICH WILL BE CONTINUED IN EFFECT BY NEW ORDERS PROMULGATED BY THE COMMANDING GENERAL (RICHARDSON) X X X AND BE ENFORCED EXCLUSIVELY IN THE CIVIL COURTS X X X."

WASHINGTON,OCT 24-(AP)-AMERICAN BUSINESSMEN QUICKENED THEIR INTEREST IN FRANCE TODAY, ANTICIPATING A TRADE RESUMPTION WITH THAT WAR-BATTERED COUNTRY AS A RESULT OF RECOGNITION OF THE DE GAULLE GOVERNMENT. BUT THEY WERE CAUTIONED BY VARIOUS GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS NOT TO EXPECT NORMAL COMMERCIAL CHANNELS TO OPEN UP RIGHT AWAY.

FOREIGN ECONOMIC ADMINISTRATION OFFICIALS SAID TRANSPORTATION IS SO SCARCE, AND CONDITIONS IN FRANCE SO UNSETTLED, THAT IT WOULD BE REMARKABLE IF MANY AMERICAN BUSINESSMEN ARE ABLE TO VISIT FRANCE SOON.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT SAID YESTERDAY IT WOULD RECEIVE APPLICATIONS FOR PASSPORTS UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS BUT POINTED OUT THAT TRANSPORTATION IS MEAGER.

APPLICANTS WHO MEET THE STATE DEPARTMENT TESTS MUST STILL OBTAIN VISAS FROM THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT. IF THESE ARE GRANTED, THERE IS THE MATTER OF ARMY APPROVAL. BUSINESS TRIPS WON'T BE ALLOWED TO CROWD OUT MILITARY TRAVEL.

AFTER A MAN GETS TO FRANCE, HE'LL FIND CONDITIONS HARD, THE FEA OFFICIALS SAID. NEVERTHELESS, A LARGE NUMBER OF APPLICATIONS FOR PASSPORTS [illegible] EXPECTED.

A SPOT CHECK AT THE TREASURY AND STATE DEPARTMENTS, FEA, AND OTHER SOURCES PRODUCED THIS GENERAL PICTURE OF THE FUTURE:

AS FOR THE ACTUAL START OF PRIVATE TRADE DEALS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES, THIS CAN'T COME IMMEDIATELY, SINCE THE WAR STILL RAGES AND FRENCH ASSETS IN THIS COUNTRY ARE FROZEN.

OCT 25 1944

WHEN CONDITIONS ARE MORE SETTLED, THE UNITED STATES WILL NOT BE ABLE TO RESTORE PRIVATE TRADE BY ITS OWN DECISION. THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT MUST AGREE TO IT.

THE FIRST STEP PROBABLY WILL BE TO LIFT THE RESTRICTION AGAINST THE FREE EXCHANGE OF BUSINESS INFORMATION BETWEEN THE U.S. AND FRANCE.

RECOGNITION OF THE DE GAULLE REGIME AS A PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT WON'T IMMEDIATELY CHANGE THE MILITARY LEND-LEASE PICTURE. FOR A LONG TIME WE HAVE BEEN SUPPLYING REGULAR FRENCH TROOPS WITH VIRTUALLY ALL OF THEIR EQUIPMENT.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT IS LIKELY FOR SUPPLYING ESSENTIAL CIVILIAN NEEDS IN FRANCE. THESE BASIC NEEDS IN NORTH AFRICA HAVE BEEN SUPPLIED THROUGH LEND-LEASE FACILITIES BUT PAID FOR IN CASH UNDER A SPECIAL AGREEMENT WITH THE FRENCH.

AT PRESENT, THE ARMY IS TAKING CARE OF ESSENTIAL CIVILIAN NEEDS IN FRANCE PROPER. SOME SUCH AGREEMENT AS THE ONE IN NORTH AFRICA MAY BE MADE, WITH FRANCE PAYING IN CASH FROM HER FUNDS IN THIS COUNTRY.

BY RUSSELL BRINES
ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR EDITOR
JAPAN'S ACROBATIC PROPAGANDISTS HAVE BETRAYED A GLARING DEFEAT FOR JAPANESE STRATEGY IN THE AIR BATTLE OF FORMOSA, THE ESSENTIAL PRELUDE TO THE PHILIPPINE CAMPAIGN.
BY ADMITTING FINALLY THAT THE PHILIPPINE INVASION HAS PLACED THE EMPIRE ON THE DEFENSIVE, TOKYO'S APOLOGISTS HAVE COMPLETED ONE OF THEIR MOST REMARKABLE AND REVEALING FLIP-FLOPS.
IN ESSENCE, THEIR FULSOME REPORTS INDICATE THAT THE JAPANESE EXPECTED THEIR LAND-BASED BOMBERS FROM FORMOSA TO DEAL THE CRIPPLING BLOW AGAINST AMERICAN NAVAL UNITS WHICH CARRIER PLANES FAILED TO MAKE IN THE ABORTIVE ATTACK OFF SAIPAN LAST JUNE.
ON BOTH OPERATIONS, A FLEET WAS READY TO MOVE IN FOR THE SURFACE KILL, IF THE INITIAL AERIAL ATTACK WERE SUCCESSFUL.
EACH TIME THE NAVAL UNITS WITHDREW WHEN AMERICAN FORCES EMERGED FROM THE SHOWER OF BOMBERS WITH UNIMPAIRED STRENGTH.
FORMOSAN COMMANDERS EVIDENTLY CALLED THE IMPERIAL FLEET FROM ITS BASE AFTER THE AMERICAN ATTACK BEGAN ON THE ISLAND. THUS THEY STILL WERE CONFIDENT THAT AIR POWER COULD SOFTEN THE INVADERS FOR A RELATIVELY CHEAP NAVAL VICTORY, EVEN AFTER THEIR FIRST COUNTERATTACKS HAD BEEN HAMMERED DOWN.
THE AMERICAN VICTORY OFF FORMOSA CLEARED THE WAY FOR THE PHILIPPINE OFFENSIVE. IT ALSO SMASHED THE LAST JAPANESE HOPES THAT THEY COULD HALT ROAMING AMERICAN NAVAL POWER BY AERIAL ASSAULT ALONE. FORMOSA IS PERHAPS THE MOST FORMIDABLE NIPPONESE BASTION OUTSIDE THE HOMELAND.

OCT 25 1944

IF THE ISLAND'S LAND-BASED BOMBERS COULD NOT DENT AMERICAN NAVAL POWER, EVEN JAPANESE COMMANDERS MUST BE CONVINCED BY NOW THAT THEY MUST RUSK THEIR FLEET IN A HEAD-ON COLLISION OR SUFFER MORE DIRECT AND HUMILIATING U.S.TASK FORCE ASSAULTS.
TOKYO'S PROPAGANDISTS OUTLINED THE HIGH COMMAND'S FAITH IN LAND-BASED AIR POWER BY "ELIMINATING" THE U.S. FLEET AS SOON AS THE FORMOSA ATTACK BEGAN. THEY HAVE "SUNK" THE AMERICAN NAVY MANY TIMES BEFORE, BUT ALWAYS AS A LAST-DITCH EXPLANATION FOR THEIR OWN DEFEATS; NEVER AT THE START OF A CAMPAIGN.
HAVING SCOOPED THEMSELVES, THE PROPAGANDISTS WERE OBLIGED TO MAINTAIN THEIR ORIGINAL LINE, WITH MODIFICATIONS, IN ORDER TO SAVE "FACE." THAT GOT THEM INTO THE EMBARRASSING POSITION OF ANNOUNCING THE PHILIPPINE INVASION 48 HOURS AFTER THEY CLAIMED IT HAD BEEN DELAYED FOR "AT LEAST TWO MONTHS."

Roosevelt Announces Victory—All Japanese Fleet Involved in Fight.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Imperial Japanese fleet, which raced out of its hiding places to present a massive challenge to American liberation of the Philippines, has been defeated heavily damaged, and put to flight in what may be one of the decisive naval battles of all time, a series of historic announcements declared tonight.

A message from Admiral William F. Halsey to President Roosevelt said that the enemy has been "defeated, seriously damaged and routed." Fragmentary reports filtering in from other sources presented this picture:

Five Japanese battleships damaged, with some possibility sunk. An aircraft carrier sunk. Several cruisers and destroyers sunk and others badly damaged.

(A dispatch from C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press war correspondent at Seventh Fleet headquarters, said the Japanese left one Yamasiro class battleship abandoned and sinking. There are two ships of this class, the Huso and the Yamasiro, built in 1914 and 1915. They are 29,300 tons and carry 14-inch guns.)

American losses so far made public were the light carrier Princeton, an escort carrier, and several P.T. boats sunk and a number of planes lost; several escort carriers and destroyers damaged.

It was obvious, however, that so much of the full story remained to be told that these tabulations would undergo extensive revision.

The OWI picked up a special statement from General Douglas MacArthur, as transmitted by the signal corps, which said:

"The Japanese navy has received its most crushing defeat of the war. Its future efforts can only be on a dwindling scale."

If so, the battle of the Philippines may be ranked in this war, as was the Battle of Jutland in World War 1, as the decisive naval engagement of the conflict.

Immediate results for the United States certainly were an easing of the problem of maintaining and supplying the ground forces in the Philippines—and perhaps the opening of the way, without any serious enemy naval challenge, to the east coast of China.

As first word of the American disaster at Pearl Harbor came from the White House, so also came an announcement of the Japanese defeat.

FDR Announces Victory

President Roosevelt called reporters to his office at 5:18 p.m. and read them this announcement:

"The President received today a report from Admiral Halsey that the Japanese navy in the Philippine area has been defeated, seriously damaged and routed by the United States navy in that area."

Although Admiral Halsey referred to the enemy navy in "the Philippine area," Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet, already had told reporters that this apparently included "practically all of the Japanese fleet."

Obviously elated, the President told the reporters the news of the Japanese defeat had just reached him through the Navy department and his Military Chief of staff, Admiral William D. Leahy.

Sitting in shirt sleeves before a desk piled with work, Mr. Roosevelt first said he had called them in because he wanted to give them a flash.

"And it is a flash," he added.

Six reporters were on duty in the White House news room when Presidential secretary Stephen Early shouted for them to hustle into the presidential office.

First indications were the engagement did not bring heavy surface ships into a slugging match with their big guns but was brought entirely by air blows and light vessels.

Battleships Slug It Out

However, McDaniel reported that American battleships engaged in 25 minutes of broadside exchange off Samar with a Japanese force which included at least four battleships.

The Japanese units approached in two major elements with a third large enemy force of land based planes attacking the American fleet.

It was the enemy land-based planes which mortally wounded the Princeton, a communique from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said.

He reported that the Princeton was severly damaged Monday (U.S. Time). Later her magazines exploded and she was sunk by U. S. fire. Her captain and 133 other officers and 1,227 enlisted men were rescued. The Princeton carried a crew of about 1,500. Nimitz reported 150 Japanese planes destroyed.

A communique from MacArthur as broadcast over the Army Signal Corps radio and reported by OWI gave the following account of the defeat of the two-pronged Nipponese naval thrust:

"The Japanese fleet in force during the early hours of the 25th sortied from Philippine waters through Surigao straits at the south and San Bernadino straits at the north and converged upon our forces in Leyte gulf. The Seventh Fleet with elements of the Australian squadron under Vice Admiral Kincaid and with surface forces supported by escort carriers intercepted both attacks. The enemy's southern force, comprising two battleships, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser and four destroyers, was completely routed, losing early in the action at least one battleship of the Yamashiro class and several cruisers and destroyers.

Blasted from Air

"The remnant retreated westward through Surigao straits under continued air attacks from our escort carriers, which inflicted additional losses and damage.

"Every hostile ship was either sunk or heavily damaged. In this enegagement we incurred extremely light losses, having several PT boats sunk or damaged and one destroyer damaged.

"The enemy's northern force, four battleships and several cruisers with destroyers, gained contact with one of our escort carriers groups off the east coast of Samar and attacked by gunfire. Our planes from that group, supported by those of another of our group, drove off the attacking fleet, forcing it to retire to the north.

"Detailed information is not yet available, but combat reports indicate that the enemy lost several cruisers and destroyers while three battleships, three cruisers and additional destroyers were badly damaged.

"Ships casualties sustained by our forces were one escort carrier sunk and several escort carriers and destroyers damaged."

Navy Confident

While the naval battle was in progress, the navy high command spoke confidently of its probable outcome and left no doubt that they held high hopes that the backbone of Japanese seapower might be broken once and for all.

King, at his mid-afternoon conference, said only fragmentary information has been received here on the battle and made clear that he was not going to harass the men on the spot by requests for fuller reports.

"We are following the rule of not saying 'how are you going?' But letting them do it," he said.

From Rear Admiral J. J. Clark, who has fought the Japanese throughout the western Pacific, came the comment, "I'm not worried about the outcome."

Clark, who has just returned from commanding task force groups in raids on the Bonins and Formosa, said the navy now has enough power in the Pacific so that "we can go where we want to go when we want to go."

Clark was introduced at a newe conference by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal as the Admiral who has had the most actual time with carrier task forces in the Pacific.

King said that at least one of the three divisions of the Japanese fleet had turned back after moving eastward through the central Philippines but observed that this did not mean it would stay turned back.

In Narrow Waters

He called it "quite remarkable" that the Japanese should have brought their fleet into the relatively narrow waters of the central Philippines and indicated a belief that at least some of the units were attempting to return to Japanese home waters from the East Indies. He said a route through the Philippines is the shortest way for such a trip.

Suggesting that the enemy group first sighted in the west central Philippines may have come from Singapore, King said "they certainly came from the South China Sea somewhere."

Also attending Forrestal's newe conference was Vice Admiral Frederick J. Horne, vice chief of naval operations, who said that the problem of moving supplies and materials to the fighting fronts has been met satisfactorily in the Pacific area despite the handicaps of small bases.

He also said a new principle of movement of ammunition has been developed which makes it possible for a fighting ship to replenish power and shells while at sea.

30. 24 — 19867

London, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—Gen. MacArthur said tonight that the Japanese fleet has suffered the "most crushing defeat of the war," Reuters news agency reported. The agency quoted a special statement from Leyte as saying that the Japanese southern force, comprising two battleships, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser and four destroyers, had been completely routed.

OCT 26 1944

Three-pronged Sea Battle.

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 25 (A. P.) —Carrier planes of the American Third Fleet have sunk a large Jap carrier, damaged two other large carriers, five or six battleships, one cruiser and several other unidentified warships in a great three-pronged naval battle which is still continuing near the Philippines.

The U. S. S. Princeton, a light carrier in Admiral William F. Halsey's force, was lost when, already badly crippled, her magazines exploded and she had to be sunk by American ships.

No mention was made in the 1:30 A. M. communique issued by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz of any great sea battle between American fleet units and the Japanese fleet, as claimed by the Japanese radio since late yesterday.

[A Tokyo broadcast recorded by the FCC claimed the Jap fleet caught an American task force twenty-five miles east of the Philippines and sank eleven ships and damaged five others. Tokyo admitted loss of three Jap warships.

[Tokyo said today in a broadcast, recorded by CBS, that the engagement is still continuing and added that Jap naval units expect to inflict further heavy losses on the Americans.]

The Princeton's captain, 133 other officers and 1,227 enlisted men were saved. The complement of the light (Jeep) carrier is not listed but probably is around 1,500.

In addition to the fleet units sunk or damaged, the Japanese lost 150 planes.

The actions began Monday afternoon (United States time), extended throughout Tuesday, and general "action is continuing," Admiral Nimitz said.

Admiral Nimitz said a strong force of land-based Jap planes attacked one American task group Monday and succeeded in seriously damaging the Princeton, which is the first American carrier lost since the Liscombe Bay went down in flames off the Marshall Islands in early December, 1943.

Approximately 150 of these enemy planes were shot down during the attack, Admiral Nimitz said.

Japs Try to Surprise Yanks.

The Japs—obviously attempting a surprise three-pronged attack which they hoped would catch Admiral Halsey's force concentrating on Jap battleships and cruisers in the Sibuyan and Sulu seas—sent a third force from Formosa.

This group included at least three carriers. However, there was no indication in the communique that any Jap carrier planes were launched against the Third Fleet, which possibly achieved surprise instead in its crippling attack on the Imperial Navy ships.

It was from this carrier force that Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's planes sunk "at least one large carrier and severely damaged two others."

Admiral Nimitz said reports of this carrier action south of Formosa are as yet incomplete, indicating the Third Fleet may have inflicted additional severe damage upon the enemy.

OCT 26 1944

The engagement began when carrier search planes discovered two eenmy forces heading eastward Monday through the Sibuyan and Sulu seas, ostensibly intending to bombard Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ground forces on Leyte Island. One force consisted of three or four battleships, ten cruisers and about thirteen destroyers.

Planes Attack Repeatedly.

Repeated attacks by carrier aircraft indicate that every battleship was damaged by bombs, that at least one was torpedoed and one cruiser was torpedoed.

The second force was sighted southwest of Negros Island in the Sulu Sea in the southwestern Philippines. It consisted of two battleships, one cruiser and four destroyers. Both battleships were damaged by bombs and the light units were strafed.

There was no hint in the communique whether the Jap battleships were of the older, slower classes or their new heavily armed and armored battlewagons which possibly have yet to see action.

The Japs probably would not risk their better battleships in such comparatively tight spots as these inland seas and without carrier protection or a stronger land-based air force than was indicated by their attack on the Princeton task group.

Seventh United States Carrier Sunk

The Princeton is the seventh carrier lost by the United States. The carriers Lexington, Yorktown and Hornet were lost in the battles of the Coral Sea, Midway and Santa Cruz, respectively. The Wasp went down to submarine torpedoes in the South Pacific. The escort carrier Liscombe Bay was torpedoed by land-based Japanese aircraft while Mitscher's force was attacking Wotje and Jaluit atolls in neutralizing raids six weeks before American amphibious forces captured the Marshall Islands. The escort carrier Block Island has also been sunk.

The Princeton was converted from a 10,000-ton light cruiser into a carrier after construction was started. She was launched October 18, 1942, and commissioned last year.

She carried about 45 combat aircraft, which could have landed on accompanying carriers.

The Princeton, of the Independence class, was rated at 33 knots and was equipped to carry any type carrier planes—dive bomber, torpedo or fighter.

OCT 26 1944

New Skipper Recently Assigned

A fleet spokesman said the name of the Princeton's captain was not announced because a new skipper had been assigned to her and it was not known whether he had taken charge or whether the retiring captain was still aboard.

Destruction of 150 Japanese planes increased the aircraft toll exacted of the Japanese by the Halsey-Mitscher forces since about September 1 to between 2,425 and 2,435.

From August 1 to date, 245 Japanese ships have been sunk, 56 probably sunk and 298 others damaged, a total of 589, exclusive of small craft.

United States forces have sunk at least 11 Japanese carriers of all classes and damaged at least eight others. Two enemy flattops were destroyed in the battle of the Coral Sea, four at Midway, one at Santa Cruz, one in the Philippines Sea, one in the current Formosa action and two by submarines.

Admiral Nimitz never has reported whether any of Japan's six new battleships participated in the June 16-19 sea battle northeast of the Philippines which cost the Japs nearly a score of warships sunk or damaged. Unless they figured in that rout or are accompanying the Imperial task force so badly crippled southeast of Formosa yesterday, they have not yet participated in any fleet engagement in this war.

Japs Seen Taking Chance.

Presumably short on air support after that devastating blow, Japan's attempt to move heavily armed warships into the tricky inland seas of the central and southern Philippines may well prove a bold attempt to bombard Gen. MacArthur's troops on the opposite, or east, shore of Leyte.

Naval units of Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kincaid's Seventh Fleet and the Australian Navy likely would be prevented by the narrow and treacherous passages from closing with the Japs in a surface engagement in the inland Philippines Sea. American bombers and torpedo planes could level tremendous attacks on enemy warships.

Tokyo may have surmised that Admiral Halsey's Third Fleet, which roamed the Western Pacific for two months striking devastating blows, had retired already from the Philippines invasion area because of supply problems.

Admiral Halsey, aboard his flagship, said earlier in the week "we may have to go in and dig the Japanese fleet out, but one way or another we will destroy it."

VICTORY IS REPORTED BY ROOSEVELT, THREE ENEMY GROUPS ENGAGED

OCT 26 1944

Southern Unit Flees, Leaving Battleship Sinking. Large Carrier Bagged Off Formosa. Small American Flattop Lost

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt called a special press conference at 5.18 P. M. today at which he announced that "the President received today a report from Admiral Halsey that the Japanese navy in the Philippine area has been defeated, seriously damaged and routed by the United States Navy in that area."

Here briefly appears to be the still-developing situation in the Philippines-Formosa naval-air battles:

The Japanese sent two fleet groups eastward from the Sulu and Sibuyan seas against invaded Leyte, in the central Philippines. A third fleet group moved down from Formosa.

Kinkaid Battles Two; Halsey Third

Although outnumbered, Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid split up his Seventh Fleet to engage the two groups moving toward Leyte.

OCT 26 1944

Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet carrier planes took on the third group approaching from Formosa.

Kinkaid's forces won and sizable results, including sinking a Jap battleship, have been announced. Reports are somewhat meager on the Formosa action although Admiral Chester W. Nimitz has reported from Pearl Harbor the definite sinking of a large Nipponese carrier and two others damaged.

Jap Fleet Comes Out In Showdown Philippine Fight

OCT 26 1944

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Japanese fleet has finally come out to fight and apparently is locked in a do-or-die battle with powerful American forces in the Philippine area.

The Japanese claimed excitedly that they had sunk 11 and damaged five American ships in the first two days of battle, but Admiral Nimitz reported only the loss of the United States light aircraft carrier Princeton, and said United States had damaged five or six Nipponese battleships, a cruiser and several other vessels, and had shot down 150 enemy planes.

Lists Three Jap Forces

He said two strong enemy naval forces were heading eastward through the central Philippines, and that another force of Japanese shore-based aircraft had given battle resulting in the loss of the Princeton.

The positions given for the enemy forces indicated the Japanese finally had sent out sizable fleet units which were trying to make a double end run around Leyte, on the north and south ends of the island. They came from the west, the side opposite that on which Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces landed.

NIGHT

Jap Version To Australia

The Japanese said their fleet on Monday (United States time) caught an American task force 25 miles east of the Philippines, where they claimed the sinking or damaging of the American ships.

Their version of that battle, given in an English broadcast to Australia and picked up in part by the Federal Communications Commission, said Japanese aircraft discovered the American force and began the attack and that Nipponese naval forces joined the battle Tuesday.

The broadcast said the Nipponese sank four American carriers, two cruisers and a destroyer, and heard the Americans sending a radio call for help as they fled. It did not list all of the 16 ships claimed as casualties. There was no official mention in the United States communique of any ship losses besides the Princeton.

Admiral Nimitz indicated that both the enemy fleets approaching Leyte had been heavily damaged by carrier forces of the American Third Fleet under Admiral William F. Halsey.

Found By Search Planes

Search planes found the first enemy fleet, composed of three or four battleships, 10 cruisers and 13 destroyers, moving eastward through the Sibuyan Sea, as if intending to approach Leyte from the northwest. Nimitz said incomplete information indicated that all the battleships were hit by American bombs and that one cruiser was torpedoed.

Halsey's planes found the second enemy fleet, two battleships, a cruiser and four destroyers, in the Sulu Sea, apparently heading northeastward toward Leyte. Nimitiz reported both battleships were hit by bombs and that other ships were severely strafed.

The Princeton got caught by shore-based Japanese aircraft Monday and was severely damaged. Later her magazines exploded and she was sunk by United States fire. Her captain and 133 other officers and 1,227 enlisted men were rescued. Presumably she carried a crew of about 1,500.

Nothing On Surface Battle

Although the Japanese asserted that naval surface units had been in action against each other, there was nothing in the Nimitz reports to bear this out.

It was said unofficially that the shallow water and narrow passages between Leyte and other islands to the north, south and east did not permit heavy naval units to move eastward to meet the Japanese naval elements. The enemy, however, was in position to approach the island from the west.

May Rely On Carrier Aircraft

This indicated the Americans probably would rely on carrier aircraft to fight off the Japanese naval threat from the east of Leyte.

Just how the Nipponese navy expects to get at the American landing force established mainly on the east coast of Leyte was not apparent. The island is 15 miles across at its narrowest east-west part—too wide for effective shelling by naval guns.

Two Jap Forces Are Put To Flight By Kinkaid Fleet

By C. YATES McDANIEL

Seventh Fleet Headquarters, Philippines, Thursday, Oct. 26 (AP). Japan lost the first, and possibly the decisive, round in an all-out battle to halt on the Philippines line the American advance toward the Japanese home islands.

This occurred early yesterday morning when Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's outnumbered fleet battered and put to rout Japanese battle forces converging on Leyte Gulf.

Complete results are lacking as the action is continuing, with planes from Kinkaid's hurt but still fighting carrier force hitting the surviving enemy warships as they are retiring westward through the straits south of invaded Leyte.

Army's Fate Involved

The fate of the American Army ashore at Leyte hung in a precarious balance for an hour Wednesday morning as Kinkaid executed his daring decision to take on two attacking enemy forces at once with his outnumbered fleet.

The admiral threw half his battleships and a strong flotilla of patrol torpedo boats against the enemy force steaming into Leyte Gulf from the southwest.

Other American battleships went to the support of Admiral Kinkaid's carrier force, which already was under heavy attack off Samar Island by a Japanese fleet led by at least four battleships and a heavy cruiser. This fleet had many destroyers.

NIGHT

25 Minutes Of Broadsides

After 25 minutes of broadside exchange and closely pressed destroyer strikes, the Japanese forces which approached from the southwest began withdrawing, leaving one Yamashiro-class battleship abandoned and sinking and several cruisers and destroyers sunk.

The Americans lost only a few patrol torpedo boats. Some larger vessels were damaged.

Kinkaid's other battleship force reached the critically threatened carriers just in time. Kinkaid's own carrier planes heavily damaged three battleships and three cruisers and the battered remnants of the enemy retired to the northwest.

OCT 26 1944

Called Crushing Defeat

"The Japanese navy has received its most crushing defeat of the war," said a statement by Gen. Douglas MacArthur. "Its future efforts can only be on a dwindling scale."

The statement was preceded by a communique, which said:

"The Japanese fleet in force during the early hours of the 25th sortied from Philippine waters through Surigao Straits at the south and San Bernadino Straits at the north and converged upon our forces in Leyte Gulf.

"The Seventh Fleet, with elements of the Australian squadron under Vice-Admiral Kinkaid, and with surface forces supported by escort carriers intercepted both attacks.

Japs Lose Battleship

"The enemy's southern force, comprising two battleships, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser and

He reported that at least one of the three divisions of the Japanese fleet had been turned back as it moved eastward through the central Philippines but added this does not mean it will stay turned back.

Presumably the Japanese "don't like" the Leyte landings by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces and are "going to interfere with them" if possible, Admiral King asserted.

He said that with the fighting still under way in the Philippines, "we are following the rule of not saying 'how are you doing' but letting them do it."

OCT 26 1944

Shortest Route Taken.

Admiral King said that he considered it "quite remarkable" that the Japanese should have brought their surface units through the narrow waters of straits in the central Philippines, where the maneuvering area is restricted. In that connection, he implied that at least a part of the force was endeavoring to return closer to the Japanese homeland from the East Indies area, saying that a route through the Philippines was the shortest way for such a trip to be made.

One of the three groups first was sighted by American submarines in the west central Philippines, the Admiral reported, and the inference is that they were en route from Singapore, though there is no definite evidence to support that opinion. "They certainly came from the South China Sea somewhere," he said.

SCORE OVER JAPAN IN SEA FIGHTS HIGH

750 of Foe's Naval Craft Sunk or Damaged Up to This Week —All U. S. Losses 195

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—At least 750 Japanese naval craft have been sunk or damaged since Pearl Harbor against total American losses in all oceans of 195 warships of all types.

These unofficial figures include 342 Japanese ships definitely sunk, forty-six probably sunk and 362 damaged. American naval losses are 148 lost, thirty-eight overdue and presumed lost and nine destroyed to prevent capture.

A box score of Japanese and American losses in major Pacific engagements prior to this week's continuing action:

Java Sea, February, 1942

United States—Lost 1 cruiser, 7 destroyers, 1 aircraft tender, 1 auxiliary.
Japan—Lost, 1 cruiser, 1 destroyer; damaged, 1 cruiser, 3 destroyers.

Coral Sea, May 4-8, 1942

United States—Lost, 1 aircraft carrier, 1 destroyer, 1 auxiliary; minor damage to other ships.
Japan—Lost, 1 carrier, 2 cruisers, 2 destroyers, 6 miscellaneous craft; damaged, 1 carrier, 2 cruisers, 3 miscellaneous.

Midway, June 4-6, 1942

United States—Lost, 1 carrier, 1 destroyer.
Japan—Lost, 4 carriers, 2 cruisers, 3 destroyers; damaged, 3 battleships, 4 cruisers, several destroyers, 3 miscellaneous craft.

Savo Island, Aug. 8-9, 1942

United States—Sunk 3 cruisers.
Japan—Unknown.

Eastern Solomons, Aug. 23-25, 1942.

United States—Damaged, 1 carrier.
Japan—Lost, 1 auxiliary; damaged, 1 battleship, 2 carriers, several cruisers, 1 destroyer, 5 miscellaneous.

Esperance, Oct. 11-12, 1942

United States—Lost, 1 destroyer; damaged, 2 cruisers.
Japan—Lost, 4 cruisers, 4 destroyers; probably sunk, 1 destroyer; damaged, 1 cruiser.

Santa Cruz, Oct. 26, 1942

United States—Lost, 1 aircraft carrier, 1 destroyer; damaged, 1 carrier, 1 battleship, 1 cruiser.
Japan—Damaged, 1 battleship, 3 carriers, 5 cruisers.

Guadalcanal, Nov. 13-15, 1942

United States—Lost, 2 cruisers, 7 destroyers; damaged, 2 cruisers, 1 battleship.
Japan—Lost, 2 battleships, 8 cruisers, 6 destroyers, 12 miscellaneous; damaged, 2 battleships, 1 cruiser, 7 destroyers.

Lunga Point, Nov. 30-Dec. 1, 1942

United States—Lost, 1 cruiser; damaged 3 cruisers.
Japan—Lost, 2 cruisers or large destroyers, 4 destroyers, 3 miscellaneous.

Kula Gulf, July 6, 1943

United States—Lost, 2 destroyers, 1 cruiser; damaged, 2 cruisers.
Japan—Probably sunk, at least 6 ships; damaged, several war craft.

Philippine Sea, June 18, 1944

United States—None.
Japan—Lost, 1 carrier, 3 miscellaneous; damaged, 3 carriers, 1 battleship, 1 cruiser, 3 destroyers, 2 miscellaneous.

Naval Battle Ends 2 Years Of Dares to Japan's Fleet

U. S. Chiefs Tried Many Times to Make It Come Out

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP).—The great naval battle raging in the Philippines marks the realization of the American Navy high command's hopes that the Japanese fleet would come out and fight.

By word and deed, ever since the losses of Pearl Harbor were made good, the United States has hurled challenge after challenge at the enemy. On the record:

Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet—

Dec. 30, 1943—"We've done several things to get them out and we are going to do several more in an endeavor to get them out."

June 21, 1944—"The sooner the Japanese fleet fights the better

Washington, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—Admiral Ernest J. King, Naval Commander in Chief, said today that "practically all the Japanese fleet, is included in the battle raging in the Philippines area.

Admiral King said at a news conference that information on progress of the battle throughout the area is fragmentary but indicated that he was not concerned about the outcome.

we'll be satisfied."

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific Fleet, on March 8, 1944: "It would be to our advantage to have an early encounter with the Japanese fleet. It would be disastrous to their overseas communications if they lost a good part of their fleet."

Admiral William F. Halsey Jr., commander of the 3d Fleet—

Dec. 7, 1943—In review of second year of war: "We shall have offensives . . . take back what was ours originally is just the start. Each of us has an appointment in Tokyo."

Jan. 7, 1944—When asked if the Pacific offensive would reach its peak this year, "I hope so."

Jan. 11, 1944—"They're not willing to come out and fight like they did in the first place."

Princeton Launched 2 Years Ago At Camden

Philadelphia, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Princeton, light carrier sunk after an engagement with the Japanese fleet off the Philippines, was built at the New York Shipbuilding Company yards at near-by Camden, N. J.

The vessel was launched October 23, 1942, and commissioned at the Philadelphia Navy Yard on February 23, 1943. Her sponsor was Mrs. Harold Dodds, wife of the president of Princeton University.

"She is the first of her class to be sunk and the seventh United States carrier to be sent down in the course of the war," the Fourth Naval District said.

"The others were the old Hornet, Wasp, Yorktown and Lexington, all sunk in early phases of the war, and the CVE's or escort carriers Liscombe Bay and Block Island, both sent down more recently.

"Sinking of the Princeton marks the first announced loss of a United States fleet unit of any size in nearly a year. The entire European and Pacific invasions were carried out without the loss of any combatant ships larger than destroyers."

The Princeton, a navy spokesman added, was the second of her class of nine light carriers, all built by New York Ship. The first, from which the class takes its name, was the Independence.

In Many Engagements

In New York Third Naval District headquarters said that the Princeton had taken part in more engagements with the Japanese than any other carrier of her class up to the Marianas Island operations.

An announcement released there said that American Hellcat fighters made their Pacific debut from the Princeton's decks when the vessel covered unopposed troop landings at Baker Island September 1, 1943.

In the next twelve days the Princeton's planes shot down a number of the first Japanese "Emily" reconnaissance planes encountered in the Pacific and made the first photographs of the four-motored enemy bomber for the fleet.

At Makin And Tarawa

Later the Princeton's air group was part of a task force striking Makin and Tarawa. During American landings at Empress Augusta Bay, planes from the vessel made four strikes in a two-day attack by carrier-based aviation that grounded Japanese planes at Buka and Bonis airfields in the northern Solomons.

The Princeton's Avenger torpedo planes scored hits on two cruisers and a destroyer and her fighters shot down ten planes in attacking a Japanese ship concentration at Rabaul November 5, 1943. Returning six days later, the carrier's air group figured in another Rabaul raid credited with eliminating Simpson harbor as a Japanese shipping haven.

Nine Strikes In 19 Days

Fourteen days later the vessel steamed north to Nauru, where her planes made airport runways untenable, while other units of a task force supported landings at Tarawa and Makin.

PACIFIC BATTLE MAY BE GREATEST IN NAVAL HISTORY

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—(AP) The engagement between United States and Japanese naval forces off the Philippines was probably the greatest sea engagement in history in its array of striking power—airplanes and surface firepower of the units involved.

Earlier naval battles in World war 2 include:

Dec. 12, 1939—Germany's Admiral Graf Spee mortally damaged in 14-hour running battle with three British cruisers off Montevideo, Uruguay. Five days later the battleship was scuttled by its crew rather than resume fighting outside the zone of Uruguayan neutrality.

May 24, 1941—British battle cruiser Hood sunk with magazine hit by German battleship Bismarck between Greenland and Iceland. British, with scouting planes and pursuing force of 14 ships, overtook Bismarck May 27 about 400 miles off Brest and sank her with aerial bombs and guns and torpedo fire.

Dec. 7, 1941—Japanese, with 105 carrier-based bombers, attacked 86 United States fleet units at Pearl Harbor. Five battleships and numerous lighter craft heavily damaged.

Dec. 10, 1941—British battleships Prince of Wales and Repulse sunk by Japanese aircraft off Malaya.

March 2-3, 1942—Battle of Bismarck sea, in which U. S. land-based aircraft and naval units sank or damaged all of a force of 10 Japanese cruisers and destroyers and 12 transports, with estimated loss of 15,000 Japanese troops.

May 4-9, 1942—Battle of Coral Sea, in which Japanese lost aircraft carrier, a heavy cruiser, a light cruiser, two destroyers and four gunboats, and suffered damages to six other vessels, including a heavy cruiser and an aircraft carrier. The U. S. lost the aircraft carrier Lexington, the destroyer Sims and a tanker.

June 3, 1942—Battle of Midway—an engagement entirely restricted to air attack on opposing fleet units. Japanese lost four aircraft carriers, two heavy cruisers, three destroyers, a transport and 275 aircraft. Three Japanese battleships, two heavy cruisers, a light cruiser and three transports damaged. U. S. lost carrier Yorktown and destroyer Hammann, and an estimated 50 planes.

Nov. 13-15—Battle of Solomons in which U. S. naval forces defeated Japanese seeking to reinforce Guadalcanal, inflicting loss of battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers and 10 transports, plus 75 aircraft. U. S. losses, two cruisers and seven destroyers.

Dec. 26, 1943—German battleship Sharnhorst sunk with 1,404 of crew on Murmansk route after engagement with British home fleet units including Duke of York, cruiser Norfolk, and four destroyers.

June 19, 1944—Carrier aircraft of U. S. Fifth fleet sank or damaged 14 ships of Japanese naval force, including four carriers, a battleship, a cruiser, and three destroyers. Three tankers and at least one large Japanese carrier sunk. Previous day, in air battle off Saipan, U. S. carrier planes and warships shot down 353 enemy planes.

Sept. 8-11, 1944—Carrier-based planes of U. S. Third Fleet destroyed 501 Japanese planes and sank or damaged 173 surface craft in four days of raids off Philippines. Surface craft included none of Japan's fleet units larger than destroyer escorts.

Japanese Claim Sinking Of Three U. S. Carriers

New York, Oct. 25 — Tokyo claimed tonight—by way of Berlin—the sinking of three American aircraft carriers, two cruisers, a destroyer, and four fully loaded troop transports, as well as crippling of two United States battleships and an additional cruiser. Tokyo concluded its pronouncement with the assertion that the Japanese fleet was pursuing fleeing American task forces.

The Japanese version of the Philippines engagement was quoted by the Berlin radio in a broadcast recorded by the Blue Network.

Jap Version Of The Fight

San Francisco, Oct. 25 (AP)—In an English-language broadcast to Australia, the Tokyo radio today gave a play-by-play description of a sea battle off the Philippines in which the Japanese claimed to have sunk or damaged 16 American warships.

Reception difficulties, the Federal Communications Commission reported, made transcription difficult.

Tokyo reported:

"Early yesterday morning (October 24) the Japanese air force discovered an enemy fleet and opened attack.

"Attempted To Run Away"

"On October 22, the Japanese naval surface units made contact with the enemy task force. At 6.53 A. M., Japanese surface units caught sight of (masts) of the enemy task force in the waters 40 kilometers east of the Philippines.

"At 7 A. M. orders were issued to get read to fire. At 7.01 A. M. the enemy fleet attempted to run away.

"Our Units Pursued"

"At 7.18 A. M. our naval units started fire.

"At 7.20 A. M. a large enemy cruiser was sunk by our bombardment.

"At 7.30 A. M. the enemy task force changed their course to a southeastern direction and started to flee.

"Our naval units immediately pursued the fleeing enemy task force. At 7.36 A. M. two enemy aircraft carriers were bombarded and sunk. One of these sunken enemy aircraft carriers was confirmed as of the Enterprise type.

"At 8.03 A. M., Japanese units (commenced their) onslaught. In the meantime, the Japanese fleet intercepted enemy wireless (three words missed) 'our fleet is being attacked by Japanese naval units, from a distance of 20,000 meters off. Send immediate aid.'

More Sinkings Claimed

"At 8.25 A. M. two large enemy aircraft carriers were sunk.

"At 8.30 A. M. one large enemy cruiser and one destroyer were sunk.

"Five minutes later smoke began pouring, and the enemy fleet began fleeing under a smoke screen (3 words missing) are even now in hot pursuit of the fleeing enemy task force."

Tokyo Claims Sinking Of 11 U. S. Warships

San Francisco, Oct. 25 (AP)—Optimistic Tokyo radio reported today that 11 American and three Japanese warships were sunk in a great sea-air battle raging in Philippine waters.

Most Tokyo broadcasts placed the action east of the Philippines, but they apparently referred to the three-pronged naval-air fighting to the west and north in which Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said the United States Third Fleet lost one carrier, sank a Japanese carrier and damaged two other enemy carriers, five or six battleships, a cruiser and several other warships.

Unofficial broadcasts said the opposing fleets had clashed, and the Japanese imperial headquarters communique declared "Japanese naval units in close cooperation with Japanese air units have been fiercely attacking the enemy task force and transports since yesterday morning."

Five Damaged, Claim

The communique asserted five other American warships were damaged in a fierce engagement which opened Tuesday morning (Manila time).

Tokyo radio, in broadcasts recorded here asserted "Japanese naval fire sank four aircraft carriers, two large cruisers and one destroyer." In the same action, Tokyo reports added, Japanese submarines sank "more than four enemy transports."

Naval Engagement Described

Domei, Japanese news agency, described a naval engagement in waters east of the Philippines where it said the American fleet was "surrounded." Official Japanese communiques did not say precisely where fighting occurred, nor whether naval guns, torpedoes or bombs accounted for the sinkings.

There was Tokyo's usual end to its broadcast report of naval engagements—"the enemy fleet began fleeing under a smoke screen" with the Japanese "in hot pursuit."

Text Of Communique

The text of the naval communique from Japanese Imperial headquarters, as broadcast in English and recorded by the FCC, said:

"Japanese naval units in close cooperation with Japanese air units have been fiercely attacking the enemy task force and transports since yesterday morning. Enemy losses ascertained so far are as follows:

"Sunk—Four aircraft carriers including an Enterprise type, two cruisers, one destroyer and more than four transports.

"Those Damaged—Two aircraft carriers, one battleship and two cruisers.

"Japanese losses were two cruisers and one destroyer sunk."

Leyte and other of the Visayan Islands, upon which Gen. Douglas MacArthur's land forces are driving a wedge between Japanese troops on the Philippines, lay between the Japanese task force and Admiral Halsey's Third Fleet at the time of the brief announcement from Admiral Nimitz.

Domei Describes Battles

But Domei asserted "the navy and air forces of both Japan and the United States" have been "engaged in violent battles in waters east of Samar island in the Philippines since this morning."

There was, however, no Allied confirmation that naval surface units themselves had come within firing range of each other.

Such an engagement, Tokyo broadcasts indicated, would be between augmented forces of both fleets. The imperial communique indicated that further American naval units had joined Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's Seventh Fleet and part of Halsey's Third Fleet, which accompanied MacArthur's forces into Leyte Gulf last week.

Sea, Air Cooperation

The Japanese communique also said:

"Our fleet has been fiercely attacking the enemy task force and transport groups which appeared in the waters east of the Philippines on October 24, with sea and air units acting in concert with each other."

Domei said the tally was "expected to be further boosted as a checkup is being made on reports that are still pouring into the base from our airmen."

Contradictory Reference

This reference to airmen sharply contradicted later claims that the sinkings were the result of naval and submarine actions.

Tokyo radio was devoting more broadcast time to stories of the Philippines naval action than it did to its wildly extravagant claims the first of last week on an alleged fleet battle off Formosa that was never fought.

B-29's Hit Kyushu Air Base In Daylight; One Plane Missing

By The Associated Press

AN AMERICAN B-29 BASE, West China, Oct. 25.—Major General Curtis Lemay said tonight a strong force of Superfortresses had made a "highly successful" assault on Japan's Omura air base on Kyushu Island, and returning pilots said the target area had been perfectly patterned by high explosives and incendiaries.

Striking again at the root of Japan's ability to conduct an air war, the B-29's plastered one of the enemy's most important aircraft assembly plants, leaving behind pillars of smoke and flame which billowed 15,000 feet into the sky.

Colonel W. H. Blanchard, of Chelsea, Mass., group commander in the first element over the target, said the objective was pin-pointed.

"If Tokyo Rose says we missed the objective, Hirohito's ancestors ought to be turning backflips in their graves tonight for shame," he said.

Crews reported fighter opposition of varying intensity. A majority said the Japanese fighters stayed from 1,500 to 2,000 yards away, refusing to close in. Others, however, said interceptors were bolder than ever before in harrying the flanks of the tight Superfortress formations. One enemy ship was shot down as it attempted to ram its target.

Anti-aircraft fire was moderate but more accurate than usual, and several planes returned with flak holes.

The massed formations of B-29's flashed "bombs away" at 2:17 a. m. "Target visual, results good," they said.

The Omura target area contains one of the most important air base installations in the Japanese home islands. Assembly plants, modification centers, repair and salvage shops and testing laboratories make it a prime strategic target.

The new raid significantly followed only eight days after the 20th Bomber Command's erasure of Japanese forward staging areas and air bases on Formosa in conjunction with a Navy attack. The Formosa strike set the Japanese air force back hundreds of miles, forcing dependence on bases to the rear. The Omura plastering is a continuance of the emerging pattern of methodical destruction of all the enemy's strategic air-production centers and bases from which he supports forward air operations.

One Superfort Missing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP).—One bomber failed to return from the Superfortress raid on Omura, a communique of the 20th Air Force said today.

The communique follows:

"B-29 Superfortresses of the 20th Air Force today attacked the Omura aircraft plant at Omura, Kyushu Island, Japan. The attack was carried out in daylight by a medium-sized force from the 20th Bomber Command from its bases in China.

"Omura is an aircraft assembly, repair and training installation on the east coast of Omura Bay, twelve miles northeast of Nagasaki and adjacent to the Omura naval air station.

"Of modern design, the plant was built by Japan during the present war as one of the keystones of her air power. It comprises some seventy-five buildings with 2,500,000 square feet of covered roof, and is large by any standard of comparison for aircraft production and engine maintenance.

"Our Superfortresses met some fighter resistance in today's mission, and experienced moderate anti-aircraft fire over the target. The weather was clear, with the result that bombing was accomplished in complete visibility, and crews were able to observe their results, which they characterized generally as 'good.'

"One of our aircraft is missing."

Superforts Attack Kyushu, Bombing Large Plane Plant

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—Superfortresses in medium force bombed the Japanese aircraft assembly and repair installation at Omura, on Kyushu Island, with "good" results today, the War Department reported. One of the big bombers failed to return.

The attack was carried out in daylight against the Omura targets located on the east coast of Omura Bay, 12 miles northeast of Nagasaki, and adjacent to the Omura naval air station. The aircraft assembly, repair and training installation comprises some 75 buildings and is one of Japan's largest installations of the kind.

Kyushu is the southernmost of the Japanese home islands.

Encounter Some Fighters

The Superforts encountered some fighter resistance and anti-aircraft fire over the targets was reported "moderate."

[A dispatch from a Superfortress base in China said one of the craft, the Pampered Lady, returned from the 6,000-mile mission with less than enough gasoline "to clean a suit of clothes," after encountering head winds. Among the crew members was Staff Sergeant Henry A. Staude, 2915 Woodland avenue, Baltimore.]

Clear weather aided the attacking planes.

[Radio Tokyo said that about 100 Superfortresses participated].

YANKS SEIZE NORTH LEYTE

Gain All Along Front—Crossing To Samar Confirmed

MacArthur's Headquarters, Leyte, Thursday, Oct. 26 (AP)—American ground forces have swept to the northern end of Leyte Island, where Japanese forces "are disintegrating," and have captured Burauen, vital communications center in Leyte Valley, a communique reported today.

The American landing on adjacent Samar Island was confirmed.

Advance All Along Front

Tank-led infantry pushed through rain and mud in a general advance along the entire Leyte front, while naval and aerial warfare raged near the island.

A Japanese night counterattack on the ground was "easily repulsed," the communique reported. A large-scale daylight aerial assault on American shipping in Leyte Gulf was turned back Tuesday when carrier fighters broke up the attacking formations.

Fifty-three Japanese planes were shot down in dogfights and three others were destroyed by anti-aircraft fire.

Gain Control Of Strait

In shore-to-shore movements, elements of the Tenth Corps jumped to Samar Island and also secured the northern end of Leyte, landing at Uvam and Babatungon. This maneuver gave the Americans control of San Juanico Strait.

The Americans have swept 20 miles north of Tacloban, the island's recaptured capital.

Elements of the 24th Corps captured Burauen, nine miles inland from Dulag, where main roads through Leyte Valley meet. The Americans previously overran nearby San Pablo and its cluster of adjacent airfields.

Trying To Bottle Up Japs

Capture of Burauen gave the Americans control of the southern end of Leyte Valley, where they are attempting to bottle up Japanese troops, and furnishes a new springboard for a northward drive.

Forward patrols and armored units of the Seventh Division are fanning out to the north from San Pablo toward Dagami, another important road juncture nearly in the center of the north-south highway running through the valley.

Meanwhile, elements of the 96th Division were advancing from Tanghas, a coastal town nine miles north of Dulag. They have enveloped strong Japanese positions in Catmon Hills and are approaching Tabontabon, an inland river town little more than four miles southeast of Dagami.

Seize Hill Beyond Palo

Other units were pushing out from Palo, in the north central sector of the front, apparently aiming toward Santa Fe, the northern end of the Leyte Valley highway. These forces seized a hill west of Palo and captured Tanauan, four miles to the south.

Elsewhere small scale Japanese counterattacks and night infiltration attempts were "readily repulsed."

Carrier aircraft continued to support ground action by attacking installations, supply dumps and lines of communication.

Bombers also hit other islands in the Visayan group and Mindanao.

More Philippine Towns Freed

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 25 (AP)—Pushing all opposition aside and crushing feeble Japanese counterattacks, American forces liberated 14 more towns and barrios and advanced to the outskirts of Tabontabon, eight miles northwest of Dulag, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The advance on Tabontabon is probably the longest made by MacArthur's men since the invasion started. Advances were general along the entire line.

Another Airfield Taken

Capture of San Pablo airdrome seven miles west of Dulag was also announced, but a field dispatch from Alva N. Dopking, Associated Press war correspondent, yesterday reported its seizure.

Dopking disclosed that the Yanks went through dense undergrowth and mud and muck in making a circuitous march of 12 miles to capture the San Pablo field. It was the third airfield taken on Leyte. The others are at Tacloban and Dulag.

Drive On Dagami

After securing the San Pablo field armored units of the Seventh Division fanned out to the northward toward Dagami, important road junction at the western edge of Leyte Valley. Elements of the 96th Division advanced to a point nine miles north of Catamon, enveloped Catmon Hill and pushed on to the approaches of Tabontabon.

Substantial gains west of Palo and Tacloban were made by units of the 10th Corps now pushing ahead from a line of hills seized from the Japanese, which dominate the coast between Palo and Tacloban.

In this sector the Japanese attempted night infiltration tactics which they employed so successfully in the early days of the war. The tactics met with bloody failure while small scale counterattacks were easily smashed by the oncoming Yanks.

Intermittent attacks by few enemy planes continued. American fighter patrols beat them off. At least five Japanese planes were shot down.

Carrier planes from the Seventh Fleet are giving the ground forces continued close support, attacking enemy ground installations, supply dumps and lines of communication.

64 Planes Bagged

Destruction or damaging of 64 enemy planes on October 22 and 23 was disclosed by MacArthur. The damage was done by American planes striking Japanese airfields in the western Visayas and northern Mindanao. Six American planes were lost, but all pilots except one were saved.

"Successive raids from all sources on the enemy's installations," MacArthur said, "are neutralizing his attempts at staging (bring in) aircraft from Luzon and Borneo and have greatly restricted the scale of his counteroffensive at Leyte."

The towns and barrios liberated include Nalibunan, Calbasag, Luwan, Labiranan, Kugod, Gitabla, Rawis, Calipayan, Utap, Libas, Malacanding, Cabaracan, Julita and Tangnan.

MacArthur Reveals Key Part Filipino Patriots Play in War

Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—A weak signal from a radio set on the Island of Panay heard in the late fall of 1942 set in motion machinery to aid the guerrillas—aid which culminated in a full-scale invasion of the Philippines, Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed today.

In a special communique issued from his headquarters and broadcast in English to the Philippines by the "Voice of Freedom" radio, the General paid tribute to the guerrillas.

For two years, he said, the inadequately armed patriots, some of them Americans who never surrendered, others who escaped from prison camps and men sent in to carry out specific missions, have fought the Japs.

Silence Shrouded Islands.

"Following the disaster which, in the face of overwhelming superior enemy power, overtook our gallant forces, a deep and impenetrable silence engulfed the Philippines," the General said. "Through that silence no news concerning the fate of the Filipino people reached the outside world until broken by a weak signal from a radio set in the Island of Panay, which was picked up in the late fall of the same fateful year by a listening post of the War Department and flashed to my headquarters.

"The signal, weak and spotty as it was, lifted the curtain of silence and uncertainty and disclosed the start of a human drama with few parallels in military history. In it I recognized the spontaneous movement of the Filipino people to resist the shackles with which the enemy sought to bind them, both physically and spiritually. I gave this movement all spiritual and material support that my limited resources would permit.

"Through the understanding assistance of our Navy I was able to send in by submarines in driblets at first, arms, ammunition and medical supplies. The news of the first shipment spread rapidly throughout the Philippines to electrify the people into full returning consciousness that America had neither abandoned nor forgotten them."

Gen. MacArthur told how the supplies continued to grow and that eventually four submarines were committed to the exclusive task of taking them in.

He told how the guerrillas obtained the secret defensive plans and instructions of the commander in chief of the combined Jap fleet which were used to counter American offensive action in the several Pacific areas. In addition the Americans gained possession of complete information on the strength and distribution of enemy fleets.

"We are aided," the General said, "by the fact that for many months our plans of campaign have benefited from the hazardous labors of a vast network of agents, numbering into the hundreds of thousands, providing precise, accurate and detailed information on major enemy moves and installations throughout the Philippine archipelago."

An Air Warning System.

Gen. MacArthur said that on every major island of the Philippines there are one or more completely and staffed weather observatories. An air warning system affords visual observation of the air over nearly every square foot of Philippine soil.

"We are aided," he said, "by provision on all inland waterways and coastal areas of complete observation over enemy naval movements, to give immediate target information to our submarines who patrol in and near Philippine waters. This information has contributed to the sinking of enemy shipping of enormous tonnage. And through the same facilities was flashed the warning to our naval forces of the enemy naval concentration off the eastern Philippines during the Marianas operation."

Held Jap Admiral.

Gen. MacArthur disclosed that the commander-in-chief of the combined Jap fleets (unidentified) was a prisoner of one of the guerrilla units prior to his death from injuries received in an airplane accident.

[The Jap radio in April, 1943, announced that Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander-in-chief of the combined fleet, had been killed. The announcement did not elaborate. This is probably the admiral referred to by Gen. MacArthur.]

Gen. MacArthur concluded:

"To those great patriots to whom I now pay public tribute, I say stand by your battle stations and relax not your vigilance until our forces shall have swept forward to relieve you."

time to time promulgate a set of instructions to guide your efforts, relying fully, however, upon your innate common sense to guage the limitation of your local action."

The general warned the Filipinos to remove their families from military installations which "our military forces shall ceaselessly attack with increasing violence until destroyed."

He asked the Filipinos to harass the enemy incessantly.

"Harass him by destroying his means of commuication and his essential lines," MacArthur said. "Harass him by destroying his munitions, food, fuel, transport and other vital supplies. . . . Show him . . . that no enemy soldier may escape . . . death or surrender."

He urged those living outside the area of combat to be patient and not strike prematurely.

M'Arthur Honors Filipino Hero

Tacloban, Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 25 (AP)—A mild-mannered Filipino wearing a colonel's wings stepped up to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, saluted and was presented with the Distinguished Service Cross.

He was Ruperto Kangleon, almost legendary leader of Leyte guerrillas and a man for whose life the Japanese were willing to pay 50,000 pesos.

For the last ten months his ragged little army of 1,000 riflemen has relentlessly fought the Japanese. In 340 separate clashes Kangleon's men killed more than 3,800 of the enemy.

Didn't Dare To Lose Hope

"We never lost hope," the colonel said. "If we had, we would have been liquidated ourselves long ago."

Kangleon was captured by the Japanese and placed in a concentration camp but escaped December 23, 1942.

When he returned to his Leyte home, he found the Philippine forces split into three groups, fighting for power among themselves. There was no organized fighting against the Japanese.

Unites Two Groups

Kangleon called a meeting. He got two groups to join with him. The third refused.

"We eliminated them by force," Kangleon said. "There is a desperate need for unity."

His forces ambushed enemy patrols, sniped at small parties and used bolos when they ran out of ammunition.

The Japanese sent spies to Leyte to learn who was fomenting so much trouble.

Some Tortured

"When spies failed to return, the Japs treated my people very badly," the colonel recalled. "Civilians were tied hand and foot, sometimes left for a week in the sun without food. Water was poured down the noses of some, trying to get information from them. Houses of others were burned."

The colonel's citation said information his guerrillas supplied to MacArthur was of "incalculable value in planning and execution of operations to liberate the Philippines."

Jap Land Planes Attack.

Aboard Admiral Kinkaid's Warship, Leyte Gulf, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—In an abrupt change of tactics the Jap air force sent land-based bombers and fighters from Visayan Islands airfields for a sizable daylight assault on American shipping in Leyte Gulf.

Wildcats and Hellcats got word of the incoming planes while they were still more than 100 miles away. When the first enemy flight was north of Tacloban, the American flyers struck with deadly effect. Vice-Admiral Thomas Kinkaid immediately sent the combat air patrol into action.

In the ensuing battle a majority of the enemy planes were shot down.

Two of our fighters crash-landed on Tacloban airfields, but only one pilot was injured. Another Wildcat landed in the water. A destroyer rescued the pilot.

A small group of enemy bombers penetrated the fighter screen and attacked shipping in San Pedro Gulf. Four bombs dropped within 100 yards of a Liberty ship. There was no sign that it had been damaged. Two dive bombers strafed a destroyer, while another burning Jap suicide plane crashed a small vessel.

Admiral Kincaid ordered a heavy smokescreen over the entire transport area. Vast areas of the gulf were soon hidden by the heavy artificial fog and the smoke tactics appeared to be highly successful.

Filipinos' Aid Sought

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 25 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur called on Filipino patriots near the battle lines to harass their Japanese conquerors constantly and cautioned others far from the scene of fighting to await further detailed instructions.

Over the "Voice of Freedom" radio, now in operation on Leyte Island, the general said:

"Seldom has a military commander penetrated enemy-occupied shores with a greater potential of interior support than that which I today rely upon from the people of the Philippines. It is a (supporting) strength that is measured largely in values of the spirit. An unconquerable force set to fight the ordeal of war still remains unbroken and defiant. Such a spirit, born of a desire and nurtured upon a determination to be free, inevitably overwhelms material force, however ruthlessly applied, and rises to its height when the hour of liberation strikes.

"That hour has struck. It but remains to guide this great interior force to maximum utilization without exposing the people to undue and needless sacrifice. I shall from

YANK SPIED ON FOE FOR SEVEN MONTHS

With the American Rangers in the Philippines, Oct. 23 (Delayed) (A.P.).—Lieut. Leon Tinnell of the Army Air Forces whose wife lives in St. Louis, returned recently after passing more than seven months behind Japanese lines on Mindanao Island fighting with guerrillas and gathering information which played a key part in the drive back to the Philippines.

Lieut. Tinnell went to Mindanao by submarine. He came out the same way. During those seven months he radioed information back to American headquarters which resulted in the sinking of more than fifty enemy ships.

Tinnell told headquarters when and where Japanese troops were moving; what installations the enemy was building and where. Then he came out weighing only 126 pounds—seventeen pounds under normal. He was sick with malaria. But the Japanese had never caught up with him nor wounded him.

Now Lieut. Tinnell is back in the Philippines again. But this time he did not have to sneak in by submarine. He leads a picked group of reconnaissance troops which landed with the Rangers on Homonhon Island, in the mouth of Leyte Gulf. Instead of the three men he had on Mindanao, Tinnell's particular unit now has twenty-nine—sixteen Filipinos and thirteen Americans. They are highly trained in reconnaissance, and demolition, their job, is about as hazardous as can be found.

"I've been in every theater of war except China-Burma-India," said Tinnell. "I used to be a radio gunner on Liberators and Flying Forts. I am used to action, lots of it.

"When I came to the Southwest Pacific and they asked for volunteers for a 'secret assignment' I took the leap.

"I'm not sorry. The close calls I've had scared me, sure. But at least I have the satisfaction of knowing I helped sink some Jap ships and kill some Jap soldiers."

Japanese Infiltrate Palo With Refugees

Palo, Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 20 (AP—Delayed)—Palo is packed with troops and Filipino war refugees but infiltering Japanese are constantly getting back into the town. They actually set up machine guns in San Pedro square beneath a statute of Christ not more than 200 feet from Palo townhall.

[Later dispatches from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported capture of Palo by American forces.]

At least 80 Japanese were finally killed by Americans who held their fire to avoid killing natives who were prodded along in front of the Nipponese. The Americans suffered some casualties. An undetermined number of natives were clipped by wild Japanese machine-gun bullets in the center of the town because enemy marksmanship was poor. The natives said some of the infiltering Japanese wore the clothing of Filipino women but none of those killed was so dressed.

San Francisco, Oct. 25—Radio Tokyo claimed last night in a broadcast monitored by the National Broadcasting Company that the American invaders of Leyte Island in the Philippines have been halted and thrown back.

AERIAL TORPEDO HITS U. S. VESSEL

Aboard a United States Vessel, Oct. 21 (Delayed) (A. P.).—An aerial torpedo hit this veteran vessel amidships today, killing and burning some of her officers and men, but alert damage control saved her from capsizing or sinking.

Radioman 3/C Leon Garsian of Union City, N. J., was trapped for sixteen hours in a radio compartment below decks before a repair crew could cut through the bulkhead.

It was the third torpedo hit scored to date in the war on the vessel, skippered by Capt. Ray Thurber of Hoquiam, Wash., who was in a barber's chair having his hair cut when the alarm was sounded.

The torpedo hit portside just forward of the bridge superstructure. A flaming blast shattered the anti-aircraft crew's berthing compartment and the concussion killed virtually every one there.

Marine Capt. William C. Chip of New Castle, Pa., former blocking back for the Navy football team at Annapolis, helped close all the watertight doors.

ALLIES CUT NAZI ESCAPE HIGHWAYS IN DUTCH BATTLE

British Waging House to House Battle for City of 'S Hertogenbosch.

CATHEDRAL UNDAMAGED

Civilians Huddling in Cellars as Allies Seek to Trap Germans.

LONDON, Oct. 25. (AP)—British Second Army forces, slashing westward in Holland behind a veritable wall of armor and artillery fire, drove the Germans back tonight along a 15-mile front north and south of the communications center of 's Hertogenbosch and drove in swiftly on Tilburg, another main enemy bastion 12 miles southwest of 's Hertogenbosch.

Lashing out on the left flank, Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's powerful forces smashed the enemy back six miles to the outer defenses of Tilburg, a fortified city of 81,000 which the Nazis have for a month furiously defended against attacks from the south. At dusk British patrols were less than two miles east of Tilburg.

The battle for 's Hertogenbosch flamed from house to house, with British infantry and tanks holding about half the city and slowly gouging the bitterly-resisting Nazis out of their strongpoints and snipers' nests. It was a grim, slow task, with the enemy fighting as desperately for the Dutch town as he did for Aachen.

Civilians in Cellars

A majority of the city's civilian population were huddled in cellars and air raid shelters as the fighting raged around them, having refused to obey German orders to evacuate. Throughout today the Nazis plastered the town with artillery, but no damage had yet been done to 's Hertogenbosch's ancient cathedral, one of Holland's oldest.

British troops captured the Cathedral Square after furious all-day fighting.

The enemy's escape highways already had been severed both north and south of the city, and Associated Press field correspondent Roger Greene said tonight there were indications that Field Marshal Walther von Model was starting to pull his mauled forces out of southwest Holland.

The rising momentum of the British drive threatened to wedge the bulk of an estimated 70,000 German troops into a huge rectangular trap bounded by the North sea, the broad Maas delta and Canadian forces smashing northward from Antwerp.

"The cutting of the enemy's lifeline very obviously increases the enemy's difficulty in west Holland," declared a British staff officer. He described 's Hertogenbosch as a "very prized objective" in the present phase of the Allied campaign.

British tanks which whipped around to the north of 's Hertogenbosch captured Orten and snapped the main highway within a few miles of one of three main bridges across the Maas Rhine.

British infantry and armor which liberated Boxtel, six miles south of 's Hertogenbosch, continued to push west along a railroad running to Enschot and Tilburg. Heavy German movements observed north of Tilburg and Breda indicated the enemy was moving his divisional headquarters and other administrative staffs out of the immediate path of General Dempsey offensive.

Canadian forces fighting to clear the approaches to Antwerp maintained their pressure both in the area of the Breskens pock on the south side of the Schelde estuary and around Bergen op Zoom, directly north of Antwerp.

The Canadian First Army troops added a two-mile advance south of Breda to the general jostlings of the Germans in Holland.

Bad weather kept most of the U. S. Ninth airforce planes on the ground today, but 60 Thunderbolts took off late in the day to strafe railways and roads, destroying two trucks and four freightcars.

West of Antwerp Canadian maritime infantry captured the German strong point of Fort Frederik Hendrik on the south side of Schelde estuary after two days of fighting. The German radio earlier had announced withdrawal from the town, which is a mile north of Breskens.

As a result of this Canadian victory the only guns the Germans have left on the south side of the Schelde capable of covering the estuary are at Cadzand, six miles west of the fort. The Canadians were within four miles of that goal.

The Canadians also advanced two miles south of Breda.

Two Miles From Bergen

Canadian troops last were reported within about two miles of Bergen op Zoom. There was no word of additional progress by Canadian units who advanced before dawn yesterday across a causeway onto South Beveland Island, five miles southwest of Bergen op Zoom.

Most of the long front stretching from Arnhem, in Holland, down through northeastern France to the Swiss border, was quiet. Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army in Germany took only 38 prisoners in the past 24 hours, the smallest number since the invasion of France began June 6.

American troops made some gains northeast of Epinal, in France, capturing the villages of Mortagne and Bifontaine after house-to-house fighting, and the Seventh Army improved its positions in the snowy Vosges Mountains. Little more than patrol activity was reported from the Moselle Valley front around Metz.

GERMANS RETREAT ON 15-MILE FRONT IN DUTCH SECTOR

Enemy Falls Back Above and Below Key City of 's Hertogenbosch.

London, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—British troops, turning flamethrowers against German bazooka nests, struck through the big Dutch road junction of 's Hertogenbosch in mop-up operations today, and the Germans fell back in retreat on a fifteen-mile front above and below that key city. 'S Hertogenbosch was captured except for isolated enemy pockets, a dispatch from the front said, and supply roads leading north and south were snipped.

Even as the British pressed in the eastern end of the German box salient in southwestern Holland, Canadians bit more deeply into the western edge, and made progress in two drives to clear the water approaches to Antwerp. One Canadian prong hit on toward Roosendal and Bergen Op Zoom, twenty-two and twenty miles north of Antwerp, against strong resistance. The enemy was reported to be making local withdrawals below Breda and Tilburg, middle strongholds of their line across southwestern Holland from the coast to 's Hertogenbosch.

Another Canadian column, striking westward, advanced slightly farther into the tip of South Beveland Island. German guns there and on adjacent Walcheren Island command the Schelde estuary to Antwerp.

Other Canadians advanced in the diminishing Breskens pocket, on the south shore of the estuary, opposite Walcheren Island. The fall of Fort Frederik-Hendrik, north of the captured port of Breskens, was imminent, said a front report. Below Breskens, the Canadians reached the edge of Oostburg, and cut the Oostburg-Schoondijke road.

The Canadian-British offensive threatened the whole German stand below the Maas River.

German forces endangered in western Holland are known to include patched up units of eight divisions, the Eighty-fifth, Fifty-ninth, 245th, 256th, 346th, 711th, 712th and 719th. About 11,000 of these are sealed off by land on the Schelde estuary islands through Canadian seizure of the neck of the peninsula in a fanout north and northeast of Woensdrecht.

The British reported the capture of 1,400 prisoners Sunday, Monday and yesterday in the 'S Hertogenbosch sector and virtually all were from the scoring 702th Division.

On the left flank of the drive into Holland, troops of Canadian First Army slugged closer to Bergen of Zoom and Roosendaal, and a front dispatch reported the Germans moving north from Tilburg and Breda, other strategic centers in the enemy line.

In their drive across the flat canal-laced country the British were flattening neat Dutch houses and entire villages because the Germans were using each house and barn as a fort.

Standing before the ruins of their homes the Dutch cheered on the British and offered them their pitifully small treasure of food—apples and milk. The Dutch were willing to witness the destruction of their property to be free of the Germans, field dispatches said.

In Vosges Mountains.

An Allied communique reported slight but steady Allied progress at the opposite end of the west front, with the forces in the Vosges Mountains improving their positions, and troops northeast of Epinal making further gains, including the capture of Mortagne and Bifontaine after house-to-house fighting.

From north of Aachen down to the area east of Luneville there were no important changes in the front, according to the communique. The German radio reported savage small-scale fighting near Embermen, and indications that Gen. Patton's Third Army was preparing to drive northward between Dieuze and Chateau Salins, east of Nancy.

Little more than patrol activity was reported by the communique in the Moselle Valley, with Allied troops encountering "sporadic" artillery and small-arms fire. In the Baccarat sector, however, the capture of the village of Menarmont was reported.

Yanks Want Coffee Instead Of Lemonade

With United States Infantry Troops in Germany, Oct. 25 (AP)—Frontline Doughboys are clamoring for coffee powder in their lunch and supper "K" ration boxes, instead of bouillon and lemonade powder.

A small envelope of powdered coffee in their breakfast box is the only coffee now available for the riflemen.

"To the deuce with bouillon and lemonade," said Tech. Sergt. William Davis of Brunswick, Ga. "How are you going to keep warm at night and stay awake on guard without coffee?"

Hitler Hurt In Bombing, Escaped Yank Reports

Ubach, Germany, Oct. 25 (AP)—An American soldier, returned to his own lines after capture by the Germans, said today a German soldier guarding Hitler's headquarters told him the German Fuehrer suffered face and leg wounds in the bombing attempt on his life.

Private Donald J. Szymczsk, Detroit, said he was being treated for wounds in a German hospital when the German soldier told him of the bomb attack. The bomb, he said, rolled under the table, Hitler jumping backward in time to escape serious injury, but not in time to avoid superficial wounds on his face and legs.

Szymczsk escaped when American troops overran his hospital.

Bronze Star To Hodges For Victory At Aachen

United States First Army Headquarters, Oct. 25 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the United States 12th Army group, pinned the Bronze Star today on Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, First Army commander, for capturing Aachen, the first large German city to fall into Allied hands. The general's "brilliant victory has upheld the highest tradition of military service of the United States," Bradley said. The presentation was made at Hodges' headquarters with Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson, 9th Army commander, looking on.

ARMY CHECKING ON LONDON PASSES

HEADQUARTERS U. S. ARMY BASE, UNITED KINGDOM, Oct. 25—(AP) United States military authorities at midnight tonight raised a 42-hour ban on passes, leaves and all military traveling by all military personnel in the British isles, during which time a thorough check-up was made of every man in a U. S. army uniform found in London and other large cities.

Those found absent without leave were rounded up, but authorities did not disclose their number. The restriction was clamped on suddenly at 6 p.m. Tuesday, as was the checking on the status of leaves and furloughs. Men caught without authorized permits to be absent from their places of duty, billets or messes or from their military installations were returned to their stations.

Col. Roosevelt's Unit Honored

EIGHTH AIR FORCE RECONNAISSANCE WING HEADQUARTERS, England, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Eighth Air Force Reconnaissance Wing, commanded by Col. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, has won a commendation from Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the Twelfth Army Group. General Bradley lauded its work of speedily producing exact photo maps and aiding the operations of his Army group.

BLINDED FLYER IS GUIDED HOME

A United States Fighter Base in Britain, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—Lieut. Lyle M. Wright, 25 years old, of Buffalo, Mustang fighter pilot, was temporarily blinded on a recent mission when his canopy was shattered by flak. He was preparing to bail out when another pilot roared along beside him and shouted "Stick in there, we'll make it back."

"I've been hit in the face and can only see upward," Lieut. Wright replied to his buddy, Lieut. William D. Stockton, 24, of Orion, Ill. "Hold it Lyle, don't jump," Lieut. Stockton called back. "Wait until I get in position above you and you can fly on me."

They flew back across France and home, with Lieut. Stockton coaching the wounded Lieut. Wright by radio. He lined him up properly with the runway, told him when his wheels and flaps were down and when to reduce his power for landing. In the station hospital, with his sight improving, Lieut. Wright smiled through his bandages today and said "I just did what Stocky told me to do."

DE GAULLE SEEKS MORE EQUIPMENT FOR HIS TROOPS

PARIS, Oct. 25—(AP) Gen. Charles de Gaulle declared today that France wished to take a larger part in the war against Germany, but complained that she was not receiving enough arms either from her own factories or from the Allies.

"France is not only ready but eager to take a larger part in the war against Germany," de Gaulle told a press conference, his first since meeting reporters in Washington in July. "Until the time when French factories are able to supply our armies we hope to obtain equipment from the Allies."

"Within the short time of a few weeks we would increase France's contribution on the front," he said, adding that "since the landings we have not received equipment with which we could arm any large unit."

De Gaulle said Allied supply difficulties and port destructions might explain this "to some degree."

Declaring that a winter campaign in Germany with partisan opposition to mop up might show the need for more infantry, the French chief said that "then possibly it will be recognized that new French divisions can participate in this campaign and even partake in the losses." His voice rose with emotion.

De Gaulle said 70,000 Germans were holding St. Nazaire, Lorient, La Rochelle and the mouth of the Garonne river, where they are still supplied by sea and air.

"Except at Brest, where the Americans courageously blasted Nazi resistance, it is only an ill-armed FFI (French Forces of the Interior) which is attempting to reduce these well-fortified garrisons," de Gaulle said.

Of 100,000 FFI volunteers, 50,000 already have been enrolled with the French First Army which is fighting alongside the American Seventh army on the Vosges front, the General said.

The French government, de Gaulle said, "like everyone else is satisfied now to be called by its right name." It was his only reference to this week's recognition of his regime by the Allies.

He said there were still no conversations between France and the Allies for the occupation of Germany.

"This is very important," he said. "We have been trying for a long time. There must be an accord between France and the Allies" regarding post-armistice occupation.

MORE ARMS SOUGHT BY GEN. DE GAULLE

Paris, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—Gen. Charles De Gaulle complained today that the French were not receiving enough arms for a large war effort.

In his first press conference since he met reporters in Washington in July, the French leader commented that the "Government, like every one else, is satisfied that it now is called by its right name." This was his only reference to Allied recognition.

"France not only is ready but eager to take a larger part in the war against Germany," Gen. De Gaulle said. "Until the time when French factories are able to supply our armies, we hope to obtain equipment from our Allies. Within a few weeks we would increase France's contributions on the front. "Since the landings we have not received equipment with which we could arm any large unit."

He added that Allied supply difficulties and destruction of ports might explain the lack "to some degree."

Two Vichy Militiamen Are Sentenced To Death

Paris, Oct. 24 (AP—Delayed)—Two members of the Vichy militia accused of participating in the murder of former Minister of Interior Georges Mandel last July 7 in the Fontainbleau Forest were sentenced to death today after their conviction on charges of collusion with the enemy.

A third defendant in the trial, chauffeur of the car in which Mandel was carried to his death, was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

SOVIETS CAPTURE PORT IN NORWAY

Prize Nazi Port in North Falls—Drive in East Prussia Pushed.

LONDON, Oct. 25 — (AP) The Red army invaded Norway today and captured the prize Arctic port of Kirkenes and 30 other communities at the northern end of the front, completed the conquest of Transylvania in the south, and won 13 strong points in East Prussia in head on collisions with the desperately-counterattacking Germans.

30. 24 — 19873

The Moscow communique and two orders of the day from Marshal Stalin announced these successes, but did not confirm a German high command announcement that the Russians had launched a violent new offensive northwest of the Narew river between Warsaw and East Prussia.

Moscow said only that Russian and First Polish army units took eleven small towns in a narrow arc immediately northwest of Warsaw below the Narew, and dismissed this action as merely "of local importance."

The invasion of Norway and the clearance of Transylvania were presented by the Russians as the day's top news, both being heralded by Orders of the Day from Stalin and victory salutes from Moscow's cannon.

In addition, Moscow announced capture of another 50 population centers in the mountains of eastern Czechoslovakia northeast and southeast of Mukacevo, and the repulse of large German forces trying to break out of the tight pocket in southwest Latvia above Liepaja.

The invasion of East Prussia ran into a storm of fanatical Nazi counterattacks around Gumbinnen and Goldap, and while the advance continued, it bought hard gains of less than two miles on a serrated front.

The fury of the battle was signified by the statement of a Russian military commentator on the Moscow radio that the Germans had lost more than 300 tanks in two days and were losing men at the rate of 3,000 and 4,000 killed each day.

A move to ease some of the terrible pressure of this conflict might be the drive which the Germans said the Russians were making in north Poland, posing an imminently dangerous outflanking threat against the embattled homeland of the German Junkers.

In Norway the Germans themselves announced first the evacuation of Kirkenes. Stalin's subsequent order credited its seizure along with 30 other towns around Varangerfjord, to the Arctic army of Gen. K. A. Meretskov and the Red fleet.

Kirkenes, center of a rich iron mining district which in 1939 produced 1,800,000 tons of ore, is on the Barents sea and was Germany's most valuable port in the far north.

Besides winning a welcome new base for protection of the Murmansk supply route, the Russians signified their intention of marching through Norway in pursuit of approximately 25,000 German troops who had been driven out of the Petsamo district that Russia took in the Finnish armistice settlement.

The entry into Norway was with the approval of the Norwegian Royal Government in London.

Germans Built Highway

The country is rugged in any season, and winter already is at hand, but neither factor has stopped the Red army in the past. The Germans during their four and a half years of occupation built a highway the length of Norway to Kirkenes.

In the warmer but mountainous south, 1,000 miles away, Stalin announced that the troops of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine Army Group completed clearing the enemy from Transylvania by storming and taking the one remaining important city of Satu-Mare and the railway town of Carei.

Romanian troops participated in these actions, since Romania's changing of sides last August was predicated on a promise that she could have Transylvania from Hungary back if she would fight for it.

Heavy Fighting Reported

The Germans devoted their broadcasts primarily to descriptions of the heavy fighting against Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky's invaders of East Prussia and the new Soviet drives in northern Poland.

The German high command claimed its reinforced Panzers in East Prussia regained some ground eastward in heavy fighting at Soviet-captured Goldap and southeast of Gumbinnen, but admitted that "in remaining sectors of this fighting zone the enemy attacked with strong forces at several points."

Some Russian penetrations were acknowledged, but the Germans contended they were sealed off.

Still the Soviet drive continued, and help was coming to it from both north and south.

Baltic Army At Frontier

On the north, the First Baltic Army of Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian was poised at the East Prussian frontier, while on the south the Germans told of a new Russian push.

This they placed between the Bug river and Warsaw and from the Russian bridgeheads across the Narew river.

The Bug flows into the Narew at Senock, 15 miles due north of Warsaw, and the Narew joins the Vistula about the same distance west of the Polish capital.

Exact locations of this new drive were not given by the Germans, but last week they said the Russians had established bridgeheads on the northwest banks of the Narew around Senock and Rozan, 47 miles of the southern borders of East Prussia.

The Russians already stood along the Narew in strength farther north and northeast of Ostroleka, Nowogrod and Lomza at points within 15 miles of the southe rnborders of East Prussia.

Pressed Through Forests

This new thrust, according to the Germans, was pressed by strong Soviet divisions of armor in heavy fighting through the forests. The Germans claimed they had repulsed the Russians at "numerous points," but did not claim to have done so at all points.

With the Russians also pressing a drive from the Augustow area of Poland on the border of the Suwalki district near the southeast corner of East Prussia, the German province was more than half encircled in addition to the actual invasion.

Moscow dispatches said the East Prussian capital, Konigsberg, already was being evacuated of civilians, with air reconnaissance disclosing crowds of refugees "moving toward the central regions of Germany."

Russian offensive along the Narew River in Poland, between Warsaw and the southern boundary of East Prussia. The Berlin radio disclosed that Kirkenes had been evacuated after destruction of all military installations at the submarine and air base athwart the Murmansk convoy route.

A dispatch from Moscow quoted a correspondent on the East Prussian front as reporting that the Germans were evacuating the provincial capital of Konigsberg, eighteenth largest German city, with 368,433 population, and a major submarine training base.

"Our air reconnaissance reports the evacuation of the main city of East Prussia has been going on for several days," the Russian correspondent said, "crowds of refugees are moving toward the central region of Germany."

Strategic Port.

Kirkenes is important because of its strategic location and because of its 400,000 tons a year of iron ore exports. It is thirty miles west of Petsamo, the former Finnish Arctic port which the Russians captured recently, and ninety miles from Murmansk.

Considerable iron smelter facilities are near Kirkenes, employing most of the Norwegians who live there. The war was reported to have reduced the population of Kirkenes from 4,000 to 400 civilians, since the wooden structures were believed to have been destroyed by bombs.

German airfields, barracks and depots have been built there since the German occupation, as well as camps for prisoners of war.

The port is open throughout the year because of the Gulf Stream, flowing to the north. The Germans said that "Russian thrusts east of Langfjorden were repulsed."

Norse Underground Ready.

The invasion of Norway leaves Denmark the only country swallowed up by Hitler in five years' war which has not been wrested back or invaded by Allied armies. Persistent, but unconfirmed, rumors in London recently have hinted at an Anglo-American strike into Norway, and British bombers have been hitting at German airfields and strong points in the country attacked by surprise by Hitler on April 9, 1940.

A determined underground stands ready in Norway to aid the liberation, and quietly has mobilized resources during German occupation. A powerful fifth column in Norway facilitated Germany's quick conquest of the mountainous nation, home of the original Quisling, but patriots are ready to strike a blow for liberation.

In announcing the new Russian offensice along the Narew River, Berlin communique said that Russian divisions struck from their bridgeheads at Senock and Rozan behind a drumfire artillery barrage and heavy aerial attacks.

The Soviet infantry and tank forces were reported "checked in heavy fighting in the forests" and subjected to counter-attacks in which numerous Russian tanks were declared to have been destroyed. The Germans have insisted that the Russian grand strategy is to co-ordinate a drive from the Narew to the Baltic port of Danzig, 160 miles from Senock, with the invasion of East Prussia from the north and east.

No Report From Moscow.

Successful Russian breakthroughs from the Narew, where the armies of the Czar were beaten decisively in the last war, would outflank the whole 14,000 square miles of East Prussia and the ravaged Polish capital of Warsaw, as well. Senock is fifteen miles north of Warsaw. Moscow has not yet announced a Narew offensive.

[Attacking along an eighty-mile front, "strong Russian forces have crossed the Narew," according to German reports quoted today by the British radio. "Farther south, the Germans lost, according to their own reports, the town of Modlin, only fourteen miles from Warsaw," added the broadcast, recorded there at the Columbia short-wave listening station.]

The German communique said that Nazi counter-attacks inside East Prussia had pushed eastward at Russian-held Goldap and southeast of the road center of Gumbinnen. The Russians at midnight said that they were within six miles of Gumbinnen, or within artillery range.

Satu Mare Captured

Marshal Stalin in an order of the day earlier had announced the capture of Satu Mare, last Romanian city held by the Germans, and near-by Carei. Both are in Transylvania, close to the pre-war Hungarian frontier. Satu Mare, a city of 15,708, was a strong fortress position between Russian armies in Czechoslovakia and those invading Romania and Hungary. Stalin, said the victory completed the capture of northern Transylvania.

Advance Beyond Kiskunhalas

Moscow, Oct. 25 (AP)—In the basin of the Danube, Russian columns driving on Budapest advanced several miles beyond Kiskunhalas, on one of the main railroads serving Hungary and Yugoslavia. The capture of Huszt, on the Trans-Ruthenian railroad, imperiled the Czechoslovak city of Mukacevo (population, 26,000) from the rear.

Both Armies Reinforced.

The Russian and German high commands threw fresh armored and infantry units into the battle of East Prussia today. Fighting raged furiously along a front of more than 150 miles extending from the Baltic mouth of the Niemen River to the Southwestern edge of the Suwalki triangle.

Dispatches from the front said that two famous enemy panzer formations—the Hermann Goering and S. S. Greater Germany, defenders of Warsaw in August—were among four tank divisions committed to battle by the Germans in costly counter-attacks against a Russian salient some fifteen miles from Insterburg and seventy miles from Konigsberg. The sky over Insterburg was reported black with smoke rising from fires set by repeated Russian air raids.

Hitler's forces appeared to have steadied today before the Red Army's powerful offensive through East Prussia, but the Russians announced the capture of at least fourteen additional German towns and disclosed a new thrust toward the province from the southeast. The new pressure on the home of German militarism was exerted from the communique claimed as captured.

German Reserves Strained.

The seizure of Augustow, fourteen miles from the southeastern tip of East Prussia, widened the Red Army offensive by twenty miles and put a new strain on German reserves.

The Germans reported heavy fighting in Hungary and Yugoslavia and said that the bulk of the Eightieth Russian Cavalry Division and the Third Soviet Tank Brigade has been annihilated near Debrecen, Hungary.

In the Balkan fighting, Berlin said that the Russians had attacked Kraljevo, in Yugoslavia, on the last railroad available for German retreat from the Balkans. The city is seventy-five miles south of Belgrade.

Marshal Stalin, in an order of the day, announced the capture of Satu Mare, last Romanian city held by the Germans, and nearby Carei.

Both are in Transylvania, hard by the pre-war Hungarian frontier. Satu Mare, a city of 15,708, was a strong fortress position between the Russian armies in Czecho-Slovakia and those invading Romania and Hungary. Marshal Stalin said that the victory completed the capture of northern Transylvania.

Stalin Tells of Frontier Crossing and Capture of Strategic Seaport as Nazis Flee

London, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—The Russian Army has crossed the frontier into Norway, Marshal Stalin announced tonight. The order of the day broadcast by Moscow said that Gen. K. I. Meretskov's Arctic Army, which crossed the frontier, already had captured the Norwegian seaport of Kirkenes.

Berlin three hours earlier had broadcast an announcement of the evacuation of this important iron-ore shipping point. The capture indicated the Red Army's intention of marching through Norway in pursuit of perhaps 25,000 German troops driven out of what formerly was northern Finland, in the battle for Petsamo, thirty miles from Kirkenes.

Russian Navy Helps.

Gen. Meretskov's operation was aided by units of the Russian Navy, the order disclosed. Moscow saluted the victory with twenty salvos from 224 guns.

Berlin also announced a new

POLES EXECUTED

Moscow, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—The Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation declares that Polish civilians evacuated from Warsaw are being executed at Oswiecim, concentration camp thirty miles west of Kraktow.

The committee said yesterday that virtually all of a group of 12,400 which reached the camp October 14 had been put to death in gas chambers the same day. Males capable of physical labor, however, were sent to Germany.

Iran Oil Stand Brings 4th Russ Press Attack

Moscow, Oct. 25 (AP)—For the fourth consecutive day the Russian press today attacked the Government of Iran for opposition to a Russian offer to develop oil fields in the northern part of that country.

Extensive quotations from Indian newspapers criticizing the Government's policy and demanding its resignation were carried in a Tass dispatch from Teheran.

NOVISAD IS CAPTURED

London, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—The Free Yugoslav radio announced today the capture of Novisad, on the Danube, forty-five miles northwest of Belgrade, by Marshal Tito's Partisans. The capture of Petrovaradin, just across the Danube from the Belgrade-Budapest rail junction, by Russian and Yugoslav forces also was announced.

Finns Close On German Escape Road To Norway

Helsinki, Oct. 25 (AP)—Finnish troops are closing rapidly on three main-road junctions dominating German retreat routes into Norway.

Along the Swedish border, dispatches received here today said, the Germans, supported by armor, are seeking vainly to halt a Finnish onrush at Kihlanki, 30 miles south of Muonio, the crossroads through which traffic is funneled into Norway. The Finns were reported advancing six to seven miles daily.

Along the next escape route, 35 miles to the east, the Finns are approaching the road junction at Kittila, and, along the third and last exit route for the Germans in north-central Finland, the Finns have reached Vutoso, 125 miles south of Ivalo.

In Helsinki for the first time since 1941, street lights brightened the capital.

Finns Arrest War Criminals

Stockholm, Oct. 24 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Dispatches from Helsinki said today that the Finns had arrested certain persons whom the Allies considered guilty of committing war crimes during the fight against Russia, especially in Karelia. Those arrested were not identified.

FRANCO PRESS ACCUSES REDS

Says Russia Seeks To Incite Civil War In Spain

Paris, Oct. 25 (AP)—Two former Spanish Republican Premiers, Juan Negrin and Santiago Casares Quiroga, will come to Paris from London soon to direct a movement for restoration of the republic in Spain, the Agence Francaise Presse reported today.

Meanwhile, Spanish refugee groups here announced their ranks were closing for an anticipated Spanish counterrevolution.

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—The controlled Spanish press accused Russia today of attempting to incite rebellion in Spain and the overthrow of the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

With clashes between Spanish Republican guerrillas and Franco's forces continuing, the concern in Madrid over the possibility that the uprising might develop into a full-fledged civil war was reflected in the Government-dominated press.

Press dispatches accused Russia, "seconded by extremist papers in many democratic countries," of starting a campaign "to make relations between the Spanish Government and the Allies impossible."

Heavy Battles Reported

The Berlin radio reported "heavy battles" already had been fought in Catalonia and added that, although Franco's forces had succeeded in pushing Republican troops back into France, the menace to the generalissimo's regime remains, with further classes on a large scale still possible.

The German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau said approximately 40,000 well-equipped Spanish Maquisards had been concentrated between Toulouse and Pau near the border ready for an attack on Franco's forces. The agency said the Spaniards were "in intimate contact with the French Communist committee in Toulouse and were prepared for action on a grand scale."

Official Britain remained silent on the situation in Spain, but it appeared certain it will soon provoke diplomatic and political ramifications here with the likelihood Prime Minister Churchill will be pressed in Commons for a clear-cut statement on Britain's position toward Franco.

France-Spain Accord Reached

In the midst of his troubles at home, Franco appeared to have gained a diplomatic coup. It was reported from Paris that France and Spain had reached an agreement to reestablish normal diplomatic relations despite the ideological differences between them and the tension over the frontier incidents.

Other Paris reports said clashes between guerrillas and Franco's troops had spread to southern Spain.

Madrid dispatches declared that all but a handful of Republicans in the Navarra sector had been wiped out.

Catholics Called Anti-Franco

Colonel Paz, representing the National Spanish Union, formed to unite all anti-Franco Spaniards in France, and which is affiliated with an underground junta in Madrid, asserted the Catholics in Spain now were generally opposed to Franco because of his "dictatorial actions."

The union spokesman charged 40,000 Germans had fled from France into Spain. Some, he said, are in Franco's forces while others had been aided in escaping to South America. Yesterday the Spanish Embassy said only 1,200 Germans had fled from liberated France into Spain and that all had been interned according to international law.

French Press Hostile

The French press continued to complain of Government censorship which prevented publication of the Republican version of what was going on in Spain and the newspaper Resistance said because of the French Government's action there would be an "intolerable scandal."

Resistance declared that Madrid "will soon be added to the list of liberated cities" and said Franco's Government was doing its best to conceal the increasing turbulence in Spain.

Spain Revolt Said To Be Spreading

Paris, Oct. 25 (AP)—France and Spain have agreed to reestablish normal diplomatic relations despite ideological differences between the de Gaulle and Franco regimes and tension over frontier incidents, well-informed diplomats said today.

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—Clashes between Spanish Republican guerrillas and forces of Generalissimo Francisco Franco have spread even into southern Spain, an officer of the anti-Franco National Spanish Union in Paris declared today.

Madrid meanwhile said all but a handful of the Republicans striking into Spain's Navarra section from France had been wiped out.

Locations Given

The National Spanish Union was formed to unite all anti-Franco Spaniards in France, and claims affiliation with an underground junta of Madrid. In Paris a union official, Colonel Paz, declared clashes were occurring in Andalusia in southern Spain, as well as in Catalonia and Asturias in northern Spain, and other parts of the country. Forays from the French border continue, he said, but there is little information on these struggles.

Colonel Paz charged 40,000 Germans from France had taken refuge in Spain, some aiding Franco's forces and others being helped by the Franco Government to go to South America. He also asserted Catholics in Spain now were largely opposed to Franco because of his dictatorial actions."

Earlier, Lieut. Gen. Yuan Yague, commander of the Navarra corps area, in a Madrid dispatch, said that a handful of the guerrillas remained in hiding in the mountains, but denied any general uprising in the area.

New Call For Civil War

Meanwhile, an open call for a new civil war came from the underground newspaper, Conquest of Spain, organ of the Republican Junta with secret headquarters in Madrid. It urged Spanish army officers to take up arms against Generalissimo Franco.

British quarters were silent on reports of the unrest.

German propagandists, however, seized upon the latest reports from Spain to suggest that French troops might be withdrawn from the Western front to man the Spanish-French frontier.

Paris dispatches quoted the Madrid radio as taking Gen Charles de Gaulle to task for not taking action to subdue the Spanish Republicans who launched their raids on northern Spain from France.

GERMANY'S OIL REFINERIES HIT

1,200 American, 1,000 British Heavies Join Assault

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—Devastating blows were rained on German industry and transportation and oil-producing facilities today by more than 1,200 American and upward of 1,000 British heavy bombers. The daylight raids were carried out despite bad weather.

The United States Eighth Air Force struck at the remnants of natural oil refining installations in the Hamburg area and, for the fourth time, at Gelsenkirchen, home of the Scholven-Buer and Nordstern synthetic oil plants. They also attacked Hamm, the hub of transportation of German war materials.

Although the Germans offered no opposition in the air, an Eighth Air Force communique said two bombers and one escorting fighter were missing.

RAF Attacks Essen

The RAF, in its daylight assault, made Essen its principal target. The Halifaxes and Lancasters droned over the great armament and railway center for half an hour, giving the city its second raid in 36 hours. Large fires sent smoke two miles into the air, returning pilots reported.

At about the same time, other British bombers dropped their loads on a synthetic oil plant at Homberg. A comm nique said the RAF lost four bombers.

Mustangs which escorted the American bombers strafed targets around Hamburg and reported disabling eight locomotives, 36 oil-tank cars and four freight cars.

Germany's Largest Yards

Germany's largest railway yards are located at Hamm, and through them have been moving supplies for the Western front as well as raw materials for German factories.

More than 1,200 Flying Fortresses and Liberators made up the bomber mission, escorted by more than 500 Thunderbolts and Mustangs. Bombing was through clouds by instrument.

Anti-aircraft fire was weak over Hamm, but in addition to a heavier flak barrage over Hamburg the Germans sent up a thick smoke screen.

Today's resumption of daylight pounding of German war industries came after two days of idleness due to bad weather.

Last night RAF bombers attacked objectives in Hannover and western Germany, and mines were laid in enemy waters.

1,700 U. S. Planes Hit Hamburg, Hamm Areas

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—Upwards of 1,700 American planes, 1,200 of them heavy bombers, attacked objectives in the Hamburg and Hamm sectors of Germany today.

Germany's largest freight yards were attacked at Hamm, in the Ruhr and Rhineland area 90 miles northeast of Aachen. Much of Germany's war narterial and reinforcements for the Western Front must traverse its rail spiderweb.

Several oil refineries were bombed at Hamburg.

The bombers had been idle for two days because of weather.

The 500 convoying Thunderbolts and Mustangs saw no German interceptors.

CHURCHILL PLANS COMMONS REPORT ON MOSCOW VISIT

By E. V. W. JONES

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(AP) "Unconditional surrender in the sense of no bargaining with the enemy is still the policy of the government," Prime Minister Churchill reiterated today in the House of Commons.

Churchill, who will report Friday on his recent conferences with Premier Stalin in Moscow, avoided questions as to how unconditional surrender was reconciled with the fact former enemies were now fighting on the Allied side, and regarding privileges for Nazi individuals who surrendered unconditionally.

"I don't think there is any reason for alarm," he said, adding that such matters must be settled between the principal Allies.

He suggested that the House bear in mind also the three-power declaration of May 12 to Axis satellites warning them to quit Germany.

Agreeing to a short debate Friday after his Moscow report, the Prime Minister declined to engage in a foreign affairs discussion today, saying it would not be wise to go into details on delicate international problems "on the spur of the moment."

House members, however, asked if Germany would be made to pay for the worthless occupation marks with which she flooded the conquered countries.

"The issue of currency is only one of the many ways in which Germany has exploited the countries she has occupied," Churchill said. "I cannot at this stage say in what way her various exactions will be dealt with at the final settlement."

Minister of State Richard Law earlier had told the House that the respective zones of influence in the Balkans had not been decided upon during the Moscow talks.

Law said that although Bulgaria had declared war on Germany, the country still technically was at war with the allies and definitely can not yet be considered a co-belligerent.

Total Surrender Still Is Policy: Churchill

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill reiterated in the House of Commons today that "unconditional surrender in the sense of no bargaining with the enemy is still the policy of the Government."

He suggested the House should bear in mind also the three-power declaration of May 12 to Axis satellites, in which they were warned to quit Germany.

The Prime Minister declined to engage in a foreign-affairs debate, declaring it would be unwise to go into details on delicate international matters "on the spur of the moment." There will be an opportunity for debate after his report Friday on his Moscow mission, he said, but added he hoped it would be short.

Questions Unanswered

He left unanswered questions as to how unconditional surrender was reconciled with former enemies becoming "apparent Allies" and as to whether Nazis who surrendered unconditionally would be given Government posts in Germany.

Earlier Richard Law, Minister of State, told the House Britain and Russia had made no decision during the recent Moscow talks on respective zones of influence in the Balkans.

Although Bulgaria has declared war on Germany, he said, the country is still technically at war with the Allies and could not yet be recognized as a cobelligerent.

(A Retuers dispatch quoted Law as saying that armistice terms for Bulgaria were still in the consideration stage, and he hoped there would not be a long delay.

(The British Government, the Minister continued, was not consulted about Marshal Joseph Tito's use of Bulgar troops in Yugoslavia. An M. P. suggested that Tito's action was in conflict with the proposed armistice terms for Bulgaria.

(Law said: "No, I think Marshal

30. 24 — 1975

Tito's action is not in conflict with anything except in a purely technical sense. In this case it is obviously desirable in the highest degree that the greatest possible pressure should be brought to bear upon the enemy. That is the main consideration.")

Churchill turned aside a question as to whether Germany would be made to pay for the "worthless marks" with which she flooded occupied countries.

London Attache Of Argentina Recalled

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—Argentina has recalled Col. Pablo Beretta, its military attache in London, after an invitation to visit the Allies' Western front was suddenly withdrawn.

While the Argentine Embassy was officially silent, it was reported authentically here that the action occurred several days ago and presumably resulted from lack of cooperation in his country's foreign policy in the war against the Axis.

Similar invitations extended to the military attaches of other South American embassies have not been withdrawn, so far as could be learned today.

Robots Hit England; No Casualties Reported

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Germans struck at southern England and London with their flying bombs last night for the second night in succession, but the Ministry of Information said today the raids apparently caused no casualties but some damage was done.

A number of the robots fell to anti-aircraft fire.

Earl's Son Given Year By Field Court-Martial

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—Capt. William Douglas-Home, 32, third son of the Earl of Home, must serve one year in prison for "not obeying a lawful command" and refusing to fight in the attack on Le Havre, September 8.

His dishonorable discharge from the British army also was ordered by a field courtmartial whose findings were announced here today.

Douglas-Home last month wrote a letter to the Maidenhead Advertiser saying he refused to fight when ordered "as I could not bring myself to take part in an operation against (German) troops who admittedly did not want to fight but whose commander refused to accept unconditional surrender."

Reich Revolt 'Possible'

Stockholm, Oct. 24 (AP—Delayed)—The German workers' newspaper Der Angriff frankly discussed today the possibility of uprisings by foreign workers in Germany, but expressed the opinion that the newly mobilized home guard would be able to handle any outbreaks pending the arrival of regular troops.

The paper, in an article quoted in Swedish press dispatches, said doubtless there were some "adventurers" among the foreign workers who might try to start trouble. It added, however, that the majority of the foreigners—of whom it has been estimated there are about 12,000,000 in Germany—were "too wise" to follow them.

The article disclosed that foreign workers in German factories range from 20 to 80 per cent.

Peace Prize Omitted Again

Stockholm, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Nobel Foundation recommended to the Swedish Government today that no peace prize be awarded this year. The last such award was made in 1938.

KEY BOLOGNA BASTION FALLS

Fifth Army Takes Monte Belmonte, On South Approach

Rome, Oct. 25 (AP)—American Fifth Army troops have captured Monte Belmonte, one of the key bastions guarding the southern approaches to Bologna, after a week of bitter fighting, the Allied high command announced today.

On the Ardiatic sector British Eighth Army units advanced another three miles without encountering opposition, which indicated that Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring may be withdrawing to a new line of defense.

Fierce Fighting Still Ahead

The Fifth Army now is firmly established in the Monte Grande-Monte Spaduro area some six miles from the lateral Bologna-Rimini highway and is in a position to compel the Germans to make a major defensive readjustment in northern Italy.

An official headquarters statement said, however, the Fifth Army still faced heavy resistance.

To the east of the main American drive on the German supply and communications base at Bologna, other Fifth Army units continued flanking drives toward Castel San Pietro and Imola, junction points on the Bologna-Rimini highway.

Bologna Urged To Rise

The Allied high command said in a radio broadcast to the people of Bologna that liberation of their city was near and urged them to use "all means at your disposal to destroy the German invader."

On the Adriatic front British troops pushed back German rear guards above Cervai and reached the Savio river, four miles north. The Canadian bridghead across the Savio north of Cesena has been enlarged and reinforced, headquarters said. Polish and Indian troops in the mountains southwest of Cesena also made minor advances.

British troops moving along the coast are now only eight miles south of the big coastal city of Ravenna.

Yanks' Bologna Drive Gains

Rome, Oct. 25 (AP)—Fifth Army troops ground out important gains today in the mountainous southern approaches to the Italian communications hub of Bologna, while the Eighth Army rolled through receding German resistance in the Adriatic end of the Po Valley.

After a week of bloody fighting in the mist-shrouded Apennines American doughboys drove the Germans from Monte Belmonte, a mountain key to the enemy's defense of Bologna. The Americans held it against several counterattacks.

Bridgehead Expanded

At the eastern end of the Po Valley virtually all German resistance now has ceased in the triangle formed by the Savio river as it runs northward from Cesena to the Adriatic. British and Canadian troops of the Eighth Army, after enlarging separate bridgeheads across the Savio on each side of Cesena, now are advancing northwestward astride the Bologna highway with tank support. Polish and Indian troops operating in the mountains to the southwest made minor advances.

Directly on the coast Eighth Army troops, in an advance of three and a half miles, reached the village of Savio near the river's mouth—only eight miles short of the big coastal city of Ravenna—without contact with the Germa.

Appeal To Patriots

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Allied high command in Italy told Patriots of Bologna today in a Rome broadcast that the liberation of their city was near and urged them to use "all means at your disposal to destroy the German invader."

BRITISH DRIVING AHEAD IN GREECE

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ROME, Oct. 25.—(AP) The British drive to clear the Germans out of Greece has swept up Dhomokos, 30 miles north of Lamia, and the Germans have evacuated Volos, seaport on the eastern coast of Greece, Allied headquarters announced today.

The communique said the Germans moving northward out of Volos, which has a population of 48,000, were suffering heavy casualties at the hands of Greek guerrillas. These Germans face a grueling 125-mile trek to the Yugoslav border, through mountainous country thickly dotted with guerrilla bands.

Dhomokos is 37 miles west southwest of Volos.

British naval planes operating from the escort carrier H.M.S. Attacker have taken a heavy toll of German coastal and land transport in the vicinity of Katerine, on the west side of the gulf of Salonika, the communique said. Katerine is 66 miles north of Volos and 33 miles southwest of the port of port of Salonika.

Naval fliers attacked Nazi troop-carrying barges, landing craft and motor transport. Planes of the Balkan air force destroyed 10 vehicles and damaged 47 others in a motor convoy in North Albania, the communique said. In attacks on Nazi escape routes in Yugoslavia, Spitfires destroyed or damaged 34 vehicles. Beaufighters hit German trains and barracks with rockets.

Maj. Gen. R. M. Scobie, commander of Allied forces in Greece, speaking at Corinth paid tribute to the resistance movement and said the Germans gradually were being cleared from Greece.

British In Greece Enter Dhomokos

Rome, Oct. 25 (AP) — British patrols following the German withdrawal out of Greece have entered Dhomokos, 30 miles north of Lamia, Allied headquarters announced today.

The occupation of Laima, 93 miles northwest of Athens, was announced yesterday.

Headquarters also disclosed today that the Germans have evacuated the port of Volos, about 45 miles northeast of Lamia and 37 miles from Dhomokos, after suffering severe casualties at the hands of Greek guerrillas.

From Volos the retreating Germans are confronted with a 125-mile trek northward before they reach the Yugoslav frontier.

Headquarters announced that additional Allied troops have been landed at Piraeus, port of Athens.

Greek Cabinet Formed

Athens, Oct. 25 (AP)—Formation of a Greek cabinet embracing representatives of eight political parties and two independents was announced last night by Premier George Papandreou.

Only three of the 17 Cabinet members served with the Greek government-in-exile in Cairo—Nicolas Askoutsis, Communications Minister; Philip Dragoumis, Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, and Pannoyotis Kanelopoulos, Marine Minister. Papandreou holds the War and Foreign Affairs ministries.

The Premier said that at the next Cabinet meeting he would call for mobilization of the four youngest classes of Greek reservists.

ANKARA, Oct. 25—(AP)—Turkey tonight announced its recognition of the French provisional government.

Jap Snipers, Artillery Active On Tiddim Road

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 25 (AP)—Japanese snipers and artillery were reported active today against Fifth Indian Division troops moving along the Tiddim-Fort White road toward enemy-held Kennedy Peak in northwest Burma.

"Our own guns," said a communique from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters, "harassed enemy troop movements on the road."

BATTLE RAGES NEAR KWEIPING

Chinese Are Fighting To Stem Japanese Kwangsi Drive

Chungking, Oct. 25 (AP)—Chinese troops are battling four miles west of Kweiping to stem an enemy drive through southern Kwangsi province aimed at outflanking Kweilin, its provincial capital, the high command announced tonight.

Eight miles southwest of Kweiping the Chinese were said to have surrounded a Japanese force and put it under repeated attack. Nine miles south of Kweiping the Japanese attempted to push a force across the Yu river in the hope of rescuing the encircled troops, and "this column still is being thrown back by our forces," the high command said.

Gateway To Liuchow

A drive through Kweiping would open the way to Liuchow, 70 miles to the northwest, site of an American air base. Liuchow itself is 90 miles southwest of Kweilin, capital and pivotal center of the Chinese defense network in southeast China.

Closely supported by United States 14th Air Force planes, the Chinese also engaged the enemy near Pingnam, 27 miles northeast of Kweiping.

In the north the Chinese made progress in attacks against enemy positions 12 miles southwest of Hingan, a Hunan-Kwangsi railway town.

American planes hammered the Japanese positions in the Kweiping sector of the West river bend in a series of attacks, without encountering enemy opposition in the air.

Pingnam Bombed

Japanese strong points, ammunition dumps, troop concentrations, machine-gun positions and pillboxes were pounded with incendiaries and fragmentation bombs. Pingnam was bombed, with 100 per cent. hits scored on the target, and the southeast end of the Tanchuk airfield's runway was blasted, a communique from Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said.

Ninety miles north of Kweilin, in western Hunan province, the Chinese have recaptured the town of Sinning, an important point on the enemy right flank, after a three-day attack. It is about an equal distance west of the Japanese-held Canton-Hankow railway junction of Hengyang and helped protect the enemy's right in the drive southward against Kwangsi.

The Chinese said the Japanese there retreated eastward toward Tungan on the Hunan-Kwangsi rail route, 90 miles northeast of Kweilin.

Sinning Retaken By Chinese Troops

Chungking, Oct. 25 (AP)—The United States 14th Air Force sank, probably sank or damaged more than 130,000 tons of Japanese shipping from October, 1943, through October 18, 1944. A communique said today that the force helped cause Japan's present tanker shortage.

Chungking, Oct. 25 (AP)—Chinese troops have recaptured Sinning, an important point in the enemy's right flank 90 miles north of Kweilin, the Chinese high command announced today.

The announcement said the beaten Japanese retreated toward Tungan on the Hunan-Kwangsi railway, 90 miles northeast of Kweilin. The city of Kweilin is a key defense center of the Chinese in Kwangsi province and is the site of a former American air base.

It was announced that Chinese units also continued to engage the invaders about 12 miles west of Hingan, a Hunan-Kwangsi railway town 31 miles north of Kweilin.

Gain Near Kingan

The Chinese made progress in attacks against Japanese positions located 12 miles southwest of Hingan and 21 miles north of Kweilin. This was in the area of the closest Japanese penetration toward Kweilin.

On the West river front in southern Kwangsi fighting raged in the vicinity of Kweiping, 70 miles southsoutheast of Liuchow, and near Pingnam, 80 miles southeast of Liuchow, the Chinese high command said.

Chinese Spokesman Cites Reds In Attacks

Chungking, Oct. 25 (AP)—P. H. Chang, a Cabinet spokesman, said today in reply to questions that clashes had occurred during August and September between Chinese Government and Chinese Communist troops. He asserted that the Communists took the initiative.

Chang said that toward the end of August the Communists attacked the Government's 61st Army about 18 miles east of Linfen on the Tungpu railway in southwestern Shansi province. The Communists were repulsed, he said.

The Communists then concentrated more than 14 regiments and on September 8 again attacked the 61st Army while mobile units attacked the 72d Government Division, which being outnumbered, was forced to retreat.

On September 11 the Communists attacked Government troops at Chiulin in eastern Shensi province and on September 21 moved against Kankangpinghsiang.

Cologne Light-up May Be Tip on Rebel Movement

OCT 26 1944

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Former Chief of the Berlin Bureau of the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP) The lighting of Cologne and Duesseldorf, which surprised and amazed American reconnaissance flyers on the nights of October 18 and 19, may well be the sign of far-going rebellion within Germany against the regime of Adolf Hitler.

I can at least assert that the plan for turning on the lights as a sign that revolutionary elements are in control was considered seriously by the German underground of 1941 as I then knew it.

Late in October, 1941, I, as chief of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press, was invited to the home of a Bavarian attorney living in Berlin. He had been certified to me by various reliable German democrats as a bitter anti-Nazi with a brief but informative Nazi past.

But first, a little more about his background:

"As you know," he said to me, "the self-styled fuehrer in the years of his ascendancy was all things unto all men. Hence, when he promised honesty in public office and berated the corruption that followed the war, I fell for him. For a while I was even a member of his more intimate circle.

"Then, one day, some of the more rabid Nazis suggested that escaped criminals or men with criminal records might be very useful as bodyguards for the movement. I turned to Adolf Hitler.

"To my amazement he said: 'I don't care what a man's past is, so long as he is loyal to me personally. The private lives of my followers also don't concern me.'

"I resigned then and there."

This man subsequently developed his plan of action and that of the anti-Nazis with whom he was working. He pointed out how nothing could be so dangerous as a premature attempt at revolution, for then Gestapo oppression would become all the more severe. Significantly enough, he feared that military officers, who he said knew nothing about politics and revolutionary movements, might strike without having the masses behind them. In view of the abortive generals' "putsch" of July 20, this statement looms important.

"If and when we are ready to strike, we must do it in a manner that will capture the popular imagination," he contended.

"Now, with the coming of Adolf Hitler into power, the lights have gone out in Germany—first figuratively and now, since the war, literally.

"What our country needs is light—the light of freedom of expression, the light of free interchange of information with the outside world, the light of untrammeled inquiry. 'Let There Be A Light' should be a catching slogan for our underground, a slogan that will seize popular imagination.

"What better evidence could we give to our adversaries that Adolf Hitler and his clique do not speak for the German people, than that of lighting the streets of the cities which we wrest from the Nazis? And how dramatic it will be for city after city to turn on the lights as the popular uprising progresses! Our present adversaries will then know in what direction to move, and where they may count upon collaboration in their effort to cleanse the earth of the scourge of Naziism."

The words sounded unbelievable at the time. Yet there was something so earnest and convincing about them that I jotted them down in full in my diary.

The reports from Cologne and Duesseldorf recall them vividly. There is at least an even chance that the lighting of the streets of these cities in recent nights indicates the existence of a revolutionary movement.

Japs May Face Wartime Tin Shortage, Reds Say

San Francisco, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Japanese apparently are facing a wartime shortage of tin.

The Soviet news agency Tass today quoted a Radio Tokyo broadcast as saying the Japanese Government had decided to withdraw small tin coins from circulation and replace them with paper money because of "the importance of tin during the present war."

The Federal Communications Commission recorded the Tass broadcast.

Jap Newspapers To Be Smaller

San Francisco, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—Jap newspapers will be limited to a total of fourteen pages a week, four less than now, after November 1, the Jap Domei Agency said today in a dispatch recorded by the FCC.

Shanghai Outskirts Bombed

San Francisco, Oct. 25 (AP)—Two Allied planes bombed the outskirts of Shanghai this morning (Japanese Time), the Nippon news agency Domei reported today in a Tokyo broadcast picked up by the Federal Communications Commission. Domei claimed that "no damage was done."

Italy is the first of the former enemy states with which relations have advanced to such a point that normal peacetime diplomatic contacts can be restored.

A State department statement said that Alexander C. Kirk would be named Ambassador to Rome. He is now serving as American representative on the Advisory Council for Italy in Rome.

The United States action was taken after consultation with Great Britain and Russia and with the other American republics, except Argentina.

OCT 26 1944

Soviet Russia already had a kind of diplomatic relationship with the Italian government, having exchanged representatives, although not ambassadors, months ago.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill announced after their recent conference at Quebec that the Italian government was to be given an increasing measure of freedom from Allied military control. Since then United States and Britain have undertaken various financial and economic measures to aid the rehabilitation of Italy.

Spain Denies Gestapo Runs Police

Washington, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—The Spanish embassy said last night that all Germans who fled from France into Spain have been interned and are being dealt with in strict conformity with the regulations of international law without heir having any participation in Spanish public affairs.

The embassy said that it was issuing the statement because of published reports, which it called pure fabrication, that 15,000 Gestapo men had entered Spain, taken possession of the Spanish police and were directing tyrannical persecution of moderate liberals and Catholics.

Telephone Rates Cut To 4 Overseas Points

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission announced today that the American Telephone and Telegraph Company has filed tariffs calling for general rate reductions on overseas telephone calls between the United States, the Bahamas, Jamaica and Hawaii, effective November 1.

The FCC said that as examples a three-minute weekday call between Washington and Jamaica will cost $10.50 under the new tariff instead of $17.25; a call between Washington and Hawaii will be $12 instead of $13.50, and a call between Washington and the Bahamas will be $6 instead of $6.75. Proportionate reductions will be made on Sunday rates also.

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today the names of 176 casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 69,551 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 27,745 are reported dead, 27,801 wounded 9,525 missing and 4,480 prisoners of war. Included in the list are following with their next of kin:

76 Soldiers Are Termed Army's 'Forgotten Men'

New Haven Men in Pacific for Nearly 3 Years

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP).—Representative Ronulb Compton, Republican, of Connecticut, in a letter to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, today urgently appealed for the return home of seventy-six New Haven soldiers in the South Pacific whom he described as the "forgotten men" of the Army because they hadn't been home for nearly three years.

These boys, Representative Compton told Mr. Stimson, "have had nothing more than seven or ten days' furlough in a foreign country in the thirty or more months they have been stationed in the South Pacific." They comprise the original 208th Anti-Aircraft Battery, and twelve of them now are attached to Battery D, 745th A. A. A. Gun Battalion, the letter stated.

2 Jersey Flyers in Outfit Also Receive the Medal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP).—The War Department announced today award of the Distinguished Flying Cross to these New York members of the 15th Army Air Force:

Captain Lester Baum, 30 Westminster Road, Brooklyn; Captain Jerome C. Casper, 147 West Eighth Street, Brooklyn; First Lieutenant Alvin I. Fisher, 225 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn; First Lieutenant Truman D. Green, Watertown; First Lieutenant Joseph W. Kappel, 1615 Forty-eighth Street, Brooklyn; First Lieutenant Howard I. Miller, 336 Fort Washington Avenue, New York; First Lieutenant Thomas W. Monahan, 176-04 Sunbury Road, St. Albans, Queens, N. Y.; First Lieutenant Thomas P. O'Reilly, 118-23 202d Street, St. Albans, Queens, N. Y.; First Lieutenant Willis J. Pardoe, Oneida; First Lieutenant Harry J. Prosser, North Tonawanda; Second Lieutenant Murray Blacker, 1549 East Twenty-second Street, Brooklyn; Second Lieutenant Paul A. McCarthy, Pelham Bay.

The following New Jersey members of the 15th A. A. F. also received the cross:

Lieutenant Joseph W. Palis, 114 Grove Street, Bloomfield, and Second Lieutenant James E. Neal, 83 Duer Street, North Plainfield.

President Talks Ships With Land

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—Vice-Admiral Emory S. Land reported after a White House conference today that President Roosevelt has told "the Maritime Commission to prepare a bold and daring plan for improving the American merchant marine and maintaining its future position."

The Maritime Commission chairman and Henry J. Kaiser, West Coast shipbuilder, were luncheon guests.

Kaiser said the plan discussed at the White House luncheon "is to accelerate now the Maritime Commission's development, design and construction of greatly improved types of passenger, cargo and coastwise vessels."

Designing And Constructing

"The President stated emphatically we should lose no time in preparing designs for and constructing (a large tonnage of good vessels) the equal of any in the world," Land told reporters.

"Construction of these new types will be scheduled to prevent interference with vessels and materials required for war."

Land said the President urged immediate inauguration of the program so that it could be a factor in employment during the conversion period from war to peace.

Emphasis On Time

He quoted Mr. Roosevelt as saying:

"We must not let our merchant marine become static; design and build our advance models as soon as shipyard space and manpower are available."

Land said the President "stated emphatically we should lose no time in preparing designs for and constructing such vessels; also to improve cargo handling facilities, improve propulsion equipment and install the most modern devices."

"We especially need modern, comfortable, low-travel-cost passenger ships," Land said.

Kaiser said, under the plan being worked out by the Maritime Commission, competitive bids to construct improved types of both passenger and cargo vessels will be taken by the Government. The completed vessels will be sold by the Government to private operators.

PLANS 4 AIR TRIPS A DAY TO EUROPE

OCT 26 1944

Washington, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—Charles L. Gallo, rate analyst and executive assistant of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., outlined today a schedule of four trips daily between the United States and Europe if TWA is authorized to put Lockheed Constellations into service over the North Atlantic.

Mr. Gallo testified in behalf of the TWA application for a route from Washington to Calcutta, India, during the Civil Aeronautics Board joint hearing on requests for routes across the North Atlantic.

The Constellation is a four-engine plane weighing upward of 80,000 pounds and capable of carrying fifty-seven day passengers. Its cruising speed is rated at 300 miles an hour or more. The plane is now in production as the Army's C-69. It holds an unofficial cross-country transport record of 6 hours, 58 minutes.

Using the Constellation, TWA expects to offer fares of $205 between Washington and London, $209 between Philadelphia and Paris, $512 between Boston and Calcutta, $297 between Detroit and Athens, $317 between New York and Cairo.

LITTLE STEEL WAGE ACTION IS DELAYED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP) The possibility of the War Labor Board's Little Steel wage report reaching President Roosevelt before the election virtually vanished today when the board, after consideration of a preliminary draft, deferred further discussion until next Tuesday, Oct. 31.

In the same meeting, a split in the labor vote developed when AFL members voted against a CIO motion to begin discussion of the current steel wage dispute and other CIO cases tomorrow. The motion failed for want of a majority, with the two AFL members voting with the four industry members, and the CIO voting with the four public members.

The board then voted eight to four to take up specific cases next Tuesday, the same day that discussion of the report to the President will be resumed. The labor members, both AFL and CIO, were in the minority on the second vote.

The proposed report to the President, on the possible impact on the National Wage policy of a pay increase demanded by both AFL and CIO for 1,000,000 workers in steel and a dozen other industries, was offered by WLB's public representatives, in rough draft. It had been prepared after the board's lengthy hearings on Labor's demands that the administration scrap the Little Steel formula limiting general pay increases to 15 per cent over January, 1941, levels.

WLB has already voted 8 to 4 to pass the Little Steel dispute to the White House as a factual presentation, without specific advice, in view of price-structure considerations outside the board's jurisdiction.

Chairman William H. Davis conceded that today's decision to put off further discussion until next week destroyed his earlier prediction that the report would reach the President about November 1. He declined to pick another date saying that also probably "would be knocked into cocked hat." Davis said the delay was agreed to in order that other members of the board would have an opportunity to study the proposed report and so that the public members who wrote it might do further work on it. He said the draft as submitted was not complete.

...NE PARTS PLANT SEIZED

Navy Takes Control After Dispute Over Price Rate

OCT 26 1944

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—The navy today took over operation of the aircraft parts plant of the Lord Manufacturing Company at Erie, Pa., under order of President Roosevelt, as the result of a price dispute, the first action of its kind.

Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowan and a staff of seven moved into the plant after issuance of the President's executive order, which said that the Lord company had "willfully refused and failed to furnish" war materials at prices fixed in a joint army-navy order of September 23.

The plant produces rubber mounts for aircraft engines and instruments.

Asserting that the company's conduct "has interfered with the production and supply of aircraft parts and other essential war materials," the President's order directed the Secretary of the Navy to operate the plant "in such manner as he deems necessary for the successful prosecution of the war."

Terms Change Charged

The army-navy repricing order of September 23 was termed at that time the first application of a pricing provision in the 1943 Revenue Act. The announceme t said it followed "the failure of the services and Lord Manufacturing Company to agree on prices deemed fair and reasonable by the services."

The President's order said today that the Lord company had changed the terms and conditions of sale "in such a way as to increase the return to the said company above the prices fixed" in the army-navy order.

OCT 26 1944

At Erie, Thomas Lord, company vice-president, conferred with other company officials and was expected to meet later with Admiral Bowan.

"We don't want to go broke voluntarily," said Lord, in commenting on the seizure.

Asked what the company's policy is in the seizure, he said:

"There has been no holdup of production. There has been no holdup of shipments. The only holdup has been by the Government who has advised their prime contractors not to pay C. O. D. or sight drafts in order to pick up shipments at destinations and those shipments have been invoiced at Government price. They have not been, however, subject to the open terms or cash discounts which were in effect when we had our own price."

League To Depend On Congress: Ball

OCT 26 1944

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.), in his first speech since announcing his support of President Roosevelt for reelection, said tonight the question of a post-war world security organization "is and of necessity must be a political issue."

"Easy generalities and evasive commitments from political candidates are not enough," he said in a prepared address before Americans United for World Organization.

Declaring he would prefer the question of a peace structure to be nonpartisan or bipartisan, Ball asserted:

"It is a political issue because the convictions and attitudes on it of the President and the Congressmen and Senators elected this fall will in the final analysis determine whether or not the United States will join an effective world security organization.

"Without the United States in it, such an organization cannot hope to succeed."

Ball, who made no reference either to President Roosevelt or to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, said, however, that in a radio address tomorrow night he would expand on his reasons for supporting Mr. Roosevelt over his own party's candidate.

LaGuardia Commended On Tour Arrangements

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt, who toured New York city for four hours last Saturday in the rain, telegraphed Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, who accompanied him most of the time, that he hoped the Mayor had not suffered from exposure.

The telegram, made public today by LaGuardia, said:

"Now that I am back in Washington, I hasten to tell you how greatly I appreciate the splendid arrangements carried out during my visit to New York last Saturday. Everything went with the precision of clockwork, and I want to thank you and all who cooperated with you in making the tour of the city go off so smoothly under the handicap of unfavorable weather. Hope you personally suffered no serious difficulties from the exposure."

News Advertisements Aiding War Totaled

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Advertising in support of the war effort in domestic daily and Sunday newspapers totaled $57,969,242 in the year ended July 31, the American Newspaper Publishers Association reported today.

The ANPA's bureau of advertising said the report covers war effort support in advertising columns only, that news and editorial matter are not included.

Topping a list of 42 different war-support projects were war bonds, which totaled $26,101,024 in advertising space for the 12 months period. Next in importance included don't telephone, Red Cross, wastepaper salvage and recruiting—armed forces.

Hanley Sets U.S.-Russian Day

ALBANY, Oct. 25 (AP)—Lieut. Gov. Joe R. Hanley, acting in the absence of Governor Dewey, today proclaimed Nov. 16, the eleventh anniversary of the resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Russia, as American-Russian Frendship Day.

Mr. Hanley declared that the relations between the people of the United States and the people of Russia had been "consistently and warmly friendly" for more than 160 years, and added: "The peace of the world and the future of the world depend in large measure upon the continuance of this warm and historic friendship."

CURRAN VOWS AID FOR WORLD PEACE

Syracuse, Oct. 25 (A. P.).—Thomas J. Curran, Republican nominee for United States Senator from New York, is pledged to work for a world organization which will be able to keep the peace.

The New York Secretary of State, in an address at a Syracuse rally last night, declared:

"I pledge to work for a world organization in which all peace-loving nations, great and small, will be represented and to see that this world organization shall develop effective co-operative means to keep the peace and to prevent or repel military aggression."

OCT 26 1944

Mr. Curran said that the Republican party was committed in its platform to responsible participation by the United States in post-war co-operative organization. He added that Gov. Dewey, G. O. P. presidential nominee, did not quibble in his declaration that force might be necessary to preserve the peace.

Urging immediate decision on the principles of peace which the United States plans to follow, Mr. Curran said that the Government should see to it that its agreements with other nations are arrived at openly, that foreign policies made today and tomorrow must not represent power policies and that there should be an end in Washington to foreign policy by improvization.

DANAHER URGES END OF 'SECRECY' ON PEARL HARBOR

OCT 26 1944

WATERBURY, Oct. 25 — (AP) U. S. Senator John A. Danaher, Republican seeking reelection, said tonight that Prime Minister Churchill was called before Parliament to explain the loss of the Prince of Wales and the Renown off Maylaysia, but "we lost a whole fleet at Pearl Harbor and the American people still do not know the truth."

"I say," he asserted in at a meeting of the Republican Town committee here, "that the time has come when the people of the United States, if they are to have a voice in their own affairs and in their own government, are entitled to know all the facts.

"That's why the Republicans promise to 'keep the American people informed concerning all agreements with foreign nations."

Criticizing further what he described as President Roosevelt's refusal to discuss foreign affairs, Danaher said that both Churchill and Stalin had stated publicly, since the Atlantic Charter was drafted, that it "must be markedly revised."

"If the Atlantic Charter represented what the American people were told was an outline of our foreign policy," Danaher asked, "what revisions are being demanded? What remains of the provisions to which our nation believed it had secured commitments? You do not know; the President does not tell you. Your Congress does not know; the President does not tell us. Yet, who is to consider and possibly to debate questions of policy in behalf of the American people if not their own representatives in Congress?"

Report Is Not Final, Navy Tells Kimmel

Boston, Oct. 25 (AP)—A demand by counsel for Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel for immediate publication of findings of a navy court of inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster brought from the navy today a reply that the report is not final until approved by Secretary Forrestal.

Kimmel was naval commander at Pearl Harbor December 7, 1941. He was relieved of his command on charges of dereliction of duty. Charles B. Rugg, the retired admiral's counsel, telegraphed Forrestal yesterday that "simple justice and common decency require immediate public announcement of the court's findings as to Kimmel's innocence or guilt."

Gatch's Reply

In reply, Rear Admiral Thomas L. Gatch, judge advocate general, said.

"With respect to this request it should be pointed out that no report, findings or opinion of any naval court of inquiry are final until they have been finally approved by the convening authority, who in this case is the Secretary of the Navy."

Gatch added that Forrestal had asked Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, to advise him what security classification should be given the documents marked "secret" and "top secret" by the court of inquiry.

ASKS BYRD'S STAND ON F. D. R.

Labor Union Official Sends Wire To Senator

OCT 26 1944

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 25 (AP)—I. C. Welsted, secretary-treasurer of the Virginia Federation of Labor, called on Senator Byrd today to answer "hostile rumors that you are unwilling to come out properly for the head of the Democratic ticket."

The labor official said he sent the following telegram to Virginia's junior Senator:

"I have seen notices in the Norfolk papers that you are too busy picking apples to make an address for President Roosevelt. This is a condition we well understand.

"However, as an answer to the hostile rumors that you are unwilling to come out properly for the head of the Democratic ticket; may I ask if you are willing for us to use any public statement made by you in behalf of President Roosevelt in 1940.

"If so, kindly direct your secretary to send me copies of any speech made by you or statement given to the press four years ago in behalf of the head of the Democratic ticket."

Asks For Copies

Welsted said he requested copies of Senator Byrd's previous utterances for Mr. Roosevelt "because if there were any, we fail to recall them, and, therefore, would have to have copies in order to put them to use in the present campaign."

Earlier this week Norfolk newspapers published articles saying that Simon Sonnenberg, head of the Holt Street Independent Voters' League, sponsors of a Roosevelt-Truman-Daughton rally at which Governor Darden and State Senator Ralph H. Daughton will speak, had invited Byrd to speak here for Roosevelt at such a time as suited his convenience, and that Byrd had sent Sonnenberg this reply:

"In answer to your telegram, I regret to advise you that conditions are such here (Winchester) in connection with the harvesting of a very large apple crop that I am unable to accept your invitation. My three boys are in the service, and the burden of the work here has fallen entirely on me."

MEDAL OF HONOR WINNER IS HOME, PLANS TO MARRY

CARTHAGE, Miss., Oct. 25—(AP) First Lieut. Van Thomas Barfoot, Mississippi's second congressional medal of honor winner of the present war, was at home on the farm today "with plenty of mom's cooking" under his belt and his squirrel rifle across his knee.

"I figure on getting in a little peaceful hunting with dad, just for a change," said the six-feet-four inches of soldier who killed seven Germans, captured 17 others, destroyed two enemy machine-gun nests, knocked out a Mark IV tank and carried a wounded buddy 600 yards to safety through enemy fire—all in a single action.

The soldier met his "Dad," Sim Barfoot, here yesterday after the town physician flagged the elder Barfoot down on the highway in from the farm to tell him his boy had arrived.

The soldier was in the town's drug store where he used to stop in on Saturday night before the war. "There he is. That's Pop," he yelled. And, a moment later, "oh gee, Pop."

"It's been a long time, son." The old man kissed his boy on the cheek, and there were tears in their eyes.

"Mom" was out at the barn when they reached the farm, 10 miles from here. "God bless my boy," she cried. "It seems like home now that he's here. If I can just keep him now. . . ."

Five sisters and two brothers crowded around, out there at the barn.

"He's a good boy," said his father. "He's always been a good boy and a good farm hand."

"These clothes won't keep me from picking cotton or husking corn or doing anything else that's needed to do around here, either," the soldier said.

Back at the house he pointed to the picture of a blonde young woman. "That," he said, "is Miss Norma Louise Davis of Halliford, Va.,—the future Mrs. Barfoot. You can write about her all you want to.

"She's scheduled to arrive in Carthage by Sunday night," he added, "or I'll go up there and get her myself."

Lieut. Barfoot is home on a 24-day delay enroute to a redistribution center at Mami Beach, Fla.

Uruguay Expects Record Wool Crop

Miami, Fla., Oct. 25 (A. P.).—G. Posadas Belgrawo and Julio B. Pons, Montevideo attorneys, reported today that the 1945 wool yield will be one of the greatest in Uruguay's history.

They said that 10 per cent of the yield will supply Uruguayan markets, and the rest will be exported to the United States.

The two attorneys are en route to Rye, N. Y., to attend an international business conference.

DEWEY DECLARES NEW DEAL REGIME 'SELLS PRIVILEGE'

OCT 26 1944

G.O.P. Nominee Quotes Letter Soliciting $1,000 Campaign Contributions.

HITS CITY 'BOSSES'

Links Them With Hillman, Browder; Big Crowd Hails Him in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25. — (AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, returning to the scene of his nomination, charged tonight that "for a thousand dollars laid on the line to finance the fourth term drive" President Roosevelt's administration "boldly offers for sale 'special privilege,' including the special privilege of assisting 'in the formulation of administration policies'."

In a major campaign speech preceding President Roosevelt's appearance here Saturday for an address in Soldier Field, the Republican presidential nominee asserted that working together for a fourth term the nation would find "the bosses of the corrupt big city machines, Sidney Hillman's Political Action Committee and Earl Browder and his Communist party."

In one of the most vigorously-worded indictments of the New Deal he has uttered in the campaign, the New York Governor quoted from a letter dated last Oct. 16, which he said was written from a letterhead of the national Democratic campaign headquarters, Little Rock, Ark., and signed by H. L. McAlister and Sam J. Watkins, state finance directors, inviting the recipient to join the "One Thousand Club."

Text of Dewey's Address Will Be Found on Page 13

OCT 26 1944

"Planned at White House"

Dewey quoted the letter as saying the idea for such a club had originated "at a recent conference at the White House between the President, Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National committee, and Edwin W. Pauley, treasurer of the committee. He said the letter continued that at this meeting the President had said:

"I think it would be a good idea to have a list of 1,000 persons banded together from all over the United States to act as a liaison to see that facts relating to the public interest are presented factually to the President and members of Congress."

Dewey then read what he said was the following quotation from the letter:

"Members of this organization undoubtedly will be granted special privilege and prestige by party leaders. These members will be called into conference from time to time to discuss matters of national importance and to assist in the formulation of administration policies."

"To be eligible for membership in the One Thousand club will require a contribution of $1,000 to the national Democratic campaign fund."

"There in crude unblushing words," Dewey told a nationwide radio audience, "is the ultimate expression of New Deal politics by the theory of 'who gets what, when, and why.'

"For a thousand dollars laid on the line to finance the fourth term drive this administration boldly offers for sale 'special privilege,' including the special privilege of assisting 'in the formulation of administration policies.'

Says New Deal Lacks Honesty

Declaring the Roosevelt administration "lacks even rudimentary honesty," Dewey said:

"And the sponsor of this idea is frankly stated in that letter to be the President himself. The man who holds the highest office within the gift of the American people at a conference in the White House sponsors an idea to sell 'special privilege' and a voice in 'the formulation of the administration policies for one thousand dollars on the barrelhead. That's why it's time for a change."

OCT 26 1944

Hailed by Big Crowds

Dewey, acclaimed by the biggest and most enthusiastic outpouring of his nation-wide campaign, told a crowd in the same auditorium where he was nominated last June that the President's asserted solicitations of campaign funds was a "brazen piece of business."

"The New Deal began by casting aside the platform it had adopted in this city 12 years ago," he declared, and went on from there "to exploit for its own political ends the plight of millions of American men and women for whom in peace time it never succeeded in providing jobs."

"Men and women on WPA and on relief in state after state," he said, "were shaken down for political contributions to the New Deal.

"For the sordid purpose of buying votes with money which belonged to the needy, people were added wholesale to the WPA payrolls before election only to be brutally thrown off after the votes had been safely counted."

He quoted from what he called a "fourth term campaign pamphlet," of which he said two million copies had been distributed, as saying "'politics is the science of how who gets what, when and why.'"

Hits "Machine Bosses"

"There in brief," he declared, "is the practical lesson of 12 years under the New Deal. There is the practical reason why we find working together for a fourth term the bosses of the corrupt big city machines, Sidney Hillman's Political Action committee, and Earl Browder and his Communist party.

"They are working together to perpetuate my opponent in office for 16 years because they think they know the answer to the question of 'who gets what, when and why.' What it is they expect to get, the American people are not supposed to know. When and why they expect to get it, is clear.

"They expect to get it in the next four years—as a reward for their services in behalf of the fourth term."

Earlier, at a news conference shortly after his arival from Minneapolis and Milwaukee, the New York Governor said there was "absolutely no doubt about it" when asked if he thought the now familiar phrase "clear it with Sidney" ever had been uttered by President Roosevelt to party leaders in Chicago before the Democratic national convention.

Dewey charged that "time and again this administration has sought to do by subterfuge what it did not dare to do directly."

Refers to Court Plan

"You remember Mr. Roosevelt's attempt to pack the Supreme Court," he said. "He had a Congress overwhelmingly composed of his own supporters, but that was not enough. He wanted an obedient Supreme court—one which would follow his advice to Congress not to 'permit doubts as to constitutionality, however reasonable," to stand in the way of his designs.

"He knew no such proposal could succeed if presented in a straightforward manner. So he disguised it in a lengthy plan to 'reform' the courts. He solemnly said in a message to the Congress of the United States that the Supreme Court was behind in its work. But the Chief Justice of the United States nailed that one personally. He announced that 'the Supreme Court is fully abreast of its work' and he cited the figures to prove it."

The Republican nominee asserted that while Congress had not passed this proposal "time and mortality and 12 years in office have enabled Mr. Roosevelt to pack the courts with his New Deal appointees."

"The very preservation of our liberty demands that this practice be stopped, and that's another reason why it's time for a change" he New York Governor declared.

Obviously still nettled by Mr. Roosevelt's use of the words "fraud" and "falsification" in his opening campaign speech before the Teamster's union last month, Dewey repeated his Oklahoma City challenge of "well, once again he has asked for it—here it is."

Then he went on to declare that the President "brazenly claims credit" for the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

"This," he said, "is a matter that goes right to the heart of the honesty of this present administration.

"The truth is the man who sponsored Federal insurance of bank deposits was Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, a Republican, and Mr. Roosevelt opposed and fought against it every step of the way."

OCT 26 1944

Appeals to Women

The Republican nominee opened his speech with a tribute to the nation's women declaring they are "deeply concerned in this campaign because the fundamental issues are moral—the simple questions of honesty and good faith."

He expressed a hope that women will take "an increasing part in our national leadership in the years to come."

Gov. Dwight Green, who headed the Chicago reception committee, said at least 500,000 persons turned out to see the candidate's motor parade from the railroad station down Randolph street to State street and along Michigan boulevard.

Capt. George Johnstone of Park police estimated the street and station crowds "very conservatively" at 60,000 total.

Reporters accompanying the Dewey campaign party agreed it was the noisiest and most enthusiastic demonstration he has encountered thus far.

Bareheaded and smiling, but wearing a grey topcoat against chill winds, Dewey rode through a storm of torn paper in Chicago's famous Loop district to his hotel overlooking Lake Michigan. His progress was punctuated by loud salutes from a truck-mounted gun that sent the steeds of mounted policemen into wild cavortings along the boulevard.

At the hotel, which only a few months ago was the headquarters of both national convention parties, Dewey held a series of conferences before going to the scene of his nomination, for his speech.

He had arranged to leave immediately afterward for Albany, where he plans to remain until Saturday. Then he will journey to Syracuse, N. Y., which he described as the "agricultural heart of New York state" for the farm speech he was to have delivered in Minneapolis last night. He delayed that talk in order to reply to President Roosevelt's foreign policy speech of last Saturday.

Dewey's comment on Hillman was one of several replies to queries by newsmen.

At Milwaukee before coming here, Dewey told a street crowd that "nothing could be so helpful to victory as to stop the quarreling, waste, bungling, and confusion in Washington."

Declaring that "for 10 years under this administration we have made absolutely no progress," the New York Governor said he was ready to restore peacetime prosperity with a program "carefully built, brick by brick."

"Victory is in sight," he said. "We shall continue with an ever greater efficiency in the conduct of the war with a change in administration."

Dewey spoke before a crowd of several thousand that jammed around his open car in front of a Milwaukee hotel after an overnight run from Minneapolis.

On the ride through Wisconsin, Dewey paid tribute to that state's labor and agricultural record. Declaring Gov. Walter S. Goodland had told him there had not been a single major strike in Wisconsin since the war started, Dewey said:

"That is a magnificent record of American patriotism."

CHICAGO, Oct. 25—(AP) Following is the text of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign speech tonight in Chicago.

It is good to come again to Chicago and to be the guest of your great governor, Dwight Green. It is also good to hear from everyone that he, together with your next senator, Richard Lyons, will be overwhelming elected on November 7th.

Since I was here in June, a great campaign has gained force daily to restore honesty and competence to our government. All over the country that movement has taken hold until now it has become an irresistible, tide sweeping on toward victory for a free America in November. The strength of that movement does not lie in any individual. It springs from an urgent conviction in the minds of our people.

The women of our country have had a vital part in advancing this cause. Today, throughout the nation, there has been a splendid demonstration of women's contribution to public affairs and of their faith in America. And tonight, Republican women in cities, towns and farm areas all over the country are meeting to perfect their plans to get out the largest possible vote.

Governor Bricker and I appreciate deeply the great work women are doing in this campaign. They have again shown an active and public-spirited citizenship. They will, I hope, take an increasing part in our national leadership in the years to come.

Moral Issues

The women of America have an especial interest in this campaign because they know that the decision they make will determine the kind of a country their husbands, brothers, sons and sweethearts will return to when the war is over. They know, too, that the decision we make next November 7th will determine whether America is to have the kind of government which can carry through to success the hopes of all of us for World cooperation to prevent future wars. And women are, also, deeply concerned in this campaign, because the fundamental issues of this campaign are moral—the simple questions of honesty and good faith.

30. 24 — 19879

As this World war moves toward our inevitable victory, it becomes our high duty to decide in an election whether we shall save in America the principles for which we have fought abroad. We have fought at greater cost than ever before in our history for high moral principles—for freedom, justice and integrity. With these, America is the land of opportunity, of faith and of freedom.

Governments, like people—are judged on the principles by which they live. Thomas Jefferson defined the basic principle of government this way. He said: "The whole art of government consists in the art of being honest." That was a good definition when Jafferson pronounced it. And I am old-fashioned enough to believe that it is still a good definition.

Now, let us see how the New Deal's most vigorous supporters define the art of government as it has developed these past 12 years. Here is the opening sentence of a fourth term campaign pamphlet, of which two million copies have been distributed on behalf of Franklin D. Rooseevlt. It reads: "Politics is the science of how who gets what, when and why."

There in brief is the practical lesson of 12 years under the New Deal. There is the practical reason why we find working together for a fourth term the bosses of the corrupt big city machines, Sidney Hillman's Political Action Committee, and Earl Browder and his Communist party.

OCT 26 1944

"Who Gets What"

They are working together to perpetuate my opponent in office for 16 years because they think they know the answer to the question of "Who gets what, when and why." What it is they expect to get, the American people are not supposed to know. When and why they expect to get it is clear. They expect to get it in the fourth term and at the expense of the American people—as a reward for their services in behalf of the fourth term.

But the American people will have another answer. From the American people this whole greedy, power-hungry assortment will get a resounding "No" next November 7th.

The New Deal began by casting aside the platform it had adopted in this city 12 years ago. That was the platform that was called a solemn "covenant with the people" and which Mr. Roosevelt promised to support one hundred per cent.

You know what happened to that. The New Deal went on from there to exploit for its own political ends the plight of millions of American men and women for whom in peacetime it never succeeded in providing jobs.

Men and women on WPA and on relief in state after state were shaken down for political contributions to the New Deal. For the sordid purpose of buying votes with money which belonged to the needy, people were added wholesale to the WPA payrolls before election only to be brutally thrown off after the votes had been safely counted.

OCT 26 1944

"Nine Votes in Family"

Take, for example, the following instructions given to a director of WPA by a Democratic county chairman in South Dakota:

"Please place this man on WPA on the special set-up you have that takes care of rush men as welfare will not certify. Have looked into affair—has nine votes in family."

The whole story was set forth by a Senate committee, four of whose five members were Democrats. "Funds appropriated by the Congress for the relief were Democrats. "Funds appropriated by the Congress for the relief of those in need," this Senate committee said, "have been diverted . . to political ends." The facts, it said, "should arouse the conscience of the country."

But my opponent's conscience was not aroused. Instead, he made a speech in Kentucky, where some of the worst of these scandals had been uncovered, and said: "Personally I am not greatly disturbed by these stories." Instead of government consisting "in the art of being honest" my opponent gave us government as the science of "who gets what, when and why."

The tragedy was that the needy suffered, so votes could be garnered at election time. We don't want to go back to that after the war. That's why it's time for a change.

Cites Court "Packing"

Time and again this administration has sought to do by subterfuge what it did not dare to do directly. You remember Mr. Roosevelt's attempt to pack the Supreme Court. He had a Congress overwhelmingly composed of his own supporters, but that was not enough. He wanted an obedient Supreme Court—one which would follow his advice to Congress not to "permit doubts as to Constitutionality, however reasonable," to stand in the way of his designs. He knew no such proposal could succeed if presented in a straight-forward manner. So he disguised it in a lengthy plan to "reform" the courts. He solemnly said in a message to the Congress of the United States that the Supreme Court was behind in its work. But the Chief Justice of the United States nailed that one personally. He announced that "The Supreme Court is fully abreast of its work" and he cited the figures to prove it.

OCT 26 1944

The Senate Judiciary committee, a majority of whose members were Democrats, denounced the plan as "a proposal that violates every sacred tradition of American democracy." The Congress rejected it. But time and mortality and 12 years in office have enabled Mr. Roosevelt to pack the courts with his New Deal appointees. The very preservation of our liberty demands that this practice be stopped—and that's another reason why it's time for a change.

Now, my opponent, whose veracity had to be corrected by the Chief Justice of the United States, is now talking in this campaign about "fraud" and "falsification." He implies that others have adopted his devious methods. Well, once again, he has asked for it. Here it is.

A few months ago, Mr. Roosevelt drew up a list of New Deal achievements for the benefit of the press. Almost the first achievement for which he took credit was the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for insuring bank deposits. This is a matter that goes right to the heart of the honesty of this present administration. The truth is the man who sponsored Federal Insurance of bank deposits was Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, a Republican, and Mr. Roosevelt opposed and fought against it every step of the way.

Here is the record. Senator Vandenberg first introduced a bill for deposit insurance in December, 1932. Mr. Roosevelt had previously opposed the whole idea as "an impossible drain on the Federal treasury." Senator Vandenberg again proposed it as an amendment to the Banking Act of 1933. Mr. Roosevelt, on June 2, 1933, wrote Senator Carter Glass as follows:

"I must, therefore, again express to you my definite feeling that the Vandenberg amendment must be rejected in toto, even as revised, and again repeat, no modification of this amendment proposed so far will avoid a serious situation." But Congress passed the bill and now he claims credit.

I am glad to say other members of this administration have acknowledged the truth. For example, the chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation wrote to Senator Vandenberg in 1934: "I consider you to be the father of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act."

"Wornout New Deal"

Once again, we find that social progress is not the property of any one party or of any one man. Certainly it is not the property of the tired and worn out New Deal.

Yet, my opponent, who brazenly claims credit for what another man did, recklessly tosses about the words "falsification" and "false witness."

This is the same man who, when he ran for a second term, said: "My great ambition on January 20, 1941, is to turn over this desk and chair in the White House to my successor."

This is the same man who, when he ran for a third term, said: "When that term is over there will be another President." And to make that doubly impressive he said to his neighbors on the evening before he cast his ballot in that election and this, and I quote: "Is the last time, very obviously, that I will do this as a candidate for office" and now he's running for the fourth time. Is it any wonder that when the White House speaks the first question the people ask is not whether the news is good or bad, but "is it true?" Is it any wonder that the Christian Century, an outstanding religious publication read by thousands of God-fearing men and women in this country, has passed this sober judgment on the present administration:

'Lost Moral Confidence'

"From the very beginning, Mr. Roosevelt has used deception as a major political stratagem until today he has lost the moral confidence of the nation. Even in the ranks of those blocs which represent his followers his support rests not upon their confidence in his integrity but upon the cynical assurance that he will serve their interests because their votes are necessary to his maintenance in power."

But deception is not the only political stratagem that this administration has employed in the effort to perpetuate itself in power for 16 straight years. Listen to this brazen piece of business.

I have here a letter dated October 16, 1944. It is written on the letterhead of the National Democratic Campaign headquarters, Little Rock, Arkansas, and signed by H. L. McAlister and Sam J. Watkins, State Finance Directors.

It begins: "This is an invitation to you to join the one thousand club . . ."

"The idea of such a club," the letter continues, "originated at a recent conference at the White House between the President, Robert E. Hannigan, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and E. W. Pauley, treasurer of the committee. At this meeting the President commented:

"I think it would be a good idea to have a list of one thousand persons banded together from all over the United States to act as a liaison to see that facts relating to the public interest are presented factually to the President and members of Congress."

The letter explains the idea behind this plan of my opponent. This is what it says, and I quote:

"Members of this organization undoubtedly will be granted special privilege and prestige by party leaders. These members will be called into conference from time to time to discuss matters of national importance and to assist in the formulation of administration policies." Those are the words of the letter.

"To be eligible for membership in the one thousand club will require a contribution of $1,000 to the National Democratic Campaign fund."

"Special Privileges for Sale"

There, in crude unblushing words is the ultimate expression of New Deal politics by the theory of "who get what, when and why." For a thousand dollars laid on the line to finance the fourth term drive, this administration boldly offers for sale "special privilege," including the special privilege of assisting "in the formulation of administration policies."

And the sponsor of this idea is frankly stated in that letter to the President himself. The man who holds the highest office within the gift of the American people at a conference in the White House sponsors an idea to sell "special privilege" and a voice "in the formulation of administration policies" for one thousand dollars on the barrelhead. That's why it's time for a change.

Let me make one thing clear right now. In the new administration that takes office next January 20th there will be no special privilege for sale to any one at any price. There will be no special privilege for individuals, groups or sections of our people.

When that new administration takes office, every American will stand equal in the eyes of our government. We will once again restore honesty and integrity to the White House so that its spoken word can be trusted.

In the years that lie ahead, the United States must give leadership to the world if we are to realize the aspiration of people everywhere for enduring peace.

How can we give that leadership when our own government has lost the moral confidence of the nation? How can such an administration give strong and effective representation to the interests of the American people anywhere? How can we hope to solve the massive social and economic problems that will confront us in the postwar years with an administration which lacks even rudimentary honesty—an administration which has forgotten that "the whole art of government consists in the art of being honest"?

Let us resolve here and now to put an end to Government by the cynical theory of "Who gets what, when and why." We need a housecleaning of the followers of that practice who have for 12 years infested our nation's capital.

We need then to create a responsible cabinet, composed of the ablest men and women in the country. We need once more to make government responsive to the will of the people. We need men in Washington who believe in the people of America and in the unlimited future of this country. We need the kind of government in which there will be no place for deception or for special privilege. We need a government which believes and practices, in public and in private, the art of being honest.

With such a government, quarreling and bickering will come to an end and victory on every front will be speeded. With faith in our future, we can and will bring 10 million heroes home promptly after victory—home to an America with jobs and opportunity for all.

F. D. R. DUBBED 'PRISONER'

Bricker Says PAC, Communists Have Political Hold

Dallas, Texas, Oct. 25 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker tonight appealed to Texas Democrats, split by dissension over the fourth-term issue, to vote Republican "to save the two-party system of government."

The Republican nominee for Vice-President, speaking in Fair Park auditorium, declared the "historic Democratic party" had been taken over by the Communists and the Political Action Committee, and that President Roosevelt "is their political prisoner."

"Most of those in the PAC," he said, "are radicals and Communists, and some of them are not even citizens of the United States."

3,700 In Audience

Addressing an audience of Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats estimated at 3,700 persons by Roy Rupard, secretary of the State Fair, the Ohio Governor asserted that nine "New Deal officeholders" had left Federal Government positions to help the PAC manag ethe campaign to reelect Mr. Roosevelt to a fourth term.

Among them he listed C. B. Baldwin, former security administrator, who he said left a $10,000-a-year job to become PAC's assistant chairman.

OCT 26 1944

In Texas Appeal

In an obvious appeal to dissident elements of the Democratic party in Texas, the Ohio Governor declared:

"They (PAC and Browder) are running the campaign of Franklin Roosevent for a fourth term. It is not the Democratic party. They have merely appropriated the party label for their political purposes this fall.

"No real Democrats have any choice in the policies or decisions of their historic party. To all intents and purposes, the great Democratic party has become the Hillman-Browder Communist party, with Franklin Roosevelt at its front."

"They'll Call Tune"

Bricker declared that if Mr. Roosevelt were reelected, Browder and Sidney Hillman, chairman of the PAC, "will call the tune."

The President, Bricker remarked, "can't repudiate any of these persons—or groups—because he, himself, is their political prisoner."

"He now is in desperate need of any kind of support," Bricker continued, "and these men, in turn, are in need of a vehicle on which to gain access to the power of government they covet so deeply."

Names Eight Others

Describing the move of the nine Federal employes to the PAC as "another revealing bit of evidence showing the tieup" between the New Deal and the PAC, the Governor said the others who moved were:

Charlotte Carr, from a $6,500-a-year position with the War Manpower Commission to become PAC director in New York: Joseph Carr, from a $6,500 job as treasury consultant, to the PAC research staff; C. A. McPeak, from a $5,600 position with the War Production Board to head PAC in Texas; Verda Barnes, assistant director of WMC information, to take charge of the PAC women's division; George S. Mitchell, assistant administrator of the Farm Security Administration, to supervise PAC in nine Southern States; Raymond S. McKeough, a regional director of OPA, to become mid-Western director of PAC; Emil Corwin, from the Agriculture Department to head PAC's radio division, and Ping Ferry, from OPA investigator in New Hampshire, to be publicity director of PAC.

New Rocket Launcher

Chicago, Oct. 25 (AP)—The army's new M-12 rocket launcher, which gives a soldier in a foxhole the same hitting power as the 4,325-pound 105-mm. howitzer, has achieved "devastating results" against the Japanese in island fighting in the Pacific, Col. John Slezak, chief of the Chicago Ordnance District, said today.

The M-12 launcher weighs but 22 pounds—light enough to be carried by one man—and fires a 4.5-inch rocket weighing 38 pounds.

DEWEY 'HIDING,' SAYS TRUMAN

Demand For "Repudiation" Of 8 "Isolationists" Renewed

OCT 26 1944

Chicago, Oct. 25 (AP)—Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic nominee for Vice-President, divided his time today between resting and working on a farm-policy address he will make at Peoria tomorrow night, after renewing a demand that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey "repudiate" eight Republican Senators whom Truman called "isolationist."

"The Republican candidate for President says he is for a strong foreign policy," Truman said, "but he apparently is satisfied to have returned to the Senate eight men in sharp disagreement with such a policy."

Mayor Edward J. Kelly and a group of officials met Truman when his special car arrived last night from a trip through Wiscorsin where the candidate made informal speeches at Madison and Milwaukee.

In a statement Truman declared Dewey is "hiding under the bed," having "neither the courage nor the honesty" to reply to a suggestion that he call for the defeat of Republican Senators Taft, Ohio; Nye, North Dakota; Tobey, New Hampshire; Reed, Kansas; Wiley, Wisconsin; Danaher, Connecticut; Davis, Pennsylvania, and Millikin, Colorado.

Their "public utterances and voting records," the statement asserted, "brand them as isolationists and untrustworthy on foreign affairs."

The statement, announced while Dewey toured Wisconsin, added:

"Let us find out whether Mr Dewey is going to join Curly Brooks (Illinois), the Republican isolationist, elected to the Senate by the efforts of Bertie McCormick and the Chicago Tribune in campaigning in Wisconsin for the isolationist Alexander Wiley."

[In Milwaukee, Dewey declined to comment directly on Truman's statement but in reply to a reporter's request said, "I'm in favor of Senator Wiley's election, of course."]

60 Million 'Medically Destitute In Europe'

Chicago, Oct. 25 (AP)—Without including Germany and its satellites, or Russia, more than 60,000,000 people in Europe are now "medically destitute," Roy F. Hendrickson, deputy director general of the United Nations Relief and Rahabilitation Administration, said today.

"New crops of physicians have not been turned out, older doctors have been withdrawn in large numbers and many medical supplies have not been available for years past," he declared in an address prepared for delivery to the 27th annual meeting of the American Dietetic Association.

No Estimate On Reich

He offered no estimate regarding the situation in Russia or in nations still under Reich influence.

Declaring that food extracted from occupied and satellite areas has helped Germany maintain an adequate nutritive level through the war, Hendrickson said she now has lost substantial quantities of these imports by reason of Anglo-American and Russian advances.

Ex-President Ubico Going To New Orleans

Brownsville, Texas, Oct. 25 (AP)—Former President Jorge Ubico, of Guatemala, today left for New Orleans where, he said, he planned to remain until his country returns to normal.

Ubico, who had served as President since 1931, turned over the Guatemalan Government several months ago to Gen. Federico Ponce, who himself was ousted as President by revolutionary forces last week. General Ponce arrived in exile in Mexico City Monday.

Ubico said he got out of his country yesterday with only the clothing he wore. He said he and his wife, who is accompanying him, took refuge in the English Embassy during the uprising.

Bing's Crooning 'Hypnotizes' Snake In New Guinea

OCT 26 1944

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 25 (AP)—An army officer in New Guinea has written to thank Bing Crosby for saving his life—with crooning.

"Several nights ago I was sitting in my tent listening to one of your programs," Lieut. Col. Earle O. Thornton, Jr., related in a letter to Crosby. Thornton left the tent briefly, he continued, then——

"On returning I raised my foot to step into my tent, but suddenly I was paralyzed. Right where I would place my foot was a four-foot death adder.

"He was in a coil and had his head slightly raised and was facing the radio, as if he were listening. There we were, the snake hypnotized and me paralyzed.

"Finally I jerked away and borrowed a machete from another tent and whacked him in two. Imagine—the whole thing lasted three or four minutes, and in all that time that snake evidently hadn't moved a muscle.

"So the next time they throw Sinatra up to you, tell them: 'I even hypnotize snakes 10,000 miles away.'"

ADD LONDON -(FRYE) XX REPORTED

TOGETHER THE BRITISH AND CANADIAN DRIVES THREATENED BOTH ENDS OF THE RAIL AND HIGHWAY NETWORK SERVING THE GERMANS IN SOUTHWESTERN HOLLAND AND WERE PUSHING THE NAZIS BACK FROM THEIR LONG-DISTANCE BLOCKADE OF ANTWERP, NEEDED BY THE ALLIES TO FUNNEL SUPPLIES TO THE MAIN FRONT FACING EAST TOWARD GERMANY.

OCT 26 19

A FIELD DISPATCH DECLARED THAT THE CAPTURE OF 'S HERTOGENBOSCH WOULD IMPERIL THE ENTIRE GERMAN FORCE ESTIMATED AT BETWEEN 60,000 AND 70,000 MEN IN WESTERN HOLLAND.

THE BRAZZAVILLE RADIO DESCRIBED THE STREET FIGHTING IN 'S HERTOGENBOSCH AS BITTER AND REPORTED THAT THE BRITISH HAD CAPTURED THE NORTHERN HALF OF THE KEY COMMUNICATIONS HUB AND CATHEDRAL CITY. THE BROADCAST ADDED THAT THE BRITISH WERE SLOWLY CLOSING A TRAP AROUND THE CITY.

THE GERMAN RADIO, IN AN EARLY MORNING WAR REPORT, ADMITTED THAT BRITISH INFANTRY HAD BROKEN INTO 'S HERTOGENBOSCH BUT GAVE NO DETAILS OF THE FIGHTING.

'S HERTOGENBOSCH WAS AT THE NORTHERN END OF A 12-MILE FRONT ALONG WHICH THE BRITISH WERE ADVANCING WESTWARD. THE SOUTHERN WING OF LT. GEN. SIR MILES C. DEMPSEY'S POWERFUL ASSAULT FORCE CAPTURED THE LONG AND BITTERLY DEFENDED GERMAN BASTION OF BEST.

THE BRITISH UNITS AT BEST AND THOSE WHICH TOOK BOXTEL, MIDWAY ON THE FRONT, WERE FROM EIGHT TO 13 MILES AWAY FROM THE EVEN MORE IMPORTANT ENEMY DEFENSE CENTER OF TILBURG, A CITY OF 81,000 POPULATION.

OCT 26 1944

TILBURG, BREDA AND ROOSENDAAL ARE ON A HIGHWAY AND RAIL LINE LINKING 'S HERTOGENBOSCH AND BERGEN OP ZOOM. IF THE BRITISH AND CANADIANS DRIVE THE ENEMY FROM ALL FIVE DUTCH CITIES THE NEXT NATURAL DEFENSIVE LINE FOR THE GERMANS IS THE LOWER MAAS (MEUSE) RIVER, APPROXIMATELY NINE MILES TO THE NORTH.

IN THEIR NORTHWARD DRIVE TOWARD BERGEN OP ZOOM THE CANADIANS TOOK THE RAIL AND HIGHWAY CAUSEWAY LINKING SOUTH BEVELAND ISLAND IN THE SCHELDE ESTUARY WITH THE MAINLAND. THEY ALSO PUSHED DOWN THE CAUSEWAY A MILE AND A HALF INSIDE THE ISLAND TO WITHIN A FEW HUNDRED YARDS OF THE TOWN OF MAIRIE.

WEST OF ANTWERP THE FERRY PORT OF BRESKENS, ACROSS FROM VLISSINGEN (FLUSHING) ON LARGELY-FLOOD WALCHEREN ISLAND AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE ESTUARY, WAS HELD FIRMLY BY THE CANADIANS. A FIELD DISPATCH SAID ALLIED BOMBING HAD KNOCKED OUT ALL BUT ONE OF THE GERMANS' LONG-RANGE GUNS AT VLISSINGEN, WHICH EFFECTIVELY BLOCKED THE LONG WATER APPROACH TO ANTWERP.

IN THEIR DRIVE ACROSS THE FLAT CANAL-LACED COUNTRY THE BRITISH WERE FLATTENING NEAT DUTCH HOUSES AND ENTIRE VILLAGES BECAUSE THE GERMANS WERE USING EACH HOUSE AND BARN AS A FORT.

STANDING BEFORE THE RUINS OF THEIR HOMES THE DUTCH CHEERED ON THE BRITISH AND OFFERED THEM THEIR PITIFULLY SMALL TREASURE OF FOOD--APPLES AND MILK. THE DUTCH WERE WILLING TO WITNESS THE DESTRUCTION OF THEIR PROPERTY TO BE FREE OF THE GERMANS, FIELD DISPATCHES SAID.

THE MAIN ALLIED FRONT LARGELY WAS QUIET. NEAR THE SOUTHERN END OF THE LINE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY TROOPS DROVE THE GERMANS OUT OF THE FRENCH TOWNS OF MORTAGNE AND BIFFONTAINE, IN THE VOSGES MOUNTAIN FOOTHILLS SOUTHEAST OF EPINAL, YESTERDAY AFTER GRIM HOUSE-TO-HOUSE FIGHTING.

FINALLY THE PLANE RAN OUT OF GAS, AND THE PILOT, LT. CARLE THOMSEN, 1029 BLAINE AVE., RACINE, WIS., WAS FORCED TO SET DOWN THE SHIP AT AN ALTERNATE BASE 100 MILES FROM HOME.

"WE GOT OVER THIS PLACE, MIND @7,, AND THE CONTROL TOWER SIGNALS US TO MAKE ANOTHER CIRCLE," GROANS MELTON. "WE REALLY SWEATED THAT ONE. THOSE FOUR RED WARNING GAS INDICATORS ON THE DASHBOARD WERE GOING ON AND OFF LIKE LIGHTS ON THE FRONT OF A MOVIE THEATER ADVERTISING A DOUBLE FEATURE AND BANK NIGHT....AND THERE WAS THAT GUY TELLING US TO GO 'ROUND AGAIN. BUT WHILE THE DOUGHFEET HAVE AN EDGE IN THAT DEPARTMENT, AIRMEN HAVE IT ALL ON THEIR SIDE WHEN IT COMES TO SERVING AS DUCKS IN THE SHOOTING GALLERY FOR GERMAN GUNS.

OCT 261944

THAT BROUGHT THE TOTAL TO MORE THAN A SCORE FROM WHICH THE JAPANESE YOKE HAS BEEN LIFTED.

SPEAKING TO FILIPINOS IN THE BATTLE AREAS, OVER THE "VOICE OF FREEDOM" RADIO, OPERATING ON LEYTE, MACARTHUR URGED THEM TO HARASS THEIR CONQUERORS CONSTANTLY. THOSE OUTSIDE THE BATTLE ZONES WERE CAUTIONED TO AWAIT FURTHER INSTRUCTIONS.

ACKNOWLEDGING THE ASSISTANCE OF THE ISLAND INHABITANTS, MACARTHUR SAID THAT "SELDOM" HAD ENEMY-OCCUPIED SHORES BEEN PENETRATED BY A MILITARY COMMANDER WITH "A GREATER POTENTIAL OF INTERIOR SUPPORT."

RAIDS BY SUPPORTING AIRCRAFT SUNDAY AND MONDAY ON ENEMY AIRDROMES IN THE WESTERN VISAYAN ISLANDS AND NORTHERN MINDANAO, MACARTHUR REPORTED, DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 65 JAPANESE AIRCRAFT, 34 OF THEM ON THE GROUND. INTENSE ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE SHOT DOWN SIX ALLIED PLANES BUT ALL AIR CREWS EXCEPT ONE PILOT WERE RESCUED.

NEUTRALIZING RAIDS FROM ALL SOURCES ON ENEMY AIR INSTALLATIONS, THE COMMANDER SAID, FRUSTRATED JAPANESE ATTEMPTS TO BRING IN AIRCRAFT FROM LUZON, TO THE NORTH, AND FROM BORNEO, TO THE SOUTHWEST.

THE ADVANCE TOWARD TABONTABON WAS MADE BY LEMENTS OF THE 96TH DIVISION, ADVANCING FROM TANGHAS, NINE MILES NORTH OF DULAG. THEY SKIRTED THE CATMON HILLS, DOMINATING THE COAST NORTH OF DULAG, AND ENVELOPED THOSE STRONG NATURAL POSITIONS HELD BY THE ENEMY.

MEANWHILE FORWARD PATROLS AND ARMORED UNITS OF THE 7TH DIVISION OF THE 24TH CORPS SMASHED THROUGH ENEMY SCREENING FORCES TO SEIZE THE SAN PABLO AIRDROME. THESE UNITS THEN FANNED OUT NORTHWARD TOWARD DUGAMI.

DUGAMI, AN INCORPORATED CITY, IS ABOUT SIX MILES NORTHWEST OF SAN PABLO. IT IS AT THE JUNCTION OF A NORTH-SOUTH HIGHWAY AND ONE RUNNING NORTHEAST TO THE COAST AT TANAUAN, WHICH IS STILL IN ENEMY HANDS.

(A DAYLIGHT ASSAULT BY B-29S OF THE 20TH AIR FORCE ON KYUSHU, SOUTHERNMOST OF THE MAIN JAPANESE HOMELAND ISLANDS, WAS ANNOUNCED IN WASHINGTON AND BY THE TOKYO RADIO. THE TOKYO BROADCAST, MONITORED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, SAID THE ATTACK WAS COORDINATED WITH THE INVASION OF LEYTE, PROBABLY "TO INTERFERE WITH OUR SUPPLIES TO THE PHILIPPINE SECTOR."

(THE WASHINGTON ANNOUNCEMENT DID NOT IDENTIFY THE TARGETS IN TODAY'S RAID, NOR GIVE AOTHER DETAILS. TOKYO SAID ABOUT A HUNDRED PLANES TOOK PART, THAT THE ASSAULT EXTENDED TO SAISHU ISLAND BETWEEN KYUSHU AND THE CHINA COAST AND ADMITTED SOME DEMAGE. IT MADE NO CLAIMS OF SHOOTING DOWN OR DAMAGING ANY OF THE SUPERFORTRESSES, BUT SAID JAPANESE DEFENSES THREW THE RAIDERS INTO SUCH "A STATE OF CONFUSION" THAT THEY FAILED TO ATTAIN "THEIR AIM OF BOMBING IMPORTANT AREAS.")

LONDON--SECOND ADD MACARTHUR X X X COMPLETELY ROUTED.
(ELIMINATING LAST GRAF "OUR GROUND FORCES CONTINUED TO ADVANCE ON ALL FRONTS," THE STATEMENT ADDED.)

EVERY SHIP IN THE SOUTHERN FORCE WAS SUNK OR HEAVILY DAMAGED AND IN ADDITION THE NORTHERN FORCE HAS BEEN DRIVEN OFF, SAID THE STATEMENT.

REUTERS SAID THE COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED THAT THE U.S. SEVENTH FLEET, WITH AN AUSTRALIAN SQUADRON SUPPORTED BY AN ESCORT OF CARRIERS HAD INTERCEPTED BOTH JAPANESE FORCES.

THE TEXT OF THE SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE AS RECEIVED IN LONDON:

"OUR GROUND FORCES CONTINUE TO ADVANCE ON ALL FRONTS.

"IN ONE SECTOR ALLIED TROOPS HAVE THRUST FORWARD NORTH OF TACLOBAN. THE ENEMY FORCES ARE DISINTEGRATING IN ONE SECTOR.

"NEVERTHELESS WE HAVE SEIZED THE HILLS WEST OF PALO AND CAPTURED PONAUAN, TEN MILES TO THE SOUTH.

"WE HAVE CAPTURED THE MAIN ROAD CENTER OF BURAUEN, NINE MILES INLAND FROM TACLOBAN.

"THE ENEMY AIRFORCE ON OCT. 24 ATTEMPTED A LARGE SCALE DAYLIGHT ATTACK ON OUR SHIPPING IN LEYTE GULF SHORTLY AFTER DAWN.

"OUR CARRIER FIGHTERS EFFECTIVELY INTERCEPTED AND BROKE UP A FORMATION. FIFTY THREE ENEMY PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN IN AIR COMBAT AND ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE DESTROYED THREE OTHERS.

"THE JAPANESE FLEET IN FORCE DURING THE EARLY HOURS OF THE 24TH OF OCTOBER APPROACHED PHILIPPINE WATERS AT SURITAO BAY AT THE SOUTH OF SAN BERNAEIO STRAIT. THEY CONVERGED UPON OUR FORCES IN LEYTE GULF.

"THE SEVENTH FLEET WITH AN AUSTRALIAN SQUADRON AND WITH SURFACE FORCES SUPPORTED BY ESCORT CARRIERS INTERCEPTED BOTH ATTACKS.

"THE ENEMY SOUTHERN FORCE COMPRISING TWO BATTLESHIPS, ONE HEAVY CRUISER, ONE LIGHT CRUISER AND FOUR DESTROYERS WAS COMPLETELY ROUTED.

"THE REMNANTS RETREATED WESTWARDS THROUGH SURITAO STRAITS UNDER REPEATED AIR ATTACK FROM OUR ESCORT CARRIERS, SUFFERING LOSSES AND DAMAGE.

"EVERY SHIP WAS EITHER SUNK OR HEAVILY DAMAGED.

"IN THIS ENGAGEMENT WE INCURRED EXTREMELY LIGHT LOSSES HAVING SEVERAL P.T. BOATS SUNK OR DAMAGED AND ONE DESTROYER DAMAGED.

"THE ENEMY'S NORTHERN FORCE COMPRISING FOUR BATTLESHIPS, SEVERAL CRUISERS AND EIGHT DESTROYERS MADE CONTACT WITH ONE OF OUR ESCORT CARRIER GROUPS OFF THE EAST COAST OF SAMAR.

"OUR PLANES FROM THAT GROUP SUPPORTED BY THOSE OF ANOTHER GROUP DROVE OFF THE ATTACKING FLEET FORCING IT TO RETIRE TO THE NORTH.

"DETAILED INFORMATION IS NOT YET AVAILABLE BUT COMBAT REPORTS INDICATE THAT THE ENEMY LOST SEVERAL CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS, WHILE THREE BATTLESHIPS, TWO CRUISERS AND ADDITIONAL DESTROYERS WERE BADLY DAMAGED.

"SHIP CASUALTIES SUSTAINED BY OUR FORCES WERE ONE ESCORT CARRIER SUNK AND SEVERAL ESCORT CARRIERS AND DESTROYERS DAMAGED.

THIRD NIGHT LEAD PHILIPPINES NAVAL BATTLE

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, PHILIPPINES, THURSDAY, OCT.26--A LARGE JAPANESE AIRCRAFT CARRIER, A BATTLESHIP AND SEVERAL CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS ALREADY HAVE BEEN SUNK AND AT LEAST TWO CARRIERS AND FOUR BATTLESHIPS DAMAGED AT A COST OF ONE SMALL AMERICAN CARRIER SUNK AND OTHER WARSHIPS DAMAGED IN CONTINUING NAVAL AND AIR BATTLES OFF THE PHILIPPINES AND FORMOSA.

(GORDON WALKER IN A MUTUAL BROADCAST FROM THE PHILIPPINES SAID "A NAVY SPOKESMAN HERE CLAIMED THAT PRACTICALLY EVERY MAJOR SHIP WITH THE EXCEPTION OF CARRIERS IN THE JAPANESE NAVY HAS BEEN EITHER SUNK OR DAMAGED."

(WALKER SAID IT WAS "ONE OF THE GREATEST BATTLES OF NAVAL HISTORY".)

THE SEVENTH AND THIRD AMERICAN FLEETS WERE ARRAYED AGAINST WHAT WAS DESCRIBED BY ADM.ERNEST J.KING IN WASHINGTON AS "PRACTICALLY ALL OF THE JAPANESE FLEET."

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MORE THAN A YEAR, JAPANESE WARSHIPS CLOSED WITH AMERICAN FLEET UNITS IN GUN BATTLES.

TWO BATTLES WERE FOUGHT IN THE PHILIPPINES FROM WHICH DEFEATED JAPANESE GROUPS ARE FLEETING. A THIRD NAVAL-AIR ENCOUNTER BROKE OUT SOUTH OF FORMOSA.

THE TWO BATTLES IN THE PHILIPPINES WERE WAGED SO CLOSE TO WHERE GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S INVASION ARMIES HAVE BEEN IN OPERATION FOR LESS THAN A WEEK THAT C.YATES MCDANIEL, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT AT SEVENTH FLEET HEADQUARTERS, REPORTED "THE FATE OF THE AMERICAN ARMY ASHOREAT LEYTE HUNG IN A PRECARIOUS BALANCE FOR AN HOUR WEDNESDAY MORNING."

MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED THAT VICE ADM.THOMAS C.KINKAID'S SEVENTH FLEET DARINGLY WAS SPLIT UP TO TAKE ON TWO JAPANESE FLEET GROUPS SIMULTANEOUSLY. ALTHOUGH OUTNUMBERED, THE DIVIDED SEVENTH WON BOTH BATTLES.

IT WAS IN THESE ENGAGEMENTS THAT THE OPPOSING WARSHIPS CLOSED WITHIN GUNFIRE RANGE. IN ONE THEY EXCHANGED SHELLS FOR 25 MINUTES. IT WAS ALSO IN THE PHILIPPINES AREA THAT THE AMERICAN ESCORT CARRIER, THE 10,000-TON U.S.S. PRINCETON, CONVERTED FROM A CRUISER, WENT DOWN. THE BULK OF HER PERSONNEL WAS SAVED.

IN THESE ACTIONS, A JAPANESE BATTLESHIP OF THE 29,300-TON YAMASIRO CLASS WAS SUNK, ALONG WITH SEVERAL CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS AND AT LEAST FOUR MORE BATTLESHIPS WERE DAMAGED.

ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ AT PEARL HARBOR, ISSUING DOVETAILING REPORTS ON THE PHILIPPINES ACTION, ADDITIONALLY DISCLOSED THAT CARRIER PLANES OF ADM.WILLIAM F.HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET WENT INTO ACTION WEDNESDAY (MANILA TIME) AGAINST A THIRD SIZEABLE ENEMY FLEET GROUP SOUTH OF FORMOSA. INCOMPLETE RESULTS INCLUDE THE DEFINITE SINKING OF A LARGE CARRIER AND DAMAGE TO TWO OTHERS. THE BIG FLATTOP WAS THE 13TH NIPPONESE CARRIER LISTED AS DEFINITELY SUNK IN THE WAR.

(WILLIAM DUNN, IN A BROADCAST FOR CBS FROM LEYTE, SAID THAT DURING THE NAVAL-AIR ACTION OFF LEYTE 77 CARRIER-BASED NAVY HELLCATS HAD TO LAND ON THE RECENTLY CAPTURED AIRFIELD AT TACLOBAN, SOME CRASHING. NOT A CREW MEMBER WAS KILLED.

(MANY OF THE PLANES WERE REPAIRED WITH AMAZING SPEED AND QUICKLY RETURNED TO THE NAVAL BATTLE.

("THERE WERE NO GROUND CREWS TO HANDLE THE JOB," DUNN SAID, "AND THE PILOTS THEMSELVES DIRECTED INFANTRY MEN AND ENGINEERS AS THEY ROLLED GAS DRUMS TO THE PLANES. I SAW THEM FITTING BOMBS INTO THE RACKS AND REARM THE GUNS. AS SOMEONE REMARKED, EVERY PILOT WHO ROARED DOWN THAT RUNWAY TO GET BACK INTO THE FIGHT SHOULD HAVE BEEN AWARDED THE NAVY CROSS."

(OTHER PLANES, FROM THE SUNKEN PRINCETON AND OTHER DAMAGED CARRIERS ALSO LANDED AT THE AMERICAN-WON DULAG AIRSTRIP)

THE JAPANESE FLEET APPROACHED PHILIPPINE WATERS "IN FORCE" TUESDAY, MAC ARTHUR AID. ONE FORCE APPEARED AT SURIGAO BAY, SOUTH OF THE SAN BERNARDINO STRAIT, WHICH SEPARATES SMAR AND LUZON ISLANDS. THE SECOND FORCE APPEARED OFF THE EAST COAST OF SAMAR ISLAND.

BOTH WERE INTERCEPTED BY ADM.THOMAS KINKAID'S SEVENTH FLEET, INCLUDING AN AUSTRALIAN SQUADRON, AND ESCORT CARRIERS.

"THE SOUTHERN FORCE COMPRISING TWO BATTLESHIPS, ONE HEAVY CRUISER, ONE LIGHT CRUISER AND FOUR DESTROYERS WAS COMPLETELY ROUTED," MACARTHUR REPORTED. REMNANTS RETREATED WESTWARD THROUGH SURIGAO STRAITS UNDER REPEATED AIR ATTACK SUFFERING LOSSES AND DAMAGE.

"EVERY SHIP WAS EITHER SUNK OR HEAVILY DAMAGED" SAID MACARTHUR. ALLIED LOSSES WERE DESCRIBED AS "EXTREMELY LIGHT," WITH SEVERAL PT BOATS SUNK OR DAMAGED AND ONE DESTROYER DAMAGED.

THE NORTHERN ENEMY FORCE, OFF THE EAST COAST OF SAMAR, CONSISTED OF FOUR BATTLESHIPS, SEVERAL CRUISERS AND EIGHT DESTROYERS. IT MADE CONTACT "WITH ONE OF OUR ESCORT CARRIER GROUPS OFF THE EAST COAST OF SAMAR AND WAS ATTACKED WITH GUNFIRE," SAID THE COMMUNIQUE. CARRIER PLANES FROM THAT GROUP, SUPPORTED BY NAVAL AIRMEN FROM ANOTHER AMERICAN TASK GROUP, DROVE OFF THIS ENEMY FORCE, FORCING IT TO RETIRE TO THE NORTH.

DETAILED INFORMATION WAS NOT AVAILABLE ON ENEMY LOSSES, MACARTHUR SAID, BUT FIRST REPORTS INDICATED THE NIPPONESE LOST SEVERAL CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS. IN ADDITION, THREE BATTLESHIPS, TWO CRUISERS AND AN UNSPECIFIED NUMBER OF DESTROYERS WERE BADLY DAMAGED.

"SHIP CASUALTIES SUSTAINED BY OUR FORCES," SAID THE MMUNIQUE, "WERE ONE SECRET CARRIER SUNK AND SEVERAL ESCORT RRIERS AND DESTROYERS DAMAGED."

(ADM. CHESTER W.NIMITZ ANNOUNCED AT HIS PEARL HARBOR
ADQUARTERS EARLY WEDNESDAY THAT THE AMERICAN LIGHT CARRIER PRINCETON
D BEEN LOST IN PHILIPPINE WATERS. HE DID NOT GIVE A DEFINITE CATION.)

MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE, DEVOTED LARGELY TO THE NAVAL ACTIONS, REPORTED THAT AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS HAD THRUST FORWARD IN THE NORTHERN SECTOR OF THE LEYTE FRONT TO THE NORTH OF TACLOBAN, PROVISIONAL CAPITAL OF THE NEWLY INAUGURATED PHILIPPINE CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT.

ENEMY FORCES "ARE DISINTEGRATING IN ONE SECTOR" OF THAT AREA, IT WAS REPORTED.

SEIZURE OF DOMINATING HILLS WEST OF PALO, ALSO IN THE NORTHERN SECTOR, AND THE CAPTURE OF PONAUAN, 10 MILES TO THE SOUTH, ALSO WERE ANNOUNCED.

IN THE SOUTHERN SECTOR OF THE FRONT, ELEMENTS OF THE 24TH CORPS CAPTURED THE MAIN ROAD CENTER OF BURAUEN, NINE MILES INLAND FROM DULAG BEACHHEAD.

JAPANESE SHORE-BASED PLANES MADE A LARGE SCALE DAYLIGHT ATTACK ON ALLIED SHIPPING IN LEYTE GULF BEFORE DAWN TUESDAY, HEADQUARTERS REPORTED. FIGHTER PLANES FROM AMERICAN CARRIERS TORE INTO THE ENEMY AND BROKE UP THE FORMATION. IN THIS FIERCE AERIAL ACTION 53 ENEMY PLANES WERE SHOT FROM THE SKIES BY NAVAL AIRMEN. ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE ACCOUNTED FOR THREE MORE.

OCT 26 1944

GENERAL ADVANCES ON LEYTE, WITH THE FREEING OF 14 MORE VILLAGES, WAS REPORTED BY MACARTHUR IN A DELAYED COMMUNIQUE WEDNESDAY. THE MOST EXTENSIVE ADVANCE WAS IN THE SOUTHERN SECTOR.

ELEMENTS OF THE 96TH, ETC., PICKING UP NIGHT LEAD AT THIRD GRAF AND OMITTING FOUR PARENTHETICAL PARAGRAPHS STARTING ("A REUTERS NEWS AGENCY, ENDING "ABOUT THE OUTCOME."

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS,PHILIPPINES, OCT 25 (AP)-

AIDED BY CARRIER PLANES AND DOMINATING HILL POSITIONS, AMERICAN GROUND FORCES PRESSED THEIR ADVANTAGES ON LEYTE ISLAND IN THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES TODAY, SCORING GENERAL GAINS ALL ALONG THE FRONT AND FREEING 14 MORE VILLAGES OR TOWNS.

(A REUTERS NEWS AGENCY REPORT FROM LONDON TONIGHT QUOTED GENERAL MACARTHUR AS SAYING THE JAPANESE FLEET HAD SUFFERED ITS "MOST CRUSHING DEFEAT OF THE WAR" IN ACTION IN PHILIPPINES WATERS.

OCT 26 1944

(AN ENEMY FORCE COMPRISING TWO BATTLESHIPS, ONE HEAVY CRUISER AND FOUR DESTROYERS, APPROACHING THE PHILIPPINES FROM THE SOUTHWEST, HAD BEEN COMPLETELY ROUTED, MACARTHUR SAID IN A SPECIAL STATEMENT.

(THIS ACTION APPARENTLY WAS A PART OF THE THREE-PRONGED NAVAL AIR ENGAGEMENT RAGING IN OR NEAR PHILIPPINE WATERS, ANNOUNCED BY ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ AT PEARL HARBOR. THE ACTIONS STEMMED APPARENTLY FROM AN ENEMY ATTEMPT TO CONTEST THE INVASION OF LEYTE ISLANDS, IN THE EAST-CENTRAL PHILIPPINES.)

(IN WASHINGTON, ADM.ERNEST J.KING, NAVY COMMANDER IN CHIEF, SAID THAT "PRACTICALLY ALL OF THE JAPANESE FLEET" IS ENGAGED. HE INDICATED HE WAS NOT CONCERNED ABOUT THE OUTCOME.)

THE MOST EXTENSIVE ADVANCE, GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR REPORTED IN A DELAYED COMMUNIQUE, WAS IN THE SOUTHERN SECTOR OF THE 24TH CORPS.

OCT 26 1944

ELEMENTS OF THE 96TH INFANTRY DIVISION IN THAT AREA ENVELOPED THE STRONG COASTAL CATMON HILL POSITIONS HELD BY THE JAPANESE AND PUSH WITHIN EIGHT MILES OF TABONTABON. THAT TOWN IS ON THE GUINARONA RIVER EIGHT MILES NORTHWEST OF DULAG AND FOUR MILES NORTHEAST OF SAN PABLO AIRFIELD, CAPTURED EARLIER.

SUBSTANTIAL GAINS IN THE TENTH CORPS ARE--THE NORTHERN SECTOR--PLACED DOUGHBOYS OF THE 24TH DIVISION FARTHER WEST OF PALO AND TACLOBAN. FORWARD ELEMENTS DROVE AHEAD FROM THE LINE OF HILLS SEIZED FROM THE NIPPONESE WHICH DOMINATE THE COAST BETWEEN PALO AND TACLOBAN. SMALL SCALE ENEMY COUNTERATTACKS AND NIGHT INFILTRATION ATTEMPTS WERE STOPPED SHORT.

OCT 26 1944

ADVANCES IN GENERAL HAD THE CLOSE SUPPORT OF CARRIER AIRCRAFT OF VICE ADM.THOMAS KINKAID'S SEVENTH FLEET. ROARING IN FROM THE FLATTOPS, THE NAVAL AIRMEN SMASHED ENEMY GROUND INSTALLATIONS, DESTROYED COMMUNICATIONS AND EXPLODED SUPPLY AND FUEL DUMPS.

THE TOWNS OR BARRIOS (VILLAGES) NEWLY FREED ARE NALIBUNAN, CALBASAG, LUWAN, LABIRANAN, KUGOD, GITABLA, RAWIS, CALIPAYAN, UTAP, LIBAS, MALACANDING, CABARACAN, JULITA AND TANGNAN. THAT BROUGHT THE TOTAL TO

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS,PHILIPPINES,OCT.24-(AP)-ASSISTED BY THE KNOWLEDGE AND AID OF 4,000 ARMED GUERRILLAS, LIBERATING AMERICANS ADVANCED THROUGH THE MUCK AND RAIN OF LEYTE TODAY AGAINST OUTNUMBERED JAPANESE DEFENDERS, FREEING FILIPINO COMMUNITIES.

(A MAJOR AIR-SEA BATTLE WHICH TOKYO REPORTED WAS RAGING IN PHILIPPINES WATERS, APPARENTLY BLACKED OUT NEWS OF CURRENT FIGHTING ON THE PHILIPPINE FRONT.

(THERE WAS NO OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE FROM GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS FOR MORE THAN 24 HOURS. RADIO SILENCE IMPOSED ON THE MASSIVE FLEET ASSEMBLED OFF LEYTE FOR SECURITY REASONS, MAY HAVE ALSO BEEN RESPONSIBLE FOR LACK OF WORD FROM MACARTHUR.

OCT 26 1944

(A JAPANESE IMPERIALCOMMUNIQUE, ADMITTING THE LOSS OF TWO CRUISERS AND A DESTROYER, CLAIMED 11 AMERICAN WARSHIPS HAD BEEN SUNK AND FIVE DAMAGED, EAST OF SAMAR ISLAND NORTHEAST OF LEYTE.

(ONLY AMERICAN ANNOUNCEMENT WAS A TERSE COMMUNIQUE FROM ADM. CHESTER W.NIMITZ THAT U.S. CARRIER FORCES WERE ATTACKING JAPANESE BATTLESHIPS AND CRUISERS SIGHTED WEST OF LEYTE TUESDAY, MANILA TIME.)

THE GUERRILLAS, LED BY COL.RUPERTO KANGELON, A FILIPINO, WITH AN UNIDENTIFIED FORMER U.S. PT-BOAT SKIPPER AS SECOND IN COMMAND, AIDED IN PREPARATIONS FOR LANDING OF THE U.S. FORCES. THEY COLLECTED DETAILED MILITARY INFORMATION AND TRANSMITTED IT BY SECRET MEANS TO U.S. HEADQUARTERS.

IN TURN THE GUERRILLAS WERE GIVEN A SCHEDULE OF OPERATIONS IN ADVANCE OF THE LANDINGS TO ENABLE THEM TO EVACUATE CIVILIANS FROM THREATENED AREAS AND FOREWARN THEM WHEN TO GO INTO ACTION.

ANOTHER AIRFIELD FELL INTO AMERICAN HANDS WHEN THE YANKS TOOK SAN PABLO AIRDROME NEAR DULAG ON THE SOUTHERN END OF THE FRONT. TO THE NORTH A COUNTERATTACK NEAR PALO ENDED IN BLOODY FAILURE FOR THE JAPANESE.

CAPTURE OF SAN PABLO WAS NOT REPTRTED IN MACARTHUR'S TUESDAY COMMUNIQUE, BUT IN A FIELD DISPATCH BY AL DOPKING, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT, WITH THE TROOPS WHO TOOK THE FIELD.

THIS GIVES THE YANKS THREE AIRFIELDS. THE OTHER TWO ARE AT TACLOBAN, CAPITAL OF LEYTE PROVINCE, AND AT DULAG. THE TACLOBAN FIELD, REPORTS INDICATE, IS ALREADY IN LIMITED OPERATION.

DOPKING SAID INFANTRYMEN OF THE 7TH DIVISION, PACED BY MEDIUM TANKS, WENT THROUGH DENSE UNDERGROWTH TO TAKE SAN PABLO FIELD. THEY MADE A CIRCUITOUS MARCH OF 12 MILES TO ACHIEVE THEIR OBJECTIVE.

OCT 26 1944

MACARTHUR REPORTED LIBERATION OF THE FOLLOWING COMMUNITIES SINCE THE INVASION STARTED:

TACLOBAN, SAN FERNANDO, SAGKAHAN, SAN JOSE, MARASBARAS, DULAG, PALO, PAWING, GUINDAPUNAN, CALAMPANAN AND BURAYAN, IN ADDITION THE THREE ISLANDS OF DINAGAT, SULUAN AND HOMONHON ADJACENT TO LEYTE WERE LIBERATED.

THE LIBERATED TOWNS ARE MOSTLY IN THE VICINITY OF TACLOBAN. DULAG, SOUTHERN ANCHOR OF THE LEYTE FRONT, IS THE ONLY ONE IN THAT SECTOR.

LAST REPORTS FROM THE SOUTHERN COLUMN INDICATED THE JAPANESE WERE IN FULL RETREAT NORTHWESTWARD FROM THE SAN PABLO AREA. TO THE NORTH ELEMENTS OF THE 10TH CORPS ADVANCED THREE MILES NORTH OF TACLOBAN AND SIX MILES NORTH OF PALO.

A FEW HOURS AFTER ADMIRAL CHESTER W.NIMITZ DISCLOSED THE FAR-FLUNG ACTION, ADMIRAL ERNEST J.KING, NAVY COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, TOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE IN WASHINGTON THAT "PRACTICALLY ALL OF THE JAPANESE FLEET" WAS INVOLVED.

AMPLIFYING THE NIMITZ COMMUNIQUE, KING SAID ONE OF THE THREE ENEMY NAVAL DIVISIONS HAD BEEN TURNED BACK AS IT MOVED EASTWARD THROUGH CENTRAL PHILIPPINES SEAS, OSTENSIBLY TOWARD LEYTE ISLAND, WHERE THE AMERICANS LANDED JUST A WEEK AGO.

OCT 26 1944

AT THE SAME TIME REUTERS, BRITISH NEWS AGENCY, QUOTED GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, HEAD OF THE AMERICAN DRIVE IN THE PHILIPPINES, AS SAYING THE NIPPONESE NAVY HAD SUFFERED THE "MOST CRUSHING DEFEAT OF THE WAR."

THE REUTERS REPORT SAID THAT THE ENEMY ELEMENT WAS MADE UP OF TWO BATTLESHIPS, ONE HEAVY CRUISER, TWO LIGHT CRUISERS AND FOUR DESTROYERS, AND THAT IT HAD BEEN COMPLETELY ROUTED. ADMIRAL NIMITZ PREVIOUSLY HAD REPORTED THAT THE TWO BATTLSHIPS OF THIS UNIT HAD BEEN HIT BY AERIAL BOMBS AND THAT THE OTHER SHIPS HAD BEEN STRAFED HEAVILY.

OCT 26 1944

ADMIRAL KING SAID IT WAS "QUITE REMARKABLE" THAT THE JAPANESE HAD RISKED THEIR WARSHIPS IN THE NARROW STRAITS OF THE PHILIPPINES, WHERE MANEUVERING IS RESTRICTED, BUT SUGGESTED THAT THEY CONSIDERED THE AMERICAN LANDING ON LEYTE SUFFICIENTLY SERIOUS TO GAMBLE MOST OF THEIR NAVAL POWER AGAINST IT. #

OCT 26 1944

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

U.S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, OCT.25--A MAJOR NAVAL-AIR BATTLE BETWEEN THE JAPANESE AND UNITED STATES FLEETS APPEARED IN PROGRESS TODAY AS NIPPONESE WARSHIPS CROSSED TWO SEAS TOWARD THE AMERICAN-INVADED CENTRAL PHILIPPINES AND U.S. CARRIER PLANES SWEPT TO THE ATTACK.

(THERE WAS EVERY INDICATION FROM ALLIED AND JAPANESE REPORTS THAT AT LONG LAST THE JAPANESE AND AMERICAN FLEETS HAD COME TO A SHOWDOWN.

(THE TOKYO RADIO, BROADCASTING AN IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, SAID THE JAPANESE NAVY IN A SURPRISE MOVE WEDNESDAY (MANILA TIME) WAS FIERCELY ATTACKING THE AMERICAN FLEET EAST OF SAMAR ISLAND, OFF

THE NORTHEASTERN TIP OF LEYTE AND IN THE ENSUING FIGHT SANK OR DAMAGED MORE THAN 16 AMERICAN SHIPS. THE JAPANESE ADMITTED LOSS OF TWO CRUISERS AND A DESTROYER.

(THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION FROM ALLIED SOURCES OF A NAVAL BATTLE EAST OF THE PHILIPPINES, BUT THERE HAS BEEN NO OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE FROM GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN THE PHILIPPINES FOR MORE THAN 24 HOURS APPARENTLY BECAUSE OF RADIO SILENCE.

(THE JAPANESE CLAIMED DESTRUCTION OF FOUR AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, TWO CRUISERS, ONE DESTROYER AND MORE THAN FOUR TRANSPORTS. THEY SAID TWO MORE AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, ONE BATTLESHIP AND TWO CRUISERS WERE DAMAGED.

(JAPANESE SUBMARINES AND AIRCRAFT WERE OPERATING IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE SURFACE UNITS, THE BROADCAST ASSERTED.)

ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ ANNOUNCED LATE YESTERDAY IN A TERSE COMMUNIQUE DEVOID OF DETAILS THAT ENEMY NAVAL FORCES HAD BEEN OBSERVED HEADING EASTWARD THROUGH THE SULU AND SIBUYAN SEAS. THIS COULD BE TAKEN TO INDICATE TWO JAPANESE FLEETS.

THE SULU SEA IS BETWEEN BORNEO AND THE SOUTHERN PHILIPPINES, THE SOUTHWEST APPROACH TO LEYTE; THE SMALLER SIBUYAN SEA IS NORTHWEST OF LEYTE.

ADMIRAL NIMITZ SAID AIRCRAFT OF VICE ADM. MARC A.MITSCHER'S CARRIER FORCES OF THE THIRD FLEET HAD OPENED AN ATTACK. DETAILS WERE NOT FORTHCOMING BECAUSE OF THE STRICT SILENCE ALWAYS MAINTAINED FOR SECURITY.

THUS APPEARED THE PROBABILITY OF A GREAT NAVAL-AIR BATTLE, WITH AT LEAST A SECTION OF THE ELUSIVE JAPANESE FLEET OUT IN THE OPEN FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE LAST JUNE 19 WHEN IT WAS WHIPPED SOUNDLY IN THE PHILIPPINES SEA.

IN THAT DECISIVE ENGAGEMENT 402 JAPANESE CARRIER PLANES WERE DESTROYED ALONG WITH ONE AIRCRAFT CARRIER, ONE DESTROYER AND TANKERS; ONE BATTLESHIP, FOUR CARRIERS, THREE CRUISERS, TWO DESTROYERS AND THREE TANKERS WERE DAMAGED.

OCT 26 1944

PRESUMABLY SHORT ON AIR SUPPORT AFTER THAT DEVASTATING BLOW, JAPAN'S ATTEMPT TO MOVE HEAVILY ARMED WARSHIPS INTO THE TRICKY INLAND SEAS OF THE CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN PHILIPPINES MAY WELL PROVE A BOLD ATTEMPT TO BOMBARD GEN. MACARTHUR'S TROOPS ON THE OPPOSITE, OR WEST, SHORE OF LEYTE.

NAVAL UNITS OF VICE ADM.THOMAS C.KINKAID'S SEVENTH FLEET AND SUPPORTING WARCRAFT FROM ADM.WILLIAM F.HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET AND THE AUSTRALIAN NAVY LIKELY WOULD BE PREVENTED BY THE NARROW AND TREACHEROUS PASSAGES FROM CLOSING WITH THE JAPANESE IN A SURFACE ENGAGEMENT IN THE INLAND PHILIPPINES SEAS. AMERICAN BOMBERS AND TORPEDO PLANES COULD LEVEL TREMENDOUS ATTACKS ON ENEMY WARSHIPS.

TOKYO MAY HAVE SURMISED THAT ADMIRAL HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET, WHICH ROAMED THE WESTERN PACIFIC FOR TWO MONTHS STRIKING DEVASTATING BLOWS, HAD RETIRED ALREADY FROM THE PHILIPPINES INVASION AREA BECAUSE OF SUPPLY PROBLEMS.

ADMIRAL HALSEY, ABOARD HIS FLAGSHIP, SAID EARLIER IN THE WEEK "WE MAY HAVE TO GO IN AND DIG THE JAPANESE FLEET OUT, BUT ONE WAY OR ANOTHER WE WILL DESTROY IT."

WITH 96TH DIVISION ON LEYTE, OCT. 25-(AP)-THE 96.5£ DIVISION EXPANDED THE SOUTHERN PORTION OF THE U.S. BEACHHEAD ON THIS PHILIPPINE ISLAND SO RAPIDLY THAT MUD-HAMPERED SUPPLY TRAINS TODAY LAGGED FAR BEHIND TANKS AND INFANTRY SPEARHEADS. THE ADVANCE ELEMENTS FOR A TIME WERE DEPENDENT UPON AIRBORNE MATERIEL.

WITH THE TIME FOR REPLENISHMENT OF FORWARD SUPPLIES DRAWING NEAR, BRIG.GEN.RODERICK EASLEY OF WACO, TEX., ASSISTANT DIVISIONAL COMMANDER, AND COL.EDWIN C.MAY OF PALO ALTO, CALIF., PULLED A MANEUVER THAT PRESSED THE JAPANESE FIVE MILES INLAND FROM THE DULAG BEACHHEAD.

MAJ.GEN.JAMES L.CRADLEY, DIVISION COMMANDER, REPORTED ARMORED UNITS PROBED AROUND THE MUDDY LOWLANDS FOR POSSIBLE SUPPLY ROUTES BETWEEN THE BEACH AND THE ADVANCED ELEMENTS. HE SAID MUD SEEMED TO BE THE ONLY FACTOR HOLDING BACK HIS DIVISION.

INFANTRY FROM THE SEVENTH DIVISION CIRCLED THE EASTERN HALF OF THE CATMON HILLS AND CAPTURED FOUR JAPANESE 77 MM GUNS WHICH HAD BEEN HARASSING THE BEACHHEAD. THE DOUGHBOYS ALSO FOUND SIX NAVAL GUNS WHICH THE RETREATING JAPANESE HAD NOT UNPACKED FROM THEIR CRATES.

ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE VIRTUALLY HAS CEASED. POSITIONS STILL IN JAPANESE HANDS ARE BEING HAMMERED STEADILY BY ARMY ARTILLERY AND BY GUNS OF THE SEVENTH U.S. FLEET OFFSHORE.

HONOLULU,OCT.25-(AP)-CIVIL GOVERNMENT HAS RETURNED TO HAWAII FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE ISLANDS WERE THE TARGET OF JAPANESE WARFARE ON DEC. 7, 1941.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, LIEUT.GEN.ROBERT C.RICHARDSON, JR., ARMY COMMANDER OF THE HAWAIIAN DEPARTMENT AND GOV.INGRAM M.STAINBACK OF HAWAII EACH ANNOUNCED THE LIFTING OF MARTIAL LAW YESTERDAY.

THE MOST IMPORTANT EFFECT OF THE PRESIDENTIAL PROCLAMATION WAS TO RESTORE TO HAWAIIAN CITIZENS THE RIGHT OF TRIAL IN CIVIL COURTS AND THE RIGHT OF HABEAS CORPUS.

SECURITY MEASURES STILL MAY BE ENFORCED BY THE MILITARY BECAUSE THE DISTRICT IS A "MILITARY AREA," AS ARE OTHER AREAS OF THE UNITED STATES, NOTABLY THE EAST COAST, THE WEST COAST, THE SOUTHERN SEA FRONTIER AND ALASKA, GOVERNOR STAINBACK SAID.

THESE MEASURES INCLUDE, WHEN CONSIDERED NECESSARY, THE ESTABLISHMENT OF BLACKOUT AND CURFEW PERIODS, AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS, RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE CONDUCT OF ENEMY ALIENS, EXERCISE OF ANTI-ESPIONAGE PRECAUTIONS, THE CONTROL OF WEAPONS, THE REGULATION OF TRAVEL, THE REGULATION OF THE PUBLICATION OF NEWSPAPERS IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES AND THE CONTROL OF HARBOR INSTALLATIONS.

GOVERNOR STAINBACK LONG HAS OPPOSED MARTIAL LAW AND HE SAID HE "REJOICED WITH THE CITIZENS OF THE TERRITORY IN FULL RESTORATION OF THEIR CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS."

THE PRESIDENT SAID MARTIAL LAW NOW COULD BE ABOLISHED AS IT NOW LONGER IS REQUIRED TO ASSURE PUBLIC SAFETY.

WASHINGTON,OCT.25-(AP)-CWI OFFICIALS EXPLAINED TONIGHT THAT THROUGH THE VAGARIES OF ATMOSPHERIC INTERFERENCE WITH RADIO TRANSMISSION, THE FIRST BROADCAST OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE ON DEFEAT OF THE JAPANESE FLEET COULD BE HEARD IN LONDON

BUT NOT IN SAN FRANCISCO.

THE OFFICIALS SAID THAT THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATION COMMISSION'S LISTENING POSTS ON THE WEST COAST WERE ON THE ALERT FOR THE BROADCAST AS WERE RADIO RECEIVERS OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AND NEWS AGENCIES. NONE COULD HEAR IT. HOWEVER, THEBROADCAST WAS PICKED UP IN LONDON, THOUGH POORLY, BY REUTERS AND BY THE BRITISH BROADCASTING COMPANY.

OWI HAD THE COMMUNIQUE, AS RECORDED BY THE BBC, TRANSMITTED FROM LONDON TO THIS COUNTRY BUT ABOUT THE SAME TIME THE FCC PICKED UP IN SAN FRANCISCO A SECOND BROADCAST OF THE COMMUNIQUE FROM MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS.

WASHINGTON, OCT 25-(AP)-COMMUNICATION DIFFICULTIES WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN THE PHILIPPINES AREA SLOWED INITIAL REPORTS ON DEFEAT OF THE JAPANESE FLEET.

OCT 26 1944

THEY WERE PARTLY RESPONSIBLE, TOO, FOR THE PIECE-MEAL MANNER IN WHICH THE EARLY NEWS CAME OUT.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT INDICATED WHEN HE RELEASED HIS MESSAGE FROM ADMIRAL WILLIAM F. HALSEY THAT HE HIMSELF HAD NO FURTHER INFORMATION AT THAT TIME.

MR. ROOSEVELT AND THE WAR AND NAVY DEPARTMENTS HAVE FOLLOWED A POLICY OF LEAVING REPORTS ON DAY-BY-DAY DEVELOPMENTS IN THE WAR TO FIELD COMMANDERS BUT THE PRESIDENT ON OCCASION HAS ANNOUNCED SOME MAJOR DEVELOPMENTS. THE WHITE HOUSE GAVE OUT FIRST WORD OF THE NORTH AFRICAN INVASION AND OF THE FALL OF ITALY AND MR. ROOSEVELT AMPLIFIED INITIAL REPORTS FROM GENERAL DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER ON THE LANDING IN EUROPE.

ORDINARILY, ALL ANNOUNCEMENTS OF NAVAL DEVELOPMENTS IN THE PACIFIC FIGHTING ARE LEFT TO ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ AT PEARL HARBOR. THERE WAS NO OFFICIAL WORD AS TO WHY GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR WENT EXTENSIVELY INTO THE NAVAL FIGHTING IN HIS COMMUNIQUE BUT PRESUMABLY IT WAS BECAUSE OF ITS VITAL RELATION IN THIS INSTANCE TO HIS OVER-ALL ASSIGNMENT TO LIBERATE THE PHILIPPINES.

BOTH THE OWI AND REUTERS, WHICH RELEASED VERSIONS OF MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE, REPORTED COMMUNICATION DIFFICULTIES -- SO GREAT THAT REUTERS SAID IT HAD PARAPHRASED PART OF THE TEXT IT DISTRIBUTED. IT EXPLAINED THAT THE BROADCAST FROM FIELD PRESS HEADQUARTERS ON LEYTE WAS POOR.

SAN FRANCISCO,OCT.25--GORDON WALKER, BROADCASTING FROM LEYTE ISLAND FOR MUTUAL NETWORK, QUOTED A NAVAL SPOKESMAN AS SAYING TONIGHT THAT PRACTICALLY EVERY MAJOR SHIP IN THE JAPANESE NAVY, WITH THE EXCEPTION OFCARRIERS, HAS BEEN EITHER SUNK OR DAMAGED.

THE STATEMENT WAS CONTAINED IN AN EYEWITNESS ACCOUNT OF THE FLEET ACTION OFF LEYTE, WHICH WALKER TERMED "ONE OF THE GREATEST BATTLES OF NAVAL HISTORY."

"IF THE ENEMY FLEET," SAID WALKER, "HAD BEEN ABLE TO BREAK THROUGH OUR NAVAL BLOCKADE AND ENTER LEYTE GULF, THEY COULD HAVE WIPED OUT EVERY SHIP IN SAN PEDRO BAY . . .

"AT ONE TIME THE JAPANESE FLEET GOT WITHIN 70 MILES OF THESE BEACHES ON LEYTE BEFORE THEY WERE TURNED BACK. IT WAS A NARROW SQUEAK, AND I CAN TELL YOU THERE WERE SOME VERY WORRIED MEN HERE IN THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES AT THAT TIME."

WALKER SAID THE BATTLE IS NOT OVER AND "THE ENTIRE PACIFIC WAR HINGES ON THIS NAVAL FIGHT WHICH IS GOING ALL AROUND US HERE IN THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES.

"IF THE AMERICAN NAVY COMES OUT ON TOP--AND EARLY REPORTS POINT ALMOST CONCLUSIVELY IN THAT DIRECTION--THE JAPANESE WILL HAVE SUFFERED THEIR HEAVIEST BLOW. IT MAY BE THAT THE WAR WILL BE SHORTENED AS MUCH AS A YEAR."

THE JAPANESE, HE SAID, THREW ADM.THOMAS C.KINKAID'S 7TH FLEET OFF BALANCE, AT FIRST, WITH COORDINATED ASSAULTS BY NAVAL UNITS FROM THENORTH AND SOUTH, PLUS HEAVY LAND-BASED BOMBER ATTACKS.

AMERICAN SMALL-SIZED CARRIERS BEAT OFF THE THRUST FROM THE NORTH, OFF THE EAST COAST OF SAMAR ISLAND, "THROUGH SHEER HEROISM AND SUPERIOR FIGHTING ABILITY," ALTHOUGH OUTNUMBERED. MANY JAPANESE PLANES CRASHED IN SUICIDE DIVES, BUT ONLY ONE AMERICAN CARRIER WAS SUNK (THE U.S.S. PRINCETON.)

THE JAPANESE FLEET BEGAN ASSEMBLING BEHIND THE PHILIPPINES ON INVASION DAY, WALKER SAID.

"THE ENTIRE SUCCESS OF THE INVASION DEPENDED UPON ADMIRAL KINKAID'S ABILITY TO OUTMANEUVER AND OUTFIGHT A HEAVIER ENEMY FLEET."

NEW YORK, OCT 25-(AP)-JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS ASSERTED TONIGHT THAT FIVE AMERICAN B-29 SUPERFORTRESSES WERE SHOT DOWN AND 19 OTHERS "SUBSTANTIALLY DAMAGED" DURING A RAID TODAY ON THE JAPANESE HOME ISLAND OF KYUSHU.

THE U.S. 20TH AIR FORCE PREVIOUSLY HAD ANNOUNCED THAT BUT ONE PLANE WAS LOST IN THE RAID.

THE JAPANESE COMMUNIQUE, BROADCAST FROM TOKYO AND RECORDED BY THE FCC, GAVE NO OTHER DETAILS.

UNDATED NAVAL BATTLE AT A GLANCE

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OUT OF A WELTER OF REPORTS, HERE BRIEFLY APPEARS TO BE THE STILL-DEVELOPING SITUATION IN THE PHILIPPINES-FORMOSA NAVAL-AIR BATTLES:

THE JAPANESE SENT TWO FLEET GROUPS EASTWARD AGAINST INVADED LEYTE IN THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES. A THIRD FLEET GROUP MOVED DOWN FROM FORMOSA.

ALTHOUGH OUTNUMBERED, VICE ADM.THOMAS C.KINKAID SPLIT UP HIS SEVENTH FLEET TO ENGAGE THE TWO GROUPS MOVING TOWARD LEYTE.

ADM.WILLIAM F.HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET CARRIER PLANES TOOK ON THE THIRD GROUP APPROACHING FROM FORMOSA.

KINKAID'S FORCES WON AND SIZEABLE RESULTS HAVE BEEN ANNOUNCED. REPORTS ARE SOMEWHAT MEAGER ON THE FORMOSA ACTION ALTHOUGH ADM. CHESTER W.NIMITZ HAS REPORTED FROM PEARL HARBOR THE DEFINITE SINKING OF A LARGE NIPPONESE CARRIER AND TWO OTHERS DAMAGED.

OF THE TWO GROUPS KINKAID TOOK ON, HERE IS WHAT HAPPENED:

ONE GROUP MOVED OUT OF THE SULU SEA THROUGH THE MINDANAO SEA PASSED THROUGH SURIGAO STRAITS AND APPROACHED LEYTE GULF FROM THE SOUTHWEST. A 25-MINUTE NAVAL BATTLE, PLUS CARRIER PLANE ATTACKS, OCCURRED. THE JAPANESE FLEET WITHDREW TO THE SOUTHWEST, LEAVING A YAMASHIRO CLASS BATTLESHIP SINKING AND SEVERAL CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS SUNK.

THE SECOND JAYANESE GROUP, MOVING THROUGH THE PHILIPPINE INLAND SEA OF SIBUYAN, SAILED BETWEEN LUZON AND SAMAR AND WAS ENGAGED OFF THE EAST COAST OF SAMAR. IT WAS ATTACKED WITH GUNFIRE, THEN BY PLANES OF KINKAID'S ESCORT CARRIERS, SUPPORTED BY FLIERS FROM ANOTHER AMERICAN TASK FORCE, FORCING IT TO FLEE NORTH.

OCT 26 1944

CAPTURE OF SAN PABLO AIRDROME AND NEW AMERICAN GAINS ON ALL OTHER SECTORS OF THE ISLAND WERE ANNOUNCED IN A COMMUNIQUE ISSUED BY GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR AND BROADCAST OVER THE "VOICE OF FREEDOM" RADIO TRANSMITTER ON LEYTE ISLAND TODAY.

SAN PABLO IS SEVEN MILES INLAND FROM DULAG ON THE SOUTHERN END OF THE LEYTE BATTLEFRONT. IT IS THE DEEPEST PENETRATION MADE BY AMERICANS SINCE THEY INVADED THE PHILIPPINES. IT IS THE THIRD AIRFIELD TAKEN. THE OTHER TWO ARE AT TACLOBAN AND DULAG.

CAPTURE OF THE SAN PABLO FIELD WAS REPORTED IN A FIELD DISPATCH BY AL DOPKING, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT, YESTERDAY.

THE BROADCAST WAS RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, BUT SPOTTY RECEPTION MADE TRANSCRIPTION OF THE TEXT OF THE COMMUNIQUE IMPOSSIBLE.

NEW AMERICAN GAINS WERE REPORTED IN ALL SECTORS.

SUCH TEXT AS COULD BE MONITORED FOLLOWS:

ON LEYTE, OUR GROUND FORCES HAVE MADE EXTENSIVE GAINS IN ALL SECTORS. ON THE FRONT OF THE 24TH CORPS, FOREST PATROLS AND ARMORED UNITS OF THE 7TH DIVISION PENETRATED THE ENEMY'S COVERING SCREEN TO SEIZE SAN PABLO AIRDROME AND FAN OUT TO THE NORTH. ELEMENTS OF THE 96TH DIVISION ADVANCING ON THE RIGHT NINE MILES NORTH OF DULAG AND HAVE ENVELOPED CATMON HILL AND ARE APPROACHING TABAONTABON.

IN THE NORTHERN SECTOR THE TANKS CORPS HAS MADE SUBSTANTIAL GAINS TO THE WEST OF PALO AND TACLOBAN AND IS PUSHING FORWARD FROM THE LINE OF HILLS SEIZED FROM THE ENEMY WHICH DOMINATE THE COAST BETWEEN PALO AND TACLOBAN. SMALL SCALE ENEMY COUNTER ATTACKS AND NIGHT INFILTRATION ATTEMPTS WERE READILY REPULSED.

CARRIER AIRCRAFT OF THE 7TH FLEET EXECUTED CLOSE TO PORT MISSIONS ATTACKING GROUND INSTALLATIONS, SUPPLY DUMPS AND LINES OF COMMUNICATION.

OCT 26 1944

ON OCT. 22 AND 23 OUR PLANES STRUCK ENEMY AIRDROMES IN THE WESTERN VISAYAS AND NORTHERN MINDANAO. TARGETS INCLUDED CEBU, BACOLOD, ALICANTE, BULUAN AND DELMONTE.

SIXTY-TWO ENEMY PLANES WERE DESTROYED OR SEVERELY DAMAGED ON THE GROUND AND ONE DIVE BOMBER WAS SHOT DOWN. INTENSE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS ENCOUNTERED. WE LOST SIX PLANES. ALL AIR CREWS WERE RESCUED EXCEPT ONE PILOT.

OUR SUCCESSIVE RAIDS FROM ALL SOURCES ON THE ENEMY'S AIR INSTALLATIONS ARE NEUTRALIZING HIS ATTEMPT AT (WORD LOST) WARCRAFT FROM LUZON AND BORNEO AND HAVE GREATLY RESTRICTED THE SCALE OF HIS AIR COUNTER-OFFENSIVE.

AT LEYTE INTERMITTENT SMALL-SCALE ENEMY AIR ATTACKS CAUSED SMALL DAMAGE AND WERE DRIVEN OFF BY FIGHTER PATROLS AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENSES. FIVE ENEMY PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN.

(AT THIS POINT THE ANNOUNCER SAID TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE LISTED 14 TOWNS AND BARRIOS NEWLY LIBERATED, BUT THE NAMES WERE INDISTINCT.)

OUR LAND BASED PLANES DROPPED 58 TONS ON AIRDROMES ON CEBU, DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 20 TRUCKS ON SAYRE HIGHWAY IN MINDANAO AND SET THREE VESSELS AFIRE IN CAGAYAN HARBOR.

OCT 26 1944

A101FX

THEN THE ENEMY HEADQUARTERS NEAR COTABATO WAS ATTACKED BY HEAVY UNITS WITH 110 TONS. THE TARGET WAS LEFT IN FLAMES WITH MANY BUILDINGS DESTROYED AND SMOKE RISING TO 4,000 FEET.

MEDIUM AND LIGHT BOMBERS, ATTACKING SHIPPING SOUTHWEST OF ZAMBOANGA, DAMAGED FIVE MEDIUM FREIGHTERS, FIVE COASTAL VESSELS AND SEVERAL BARGES. TWO FLOAT PLANES WERE DESTROYED.

AT HALMAHERA IN THE MOLUCCAS, FIGHTER BOMBERS ATTACKED ENEMY INSTALLATIONS AT LLBATA AND TERNATE.

IN THE AMBOINA-CERAM AREA, OUR MEDIUM, ATTACK AND FIGHTER BOMBERS BOMBED SHIPPING, CRATERED RUNWAYS, STARTED FIRES IN SUPPLY AND DEFENSE INSTALLATIONS. SEVERAL COASTAL VESSELS WERE DESTROYED AND A LARGE FLYING BOAT DAMAGED. WE LOST THREE PLANES.

IN THE LESSER SUNDAS, MEDIUM UNITS ATTACKED SUPPLY AND DEFENSE INSTALLATIONS, STARTED LARGE FIRES IN SUPPLY DUMPS AND DAMAGED A FUEL BARGE AND FIVE GUN EMPLACEMENTS AT (NAME INDISTINCT) BAY.

ON TIMOR, OUR MEDIUM BOMBERS DESTROYED NINE TRUCKS. RECONNAISSANCE UNITS ATTACKED AIRDROMES.

IN NEW GUINEA, ATTACK BOMBERS AND AIR PATROLS CONTINUED TO NEUTRALIZE REMAINING ENEMY OUTPOSTS ON VOGELKOP PENINSULA. OTHERS AT SARMI BOMBED AND STRAFED ENEMY CONCENTRATIONS FROM MINIMUM ALTITUDE WITH GOOD EFFECTS.

IN THE BISMARCK-SOLOMONS AREA, MEDIUM AND LIGHT BOMBERS STRUCK KAVIENG AND TROOP CONCENTRATIONS TO THE SOUTHEAST, DESTROYING A BRIDGE AND STARTING LARGE FIRES. ADVERSE WEATHER HAMPERED THE AIR OPERATIONS IN THIS SECTOR.

UNDATED PHILIPPINES INTERPRETIVE
BY RAY CRONIN
CHIEF OF THE FORMER ASSOCIATED PRESS MANILA BUREAU

WHEN THE JAPANESE FLEET FINALLY POKED ITS NOSE THROUGH TWO PHILIPPINE STRAITS INTO THE PACIFIC TO MEET DEFEAT AT THE HANDS OF THE AMERICAN NAVY, IT TOOK A DECIDED CHANCE ON TWO OF THE MOST TREACHEROUS STRETCHES OF WATER IN THE WORLD.

ONE NIPPON FORMATION SAILED THROUGH THE SIBUYAN SEA, IN THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES, AND MADE PASSAGE THROUGH SAN BERNARDINO STRAIT, BETWEEN THE SOUTHERN TIP OF LUZON ISLAND AND NORTHERN SAMAR ISLAND. THIS STRAIT IS FROM 12 TO 15 MILES WIDE, WITH DEEP WATER. YET ITS TRICKY CURRENTS, WHICH FLOW WITH EXCEPTIONALLY HIGH SPEED, HAVE TAKEN GREAT TOLL OF SEA SHIPPING IN PAST YEARS.

OCT 26 1944

SAN BERNARDINO, TAPPING THE PACIFIC INTO THE SIBUYAN SEA, WAS USED BY NEARLY ALL OCEAN LINERS TRAVELING DIRECT BETWEEN THE PHILIPPINES AND THE UNITED STATES BUT THEY MADE PASSAGE ONLY IN DAYLIGHT AND UNDER FULL POWER. IT WAS USED ALSO BY THE U.S. ASIATIC FLEET IN PRE-WAR DAYS.

SURIGAO STRAIT, SEPARATING SOUTHERN LEYTE AND NORTHERN MINDANAO, WAS USED BY THE OTHER JAPANESE NAVAL FORMATION AS IT PASSED FROM THE MINDANAO SEA TO THE PACIFIC. IT, TOO, HAS DANGEROUS CURRENTS AND TINY ISLES, DEADLY TO SHIPPING.

YEARS AGO, WHILE GOING THROUGH SAN BERNARDINO STRAIT ABOARD AN INTERISLAND STEAMER, THE SPANISH SKIPPER, A 20-YEAR VETERAN OF THOSE WATERS, REMARKED TO ME "I'D HATE TO BE CAUGHT IN HERE IF I WERE ABOARD A WARSHIP. ANY FIGHTING CRAFT COMING THIS WAY WOULD BE A SUCKER FOR AIRPLANES. IF A SHIP LOSES ANY PART OF ITS POWER IN HERE IT IS HEADED FOR ROCKS THAT ALWAYS PROVE FATAL."

IN 1935 A SILVER LINER FELL VICTIM TO A SAN BERNARDINO ROCK. THE JAPANESE SHIP CHICAGO MARU ATTEMPTED A RESCUE BUT WAS BADLY DAMAGED WHEN CURRENTS CRASHED HER AGAINST THE SAME ROCK. U.S. DESTROYERS THEN ATTEMPTED THE RESCUE BUT THE DANGER WAS SO GREAT THEY STOOD OFF AND THE AMERICANS STRANDED ON THE ROCK WERE FORCED TO JUMP INTO THE SEA AND BE FISHED OUT BY SAILORS.

THE JAPANESE NAVY MUST HAVE BEEN IN EXTREME DESPERATION TO STRIKE THROUGH THE SIBUYAN AND MINDANAO SEAS AND THE TWO STRAITS. THEIR MANEUVERABLE WATERS ARE VERY LIMITED, AND AS THE OLD SPANISH SKIPPER SAID, THEY WERE SUCKERS FOR AMERICAN PLANES.

SAN FRANCISCO, OCT.25-(AP)-ABOUT 100 PLANES OF THE CHINA-BASED AMERICAN AIR FORCES" TOOK PART IN THE RAID ON "KYUSHU AND SAISHU" ISLANDS TODAY WITH SOME DAMAGE RESULTING, THE JAPANESE RADIO REPORTED IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS AS ADMITTING.

THE RAIDS TOOK PLACE FROM 10 A.M. TO 11:30 A.M., THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

(GEN. H.H. ARNOLD, COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE 20TH AIR FORCE, DID NOT MENTION SAISHU ISLAND IN THE WASHINGTON ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE RAID.)

TEXT OF THE JAPANESE COMMUNIQUE AS RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION:

"FROM ABOUT 10 A.M. TO ABOUT 11:30 A.M. THIS MORNING, ABOUT 100 CHINA-BASED AMERICAN PLANES RAIDED KYUSHU AND SAISHU ISLANDS.

"THE WAR RESULTS ARE NOW UNDER INVESTIGATION.

OCT 26 1944

"THERE WAS SOME DAMAGE ON OUR SIDE." (END TEXT).

A LATER TOKYO BROADCAST SAID THE ATTACK DIFFERED FROM OTHER BOMBINGS BY THE AMERICANS IN STRIKING AT SUPPLY FACILITIES INSTEAD OF VITAL INDUSTRIAL SECTIONS IN THE VICINITY OF KOKURA AND YAWATA.

THE RAIDS WERE COORDINATED WITH THE INVASION OF LEYTE, THE BROADCAST SAID, PROBABLY "TO INTERFERE WITH OUR SUPPLIES TO THE PHILIPPINES SECTOR, JUST SO THAT THEIR PHILIPPINES OPERATION CAN BE CONDUCTED ON A MAJOR SCALE."

THE AMERICAN AIRFORCE, IT CONTINUED, HAS BEEN "COORDINATING WITH THE NAVAL OPERATIONS OF NIMITZ IN INEFFECTUALLY RAIDING TAIWAN (FORMOSA) AND THE COASTAL REGIONS OF SOUTHERN CHINA" SINCE THE LAST RAID ON KYUSHU AUG. 21.

"THEREFORE, FOR SOME TIME THEY DID NOT HAVE MUCH OPPORTUNITY TO STRIKE AT OUR MAINLAND."

SAN FRANCISCO, OCT. 25-(AP)-JAPAN'S PREMIER, GEN.KUNIAKI KOISO, TODAY URGED "THE BOLSTERING OF THE FIGHTING SPIRIT OF THE PEOPLE AND THE PROMOTION OF LABOR MOBILIZATION" AT THIS "DECISIVE WAR STAGE."

ADDRESSING REPRESENTATIVES OF JAPANESE PATRIOTIC ORGANIZATIONS AND GOVERNMENT CHIEFS AT HIS OFFICIAL RESIDENCE, THE PREMIER SAID HE WISHED THEY WOULD "COMMENCE VIGOROUS ACTIVITIES" TO CARRY OUT HIS DESIRES.

KOISO'S STATEMENTS WERE REPORTED BY THE DOMEI AGENCY IN A TOKYO BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION.

EARLIER, THE TOKYO RADIO TOLD OF A "FULL DRESS MEETING" OF THE NIPPON PRIVY COUNCIL AND MOST MEMBERS OF THE CABINET WITH EMPEROR HIROHITO. THE PURPOSE OF THE MEETING WAS NOT STATED BUT IT WAS NOTED THAT PREMIER KOISO AND THE FOREIGN MINISTER WERE ABSENT.

SAN FRANCISCO,OCT.25-(AP)-ASAHEL (ACE) BUSH, 31 ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT, WAS KILLED IN THE LINE OF DUTY TODAY WHEN JAPANESE PLANES BOMBED TACLOBAN, AMERICAN-OCCUPIED CAPITAL OF LEYTE ISLAND.

BUSH HAD JUST REPORTED THE EPOCHAL NAVAL BATTLE OFF LEYTE. HE WAS KILLED OUTRIGHT.

OCT 26 1944

"ACE" HAD SERVED JUST ONE YEAR AS A WAR CORRESPONDENT IN THE PACIFIC. HE LEFT SAN FRANCISCO FOR AUSTRALIA OCT. 25, 1943. HE WAS THE TENTH CIVILIAN NEWSMAN KILLED COVERING THE PACIFIC WAR.

WORD OF BUSH'S DEATH CAME IN A MESSAGE TO THE SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU FROM C.YATES MCDANIEL, CHIEF OF THE AP STAFF COVERING THE PHILIPPINE INVASION.

"ACE", AS HE WAS AFFECTIONATELY KNOWN TO HIS COLLEAGUES, WAS BORN IN SALEM,ORE., DEC. 20, 1912, A DESCENDANT OF ONE OF OREGON'S BEST KNOWN PIONEER FAMILIES.

HIS GREAT GRANDFATHER ESTABLISHED OREGON'S FIRST NEWSPAPER, THE OREGON CITY STATESMAN. THE FAMILY ALSO AIDED IN ESTABLISHING THE LADD AND BUSH BANK AT SALEM. HIS GRANDFATHER, A.N.BUSH, STILL IS ONE OF THE BANK'S EXECUTIVE OFFICERS. HIS PARENTS DIED SEVERAL YEARS AGO. A BROTHER, STUART, IS IN THE MERCHANT MARINE.

"ACE" BEGAN HIS FOREIGN CAREER EARLY, STARTING SCHOOL IN BARCELONA, SPAIN, AT THE AGE OF SEVEN. A YEAR LATER HIS FAMILY MOVED TO PARIS. WHEN HE RETURNED TO OREGON IN 1922 HIS KNOWLEDGE OF SPANISH AND FRENCH WAS EQUAL TO HIS ENGLISH. HE WAS GRADUATED FROM AMHERST COLLEGE WITH THE GREATEST HONORS IN 1933, AND WAS ELECTED TO PHI BETA KAPPA, SCHOLASTIC HONOR SOCIETY.

AFTER COLLEGE HE TOOK A JOB ON THE KLAMATH FALLS (ORE.) HERALD, SERVING FOR FIVE YEARS AS TELEGRAPH EDITOR. AT KLAMATH FALLS HE MET AND MARRIED FAE CORNISH DESPAIN. THEY HAD ONE CHILD, MARGARET ANN. THE WIDOW AND CHILD, NOW 8. SURVIVE HIM.

WHILE AT KLAMATH FALLS BUSH ASPIRED TO BECOME AN AP MAN. ONE OF HIS KINSMEN, THE LATE OREGON SENATOR AND VICE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE, CHARLES MCNARY, OFFERED TO "PUT IN A WORD FOR HIM" BUT HE REFUSED IT. HE LET HIS RECORD AS A NEWSMAN SPEAK FOR ITSELF, AND WAS TAKEN INTO THE AP BUREAU AT SALT LAKE CITY JULY 2, 1939.

HE WAS TRANSFERRED TO THE AP WESTERN DIVISION HEADQUARTERS IN SAN FRANCISCO APRIL 6, 1941, WHERE HE RECEIVED HIS PRELIMINARY TRAINING AS A WAR CORRESPONDENT.

IN AUSTRALIA HE COVERED THE HEADQUARTERS OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR AND THEN MOVED WITH MACARTHUR TO NEW GUINEA, AND FINALLY TO LEYTE.

APRIL, 1944, HE HAD A CLOSE BRUSH WITH DEATH.

WHEN THE AMERICANS CHASED THE JAPANESE OUT OF HOLLANDIA, NEW GUINEA, BUSH SAT DOWN IN AN ABANDONED JAPANESE AMMUNITION DUMP TO WRITE THE STORY. MINUTES AFTER HE HAD FINISHED AND LEFT, A JAPANESE PLANE CAME OVER AND DROPPED A BOMB WHICH EXPLODED THE STORED AMMUNITION.

NEW YORK, OCT 25-(AP)-COMDR.JOHN D.BULKELEY, FORMER PACIFIC PT BOAT COMMANDER, TODAY RELATED HOW A CRIPPLED DESTROYER UNDER HIS COMMAND SANK TWO GERMAN CORVETTES "AS BIG AS WE WERE" IN RESCUING TWO BRITISH GUNBOATS OFF THE FRENCH COAST LAST AUGUST.

IN A PRESS CONFERENCE AT THIRD NAVAL DISTRICT HEADQUARTERS, BULKELEY SAID THAT HIS SHIP, THE U.S.S. ENDICOTT, ENGAGED AND SANK THE KEMID ALLAH AND THE CAPAIULO, AFTER THEY HAD FORCED TWO BRITISH GUNBOATS COMMANDED BY LT.COMDR.DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS OF HOLLYWOOD TO RETIRE UNDER A SMOKE SCREEN.

OCT 26 1944

NAVY OFFICIALS EXPLAINED FAIRBANKS WAS ASSIGNED TO THE COMMAND OFO BRITISH GUNBOATS IN COMBINED U.S. AND BRITISH OPERATIONS.

THE ENGAGEMENT, WHICH BULKELEY SAID LASTED AN HOUR IN AN AREA DOTTED WITH GERMAN MINEFIELDS, WAS FOUGHT WITHIN 3,000 YARDS OF WHAT HE DESCRIBED AS "PRACTICALLY POINT BLANK RANGE" OFF LA CIOTAT BETWEEN MARSEILLES AND TOULON LAST AUG. 17.

BULKELEY EXPLAINED THAT, WITH THE ENDICOTT'S GUNS "RED HOT" AFTER FIRING 450 ROUNDS IN AN HOUR BOMBARDMENT OF SHORE TARGETS, HE HAD ONLY A SINGLE FIVE INCH GUN TO PIT AGAINST THE [redacted] GUNS ABOARD THE CORVETTES.

OCT 26 1944

THE DESTROYER, HE ADDED, SCORED "TWO LUCKY HITS IN THE ENGINE ROOM OF THE KEMID ALLAH" WITH THE THIRD AND FOURTH SHOTS.

"OTHER GUNS," HE CONTINUED, "HAD BEGUN FIRING INTERMITTENTLY AND WE STARTED TO CHASE AFTER THE CAPAIULO AND GOT BETWEEN HIM AND MARSEILLES SO WE COULD FORCE HIM TO FIGHT."

THE ENDICOTT, HE SAID, TOOK 169 PRISONERS ABOARD INCLUDING CAPTAINS OF BOTH GERMAN SHIPS AND 40 SERIOUSLY WOUNDED SAILORS.

"WE TOOK ONE DIRECT HIT, MANY NEAR MISSES AND A NUMBER OF MACHINE GUN BULLET HITS," HE ADDED. "THERE WAS ONLY ONE CASUALTY--A SHELL IN A TURRET WAS KNOCKED DOWN AND FELL ON THE HEAD OF A MAN WHO WAS UNCONSCIOUS FOR THE REST OF THE FIGHT."

THE NAVAL OFFICER, PROMOTED TO COMMANDER LAST MONTH, TOOK GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR OUT OF THE PHILIPPINES IN A PT BOAT ON THE FIRST LEG OF THE GENERAL'S JOURNEY TO AUSTRALIA IN 1942.

(WX) NEW YORK, OCT.25-(AP)-UNDERSECRETARY OF WAR ROBERT P. PATTERSON DECLARED TONIGHT THAT MILITARY FORCES CAPABLE OF DEALING WITH A JAPANESE ARMY OF AT LEAST 4,000,000 WILL BE NEEDED TO WIN THE WAR IN THE PACIFIC, BUT HE GAVE A RENEWED ASSURANCE THAT UNITED STATES SOLDIERS WILL NOT BE KEPT IN THE ARMY LONGER THAN NECESSARY.

PATTERSON SAID IN AN ADDRESS PREPARED FOR DELIVERY BEFORE THE BAR ASSOCIATION OF NEW YORK CITY THAT THE JAPANESE NOW HAVE 4,000,000 MEN IN UNIFORM AND ARE CALLING UP AN ADDITIONAL 1,000,000 YOUTHS IN THE 17 AND 18 YEAR GROUP.

OCT 26 1944

PREDICTING THAT JAPAN WILL CONTINUE TO FIGHT LONG AFTER GERMANY SURRENDERS, PATTERSON ADDED: "THAT JAPANESE ARMY WILL BE DESTROYED BUT IT WILL BE DESTROYED ONLY BY A THREE-WAY ATTACK -- LAND, SEA AND AIR -- IN THE GREATEST STRENGTH THAT WE CAN DELIVER. THERE WILL BE NO FINAL VICTORY UNTIL WE CAN PUT ASHORE, SUPPLY AND REINFORCE INFANTRY, ARTILLERY AND TANKS STRONG ENOUGH TO DESTROY THE GROUND FORCES OF JAPAN.

"WE MUST BE PREPARED TO BATTLE OUR WAY TO THE HEART OF THEIR COUNTRY AGAINST A FANATICAL FOE FIRMLY DUG IN AND READY TO FIGHT TO THE DEATH.

"WE WILL REQUIRE AN ARMY LARGE ENOUGH TO DO THIS JOB. HOWEVER, WE WILL RELEASE MEN FROM SERVICE AS FAST AS MILITARY OPERATIONS WILL PERMIT. ON THAT, OUR POLICY IS PLAIN AND HAS BEEN ALL ALONG.

OCT 26 1944

"WE WILL NOT KEEP IN SERVICE ONE MAN MORE THAN WE NEED TO CARRY OUT OUR MILITARY RESPONSIBILITIES IN WINNING THE WAR. X X X NO CONTRARY SUGGESTION HAS EVER BEEN MADE BY ANYONE WITH AUTHORITY TO SPEAK ON THE SUBJECT."

THUS PATTERSON HIT AGAIN AT THE CONTENTION OF GOV. THOMAS E. DEWEY, REPUBLICAN PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE, THAT THE ADMINISTRATION DOES NOT PLAN TO RELEASE MEN AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE.

ALTHOUGH HE DESCRIBED THE PHILIPPINES INVASION AS "ONE THE GREAT MILITARY ACHIECEMENTS OF THE WAR" PATTERSON POINTED OUT THAT LEYTE "IS TWO THOUSAND MILES FROM TOKYO AND THE FACT REMAINS THAT WE HAVE NOT YET MET THE MAIN JAPANESE STRENGTH."

WASHINGTON,OCT.25-(AP)-GERMAN WAR PLANE PRODUCTION HAS INCREASED MATERIALLY SINCE THE LOW POINT REACHED LAST SPRING, AN ARMY AIR FORCE OFFICIAL SAID TODAY, BUT ALLIED BOMBERS HAVE GIVEN HIGHER PRIORITIES TO OTHER TARGETS WHICH IT IS BELIEVED MIGHT CONTRIBUTE MORE TO AN EARLY VICTORY.

OIL AND GASOLINE PLANTS IN THE REICH HAVE A HIGH RATING AS TARGETS NOW, IT WAS ASSERTED, SINCE THE LOSS OF FUEL PRODUCTION NOT ONLY KEEPS PLANES ON THE GROUND BUT ALSO INTERFERES WITH NAZI TANKS AND SUPPLY VEHICLES.

WHEN THE ALLIED COMMAND DECIDES GERMAN AIRCRAFT OUTPUT SHOULD BE CUT BACK, IT AGAIN WILL ORDER THE KIND OF BOMBING ASSAULT CARRIED OUT EARLY THIS YEAR, HIGH-LIGHTED BY THE FIVE-DAY ATTACK IN FEBRUARY.

AN OFFICIAL SAID THAT THE GERMAN AIRCRAFT PLANT DISPERSAL PLAN HAS BEEN REASONABLY EFFECTIVE, INDICATING THAT THE NEXT ATTACK WILL PRESENT A DIFFERENT AND PROBABLY MORE COMPLEX PROBLEM.

THE FRONT LINE AIR STRENGTH OF THE GERMAN AIR FORCE IS A LITTLE HIGHER THAN IT WAS LAST SPRING, BUT IT HAS NOT BEEN ABLE TO BUILD UP ITS FIGHTER STRENGTH BY AVOIDING BATTLE. AN OFFICIAL SAID THE NAZIS HAD NOT BEEN ABLE TO FULFILL COMMITTMENTS, BECAUSE OF FUEL SHORTAGE, DECLINING QUALITY OF PILOTS, LOW SERVICEABILITY OF PLANES, INFERIOR AIR FIELDS IN GERMANY AND THE OVERWHELMING SUPERIORITY OF ALLIED AIR FORCES.

WASHINGTON, OCT 25--AP)-OUTLINING ITS POSTWAR TRANSATLANTIC AIR SERVICE PROGRAM, PAN AMERICAN AIRWAYS PROPOSED TONIGHT THAT IT OPERATE 36 TRIPS WEEKLY WITH A FLEET OF 17 GIANT LAND PLANES SERVING HALF A DOZEN EUROPEAN CAPITALS AT FARES AS LOW AS $148 FOR A FLIGHT TO LONDON.

OCT 26 1944

THIS INFORMATION WAS MADE PUBLIC AT A PRESS CONFERENCE CALLED BY HENRY FRIENDLY, PAA GENERAL COUNSEL, AND JOHN C. LESLIE, MANAGER OF THE ATLANTIC DIVISION, TO DISCUSS THE DATA WHICH

PAN AMERICAN WILL PRESENT AT A CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD HEARING LATER THIS WEEK.

LESLIE ESTIMATED A TOTAL ANNUAL TRAFFIC FOR A "NORMAL" POST-WAR YEAR OF 233,000 PASSENGERS EACH WAY, OF WHICH AN ESTIMATED 128,500 WOULD USE THE AMERICAN FLAG CARRIER.

THE PROPOSED FARES ONE WAY WERE LISTED AS NEW YORK TO LONDON $148, PARIS $152, LISBON $147, ROME $170, BERLIN $161, MOSCOW $176.50, AND CALCUTTA $332. BY COMPARISON, THE PRESENT FARES FROM NEW YORK TO THOSE CITIES ARE IN THE SAME ORDER $572, $594, $525, $646, $655, $702 AND $1,044.

OCT 26 1944

ARES FROM WASHINGTON, BALTIMORE, CHICAGO AND DETROIT, CITIES FOR WHICH PAN AMERICAN PROPOSES DIRECT EUROPEAN SERVICE, WOULD VARY ONLY SLIGHTLY FROM THE RATES FOR NEW YORK EMBARKATION.

LESLIE SAID THE ESTIMATES INDICATED THAT EUROPEAN TRAFFIC BY CITIES WOULD AMOUNT TO $85,000 ANNUALLY AT NEW YORK, $15,000 AT CHICAGO, $10,000 AT BALTIMORE AND WASHINGTON TOGETHER, $13,000 FOR BOSTON AND $8,000 AT DETROIT. HE ESTIMATED THE AIR EXPRESS OVER THE ROUTE FOR A "NORMAL" YEAR AT 5,700 TONS.

OCT 26 1944

HE SAID THE COMPANY PROPOSED TO USE A NEW AIRPORT BEING PLANNED SOUTH OF BALTIMORE TO SERVE BOTH THAT CITY AND WASHINGTON.

LESLIE SAID THAT HIS COMPANY EXPECTED THE TRANSATLANTIC ROUTE TO BE THE MOST COMPETITIVE AIR ROUTE JUST AS IT HAS BEEN THE MOST COMPETITIVE STEAMSHIP ROUTE AND THAT "AT LEAST BRITISH, RUSSIAN, FRENCH, CANADIAN, DUTCH, BELGIAN, SCANDINAVIAN AND SWISS AIRLINES, EACH BACKED BY ITS OWN GOVERNMENT AND ENJOYING THE SUPPORT OF ITS INTERNAL AVIATION WILL DESIRE TO ENGAGE IN TRANSATLANTIC AIR TRANSPORTATION."

WASHINGTON, OCT. 25-(AP)-CAPTURED RECORDS OF TELEPHON CONVERSATIONS BETWEEN FIELD MARSHAL VON KLUGE, GERMAN COMMANDER IN CHIEF IN THE WEST, AND THREE NAZI FIELD GENERALS WERE MADE PUBLIC TONIGHT BY THE WAR DEPARTMENT WHICH SAID THEY SSHOWED WHAT BROUGHT ABOUT THE DEFEAT OF THE GERMAN SEVENTH ARMY IN NORTHERN FRANCE.

IN THECONVERSATIONS, WHICH TOOK PLACE JULY 31, VON KLUGE COMPLAINED REPEATEDLY OF HEAVY LOSSES FROM THE OPERATIONS OF ALLIED FIGHTER-BOMBER PLANES. AS MANY AS 2,000 WERE THROWN AGAINST THE ENEMY AT ONE TIME DURING THE NORMANDY FIGHTING.

TO THE CHIEF OF STAFF OF ONE ARMY GROUP, VON KLUGE SAID:

"THE ENEMY HAS REACHED AVRANCHES. OUR 357TH INFANTRY REGIMENT OF 363D INFANTRY DIVISION HAS APPARENTLY NOT MOVED OWING TO HITHERTO UNPRECEDENTED ENEMY FIGHTER-BOMBER ACTIVITY. ENEMY TANK ADVANCES ON GRANVILLE AND AVRANCHES WERE PRECEDED BY AN UMBRELLA OF ENEMY FIGHTER-BOMBERS. THIS MADE MOVEMENT ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE. THE TROOPS HAVE SUFFERED HIGHER LOSSES IN MEN AND EQUIPMENT BY STRONG AIR ACTIVITY, AND MORALE HAS GREATLY SUFFERED."

TO THE CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE GERMAN 7TH ARMY:

"YESTERDAY'S HEAVY FIGHTING WAS SUCCESSFUL FOR THE ENEMY ONLY BECAUSE HE PARALYZED ALL OUR MOVEMENTS BY EMPLOYING FIGHTER-BOMBERS ON AN UNPRECEDENTED SCALE."

TO GENERAL WARLIMONT, IDENTIFIED AS HITLER'S PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE IN THE WEST, VON KLUGE SAID:

"THE ENMY AIR SUPERIORITY IS TERRIFIC AND SMOTHERS ALMOST EVERY ONE OF OUR MOVEMENTS. EVERY MOVEMENT OF THE ENEMY, HOWEVER, IS PREPARED AND PROTECTED BY ITS AIR FORCE. LOSSES IN MEN AND EQUIPMENT ARE EXTRAORDINARY."

THE WAR DEPARTMENT EXPLAINED THESE CONVERSATIONS WERE RECORDED IN A TOP SECRET ENEMY TELEPHONE JOURNAL, WHICH WAS CAPTURED ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

WASHINGTON, OCT 25-(AP)-AN ARMY AIR FORCES SPOKESMAN TODAY DESCRIBED THE WAR SITUATION IN CHINA AS "GRAVE" AS A RESULT OF RECENT SUBSTANTIAL JAPANESE TERRITORIAL GAINS, BUT HE DECLARED AMERICAN AIR STRIKING POWER HAS NOT BEEN SERIOUSLY AFFECTED BY THE LOSS OF SIX ADVANCE BASES OF THE FOURTEENTH AIRFORCE IN SOUTHERN CHINA.

"WHILE THE SITUATION IS GRAVE, AND ITS DIFFICULTIES GREAT, THE JAPANESE ARE NOT NOW AND DO NOT SEEM LIKELY TO BE IN ANY POSITION TO NEUTRALIZE OR IN THE LONG RUN EVEN TO CHECK SERIOUSLY THE AIR EFFORT WE ARE DIRECTING AGAINST HER," THE OFFICIAL SAID.

WASHINGTON, OCT 25-(AP)-INCREASING UNITED STATES ATTENTION TO FOREIGN AFFAIRS WAS DEMONSTRATED BY THE WASHINGTON POST, DEVOTING FIVE OF ITS SIX EDITORIALS TO INTERNATIONAL QUESTIONS TODAY AND URGING, AMONG OTHER THINGS, FREEDOM FOR SPAIN TO CHOOSE ITS OWN GOVERNMENT.

THE POST ALSO PRAISED THE IMPROVED RELATIONS BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND THE SOVIET UNION, AND CALLED FOR "TEARING UP THE BILL" OF LEND-LEASE ACCOUNTS, RATHER THAN "HAGGLING OVER IT."

ITS TWO OTHER FOREIGN EDITORIALS CRITICIZED THE STATE DEPARTMENT FOR SLOWNESS IN RECOGNIZING GENERAL DE GAULLE'S REGIME AS PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE, AND URGED GOVERNMENT-CONTROLLED INTERNATIONAL CARTELS FOR POST-WAR FOREIGN TRADE.

THE SPANISH EDITORIAL SAID, "THE NEWS OF INTERNAL UNREST IN SPAIN AUGURS ILL FOR GENERAL FRANCO'S TOTALITARIAN REGIME."

QUOTING BASQUE PRESIDENT DE AGUIRRE AS SAYING IN NEW YORK THAT SPANISH REVOLUTION WAS IMMINENT, THE NEWSPAPER COMMENTED, "IF WE CANNOT ASSIST THE REPUBLICAN ASPIRATIONS OF THE SPANISH PEOPLE, AT LEAST WE SHOULD DO NOTHING TO THWART THEM."

BZTHE PEOPLE OF SPAIN HAVE EARNED THE RIGHT TO CHOOSE THEIR OWN FORM OF GOVERNMENT," THE POST SAID. "IT IS OF PECULIAR INTEREST TO US THAT IT BE A FREE FORM. FOR SPAIN IS THE LINK BETWEEN EUROPE AND THE SPANISH-SPEAKING PEOPLES WHO ARE OUR NEIGHBORS IN THIS HEMISPHERE."

WHILE AWAITING PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S REPORT ON HIS TALKS WITH MARSHAL STALIN, THE POST SAID, "IT IS EVIDENT FROM THE REMARKABLE CORDIALITY DISPLAYED BY BOTH PARTIES DURING THE COURSE OF TE MOSCOW MEETING THAT A LARGER MEASURE OF HARMONY NOW OBTAINS BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND RUSSIA THAN EVER OBTAINED BEFORE IN THIS WAR. IN THIS CIRCUMSTANCE THERE IS MUCH HOPE."

OCT 26 1944

CONCERNING LEND-LEASE, THE NEWSPAPER SAID, "IT IS A SOBER FACT THAT THE UNITED NATIONS CANNOT, WITHOUT WRECKING OUR OWN ECONOMY AS WELL AS THEIRS, REPAY US FOR THE WAR MATERIEL WE SHIPPED THEM IN ANY OTHER COIN THAN VICTORY AND POSTWAR SECURITY."

"THOSE WHO EXPECT LEND-LEASE TO BE REPAID IN MONEY OR IN GOODS ARE GOING TO BE DISAPPOINTED AND DISILLUSIONED," THE POST SAID. "LEND-LEASE HAS BEEN AN IMMEASURABLY VALUABLE INVESTMENT IN THE DEFENSE OF THE UNITED STATES. IT HAS ALREADY PAID US BACK IN THE SAME WAY THAT OUR ARMY AND NAVY HAVE PAID US BACK FOR WHAT WE INVESTED IN THEM. AND WE SHALL PROFIT A GREAT DEAL MORE FROM TEARING UP THE BILL THAN FROM HAGGLING OVER IT."

THE FOREIGN TRADE EDITORIAL SAID, "FROM LONDON COMES WORD THAT THE BRITISH ARE ORGANIZING FOR AN EXPORT TRADE DRIVE AFTER THE WAR THAT IS BOUND TO BRING THEM INTO CONFLICT WITH AMERICAN GROUPS."

DESCRIBING FOREIGN TRADE AS OF GOVERNMENTAL AS WELL AS PRIVATE INTEREST, IT RECALLED THE NATIONAL FOREIGN TRADE CONVENTION RECOMMENDATION FOR MODIFICATION OF LAWS "SO THAT AMERICANS WILL NOT BE A DISADVANTAGE IN CONDUCTING FOREIGN BUSINESS IN COMPETITION WITH TRADERS OF COUNTRIES WHERE CARTELS ARE LEGALIZED."

"SINCE THE GOVERNMENT ITSELF HAS BECOME A PARTY TO A CARTEL AGREEMENT FOR DISPOSING OF WHEAT SURPLUSES, IT CAN HARDLY MAINTAIN THAT INTERNATIONAL CARTELS SERVE NO USEFUL PURPOSE. NOR DOES IT SEEM LOGICAL TO DEPRIVE PRIVATE INTERESTS OF THE ADVANTAGES OF SUCH ORGANIZATIONS, PROVIDED THEY ARE SUBJECT TO GOVERNMENTAL SUPERVISION SO AS TO PREVENT ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE."

IN A SPEECH PREPARED FOR A MEETING OF THE PETROLEUM INDUSTRY WAR COUNCIL, PEW SAID "A SWORD OF DAMOCLES HANGS OVER THE OIL INDUSTRY AS LONG AS THE POSSIBILITY EXISTS THAT THIS AGREEMENT, OR ANY PACT SIMILAR TO IT, MAY BECOME THE LAW OF THE LAND. THE TIME TO FIGHT THIS MENACE TO THE AMERICAN OIL INDUSTRY, ITS WORKERS AND THE PUBLIC IS TODAY."

OCT 27 1944

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 26.—(AP) More than 30 Japanese warships were sunk or doomed to idleness in repair yards in the three fleet battles off the Philippines which saved Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion armies.

Tonight there was every indication that when the complete total is known it will exceed Nippon's previous greatest naval disaster off Guadalcanal in November, 1942, when 35 ships were sunk or damaged.

Communiques of MacArthur and Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, plus a field dispatch from Rear Adm. Daniel Barbey, placed the minimum enemy losses at 27.

12 Warships Sunk

These admittedly incomplete returns listed 12 warships sunk (two carriers, two battleships, five cruisers and three destroyers); three probably sunk (a carrier and two battleships); and 12 damaged (six battleships, five cruisers and one destroyer).

But the figure soared beyond 30 on the strength of a generalized recapitulation of results of battles near the Leyte invasion scene—the third was fought south of Formosa—given war correspondents today by Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid of the Seventh fleet.

Kinkaid's generalization made it impossible, however, to give the exact total.

For the two battles fought off Philippines, communiques of MacArthur and Nimitz listed the knockout of 19 enemy warships.

Kinkaid at Leyte told Dean Schedler, Associated Press war correspondent, that the Japanese fleet sent 14 to 16 warships through Surigao straits into one battle and only six—a cruiser and five destroyers—"were left to flee westward."

OCT 27 1944

Only 14 Ships Flee

The Admiral said between 25 and 30 enemy vessels were sent down for battle off Samar island and "only 14 of these ships were able to retire."

Kinkaid's recapitulation would mean minimum Japanese losses of 19 and maximum losses of 26 with an unspecified number of the fleeing ships damaged and subject to continuing air attacks.

All figures were tentative, not taking into account "several" destroyers known to have been sunk but not totalled.

MacArthur added to the offic[ial] communique total by reporting day a light cruiser was damaged by fighter-escorted Liberators in the Mindanao sea, the direction which would be taken by the Japanese fleet which had moved to battle through Surigao straits.

Both enemy battleships went down off the Philippines. MacArthur reported the sinking of one. John Leonard, Reuter's Naval correspondent aboard Rear Adm. Barbey's flagship in Leyte gulf reported the other.

[Bud Foster, NBC reporter at Pearl Harbor said it is known that five enemy capital ships which were damaged in the battles are in an extremely bad way and possibly may be fallen victim to persistently attacking carrier planes within recent hours.]

Nimitz, in a "well-done" message to the fleet, expressed his pride and gratitude for "the courageous and aggressive manner in which they have done their utmost to destroy the enemy in recent fighting in the Pacific."

Japs Still Claim Victory

Although the American commanders reported only the loss of two carriers and damage to several escort carriers and destroyers, the Japanese continued to claim a sizable victory.

The American communiques and reports of war correspondents on the spot also made clear what the Japanese navy tried and failed to do.

It was forced to come out because of the American landings on Leyte Island in the central Philippines eight days ago.

One Nipponese fleet unit of two battleships, two cruisers and four destroyers, presumably from the China Sea, headed northeastward for the southern tip of Leyte Island

Planned To Impose Vise

A second force of four battleships, ten cruisers and 13 destroyers came out of the central Philippines and headed for the northern end of Leyte. They planned to converge on the eastern side of the island and trap the Seventh United States Fleet of Vice-Admiral Thomas Kinkaid in a viselike maneuver.

Still a third and larger force started for Leyte from the area between the Philippines and Formosa.

Outnumbered and outpowered, Kinkaid deliberately split his fleet, sending the two divisions to meet the first two Japanese threats.

At the southern approaches to Leyte the Americans hit the enemy fleet unit with devastating effect. Both battleships, a cruiser and three destroyers were sunk. The remaining cruiser and destroyer, heavily damaged, fled, with carrier planes still hammering at them.

The enemy rounding the north of Leyte got within 70 miles of the American beachhead and the American landing fleet. C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press correspondent, reported the American position was in potential danger for a time, but that the enemy was turned back with the aid of carrier planes.

Modern Jap Navy's Most Crushing Defeat.

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—Japan's sea power has been reduced by at least twenty-six important ships as a result of the American naval victory in the Philippine area, and reports on the crucial three-phase battle are still incomplete.

At least one of the three engagements—the battle in the San Bernardino Strait area—was continuing, with American aircraft pursuing the broken remnants of one of the two enemy forces which attempted to attack the American landing forces on Leyte Island.

It was the most crushing defeat ever administered the modern Japanese Navy.

Heavy Toll of Battleships.

Latest unofficial compilations from American communiques showed that twelve of Tokyo's fighting ships have definitely been sunk, three probably sunk and eleven damaged. In addition "several" destroyers were sunk or damaged.

The reports showed a heavy toll among Japanese battleships—two sunk, two probably sunk and six heavily damaged, for a total of ten. Best available information indicates that Japan had only ten or twelve battleships, exclusive of new construction, since the beginning of the Pacific war in 1941.

The score, as reported by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, showed five Japanese cruisers sunk and four damaged; two carriers sunk and one damaged; three destroyers sunk and one damaged, in addition to "several" sunk or damaged.

Both commanders made it clear that their final reports will show heavier Japanese losses, particularly in ships sunk.

The crushing three-fold defeat stripped Emperor Hirohito's navy of the greater part of its known carrier, battleship and cruiser power, and would seem thus to have left it without sufficient strength to engage the United States Fleet in any major action again, successfully oppose a landing on the China coast, or strongly defend the shores of Japan itself from attack.

During the three-day battles, the fate of Gen. MacArthur's invasion hung in the balance. This was the touchstone that brought the Japanese fleet out of hiding and precipitated one of the greatest engagements in naval history involving almost every type of warship from battleships to PT boats and submarines, and sea-borne and land-based planes.

American Losses Slight.

By comparison, in the greatest previous defeat of the Japanese since Pearl Harbor, eleven Japanese ships were sunk and nine sunk or damaged in the battle of Midway in June, 1942. Five of these were transports.

The known American losses in the running battles around the Philippines were two small carriers and a number of PT boats sunk, plus an unannounced number damaged.

Great Victory Near Formosa

Nimitz' communique amplified his 1.30 A. M. report Wednesday, so that much of the damage announced tonight duplicates his earlier figures.

By far the greatest of the three naval engagements was the action southeast of Formosa where carrier pilots of Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's task force routed a major force of the Imperial Navy with these losses:

One large carrier exploded and sunk (previously reported).

One large carrier severely damaged by bombs and torpedoes and believed sunk (previously reported damaged).

One light carrier definitely sunk (previously reported damaged).

Two battleships probably sunk (previously unreported).

Two light cruisers definitely sunk (previously unreported).

Two battleships, three cruisers, and a number of destroyers withdrew northward in a damaged condition (previously unreported).

Details On Sibuyan Sea

Additional details of the Monday-Tuesday Battle of the Sibuyan Sea gave these figures:

One heavy cruiser sunk (previously reported damaged).

Four battleships heavily damaged by bombs and left the scene at low speed trailing oil (previously reported damaged).

One cruiser sunk by ships' gunfire (previously reported damaged under general statement regarding light units).

Sinking of these tow cruisers and damaging of four battleships and a destroyer was believed to duplicate damage reported a few hours earlier in a MarArthur communique.

Sinking o fthe Japanese carriers increased to 14 the number of enemy flattops sent to the bottom in this war gainst seven lost by the United States. That seven includes the escort carrier announced by MacArthur as sunk.

Admiral Nimitz's report today was limited to two engagements—an overwhelmingly one-sided victory over the largest Japanese task force, trapped south of Formosa by American carrier planes, warships and submarines; and a crucial air and sea engagement fought northeast of Leyte off Samar Island and in the Sibuyan Sea. Gen. MacArthur had previously reported on the third action at the southern entrance to the Gulf of Leyte.

American carrier planes were reported still pursuing the crippled Samar task force as it tried to escape through the Sibuyan Sea. Naval engagements were apparently broken off, but the American warplanes apparently were out to hunt down the remnants of the other two Japanese flotillas.

Japanese naval communiques admitted the loss of one battleship, two cruisers, one destroyer and substantial damage to another battleship.

Most of the destruction was inflicted on a Japanese task force caught south of Formosa, Admiral Nimitz said, "with no damage to our ships."

Previously Admiral Nimitz had reported the loss of the light carrier Princeton and Gen. MacArthur announced the sinking of an escort carrier from the Seventh Fleet covering his amphibious landings on Leyte.

The Imperial task force caught near Formosa in the Philippine sea was attacked by a concentration of aircraft, surface ships and submarines for a day and night. Enemy aircraft flew out from the Philippines in a futile attempt to rescue the trapped Nipponese task force. The Japanese finally escaped under cover of a black night.

Admiral Nimitz said this report was still incomplete and would be amplified as further details became available. Thus there is the possibility that even greater destruction may have been wrought on the Imperial Fleet which dared—at long last—to leave its own waters and engage Admiral Halsey's mighty force.

Every Jap Ship Fled

The three-day series of engagements began late Monday afternoon and continued into Wednesday morning until every Japanese ship stil afloat had turned its stern toward Admiral William F. Halsey's mighty force and was fleeing with all speed possible i na crippled condition.

Apparently only the blackness of the night made it possible for the crippled survivors of the Mikado's forces to disperse and flee from the wrath of the Halsey-Mitscher carrier pilots.

This second battle of the Philippine Sea — Admiral Raymond A. Spruance directed the first on June 19, when his carrier planes sank or damaged nearly a score of enemy ships—very probably has made possible an attack against the Japanese homeland itself in the not distant future.

Bulk Of Jap Fleet

Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet, said the bulk of the Imperial fleet was engaged in the battles around the Philippines. Nimitz previously said "major units" of the Imperial fleet were defeated in the first battle of the Philippine Sea.

Accepting those statements at face value, the obvious deduction is that the Japanese may not have a great force left afloat. They would thus be forced to defend the homeland largely with land-based planes. So far these have proved a rather poor weapon in Japanese hands against superior American forces.

Destruction of many Japanese carriers probably leaves the empire with very few flattops. These, presumably, are being held for emergency use near the homeland.

Loss In Other Ships

Japan's losses in battleships, cruisers and destroyers has also been very heavy. But whatever ships in these categories remain afloat and in battle condition will be impotent without strong aerial protection.

Halsey finally has achieved a measure of the success he has long dreamed of in conflict against the enemy. He took the first carrier Hornet nearly to Tokyo to launch Maj. Gen. James Doolittle's planes for their raid of April 18, 1942, on the Japanese capital and the great Yokohama shipyards. He roamed the Pacific from Pearl Harbor until September, 1942, when he was made commander of the South Pacific and began a campaign which cleared the Japanese out of the Solomons, or trapped them there to face starvation.

Raids On Jap Isles

Halsey returned to active sea duty as commander of the Third Fleet only a few months ago and shortly swept the far western Pacific to within 200 miles of Japan with devastating raids on Palau, Marcus, the Ryukyu Islands, Formosa and the Philippines.

He has long hoped for a chance to engage the Japanese in mortal combat—confident he could shorten the war by many months with a decisive victory.

Confidence In Power

He believed he finally had the power to crush any force the Nipponese dared to send against him. It was a radical change from the many months in the Solomons, when almost any cove would have sheltered the comparatively few warships he was forced to call his fleet.

Halsey often said he would steam into Yokohama harbor itself—the front door to Tokyo—if necessary to force the Imperial Navy into battle.

Invasion Forces on Leyte Overrun 15 Towns, Widen Front

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Friday, Oct. 27. — (AP) Fighter-covered Liberator bombers expanded Japan's greatest naval disaster by damaging a light cruiser in the Mindanao sea as invasion forces on Leyte forged a solid 40-mile east coast front, overrunning 15 more towns, headquarters announced today.

The cruiser was hit in the area through which one of two badly whipped enemy warship groups fled after being turned back short of penetrating to the Leyte shore beachheads.

The Mindanao sea was traversed by the southern half of a naval squeeze the Japanese unsuccessfully strove to clamp on Leyte. The sea leads into Surigao strait.

The 40-mile juncture was achieved by the 10th and 24th army corps.

Towns taken included bypassed Buri, whose airfield was seized earlier, and the inland highway junction of Tabontabon, both in the southern sector.

The junction was established on the eastern coast of Leyte, south of Tanoan.

"We now control the eastern coastal sector of Leyte from the northern end of San Juanico strait to Dulag, a distance of 40 miles.

Elements of the first Cavalry division, which seized the southern shores of Samar island, across the strait, repulsed a small enemy counterattack at Lapaz.

In the central section of the battlefront, west of Palo, the 24th division is meeting increasing opposition.

Farther south, in the 24th corps area sector, the 96th division captured Tabontabon. That inland highway junction town is three and a half miles west of the Catmon hills, which were enveloped earlier.

After sharp fighting the 7th Division captured Buri, on the Burauen-Dagami road. Buri had been bypassed earlier, as the doughboys swept northward of captured Burauen, because of stiff Japanese opposition there.

Jap Raids Limited

Enemy air activity against Allied shipping in San Pedro bay and the beachhead areas of eastern Leyte again was limited to intermittent harassing raids. These caused light casualties and damage, the communique said.

Anti-aircraft fire shot down 39 enemy planes, fighter patrols downed 14 more and carrier aircraft from flattops in Leyte Gulf got 23.

Remnants of the Japanese naval force defeated in Leyte Gulf by Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's Seventh Fleet were kept under continual attack by Allied aircraft.

Other Communities Freed

Thirteen additional communities were freed from the enemy. They are Anibung, Tigbae, Canmangui Hindang, Bolangtohan, Kalvasagg Calampanon, Malabka, San Gabriel Kanmonhag, Telegrafo, San Joaquin and Diit.

The northern coast of Leyte was secured by amphibious forces which vaulted around 20 miles of shoreline in a supreme move that virtually blocked the Japanese retreat northward from Tacloban.

This operation, reported by MacArthur's Thursday communique, was matched by inland advances in the southern sector, where the capture of Burauen apparently boxed the Japanese in the broad Leyte Valey.

On Southern Shore Of Samar

The series of amphibious assaults by units of the Tenth Corps gained footholds at Uvam and Babatngon on the Carigara Bay coast of northern Leyte and on the southern shares of Samar Island, across San Jaunica Strait.

There was no opposition to the landings, James Hutcheson, Associated Press correspondent, reported. Disintegration of the enemy forces in that area was reported by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in his Thursday communique.

The battle was joined in darkness at 4 A. M. and American battleships, cruisers, destroyers and PT boats were engaged. One Japanese battleship went down in the night action. When day came, United States destroyers went in to finish off the crippled enemy warships which were still afloat.

It is believed that most of the Japanese vessels in this formation had come from Singapore.

Box Score Of Japanese Ship Losses In Naval Defeat

One Battleship Sunk, Another Damaged, Japs Admit

San Francisco, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Japanese in a broadcast today admitted one battleship was sunk and another damaged in fighting with American warships in the Leyte Gulf area. The broadcast was recorded here by the Federal Communications Commission.

An Imperial Japanese Headquarters communique said "one battleship was sunk and another substantially damaged" in the Leyte Gulf area.

The communique referred to the fighting on Leyte itself and declared Japanese forces had intercepted approximately three American divisions landed south of Tacloban and in the vicinity of Dulag since October 20 and that fierce fighting is continuing.

Text Of Communique

"Our fleet during the early dawn of October 25 dashed into Leyte Gulf and carried out strong attacks against the enemy forces. Total war results as ascertained up to the present time attained within Leyte Gulf area follow:

"Five transports sunk, 11 set ablaze, four grounded and two heavily damaged. Two carriers heavily damaged, one battleship grounded, two heavily damaged. Two cruisers sunk, three heavily damaged. One destroyer sunk, three heavily damaged. Seventeen large-type landing craft sunk and two either heavily damaged or set ablaze.

Admit Some Losses

"Our losses: Besides one battleship sunk and one substantially damaged, some of our planes are either self blasted or have not yet returned."

Yesterday the Japanese admitted the loss of three warships, two cruisers and a destroyer.

Some Japanese propagandists made extravagant claims that contradicted others and kept the Federal Communication Commission monitors busy recording them.

While one broadcast claimed "at this very moment our violent attacks are being concentrated upon the enemy," another said, "it has been confirmed that our forces have defeated the enemy."

"Navy Second To None"

Another propagandist said:

"We can anticipate the day when the arrogant enemy American fleet will quit and flee as a defeated fleet."

Tokyo radio insisted its navy "was second to none" and went on to explain:

"The Imperial fleet, which patiently held back its desire to engage in battle in order to pile training upon training, has finally been given the chance to manifest its power. . . . The Imperial fleet saw an opportune moment to deal a death blow upon the enemy fleet and boldly and fearlessly sailed out to challenge a battle with the main strength of the enemy fleet."

JAPAN SHORT OF CARRIERS

All May Be Lost Or Laid Up After Two Battles

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 26 (AP)—More than 40 Japanese warships have been sunk or damaged in naval battles with American forces since the Saipan invasion, and the Japanese very probably have been left without one aircraft carrier in fighting trim.

The Nipponese suffered their damages in the battles of the Sulu and Sibuyan seas and the two battles of the Philippine Sea—the first June 19 when a thrust at invaded Saipan was frustrated, and the second this week south of Formosa.

Possibly 3 Sunk At Once

Two carriers were sunk and a third probably sunk in the second battle of the Philippine Sea, beginning October 23. This loss, coupled with the destruction of another flattop and the damaging of five others in the June 19 battle, is believed to have totally immobilized Japan's naval air force until the damaged flattops can be repaired.

The United States, in contrast, is known to have more than a score of carriers in Admiral F. Halsey's Third Fleet and Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's 58th Task Force, in addition to other flattops in service.

Lacking complete reports from Halsey's fleet, the belief here is that probably not one Japanese warship escaped undamaged from the battle involving a heavy imperial fleet force south of Formosa Tuesday and Tuesday night. This engagement actually was the second battle of the Philippines Sea, a term given to the ocean areas east of the archipelago by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz after the June fleet action.

Fought At Close Range

The three Japanese carriers, smashed in the Tuesday battle, were escorted by at least four battleships, five or six cruisers and possibly 15 destroyers.

It is known that Halsey's cruisers and destroyers closed to such short range that they probably sank some Japanese ships, which already had been crippled by bombs and heavier guns, and damaged others. This damage equal result when the American warcraft sped into the fleeing survivors of the imperial task force.

The role of American submarines in this battle has not been disclosed yet.

Japanese shipyards at Yokohama, Singapore and elsewhere already are overcrowded, repairing ships damaged in the first Philippines Sea battle in June. They now face a hopeless task with another score or so of crippled warships steaming toward port.

SUBS HELPED ROUT JAPANESE FLEET

LEYTE, Philippines, Thursday, Oct. 27.—(AP) Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid, recapitulating for correspondents today events of the past few historic hours, gave a large measure of credit to American submarines and to carrier aircraft for their part in the rout of the Japanese fleet.

United States carrier planes, he said, by sighting the approaching forces, furnished information of the enemy's disposition far enough in advance to be a vital factor in his defeat.

Admiral Kinkaid gave this recapitulation of the battle which will go far in determining the future of the Pacific war:

The attacks began Oct. 23 when the enemy sent 14 to 16 ships, including two great battleships, cruisers and destroyers, south of Leyte toward Surigao straits, and another great force of 25 to 30 ships, including four battleships, through Sibuyan Sea toward San Bernardino strait.

When the battle was completed in Surigao straits only one cruiser and five destroyers were left to flee westward. One battleship was sunk in the straits and a second battleship, already damaged, was left sinking by torpedo bombers.

The enemy's northern attack force of 25 ships which slipped through San Bernardino strait to run down the east coast of Samar fared no better.

Aboard Admiral Barbey's Flagship in Leyte Gulf, Oct. 25 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Two Japanese battleships, one cruiser and three destroyers were sunk today by American surface ships and aircraft when a Japanese force of eight warships tried to reach the Gulf of Leyte from the south through the Sulu Sea and the Surigao Strait. Only one cruiser and one destroyer escaped, and both were damaged heavi.

On Southern Shore Of Samar

The series of amphibious assaults by units of the Tenth Corps gained footholds at Uvam and Babatngon on the Carigara Bay coast of northern Leyte and on the southern shares of Samar Island, across San Jaunica Strait.

There was no opposition to the landings, James Hutcheson, Associated Press correspondent, reported. Disintegration of the enemy forces in that area was reported by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in his Thursday communique.

The battle was joined in darkness at 4 A. M. and American battleships, cruisers, destroyers and PT boats were engaged. One Japanese battleship went down in the night action. When day came, United States destroyers went in to finish off the crippled enemy warships which were still afloat.

It is believed that most of the Japanese vessels in this formation had come from Singapore.

Box Score Of Japanese Ship Losses In Naval Defeat

[By the Associated Press]

Here is the box score of Japanese losses in the three-pronged Philippines sea-air battle:

	Sunk	Probably Sunk	Heavily Damaged	Total
Carriers	2	1	..	3
Battleships	1	2	7	10*
Cruisers	5	..	4	9
Destroyers	?	?	4	4†
Total	8	3	15	26

*Two battleships reported yesterday by Admiral Nimitz as damaged by bombs in the Sulu Sea may not be included.

†"Several" others were damaged; the four in the box were "either sunk or heavily damaged."

One Battleship Sunk, Another Damaged, Japs Admit

San Francisco, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Japanese in a broadcast today admitted one battleship was sunk and another damaged in fighting with American warships in the Leyte Gulf area. The broadcast was recorded here by the Federal Communications Commission.

An Imperial Japanese Headquarters communique said "one battleship was sunk and another substantially damaged" in the Leyte Gulf area.

The communique referred to the fighting on Leyte itself and declared Japanese forces had intercepted approximately three American divisions landed south of Tacloban and in the vicinity of Dulag since October 20 and that fierce fighting is continuing.

Text Of Communique

"Our fleet during the early dawn of October 25 dashed into Leyte Gulf and carried out strong attacks against the enemy forces. Total war results as ascertained up to the present time attained within Leyte Gulf area follow:

"Five transports sunk, 11 set ablaze, four grounded and two heavily damaged. Two carriers heavily damaged, one battleship grounded, two heavily damaged. Two cruisers sunk, three heavily damaged. One destroyer sunk, three heavily damaged. Seventeen large-type landing craft sunk and two either heavily damaged or set ablaze.

Admit Some Losses

"Our losses: Besides one battleship sunk and one substantially damaged, some of our planes are either self blasted or have not yet returned."

Yesterday the Japanese admitted the loss of three warships, two cruisers and a destroyer.

Some Japanese propagandists made extravagant claims that contradicted others and kept the Federal Communication Commission monitors busy recording them.

While one broadcast claimed "at this very moment our violent attacks are being concentrated upon the enemy," another said, "it has been confirmed that our forces have defeated the enemy."

"Navy Second To None"

Another propagandist said:

"We can anticipate the day when the arrogant enemy American fleet will quit and flee as a defeated fleet."

Tokyo radio insisted its navy "was second to none" and went on to explain:

"The Imperial fleet, which patiently held back its desire to engage in battle in order to pile training upon training, has finally been given the chance to manifest its power. . . . The Imperial fleet saw an opportune moment to deal a death blow upon the enemy fleet and boldly and fearlessly sailed out to challenge a battle with the main strength of the enemy fleet."

JAPAN SHORT OF CARRIERS

All May Be Lost Or Laid Up After Two Battles

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 26 (AP)—More than 40 Japanese warships have been sunk or damaged in naval battles with American forces since the Saipan invasion, and the Japanese very probably have been left without one aircraft carrier in fighting trim.

The Nipponese suffered their damages in the battles of the Sulu and Sibuyan seas and the two battles of the Philippine Sea—the first June 19 when a thrust at invaded Saipan was frustrated, and the second this week south of Formosa.

Possibly 3 Sunk At Once

Two carriers were sunk and a third probably sunk in the second battle of the Philippine Sea, beginning October 23. This loss, coupled with the destruction of another flattop and the damaging of five others in the June 19 battle, is believed to have totally immobilized Japan's naval air force until the damaged flattops can be repaired.

The United States, in contrast, is known to have more than a score of carriers in Admiral F. Halsey's Third Fleet and Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's 58th Task Force, in addition to other flattops in service.

Lacking complete reports from Halsey's fleet, the belief here is that probably not one Japanese warship escaped undamaged from the battle involving a heavy imperial fleet force south of Formosa Tuesday and Tuesday night. This engagement actually was the second battle of the Philippines Sea, a term given to the ocean areas east of the archipelago by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz after the June fleet action.

Fought At Close Range

The three Japanese carriers, smashed in the Tuesday battle, were escorted by at least four battleships, five or six cruisers and possibly 15 destroyers.

It is known that Halsey's cruisers and destroyers closed to such short range that they probably sank some Japanese ships, which already had been crippled by bombs and heavier guns, and damaged others. This damage could result when the American warcraft sped into the fleeing survivors of the imperial task force.

The role of American submarines in this battle has not been disclosed yet.

Japanese shipyards at Yokohama, Singapore and elsewhere already are overcrowded, repairing ships damaged in the first Philippines Sea battle in June. They now face a hopeless task with another score or so of crippled warships steaming toward port.

SUBS HELPED ROUT JAPANESE FLEET

LEYTE, Philippines, Thursday, Oct. 27.—(AP) Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid, recapitulating for correspondents today events of the past few historic hours, gave a large measure of credit to American submarines and to carrier aircraft for their part in the rout of the Japanese fleet.

United States carrier planes, he said, by sighting the approaching forces, furnished information of the enemy's disposition far enough in advance to be a vital factor in his defeat.

Admiral Kinkaid gave this recapitulation of the battle which will go far in determining the future of the Pacific war:

The attacks began Oct. 23 when the enemy sent 14 to 16 ships, including two great battleships, cruisers and destroyers, south of Leyte toward Surigao straits, and another great force of 25 to 30 ships, including four battleships, through Sibuyan sea toward San Bernardino strait.

When the battle was completed in Surigao straits only one cruiser and five destroyers were left to flee westward. One battleship was sunk in the straits and a second battleship, already damaged, was left sinking by torpedo bombers.

The enemy's northern attack force of 25 ships which slipped through San Bernardino strait to run down the east coast of Samar fared no better.

7th And 3d Fleet Planes Pursue Defeated Japs

OCT 27 1944

By C. Yates McDaniel

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 26 (AP)—Saving America's Leyte invasion in its hour of direct peril, the outnumbered but never outgamed Seventh Fleet sent carrier planes today in pursuit of two defeated Japanese naval armadas while United States Third Fleet planes bombed and torpedoed a third enemy warship force south of Formosa.

Already, with many reports yet to be heard, it is known that a Japanese large carrier, a big battleship, several cruisers and destroyers have been sunk, two carriers, four battleships and other warships damaged.

(Latest reports from Pearl Harbor placed the known sunk as two carriers, one battleship and five cruisers. Two battleships and one carrier were listed as probably sunk and 15 vessels were damaged.

(Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief, said at Washington that "practically all the Japanese fleet" was taken on in the engagements.)

Could Have Been Disastrous

It is a historic victory. But there was one hour Wednesday morning as two Nipponese battleship-led groups emerged on the east side of the Philippines and approached Leyte Gulf when the fate of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his men hung in the balance.

Then it was that Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid made a daring decision. Despite numerical inferiority as a group, he boldly divided his Seventh Fleet and an Australian squadron, sent them in different directions and won both battles.

Seventh Gets Battleship

Closing in for the first gun battles in more than a year with the Japanese and backed by carrier planes, the Seventh:

Sank a 29,300-ton enemy battleship.

Sank an as yet not totaled number of cruisers and destroyers.

Damaged at least three more cruisers and several destroyers.

Lost an escort carrier and several patrol torpedo boats.

Suffered damage to several escort carriers, destroyers and PT boats.

Fighting Goes On

Somewhere south of Formosa, Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier planes from the Third Fleet of Admiral William F. Halsey already have sunk a large enemy carrier and damaged two others, but have lost the 10,000-ton Princeton, a cruiser converted into a carrier.

Nimitz, announcing this engagement at Pearl Harbor on the strength of admittedly incomplete reports, said yesterday:

"General action is continuing."

Kinkaid's courageous orders were executed to decisions off Leyte Gulf and off the east coast of Samar.

(Gordon Walker, in a Mutual Network broadcast, said Japanese warships got within 70 miles of the Leyte beaches "and I can tell you there were some very worried men here in the central Philippines at that time."

(Walker pointed out "if the enemy fleet had been able to break through our naval blockade and enter Leyte Gulf they could have wiped out every ship in San Pedro Bay.")

Action Described

One Japanese force of at least two battleships, a heavy cruiser, a light cruiser and four destroyers, after moving across the Sulu Sea, passed through Surigao Straits to move against Kinkaid from the southwest.

One half of Kinkaid's Seventh took on this group first Wednesday.

For 25 minutes, the opposing warships exchanged broadsides and American destroyers darted in for close strikes.

MacArthur jubilantly announced the enemy force was "completely routed." Early in the action a 29,300 Yamasiro class battleship was blasted and the Japanese abandoned her as she sank.

Hit Every Ship

"Every hostile ship was either sunk or heavily damaged," MacArthur said.

Surviving enemy remnants turned back through Surigao "under continued air attack from our escort carriers."

Kinkaid's bold move on this end was carried out with "extremely light losses"—several PT boats sunk or damaged, one destroyer damaged.

The other battle broke out a little later off Sumar, newly invaded island just north of Leyte.

Armada Turned Back

A Japanese naval force which included four battleships, several cruisers and destroyers, after crossing the Sibuyan Sea, slipped between Luzon and Samar, then moved down toward the Leyte scene and started shelling one of the escort carrier groups of Kinkaid. The admiral's carrier planes combined with carrier planes of another group in such fierce attacks that the enemy armada had to turn back north. Several cruisers and destroyers were sunk, three battleships, three cruisers and some destroyers were "badly damaged."

But Kinkaid's cost was heavier this time. One escort carrier went down, other carriers as well as destroyers were damaged.

(Eyewitness broadcasts from Leyte told how planes of the sunk and damaged escort carriers landed on Tacloban and Dulag airfields although those strips haven't been in American hands long enough to accomodate many planes.

Damaged Planes Go Back

(Some of the planes were damaged but their pilots helped repair them, also aided in rolling up drums of gasoline for refueling, then got in and roared back into the battle.)

At Pearl Harbor, Nimitz said the Princeton was hit in the action "southeast of Formosa" by enemy shore-based planes. Subsequently her magazines exploded and American warships had to sink her. But her captain, 133 officers and 1,227 of her enlisted men were saved and "casualties among her personnel were light."

During this attack, 150 Japanese planes were shot down.

Yank Pilots' Part In Jap Defeat Is Described

OCT 27 1944

By Dean Schedler

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Leyte, Oct. 26 (AP)—Pilots leaving the flight decks of the baby flattops engaged in the great Philippine Sea battle well knew their mother ships might not be afloat when they returned.

But they swept on the far superior enemy forces with low-level bombing and strafing attacks and when they exhausted their fuel landed on Tacloban air field during an air raid and then returned to battle.

Meanwhile, the Japanese pressed their attack on the American carriers with the support of land-based bombers, three of their dive bombers crash diving on the decks of three different carriers. By 1 P. M. the enemy surface forces had had enough, gave up pursuit of the American carriers and turned northward.

Japs Hit Again

The foiled Japanese force withdrew only to be hit and hit hard by planes from another American force rushing down from the north.

The final results of the action off Samar are still lacking, but when night fell the only remaining enemy threats to Leyte were from land-based planes.

The once derided "jeep" carriers had severely wounded and repulsed a large portion of the Japanese battle force in their first great close-in battle-line action of the Pacific war.

Audacity Vs. Audacity

OCT 27 1944

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 26 (AP—Delayed)—Had it not been for Vice-Admiral Thomas Kinkaid's decision to meet audacity with audacity, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Leyte beachead and supporting vessels in San Pedro harbor might have been under fire of Japanese battleship guns this morning.

The Japanese opened the first phase of the battle of Leyte Gulf with a bold strike through Surigao Straits.

American PT boats sighted the enemy shortly after midnight yesterday and roared in for a brave, but unsuccessful, attack. Destroyers followed in with a closely pressed torpedo attack which sent Japanese battleships reeling under the impact of direct hits.

Battleships under command of Rear Admiral Jesse Oldendorf, some of which had been resurrected from the mud of Pearl Harbor, then opened up with their big guns.

Battleship Set Afire

One Japanese battleship was set afire and left dead in the water with a Japanese destroyer attempting to take off survivors. The remaining enemy ships, all of which are believed to have suffered damage, broke off action and retired with navy Avenger torpedo bombers pressing home attacks.

A second Japanese battleship was last seen burning and steaming slowly in the Sula Sea.

While the Surigao action was under way Rear Admiral Thomas Sprague signaled that his "jeep" carrier force was under gunfire off the east coast of Samar Island, northeast of Leyte.

25 Jap Ships

The Japanese force attacking the carriers comprised 4 battleships, 9 cruisers and 12 destroyers. Only the little flattops and a few small men of war stood in the way of this powerful battle force which appeared to be bent on bludgeoning its way into Leyte gulf in the rear of Kinkaid's already engaged Surigao force.

Sprague's Wildcat Avengers took off into a fortunate southeast wind which enabled the carriers to run from the enemy and at the same time launch their aircraft.

(The dispatch, transmitted by voicecast, ended here, but General MacArthur reported that the planes from the flattops drove off the attacking Japanese units and forced it to retire to the north.)

U. S. Flyers Tell of Battle Against Jap Fleet From Above

OCT 27 1944

Leyte, Philippine Islands, Oct. 25 (Delayed) (A.P.)—Baby carriers of the force protecting Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion fleet outmaneuvered a Japanese fleet which got close enough to them to fire at practically point-blank range, according to carrier pilots who made emergency landings here.

"The ships did the cleverest maneuvering I've ever seen," said Lieut. (j. g.) T. T. Murphy of Los Angeles. "They never allowed the Japanese cruisers to box them with fire. The cruisers were firing at them from several thonsands yards, which is practically pointblank range. Even when hits were scored, they couldn't stop the carriers."

Other pilots reported the Japanese ship anti-aircraft fire to be the heaviest they had ever seen. "It was worse than at Saipan the day before the invasion," said Lieut. Charles Lee of Indiola, Miss. "It was so thick I seemed to be looking out through jail bars. My plane caught fire three times after the propeller, engine and gasoline tank were hit.' Lieut. Lee reported one of his 500-pound bombs hit a battleship:

Eight fighter planes dropped through the clouds and discovered a Japanese fleet between the carriers and Leyte Island at 6 A. M. today, Ensign William Robinson of Westfield, Mass., said in describing the opening of one phase of the battles.

"There below us was what looked like the whole Japanese fleet and there were only eight of us, all fighters," he continued. "There must have been four or five battleships, as many cruisers and even more destroyers. They had slipped in during the night and got between our carriers and Leyte."

Ensign William McCormick of Los Angeles said: "I came in later in a torpedo plane. I picked out a battleship of the Kongo class and went in just above the mast. They threw everything at us and nearly shot us out of the air, but when we left the battleship was smoking."

Pilot Kenneth Dahl of Alameda, Cal., saw four 500-pound bombs from his plane straddle a cruiser. The ship was smoking when he left.

'Well Done,' Nimitz Says, Voicing Thanks of Nation

By The Associated Press.

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 26—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz expressed the nation's pride and gratitude for the courageous and aggressive fleet victory over the Japanese in Philippine waters in a message today to the fighting forces. He said:

"The Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet desires to express to all officers and men of the fleet his pride and gratitude for the courageous and aggressive manner in which they have done their utmost to destroy the enemy in recent fighting in the Pacific.

"To those who have fought in the air, on the surface, and in our submarines, 'well done.'

"To those brave men who have gallantly given their lives to achieve victory for our country, our reverent and lasting respect. Their high example will inspire us all in the completion of our task of destroying the enemies of the United States."

Naval Forces Pursue Crippled Jap Fleet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(AP) American Naval forces, victorious over the Japanese in the battle of the Philippines, "will pursue the damaged Japanese ships to the limit of their ability," Navy Secretary Forrestal declared tonght.

He added that the Navy "will do everything within its power to exploit the advantage which we have gained."

But he cautioned in a broadcast on the CBS-first line program" against overoptimism based upon the sinking or damaging of "30 odd Japanese warships." The Navy Secretary said that only nine enemy ships are definitely known thus far to have been sunk. He said they are two aircraft carriers, one battleship, five cruisers and one destroyer.

(Forrestal's figures, presumably based exclusively on official Navy reports here, did not include all the sinkings reported at the scene).

"Many remaining ships—a sizeable fleet in themselves—remain afloat, more or less seriously damaged," he declared. "As we know from our own experience, crippled vessels may be able to limp to port, undergo repairs and come out to fight again."

Forrestal also declared that it must be remembered that "we have not escaped from these actions scot-free. We too have lost ships and have had others damaged." He gave no details on the extent of American damage.

The battle of the Philippines was described by the Navy Secretary as "one of the pivotal actions of the war."

"We have—at least temporarily—reduced the Japanese navy to a much more unhappy condition than confronted us after Pearl Harbor," Forrestal continued. "We estimate that two-thirds of the Japanese battleships have been sunk or damaged. Japan's cruiser and destroyer forces, inadequate for some time, have suffered the temporary or permanent loss of 15 to 20 additional vessels. These figures may go higher."

30-24 — 19903

Jap Defeat May Bring Victory Much Nearer

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—The crushing defeat handed the Japanese navy in Philippine waters brought to Washington and the nation today the cheering thought that the whole course of the war may now be changed and victory brought months nearer.

These great expectations were tempered in some degree by impatience to hear in final detail of what may well be the greatest sea action in history.

A Japanese defeat of the magnitude reported in first dispatches would mean that Japan is through as a naval power—that powerful American task forces which never have feared engagement with the enemy would be relieved of any trouble from sizable naval forces.

Estimate Of Fleet's Size

And with such freedom of action—relieved of any necessity of guarding against operation of the Japanese fleet—the American Pacific fleet would concentrate upon wiping out remaining enemy surface units and softening up Japan's island bases.

However, some naval observers are inclined to check the fragmentary reports of damage against estimates of the size of the Japanese fleet. They point out that Japan has been credited with at least a dozen each of battleships and first-line aircraft carriers. Early reports of the Philippines battle mention one battleship sunk, four damaged, some possibly sunk, an aircraft carrier sunk, two others damaged and several cruisers and destroyers sunk or damaged.

On the other hand, the optimistic tones of the first reports seem to indicate that much more extensive damage might have been inflicted.

Two Purposes Cited

Admiral Ernest J. King, navy commander in chief, before announcement of the American victory, had told newsmen that "practically all" of the Japanese fleet was involved in the Philippines action.

King indicated that two principal purposes might have been considered by the Japanese high command when the enemy fleets turned toward the Philippines—(1) a junction of Japanese forces in the homeland and those about to be cut off in the Singapore area by American invasion of the Philippines and (2) an effort to halt American liberation of the island group.

One illustration of the interlocking nature of all warfare is in an opinion expressed by strategists of the Army Air Forces that the Philippine sea-air events will help relieve the "grave" Japanese offensive threat to advanced bases in China of the United States 14th Air Force.

OCT 27 1944

"Dangerous Threat"

"As long as the enemy is faced with the threat of severe air losses in the Pacific, it appears he will risk as few aircraft as possible in either offensive or defensive air combat in China," an AAF authority said.

Recently reinforced Japanese ground troops are, however, pressing what he described as a "dangerous threat" to advance bases at Liuchow and Nanning in southern China.

The fall of Liuchow and Nanning, he said, would "reduce drastically the effectiveness of B-24 bomber attacks on shipping along the China coast, and probably eliminate such attacks in the Formosa strait."

53 BIG WARSHIPS IN PACIFIC FLEET

OCT 27 1944

Navy Lists 16 Battleships, 37 Cruisers Facing Japs

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—At least 16 American battleships and 37 cruisers form the backbone of the force blasting the Japanese from Pacific power.

This indication of the hitting power of surface craft of the Pacific fleet—exclusive of scores of aircraft carriers and hundreds of destroyers—was given by the navy tonight. In connection with the observance of Navy Day tomorrow, it released resumes of the war records of 103 fighting craft.

At Least 14 In Atlantic

These resumes also revealed that on August 15—the date Allied forces invaded southern France—at least four battleships and 10 cruisers were providing the big guns of the Atlantic fleet.

No indication was given of the number of smaller ships in the two oceans, but destroyers, destroyer escorts and submarines literally are numbered in the hundreds.

It is reasonable to assume that by far the greater part of the smaller but deadly warships are assigned to the Pacific with orders to "seek out and destroy" the Japanese.

Likewise, it is logical to count as part of the Pacific fleet most of the approximately 100 aircraft carriers in the United States fleet—now the largest sea fighting force in world history.

Only 15 Given Listing

Little information was given by the navy on assignment of carriers. Only 15 appeared in the 103 resumes. All of that group of carriers have been identified with action in the Pacific.

The carriers named are: Independence, Long Island, Yorktown, Lexington, Santee, Nassau, Sangamon, Suwanee, Chenango, Enterprise, Cowpens, Saratoga, Essex, Bunker Hill and Princeton, the latter listed only yesterday as having been sunk in the Philippines.

The navy did make these disclosures, for the first time, in discussing operations of the carriers:

The Lexington, namesake of a carrier lost in the battle of the Coral Sea in May, 1942, has been damaged. She was struck by an aerial torpedo last December, returned to the United States for repairs and now is back in action.

Yorktown Sets Records

The air group of the Yorktown—successor to a carrier lost in the battle of Midway—has set this record: Shot down every Jap plane attacking the Yorktown; flown the first planes into action from an Essex class carrier; never lost a dive or torpedo bomber in battle with Japanese aircraft.

The Long Island—"baby flattop"—ferried planes to Guadalcanal in August, 1942, first official notice that these small carriers were in Pacific action at that time.

The Independence, first of a class of medium aircraft carriers, was struck by an aerial torpedo during the invasion of the Gilbert Islands in November, 1943.

Divided Between Oceans

Here is the breakdown of the big ships of the fleet between the Pacific and Atlantic oceans as shown in the navy's reports of battle action up to the middle of August, subject to changes since that time which may have boosted the strength of the Pacific fleet:

Pacific

Battleships — Iowa, Alabama, Massachusetts, Washington, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Dakota, New Mexico, California, Colorado, Mississippi, Indiana, Idaho, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Tennessee—16.

Heavy Cruisers — Vincennes, Louisville, Indianapolis, Boston, Baltimore, Wichita, San Francisco, Houston (new, succeeding Houston lost in Java Sea), Portland, New Orleans, Pensacola, Minneapolis, Salt Lake City, Chester—14.

Light Cruisers—Boise, Mobile, Birmingham, San Diego, Santa Fe, Montpelier, Phoenix, St. Louis, Honolulu, Oakland, Biloxi, Detroit, Denver, Raleigh, Miami, Trenton, Columbia, Cleveland, Richmond, Nashville, Concord, San Juan, Marblehead—23.

Atlantic

Battleships — New York, Nevada, Texas, Arkansas—4.

Heavy Cruisers—Quincy (successor to Quincy lost in battle of Savo Island), Augusta, Tuscaloosa—3.

Light Cruisers — Milwaukee, Memphis, Philadelphia, Savannah, Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Omaha—7.

In addition the navy disclosed that the new battleships Wisconsin and Missouri have been commissioned.

Presumably For Pacific

Both presumably are headed for action in the Pacific.

Two of the new battle cruisers, officially listed as "large cruisers" and unofficially described as "pocket battleships," also were disclosed by the navy to have been commissioned. They are the Alaska and the Guam, both expected to move into the Pacific war zones.

Other new warships included in the Navy Day lists are these cruisers: Pittsburgh, Pasadena, Reno, Flint, Duluth, Wilkes-Barre, Springfield and Vicksburg, all expected to be assigned to the Pacific.

17 SMALL NAVY VESSELS LOST

Toll In Connection With Invasion Of France Disclosed

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—Loss of 17 small naval craft in European operations connected with the liberation of northern France were announced today by the Navy Department.

The losses were attributed to "enemy action or the perils of the sea."

The ships lost included the Maintonomah, a mine layer; six landing ships, six infantry landing craft, three mine sweepers and a PT boat.

Next Of Kin Notified

The next of kin of all casualties have been notified.

The Miantonomah, largest of the craft, carried a crew of about 300 officers and men under command of Commander Austin Rowe, who was wounded when his ship was lost. His wife, Mrs. Grace Rowe, lives in Brookline, Mass.

Lieut. Harry Mohr Crist, son of Samuel Archibald Crist, 62 Pitman avenue, Pitman, N. J., skipper of the PT boat, is missing after loss of his craft, which carried a crew of about 11 men.

OCT 27 1944

Other Craft And Skippers

The other craft lost, with their skippers, were:

LST 314, Lieut. Com. A. H. Tutt, De Queen, Ark.

LST 376, Lieut. (j. g.) C. B. Stanley, Houston, Texas.

LST 496, Lieut. Stanley Heiberg Koch (dead), Missoula, Mont.

LST 499, Lieut. E. F. White (wounded), Riverside, Ill.

LST 523, Lieut. Harold H. Cross, Norfolk, Va.

LST 921, Lieut. John Enge, Petersburg, Alaska.

LCI (L) 85, Lieut. C. T. Hendley, Columbia, S. C.

LCI (L) 91, Lieut. Arend Vyn, Grand Haven, Mich.

LCI (L) 92, Lieut. Robert M. Salmon, Maplewood, N. J.

LCI (L) 93, Lieut. (j. g.) Budd B. Bornhoft, Norfolk, Neb.

LCI (L) 219, Lieut. Albert J Corsi (wounded), East Orange New Jersey.

LCI (L) 232, Lieut. William Rowney Watson (wounded), Youngstown, Ohio.

YMS-304, Lieut. Richard F. Olsen, Scarsdale, N. Y.

YMS-350, Lieut. George Hammer, New Orleans.

YMS-378, Lieut. Joseph J. Guidrey, Watertown, Mass.

The navy communique said in addition to the above, a number of smaller landing craft were lost.

JAPANESE NAVY STILL SEEN AS THREAT IN WAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 — (AP) The Japanese navy certainly is limping after its disastrous defeat in Philippine waters, but it still remains a factor in future operations near Japan.

Despite the heavy damage shown in initial reports from the battle, conservative estimates tonight show that probably as many as 175 Japanese warships remain in fighting condition.

This is based upon reports that Nipponese naval strength before the Japanese fleet dared to move into the Philippines included some 200 ships of all types exclusive of submarines and a number of merchant vessels converted for use as aircraft carriers.

In the mighty battle fought over the Philippines area—from which reports still are fragmentary — at least 26 Japanese ships were put out of action, either sunk or damaged.

Even assuming that all of the damaged ships are hurt so badly that they are out of action until major repairs can be made, Japan still has a fleet which must be considered in Pacific planning.

Principal menace of such a crippled fleet will be, of course, in hit and run harassing operations to slow the American drive toward the China coast, Formosa and the Japanese homeland. It probably cannot again attempt, with any hope of success, to engage large forces of the American fleet.

Subtracting the reported sinkings, or probable sinkings, of four battleships, three aircraft carriers and five cruisers from best available estimates of Japanese strength a week ago, the enemy probably has this fleet left:

Battleships—six to eight
Carriers—seven to nine
Cruisers—25 to 30
Destroyers and destroyer escorts—120 to 140

These figures do not include the Japanese submarine fleet which totaled 78 craft at the beginning of the war and undetermined numbers constructed since then which may offset losses totaling 18.

The tabulation, of course, is subject to change by additional reports, expected in a day or two, on damage inflicted in the great battle. Also the figures on potential strength are subject to revision based upon how badly the ships reported as damaged were hurt in the battle. Among those listed as damaged are six battleships, and four cruisers. Three destroyers were listed as definitely sunk and one damaged, with reports of several more sunk.

Air Forces Spread Attacks From Kuriles To Marshalls

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 26 (AP)—American air raids against the Kuriles, to the north of Japan, Yap in the western Carolines, Japanese holdings in the northern Marianas and in the bypassed Marshalls were reported today in a communique.

Pound Kuriles For 2 Days

The communique, from headquarters which has been busy reporting the Philippines naval actions, summarized recent strikes.

Army air force Mitchells and Liberators and navy Liberators and Venturas attacked Paramushiro, Matsuwa, Shumushu and Onnekotan islands in the Kuriles Monday and Tuesday. A 6,000-ton cargo ship was set afire south of Paramushiro.

Liberators Hit Iwo Jima

Marine Corsairs and army Liberators bombed and strafed Yap Saturday, Sunday and Monday. A Corsair was lost to intense anti-aircraft fire Monday.

Liberators dropped 58 tons of bombs in Iwo Jima, in the Volcano Islands, Tuesday. Three enemy fighters intercepted but caused no damage to the raiders.

Corsairs destroyed trucks and barges in the northern Palau Islands.

OCT 27 1944

Dauntless dive bombers and Corsair fighters attacked Jaluit, in the Marshalls, Sunday with 36 tons of explosives.

Kyushu Base Left Afire By B-29s

A United States B-29 Base in West China, Oct. 25 (AP—Delayed)—Striking again at the Japanese mainland, a strong force of United States Superfortresses attacked the Omura airbase on Kyushu Island today and returning pilots said tonight the target area was perfectly patterned by bombs.

Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay described the assault as "highly successful." The area embraces one of the most important aircraft assembly plants in the Japanese home islands. Pillars of smoke and flame were observed.

"If Tokyo Rose (Japan's ace woman radio commentator) says we missed the objective, Hirohito's ancestors ought to be turning back-flips in their graves tonight for shame," declared Col. W. H. Blanchard, group commander.

Defenses Moderate

Anti-aircraft fire was moderate, but more accurate than in previous B-29 sorties over Japan, the flyers said. Several planes returned from the 6,000-mile round trip with flak holes. Fighter opposition varied, but in most cases they stayed at a safe distance.

(A broadcast Japanese communique asserted five of the Superfortresses were shot down and 19 others "substantially damaged." An American communique said one was lost.)

Yanks Closing Trap On Foe On Leyte

MacArthur's Headquarters, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 26 (AP) — Mud-caked Yanks today slammed shut the southern door of strategic Leyte Valley, a potential Japanese death trap, and tightened their stranglehold on Nipponese communications with adjacent islands.

As naval and air units beat off the Japanese fleet threat the entire American land front moved forward through mud and rain beneath the cover of supporting aircraft and artillery fire.

The southernmost of three columns driving into Leyte Valley, where Japanese defenders are being crowded, captured Burauen, a key road juncture nine miles inland from Dulag. Armor-led infantrymen of the 24th Corps broke into the town after taking near-by San Pablo and its airfields.

Supply Line Severed

On the extreme northern front the Tenth Corps completed shore-to-shore movements which seized the southern coast of near-by Samar Island and shot American units to the northern tip of Leyte. The landing on Samar, fifth Philippine island to be invaded, was reported Monday and confirmed in today's communique.

The maneuver gave the Americans control of San Juanico Strait, the waterway dividing Leyte and Samar. The main Japanese supply line for supplies and reinforcements from the north thus has been severed.

Drive 20 Miles

Liberation troops have swept 20 miles northward of Tacloban, the communique reported. Apparently they will curve around the northern tip of Leyte to drive a wedge in Japanese communications with Masbate, main island to the northwest.

Japanese forces in this sector "are disintegrating," the announcement added.

Carrier planes turned back a large-scale Japanese daylight assault Tuesday on American shipping in Leyte Gulf. Fifty-three Nipponese planes were shot down and anti-aircraft fire destroyed three more.

Counter-Blow Repelled

Ground forces "easily repulsed" a Japanese night counterattack and have throttled local assaults and infiltration attempts.

The three-pronged drive on Leyte Valley is designed to pocket the Japanese without escape or to force them into the hills where, Gen. Douglas MacArthur has said, their supply problems would become "acute."

Burauen, at the southern end of the squeeze, is the juncture for an east-west road from Dulag, followed by the doughboys, and the main northward highway running through the valley.

OCT 27 1944

Forces Fanning Out

Armored units and forward patrols of the Seventh Division are fanning out from the San Pablo-Burauen area toward Dagami, another important road junction near the highway's center.

A second American column also appeared headed toward Dagami. Elements of the 96th Division, advancing from Tanghas on the coast, are approaching Tabontabon, an inland river town four miles southeast of Dagami.

Hill Position Taken

On the northern end of the trap, other units are pushing out from Palo toward Santa Fe. They seized a hill position west of Palo and captured Tanauan, four miles to the south.

Aircraft continued their comprehensive assaults against other flank islands in the central Philippines, Mindanao and southwest Pacific targets. In widespread raids 21 small freighters and coastal vessels were sunk or damaged and a 3,000-ton freighter-transport damaged.

UNION CITY PRIEST A HERO OF LEYTE

Leyte Beachhead, Phil... Oct. 22 (Delayed) (A. P.)... heroic chaplain on Leyte Beachhead today du the graves, performed the funeral rites, lowered the bodies of doughboys and covered them without help, despite a constant Japanese fire on a fiercely defended sector where it was essential that all the dead be buried immediately.

Capt. Chris J. Berlo, battalion chaplain, landed with the assault troops and once, in conducting the burial rites for two men while standing in the open grave, had to throw himself upon their bodies in order to escape the bullets of the same sniper who had killed them.

HAMPSON

CHAPLAIN IS HERO

Gardner, Mass., Oct. 26 (A. P.)—A heroic chaplain who braved snipers' bullets to bury fallen American soldiers after the invasion of Leyte, in the Philippines, has been identified by his two brothers as Capt. Chris J. Berlo of this city, a member of the Passionist Order of Roman Catholic missionaries. Father Berlo was one of several padres who dug graves, performed funeral services, lowered the bodies of doughboys and covered them without help despite constant Japanese fire.

Capt. Berlo, who landed with the assault troops on the bullet-spattered left flank of the Palo beach, conducted burial services for eight men. Every funeral was under fire.

Capt. Berlo had to throw himself on two bodies to escape the bullets of the snipers who had killed the soldiers. He was commissioned in April, 1943, after attending the Harvard chaplains' school, which he entered from St. Michael's Monastery, Union City, N. J.

HMS Australia Damaged At Leyte

Canberra, Australia, Oct. 26 (AP). Prime Minister John Curtin announced today the HMS Australia suffered superficial damage October 20 during the early stages of the Philippines invasion, and that Capt. E. F. V. Dechaineux, the ship's commander, was fatally wounded.

Curtin said 19 officers and men were killed aboard the vessel. He added that Commodore J. A. Collins, commander of the Australian squadron participating in the invasion, had been wounded, but did not indicate if he was aboard the Australia.

Isles Free Now, Japs Protest

San Francisco, Oct. 26 (AP)—Japanese propagandists have protested indignantly against the description of American Philippines forces as a "liberating army" because, they said, Japan already has granted the Philippines their "independence."

Sadao Iguchi, spokesman of the Japanese Board of Information, was quoted by the Japanese radio as saying it was "utterly preposterous" for Gen. Douglas MacArthus to "think of liberating" the Philippines. Japan, he exclaimed, had given the Philippines their freedom October 14, 1943.

The broadcast was recorded last night by the Federal Communications Commission.

Osmena Names New Governor

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26 (AP).—Colonel Ruperto Kangleon, leader of guerrilla fighters "on Leyte and Samar Islands," has been named the "new provincial governor" by President Sergio Osmena of the Phillippines Commonwealth, the Voice of Freedom transmitter on Leyte reported today.

Hawaii Governor Sets 2 Years To Beat Japan

San Francisco, Oct. 26 (AP)—En route to Washington from Honolulu, Gov. Ingram Stainback of Hawaii today said he thought it would take two years to conquer Japan after victory in Europe, and it would have to be done without Russia's help.

"Russia's treaty with Japan (the 1941 non-aggression pact) doesn't expire until 1946," he said, "and Russia has a reputation for not breaking treaties."

"I think two years of bitter struggle are ahead of us in the Pacific after victory in Europe before we can claim annihilation of the Japanese Empire complete."

BRITISH BY-PASS TILBURG IN DRIVE TO TRAP GERMANS

Nazis Report Canadians Land on South Beveland Island.

ENEMY DEFENSES REEL

Street Fighting Rages in 'S Hertogenbosch, Fall of City Imminent.

LONDON, Oct. 26—(AP) British troops in a lightning stab through wobbling German defenses by-passed the enemy stronghold of Tilburg in southern Holland today, threatening to encircle the city on the left flank of a blazing 15-mile battle-front, while the German radio reported fresh landings by Canadian forces on South Beveland island in the Schelde estuary northwest of Antwerp.

NIGHT

Slicing across the Tilburg's 'S Hertogenbosch highway and railroad, armored vanguards of Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's Second British army reached the town of Udenhout, four miles north of Tilburg, as other British units slashed into the eastern outskirts of the strongly-fortified town.

Fall of 'S Hertogenbosch Near

Vught, a mile south of 'S Hertogenbosch, fell at mid-day after a savage fight between British infantry and German parachute troops. Three-fourths of 'S Hertogenbosch was in Allied hands at nightfall of the third day of house-to-house fighting through the flaminy communications center.

"Throughout the day's bitter fighting the enemy made desperate attempts to stiffen its resistance, but it was clear tonight that Field Marshal Walther Von Model's army was in a critisal plight and that its attempt to escape northward across the Maas Rhine was gravely jeopardized," reported Associated Press Field Correspondent Roger Greene.

The Nazis already had pulled their administrative personnel out of both Tilburg and Breda, 12 miles to the west, and a British staff officer dellared that the Tilburg garrison would have to move quickly to avoid entrapment. Breda was the last strongpoint that might shield a general enemy withdrawal across the Maas and Waal Rhine rivers in central Holland.

The German high command, in reporting a new Canadian landing on south Beveland island on the north side of the Schelde estuary, said "counter-measures" were in progress. There was no indication at what point the Canadians landed, nor was the report confirmed from Allied sources. Three days ago another Canadian force drove onto south Beveland from the east, using a causeway which connects the island with the mainland, and tonight had pushed some six miles inland to within three-quarters of a mile of the town of Krabbendike.

Nazis Cling To Antwerp

The Germans, fighting with the knowledge that by preventing the Allies from using the port of Antwerp they were delaying the start of a great Allied offensive on the western front, were clinging tenaciously both to south Beveland and Walcheren islands on the north side of the Schelde estuary and to their dwindling pocket on the south side of the vital waterway.

The German radio drummed into the holdout troops the importance of their assignment, declaring that by fighting on they would "delay the use of Antwerp harbor to the enemy until it will have lost its value."

Despite bitter German resistance, Canadian troops mopping up the enemy pocket on the south side of the estuary captured the town of Costburg, four miles southeast of Cadzand, after hard fighting through rubble-filled streets and demolished houses.

OCT 27 1944

Others Drive North

Other Canadian forces driving directly north from Antwerp fought within two miles of the German base of Bergen op Zoom, western anchor of the enemy's 50-mile defense line across Holland.

A German military commentator said it "was not to be excluded" that the Allies would combine the Canadian thrust in this sector with a new airborne landing some 20 miles further north in an attempt to seize a great bridge spanning the Holland deep at Moerdijk, virtually the only escape route for tens of thousands of German troops in the sector.

East of Bergen op Zoom the Canadians virtually surrounded the village of Nispen, a mile north of Esschen, and troops shoving up the Antwerp-Breda highway were about two miles from Zundert, which is nine miles from Breda.

It was disclosed that British forces driving forward in the Tilburg-'s Hertogenbosch area were employing "artificial moonlight" to enable them to keep their offensive rolling by night as well as by day. First used at Caen, the "moonlight" is achieved by focusing batteries of mobile searchlights on enemy positions.

The remainder of the long Western front remained comparatively quiet. A field dispatch estimated that 50,000 German men, women and children were digging tank traps and building concrete fortifications along the broad plain between the Siegfried line and such Rhine cities as Dusseldorf and Cologne.

OCT 27 1944

The Germans launched several counterattacks against the French in the Vosges mountains near the southern end of the front, but all were declared to have been thrown back. The French First army was reported to have been bolstered by 50,000 members of the former underground army.

NAZIS HAVE LESS SOLDIERS THAN LAST WORLD WAR

KENNEDY

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Oct. 26—(AP) Germany, with not more than 500,000 men left to defend her Western frontier, already has suffered a worse defeat in the West than was inflicted upon the Kaiser's armies in 1918, yet is showing no signs of an internal collapse.

(Still in Supreme command of troops manning the Siegfried Line is Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolf Von Rundstedt. The German force is divided into two army groups, the northern one under Field Marshal Gen. Walther Von Model, young, energetic and pro-Nazi, and the southern one under Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz, who commanded the German retreat from southern France.

(A German military spokesman announced in Berlin Thursday that Von Rundstedt was in command in the West and that Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, chief of the German general staff, was in charge on the Eastern front. At the time of the reported attempt to assassinate Hitler in July there were numerous reports that Von Rundstedt had been removed from command in the West.)

There is little doubt that if the German army had its way it would try now to get the best possible peace terms from its western opponents and strive to save as much as possible for a future attempt to dominate Europe.

But the Nazi party leaders feel that if this war is lost, all is lost. They are pursuing the struggle despite all reverses in the hope that the great trial through which Germany is going will bring the very best military talent to the top and wear out the Allies.

At present the Germans have well under 100 depleted divisions with which to defend the long front from the North Sea to Switzerland. At the end of the last war they had about 100 good divisions in the field on the Western front, and with no great Russian armies at their back.

In all, 36 German divisions were destroyed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's armies in France. Many of them have been reformed under their old numbers, even though only a few hundred members might have escaped to Germany.

Replacements are generally of a poorer quality. Recent prisoners have included a boy of 12, a man of 78, a soldier with two artificial legs and one with a glass eye. No members of the new German people's army have yet been encountered on the Western front.

Prisoners captured by the Allies since June 6 alone total 605,000, and casualties being inflicted on the Germans at the present time are estimated at 4,000 daily. Since the static period began Sept. 16, when the rapid advance across France slowed before the Siegfried Line, 106,000 prisoners have been taken.

In addition to the main enemy force, about 130,000 Germans still are holding out in Lorient, St. Nazaire and other French Atlantic ports, denying their use to the Allies.

Nazi Army Down To One-Third 1918 Size

By Edward Kennedy

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Oct. 26 (AP)—The best available information here is that the German army now has barely a third as many trops on the Western front as it had at the time of the 1918 Armistice.

Nevertheless, the Germans are holding strongly, with the fighting morale of their soldiers high and no signs of internal collapse such as ended the first World War.

To hold the 600-mile front from the North Sea to Switzerland the Germans have well under 100 divisions—divisions so depleted in men and equipment that they equal only half their normal strength.

625,000 Prisoners

At the end of the last war the Germans still had about 100 divisions in the field on the Western front, and they then did not have to contend with Russian armies at their backs.

The Germans are believed to have lost more men in the battle of France than they have left on the Siegfried Line.

Prisoners taken by Allied armies since D-day total 625,000 and the total enemy effectives on the western front are now estimated at no more than 500,000.

4,000 Casualties Daily

German casualties on the western front are now set at 4,000 daily.

There are also about 150,000 Germans cut off in pockets in France—at Lorient, St. Nazaire, La Rochelle and along the mouth of the Gironde in the Bordeaux area.

These are still holding out and denying the Allies the use of these ports, but they have no chance of rejoining the rest of the German army for the defense of home soil.

Nazis Report Allied Landing On Island in Schelde Estuary

Canadians Close In on Last Enemy Guns Barring River to Port of Antwerp— British Tighten on Breda Zone.

London, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—The German High Command announced today that Allied forces, striking to clear the last Nazi guns blocking Allied convoys from Antwerp, had landed on the south shore of Beveland Island.

"Counter-measures are in progress," the communique said, indicating the amphibious forces already had made good a bridgehead on the north side of the Schelde Estuary.

Earlier Berlin broadcasts that Walcheren, another island north of the estuary, had been invaded by Allied land and sea forces were not borne out by the communique.

The landing apparently was made under the protection of a dense morning fog which swept in from the North Sea and came as Allied forces, fighting through hip-deep water, advanced to clear the sea approaches to Antwerp.

Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's pincers tightened relentlessly on Germans clinging to the water-logged deltas and islands of southwest Holland, with the enemy giving ground all the way from Bergen Op Zoom to 's Hertogenbosch.

Canadians on Causeway.

Driving in from the east on 11,000 Germans trapped on Walcheren, the Canadians fought through thick fog and traversed half the length of the two-mile wide ten-mile long neck to the connecting island of South Beveland. They captured Rilland on the way. The progress was along single roads over wastes of water left by the flooding of the islands.

South of the estuary the Canadians were fighting in the streets of Oostburg, four miles southeast of Cadzand where the enemy's last guns block the estuary from the south. They also recaptured Fort Frederik Hendrik and reached the outskirts of Groede, four and a half miles northeast of Cadzand.

Behind the advance into South Beveland they captured the village of Dorp Op Pindorp, four miles east of the enemy coastal anchor of Bergen Op Zoom.

British Breaking Breda Box.

To the east Gen. Montgomery's British Second Army was breaking the back of German resistance in the Breda box south of the Maas (Meuse) with its attack toward the west from the Nijmegen salient. The British captured Fort Orten, a mile north of 's Hertogenbosch and cleared the Germans from all the latter hub except the southwest corner. They were within a mile of Tilburg, in the middle of the box, having captured Zorgen, twelve miles southwest of 's Hertogenbosch.

The flanking thrust by an armored column north of 's Hertogenbosch cut the Nazi escape route over one of the three bridges leading over the Maas from the battle zone.

Nazi Peril Mounting.

Southwest of 's Hertogenbosch Allied troops reached Moergestel, less than four miles southeast of the rail and highway junction of Tilburg, and the communique reported general progress northward in the area east of the Antwerp-Breda road.

In addition to the enemy forces already cut off on South Beveland and Walcheren Islands, as many as 50,000 German troops may be in the narrowing wedge of the mainland between the battle line and the Maas. Their mounting peril is fully recognized by the enemy, and a late German radio report last night speculated that the Allied air attacks on Dordrecht were aimed at smashing the great Moerdijke bridges.

These are a railroad bridge and parallel highway span, among the longest in Europe, carrying the main traffic stream between Breda and Rotterdam. Only one other bridge spans the river from the battle area, at Geertruidenberg, eighteen miles west of 's Hertogenbosch.

The rest of the Allied front from the North Sea to the Swiss Alps was relatively quiet. Americans advancing northeast of Epinal were slowed by stiffening resistance. German counter-attacks in the Vosges Mountains farther south were thrown back.

"Like Old Indian Battles"

American doughboys were brought to a standstill northeast of Epinal by stiffened German resistance after days of steady progress in tree-to-tree battles in hilly country, much like that of Vermont and New Hampshire. The fighting was reminiscent of American pioneer days.

"It's just like the old Indian battles," said Lieut. Arthur Searles, of Oberlin, Ohio. "It's necessary to root the Germans out of each bush and from behind each rock."

Two-Mile U. S. Gain

The Americans here, however, later puhsed on two miles beyond captured Mortagne to Les Eaux, seven miles from St. Die, a German military commentator reported.

He said the American 19th Division tried to break into German positions at Ay-sur-Moselle, eight miles north of Metz and an equal distance south of Thionville, but suffered considerable losses.

Elsewhere in the Vosges foothills and among the peaks the Americans and French repulsed several enemy counterattacks during the day.

French Hit Hardest

The hardest of these counterattacks was made upon the French holding Rondfeing, A 3,000-foot mountain 2½ miles north of Cornimont and ten miles southeast of Remiremont. At first the Germans gained some ground but by nightfall the French had won ia all back.

The French First Army has now been bolstered by 50,000 French Forces of the Interior, the underground army, which have replaced Senegalese who were ill-adapted to winter warfare, it was announced.

Artificial Moonlight Used By British Troops

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Oct. 26 (AP)—Artificial moonlight has helped the British keep their advance moving in west Holland by night as well as day.

The synthetic moonglow, first used at Caen, but on the secret list until today, is created by focusing mobile batteries of floodlights toward enemy positions while Allied movements are kept in the shadows.

Ruhr, Rhine Valleys Blacked Out Again

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Paris, Oct. 26 (AP)—Towns in the Ruhr and Rhine valleys in Germany again are blacked out according to Ninth Air Force headquarters.

Headquarters said flyers had observed brilliant lights on October 11 and several nights thereafter, but none have been seen since October 18.

2d Stars And Stripes Correspondent Killed

With the United States Seventh Army in France, Oct. 25 (AP—Delayed)—Sergt. Alfred O. Kohn, of Miami Beach, Fla., Stars and Stripes combat correspondent, was killed by German machine-gun fire recently in the Rhone Valley.

Headquarters permitted the disclosure that Kohn, who landed on the Riviera in the first infantry assault wave, had lost his life near Montelimar while driving a captured enemy vehicle.

The 25-year-old Kohn had served as night city editor of the St. Petersburg Times and as manager of the Rome edition of Stars and Stripes. He was the second Stars and Stripes correspondent to be killed in action in Europe this year. The other was Gregor Duncan, who lost his life in the drive on Rome.

TURN LONG TOM INTO TOMMY GUN

Ubach, Germany, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—American soldier ingenuity in using a giant 155-MM. gun like a Tommy Gun in the front lines outfoxed one of the Nazis' prize Siegfried Line inventions on this front.

The Germans built a 75-foot tower, shaped like a mushroom, as an artillery observation post. Air bombardment found the target too small to hit with bombs, while long range shells bounced off its steel concrete frame without damage.

Undaunted the Americans sneaked up a 155 in the dark to within 1,300 yards of the tower and shortly after dawn cut loose. Their aim had to be good and quick, for the Germans could see the gun, which was within mortar range. The first shot chipped the base. The next three climbed up the tower and when one shell hit the narrowest part it fell over, observers and all.

Brooklyn Man Made Brigadier-General

With the United States Seventh Army in France, Oct. 25 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The promotion of Henry J. D. Meyer, Forty-fifth Division Artillery commander, from the rank of colonel to brigadier-general was announced today.

Gen. Meyer was graduated from West Point in 1918. His wife resides in Brooklyn, N. Y.

TWO NAZI GENERALS ARE KILLED IN FRANCE

LONDON, Oct. 26 — (AP) Maj. Gen. Erich Von Kirchbach, 58, and Maj. Gen. Fritz Reinhardt, 53, have been killed in the fighting on the Western front, the official German news agency announced tonight.

Earlier in the day, Berlin reported the death of a Gen. Schneckenburger, commander of a German army corps, on the Eastern front during a Russian air raid on trench positions near Belgrade.

Von Reinhardt died of wounds he received while directing his troops in the Epinal region on the southern end of the Western front. The broadcast did not elaborate on Reinhardt's death.

(The newspaper Figaro in Paris reported today the capture of Lt. Gen. Von Brodowski, who was said to have boasted of the killing of several hundred French in the Limoges district last June.)

End-Of-War Formula Worded By Eisenhower

London, Oct. 26 (AP)—Trying to figure when the war will end? Well, here's how General Eisenhower looks at it, on the authority of Representative Hale (R., Maine), who visited the supreme commander in France.

"War is like pushing a heavily loaded wagon up a steep hill in a fog and never knowing when you are going to reach the top. So you have to push like hell all the time."

Nazi Slogan: 'Hold Tight'

GAIN IN PRUSSIA

Reds Advance on Gumbinnen, Nazis Throw in Heavy Reinforcements.

OCT 27 1944

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 27 (AP) Red army mountain troops captured the big east Czechoslovakian road hub of Munkacs (Mukacevo) yesterday and linked up with other Soviet forces cutting across the northeastern corner of Hungary from conquered Transylvania in an offensive which has swept up nearly 18,000 prisoners in a week and overrun two-thirds of Hungarian-annexed Ruthenia.

In East Prussia, where both sides were hurling in heavy reinforcements of tanks and infantry amid violent hand-to-hand conflicts raging through burning German villages, Moscow announced the killing of 2,800 Germans and the capture of four heavily-fortified localities in gains up to three miles as the Russians edged closer to Gumbinnen on the Kaunas-Konigsberg highway.

Capture Four Localities

Grunweitschen, only four miles southeast of Gumbinnen, and Gudding, seven miles east of Gumbinnen, were taken. The other two localities were Shirgallen, five miles northwest of captured Ebenrode, and Amalienhof, four miles southwest of Ebenrode and 10 miles east of Gumbinnen.

Berlin said the Russians were attacking on an 85-mile front from Augustow in the south to the Niemen river in the north, claimed that the Russians had lost 900 tanks in ten days, and were being held except for "a few dents."

The regular Soviet communique and the midnight bulletin acknowleged increasingly fierce German resistance in East Prussia, whose farms are a vital food reservoir for the enemy now that the Balkans have been mostly lost. The midnight supplement said the Germans lost 39 tanks during the day.

In northern Finland the Russians captured six localities in the Petsamo area, including Pitkajarvi, 37 miles southwest of Petsamo, and the midnight bulletin said that Soviet planes supporting the invasion of neighboring Norway had sunk more than a dozen small German ships, including a ferry laden with soldiers.

The German ships presumably were moving down the Norwegian coast after the Russian capture of the big Nazi naval base of Kirkenes, where the Soviet Karelian army seized fat stores of supplies intended for the Nazi 20th Lapland army.

King Haakon of Norway told his people by radio from London last night that Norwegian troops would join the Soviet forces in the fight to drive out the Nazis. He did not furnish any details, however.

The Karelian army under K. A. Meretskov, now promoted from general to marshal, has driven the enemy into the open with the conquest of Kirkenes, and the enemy now must retreat hundreds of miles over rough terrain and in sub-zero weather before finding a base as good as Kirkenes.

A Moscow dispatch estimated that Meretskov's troops and the Finns, driving up from the south, were pushing a total of 130,000 Germans into Arctic Norway.

Five main Russian columns invading Czechoslovakia had reconquered most of Ruthenia, the 4,886-square-mile province annexed by Hungary.

Reflecting the seriousness with which Berlin views the steady Russian gains, the Germans announced that Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, chief of the general staff, had been entrusted with Supreme command on the Eastern front.

Guderian, former inspector general of German tank forces was named Adolf Hitler's chief of staff last July after the assassination attempt on Hitler, and this is the first time as far as military men here know, that a single individual has been named to such a post on the Russian front.

Farther to the southwest in Hungary the Russians were declared by Berlin to have established two new bridgeheads across the Tisza river, last big water barrier before Budapest, on both sides of Szolnok, a fiercely-contested hinge town which is under Soviet artillery fire.

The Russians crossed the middle Tisza at Toszeg, four miles south of Szolnok, and at Tiszababolna, 45 miles northeast of Szolnok, a Berlin broadcast said.

Szolnok itself has been evacuated of civilians who joined the trek of thousands of refugees westward along roads already jammed with Axis military equipment.

By crossing the Tisza at Tiszababolna the Russians were within 12 miles of the Munkacevo-Budapest railway, vital artery feeding the collapsing Axis front in Czechoslovakia.

RUSSIANS TAKE CZECH JUNCTION IN 9-MILE GAIN

Soviet Army Drives Deeper Into Norway in Sub-zero Arctic Weather.

London, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—The Czecho-Slovak communications center of Mukacevo was captured today in a nine-mile Russian advance through the Carpatho-Ukraine, Marshal Stalin announced tonight in an order of the day.

Mukacevo (Munkacs) fell to the forces of Gen. Petrov's Fourth Ukrainian Army which scaled the mountains from southern Poland and invaded Czecho-Slovakia.

Capture of the town of 26,000 population placed the Fourth Ukrainian front only about seventeen miles from the pre-war boundary between Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary. It is an important railway center on the line running across the Carpathians from Lwow in Poland to Russian-held Debrecen in Hungary.

Clearing of the towns on the northern flank of Warsaw increased the threat of capture of the Polish capital.

Prussia Drive Selections

The pace of the Red army offensive in East Prussia slackened before ferocious German resistance, explained in part by the dependency of Berlin and other Nazi cities on foods produced on East Prussian farms.

(The German radio said in a broadcast heard in New York today that the Nazis had recaptured the East Prussia road center of Goldap and regained the initiative in the province of the Junkers.)

All northern Transylvania was behind Russian lines in the Balkans and Romania was cleared of nostile Germans. In Czechoslovakia, the Russians virtually isolated the big highway town of Mukacevo, pushing withi nnine miles of the city.

New Sign Of Nazi Weakness

The Soviet communique described the Warsaw successes as "battles of local importance," but they seemed the first real sign of German weakness in central Poland since the summer Red army offensive faded out at the end of overstretched supply lines. (The Germans yesterday reported the Russians had launched a powerful offensive north of Warsaw.)

If the Russians have built up a new punch in recent weeks—and there seems good reason to believe he has—momentous operations may be developing that will overshadow anything else on the Eastern front.

Threatens Berlin

While the capture of Warsaw itself would have only psychological value now, a major breakthrough in the area would represent the double threat of an advance straight at Berlin, as well as northward to East Prussia.

Russian forces were advancing on the west side of the Vistula on a front at least 12 miles wide aiming at Lowicz, big rail junction, 29 miles southwest of Dabrowka and 45 miles in the rear of Warsaw.

Transylvania Cleared Out.

The occupation of Transylvania was completed with the capture of the important city of Satu-Mare, the railway town of Carei and 200 other populated places. Romanian troops participated in these actions.

With northern Transylvania cleansed of the last Germans, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky was believed to have reinforced his vanguard in the area of Szolnok, less than fifty miles southeast of Budapest, but there has been no official news from this battle front in the last twenty-four hours.

Russians Pursue Nazis Fleeing In Norway's Cold

OCT 27 1944

Moscow, Oct. 26 (AP)—Russian troops drove deeper into Norway today beyond captured Kirkenes in Arctic storms which tumbled the temperature several degrees below zero, in a supreme effort to annihilate up to 130,000 Germans being herded before Red and Finnish forces.

In local engagements just north of ravaged Warsaw, the Kremlin at midnight announced the capture of a dozen satellite towns on the east side of the wide and swift Vistula river, which bends sharply west-northwest just above the ravaged city.

NAZI GENERAL KILLED

London, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio reported today that Gen. Schneckenburger, commander of a German Army corps, was killed by Russian planes in a low-level attack on an advanced trench position at Belgrade.

GUDERIAN HEADS GERMANS IN EAST

London, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian, tank expert and chief of the German Army General Staff, has taken charge of the Russian front as Commander in Chief of Nazi armies in the east, the German Foreign Office said today today in a broadcast.

RUSSIANS DEMAND ARREST OF FINNS

OCT 27 1944

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 26—(AP) Arrest on war crime charges of 100 Finns including four generals, most of them connected with the administration of Eastern Karelia before it was yielded to the Russians, has been demanded by the Allied (Russian) Armistice commission, a reliable Stockholm source said today.

Maj. Gen. A. Pajari, who recently commanded Finnish troops fighting the Germans in the Tornea river valley, and Maj. Gen. Palojarvi, commander of Finnish forces in Kahumaki sector, already have been arrested, Helsinki said.

Maj. Gen. Arajuri, chief of the military administration of eastern Karelia before the Finns were forced from that territory, was reported on the list. He is in Sweden. The fourth general was not named.

The Stockholm source said Olavi Paloheimo, former finance minister in the Hackzell government, also already under arrest, and another former Eastern Karelian administrator, Kotilainen, reported to be in Sweden, were named on the commission's list.

The same source said that Finland began demobilization of her army today in compliance with the Dec. 5 armistice deadline, although the government had sought to have the time limit extended to Jan. 5, 1945, on the grounds the Germans have not yet been expelled from northern Finland.

The list of 100 names was reported in the hands of the Finnish government, which was informed that the trials would be held "at the scene of the crimes."

NORWEGIANS TO JOIN REDS

LONDON, Oct. 26 — (AP) King Haakon of Norway told his people by radio tonight that Norwegian troops would join Russian forces to fight the common enemy on Norwegian soil.

Moscow Again Attacks Warsaw Polish Faction

Moscow, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Moscow press published today a statement described as a captured Hungarian document which said the Polish insurgents who vainly fought the Germans in Warsaw did not wish their capital to be freed by the Russians.

A Tass dispatch from Bucharest said the document was in Hungarian and was marked for staff officers only. A Col. Simon Alex, of the Polish insurgents, was quoted as saying last August 30 that capture of Warsaw by the Red army "would be incompatible with the national honor."

The uprising, led by Lieut. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Bor), was put down by the Germans three weeks ago after a 63-day struggle. The commander and thousands of his men were captured.

"This document," said Tass, "gives the lie to explanations of Polish reactionaries who alleged that General Bor ordered the Moscow revolt when he was sure the Red army would take the capital, coincident with the uprising. On the contrary, the time was fixed when they were sure that the Red army would not be in Warsaw."

Argentina Scored In Moscow Press

Moscow, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—The Moscow News, without directly mentioning the strained relations between the United States and Argentina, charged today that the Buenos Aires Government was "continuing a policy of collaboration with international Fascism."

SCOTS DISCLOSE AVIATION PLANS

OCT 27 1944

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP) Plans for a post war global air service around the northern hemisphere and night and day transatlantic service to the United States featuring a $320 round trip fare to New York City were announced tonight by Scottish Aviation, Ltd.

The nine-year-old company, announcing services for which it will seek government sanction, said its home base would be Prestwick, on the southwest coast of Scotland.

From Prestwick the company would conduct an internal United Kingdom service and a continental shuttle to most of the western European capitals.

The projected transocean services include:

A global route around the northern hemisphere serving Oslo, Stockholm, Leningrad, Moscow, Omsk, Peiping, Vladivostok, Fairbanks, Alaska, Vancouver and Chicago. This would be complemented by two loop lines serving Central Europe, the Middle West, Karachi, Calcutta, Hong Kong, and joining the main line in Vladivostok.

A night service to and from New York for sleeper passengers and first class mail and freight.

A day service to and from Canada and the United States—via Iceland, Greenland and Goose Bay, Newfoundland — for passengers and second class mail and freight.

Initial equipment on the North Atlantic lines would be converted military planes which have been used in transocean transport for some time.

THREE GERMAN CITIES BOMBED

OCT 27 1944

3,500 Tons Of Explosives Are Dropped By U. S. Heavies

London, Oct. 26 (AP)—A force of

30 24 — 19907

1,200 American heavy bombers hurled 3,500 tons of explosives on the western Reich cities of Munster, Bielefeld and Hannover today, while RAF heavies, striking just north of Cologne, helped clear the way for the United States First Army.

United States Eighth Air Force Liberators and Fortresses, making their 16th raid this month, flew through soupy weather in the bombing of gas works, oil refineries and railway yards. Approximately 700 Mustangs and Thunderbolts provided fighter cover.

One bomber and one fighter were reported missing.

British Lancasters followed the American heavy bombers across the Channel and struck without loss the I. G. Farbenindustrie chemical works at Leverkusen, less than five miles north of Cologne on the Rhine river.

Many Couldn't See Ground

Many of the nearly 13,000 Eighth Air Force airmen didn't see the ground from the takeoff to the landing because of the solid layers of clouds.

The German air force offered no opposition to the main force, but when Capt. Ted E. Lines, of Mesa, Ariz., a Mustang pilot, was forced to leave the formation because of engine trouble he was jumped by six enemy planes.

Lines shot down two FW-190s, bringing his total to 13, and lost the others in the clouds.

Flak was intense at some spots and crews over Hannover reported rockets being fired from the ground were coming up "six at a time."

908,000,000 Leaflets Dropped

The Eighth Air Force disclosed that 908,000,000 leaflets intended to counteract Nazi propaganda have been dropped over German-held territory during the past year.

A recapitulation of losses by 2,200 Allied heavy bombers and fighter escort in yesterday's daylight raids over Germany disclosed six bombers missing (two American) and five fighters lost (one American). Six RAF fighters reported missing were later found to have landed in France.

Foggy weather gave Germany a respite from Allied bombing last night.

1200 U. S. PLANES ATTACK GERMANY

London, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—An American air fleet of more than 1,200 heavy bombers and 650 fighters attacked industrial and rail objectives today at Hanover, Bielefeld, Munster and in other parts of western Germany.

Heavy clouds were encountered and bombing was by instrument. No interceptors were mentioned in first reports. A similar American bomber force attacked western Germany yesterday.

Munster lies seventy-eight miles northeast of Cologne and has six main roads fanning out in all directions. Hannover, a city of 472,000, is eighty miles south of Hamburg and Bielefeld is 120 miles southwest of the great port.

Foggy weather gave Germany a one-night respite from Allied bombers after 2,200 heavies pounded the Reich in daylight yesterday without opposition. More than 1,200 American Liberators and Fortresses, with 500 screening fighters, blasted Germany's largest freight yards at Hamm and oil refineries near Hamburg, while 1,000 R. A. F. Lancasters and Halifaxes attacked Essen and Homberg.

Total losses were six bombers (two American) and eleven fighters (one American).

Robots Bombard Southern England

London, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Germans bombarded southern England with flying bombs during the night, launching the robots from both northeast and southeast. There was only a brief alert in London.

British night fighters downed a number of the bombs over open country.

Two Heinkel bomb-launching planes also were shot down over the North Sea.

BRITISH PAPERS RAP NEWS SERVICE FROM WAR FRONT

CHESTER

LONDON, Oct. 26—(AP) World's Press news, England's foremost newspaper trade magazine, today published on behalf of British journalism "an insistent demand that something be done to improve the service of SHAEF Public Relations division to the British press."

This protest followed criticism by American newspapers, news agency and radio executives that press communications to and from Supreme Allied headquarters in Paris were both slow and inadequate. They have stressed that this inadequacy has made it necessary to write comprehensive roundup stories on the Western front in London or New York, rather than Paris.

One complaint was that Supreme headquarters moved too soon, before lateral press communications were set up between the various fronts and Paris. The transfer from London was postponed several times because of the inadequacy of communications of all kinds, including transmitters to the outside world.

"Recent developments, following the transfer of SHAEF to Paris," declared World's Press news, "confirm the impression that the confusion at SHAEF since its transfer to that city has in essence been comparable with that experienced when headquarters was in London.

"Fleet street executives warned SHAEF officials of the serious delays that could be expected if the division moved overseas. That warning has now been justified."

The magazine declared in conclusion that it had no desire to raise any question of partiality. At the outset, however, it pointed out that the British press had extended every consideration to "its American guests and friends."

There was no desire to spoil these relations, it said, but added that "present feeling is that the British press is suffering by design or accident too severely for silence to be continued."

A commercial wireless company gave American newspapers an advantage because of fast transmission from Normandy after D-day, the Magazine said, and added that there was a feeling discrimination had been shown in favor of American photographers.

(Actually two American companies, Press Wireless and Mackay, have been transmitting direct from the war theater to the United States since the early days of the French campaign. This has meant that front line dispatches were available in New York before they could be delivered either to London or to correspondents at SHAEF in Paris.)

The Magazine said some fault lay with British officialdom, whereas "the Americans, on the other hand, fully value and appreciate publicity, and lay themselves out to give every possible aid to press people." Blame should not be attributed to "any American bias or partiality," it said, adding:

"We do believe that a strong hand—and more particularly a more expert hand—at SHAEF would result in considerable betterment and the attainment of fuller equality between British and American interests."

Churchill To Talk Of Moscow Trip

London, Oct. 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, his hand strengthened by a favorable Government vote test, will report tomorrow on his recent mission to Moscow to a House of Commons, which almost certainly will ask him about the plans for a new meeting of the "Big Three."

Churchill told the House Wednesday that he would make a "shortish statement" Friday and agreed to a debate, which he asked members to keep brief.

Parliament already has shown interest in reports of a new meeting among President Roosevelt, Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

The Government test ended when an opposition amendment to the controversial town and country planning bill was beaten yesterday, 324 to 58. The so-called "Blitz bill" would provide compensation on a 1939 price basis for persons dispossessed of their property because of population shifts due to German air attacks.

Churchill has conferred with the King and his ministers in preparation for tomorrow's debate.

Declines To Discuss Return Of Tommies

London, Oct. 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, observing "we are at a most grim moment in the war," declined in Commons today to discuss the return of soldiers who have long been overseas.

Releases from the army on a large scale are not possible now "without running the risk of prolonging the war and making our effort fail or be weakened just at the moment when it must be maintained right up to the climax," he stated.

BRITISH REESTABLISH RELATIONS WITH ITALY

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(AP) Great Britain has reestablished direct relations with the Italian government and has named Sir Noel Charles ambassador to Rome, the foreign office announced tonight.

Count Carandini will be accepted as the Italian representative in London.

Japan Is Organizing Its Own Volkssturm

LONDON, Oct. 26 (AP).—The Japanese are organizing a voluntary civilian army similar to Germany's conscripted Volkssturm, the Berlin radio said today.

A broadcast said the Japanese Greater East Asia Ministry announced that Japanese civilians who voluntarily take up arms in the southern operational zones will be given the official title of "civilians attached to the armed forces."

MEETING CALLED TO PLAN ACTION AGAINST FRANCO

WERNER

LONDON, Oct. 26—(AP) Spanish republicans will confer Nov. 2-4 in the French city of Toulouse, only 60 miles from the Spanish frontier, to "decide upon the best methods" of overthrowing Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Falangist regime, Republican headquarters here said today.

A Paris dispatch disclosed that for the first time since the outbreak of the clashes along the Franco-Spanish frontier a Paris newspaper, France Libre, has taken up the defense of the Franco regime.

"France no longer has anything against Franco," said an editorial in France Libre. "Let us admit in good faith that Franco was under obligation to Hitler and Mussolini for their recognition and support; he paid only in words."

The editorial, coupled with Gen. Charles de Gaulle's statement regarding Spain at a press conference yesterday was seen as preparing further against anti-Franco criticism in the event of a diplomatic exchange.

De Gaulle said that Jacques Truelle, the French "minister plenipotentiary" was still at Madrid, while the Spanish consular representative Jose Antonio de Sangroniz, who has been in Algiers more than a year, would "without doubt" come to Paris soon. Relations have been on a "de facto" and not a diplomatic basis.

Two other newspapers, the Leftist Franc Tireur and Resistance, urged intervention on behalf of the Spanish republicans.

The London announcement regarding the Toulouse meeting said all political groups among Spanish Republicans in France had arranged to send delegates.

A statement issued from the Spanish Republican house in London accused Franco of trying to make it appear that the recent armed clashes between his troops and Republican guerrillas were merely skirmishes with "invaders coming from France."

"The true situation is that there has been a tremendous increase in the struggle of the patriotic forces inside Spain, not only on the frontier but at other places in the interior," the statement said.

A London diplomatic source reported that Col. Enrique Lister, organizer of the Fifth Spanish army brigade and the defender of Madrid in Spanish revolutionary days, commanded Spanish Maquis fighting along the Franco-Spanish border.

Spanish Papers Accuse Russia On Clashes

London, Oct. 26 (AP)—Russia, which lent support to the defeated Republican forces in the Spanish civil war, was accused last night by the controlled Spanish press of starting a campaign to make relations between Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime and the Allies "impossible."

Dispatches suggested concern in Madrid over the possibility that the present clashes throughout Spain between Republican guerrillas and Government forces might develop into a full-fledged attempt to overthrow Franco.

The Nazis two weeks of intensive raids we aid to brave bagged a number of prominnet resistance leaders, including Prof. Mogens Fog, leader of the Danish Freedom Council, who is believed to have been slain.

Refugees Tell Of Conditions

Danish circles in Stockholm said it was common to see the Gestapo herding scores of Danes into trucks in Copenhagen for transportation to concentration camps. Refugees reaching Sweden despite the almost ironclad precautions against escape tell lurid tales of conditions in Denmark.

They said the German dismissal of the entire 14,000-man Danish police force on September 19 plunged the country into a wave of disorders. Free Danish sources said the Germans presumably decided to take over the policing to break down the underground.

Tirpitz Changes Its Anchorage To Tromso

Stockholm, Oct. 26 (AP)—The crippled German battleship Tirpitz has escaped from its anchorage at Altenjford, where it was menaced by the advance of the Russian forces in far northern Norway, and has taken temporary refuge near Tromso, nearly 100 miles farther south, Norwegian Legation informants said today.

Heavy anti-aircraft defenses were prepared at Tromso, it was reported.

It was believed unlikely the Tirpitz, reported hit by a huge blockbuster in the last of the series of British attacks, would remain at Tromso long as preparations were being made to receive the ship farther south.

ALLIES ADVANCE IN BOLOGNA DRIVE

Nazi Terror Stalks Danes

Stockholm, Oct. 26 (AP)—A German wave of terror aimed at smashing the Danish underground was reported today to be sweeping through Denmark.

hard-won bridgeheads across the Savio river west of Cesena in Italy's Eastern Po valley, have captured Forlimopopoli on the Bologna-Rimini highway, Allied headquarters announced today.

Five miles from Forlimopopoli lies Forli, a communications center of 65,000 population 37 miles southeast of Bologna. It appeared tonight that Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring's line in Italy, with Bologna as a strong hinge, was swinging north in a slow, controlled withdrawal.

Nazi Resistance Slackens

Resistance on the Adriatic side slackened, and the German defenders of Bologna dug in for a last ditch fight against the American Fifth Army battering its way from positions about eight miles south of the city's outskirts.

In several sectors the Eighth Army was meeting resistance only from German rearguards, and the Nazis appeared to be pulling back to a shorter line running roughly east from Bologna to the marshes north of Ravenna. On the coastal sector the British were less than eight miles from Ravenna.

The Eighth Army was able to make a general advance all along the front between the coast and the mountains south of the Bologna-Rimini highway.

After capturing Forlimopopoli, the British pushed forward to the River Ronco, the next major obstacle in the drive on Forli, the Allied headquarters communique disclosed.

British Drive Ahead

Americans of the Fifth Army continued to meet the bitterest kind of resistance on the approaches to Bologna. On the right flank British and Indian troops made gains up to a mile in the hills. German Artillery was extremely active with heavy concentrations on route 65, the main southern approach to Bologna.

A captured order of the day by Lt. Gen. Hauck, commander of the 305th German infantry division, indicated that the Nazi strategy in Italy was a part of the general German plan of delay in hoping to avert a complete defeat. It said, in part:

"If we only succeed in stemming the flood, then our enemy will not have the strength left to achieve final victory. For us, too, no joyous victory, but we can win a peace which will ensure us freedom of life, freedom of action and that is victory."

8th Army Gains 11 Miles In Italy

Rome, Oct. 26 (AP)—Eighth Army troops have cleared the Germans from the Savio river line in the eastern Po Valley and, thrusting from bridgeheads west and north of Cesena, have advanced northwestward to within five miles of Forli along the highway to Bologna, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Eighth Army advanced at least 11 miles in a thrust that placed it only 37 miles from Bologna.

"The enemy having withdrawn, Eighth Army troops have advanced rapidly from their Cesena bridgehead, have driven in enemy rear guards and crossed the River Bevano," the communique said.

Reach Ronco River

West of the Bevano, the Allies captured Forlimpopoli, directly on the Bologna highway, and reached the Ronco river, three miles beyond. The lack of resistance indicated the advance would continue to Forli itself.

Canadian troops striking out from their bridgehead across the Savio river above Cesena have reached a point more than four miles to the northwest.

South of the Po Valley highway British, Indian and Polish troops were clearing mountainous terrain of Germans.

Germans Dig In

The Fifth Army meanwhile continued to batter away against stiff resistance on the southern approaches to Bologna. The Germans were reported digging trenches south and southeast of the stronghold, indicating a plan to defend the town to the bitter end. Heavy German artillery fire straddled Highway 65 south of Bologna.

On the Fifth Army right flank British and Indian troops made gains of up to a mile through difficult hills. Very heavy fighting was in progress near Vedriano, southwest of Castel San Pietro, toward which the Americans were driving.

LARSIA CAPTURED BY GREEK PATRIOTS

ROME, Oct. 26—(AP) Capture of the communications center of Larisa by Greek guerrillas was announced officially today and Athens reports said the patriots controlled large portions of the harbor city of Salonika, 75 miles to the north.

Istanbul advices said the Germans were using planes to evacuate their troops from Salonika, less than 50 miles from the northern frontier of Greece.

The Athens reports said the story of the liberation of the Greek capital "is apparently repeating itself" in Salonika, and that the Germans were withdrawing after demolishing some installations. Salonika workers were said to have staged a 24-hour general strike.

Loss of Larisa meant also that the Germans were deprived of their only remaining air base within 300 miles of Crete. Thus vanished the Nazis' final hope of evacuating any real part of the remaining German garrison by air from Crete, where between 12,000 and 15,000 troops were believed marooned.

The island of Skopelos in the northern Sporades group was occupied without opposition by troops which landed from the British destroyer Tezer and the Greek destroyer Navarino. Skopelos is east of the port of Volos, which the Germans have evacuated.

Meanwhile British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden promised Greek Premier George Papendreou full support for the rehabilitation of Greece, Athens newspapers reported today. Eden and Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean theater, arrived in Athens by plane yesterday.

Greek Guerrillas Occupy Larissa

Rome, Oct. 26 (AP)—Greek guerrilla forces have occupied the important communications center of Larissa on the main railway running to the port of Salonika, 75 miles to the north, Allied headquarters announced today.

(Istanbul dispatches reported that the Germans already have begun evacuating Salonika.)

At the same time, the announcement said, troops landed from the British destroyer Teazer and the Greek destroyer Navarino have occupied the island of Skopelos in the northern Sporadies group east of the port of Volos. There was no opposition.

Volos Evacuated

German evacuation of Volos, which is 25 miles southeast of Larissa, was announced yesterday.

The communique said British forces were working in close cooperation with Patriots and had made progress northward in pursuit of the withdrawing Germans.

Troops Held Marooned

Larissa is less than 100 air-line miles from Greece's northern frontier. With its evacuation the Nazis lost the only remaining airbase within 300 miles of Crete and with that the last hope of evacuating any substantial part of Crete's garrison by air.

LAUDS ROOSEVELT'S TALK

Vatican Paper Acclaims Pledge of Not to Enslave Germans

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 26 (AP)—L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, praised today President Roosevelt's Saturday night foreign policy speech and said his declaration that the German people as a race would not be enslaved were "words of great wisdom."

The newspaper said that the President was talking about an enemy nation, yet he spoke with the "serenity of a judge almost with the feeling of a defender."

The words were the more admirable and courageous, the paper added, especially since they were uttered in a war-torn world not well-prepared to hear them.

CHINESE WIPE OUT JAPS SOUTHWEST OF KWEIPING

CHUNGKING, Oct. 26 — (AP) Chinese troops have wiped out part of a Japanese force surrounded eight miles southwest of Kweiping on the West river front in Southern Kwangsi province and are hammering away at the remnants, a Chinese communique announced today.

Kweiping is about 70 miles southeast of Liuchow, site of an American air base and immediate objective of the Japanese campaign in southern Kwangsi.

The Chinese bulletin described as unchanged the situation on the Hunan-Kwangsi railway front north of Kweilin, where the Japanese are attempting to clean up Chinese forces menacing their right flank before pressing a drive on Kweilin itself.

Chinese ground forces were supported by fighter planes of the U. S. 14th air force which inflicted heavy damage on Japanese forces attempting a breakthrough north and west of Kweiping, Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell announced. Kweiping also was bombed with effective results, the communique said.

BASIS FOR CONTROL OF EUROPE MADE AT MOSCOW TALKS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(AP) Evidence that Britain and Russia have laid the basis for Allied cooperation in postwar Europe, especially on delicate Balkans issues, developed today as Ambassador John G. Winant returned from London to undertake a general review of war and diplomatic problems with American officials.

Winant brought a first hand report of the latest work the European advisory commission on post-victory German control terms. His arrival followed by a few days that of Ambassador W. Averell Harriman from Moscow. The two envoys are expected to stay in this country until after the election.

Harriman already has reported to President Roosevelt on the recent conference of Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Available information from both British and American sources here indicates that the conference resulted in far-reaching understandings, particularly with respect to the Balkans.

One point apparently agreed on is that there should be three power control in the defeated enemy countries of eastern Europe, with allowance for Russia's primary interest in that area.

In response to questions at the State department today, Harriman said the Russians are going to work with the United States and Britain in the defeated countries.

The ambassador declared that Russia is anxious for the friendship of the United States. While he would not discuss the matter further his words carried a clear impli-tion the Kremlin is keenly aware of the American attitude on European questions.

Meanwhile British officials said that the trend of events affords no basis for concern about a conflict of British and Russian interests in the Balkans. These sources asserted that Russia's concern is solely for the security of her communication lines in the Eastern Mediterranean. They said these two points of view might even be considered mutually supporting.

American policy with respect to that area is generally summed up by diplomatic authorities as one of interest in settlements which respect the independence and the political aspirations of the people they concern.

The actual machinery for the control of Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary is being organized in armistice Control commissions, with the United States, Britain and Russia represented on each group. The Russian army command in the area represents all three powers.

While Winant is reported to have brought back information on the work of the European Advisory commission, it is not expected here that any decisions will be made on German control policy in the immediate future. Speculation runs rather to the possibility of a November meeting of Mr. Roosevelt with the British and Russian leaders.

Synthetic Liquid Fuels Laboratory Planned

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—A synthetic liquid fuels research and development laboratory—the most modern of its type in the world—will be built by the Bureau of Mines at Bruceton, Pa., and will be ready for occupany by next fall, Interior Secretary Ickes announced today.

The laboratory will be headed by Dr. H. H. Storch, now stationed at the Central Experiment Station at Pittsburgh. He was recently named chief of the research and development division of the office of synthetic liquid fuels.

Various units of the laboratory and other facilities will occupy about seven acres already owned by the Bureau of Mines, which operates an experimental coal mine there to study mine-safety problems, Ickes declared. There will be three 3-story buildings, a power house and several smaller service buildings.

McNutt Reports High Turnover At Shipyard

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—The 1 shipyards building top priority assault ships for operations in the Pacific are having difficulty in increasing their working forces as a result of "an extremely high turnover," Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower Commissioner, said today.

He said the importance of the ships cannot be overemphasized and appealed to workers to "stay on the job."

In September the 12 shipyards hired 23,200 workers, but lost 20,700, for a net gain of 2,500.

Although production of assault ships in September nearly doubled the August output, neither month was up to "sharply expanding schedules," McNutt reported.

U. S. AND BRITAIN RECOGNIZE ITALY

Washington, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—The United States and Britain are restoring normal diplomatic contacts with Italy as a part of a joint program to ease military controls over the former enemy state.

The State Department said yesterday that Alexander C. Kirk, American representative of the Advisory Council for Italy in Rome, will be named Ambassador to Italy.

Russia already has a kind of diplomatic relationship with the Italian Government, having exchanged representatives months ago.

The text of a State Department announcement made by Acting Secretary of State Stettinius, that the United States is resuming diplomatic relations with Italy follows:

"After consultation with the other American republics, as provided in the resolutions of Rio de Janeiro of January, 1942, it has been agreed that diplomatic relations with the Government of Italy should be resumed. The Governments of Great Britain and the Soviet Union likewise have been consulted.

Consequently, the President will submit to the Senate after it convenes on November 14, 1944, the nomination of the Hon. Alexander C. Kirk as United States Ambassador to Italy. Mr. Kirk is presently United States representative on the Advisory Council for Italy in Rome."

Envoy Says Atrocities Are Not Exaggerated

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—Ambassador W. Averell Harriman said today German atrocities on the Eastern front in Poland and in Russia have not and cannot be exaggerated.

In a news conference, Harriman said he thought the American people generally have not understood the unbelievable nature of these atrocities and that there was no way of exaggerating the ways in which the Germans had killed and tortured their Polish and Russian captives.

Harriman is reporting to President Roosevelt on the recent conference held in Moscow between Marshal Stalin and Prime Minster Churchill.

REPORT MRS. LE GENDRE ATTACHED TO U. S. ARMY

OCT 27 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 — (AP) The War department said today that Mrs. Gertrude Le Gendre, who has been reported captured by the Germans, was attached to the corps of the United States army in France.

The Berlin radio on Tuesday reported the capture of Mrs. Le Gendre, 42, who is believed to be the sister of Stephen (Laddie) Sanford, American international polo player.

No further information was made public here on Mrs. Le Gendre's connection with the Army corps headquarters.

22 HOSPITAL SHIPS ARE IN USE BY ARMY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(AP) The Army now has 22 hospital ships in operation to bring back wounded from European and Pacific battlefields.

Six of the vessels are converted Liberty ships which War department spokesmen said today are "comparable in every respect" with those built specifically for hospital service.

In addition to 19 ships operated by the Army, three Navy-owned and Navy-manned hospital ships are presently in Army service. Two more ships now under construction will increase the Army's hospital fleet to 24.

Stimson Is Queried On Pearl Harbor Case

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson said today he would give the report of the army board which investigated the Pearl Harbor disaster "the consideration necessary in order to carry out the serious duty" directed by the law ordering separate army-navy inquiries.

Stimson made this reply at a news conference when asked whether the board recommended court-martial action against Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, the army commander at Hawaii in 1941, whether it altered the plan to hold a trial after the war is over, and whether the report would be made public.

The Secretary replied first by reading from the act which ordered the investigation and directed the War and Navy Secretaries "to commence such proceedings against such persons as the facts may justify."

Medal Of Honor Winner Also Awarded The DSC

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—Technical Sergeant James M. Logan, 23, Luling (Texas) infantryman who won the Congressional Medal of Honor at Salerno, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for singlehandedly breaking up a German counteroffensive at Veletri, Italy, the War Department announced tonight.

Sergeant Logan is the second United States soldier to receive both of the high awards in this war. The first was Lieut. Gerry H. Kisters, 24, of Bloomington, Ind.

The Texan won the Medal of Honor for slowing down an enemy counteroffensive, killing a machine-gun crew and a sniper September 9, 1943, at Salerno.

The DSC was awarded for action June 1, 1944, when he risked his life repeatedly to capture 15 Germans, kill 25, and disorganize a counterattack on his rifle squad.

The Battleship Missouri Is Now in Active Service

45,000-Ton Craft Is Under Capt. William Callaghan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP).—The Navy today permitted disclosure that the new 45,000-ton battleship Missouri, under construction since 1941, had gone into service.

The ship was commissioned at the Navy Yard in Brooklyn on June 11, 1944, and construction was completed July 24. She put to sea soon thereafter under the command of Captain William M. Callaghan, of Oakland, Calif.

With more than 2,500 men aboard, she has 418,000 square feet of decks, 844 doors, 852 manholes.

Sister ships of the same class, also in service, are the Iowa, the New Jersey and the Wisconsin.

The Navy said the Wisconsin mounts improved 16-inch guns and more than 148 anti-aircraft guns of varying size.

American Casualties Reach Total of 472,779

Increase of 19,404 Listed for Oct. 6-14 Period

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP). — Casualties of the American armed forces total 472,779. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, announced today that Army casualties for all theaters reported through Oct. 14 numbered 403,074. The latest Navy casualty total is 69,705.

The Army total represents an increase of 18,179 for the interval between Oct. 6, the date of the last preceeding report, and Oct. 14. In the same interval, Navy casualties increased by 1,225.

American Army ground force casualties in Italy, from the original landings in September, 1943, to Oct. 16, numbered 91,063, an increase of 8,952 since Sept. 25.

Army casualties for all theaters through Oct. 14, compared with the figures for Oct. 6, follow: Killed, 78,522 and 75,562; wounded, 220,529 and 208,392; missing, 51,009 and 48,404; prisoners, 53,014 and 52,537.

Comparative Navy figures: Killed, 27,831 and 27,047; wounded, 27,857 and 27,368; missing, 9,537 and 9,586; prisoners, 4,480 — unchanged from previous figure.

The ground force casualties in Italy on Oct. 16 as compared with Sept. 25; killed, 16,978 and 15,889; wounded, 62,184 and 56,178; missing, 11,901 and 10,044.

Army to Release Surviving Son In Cases Where 2 Have Been Lost

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP) Families which already have lost two or more sons in battle, only one survivor, no longer need face the sacrifice of that last one.

Secretary of War Stimson said today that it now is the policy of the Army to return to or retain in the United States "the sole surviving son of a family in cases where two or more sons have been lost" unless the surviving boy is engaged in non-hazardous duty overseas.

The initiative for this must be taken by the family or the man in service through application to the department.

Navy spokesmen said the sea services have adopted the same policy.

The War department said that "sympathetic consideration" would be given such applications with the idea of returning the surviving son to duty in this country or, if circumstances warrant, discharging him from the Army. Each case will be decided on its individual merits.

The Marine corps recently agreed, on petition of an aging farm couple at Tremonton, Utah, to discharge the only known survivor among their five sons, Boyd Borgstrom, 23, veteran of 18 months in the southwest Pacific. Three of his brothers have been killed and the fourth reported missing.

Plan Pulp Industry in Alaska

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP).—The Commerce Department wants to interest capital in establishment of a huge pulp and paper industry in Alaska. The Forest Service, a statement from the Commerce Department said today, has classified almost all the timber in the 16,000,000-acre Tonglass Forest as of high-grade pulping species.

Roosevelt Acclaims Navy Day

Tomorrow's Celebration Will Be of Greater Significance Because of Victory

OCT 27 1944

Washington, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt, amid reports of stirring naval victory in the Far Pacific, urged today the unswerving support of the Navy "until the last battle is won." In a statement recognizing Navy Day, tomorrow, he said:

"On this Navy Day, 1944, the nation pauses to salute the men of the United States Navy. Their heroic performance has won the admiration and gratitude of all men who fight for freedom. Never before has sea power played so significant a role in the determination of American destiny and the course of world history.

Chapter to be Written.

"In the greatest and most difficult naval war ever fought, our Navy has emerged from its ordeal by fire as a massive striking force of enormous power and precision. The men of the Navy, Coast Guard and Marines have proven themselves the enemy's superior in every branch of warfare.

"There still remains a monumental chapter of naval history to be written in the Pacific. That it will be superbly executed I have no doubt. For our part, it is our duty here at home to continue to give the Navy our unswerving support until the last battle is won.

"The American people will never forget the Navy's courage and sacrifice."

Roosevelt Asks Kennedy To Study Kaiser's Plan

Ex-Ambassador Agrees to Report on Post-War Jobs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP).—Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to London, said today President Roosevelt had asked him to study and offer some suggestions regarding the plan of Henry J. Kaiser, the industrialist, to provide post-war jobs. He said he told the President he would.

Mr. Kennedy, on leaving the White House, told newspaper men he had not discussed politics. He recalled that he made a speech in the last campaign in behalf of a third term but said he hadn't thought very much about politics in the last three or four months.

He described as "innocent" a question how he believed the election would come out and as "offhand" an inquiry whether he would speak in this campaign.

Hearing on Air Routes

U. S. Said to Have Understanding For Scandinavian-Operated Line

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP).—A witness at the Civil Aeronautics Board hearing on North Atlantic air routes testified today that the State Department has an understanding with the Scandinavian countries for air service to be operated jointly by Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

The witness was Frederick C. Melchier, vice-president of U. S. Midnight Sun Airline, Inc., a company incorporated in New Jersey with the intention of serving northern Europe, as far as Moscow, from the United States. The company does not now operate any aircraft.

Responding to a question as to whether United States carriers would face a threat of low-cost operations by foreign companies, Mr. Melchier said he did not believe so because he knew that the Swedish company was planning a fare of $350 between New York and Stockholm.

Can Supersede State's Laws, WLB Rules

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP) — The War Labor Board today held that to settle a dispute affecting the war effort it could order inclusion of a maintenance of membership clause in a contract regardless of any State law to the contrary.

The board rejected a claim of the Cudahy Brothers Company, Cudahy, Wis., that the board's standard membership clause, directed at the packers' plant, violated the Wisconsin employment peace act.

This clause had been ordered by both the regional and national boards in a dispute between the company and the Packinghouse Workers Organizing Committee, CIO, representing about 1,400 employes.

Stresses Authority

Even if the Wisconsin act prohibited such a provision, Dr. Edwin E. Witte, public member of the board, asserted, "This board would still have authority to direct such a provision in settlement of a labor dispute in an establishment as important to the war effort as is the plant of this company.

"This position rests upon the fact that the nation is now at war. End the winning of the war in the shortest possible time is our present greatest objective," Dr. Witte's opinion, written for the WLB, stated.

"There is much support, including many Supreme Court decisions, for the view that where State laws conflict with authority fully exercised in time of war under the war powers which the Constitution confers upon the National Government, the State laws cannot be applied to impede the war effort."

Basis For Firm's Action

The opinion stated that the company's refusal to adopt a check-off provision was based on the belief that it was "integrally connected with union maintenance of membership."

The checkoff provision, affecting only those union members who notify the company in writing of their desire to have their dues deducted from their pay, "clearly is independent" of the union maintenance provision, said Dr. Witte.

The board said this was the final action on the issue, and gave both the union and the company until Saturday, October 28, to say whether they intend to comply.

Lacked Maintenance Issue

The maintenance of membership issue was not involved in the case recently decided by the Wisconsin Supreme Court, the opinion said.

Instead, it pertained to two employes who were discharged because they had not taken out work permits under a contract provision.

The court held that the discharges violated the Wisconsin employment peace act "making it an unfair labor practice for an employer to interfere with the free choice of employes in relation to membership or non-membership in a labor organization," said Dr. Witte.

White House Challenges Dewey on Army Budget

Says He Ignored 800% Rise in 1941 Funds Over 1940

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP).—The White House said today that Governor Thomas E. Dewey, in referring in his Minneapolis speech to a Budget Bureau cut of $552,000,000 in funds for the War Department, emphasized a 7 per cent cut and ignored an "800 per cent increase" over the previous fiscal year's funds.

The text of the statement handed to newspaper men late today follows:

"Mr. Dewey's statement at Minneapolis Oct. 24, as quoted in the press, was: 'It was right in the fall of 1939 after the second world war was actually begun that Mr. Roosevelt's Budget Bureau cut out $552,000,000 of amounts certified by the Army for critical and essential items.'

"Mr. Dewey is obviously referring to the budget for the fiscal year 1941 which was prepared in the fall of 1939. His quotation of the President was also taken from the budget message for fiscal 1941.

"The cut of $552,000,000 to which Mr. Dewey refers was made under regular Budget Bureau procedure and scrutiny over a period of fifteen months from nine major regular and supplemental recommendations for War Department appropriations for the fiscal year 1941 which totaled $8,038,550,718. Thus the cut Mr. Dewey mentioned amounted to less than 7 per cent of the total, not the 23 per cent cut inferred.

"On the other hand, the $8,038,550,718 recommended by the Bureau of the Budget for the War Department for fiscal 1941 compared to $895,745,260 for the previous fiscal year, an increase of almost 800 per cent.

"Mr. Dewey is in the position of emphasizing a 7 per cent cut and ignoring the 800 per cent increase in spite of the cut. Furthermore, for the same fiscal year, contract authorizations for the Army recommended by the Budget Bureau totaled an additional $5,000,000,000. Thus the total of recommended appropriations and contract authorizations for the War Department for 1941 was more than thirteen times those of the previous year."

NELSON ENDORSES FDR ON 'KNOW-HOW'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(AP) Donald M. Nelson tonight urged reelection of President Roosevelt as the man with "the most know-how for that job."

Nelson, former chairman of the War Production Board and now economic envoy for the President, described himself as an independent voter who had voted Republican in the past more often than Democratic. Saying that he picked candidates just as he would pick new business employes, he added in a speech over the Mutual Network:

"My personal experience in working with Franklin Roosevelt has convinced me that he has the foresight, courage, patience and wisdom—he has the all around know-how needed for the biggest job in the world. I don't know any other man who measures up to him for that job."

OCT 27 1944

Sketching the President's responsibilities, Nelson asserted:

"He has to decide war policy. His actions and words play a big part in shaping the attitude of our Allies, the attitude of neutrals, and even the morale of the enemy. The President's decisions can go a long way toward assuring postwar jobs for all and good wages for all. Our chances of preventing future wars, and of improving our trade with other countries depend largely on his able statesmanship. We need to elect a man who we know—not guess but know—is able to work out the great problems which lie before us."

Crediting the President with great foresight in preparing the nation for war, Nelson said, "powerful men" opposed the program and added that it "is remarkable that we made as much headway as we did against the resistance we had to overcome."

Domestically, he asserted, Mr. Roosevelt had shown "how deeply he is devoted to democracy and the American way of life" in his dealings with WPB. Nelson said the President supported a WPB policy of "fair play for business" that kept controls down to what were "absolutely necessary" and "kept intact the basic institutions of the country."

Hull Praises F. D. R.'s Leadership

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull issued a statement today describing President Roosevelt as "a statesman equipped by nature and by experience" to meet what he termed the "gravest crisis" in human history.

The statement, issued at the State Department, made no direct reference to the current political campaign. It follows:

"Four years ago with the fall of France the United States was faced by an unparalleled challenge flung at us by the most vicious international desperadoes of all time.

"Saw Issue Clearly"

"In this hour of supreme peril, President Roosevelt saw the issue clearly. He saw that if we did not assist the nations defending themselves against aggression, those nations would be conquered one by one with disaster resulting to us. He courageously charted a wise course for this nation.

"With Hitler's forces prepared for conquest of Britain, the President called for the production of 50,000 airplanes. At his direction, we made available to the British large quantities of vitally needed arms and ammunition; we made available 50 American destroyers in exchange for military bases; we embarked on the all-important lend-lease program; we sent contingents of our armed forces to Greenland and Iceland, and we patrolled the Atlantic to keep the sea lanes open."

History will record that these acts of the United States under the farsighted leadership of President Roosevelt, in that never-to-be-forgotten crisis, were indispensable in staving off disaster to our nation and other free nations.

"Under the same leadership, with self-discipline, and through effective cooperation with our Allies, we have built a vast war machine which is bringing certain victory.

"Today, the people know that the supreme issue affecting the future of the country is whether we and the other free peoples will have the skill and the leadership to build effective institutions of peace and human welfare. They know that unless this leadership is provided, the tragedy of another and unspeakable war will be invited.

Tremendous Task

"The task of building an effective peace structure is tremendous. It is not one in which good intentions will suffice. It is not a matter which can be filed away under the heading of 'Foreign affairs.' It is the most vital of any or all domestic problems. The welfare of every man, woman and child in the country, the development of every form of production or business, the continuance and growth of every payroll hang upon the success of the nations in building a permanent organization to preserve peace as the foundation for social and economic well-being. Much has been done, but much remains to be done.

"I wish I could burn into the minds of my countrymen the thought that this year, this day, this very hour, the human race is confronted by the gravest crisis in all its experience; that each and every citizen at this critical time has his share of responsibility in determining which way the world is going in th eyears ahead.

Courage Cited

"I am convinced, however, that the American people realize the enormous importance of the problems confronting this country and the world.

"President Roosevelt is a statesman equipped by nature and by experience to meet these problems as few statesmen have been equipped throughout our history. The American people know that he has courage equal to their own, that he has a knowledge of the realities of the world, and that he has an unshakable determination to achieve the goals of peace and security, upon which they have pinned their hope and their faith."

Stimson Refuses To Say For Whom He Will Vote

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—War Secretary Stimson, a Republican who has served in two Republican Cabinets, declined today to express his preference for a Presidential candidate.

Asked which candidate he indorsed, Stimson replied:

"The army of the United States, particularly during a great foreign war, should be absolutely free from any suspicion that it was subject to any partisan or political influence whatever.

"In order to promote this policy I myself have absolutely refrained from even disclosing or discussing for whom I should vote. This was the course I followed four years ago, and I see no reason for changing it."

PRESIDENT SPEAKS IN PENN. TONIGHT

Roosevelt to Speak at Shibe Park on Campaign Swing to Middle West.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP) The 95 electoral votes of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Indiana and Illinois beckoned President Roosevelt tonight for a second campaign trip during which he will deliver two major open air speeches— in Philadelphia Friday night and Chicago the following evening.

The crowded two-day itinerary in hotly debated territory also calls for informal talks from the rear platform of the Democratic candidate's special train at Wilmington, Del., tomorrow morning and Fort Wayne, Ind., Saturday afternoon. A motor tour of Camden, N. J., and adjacent shipyard-war plant areas was arranged following his stop at Wilmington.

The President will speak in Shibe baseball park in Philadelphia tomorrow night from 9 to 9:30, (EWT), then head for the West. His Saturday night address will be at Soldier Field on the Michigan Lake front, from 9 to 9:30 (EWT).

Before turning over his afternoon to speech-writing today, Mr. Roosevelt conferred with Joseph P. Kennedy of Boston, former ambassador to Great Britain. Kennedy, who delivered one campaign speech for a third term in 1940, said politics was not discussed. He refused to make prediction on the election outcome or say whether he would make a speech for the President this time.

Another White House caller was A. Harry Moore, former Democratic governor and senator from New Jersey. He afterward told newsmen that the President would carry New Jersey "by at least 100,000."

"He is well liked in New Jersey and is getting stronger all the time," Moore said. "The people are thinking of his experience in handling foreign affairs and that is helping a lot."

Meanwhile, at Charleston, W. V., Democratic National Committeeman Arthur B. Koontz announced that the President will make a brief rear platform appearance at Clarksburg shortly after noon on Sunday, en route back to Washington from Chicago.

BALL CRITICIZES G.O.P. STAND ON FOREIGN POLICY

OCT 27 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 — (AP) Explaining his decision to support President Roosevelt for reelection, Senator Ball (R.-Minn.) said tonight that "present leaders of the Republican party are trying to stand on both sides of the foreign policy issue."

He reiterated that although Governor Dewey has spoken for a strong international security organization "both internationalists and isolationists could find comfort and support in what he said."

In a speech over the Blue Network, Ball had this to say of Mr. Roosevelt's attitude:

"He wants the United Nations security organization established without delay, before hostilities cease. He wants our representative on it legally endowed with authority to commit an agreed upon quota of our forces to action against an aggressor at the call of the council.

"In addition, the Roosevelt administration, by a long series of actions, has reversed the isolationist foreign policy of the United States. It has established American leadership in fighting this war and in developing a world security organization."

Ball crossed the Republican party line last Monday to announce his support of the President. For months he has been campaigning in the Senate and on the platform for a post-war peace-preserving organization.

Says Dewey "Weak"

"A fact that makes Dewey's weak commitments on this issue even weaker," he declared, is the record of the majority of Republicans in Congress in opposing foreign policy and preparedness matters before Pearl Harbor."

Specifically Ball declared that Gov. John W. Bricker, Dewey's running-mate, "is talking the isolationist-nationalist doctrines of the McCormick-Patterson press."

Declaring Dewey has endorsed of the present administration's policies and programs, Ball said that the Republican nominee had "failed to offer the American people a workable, constructive program" of taxation and labor relations.

Hits Communist Issue

Further, Ball declared, Dewey and persons speaking in his favor "have attempted to scare the American people into believing that re-election of Roosevelt will mean a Communist dictatorship in the United States."

Ball declared he had never met a Communist holding Federal office, but said there might be "a handful" of them "on the outer fringe of the New Deal."

"The rights and liberties of the American people are in far less danger from the little handful of Communists on the outer fringes of the New Deal than they are from the rabid isolationists and labor haters who unfortunately occupy positions of much greater influence in Mr. Dewey's campaign," he asserted.

AFL-CIO RIVALRY MAY RESULT IN NEW RIFT IN WLB

OCT 27 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(AP) A new rift, rooted in AFL-CIO rivalry, developed today in the War Labor board with AFL members threatening to withdraw from active participation in wage cases until a decision on a general revision of the "Little Steel Formula" has been reached.

Chairman William H. Davis said such action would not tie up the Board, however. Davis said that if George Meany, AFL secretary-treasurer, and his colleague Matthew Woll, refuse to sit in on wage cases for the time being "we'll simply proceed with four CIO members."

The law requires only that four labor members be included in the tripartite agency, Davis said. There now are two from the AFL and two from the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Meany said he and Woll are declining to participate further in the wage cases until the whole issue is disposed of, and added that he thought Davis had invited the AFL to withdraw from membership if it did not change its mind.

Davis explained later, however, that he meant that so long as the AFL members continued to sit they should assume full responsibility as members.

Meany, on the other hand, insisted that Davis had instructed the AFL members to withdraw, but that "we never at any time said we would withdraw" as members of the board.

The threat of the AFL men to pull out of the specific cases at hand still stood.

The Board voted Wednesday, eight to four, with the AFL and CIO members dissenting, to start discussion next Tuesday on a report to the President on wages and the cost of living. The CIO men voted against taking it up next Tuesday because they wanted to begin deliberations today. Connected demands of several CIO unions representing a million workers, for paid vacations, guaranteed annual income, night shift differentials, and related benefits are to be taken up on Tuesday.

It was this decision which irked the AFL members. They are frankly apprehensive of such procedure, feeling that their CIO rivals may emerge with important gains outside the question of a horizontal wage increase.

The AFL's objective has been to modify or eliminate the Little Steel formula without respect to any specific case.

The CIO, in addition to wanting a general increase of 17 cents for the steel workers, has a sheaf of other demands in a half dozen industries.

If the AFL members carry out their threat, which Meany said they intended to do, they would not take part in the dispute cases when they come up next Tuesday.

U. S. INDICTS TWO FIRMS

Clothing Corporations, Officials Charged With Fraud

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Two clothing corporations and eight officers, employes and business associates were indicted by a Federal grand jury today on charges of conspiring to submit false and misleading statements to the Quartermasters Corps in the renegotiation of 1942 army contracts for soldiers' overcoats and hoods.

Named in the indictment were the Freeport Corporation, formerly known as A. Davis and Sons, Inc., once located in Jersey City, N. J., and the Coat Corporation of America.

Defendants Listed

Individual defendants were Milton E. Davis and Charles Davis, president and secretary of Freeport; Richard Harding Davis, Donald Dennis Donovan and Milton Settler, president, vice-president and office manager of the Coat Corporation; Randolph W. von Till, New York attorney who represented both corporations; Gustave Davis, an employe of both, and Frank Catania, associated with a subcontracting firm.

The Government charged, after an FBI investigation, that the two corporations submitted consolidated balance sheets and profit and loss statements to the army indicating a net profit in 1942 on army business of $13,051.63, while the actual profits were between $150,000 and $200,000.

Paul R. Carr, attorney of the New York regional war frauds unit of the Department of Justice, said that the Coat Corporation had Quartermaster Corps contracts approximating $1,796,000 during 1942 and manufactured more than 100,000 overcoats and 1,000,000 hoods. The Freeport firm had contracts totaling approximately $950,000 during that year and manufactured more than 250,000 overcoats, he said.

OCT 27 1944

Charges Denied

During the grand jury investigation, Milton E. Davis and Seitler were jailed for contempt, the former for failure to produce certain books and the latter because his answers before the grand jury were held to be evasive.

After the filing of the indictment, Leo Fennelly, Coat Corporation attorney, issued a statement declaring:

"The officials of Coat Corporation deny all of the charges in the indictment. The charges are based on technicalities and grow out of the red tape of renegotiation. We will demonstrate that Coat Corporation never stood to gain nor the Government to lose by any action of Coat Corporation.

"We are confident that we will be vindicated in the trial, as Coat Corporation has been fair and honest in all its dealings."

Sees Seizure As 'Unnecessary'

Erie, Pa., Oct. 26 (AP)—Thomas Lord, vice-president of the Lord Manufacturing Company, seized by the navy under Presidential order, said today there was "no need" for the navy to take over operations at the plant. Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowan and a staff of seven took possession of the plant yesterday.

Ickes, Ferguson Debate Questions Of Election

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Ickes declared tonight that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had shown a "tinker top approach to foreign affairs," and Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) replied that the "New Deal is bankrupt in principle, bankrupt in policies, bankrupt in personnel."

Ickes and Ferguson debated the question, "for a sound national administration — Roosevelt or Dewey"

Both speakers were applauded and booed often, and Moderator George V. Denny, Jr., appealed to the audience several times to refrain from heckling.

'Privilege Sales' Charge Denied By Hannegan

OCT 27 1944

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—A declaration by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, in his Chicago speech last night that President Roosevelt's Administration "boldly offers for sale 'special privilege,'" has been denied by Democratic National Committee Chairman Robert E. Hannegan.

Replying to Dewey's reference to the "One Thousand Club," Hannegan said last night, "I have never discussed with the President the organization of the 'Thousand Club' and any quotation contained in the letter read tonight by Governor Dewey attributed to the President is wholly without substance and is unauthorized."

Approves Project

"I have been advised by Edwin W. Pauley, treasurer of the National Committee," he added, "that such an organization has been established in an effort to raise funds to defray campaign expenses. Those who subscribe $1,000 are making an investment in democracy and the project has my approval."

Referring to a letter quoted by Dewey which the Republican candidate said was written last October 16 on stationery of the Little Rock (Ark.) National Democratic Headquarters inviting membership in the "One Thousand Club," Hannegan said:

"I have never seen the letter Mr. Dewey referred to and it is completely ridiculous to assert that anyone who makes a contribution to the Democratic National Committee will be the recipient of special favors."

Hannegan added that since "the Democratic National Committee does not have 'angels' of the type of Joe Pew, of Pennsylvania, who has contributed $13,000,000 to the Republican party," it had developed a project "to interest liberal and progressive business and professional people who are able to make a contribution of $1,000" to assist in financing the campaign.

financing plan to sell "special privilege" and a voice in administration policies for $1,000 "on the barrelhead."

The charge was denied promptly by Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan.

Dewey's visit to Syracuse, which he described as the "agricultural heart of New York state," adds another major campaign appearance in the G.O.P. candidate's adopted state, which holds the biggest vote in the Electoral College. No Republican ever has managed to win the presidency without New York's 47 electoral votes.

Dewey, who already has spoken once in New York city, will address a Republican rally in Buffalo, Oct. 31 and wind up his campaign with a speech in Madison Square Garden, Nov. 4, the Saturday preceding the election.

He will make a final summation of what he considers the issues in a studio broadcast from New York city Nov. 6, election eve.

On the train returning from Chicago, Dewey spent most of the morning reading news accounts of the naval and air battles off the Philippines. He described recent war developments as "magnificent."

He planned to rest tomorrow. He will devote the closing week of the campaign to the East.

Dewey to Speak in Syracuse Saturday on Farm Program

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 26—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey returned to the Executive Mansion tonight to complete work on a farm speech in which he is expected to urge retention of the "essentially good features" of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The Republican nominee, who will make the address at 12:30 p. m. (EWT), Saturday in Syracuse, has indicated he will advocate price controls for agricultural products.

This was hinted last Tuesday in Minneapolis, where he originally had planned to make the farm speech but instead replied to President Roosevelt's foreign policy broadcast of Last Saturday.

He did tell his Minneapolis audience that "the wide fluctuation of prices of farm products that followed the last war will not be tolerated."

Hits "Bureaucrats"

"A floor will be placed and maintained under farm prices with assurance of seal up crop loans," Dewey declared. "A proper farm program will be created and so operated that it will leave with the farmers the administration, control and operation of their program without domination or dictation from appointed bureaucrats."

Dewey, upon his return, visibly was elated by the reception accorded him last night in Chicago, where he accused President Roosevelt of sponsoring a fourth term

'OLD IRONSIDES' TO GET NEW FLAG SATURDAY

BOSTON, Oct. 26—(AP) A new blue flag with two white stars will be hoisted on "Old Ironsides"—flagship of the First Naval district, next Saturday morning when Rear Admiral Felix X. Gygax takes over command of the district from retiring Rear Admiral Robert A. Theobald.

Tied up in the Boston navy yard, "Old Ironsides" is carried on the navy's rolls as the U. S. Frigate Constitution, and as such is flagship of the commanding officer of the district.

Rear Admiral Gygax takes over command at 9 a.m. in a ceremony in front of the main office building of the yard, and the flag changing takes place simultaneously.

Navy A Safeguard, Vandegrift Says

Philadelphia, Oct. 26 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, United States Marine Corps commandant, said tonight that our future security depends upon whether we "preserve naval power sufficient to impress upon any would-be international ruffians the suicidal futility of attacking us."

Our navy has entered into almost every war as the underdog, General Vandegrift said in a Navy Day address, "because after each war we have naively scrapped most of what we have built."

"Our navy today," he said, "is bigger than the combined fleets of all the world five years ago. The United States has become, for the first time, the greatest naval power on earth."

The general said there still is a tough fight ahead in the Pacific; that the Japanese are prepared to put up a desperate battle in the hope that Americans will "grow impatient and fall prey to a compromise peace."

Lt. S. N. Hodges Jr., Missing

ATLANTA, Oct. 26 (AP).—First Lieutenant Sam N. Hodges jr., nephew of Lieutenant General Courtney H. Hodges, commander of the American 1st Army in France, has been missing in action in Germany since Oct. 4, the War Department notified his family today. Lieutenant Hodges, twenty-two years old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam N. Hodges, of Atlanta and a graduate of Georgia Tech. He recently received the Bronze Star.

GI Puts Million In War Bonds

Camp Stewart, Ga., Oct. 26 (AP)—Purchase of $500,000 in war bonds within a seven-day period recently brought a Camp Stewart private's total bond holdings to more than $1,000,000.

He is Fred H. Drucker, 35-year-old mail clerk of the Eighth Battalion and former customers' man on the New York Stock Exchange.

Drucker said he was putting his money into war bonds because they are "the best investment on the market."

New Orleans Hotel Waits Former Guatemala Head

New Orleans, Oct. 26 (AP)—A hotel reservation was held in readiness here for former President Jorge Ubico of Guatemala, who was delayed in Brownsville, Texas, yesterday for lack of priority on air transportation and was expected to depart today.

Ubico left his country last week during a revolution and said he would come to New Orleans to remain until conditions become normal in Guatemala. He was accompanied by his wife.

Ubico relinquished the Guatemala Presidency several days ago and turned the office over to Gen. Federico Ponce, whose administration was overthrown in the 12-hour revolution in which more than 1,000 persons were wounded. Ponce fled to Mexico City.

HEAD OF AIR LINE ASKS LEADERSHIP

Chicago, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—W. A. Patterson, president of the United Air Lines, declared today that unity in political and business statesmanship is needed in this country. In an address before the Financial Advertisers' Association, he said that it was unfortunate that "the present administration in Washington doesn't take a position of leadership in inspiring business to improve its conduct, rather than in calling it names and creating suspicion of its intentions.

"Like our employees, we in management are human beings. I feel we would attain greater heights in business statesmanship if Government would only lead, instead of drive."

Truman Brands 'Klan' Charge As 'Lie' Dating Back to '22

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 26—(AP) Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic vice-presidential candidate, was informed at a press conference today "there is a story going the rounds that you were a member of the Ku Klux Klan," and the nominee declared the story was a "lie" that had been "nailed" 22 years ago.

A reporter for the Chicago Herald-American told the Missouri senator "there is a story going the rounds that you were a member of the Ku Klux Klan."

"Of course I'm not a member of the Klan," Truman replied. "I never was. That lie was nailed back in 1922 when I was elected judge of the County court for the Eastern district of Jackson county, Mo.

"What's the use of denying lies cooked up by Hearst and McCormick? It's just another red herring."

"Do you know a man named Harry Hoffman?" the Herald-American reporter inquired.

"Yes, I know him," the senator said. "I helped beat him (for a political office) in 1922."

"He swore that he, as grand kleagle, swore you into the Klan in 1920," the reporter said.

"That's a lie out of the whole cloth," Truman retorted. "Harry Hoffman ran for re-election as county marshal and we kicked him out."

Says He Fought Klan

In talking with newspapermen later in the day, Truman said the Klan always had fought him in Missouri. He added that at a meeting of the Grand Lodge of Masons in September, 1921, in St. Louis he worked for passage of a resolution to expel any lodge member who had joined the Klan.

The senator asserted he never had attended a Klan meeting, "although I have driven by them on my way to my own campaign meetings while I was fighting the Klan."

"If I had shown up at a meeting," he added, "the Klan would have pulled me apart."

The senator said files of the Kansas City Star would show the story was a lie.

Hoffman, who now operates a farm, said at Oxford, Ohio, he knew Truman but declined to comment on the Klan subject.

"I fell out with Pendergast (Kansas City) organization back in 1920, and when I fell out with the organization I fell out with Harry Truman," he said, "but it's not true I was defeated for office. I never was defeated in my life."

A reporter asked if he had any comment on an assertion he swore Truman into the Klan.

"I'm incommunicado," Hoffman replied.

Speaking here tonight Truman departed from his prepared address in which he said the Roosevelt administration had "brought advances to the farmers beyond anything they had experienced in their entire history" to take cognizance of published reports relating to the Klan issue.

"The isolationists are desperate to win this election," Truman declared. "The Hearst papers have even gone so far as to call me a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

OCT 27 1944

"That charge is a falsehood. I never have been a member of the Klan or attended any of its meetings in my life."

Truman made no further reference to the matter in the address in which he asserted the Republicans "fought every step of the way to block help" for agriculture.

Fighting to offset a Republican campaign for the Midwest farm vote, he attacked what he said were efforts to "drive a wedge between the farmer and the workingman." He added:

"I say to you that the welfare of the farmer and the workingman go hand in hand. Neither can be prosperous unless the other is also prosperous. The Democratic administration will continue to work to improve the living standards of both."

Truman referred at a Democratic rally, to a speech in Charleston, W. Va., in which he said Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican standard bearer, mentioned the Farm Credit Administration and other credit agencies as being "un-American" in an effort "to brand the President a Communist." The senator declared:

"We Democrats do not think it is un-American or Communistic to establish credit agencies to help the farmer. We are proud we did it.

"Under the farm program carried out by the Democratic administration, the farmer made advances beyond anything they had ever experienced in their entire history. Food production is now running 47 per cent above the average for the 1920s and 60 per cent above the average for World War 1."

Dewey In Error, Say Backers Of '1,000 Club'

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 26 (AP)—Finance directors of the Arkansas Democratic campaign, replying to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's reference to the "One Thousand Club" in a speech at Chicago last night, said their interpretation of "special privileges and prestige" differs from that of the Republican Presidential candidate.

In a formal statement, H. L. McAlister and Sam J. Watkins, the directors, assumed personal responsibility for distribution of letters inviting recipients to join the club and for stating that persons who contributed $1,000 would be granted "special privileges and prestige by party leaders."

Assails Interpretation

"We assume personal responsibility for the 'One Thousand Club letter,'" the statement said. "The interpretation Mr. Dewey placed on the sentence 'members of this organization will be granted special privileges and prestige by party leaders' does not mean to us what has been inferred by him.

"Arkansas citizens have received many benefits, direct and indirect from the present Democratic administration. We know what to expect from a Republican administration. We have tried both.

Refers To Sentence

"Our thinking on the matter of contributions to the party is definitely expressed in the sentence which was placed in practically all letters going out from this headquarters: 'The amount of your contributions should be measured by your ability to pay by your party spirit and by your desire to see the present Democratic Administration continued.'"

The text of the McAlister-Watkins letter follows:

"This is an invitation to you to join the One Thousand Club, one of the most important clubs among supporters of the Democratic Administration.

Originated At White House

"The idea of such a clug originated at a recent conference in the White House between the President, Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Edwin E. Pauley, treasurer of the committee. At this meeting the President commented:

"'I think it would be a good idea to have a list of 1,000 persons, banded together from all over the United States, to act as a liaison to see that facts relating to the public interest are presented factually to the President and the members of Congress.'

"Instrument For Good"

"The thought was activated at the founder's meeting held at the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, September 11, 1944. This organization will be a powerful instrument for good. It is to contain 1,000 of America's leading business men and women.

"Members of this organization undoubtedly will be granted special privileges and prestige by party leaders. These members will be called into conference from time to time to discuss matters of national importance and to assist in the formulation of Administration policies.

$1,000 Contribution Apiece

"To be eligible for membership in the One Thousand Club will require a contribution of $1,000 to the National Democratic campaign fund. Attention is directed to the fact that 1,000 men at $1,000 each makes a total of $1,000,000, one third of the amount necessary to finance the national campaign.

Dr. R. B. Robbins, of Camden, Ark., is organizing the One Thousand Club in this State. May we count on you as a member? Will you send your check to this office or to Dr. Robbins today?"

Signed,

H. L. McALISTER
SAM J. WATKINS."

CHARGE BY DEWEY STIRS DEBATE ON FDR '1,000 CLUB'

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Political leaders came out of their corners punching yesterday for and against the "One Thousand Club"—Republicans asking names of state directors and members and Democrats claiming it was a fund-raising organization carrying no special privileges.

Republican National Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., asked for the names, adding that if Democrats were "sincere about not promising (these) special favors, they had better return the money ($1,000 membership fee)."

In Washington, Representative Hebert (D-La) said he was one of three executive directors of the club and told reporters:

"It is my understanding that the President suggested it, and so what? What's wrong with that? Does Mr. Dewey deny he suggested ways of raising money for his campaign?"

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential candidate, touched off the debate Wednesday night when he mentioned the club in his speech at Chicago.

Dewey quoted from a letter which he said was written on stationery of the National Democratic headquarters at Little Rock, Ark., inviting recipients to join the club, contributing $1,000 to the National Democratic campaign fund.

The letter as read by Dewey said members would "undoubtedly be granted special privilege and prestige by party leaders."

Finance directors of the Arkansas Democratic campaign replied that their interpretation of "special privileges and prestige" differed from that of Dewey.

"Arkansas citizens," they said in a formal statement, "have received many benefits, direct and indirect from the present Democratic administration. We know what to expect from a Republican administration. We have tried both."

Hebert said the only privilege he knew of was that club members in time would have the opportunity to meet Mr. Roosevelt. He said the organization was conceived as "a thoroughly democratic vehicle" which could serve as an advisory council to the President.

Brownell, discussing Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan's denial that club contributors would be granted privileges, said at a press conference that Hannegan had not made "much of a denial."

"Hannegan says the treasurer of the Democratic National committee (Edwin W. Pauley) admits the 'One Thousand club' had been established and Hannegan says that those who invest $1,000 are making an investment in democracy," Brownell declared. "That's a new way to put it. Hannegan says the project has his approval. That's not a denial, that's a confession."

At the White House Press Secretary Stephen Early, asked to comment on Dewey's assertion, read Hannegan's statement to newspapermen and said:

"In the light of that I don't think any White House comment is called for or necessary."

Meanwhile, Pauley said no letters had been sent out from his office soliciting "One Thousand club" members and that he had no information whether state offices, other than Arkansas, had made any moves in that direction.

BRICKER CHARGES LAW 'FLOUTED' BY NEW DEAL REGIME

OCT 27 1944

ENID, Okla., Oct. 26—(AP) Gov. John W. Bricker declared tonight that the Democratic national administration had "flouted, circumvented, disregarded and twisted" laws to achieve its ends.

The Republican candidate for Vice President, after describing what he called a "grasp for power" beyond anything Congress ever intended, asked:

"Is it any wonder that the American people are worried lest New Deal wartime controls be extended into the postwar period?"

The Ohio Governor's address wound up a one-day, five-speech campaign in Oklahoma.

Speculating about when wartime controls might be released, Bricker remarked:

"Of this we may be sure—if the New Deal wants to extend the wartime controls, it will find some authority in the language of statutes to do so, and besides it has a New Deal attorney general and Supreme court to help it. These regulatory and control laws are administered by New Deal bureaus—and New Deal bureaus never quit of their own accord."

Says Laws "By-Passed"

The Ohioan also said President Roosevelt had found means of "bypassing or ignoring the laws by the simple expedient of declaring an emergency."

Declaring centralization of authority in the executive branch of the Federal government had progressed at its highest rate since advent of the New Deal, Bricker said, Roosevelt had created some 2,000 bureaus and comissions. President Wilson, he said, established 60, Harding 30, Coolidge 44 and Hoover 30.

He quoted a booklet of the Office of War Information as saying that the "discretionary control of the President over the nation's business and industry has expanded until he has a power of life and death."

"As a result of this New Deal grasping for power," he went on, "laws have been flouted, circumvented, disregarded and twisted to make it possible for the bureaucrats to do things Congress never intended they should do."

Hits "Industrial Strife"

At Shawnee the vice presidential nominee said the New Deal had "scourged" employers and led employes to believe that "industrial strife is essential to better working conditions and better living standards."

As a result, he continued, industrial progress has been impeded and by-products have been "class hatred, riots, strikes and strained relations among all concerned."

Bricker also spoke to Oklahomans from the rear platform of his special train at Pauls Valley and El Reno.

Tomorrow Bricker will go into Kansas for speeches at Wichita, Newton, Emporia and Kansas City. The Kansas City address will be broadcast over a nationwide network at 9:30 p.m., (CWT.)

THE FOREIGN OFFICE ALSO CONFIRMED THAT FIELD MARSHAL GEN.GERD VON RUNDSTEDT IS COMMANDER IN CHIEF IN THE WEST. HE HELD THAT POSITION AT THE TIME OF INVASION, BUT WAS DEPOSED BY HITLER, PRESUMABLY BECAUSE OF FAILURE TO THROW GEN.EISENHOWER'S ARMIES BACK INTO THE SEA.

HE REAPPEARED AT THE WESTERN FRONT NEARLY A MONTH AGO AND RECENTLY ATTENDED THE FUNERAL OF HIS FORMER WESTERN FRONT FIELD COMMANDER, MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL, AN OFFICER WITH WHOM HE FREQUENTLY WAS SAID TO HAVE QUARRELED.

APPOINTMENT OF GUDERIAN AS COMMANDER OF GERMAN DIVISIONS FIGHTING FROM THE ARCTIC TO THE BALKANS, ESTIMATED AT FROM 140 TO 150, WAS BELIEVED TO BE THE FIRST TIME THE ASSIGNMENT HAS BEEN INTRUSTED TO A SINGLE COMMANDER. USUALLY THE COMMAND HAS BEEN SPLIT AMONG THREE COMMANDERS FOR THE NORTH, SOUTH AND CENTER, ALTHOUGH ON OCCASIONS, HITLER HAS ASSUMED PERSONAL COMMAND.

COL.GEN.GEORG LINDEMANN LAST WAS REPORTED COMMANDER IN THE BALTIC STATES, DIRECTING THE TRAPPED GERMAN 16TH AND 18TH ARMIES. MARSHAL ERNST BUSCH LAST WAS REPORTED COMMANDER IN NORTH POLAND, BUT HE WAS BELIEVED DEPOSED IN THE JULY PURGE. MARSHAL WALTHER VON MODEL WAS THE LAST REPORTED COMMANDER IN SOUTH AND CENTRAL POLAND, BUT HE SINCE WAS MADE COMMANDER ON THE WESTERN FRONT AND NOW HAS BEEN REPLACED THERE BY VON RUNDSTEDT. COL.GEN.FREIDRICK SCHOENER WAS LAST NAMED AS COMMANDER IN HUNGARY AND MARSHAL BARON MAXIMILIAN VON WEICHS WAS LAST MENTIONED AS COMMANDER IN THE LOWER BALKANS. COL.GEN.LOTHAR RENDULIC MAY STILL COMMAND THE SIX TO NINE GERMAN DIVISIONS RETREATING FROM NORTHERN FINLAND AND THROUGH NORTHERN NORWAY, BUT SOME TENUOUS REPORTS ALSO HAVE REPORTED HIM DEPOSED.

GUDERIAN DIRECTED MOTORIZED UNITS IN THE NAZI COUP WHICH ABSORBED AUSTRIA IN 1938. HE CONDUCTED MANY BATTLES ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT IN 1941-1942. HE WAS REPORTED RELIEVED AFTER FREQUENT MOSCOW REPORTS TOLD OF CRUSHING DEFEATS ADMINISTERED HIS FORCES. HE TURNED UP AGAIN AS INSPECTOR GENERAL OF GERMAN TANK FORCES IN FEBRUARY OF LAST YEAR AND WAS APPOINTED CHIEF OF THE GENERAL STAFF IN JULY AFTER THE REPORTED ASSASSINATION ATTEMPT ON HITLER.

A REFUGEE TOWN, ITALY, OCT.24-(AP)-THE TRUCKS ARE WAITING NOW TO TAKE ANOTHER FEW HUNDRED ITALIAN REFUGEES SOUTH. THE REFUGEES COME SLOWLY, OR NOT AT ALL. THEY DON'T WANT TO GO SOUTH. THEY FEAR EVERY MILE THAT TAKES THEM FARTHER AWAY FROM THEIR HOMES AND THE VILLAGE BELL THEIR FAMILIES HAVE KNOWN FOR GENERATIONS.

THOSE RELUCTANT ONES WHO ESCAPE THE SEARCH OF AMERICAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT REFUGEE OFFICERS AND THE CARIBINERI POSE A PROBLEM FOR LT.DON TESAURO, THE AMG OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THIS TOWN. HE IS FROM CHICAGO.

BUT THESE ARE BUT ONE OF TESAURO'S MANY PROBLEMS. HE DECIDES WHETHER THE MEN CAN GO INTO THE FIELDS NEAR THE GUNS AND SLAUGHTER THE WOUNDED STEERS. HE DECIDES WHETHER A FAMILY CONSTITUTES MOTHERS AND CHILDREN OR THE WHOLE INVOLVED PATTERN OF IN-LAWS AND RELATIVES THE ITALIANS CONSIDER A FAMILY; HE LISTENS TO THEIR INCHOHERENT RAMBLINGS AND TELLS THEM THIS AND THAT ABOUT SICKNESS AND SHELTER AND GOING SOUTH.

THE ITALIANS TELL TESAURO HE IS AMERICANO AND MOST AMERICANOS ARE ITALIANS AND AMERICA IS GREAT AND GOOD. BUT TESAURO IS FROM CHICAGO AND HE KNOWS ALL THE ANSWERS. HE HANDLES THEM WITH ALL THE WISDOM HE HAS ACCUMULATED IN HANDLING TOWNS LIKE THIS SINCE THE ALLIES LANDED IN SICILY.

TESAURO GOES INTO THE TOWNS WITH THE LEADING TROOPS, GRABS THE SITUATION BEFORE IT SINKS INTO CHAOS, FINDS MEN TO RUN THE VILLAGE, WAYS TO GET THE LIGHTS GOING, THE WATER RUNNING AND THE SICK AND THE WOUNDED CARED FOR.

THE CHICAGO OFFICER TOOK TIME OUT A FEW MONTHS AGO TO VISIT HIS FAMILY'S PEOPLE NEAR SALERNO FOR THE FIRST TIME. THEY HAILED HIM AS A SAVIOR AND BROUGHT FORTH VAGUELY CONNECTED RELATIVES FROM MILES AROUND. HE COULD BRING THEM FOOD, SOAP, CLOTHING.

TESAURO WAS THEIR COUSIN FROM AMERICA AND HE WORKED FOR AMG. THEIR TROUBLES WERE OVER, THEY WERE SURE. HE FLED AFTER FOUR DAYS. TESAURO KNOWS ALL THE ANSWERS BUT HE HAS LEARNED A LOT MORE IN ITALY THAN HE EVER DID IN CHICAGO.
THIS, HE SAYS, IS MORE OF A PROBLEM TOWN THAN MOST. IT IS STILL WITHIN SHELLING RANGE. DURING THE FIRST FEW DAYS, 200 ITALIANS WERE TREATED IN THE HOSPITAL HE SET UP IN A FORMER TUBERCULOSIS CENTER. RECENTLY NO SHELLS HAVE FALLEN.
REFUGEES HAVE SWELLED THE POPULATION OF THIS ADRIATIC TOWN TO 15,000 FROM 5 000. THESE BEWILDERED CIVILIANS AND OTHERS POURING IN MUST GO SOUTH TO BE SETTLED THERE UNTIL THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT CAN RETURN THEM TO THEIR HOMES AFTER THE WAR FRONT MOVES ON.

THE AMERICANS ON THE NORTH COAST HELD POSITIONS THAT VIRTUALLY AMBUSHED THE JAPANESE FALLING BACK STEADILY FROM TACLOBAN, THE PROVISIONAL CAPITAL OF THE PHILIPPINES.
SEIZURE OF THE SOUTHERN COAST OF SAMAR, REPORTED EARLIER THIS WEEK FROM MELBOURNE AND CONFIRMED THURSDAY BY MACARTHUR, GAVE DOMINATION OF THE EASTERN SHORE OF SAN JUANICO STRAIT. AMERICAN SURFACE CRAFT NOW CONTROL THE STRAIT FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MORE THAN TWO YEARS, SAID AP WAR CORRESPONDENT SPENCER DAVIS, WHO IS WITH AMERICAN PT UNITS.
IN THE PALO SECTOR, SOUTH OF TACLOBAN, THE 24TH INFANTRY DIVISION OVERRAN THE LAST OF THE ENEMY'S HILL POSITIONS AND MOVED WESTWARD INTO THE LEYTE VALLEY, WHERE THE TERRAIN IS IDEAL FOR ARMORED WARFARE. CONTROL OF THE COAST WAS EXTENDED FOUR MILES SOUTH WITH THE CAPTURE OF TANAUAN, TERMINUS OF A ROAD LEADING INLAND TO DAGAMI.
FORCES IN THE EXTREME SOUTHERN SECTOR, BELOW PALO, ADVANCED TOWARD DAGAMI AFTER CAPTURING BURAUEN AND REPELLING SEVERAL COUNTER-ATTACKS. THESE UNITS, FROM THE SEVENTH INFANTRY DIVISION, BYPASSED BURI AIRFIELD, REPORTED AP WAR CORRESPONDENT AL DOPKING. THE JAPANESE WERE HOLDING OUT THERE IN A STOUT PILLBOX.
BURI IS NEARLY HALF WAY TO DAGAMI, ON THE VALLEY ROAD RUNNING NORTHWARD FROM BURAUEN.
WITH AMERICAN FORCES CONTROLLING THE EASTERN COAST OF LEYTE FROM DULAG TO THE NORTHERN TIP, AND CLOSING THE SOUTHERN END OF LEYTE VALLEY, THE ONLY ESCAPE FOR THE RETREATING JAPANESE APPARENTLY WAS INTO THE MOUNTAINOUS INTERIOR. THERE THEY WOULD BE CUT OFF FROM ALL POSSIBILITY OF SUPPLY OR REINFORCEMENT.

IN THE BROADCAST COMMUNIQUE MAC ARTHUR SAID FAST BOMBERS, PATROL PLANES AND FIGHTERS STRUCK AMBON.

SAN FRANCISCO, OCT. [illegible]-(AP)-TOKYO RADIO BOOSTED ITS CLAIMS OF AMERICAN FLEET DAMAGE OFF THEPHILIPPINES TO 24 WARSHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED IN A BROADCAST HEARD TONIGHT BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION.

THE JAPANESE-LANGUAGE BROADCAST, BEAMED OVERSEAS, SAID THE "UNOFFICIAL" TOTAL WAS 14 WARSHIPS SUNK AND 20 DAMAGED. IT CLAIMED TWO CARRIERS AND A CRUISER HAD BEEN SUNK AND A BATTLESHIP AND FOUR MORE CRUISERS "HEAVILY DAMAGED" IN ADDITION TO THE 16 VESSELS REPORTED IN AN IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE YESTERDAY.

"IT HAS BEEN CONFIRMED," THE PROPAGANDA BROADCAST CLAIMED, "THAT OUR FORCES HAVE DEFEATED THE ENEMY."

SAN FRANCISCO, OCT.26-(AP)-ASAHEL (ACE) BUSH'S LUCK RAN OUT YESTERDAY. THE 31-YEAR-OLD ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT WAS KILLED BY A JAPANESE BOMB AT TACLOBAN, LIBERATED CAPITAL OF LEYTE ISLAND IN THE PHILIPPINES.

HIS DEATH WAS REPORTED BY C. YATES MCDANIEL, CHIEF OF THE AP STAFF COVERING THE PHILIPPINE INVASION. MCDANIEL SAID BUSH HAD JUST COVERED A PHASE OF THE EPOCHAL NAVAL BATTLE OFF LEYTE WHEN JAPANESE PLANES RAIDED TACLOBAN. BUSH WAS KILLED OUTRIGHT.

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR SENT THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE TO KENT COOPER, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS:

"I HAVE LEARNED WITH DEEP REGRET OF THE DEATH BY ENEMY ACTION OF ASAHEL BUSH. BUSH WAS A CREDIT TO THE PROFESSION HE SO ABLY REPRESENTED. HE WAS ADMIRED BY ALL. PLEASE CONVEY MY SINCERE SYMPATHY TO HIS LOVED ONES."

BUSH WAS THE 10TH CIVILIAN NEWSMAN KILLED IN THE PACIFIC THEATERS BUT THE FIRST ASSOCIATED PRESS MAN TO DIE IN THE LINE OF DUTY IN THAT AREA.

HIS WIDOW, THE FORMER FAE CORNISH DESPAIN, AND A DAUGHTER, MARGARET ANN, 8, SURVIVE.

BUSH WAS KILLED EXACTLY ONE YEAR AFTER HE LEFT SAN FRANCISCO FOR AUSTRALIA.

HE JOINED THE AP AT SALT LAKE CITY JULY 2, 1939, AND WAS TRANSFERRED TO THE SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU IN APRIL, 1941.

HIS TOUR OF DUTY IN AUSTRALIA INCLUDED COVERING HEADQUARTERS OF GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR. WHEN MACARTHUR MOVED TO NEW GUINEA, ACE WENT ALONG.

DURING THE HOLLANDIA INVASION IN NEW GUINEA ACE SAT DOWN TO WRITE HIS STORY IN AN ABANDONED JAPANESE AMMUNITION DUMP. MINUTES AFTER HE FINISHED HIS STORY HE LEFT. A JAP PLANE CAME OVER AND DROPPED ONE BOMB. IT HIT THE DUMP.

WASHINGTON, OCT.26-(AP)-BEST AVAILABLE INFORMATION INDICATED TODAY THAT THE JAPANESE FLEET NUMBERED POSSIBLY 200 WARSHIPS OF ALL TYPES, EXCLUDING SUBMARINES, BEFORE IT RAN INTO DISASTER IN THIS WEEK'S BATTLE OF THE PHILIPPINES.

INCOMPLETE INFORMATION ON NIPPONESE LOSSES IN THAT ENGAGEMENT REDUCES THE PROBABLE ENEMY BATTLE FLEET TO ABOUT 174 VESSELS. OF THE 26 STRICKEN FROM THE ENEMY'S EFFECTIVE STRENGTH IN THE PHILIPPINES FIGHTING, ONE BATTLESHIP, TWO CARRIERS AND FIVE CRUISERS ARE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN SUNK, TWO BATTLESHIPS AND A CARRIER ARE LISTED AS PROBABLY SUNK AND SEVEN BATTLESHIPS, FOUR CRUISERS AND AT LEAST FOUR DESTROYERS HAVE BEEN DAMAGED.

EVEN BEFORE THAT BATTLE, HOWEVER, REPORTED SINKINGS AND PROBABLE SINKINGS EXCEEDED BY 49 THE NUMBER OF SHIPS IN JAPAN'S PRE-WAR FLEET AND FLEET-IN-BUILDING, THUS INDICATING A LARGE CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM ON WHICH NO FIGURES ARE AVAILABLE.

30.24— 19925 OCT

THE FOLLOWING TABLE GIVES THE PROBABLE STRENGTH OF THE ENEMY FLEET BEFORE THE WAR, OFFICIALLY REPORTED SINKINGS AND PROBABLE SINKINGS AND BEST AVAILABLE ESTIMATES OF THE NUMBER AT THE START OF THE PHILIPPINES ENGAGEMENT:

TYPE OF SHIP	PREWAR BUILT	PREWAR BUILDING	SINKINGS	PROBABLE SINKINGS	PRE-PHILIPPINE FLEET
BATTLESHIPS	10	8	3	0	10-12
CARRIERS	8	2	7	2	10-12
CRUISERS	46	10	57	7	30-35
DESTROYERS AND DESTROYER ESCORTS	125	11	173	20	120-140
TOTALS	189	31	240	29	170-199

OCT 271944

THESE FIGURES DO NOT TAKE INTO ACCOUNT THE JAPANESE SUBMARINE FLEET WHICH HAS SUFFERED AT LEAST 18 LOSSES FROM ITS ESTIMATED PRE-WAR STRENGTH OF 78, NOR DO THEY INCLUDE CONSTRUCTION OF NEW VESSELS OR A NUMBER OF MERCHANT CRAFT CONVERTED FOR USE AS AIRCRAFT CARRIERS.

THEY ALSO DO NOT CONSIDER REPORTS OF DAMAGE TO ENEMY SHIPS, SUCH REPORTS NUMBER 536, PRESUMABLY INDICATING IN MANY INSTANCES THAT AN INDIVIDUAL SHIP HAS BEEN DAMAGED ON MORE THAN ONE OCCASION.

WASHINGTON,OCT.26-(AP)-THE AMERICAN LANDING IN THE PHILIPPINES, WAR SECRETARY STIMSON SAID TODAY, WAS A "PSYCHOLOGICAL AND MILITARY DISASTER OF THE FIRST ORDER FOR JAPAN, AWAKENING HER PEOPLE TO THE BLUNDERS AND FALLIBILITY OF THE JAPANESE ADMIRALS AND GENERALS."

THE LANDINGS ON LEYTE WERE MADE WITH "VERY LIGHT CASUALTIES," WHILE JAPANESE LOSSES HAVE BEEN "MANY TIMES LARGER THAN OUR OWN," STIMSON TOLD HIS NEWS CONFERENCE.

HE CAUTIONED, HOWEVER, THAT ENEMY RESISTANCE WILL GROW STRONGER, SAYING THE JAPANESE HAD NEARLY A QUARTER OF A MILLION TROOPS IN THE ISLANDS AND THAT THEY MAY MAKE NEW ATTEMPTS TO REINFORCE THEM.

STIMSON SAID THE JAPANESE MADE A MAJOR EFFORT TO STRIKE BACK AT "THE FOV

STIMSON SAID THE JAPANESE MADE A MAJOR EFFORT TO STRIKE BACK AT "THE FORCES WHICH THEY HAVE SEEN BEARING DOWN ON THEM ACROSS THE PACIFIC" AND "RAN INTO A CRUSHING DEFEAT."

SAYING HE WAS LEAVING DETAILS TO THE NAVY DEPARTMENT, HE ADDED: "IT IS SUFFICIENT TO SAY THAT OUR NAVAL FORCES HAVE ABLY TAKEN CARE OF THE JAPANESE FLEET IN THE PAST WHENEVER ELEMENTS HAVE VENTURED FORTH AND THEY ARE DOING IT NOW. THE NAVY HAS ASKED NO MORE THAN A CHANCE TO STRIKE AT THE ENEMY."

(ADVANCE) (WX) NEW YORK, OCT.27-(AP)-THE "JAPANESE STRATEGIC (WAR) PLAN HAS BEEN "BLASTED INTO RUIN" BEFORE THE GREAT AND GROWING MIGHT OF THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH NAVIES, LORD HALIFAX, BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES DECLARED TONIGHT.

SPEAKING BEFORE THE NAVY LEAGUE OF THE UNITED STATES IN CELEBRATION OF AMERICAN NAVY DAY COMMEMORATING THE169TH BIRTHDAY OF THE UNITED STATES NAVY, THE BRITISH DIPLOMAT, SPEAKING FURTHER OF THE JAPANESE, SAID, "THE JAPANESE HAD NOT FORESEEN THE SPEED WITH WHICH THE LOSSES AT PEARL HARBOR WOULD BE MADE GOOD, OR THE SKILL AND COURAGE WITH WHICH THE NAVY OF THE UNITED STATES WOULD FIGHT BACK."

"TODAY," HECONTINUED, "THEIR TEMPORARY NAVAL ADVANTAGE, WHICH THEY FAILED TO USE DECISIVELY WHEN THEY HAD IT, HAS DISAPPEARED. EVEN EQUALITY IS GONE. THE SMASHING BLOWS OF THE LAST FEW WEEKS, AND FINALLY YOUR RETURN TO THE PHILIPPINES, ARE A BITTER FORETASTE OF THE FUTURE."

OCT 27 1944

LORD HALIFAX ALSO PAID HOMAGE TO THE BRITISH NAVAL SERVICE, THE SPEECH BEING MADE IN THE WALDORF ASTORIA HOTEL.

"NOR IS THAT ALL," HE SAID, FURTHER REFERRING TO ANGLO-AMERICAN NAVAL POWER. "A STRONG AND WELL BALANCED BRITISH FLEET IS IN THE INDIAN OCEAN; AND EAST OR WEST, WHICHEVER WAY THE JAPANESE LOOK, THEY CAN FIND NO PRESENT COMFORT OR FUTURE HOPE."

THE AMBASSADOR, APPEARING BEFORE THE NAVY LEAGUE WITH GENERAL MARSHALL, ARMY CHIEF OF STAFF, AND ADMIRAL KING, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE FLEET AND CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS, SAID THAT BETWEEN MEN WHO SAIL THE HIGH SEAS "THERE HAS ALWAYS EXISTED A REAL AND HONORABLE BROTHERHOOD" AND THAT "BETWEEN THE NAVIES OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH THIS HAS BEEN FORTIFIED BY NUMBERLESS DEEDS OF VALOR AND SACRIFICE AGAINST A COMMON FOE."

TURNING AGAIN TO THE PACIFIC, LORD HALIFAX STATED THAT "DURING THE PAST THREE YEARS, MY PEOPLE HAVE WATCHED WITH GRATEFUL AND GROWING ADMIRATION THE SWIFT CREATION OF YOUR IMMENSE NAVAL STRENGTH AND ITS TRULY REMARKABLE ACHIEVEMENTS IN THE PACIFIC. X X X ONE CAN GUESS WITH WHAT FEELINGS THE JAPANESE STAFF MUST FOR MONTHS PAST HAVE WATCHED THE MIGHT OF AMERICA MOVING STEADILY TOWARDS THE HOME WATERS OF JAPAN ACROSS THE WIDE SPACES OF THE PACIFIC."

OCT 27 1944

SPEAKING OF BRITISH SEAPOWER, THE AMBASSADOR SAID "THE ROYAL NAVY HAS ALWAYS HAD A SPECIAL PLACE IN THE AFFECTIONS OF THE BRITISH PEOPLE. TIME AND AGAIN IN HISTORY, IT HAS BEEN OUR SHIELD AGAINST WAR AND HAS KEPT THE ENEMY FROM OUR SHORES; AND SO LONG AS IT SECURELY SAILED THE SEAS, THE WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR WAS BOUND TO BE DANGEROUS, IF NOT DISASTROUS.

"THEREFORE WE MAY STILL LOOK TO THE FLEETS TO DO THEIR PART IN KEEPING THE PEACE WE MEAN TO MAKE. MAY THE COMRADESHIP BETWEEN YOUR NAVY AND OURS ENDURE, FOR NO SELFISH PURPOSES, BUT FOR THE COMMON GOOD. THUS MAY THEY, IN THE WORDS OF THE PRAYER OFFERED EACH DAY IN HIS MAJESTY'S SHIPS, ALWAYS GIVE 'SECURITY TO SUCH AS PASS ON THE SEAS UPON THEIR LAWFUL OCCASIONS' AND BE THE GUARANTEE OF LASTING PEACE."

14,045 LEYTE JAPS KILLED OR WOUNDED

Enemy's Bataan Division Completely Defeated, MacArthur Says

McDaniel

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 28 (AP)—Mud-caked Americans, aided by guerrillas, have seized control of all Samar Island, next to Luzon, captured its capital and killed or wounded 14,045 of Japan's 16th Division — responsible for the "Death March of Bataan"—on fast-falling Leyte.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in a communique today, reported these successes:

The enemy 16th has been "completely defeated" on Leyte.

Nine more in a swiftly mounting list of Leyte towns have been liberated. The total to date is more than 40.

Control of nearly 70 miles of Leyte's coastline has passed into American hands—from captured Barugo in the north on Carigara Bay on around to Abuyog on the east coast, 14 miles below Dulag.

Valley Bottled Up

The Leyte Valley has been bottled up on the north by 24th Division spearheads entering it through Santa Fe and Pastrana, west and northwest of Palo. At Pastrana they are less than ten miles from a junction with a force of Seventh and 96th Division elements moving within two miles of Dagami.

Japan's 16th Division casualties are estimated to total half of Leyte's defenders. These were inflicted in the first week of fighting.

The 16th Division, which General MacArthur said he was particularly anxious to meet, is in retreat from the east coast of Leyte and is completely disorganized.

A field dispatch said the Japanese systematically were blowing up bridges while making an organized withdrawal at the mouth of Leyte Valley.

518 Americans Killed

American casualties were 518 killed, 139 missing and 1,503 wounded.

General MacArthur's communique, announcing his full revenge against the 16th Division troops of Lieut. Gen. Shiro Mackino on Leyte, gave this picture of the Samar situation:

"With the aid of organized local guerrillas, practically the entire island of Samar is now under our domination and civil government will shortly be organized for the entire province."

Elements of the American First Cavalry smashed forward ten miles on the northern end of Leyte and captured their objectives, Balud and Barugo, on Carigara Bay. Other elements of the same organizatio[n] aptured Samar's capital, Cath[e]n, and advanced nine mil[e]s [be]yond [t]o the northward. San[ta] [Ba]rd largest of the Phi[lip]s and closest to Lu[zo]n Manila is situated.

The 24th division broke the stubborn Japanese defenses north of Palo, fought on to the Leyte valley and captured the towns of Santa Fe and Pastrana.

The 7th and 96th divisions drove to within two miles of Dagami, important supply concentration center and road junction.

"The enemy in all areas is exhibiting signs of complete disorganization and disintegration," the communique said.

General MacArthur said the 14,045 Japanese killed and wounded represented almost one-half of the enemy's forces on Leyte. Their losses were about seven to one against those of the Yanks.

Planes Brought Up

General MacArthur said air force elements have been brought forward and are operating from Leyte bases. Far East air forces have relieved the naval air carrier force that operated from the coast.

American PT boats have been thrown into the coastal fight and last night sank ten enemy barges loaded with troops and two coastal freighters, on the west coast of Leyte.

The destruction of bridges last night at the mouth of Leyte Valley was spotted by airmen.

Yanks Seize Control of Samar Island, 14,045 Leyte Japs Killed or Wounded; British Drive to Trap Foe in Holland

OCT 28 1944

30. 24 — 19929

Maj. Gen. Fred Irving, 24th Division commander, said his advance had been slowed because a half dozen bridges, one a long trestle, had been dynamited by the Japanese.

Advance Halted

Infantrymen got across on makeshift spans but their advance was halted while engineers constructed sturdier trestles.

Infiltrating Japanese crept through American lines and harassed the rear. One regimental command underwent a fairly stiff attack at dawn today.

The Japanese suffered severe air losses as they attempted intermittent harassing raids on American invasion ships in San Pedro bay and Leyte gulf. Seventy-six Japanese planes were shot down by ship and land ack-ack fire and by carrier and patrol planes.

In the center of the front the Americans were driving westward from Tanauan, eight and one-half miles from Dagami.

In addition to the towns liberated on the south front the Yanks also freed six in the central and north sectors.

Southwest Pacific Allied planes continued to hammer widespread targets in the southern Philippines, Celebes, the Moluccas, New Guinea, the Solomons and Kendari.

Jolo, main city of the Sulu archipelago, southernmost of the Philippines, was bombed for the second time since the start of the war.

fourth Army Corps joined forces. The juncture was made south of American-held Tanauan, some ten miles below Tacloban.

Closing Yank Trap.

Simultaneously, the southern end of the Leyte Valley trap was being closed tighter by tank-led doughboys who captured two key towns in a double-pronged drive that overran several communities off the main highways.

Buri, previously bypassed because of its strong defenses, was captured after severe fighting by Seventh Division forces punching up the valley's north-south highway. They previously took the Buri airfield and advanced several miles along the highway from the captured road junction of Burauen. Their main immediate goal evidently is Dagami, a communications town near the center of the roadway.

The Ninety-sixth Division, pushing inland from the coast toward Dagami, captured Tabontabon, a river town eastward. The town is 3½ miles west of Catmon Hill, where strong Japanese entrenchments have been encircled.

Japs Are Resisting.

The Twenty-fourth Division, attempting to close the northern end of the Leyte trap, encountered increasing Japanese opposition in its advance westward from Dagami.

Anti-aircraft fire shot down thirty-nine of the raiders, fighters got fourteen and carrier planes downed twenty-three—a total of seventy-six.

Among the additional communities freed by the Americans were Anibung, Tigbao, Canmangui, Hindang, Bolongtohan, Kalvasag, Calampanon, Malabka, San Gabriel, Kanmonhag, Telegrafo, San Joaquin and Diit.

Many of these communities lie northward of the east-west highway from Dulg to Burauen which the Yanks followed to reach Leyte Valley.

Roaming bombers continued to attack major targets throughout the southwest Pacific area. The assaults included a patrol plane raid on Jolo in the Sulu Archipelago, the second of the war on that objective.

Widen Leyte Front to 40 Miles

Two American Forces Join 10 Miles Below Capital—15 More Communities Freed.

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Fast-moving American doughboys have carved out a solid forty-mile-long invasion front on Leyte Island and have surged deeper inland to free an additional fifteen communities, a communique reported today.

The general advance continued, despite increased Japanese resistance west of Palo, in the north-central sector, and a counter-attack which was repulsed on Samar Island. American guns and planes bagged seventy-six Japanese aircraft during intermittent harassing raids on the invasion armada.

The Americans secured control of Leyte's eastern coast, from the northern tip of Dulag, when the Tenth and Twenty-planes downed twenty-three—a Palo.

Farther north, the American hold was tight on San Juanico Strait, after elements of the First Cavalry Division repulsed a small enemy counter-attack at Lapaz, on Samar Island.

Japanese aerial assaults against shipping in the San Pedro Bay and the beachhead areas, said the communique, were "again limited to intermittent harassing raids causing light damage and casualties."

PT Officer Leads Guerrillas On Leyte

OCT 28 1944

By Murlin Spencer

Leyte, Oct. 27 (AP)—Nearly two and a half years ago Iliff D. Richardson, former PT-boat officer, missed the last plane to Austrlia by three days. Since then he has annoyed the Japanese. He helped the guerrillas kill or wound 800 of them.

After joining the guerrillas, the former naval ensign in Lieut. Com. John Bulkeley's PT squadron, became a major and chief of staff on Leyte.

For months he and the guerrillas remained on the defensive, sniping at Japanese patrols, harassing them and finally forcing them to retire to their garrisons for safety.

Built Radio Stations

But fighting Japanese with force wasn't all that Richardson did. He assisted in secretly building radio stations on many islands in the Philippines. These same stations were responsible for the sinking of many Japanese ships.

Richardson, whose home is in Maywood, Cal., said it was amazing to him that his hand-made radio stations would work.

"We made almost everything, even winding our own transformers," he said, but they reached clear to Australia.

He said his greatest thrill was when American planes came over in force the first time.

Cheered Selves Hoarse

"We cheered ourselves hoarse. The Filipinos pointed up to the sky and asked: 'Americans?' and I nodded, 'Yes.' I was proud that day.

"I didn't have to be told that the Americans had arrived. I didn't have advance notice, but I knew when I heard the bombardment.

"A month before 80 American planes were over here and I knew they were coming back. Now everything is different. Before we were on the defensive. Hiding, always hiding. Now we can take the offensive."

Richardson was aboard the PT-boat of Lieut. Com. Robert Kelly, when Kelly and Bulkley took Gen. MacArthur and his staff out of the Philippines.

Boat Capsized

"Our boat was sunk later," he said, "but not until after we had nailed a Jap cruiser. Kelly went one way and I went the other. I arrived at Mindanao three days too late to catch the last Fortress to Australia. Then 12 of us tried to sail a 29-foot boat to Australia, but she capsized and that ended that."

Richardson said: "We didn't know anything about guerrilla fighting. We didn't think it was honorable until a little later."

Another American with Richardson was Joseph John, of Philadelphia, a former Air Corps mechanic and now a second lieutenant. He is safe.

Made Chief Of Staff

Richardson went on:

"In April, 1943, I came up to Leyte and was made chief of staff to Col. Ruperto Kangleon, who commanded the guerrillas in the Ninth district.

"After a time getting organized we started out after the Japs. When they were in the barrios (villages) we got out. When they got out we got back in. We made our own bullets and sniped at them continuously. When they went on troop patrols we ambushed them.

"The Japs never brought in anything. They foraged for food, and it was a strange sight to see a soldier in the great Japanese army harvesting rice. Finally we became strong. And where the Japs first sent out one-man patrols, they had to send out 200-men patrols.

Japs Controlled Sea

"But most of the time they stayed back in their garrison at Tacloban where there were 3,000 troops."

"The Jap controlled the sea," Richardson said, "but he couldn't control the islands. I went to one island in a little launch we had. The last report I had was that there were no Japs there. As we neared the beach a Jap cargo ship suddenly let down on us.

"I headed the boat ashore and we clambered out. The Japs came and strafed us, but we made it. Lieut. Col. Ed Dyess was along at that time. There was a damned good man."

(Richardson referred to Lieut. Col. William E. Dyess, of Albany, Texas, who escaped from the Philippines after being captured at Bataan and returned to the United States. Dyess was killed last December in a fighter plane crash at Burbank, Cal.

His Letters Continued.

Los Angeles, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Ensign Richardson's mother, Mrs. Velma W. Richardson, said today that she had received word from her son three times in the last eleven months. Letters in his handwriting were forwarded by Military Intelligence in November, December and August, but "they gave no idea of what he was doing or what island he was on," she declared, and added: "I only knew he was somewhere in the Philippines."

A graduate of Compton College at Compton, Cal., he was at Riga, Latvia, on a world tour when the war broke out. He made his way to Egypt and thence home. He was graduated as an ensign at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station and went to the Philippines in January, 1941, his mother said.

U. S. Fighter Pilots Land Planes on Leyte

AT A LEYTE AIR BASE, Philippines, Oct. 27—(AP) A group of topnotch fighter pilots flew here today, the first land-based American air combat crew in the Philippines since the re-invasion.

A few hours after arriving, the fighters emphasized their threat to dwindling enemy air power in the Philippines by shooting down several raiding planes.

The arrival of the speedy land-based fighters gave a tremendous morale boost to troops which have been harassed by Nipponese sneak bombers. Happy grins flashed on faces everywhere.

Soldiers lined roads and beaches to cheer.

RACE TO TRAP NAZI ARMY IN LOWLANDS

OCT 28 1944

Possibly 70,000 Of Foe Are Endangered; City's Populace Joyful

London, Oct. 27 (AP)—British troops driving to trap the German 15th Army in the watery lowlands of southwestern Holland have captured Tilburg, German keystone bastion on the west flank of the —Allied Dutch salient, a field dispatch reported tonight.

Except for a few snipers, this rail-and-road center of 81,000 population was in British hands, Associated Press Correspondent Roger D. Greene reported. Cheering throngs greeted the Tommies as they marched through the streets and tonight the city was staging a wild celebration of its liberation.

The German garrison had pulled out shortly before noon under the terrific pressure of the great British offensive.

Breakthrough To North

Meanwhile, other British and Canadian forces—joined tonight, the Germans said, by American troops—plunged across the Dutch countryside after the harried Germans following the British breakthrough north of Tilburg.

Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's armor cut the German escape route at Loon op Zand, five miles north of Tilburg and six miles south of the Maas, earlier in the day.

A field dispatch from William F. Boni, Associated Press correspondent with the Canadian First Army, reported fresh gains were scored on all sectors of the Canadian front in Holland, extending from the British left flank to the North Sea.

British, Canadians Link

Above Antwerp, British and Canadian armor and infantry have linked up in force, Boni's dispatch said. The British have thrust within two miles of Roosendaal from the southwest and Canadian advance armored elements are within 1,000 yards of Bergen op Zoom.

British and Canadian troops on Beveland Island now have joined up in one holding operation which was reinforced during the day. Canadian infantry are ranged in force along the entire length of the north-south canal which bisects the island.

The German pocket in the Schelde estuary continued to dwindle. British troops, pushing beyond Fort Frederick Hendrik along the coast, and other elements which by-passed Groede virtually encircled Nieuwvliet. Groede itself was vacated by the Germans who left only hundreds of wounded there.

As long columns of British tanks pounded toward the two bridges over the Maas, across which Field Marshal Walther von Model must attempt to withdraw his mauled forces, a front dispatch declared the Nazis faced the "grave prospect" of a sequel to the Falaise Gap disaster in France, where the German Seventh Army virtually was annihilated.

Possibly 70,000 Cut Off

German troops in the so-called Breda pocket, who are immediately threatened by the breakthrough of Lieutenant General Sir Miles C. Dempsey's forces, together with those already virtually isolated farther west on the Schelde estuary approaches to Antwerp, have been estimated to number as high as 70,000.

The plight of perhaps 11,000 Nazi troops on South Beveland and Walcheren islands on the north

Simultaneously British infantry, fighting under gray skies, battered deep into the southeast outskirts of Tilburg amid indications that the Germans either were pulling out or already had fled the doomed city, leaving only a light rear-guard.

Swinging up from the south, an armored column cut the main highway running westward from Tilburg to Breda at a point about half way between two cities, leaving the Germans in Tilburg only a secondary road to the northwest over which to attempt an escape. This British force was but six miles from Breda and 10 miles from the Maas.

"Things have gone badly for the Boche today and the whole front is moving," a British staff officer told Roger Greene of the Associated Press. "Our armor has done particularly well. The enemy's attempt to stabilize the front has failed."

Allied fliers reported seeing many vehicles moving north from Breda, indicating the Germans might be evacuating that city of 48,000 ahead of the plunging British armor. The German radio reported that prisoners from the 104th American infantry division had been captured near Roosendaal, west of Breda, the first word that American troops were fighting in western Holland.

side of the estuary was multiplied by a new British landing on Beveland which quickly won a seven-square-mile bridgehead on the south shore of the island and caught from the rear German forces trying to stem a Canadian drive which had penetrated ten miles into the island from the east

Amphibious Tanks Used

The German radio reported that amphibious tanks were among the British assault fleet which made the two-and-a-half-mile crossing of the Schelde Thursday under cover of a thick fog. Although the Tommies had to fight their way up a 20-foot dike in the face of enemy fire, their losses were declared to have been light.

"This landing and the Canadian drive along the peninsula (from the east) have greatly speeded up the whole Canadian army operation to destroy German forces on the Schelde and open Antwerp as rapidly as possible," said Ross Munro, Canadian Press field correspondent.

"Progress of the Allied campaign on the Western front will be measured from the time Antwerp begins to operate."

One Small Pocket Left

German guns on both sides of the 50-mile-long water approach to Antwerp have up to now effectively prevented the Allies making use of Europe's second greatest port which was captured almost undamaged. Only a small enemy pocket now remains on the south side of the estuary, near Cadzand.

A German radio commentator conceded that "the fight for the Schelde mouth and for the entrance to Antwerp port now has reached its final but also its most important stage with the landing operations."

Allies Mum

The Germans said Thursday's landing was made near Hoedekenskerke, about five and a half miles ahead of Canadian forces fighting onto Beveland from the east. The Canadians had reached the Beveland canal, a serious obstacle to overcome.

Berlin claimed that Canadian amphibious forces attempted to land somewhere on South Beveland yesterday, but were driven back. The Allies neither confirmed this nor told where the successful British landing was made.

The fifth day of the British Second Army's smash-out of its Holland salient saw an armored force storm through to Loon op Zand, a town four miles north of Tilburg and only ten miles from a vital bridge across the Maas at Geertruidenberg.

Another column pushed beyond newly captured Helvoirt and reached the Aftwaterings canal at a point almost due west of 's-Hertogenbosch, the bitterly defended Nazi stronghold which was in Allied hands except for a few suicidal snipers.

British Cut Nazi Escape Route In Holland

OCT 28 1944

London, Oct. 27 (AP)—Lieutenant General Sir Miles C. Dempsey's five-day British offensive surged toward the Maas river today in a three-mile advance that undercut the doomed enemy citadel of Tilburg in Holland.

Dempsey's armor knifed forward to Loon op Zand, four miles north of Tilburg, cutting the German's main escape route, and was riding roughshod over badly armed German rear guards.

Field Marshal General Walther von Model's forces "face the grave prospect of a sequel to the Falaise Gap debacle that resulted in the annihilation of von Kluge's German Seventh Army in the Normandy campaign," said Associated Press Correspondent Roger D. Greene in a dispatch from the front.

South Beveland Invaded

While long columns of British armor, guns and men surged through the mud in the westward push past 's-Hertogenbosch and behind Tilburg, Canadian forces farther west put fresh momentum into their campaign on both sides of the Schelde in the drive to open Antwerp to Allied supplies.

Thousands of British troops in the first American amphibious tanks employed in numbers on the front swarmed across the three-to-five-mile-wide Schelde in a fog-shrouded dawn yesterday and established a beachhead of seven square miles on South Beveland Island guarding the north side of the river.

Canadians At Canal

The Germans said a second landing attempt had been made today at a point that would vault the north-south Beveland Canal, a potential defense line already reached by Canadian forces fighting through mud and hip-deep water into the island from the east. But this was not confirmed by supreme headquarters or field dispatches.

The Germans said American prisoners had been taken on the west Holland front, the first report that any Americans were fighting in this sector.

Desperately attempting to divert the blows menacing his Nazi forces in western Holland, Model made a counterattack along a ten-mile front against the eastern side of the British Nijmegen salient, between Venlo and Roermond, but field dispatches said the Allied front was not displaced.

Beveland Landing A Big One

The landing on Beveland was a large-scale one, with swarms of landing craft manned by British sailors, flotillas of amphibious vehicles, artillery support and assault engineers taking part.

Berlin accounts said this bridgehead was "several kilometers deep" and was in the neighborhood of Hoedekenskerke, 5½ miles ahead of Canadian spearheads driving into the island from the east.

British dispatches said several towns were captured in the beachhead by the British who crossed Schelde at 4 A. M. yesterday, swarmed up the 20-foot dike and surprised thinly strung German machine-gunners. The beachhead was strengthened throughout the day yesterday by a ferry service.

Tilburg Almost Surrounded

The British, after a 15-mile westward drive in five days from their Nijmegen salient, had hemmed the Germans into a collapsing box and were smashing toward the Maas river and Hollandsch Diep.

The British were fighting on a line from three to 16 mile[s] of the Maas and the Diep.

's-Hertogenbosch, eastern [corner] of the box, was in British hands. Tilburg, a city of nearly 100,000 12 miles to the southwest in the center of the line, was almost surrounded, with the Allies in the outskirts. The British were fighting at Zundert, nine miles south of Breda to the west, and the Canadians were within two miles of Roosendaal and about as close to Bergen op Zoom at the western end of the line.

Nazis Move From Tilburg

The Germans had moved their headquarters from Tilburg to north of the Maas, and today's supreme headquarters communique said the enemy had been forced to withdraw "all along the line from Roosendaal to Tilburg.

British forces had cut the 's-Hertogenbosch-Tilburg road at two places, at Helvoirt, from where they had pushed on west to Heikant, and two and a half miles farther southwest where they held Udenhout, four miles northeast of Tilburg.

In between Udenhout and Helvoirt, the Germans were clinging to a 3,000-yard-long salient reaching almost to Haaren, but it was being squeezed out rapidly.

The British had cleaned out the road between 's-Hertogenbosch and Vught, two miles to the southwest, and chased the Germans from neighboring Fort Isabella near the Germans' largest concentration camp in Holland.

Continued pressure but no significant progress was reported by the communique along the remainder of the West Front. North of Aachen, units of the American First Army made minor gains against stubborn opposition.

Northeast of Luneville the Germans were cleared out of the Moncourt Forest and the high ground to the north, and several German counterattacks in this sector were repulsed. Slight progress was reported also northeast of Epinal and in the Vosges Mountains.

[illegible],000 Nazi Troops Are Reported Pocketed

London, Oct. 27 (AP)—An estimated 116,000 German troops are isolated in five continental pockets and the Channel islands apparently by-passed until they choose to surrender or until it is convenient for the Allies to liquidate them.

They are scattered thus: Dunkerque, 8,000; Lorient, 22,000; St Nazaire, 20,000; Bordeaux, 26,000; Vannes area, 30,000, and Channel islands, 10,000.

All are hamstrung by lack of transport, munitions and supplies, and are causing the Allies no real trouble.

When France was divided into an eastern "military zone" and a western "zone of the interior" October 20, under an agreement between the Allies and the French Government, it was acknowledged that there still was fighting within the interior zone. Gen. Edgar de Larminat was named commander of French forces operating against German nests of resistance on the Atlantic coast.

MOSCOW TALKS 'SATISFACTORY'

Churchill Calls For Another 3-Power Meeting This Year

London, Oct. 27 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today that the results of his recent Moscow conferences with Premier Stalin were "highly satisfactory," but declared that "all permanent arrangements await the presence of the United States" and he called for another three-power meeting before the end of the year.

Churchill conceded that the "urgent and burning" question of Poland was still unsolved—although "certainly not for want of trying"—and he said he hoped the London Poles would return to Moscow soon and that protracted negotiations would be avoided.

Declaring that at Quebec President Roosevelt and he "felt very much the absence of Russia," and that "at Moscow Marshal Stalin and I were deeply conscious that the President was not with us," Churchill said that agreements reached were "workaday arrangements" which "must be looked upon as temporary expedients to meet an emergency."

Meeting This Year

"I am satisfied that the results achieved on this occasion at Moscow have been highly satisfactory," Churchill told the House of Commons. "But I am quite sure that no final result can be obtained until the heads of the three governments have met again together, as I earnestly trust they may do before this year is at its end."

Observing that he had "not hesitated to travel from court to court like a wandering minstrel," the Prime Minister said that as a result of his Quebec and Moscow meetings he could report that "all is solid, sure and sound" in both military and political fields among Britain, Russia and the United States as they drive together down "the last lap" to victory.

Churchill said that "the present stage of the war is dour and hard, and the fighting must be expected on all fronts to increase in scale and intensity."

Enemy's Two Hopes

"The enemy has two hopes," the Prime Minister added. "The first is that by lengthening the struggle he may wear down our resolution. The second and more important hope is that division will arise between the three great powers. . . .

"It is his hope that there will be some rift in this alliance—that the Russians may go this way and Britain and America that . . . there is the enemy's great hope, and it is to deprive that hope of all foundation and reality that our efforts must ceaselessly be bent."

Even though President Roosevelt was absent from Moscow, Churchill said, "the American observer, Mr. Averell Harriman, the accomplished Ambassador of the United States, made us feel at all times the presence of the great republic."

Future Of The World

In calling for a new three-power parley, Churchill observed.

"After all, the future of the world depends upon the united action in the next few years of our three countries. Other countries will be associated, but the future depends on the union of the three most powerful allies.

"If that fails, all fails; if that succeeds, a broad future for all nations may be assured."

Stating that "our relations with Soviet Russia were never more close, intimate and cordial than they are at the present time," Churchill said that "over a very wide area . . . we found ourselves in full agreement."

"Let all hope die in German breasts that there will be the slightest division or weakening among the forces that are crowding in upon them and will crush the life out of their resistance," he added.

Decision Temporary

Reaffirming the Moscow announcement that complete agreement was reached on "the tangled questions of the Balkans," Churchill stressed that the decisions were temporary.

"All permanent arrangements await the presence of the United States, who have been kept constantly informed of what is going forward," he said. "Everything eventually will come to review at some future conference or at an armistice or peace table."

Churchill said the Polish problem was divided into two "crucial issues"; The question of the Polish-Russian frontier and the question of the relation between the Polish exile Government in London and the pro-Soviet Polish committee in Lublin.

"To abandon hope in this matter would indeed be to surrender to despair," the Prime Minister said, but he made it clear that difficulties still lay ahead.

"I wish I could tell the House we had reached a solution of these problems," he said. "It is certainly not for want of trying. I am quite sure, however, we have got a great deal nearer to it."

"I hope," he said, "that Mr. Mikolajczyk (Premier of the London Polish Government) will soon return to Moscow, and it will be a great disappointment to all the sincere friends of Poland if a good arrangement cannot be made which will enable him to form a Polish Government on Polish soil, a government recognized by all the great powers concerned, and indeed by all those governments of the United Nations which now recognize only the Polish Government in London."

Declaring that "these are critical days and it would be a great pity if time were wasted in indecisions or protracted negotiations," Churchill seemed to rebuke the London government by adding:

"If the Polish government had taken the advice we tendered them at the beginning of this year, the additional complication produced by formation of the Polish National committee of Liberation at Lublin would never have arisen."

Mentioning the recent Allied recognition of the De Gaulle government in France, Churchill said that the step was not taken earlier because of Allied "responsibility at this particular moment for making sure that the French government, emerging in power from their (the Allies') military actions, would be acceptable to France as a whole and would not appear to be a government imposed on the country from without."

Churchill Sees War in Last Lap

Admits Deadlock on Polish Question Despite Other Accords.

London, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill, declaring that "we are in the last lap" in the war against Germany, told Commons today that the Allied Powers are closing in on the Nazis and will crush the life out of their resistance.

The Prime Minister told Commons that "a very good working agreement" had been reached with Russia on the problems of southeastern Europe, but acknowledged his efforts to end the Russian-Polish dispute, prime objective of his mission to Moscow, had not proved successful.

Likening himself to a wandering minstrel of diplomacy, Mr. Churchill said that he and President Roosevelt should confer with Marshal Stalin before the year ends. But he declared that "all is solid, sure and sound" among the three Allies.

The Prime Minister summed up the results of his conferences with Premier Stalin as "highly satisfactory" and underscored the necessity for dispersing misunderstandings and forestalling them before they occur.

"I am quite sure," he added, "that no final result can be obtained until the heads of the three governments have met together, as I earnestly trust they may do before this year is out."

Harriman at Conference.

"At Quebec," he said, "the President and I felt very much the absence of Russia. At Moscow, Marshal Stalin and I were deeply conscious that the President was not with us, although in this case the American observer, Averell Harriman, the accomplished Ambassador of the United States, made us feel at all times the presence of the great republic."

In one of the shortest reports he has ever made after a major conference, Mr. Churchill spoke only about thirty minutes. Commons granted his previously expressed plea that it refrain from using the report as the basis for a general policy debate.

He touched but briefly upon the military situation, declaring:

"Let all hope die in German breasts that there will be the slightest division or weakening among the forces that are crowding in upon them."

All Depends on Unity.

While he said recognition of the French Provisional government heralded return of France to "her rightful and historic role on the world stage," Mr. Churchill declared that the future of the world in the next few years depends upon united action by the United States, Russia and Britain.

"Other countries," he said, "will be associated, but the future depends on the union of the three most powerful Allies. If, that fails, all fails; if that succeeds, a broad future for all nations may be assured."

He frankly acknowledged that a solution had not been reached in the long dispute between Russia and Poland.

"It is certainly not for want of trying," he said, adding: "I am quite sure, however, that we have got a great deal nearer to it."

Hopes for Accord.

But, he said, Britain, Russia and the United States "are all firmly agreed on the re-creation of a strong, free, independent, sovereign Poland, loyal to the Allies and friendly to her great neighbor and liberator, Russia."

The Prime Minister expressed the hope that Poland and Russia would lose no time in resuming their discussions "and bringing them to an effective conclusion."

Prime Minister Churchill declared that the present stage of war is dour and hard and the fighting must be expected on all fronts to increase in scale and intensity.

He bluntly told Commons that Adolf Hitler is pinning his hopes for winning the war on these two factors: "That by lengthening the struggle he may wear down our resolution and that division may arise between the three great Powers."

Of his visit to Moscow, he said that the results had been "highly satisfactory."

"But I am quite sure," he added, "that no final results can be attained until the heads of the three governments have met again together as I earnestly trust they may do before this year is at its end."

He reported that never were Britain's relations with Russia "more close, intimate and cordial than at the present time" and that never had the two nations been able to discuss such "most delicate and potentially vexatious topics" with such frankness as was reached at Moscow.

"Where we could not agree," said Mr. Churchill, acknowledging for the first time publicly that there were differences still outstanding, "we understood the grounds for each other's disagreement and each other's points of view."

But he maintained that "over an astonishingly wide area" Britain and Russia found themselves "in full agreement."

He said that Russia and Britain had reached "a very good working agreement" about Greece, Romania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Hungary.

Shifting to the recognition this week of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's provisional government of France, Mr. Churchill said that it could be regarded "as a symbol of France's emergence from four dark years of terrible and woeful experience."

OCT 28 1944

Sees Big Role for France.

And, he said, it can be regarded as "heralding a period in which she will resume her rightful and historic role on the world stage."

He turned then to the problems of Greece, saying that when the country returned to "normal conditions of tranquillity the Greek people shall make in perfect freedom their decision as to the form of government under which they desire to live."

To a direct question as to whether Britain still wished to defer until victory a decision on Poland's eastern border, Mr. Churchill said he hoped an agreement would be reached "between the parties themselves."

"That," he said, "would bring the whole matter to the peace conference in a form most helpful and favorable to all concerned and also would tide us over the difficult and potentially tragic period through which we are passing."

132,000 Laborers Rebuilding London

London, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—War damage repairs are being made in London by 132,000 laborers, 40 per cent of Great Britain's entire building industry personnel, the House of Commons was informed today. During the 1941 battle of Britain only 40,000 laborers were employed in this work in London.

RUSSIAN FORCES OCCUPY RUTHENIA

Capture Ungvar in 15-Mile Advance, Three Cities Fall in Prussia.

LONDON, Saturday, Oct. 28.—(AP) A powerful Russian mountain army virtually completed the conquest of Hungarian-annexed Ruthenia in Eastern Czechoslovakia yesterday by capturing Ungvar in a 15-mile advance, and also penetrated six miles into neighboring Slovakia.

In German East Prussia, where the Nazis were putting up one of the most savage defenses of the entire war, a Moscow communique announced the seizure of three more villages in two-mile gains in the Ebenrode area.

3,000 Nazis Killed

A midnight Soviet bulletin said the Russians, beating off numerous counterattacks by large German infantry and armor, killed 3,000 Germans, making a two-day total of 5,800. Ninety-five enemy tanks, 11 armored carriers and 100 enemy trucks were wrecked or burned, it said.

In Yugoslavia other Soviet forces aided by Marshal Tito's partisans captured Novi Sad, Yugoslavia's seventh city of 64,000 on the north bank of the Laube 42 miles northwest of fallen Belgrade.

The toppling of Ungvar (Uzhorod), former capital and main city of Ruthenia, was achieved by units of Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukraine army of 450,000 men. A total of 2,500 Germans and Hungarians at Ungvar, a city of 24,000, was captured, the midnight bulletin said.

Petrov's troops in less than two weeks have overrun nearly 4,800 square miles of Czechoslovak territory grabbed by Hungary after the Axis break-up of that republic, and have joined up with Marshal Rodin Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine army battering the Germans back in Hungary on the south.

The Russians now control three good railways running across Czechoslovakia from Lwow, big southern Polish base, and a Moscow dispatch disclosed that Soviet supply difficulties for the big offensive through central Europe had been eased also with the resumed operation of 25 refineries in the capture of Krosno and Rzeszow oilfields in Poland.

50 Localities Fall

Petrov's troops captured 50 other localities, including Ulio, 25 miles north of Ungvar and two miles inside Slovakia, and Starina, in the Ciroka valley nine mils northwest of Ulic and six miles inside Slovakia near the Polish border.

Enskehmen's seizure put the Russians 12 miles northeast of Gumbinnen, an objective on the Kaunas-Konigsberg highway 14 miles east of strategic Insterburg, and Berlin said that the civilian population had been evacuated from Gumbinnen.

Soviet troops were reported attacking in the outskirts of Gumbinnen, and one Berlin broadcast said Red army units had reached Nemmersdorf, on the west bank of the Angerapp river 25 miles inside East Prussia. Nemmersdorf is six miles southwest of Gumbinnen and 12 miles southeast of Insterburg.

A Moscow broadcast reported that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, newly appointed Nazi commander-in-chief in the east, were in East Prussia, appealing for the most desperate type of defense against the massive Russian forces.

A mass exodus of German civilians was taking place behind the German lines all the way from Gumbinnen to Konigsberg, East Prussian capital 65 miles to the west, Soviet aerial reconnaissance showed. Many civilians also were fleeing Konigsburg, and that city's industries were reported being moved.

Another Czech Town Taken By Reds

OCT 28

London, Oct. 27 (AP)—Russian troops advanced 15 miles in Czechoslovakia today and captured Ungvar (Uzhorod), virtually completing the capture of the Carpatho-Ukraine, which Hungary seized from the republic.

A broadcast order of the day by Marshal Stalin announced the capture of the city of 27,000, which was the capital of Ruthenia, an autonomous province under Czechoslovakia. The city is 160 miles northeast of Budapest.

Gen. Ivan Petrov, promoted yesterday after the fall of the Czechoslovak city of Mukaeevo, was again the victor. Stalin ordered a 20-salvo salute from 224 Moscow victory guns.

Gumbinnen Fall Predicted

Fall of the important East Prussian communications center of Gumbinnen appeared imminent as the Germans announced evacuation of the civilian population from the path of Soviet forces.

Unconfirmed reports reaching here from Moscow asserted that the Russians now were believed fighting in the outskirts of Gumbinnen, a city of 15,000 to 20,000. Gumbinnen is 66 miles southeast of the provincial capital of Konigsberg.

Cutting Across Hungary

Soviet forces which occupied the Czechoslovakian road junction of Munkacs (Mukacevo) yesterday were linked up today in a solid front with other Red army units cutting across northeastern Hungary from conquered Transylvania.

In Hungary, the Germans said they had recaptured Myireghaza, a city of 56,000, releasing Hungarian prisoners.

The Germans asserted that a rebellion in central Slovakia at Altsohl and Neusohl, 72 and 80 miles north of Budapest, "is about to collapse" and that both towns had been captured. The rebels were declared to have been "instigated by the Soviets and inflamed by parachuted bandits from various countries." Some 2,000 imprisoned Germans were liberated "before the bandit order to shoot them could be carried out," the communique added.

Reported Fleeing Konigsburg

An American commentator, speaking over the Moscow radio about the East Prussian situation, reported that German civilians already were fleeing Konigsberg.

The German communique said today Russian troops broke into the railroad town of Schlossberg, 78 miles east of Konigsberg, but were beaten back.

Heavy counterattacks by German armor and infantry against the growing Russian salient were beaten back today by Red army gunners who leveled their field artillery into a deadly anti-tank screen, Moscow reported.

Despite the enemy's continual reinforcement, Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky secured control of a 15-mile stretch on the secondary rail line which runs northwest to Tilsit from the junction on the main Konigsberg-Kaunas line, near Stallupoenen.

Germans Use New Batteries

Dispatches said "dozens of new German batteries" were introduced in an effort to halt Russian thrusts aimed at Gumbinnen.

Against one side of the Russian bulge the enemy launched five consecutive attacks employing as many as two battalions of infantry each time, supported by Panther tanks and self-propelled guns. They were broken up with heavy losses to the Germans, Moscow said.

Russian correspondents said the cannonading was unceasing night and day.

Still Face Fortifications

Red Troops have not yet completely traversed the zone of fortifications which the Germans have been building to protect the home of Junkerdom.

The battle for East Prussia lost its fluidity and became a stubborn test of endurance and reserves. The Germans drew heavily on resources of the air and tank corps.

Russians Promoted

New advances were scored at extremities of the gargantuan Eastern front and commanders at each end were promoted. Kirill Afansievich Meretskov was promoted to marshal of the Soviet Union after his Karelian army group invaded Norway, capturing Kirkenes. Petrov was elevated to a full general while his troops were striking in two directions toward Ungvar.

Reports from the Norwegian front said Kirkenes was in flames when the Russians captured that air and naval base two days ago. Norwegian fishermen in motor boats transported Russian infantry across a wide fjord to outflank a German highway strong point. The Eleveness Fjord was spanned by American-made ducks, which landed several thousand Soviet troops on the enemy side, despite severe artillery fire.

The Germans had burned a paper factory, fish cannery, bathhouses, schools and many homes in Kirkenes, dispatches said. Several thousand townfolk huddled in a mountain tunnel near by while the Red army won its first Norwegian victory.

Red Girls 'Sold As Slaves'

London, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today that Red troops advancing in East Prussia had liberated Russian girls who had been sold in slave markets by the Germans.

The broadcast, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said hundreds of girls in conquered territory were sold to Nazi bidders.

Valya Roshipina, of the Kursk region, was quoted as saying:

"The German landlords looked us over, felt ur muscles, looked at our legs as if wer were not people but horses. I was not bought for a long time because I was thin from the hardship of the journey. A restaurant keeper then bought me and I had a terrible time."

GOEBBELS STATES NAZIS TO CONTINUE FIGHT FOR LIFE

LONDON, Oct. 27—(AP) Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels in a broadcast to the German nation tonight declared the Germans will "go on fighting until a peace is possible which guarantees our people's right to live, their national independence and the expansion of the basis of their existence."

In what may be interpreted either as a bid to the Allies to relax their war aims or as a call for German "bitter-end" resistance, Goebbels said:

Raps Allied Aims

"One thing is certain—that from our enemies we may expect nothing but hell on earth if we lay down our arms and put ourselves in their power. It appears irrefutably proved by facts that the enemy is not pursuing a single war aim which would be of any benefit to suffering humanity."

He said the German people "show a quiet aspect of the deepest determination. They have calmly acknowledged the orgies of hate from London."

Goebbels, the propaganda minister, said "the American president errs if he thinks Germany will collapse once the enemy is at our border.

"On the contrary, we shall work until our fingers bleed and fight with dogged tenacity. We shall spare no means to bar the enemy's way into the Reich. Every house and street will be a battlefield.

"The Germans have nothing to lose and everything to gain. There is only one answer—fight to the last until victory."

He asserted that Germany's enemies in the West want "to reduce us into a potato field," while the enemy in the East "wants to deport some 40,000,000 of our people."

He concluded with a quotation from a letter written by Frederick the Great: "I love peace as much as you do, but it must be honorable and durable. It is not nice to lose friends every day, but although I know the benefits of peace, I would not buy them with dishonor."

Goebbels said that Hitler is clinging fast to his belief Germany will win the war.

"The Fuehrer, with whom I spent several days at his headquarters, stands like a rock amid the surging tide," Goebbels said. "He told me he was never so firmly convinced of victory as today."

While preaching a life-or-death defense of the invaded homeland, Goebbels told the Germans they still had a chance for victory "in a war which has become a race for time."

He said German workers were "turning out novel weapons in all spheres of production on which we have great hopes—even the greatest hopes." He warned, however, against expecting "miracles" from them.

Urges People to Fight

Calling upon the German people to "not shrink from any means by which we can bar the enemies' way into the Reich," he made this threat to dissenters: "Whoever throws up his hands in the midst of a fierce struggle for bare existence deserves the fate that will overtake him."

He said the German people had "completely recovered from the first shock caused particularly by the setback in the West—which brought us bitter grief and gravest anxiety."

During the Winter, he predicted, "the enemy, both east and west, will find increasing difficulties in their rear. It is one thing to take territory and another to hold it."

The "greatest worry at present" of Germany is bombing, Goebbels added, but he promised the nation that "new squadrons of bombers and fighters are being built and they will have their influence."

In what was a studied passing over of the stunning defeat administered the Japanese navy in the Pacific by U. S. forces, Goebbels hailed "the magnificent deeds of the Japanese armed forces—their successes at Formosa and the Philippines, which make us proud to have such an ally. Germany stands in unshakeable fraternity with Japan."

URGES NAZIS TO HOPE

London, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, the German Propaganda Minister and Plenipotentiary for Total Mobilization, said tonight that though the German "fronts in the east, west and south are exposed to tremendous pressure, we have not unfounded hopes they will take concrete forms shortly."

Broadcasting to the German people, he declared that Germany would "go on fighting until a peace is possible which guarantees our peoples' right to live, their national independence, and the expansion of the basis of their existence."

Ancient Berlin Church Razed

London, Oct. 27 (AP) — Berlin's Church of St. Nicholas was destroyed in a recent raid, the German Transocean agency said today. Noted for its many tombs, the church was completed in 1247 and was regarded as the oldest building in Berlin.

Bombers Over Berlin Again, Says Nazi Radio

London, Saturday, Oct. 28 (AP)—Fast Allied bombers were reported over Berlin early today by the German radio, ending a daylong respite from air attacks for cities within the Reich.

Outlying posts were harassed by fighter-bombers and mediums on regular patrol of roads and railways, but Eighth Air Force and RAF heavy bombers remained in their revetments in England yesterday because of weather.

Another Nazi General Killed

London, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Transocean, the German news agency, in a radio broadcast today added the name of Gen Priesz, commander of an army corps in the Gumbinnen area of East Prussia, to the list of 13 Nazi generals reported killed in the present war.

Schacht Freed, Niece Says

Stockholm, Oct. 27 (AP)—German financier Hjalmer Schacht has been released from prison after being held for a month by the Nazis, his niece, Sigrid Schacht, told the newspaper Dagens Nyheter yesterday.

THE MILEAGE TO BERLIN

De Gaulle Limits Spanish Guerrillas

Paris, Oct. 27 (AP)—Despite continued attacks on the Franco regime in most Paris newspapers, the de Gaulle Government is restricting Spanish Republican activities along the border to clear the way for resuming diplomatic relations with Spain, French Foreign Office officials disclosed today.

The French Government has established a frontier zone about ten miles deep which will be barred to Spanish Republicans, reported clashing with Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops in recent days.

40,000 To Be Refugees

In addition Spanish Republicans who seized ten Spanish consulates in southern France are being ousted and the offices are being held by French officials for eventual return to Franco consuls.

It was estimated that 40,000 Spanish Republicans in France will be placed under the League of Nations "political refugee" statute and accorded sanctuary similar to that given White Russians and German Jews.

France hopes by these measures to fulfill correctly her diplomatic obligation by not permitting her territory to be used as a base for fomenting revolution.

Rebels Hold Spanish Towns

London, Oct. 27 (AP) — Spanish Partisan forces who have infiltrated across the Spanish frontier from France now hold about a dozen villages between Canfranc and Andorra and have taken over the republic of Andorra, a Reuters dispatch from Madrid said it was reported there tonight.

De Gaulle-Franco Tie Predicted

By Joseph Dynan

Paris, Oct. 27 (AP) — The de Gaulle Government is clearing the way for establishment of diplomatic relations with Franco Spain by restricting Spanish Republican activities along the border, it was disclosed today in talks with French Foreign Office officials at the Quai d'Orsay.

Spanish Republicans who seized ten Spanish consulates in southern France, largely through the compliance of the French Forces of the Interior, are being ousted and the consulates are being held by French officials for eventual return to Franco consuls.

Vichy Embassy French-Controlled

The French representative in Madrid is now in control of the old Vichy embassy, refitting the building for eventual occupation.

Spanish Republicans in France, estimated at 40,000, will be placed under the League of Nations "political refugee" statute and accorded sanctuary similar to that for White Russians and German Jews.

The French Government, meanwhile, has established a frontier zone of about 10 miles deep which will be forbidden to Spanish Republican forces who, in recent days, are reported to have invaded Spain and clashed with Spanish troops.

Zone Cleared Of Spaniards

This zone has now been cleared of Spanish members of the FFI, according to Foreign Office officials.

Thus France hopes to fulfill correctly her diplomatic obligations, not permitting her territory to be used as a base for fomenting revolution south of the Pyrenees and at the same time meeting her moral obligations to Spaniards who fought alongside Frenchmen in the Maqui forces against the Nazis.

Stories Of Clashes Unconfirmed

Officials said they had no confirmation of stories of recent clashes along the border, but said communications were sporadic and that only FFI forces were patrolling from the Mediterranean to the Atlantic.

Tracing the history of relations with Spain, officials recalled that some 20,000 Frenchmen held in concentration camps in Spain after the flight from Vichy were released and allowed to proceed to North Africa upon petition of the Giraud Government, and many of these are now in French armies.

Papers Continue Attacks

Most Parisian papers, meanwhile, continued violent attacks on the Franco Government, the paper Aurore declaring that German garrisons at St. Nazaire, La Rochelle and other Atlantic ports were being supplied from Spain.

The paper Action said a huge Republican flag was raised over Barcelona's railway station on September 11.

20 YEARS FOR TRAITOR

Paris, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Short and swarthy Lucien Fernand Felignes was sentenced to serve twenty years at hard labor today on a charge of collusion with the German occupants as a radio commentator. The conviction ended the sixth collaborationist trial.

Felignes, 44, former French soldier, had repeatedly urged exchange of prisoners of war for French workers, pleading particularly for exportation of "lazy gigolos, black market characters and zoot suiters." Phonograph records made by a patriotic engineer helped to convict him.

Envoy Says U. S. Wants Strong France

Paris, Oct. 27 (AP)—Jefferson Caffrey, United States Ambassador to the French provisional government, said today in an interview in the newspaper Resistance that the United States wished a "strong, well-balanced and prosperous France as a base for a peaceful Europe."

Caffrey branded as German propaganda statements that the United States intended to retain areas where American bases have been established.

ALLIES CAPTURE NAZI HORROR CAMP

By NED NORDNESS

VUGHT, Holland, Oct. 27—(AP) The largest concentration camp in Holland, where an estimated 30,000 internees died at the hands of German torturers, fell into Allied hands today.

The Germans had barely been thrown back from the area near Vught, where the 640-acre estate of horrors was located, when Allied civil affairs officials entered to transform the vast system of barracks into a shelter for refugees.

These were the atrocity tales emanating from the foreboding barbed wire barricaded camp, more grisly than the most imaginative horror tale, as recounted by eyewitnesses:

For 13 hours, 67 women were crowded into an airless, lightless room 12 feet by seven feet and eight feet high. Twelve died, three became insane and 30 were hospitalized.

Inmates were beaten until their bones were broken, then ordered to get in line for roll call. They were tortured in special chambers until their bodies were broken, then shot and cremated and buried in lime pits.

They were forced to exercise strenuously 12 hours a day for infraction of rules and were beaten to near death when they fell from exhaustion.

The camp, established in February, 1943, housed as many as 35,000 internees at one time. Between June and September of this year more than 3,000 persons were shot, 800 in the last two weeks of August. Five thousand were sent to Germany.

Eyewitnesses, including one who had been interned in the c... 16 months, led me to the crema... ium furnaces, to the lime pits wher... bodies were buried before the cre... matorium was constructed, and to the prison where the women were squeezed into the tiny room. They showed me the torture chamber and the living quarters for prisoners.

30. 24— 19933

It was sickening—far worse than war. There a man has an opportunity to fight back. Here he had none.

NEW BOMBING TRICK

With the Ninth United States Air Force in Luxembourg, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Guided only by the radio instructions of ground controllers in the front lines, American Thunderbolt pilots yesterday struck through thick clouds at Saarbrucken, in western Germany, dumping 500-pound bombs on their targets.

This use of ground controllers as navigators in the first attempt at blind bombing by fighter bombers was suggested in the course of the flight by Lieut. Arthur P. Wildern Jr. of Cleveland, Ohio.

"When the pilots found the target too overcast for a visual attack," he said today, "we used ground controllers as navigators for pattern bombing. We must have hit something because after we dropped our loads, Jerry began shooting high flak at us like mad."

Headquarters declined to identify the specific target or to disclose the distance between the target and the controller.

The flight was led by Capt. Ray A. Mitchell of Perry, Ark.

BRITISH REACH RONCO RIVER

Nazi Tanks Hurl Back First Elements To Cross

Rome, Oct. 27 (AP)—The British Eighth Army bumped against the main German defenses on the Ronco river two miles east of Forli today after a two-and-a-half-mile advance up the Rimini-Bologna highway in northern Italy.

Leading British elements which forded the rain-swollen barrier at that point were hurled back by counterattacking Nazi tanks, but Indian patrols crossed successfully south of the highway.

Allied headquarters announced that, despite wind-driven rains in the Apennines and the Po Valley, which have turned rivers into formidable obstacles and made side roads impassable, the Eighth Army had reached the Ronco "on a broad front."

Forli Within Gun Range

Forli, an important communications center 37 miles southeast of Bologna, is now within range of British light artillery.

[The German communique asserted an Allied bridgehead was "liquidated" on the Ronco north of Meldola, which is six miles south of the river crossing on the Rimini-Bologna highway east of Forli. The Germans claimed "several hundred" prisoners were taken.]

In the Adriatic sector the British pushed ahead another two miles in their drive toward Ravenna, putting a bridgehead across the Bevano river on Route 16 about six miles south of the coastal city.

Rain Hampers Yanks

In the Fifth Army sector south of Bologna rains made road movements almost impossible. In one area it was necessary to transport supplies five miles by jeep, five miles by mule and a final four miles by infantrymen.

Despite the weather local fighting continued. The Americans repelled a heavy German counterattack on Monte Belmonte, now completely in Fifth Army hands.

American troops captured Il Poggio and Mount Mezzano, west of Vedriano, four miles below Castel San Pietro on the Bologna-Rimini highway.

Italian Patriots Active

Nazi broadcasts disclosed that Italian patriots in the Bologna area were causing the Germans considerable trouble, operating in such strength they were even able to shell some German concentrations in the town itself.

The broadcast added that "holdups and acts of sabotage in the center of Bologna temporarily were the order of the day," but declared that the guerrillas had been rounded up.

Nazi Lines Stiffen In Forli Battle

Rome, Oct. 27 (AP)—Eighth Army forces advancing up the Po Valley along Highway 9 toward Bologna have come up against heavy German defenses two miles east of Forli, Allied headquarters announced today.

British and Canadian troops reached the Ronco river on a broad front and at several points patrols crossed the swollen stream, but were withdrawn following sharp German tank counterattacks.

Advance Two Miles

South of the Bologna-Rimini highway, Indian troops also reached the river and sent patrols across. The river flows northward and empties into a canal south of Ravenna.

Vanguard Eighth Army units advanced two miles nearer to Ravenna in the drive up the Adriatic coast and put a bridgehead across the Bevano river on Highway 16 at a point six miles below the city.

Impeded By Rains

However, heavy rain fell over both the Eighth and Fifth Army fronts and generally impeded progress in all sectors. In one area in the central sector below Bologna, it was necessary to transport supplies first five miles by jeep, then five miles by mule and four miles by infantrymen.

American troops on Mount Belmonte threw back a heavy German counterattack and other doughboys captured Il Poggio and Mount Mezzano, west of Vedriano, which is five miles southwest of the Bologna-Rimini highway town of Castel San Pietro.

Airplanes Pound Enemy In Greece

Rome, Oct. 27 (AP)—Constant air attacks are achieving good results on German columns retreating through Greece on the road leading from Larisa northwest to Kozane and then to the Yugoslav frontier, Allied headquarters announced today.

British land forces have joined Greek guerrillas harassing Nazi rearguards in the Larisa area. Kozane is 60 miles northwest of Larisa, and the Yugoslav frontier lies another 40 miles beyond.

A dispatch from Athens said nearly all Bulgarian forces had withdrawn from Macedonia and Thrace, and Greek Government representatives declared order restored in those northern provinces.

400 Nazis Loss At Volos

Athens newspaper reports said the Germans suffered 400 casualties in their withdrawal from the Volos district, 35 miles southeast of Larisa.

Athens advices placed the German rearguards north of Larisa at Meluna, about 25 miles along the road leading to Kozane.

Other reports in the Greek capital said hundreds of Greeks had been interned and shot in Salonika, 40 miles northeast of Larisa. Previous reports said Greek patriot forces were in control of a large part of Salonika.

Theodorus Pangalos, former dictator of Greece, has been arrested on a charge of collaboration with the Axis, the Greek Government announced.

Bonomi Asks Full Ally Status Be Given Italy

Rome, Oct. 27 (AP)—Asserting "our aspirations have not yet been granted," Premier Ivanoe Bonomi told a press conference today recognition of Italy cannot be limited merely to reestablishment of diplomatic relations with the United Nations.

Great Britain and the United States announced Wednesday they were restoring normal diplomatic relations with the Italian Government.

The Italian Premier reiterated his appeal that Italy be granted the status of an ally.

OCT 28 1944

PANGALOS ARRESTED

Athens, Oct. 26 (Delayed) (A. P.).—A Greek Government announcement said today that 66-year-old Theodorus Pangalos, former dictator of Greece, had been arrested on a charge of collaboration with the Axis.

Gen. Pangalos became Minister of War in the revolution of 1922 which dethroned King Constantine. He seized the Government in an audacious coup d'etat on June 25, 1925, and was elected President in April, 1926, retaining dictatorial powers in a harsh regime. Four months later his Government was overthrown. He was jailed, tried and banished.

GREEK GUERRILLA IS SLAIN NEAR EDEN

Athens, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—A 20-year-old Greek demonstrator was shot to death in a Partisan parade today within a stone's throw of a building which British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was visiting and opposite the temporary headquarters of the Greek Ministry of War.

The youth, one of a formation of National Liberation Front supporters, is alleged to have shouted an accusation against a regular army major standing on the sidewalk. He was reported shot by the major, who then fled into the War Ministry.

Demonstrators mobbed the doorway of the Ministry, but were held off by the police. They demanded vainly that the major be turned over to the Army of the National Liberation front for summary action. The clamor finally abated with the arrival of a Liberation Front officer who obtained a statement from the Athens Police Chief promising an immediate investigation of the case.

Admiral Hewitt Gets New Decoration

With Sixth Army Group, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—For "exceptionally meritorious service" as commander of the Western Naval Task Force which took part in the invasion of southern France, Vice-Admiral H. K. Hewitt of Hackensack, N. J., received the Oak Leaf Cluster for his Distinguished Service Medal yesterday.

Battalion Threw Stones When Out Of Bullets

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Oct. 27 (AP)—The first battalion of the 168th Infantry Regiment, 34th Division, has been awarded a distinguished unit citation for heroism in an action where the Americans threw stones and even ration cans at the enemy when ammunition ran low.

The engagement occurred at Mount Patano, anchor of the German winter line in 1943. Outnumberded two to one, the Americans inflicted casualties four times as great as their own as the Germans attempted to ragain a vital objective from which they earlier had been expelled. When they ran short of ammunition, the Americans threw whatever was at hand.

FINNS TAKE KITTILA

Stockholm, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Finnish troops have spreaded behind the Germans and captured Kittila, eighty miles north of Rovaniemi on the artic circle, and cut one of the major Nazi escape routes, the Finnish communique announced today.

The Helsinki radio quoted Swedish reports as saying that the Germans appear to be making preparations for the evacuation of Muonio, a Finnish town near the Swedish border about 125 miles due north of Torneaa.

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, said that this measure has been made necessary by the rapid advance of the Finnish troops.

Moscow, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Russian newspapers stressed the importance of American victories in the naval and land battles of the Philippines today with maps and two-column stories.

JAPANESE FORCES TAKE NINGYUAN IN HUNAN PROVINCE

Moose

CHUNGKING, Oct. 27 — (AP) Japanese troops sweeping southward from their base at Kiyang have advanced 60 miles in eight days and captured the Hunan communications center of Ningyuan, 110 miles east of the Kwangsi province capital of Kweilin, the Chinese high command announced today.

The Japanese thrust was made to safeguard the left flank of the enemy's Kwangsi offensive. It came as Chinese troops stabbing at the Japanese right flank pushed southward nine and a half miles from recently-captured Sinning in Hunan, 90 miles north of Kweilin, a communique said.

Reinforcements have been brought up by the Japanese in an attempt to break the deadlock around Pingnam, 110 miles south of Kweilin on the West river front.

Maj. Gen. Chang Tung-Chuen, Chinese army spokesman, said the Chinese north of Kweilin hoped to interfere with Japanese communications along the Hunan-Kwangsi railway.

Other Chinese columns are spearing from the west toward Paoching, 150 miles north of Kweilin, and one of the principal points safeguarding the right flank of the Japanese advance on the province capital, he said.

Japanese troops at their closest approach to Kweilin are approximately 20 miles to the north, but the enemy advance there is virtually at a standstill, Chang declared.

He estimated the total strength of the Japanese on the west river front at more than two divisions. The communique said reinforced Japanese troops struck at Chinese positions 12 miles west of Pingnam, and "severe fighting" was in progress.

The Japanese were reported being checked at points four and a half miles northwest and eight miles southwest of Kweiping, 27 miles southwest of Pingnam. The U. S. 14th Airforce has bombed Kweiping and Pingnam repeatedly the past week in support of the Chinese.

Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the U. S. 14th Air force, received a congratulatory message from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek for the "close and effective cooperation between your air force and our ground forces" in the Liuchow area.

Enemy Gains 60 Miles In New China Drive

OCT 28 1944

Chungking, Oct. 27 (AP)—Japanese troops have captured the important communications center of Ningyuan, 110 miles east of Kweilin, in a southward drive from Kiyang that has carried 60 miles in eight days, the Chinese high command announced today.

A communique said the Japanese made the sweeping thrust from Kiyang to safeguard the left flank of their Kwangsi offensive as Chinese troops jabbed at the enemy right flank. Fighting is now in progress southwest of Ningyuan.

Japs Reinforced

The Japanese have brought up fresh reinforcements in an attempt to break the deadlock around Pingnam, 115 miles south of Kweilin, the Chinese said.

Chinese troops gained nine and one half miles southward in the move against the Japanese right flank from recently recaptured Sinning, 90 miles north of Kweilin.

Maj. Gen. Chang Tung-chuen.

Chinese army spokesman, said the Chinese were hoping to interfere with Japanese communications along the Hunan-Kwangsi railway.

He also reported Chinese attacks from the west toward Paoching, 150 miles north of Kweilin, one of the principal points safeguarding the right flank of the Japanese advance on Kweilin, which, he said, was at a virtual standstill a little more than 20 miles north of the city.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 27 (AP)—United States Fourteenth Air Force Liberator bombers probably sank 8,800 tons of Japanese shipping and damaged 1,200 tons more in attacks yesterday on remnants of a Japanese task force fleeing from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's fleet, a communiqué of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Two direct hits were scored on a transport, a freighter was left listing and a tanker was bracketed by bombs and left smoking, the bulletin said.

The attacks took place in the South China Sea east of the Luichow Peninsula, the communiqué said. None of the aircraft was lost.

Jap Burma Loss Over 100,000

London, Oct. 27 (AP)—More than 100,000 Japanese have been killed or knocked out of action in Burma, Brig. S. F. Irwin, a veteran of 26 years in the Indian army, said today.

"By winning the battle of the Burma border we shattered Japanese hopes for the conquest of India," he declared at a press conference.

"While the Japanese plan is not generally known, it was to drive a large army between General Stilwell's Chinese forces and the British Indian armies, defeat our forces in Arakan and open the door wide to Calcutta."

JAP NAVY LOSSES MAY MOUNT TO 40

OCT 28 1944

Six American Warships Sunk in Battles of the Philippines.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 27—(AP) The Japanese probably lost 40 ships, sunk or crippled in the three Naval battles of the Philippines, Rear Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of staff to Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, said today.

The Navy previously announced that six American warships were lost in the engagements which crushed Japanese seapower.

Boxscore Not Complete

"The boxscore is not completely filled in," Adm. Sherman said in an NBC Navy Day broadcast, "but it appears 40 Japanese ships were sunk or crippled. So far we have only the bare outline of the story."

Adm. Nimitz told the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce that the Japanese fleet has been rendered incapable of challenging any sizeable American Naval force for some time.

The Imperial fleet, he said in a Navy Day address, "right now is limping away from the scene of its disaster."

(In New York, Adm. Ernest J. King said the Japanese fleet had been reduced 'to not more than one-half of its maximum strength.")

"It seems probable," Adm. Sherman added, "that the Japanese will not give up the Philippines without a hard, strenuous fight, but our success here will give us the bases for further operations.

"It will be a long time before the Japanese fleet again is fit for sea."

Official communiques, based upon incomplete reports, have listed a minimum of 27 Japanese warships sunk or damaged in the three engagements which saved the Leyte island beachhead. Eyewitness accounts and other reports have said the total will be considerably larger.

(Navy Secretary Forrestal said in an address prepared for a Chicago Navy league dinner that the Philippine battles "laid up, at least temporarily, two-thirds of the Japs' battleships. It chewed up a sizable portion of their carriers. And it subtracted further from an inadequate number of cruisers and destroyers.")

Only Princeton Identified

The Navy's announcement identified only the light carrier Princeton among the lost American warships. The unnamed vessels were two escort carriers, two destroyers and one destroyer escort.

Details of personnel losses were not released, pending notification of next of kin, but it was unofficially estimated that the six vessels carried a total of around 3,900 officers and enlisted men.

Nimitz, however, already had said that the Princeton's captain, 133 other officers and 1,227 enlisted men had been saved from the carrier.

While saddened by the American sea losses, which total 217 ships destroyed or overdue and presumed lost since the Pearl Harbor attack, the nation celebrated today the 169th anniversary of the United States Navy.

The defeat of three Japanese forces in the Philippines area Monday and Tuesday saved Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ground invaders on Leyte island from possible disaster, and at the same time became for the United States a victory of historic significance. It may serve to shorten the war in the Pacific.

Tokyo broadcast an Imperial headquarters communique admitting six Nipponese warships had been sunk and two damaged—an increase over the enemy's previous admissions. The new figure included a carrier, a battleship, two cruisers and two destroyers sunk; a carrier and a battleship damaged.

stroyed to prevent capture. The total of ships sunk, overdue or destroyed consequently comes to 217.

Remnants of the once-proud Japanese Imperial Fleet—which, it can now be disclosed, actually penetrated the Gulf of Leyte and attacked the transports engaged in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's landings—were still under relentless air pursuit. Gen. MacArthur announced today that his land-based Liberators have damaged an enemy light cruiser in the Mindanao Sea.

OCT 28 1944

Guadalcanal Total May Be Exceeded.

But, without the continuing achievements, the already accomplished blows promise to lift Japan's losses beyond the thirty-five warships sunk or damaged off Guadalcanal

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—The Pacific Fleet lost six warships, the Navy announced today, in scoring its historic victory over the Japanese Navy in the Philippines this week. The enemy lost eight or more warships sunk and nineteen or more damaged.

The American losses were:

One light aircraft carrier, the U. S. S. Princeton, previously announced as lost; two escort carriers, two destroyers and one destroyer escort.

The names of the five unidentified ships will not be disclosed until the next of kin of casualties have been advised.

OCT 28 1944

The six ships probably carried a total of 3,900 men, at least one-third of whom were aboard the Princeton. In a previous announcement, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said that more than 1,300 officers and men were rescued from the Princeton.

Each of the carrier escorts carried probably 1,000 men, and each had a squadron of at least twenty-one planes. A destroyer normally carries a complement of about 200 men and a destroyer escort about 160.

The Japanese losses, with reports still incomplete, were:

Two carriers, five cruisers and one battleship, definitely sunk; one carrier and two battleships probably sunk, and seven battleships, five cruisers, four destroyers and "several" more destroyers damaged. This makes a total of twenty-seven plus the "several destroyers."

The American Navy now has made known the loss of 170 warships since the war began. In addition thirty-eight vessels, including twenty-seven submarines, are overdue and presumed lost, and nine ships have been destroyed in November, 1942.

Today Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, whose outnumbered Seventh United States Fleet turned the tide from threatened disaster into history-making triumph in the Gulf of Leyte, made clear much more remains to be catalogued officially. It was Admiral Kinkaid who split up his fleet, took on two enemy forces converging on the Leyte invasion scene and trounced both while submarines and warships and carrier planes of the Third United States Fleet under Admiral William F. Halsey Jr. surprised and dealt mortal blows to enemy carriers attempting a sneak punch from Formosan waters.

Today Admiral Kinkaid told an Associated Press correspondent in the Philippines that the Japanese risked from thirty-nine to forty-six warships in the two battles near Leyte, and that only twenty retired. That suggested that from nineteen to twenty-six enemy ships were bagged, although it did not say precisely that they were all sunk. The twenty which got away, however, were pursued by planes and, doubtless, as yet undisclosed damage was heaped on them.

[At Chungking today Gen. Stilwell's headquarters announced that Liberator bombers of the China-based fourteenth United States Air Force probably sank 8,800 tons of Japanese shipping and damaged 1,200 tons more in attacks yesterday on the remnants of a Japanese task force fleeing from the American sea and air forces in the Philippines. The attacks were carried out in the South China Sea east of the Luichow Peninsula, the communique said. Two direct hits were scored on a transport, a freighter was left listing and a tanker was bracketed by bombs and left sinking, and none of our aircraft was lost, it was added.]

Confirmed Ship Casualties.

The MacArthur and the Nimitz communiques on the two battles near Leyte, plus a dispatch from Rear Admiral Daniel Barbey's flagship, listed fourteen enemy warships confirmed as sunk or damaged in those two battles. Eight of the fourteen—two battleships, three cruisers and three destroyers—were sunk. Four battleships, a cruiser and a destroyer were damaged.

Incomplete reports on Admiral Halsey's blows dealt south of Formosa revealed that two enemy carriers were sunk, a large carrier and two battleships were probably sunk and two battleships and three cruisers were damaged. Still to be added to the number of ships damaged are several destroyers damaged.

The twenty-seventh ship definitely added to the known list was the light cruiser hit by Liberators in the Mindanao Sea, a sector through which one segment of the Japanese fleet would naturally flee after being forced back through the Surigao Strait. This was the fleet group which approached Leyte from the southeast and actually penetrated the gulf.

Gambled to Crush MacArthur.

When American fighter planes dropped through clouds on Tuesday (Wednesday, Philippines time) the pilots scarcely could believe their eyes when they saw Japanese battleships, cruisers and destroyers between Leyte Island and the American carriers. Admiral Kinkaid's estimate of perhaps forty-six enemy warships sent into action through the narrow straits of the Philippines was added to the known twelve sent south of Formosa.

That means that at least fifty-eight enemy warships were committed by Japan in her great gamble to break up the Philippines invasion. Of course, the figure is much higher because there were still other units of the Formosa group, including "a number of destroyers." There are reports that this group even comprised the bulk of the imperial fleet. Attempting surprise, it was surprised.

What Tokyo Says.

In a broadcast picked up at New York today by NBC, the Tokyo radio presented a new version of the battle off the Philippines, claiming that from October 24 to 26 the Japanese Navy sank 310,000 tons and damaged 370,000 tons of the American fleet. These figures were given out by the Japanese Board of Information, Tokyo said, and added: "Gen. MacArthur though he could come to the Philippines by radio propaganda, and had to pay dear."

The destruction of six Japanese warships—one aircraft carrier, one battleship, two cruisers and two destroyers—was admitted by Japanese Imperial headquarters in a broadcast recorded earlier by the FCC.

On the other hand, the Associated Press adds, Imperial headquarters toned down its own claims today. It alleged that seventeen American ships had been sunk and ten damaged from October 24 to October 26. Yesterday Imperial headquarters had said that seventy-eight American ships had been sunk or destroyed.

Tokyo Admits 6 Warships Lost,

OCT 28 1944

San Francisco, Oct. 27 (AP)—Destruction of six Japanese warships, including an aircraft carrier and a battleship, in the three-pronged naval-air battle off the Philippines was admitted by imperial Japanese headquarters in a broadcast today.

The broadcast, recorded here, admitted in addition to the carrier and battleship sunk, two cruisers and two destroyers were sunk and one carrier and one Japanese battleship "substantially damaged." The Japanese also admitted the loss of 126 planes.

Tones Down Claims

Imperial headquarters also toned down its claims of purported Americans losses. They claimed 17 American ships had been sunk and 10 damaged from October 24 to October 26. Those assertedly sunk included eight aircraft carriers, three cruisers, two destroyers and more than four transports. Seven United States carriers, one battleship and two cruisers, the Japanese said, were damaged.

In addition Imperial headquarters reported 500 American planes were shot down.

Jap Fleet "Retires"

Berlin broadcast a Tokyo dispatch saying that the Japanese fleet had retired after its raid on Allied naval units in Leyte Bay. The dispatch said Japanese planes still were conducting operations in the area.

Japanese Imperial headquarters claimed 16 American ships sunk or damaged in initial claims on October 25. Yesterday Imperial headquarters issued two communiques claiming an additional 62 sunk or damaged.

Because of numerous and conflicting broadcasts it is impossible to make an accurate check of the extravagant Japanese claims.

B-29 Base Hit, Japs Say

New York, Oct. 27 (AP)—A broadcast Japanese imperial headquarters communique recorded by the FCC today asserted that Japanese planes had destroyed 42 Superfortresses and set 15 more on fire in a raid last night on an American air base at Chengtu, China.

The communique said Japanese planes made a surprise attack on the air base, northwest of Chungking, and destroyed the giant ships on the ground.

There was no Allied confirmation of such a raid.

Surprise Turned On Jap Ships

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 27 (AP)—A powerful Japanese carrier force bearing down from Formosa to surprise American invasion troops and warships in the Philippines was itself surprised by alert United States carrier planes, and thus suffered a stinging initial setback.

The American aircraft spotted the carriers, part of a three-way Japanese naval stab, and roared in with such ferocity the enemy could put up only weak defense.

Thus the vital element of surprise worked in reverse for the Japanese in this week's historic naval and air engagement.

Strategy Of Battle

This is how the battle developed:

The Japanese sent three naval task forces converging on Admiral William F. Halsey's Third fleet, lying east of the Philippines, and on Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's Seventh fleet, covering Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Leyte invasion.

All three were sighted Monday. A submarine made first contact Monday morning, reporting that four battleships, 10 cruisers and about 13 destroyers were moving northeast through the South China Sea.

Force Seen In Sulu Sea

This fleet, probably from Singapore, continued a course along Palawan Island, turned through Mindoro Strait into the Sibuyan Sea and headed southeast toward Leyte.

Planes, presumably from Admiral Kinkaid's escort carriers, discovered a smaller Japanese force Monday afternoon steaming northeast through the Sulu Sea toward Leyte.

This consisted of two battleships, one cruiser and four destroyers. They may have been from Singapore or may have been detached from the Imperial task force which two weeks ago refused to meet the Halsey force off Formosa. This group eventually reached Leyte Gulf before it turned back.

Carrier Force Detached

The third armada was a carrier task force comprising what may have been the bulk of the Imperial fleet, including at least three carriers, four battleships, five or six cruisers and possibly 15 destroyers moving south of Formosa.

Admiral Halsey ordered full speed toward this Formosa carrier force. Meanwhile, he detached a strong carrier force from his mighty armada to speed west and engage the Japanese battleship units from the Sibuyan Sea.

Both Japanese battleship forces were attacked repeatedly Monday afternoon by planes from Admiral Kinkaid's escort carriers. In the larger northern force from the Sibuyan Sea, United States pilots damaged all four battleships with bombs and torpedoed one of the battleships and one cruiser. They also bombed both battleships and strafed severely all lighter units in the Sulu Sea force.

Despite damage, both enemy battleship forces continued toward Leyte with suicidal desperation—and a suicidal move it became.

Steamed Through Strait

The Sibuyan Sea battleship force steamed through San Bernardino Strait, between Luzon and Samar islands, Monday night. Tuesday morning it engaged one lightly protected Kinkaid escort carrier group in the first surface battle since the battle of Empress Augusta Bay in November, 1943.

Allied cruisers and destroyers returned the fire, supported by airplanes from both the Kinkaid escort carrier force and a strong group of large carriers which were rushed over by Halsey. The combined aerial surface attack routed this Japanese force, which Tuesday night fled back through San Bernardino Strait.

This battle cost the Japanese one heavy cruiser sunk by aircraft and one by ships' gunfire, four battleships heavily damaged by bombs and fleeing, trailing oil, and one destroyer left dead in the water.

Princeton Mortally Wounded

This action presumably was the one in which supporting Japanese land-based planes mortally wounded the light carrier USS Princeton.

MacArthur reported Allied casualties as one unidentified escort carrier sunk and several escort carriers and destroyers damaged.

The Sulu Sea battleship force steamed through Surigao Strait into Leyte Gulf Monday night and attacked transports, and other auxiliaries engaged in MacArthur's landings. Allied surface units rushed to counterattack. It is known that cruisers and destroyers participated but it is uncertain whether battleships made contact with the Japanese.

Force Completely Routed

MacArthur reported that this Sulu Sea force was "completely routed," losing a battleship of the Yamashiro class, plus a cruiser and several destroyers. This battleship earlier was reported damaged by aerial bombs. The Japanese force fled back through Surigao Strait and was subjected to aerial attack again Tuesday morning.

Presumably it was this action in which the H. M. S. Australia was superficially damaged. MacArthur reported extremely light losses in Leyte Gulf, saying several P-T boats were sunk or damaged and one destroyer was damaged.

The fiercest though shortest of the three battles began Tuesday morning when Admiral Halsey engaged the imperial carrier force from Formosa about 300 miles northeast of Luzon.

Japs Caught By Surprise

Repeated carrier-plane attacks took the Japanese so completely by surprise they were able to launch only a few aircraft.

Aerial bombing and torpedoing was followed Tuesday night by cruiser and destroyer bombardment of Japanese cripples.

Admiral Nimitz's first incomplete report on this action listed two carriers and two light cruisers as definitely sunk, one carrier and two battleships probably sunk and two battleships, three cruisers and a number of destroyers damaged.

He said none of the United States ships was damaged although attacked by Luzon-based land planes.

The toll in all three phases—with reports still incomplete—is two carriers, five cruisers and one battleship definitely sunk; one carrier and two battleships probably sunk; and seven battleships, three cruisers and several destroyers damaged.

This totals 21 warships immobilized plus "several destroyers reported damaged by MacArthur and "a number of destroyers" listed as damaged by Nimitz.

The official toll in all three phases—with reports stil incomplete—is two carriers, five cruisers and one battleship definitely sunk; one carrier and two battleships probably sunk, and seven battleships, four cruisers, four destroyers and "several" more destroyers damaged.

This makes a total of 26, plus the "several destroyers." MacArthur reported another cruiser subsequently hit, bringing the toll to 27.

JAPANESE NAVY DRAWN INTO TRAP

By SPENCER DAVIS

ABOARD ADM. THOMAS C. KINKAID'S FLAGSHIP, Leyte, Oct. 27—(AP) The Japanese battle force of 13 to 15 warships which entered Surigao straits before down Oct. 25, were victims of the gambler's maxim, "never give a sucker an even break."

That was the basis for the action, said Rear Adm. Jesse Oldendorf, whose forces annihilated the Japanese in a four-hour engagement.

The Japanese were suckers enough to enter the strait. Oldendorf didn't give them a chance to survive.

The Admiral placed his cruisers and destroyers on either flank and threw his battle line of pre-Pearl Harbor battleships squarely across the strait off point Mingatungen, some 30 miles inside the entrance. A number of PT boats waited for the first contact.

Shortly after midnight the enemy force began to sweep into the comparatively narrow waters of the strait. The little PT boats sent back word that the Japanese ships were "big ones."

There were two Nipponese battleships, five cruisers and six to eight destroyers grouped in two divisions.

About 3 a. m. the Japanese force was roughly 20 miles inside the strait when Oldendorf ordered his destroyers to make a close-quarter torpedo attack.

The destroyers steamed swiftly to either side, then the American battleships under command of Rear Adm. George Lenweyler opened up with heavy salvos from 16,000 to 17,000 yards.

There was a blaze of fire as those salvos landed. Oldendorf said, "Some of the enemy sank, some blazed with fire, but they kept coming forward another 6,000 yards before they turned away."

"We gave them hell on the turn," he said. "Instead of turning simultaneously they turned in column. It was the sort of naval battle you dream about. We completely crossed their 'T.'"

One of the cruiser forces, commanded by Rear Admiral Russell S. Berkey and the other by Read Admiral George Haler, hit the enemy from all sides at once.

Five, six, eight, 14 and 16 inch guns opened up after a smashing torpedo attack.

Our big guns fired almost continuously from 4 A. M. until 5 A. M. The Japanese returned fire at our almost perfect semi-circle of exploding guns, but succeeded only in damaging one destroyer, Admiral Oldendorf said.

"At one time there were eight enemy ships turning simultaneously," Admiral Oldendorf said. "One large cripple, which we believe was a battleship, with two destroyers alongside, was making 11 knots when one of our battleships landed a salvo directly on the target. All three ships sank. There was a large enemy destroyer ablaze in the center of the straits, but it still was able to fire.

"Then the cruisers got him under fire and sank him. By this time the remnants of the enemy fleet was starting to flee and the cruisers pursued."

ENEMY FLEET 'LIMPING AWAY

Japanese Can't Challenge U.S. Navy Now, Nimitz Says

Honolulu, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Japanese fleet has been rendered incapable of challenging any sizable American naval force for some time by the enemy's "smashing defeat" in Philippine naval battles, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said today.

The imperial fleet, he said in a Navy Day address, "right now is limping away from the scene of its disaster."

"The supreme test" with the Japanese, he said, "will come in the year ahead."

The admiral, addressing the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, said in connection with the recent Philippine battles that "although the full extent of his (the enemy's) losses are not yet completely known, it is safe to say they are so great as to render his fleet incapable of challenging any sizable portion of ours for some time to come."

4,000-Mile Bridge

"In a year's time," Nimitz said, "our combined forces have built a bridge extending more than 4,000 miles westward from Pearl Harbor to Palau, the Marianas and the western Carolines.

"In 12 months we have captured 13 major bases, heavily fortified by the enemy, and rendered many more bases valueless.

"We have, in the last few days, dealt the enemy a smashing defeat in the second battle of the Philippine Sea. . . ."

The admiral added that the "advance across the Pacific has carried America's vast fighting power to the very door of Japan's inner defenses, and up to last week's Philippines campaign has cost the enemy 80,000 first-line troops killed as well as 95,000 in men isolated on islands.

3,000 Enemy Planes Lost

"In the last five months, 900 enemy ships have been sunk or damaged by the Pacific fleet. More than 3,000 of their aircraft were lost in the air and on the ground.

"We have been fortunate," he added, "in sustaining but meager losses in the number of important surface ships lost in the Pacific during the last year—right up through the operations of this week."

The Pacific commander praised civilian workers. "The vast outpouring of military supplies and equipment," he said, "is the best evidence that American labor and management are on the job, working hard."

Teamwork Cited

Military progress in the Pacific, he declared, is due to greatly increased skill in amphibious warfare and to teamwork and unity of command.

"We have cleared out of the way a number of essential preliminaries to tackling the main strength of the enemy. The supreme test will come in the year ahead."

Jap Cabinet In Session

San Francisco, Oct. 27 (A.)—"Matters requiring immediate attention," were discussed by Premier Kuniaki Koiso and his ministers today, the Japanese radio announced.

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said it was a regular Cabinet meeting. The broadcast was directed to empire areas.

DEFEAT BRINGS NEW SHAKE-UP IN TOKYO

San Francisco, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—The Tokyo radio said that Emperor Hirohito today hurriedly approved a Japanese reorganization plan to rejuvenate the machinery for advising the Premier. The change in the advisory system and personnel reflected the impact of military and naval defeats in high administrative quarters.

The announcement was made by the Japanese Board of Information in a broadcast recorded by the FCC. It said that efficient and capable persons would fill the new posts. It explained the change by saying that the war situation had become more pressing than ever and that the management of national affairs had become more and more delicate.

"Matters requiring immediate attention," were discussed by Premier Kuniaki Koiso and his Ministers today, the Japanese radio announced earlier.

AIR GROUP 2 RELIEVED

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 24 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Naval Air Group 2, which put its fiery curse upon 402,050 tons of Japanese shipping and 550 Japanese planes from Makin to Manila during less than one year of combat, is homeward bound for rest and reassignment.

The group, stationed aboard an Essex class carrier since last March, established a record for carrier aircraft by shooting down 264 enemy planes and destroying 275 on the ground, while an attached detachment of night fighters shot down an additional eleven planes.

8 SHIPS TORPEDOED

Canberra, Australia, Friday, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Prime Minister John Curtin announced today that eight merchant ships, including three United States freighters, were torpedoed off the eastern Australia coast between July, 1942, and December, 1943.

Four of the vessels were sunk, but the remainder reached port safely. Casualties totaled 156 killed and nine injured.

These attacks were in addition to those already announced by the Government or military communiques.

Argentina Asks Parley At Ministerial Level

OCT 28 1944

Calls For Conference Of All Foreign Ministers In The Americas; Expresses Concern Over Relationships

Buenos Aires, Oct. 27 (AP)—In a memorandum expressing concern over the situation "facing the concert of American nations because of the attitude assumed by some of its governments regarding Argentina," the Argentine Government tonight called for a conference of all Foreign Ministers in the Americas.

The Foreign Ministry announced that the request for such a convocation was made in a note handed by the Argentine charge d'affaires in Washington, Rodolfo Garcia Arias, to the Pan-American Union.

"Argentina is accused of the alleged failure to observe its international commitments, which in view of the nature of the commitments involves a problem which interests not one country, or group of countries, but an entire continent," the memorandum said.

Step Called Important

In the proposed conference, the memorandum added, "all American countries without exception would have an opportunity to express their viewpoints."

"In making this proposal, the Argentine Government clearly recognizes the unusual importance of its step," the statement said. "It is not in practice customary for a country to wish to consider together with its equals the fundamental aspect of its international conduct."

Solidarity Challenged

Washington, Oct. 27 (AP)—The present militarist regime in Argentina, which the United States and virtually all other American nations refuse to recognize, appeared tonight to be trying to raise a challenge to this country's role in Pan-American affairs and to break down hemisphere solidarity.

This was the interpretation first placed in diplomatic quarters here on the announcement at Buenos Aires tonight that the Argentine Foreign Ministry had presented to the Pan-American Union here a request for an early meeting of American Foreign Ministers.

State Department Silent

The State Department declined any immediate comment. It was considered possible that the official position would be to ignore the whole matter on the ground that it lacked the backing of a proper government.

In proposing a Foreign Ministers' meeting, the Argentines have acted upon what some American diplomats here regard as a developing issue between Washington and some of the other Western Hemisphere capitals. In recent weeks there has been increasing talk among non-United States diplomats of need for such a meeting.

Idea Opposed

The United States' official position has been that no formal proposal for a conference has been made, and it was clear that officials here opposed the idea. Edward R. Stettinius acting Secretary of State, has chosen instead to confer with ambassadors of the other countries (except Argentina) on the current topic of chief importance, the would security plan and its relation to the Pan-American system.

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today the names of 168 casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 69,870 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 27,963 are reported dead, 27,919 wounded, 9,508 missing and 4,480 prisoners of war.

Victory Hailed in Britain

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, hailed today the American Navy's "great and enduring victories in the Pacific."

In a Navy Day greeting to United States Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal, Mr. Alexander said the British Navy soon would be in the Pacific in force to join "the concentrated attack" upon Japan.

U. S. Fleet Is Jubilant As It Marks Navy Day

OCT 28 1944

Twelve Marylanders hold flag rank. Dispatch on Page 40.

Washington, Oct. 27 (AP)—The United States navy proudly celebrated its 169th anniversary today, all hands jubilant over what may prove to be its biggest victory in battle.

Exultation is evident throughout the navy as word spreads of the crushing defeat handed the Japanese navy by the Pacific fleet in the Philippines area.

But with it all there is a note of caution, from Navy Secretary Forrestal himself, who said last night that despite blasting of "30-odd Japanese warships" the enemy still has a sizable fleet.

Unofficial figures show that this fleet may total as many as 175 warships of all types, excluding submarines, and Forrestal says formally:

Extent Of Damage Unknown

"Many remaining ships — a sizable fleet in themselves—remain afloat, more or less seriously damaged. As we know from our own experience crippled vessels may be able to limp to port, undergo repairs and come out and fight again. Therefore, although the temporary damage which we have inflicted upon the Japanese navy is heavy, they may be able eventually to repair a part of that damage."

But, the extent of the damage to the Jap fleet—whether the ships are out of action permanently—may not be known for days. Vice-Admiral R. S. Edwards, deputy commander in chief of the United States Fleet, called attention to this lack of specific information, saying:

"I wish I had a complete picture myself. However, the details of a battle so vast and complex do not become known for a considerable time."

"Significant Step"

Regardless of the final count, there seems to be agreement that the Japanese fleet is crippled and never again can hope for any degree of success in a large scale naval engagement. It must confine efficient and logical operations to harassment of American convoys and small naval units.

"The Japs have failed," said Edwards bluntly in asserting they had attempted to halt liberation of the Philippines. "Their fleet is badly hurt. Consequently, the battle of the Philippines may be said to be a significant step toward the eventual defeat of Japan."

One naval officer expressed much of the general elation of the navy at the Japanese "cooperation" in bringing about the Philippines battle, by declaring:

"The Japs really gave us something to celebrate on this navy day."

Sense Of Security

Similar opinions came from others in Washington, and the sense of security and strength built up by the fact that the navy is the strongest in world history daily becomes more evident.

Outstanding as an example of the confidence of high naval officers in the strength and power of the fleet is the release for the first time of resumes of battle history of 103 major warships—and the naming of their commanding officers and oceans in which they operated as of the middle of August.

These resumes show that at least 16 battleships and 37 cruisers are on Pacific duty, and at least four battleships and 10 cruisers were in the Atlantic area at the time of the invasion of southern France.

Commissioning Disclosed

Also the navy disclosed for the first time by name, the commissioning of two big new battleships, the Wisconsin and Missouri, two battle cruisers (a new type of ship described unofficially as "pocket battleships") and eight new cruisers.

Throughout the nation today, celebrations of all types were held to commemorate the date in 1775 when the Continental Congress first received legislation creating an independent fleet.

The annual celebration of Navy Day also is a tribute to Theodore Roosevelt, whose birthday was October 27. He is credited widely with being the father of the modern navy; in 1907 he sent the fleet on a world tour to display American naval might.

JAPAN'S NAVY CUT TO HALF STRENGTH

Admiral King, Marshall And Halifax Applaud Victory

New York, Oct. 27 (AP)—Admiral Ernest J. King said tonight that the battle of the Philippines reduced the Japanese fleet "to not more than one half of its maximum strength."

The fleet commander in chief gave this appraisal in an address before the Navy League, and endorsed a statement by Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., commander of the Third Fleet, that "it is a certainty that the Japanese navy has been beaten, routed and broken."

King mentioned no figures on the number of Japanese vessels whose immediate usefulness was destroyed. Obviously, however, his estimate referred to the battle's effect on fire power and fighting ability of the enemy fleet rather than the number of its warships.

Halifax Praises Victory

Also appearing before the Navy League were Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador, and Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

Calling it a high privilege to render homage to the navy "on the morrow of so resounding a victory," Halifax said, "the Japanese strategic plan has crumbled into ruin."

"The Japanese had not foreseen," he said, "the speed with which the losses at Pearl Harbor would be made good, or the skill and courage with which the navy of the United States would fight back."

General Marshall, along with paying tribute to the navy, cautioned against any home-front "belief that the war is practically over in Europe and we are free to turn to other interests."

Just Back From Europe

Just back from a visit to France and Belgium, Marshall said he hoped soldiers fighting "in the present bitter grip of battle" hear no echo of such ideas at home.

"I am fearful of the revulsion of feeling that would follow such a disclosure in the midst of the present battle when the greatest concentration of effort is imperative if we are to bring this war to an early conclusion," he said.

Saluting the navy, Marshall said it "convoyed our armies to Africa, Italy and France and has now made possible our reentry into the Philippines."

"I do not know of another instance in the history of warfare in which an army and a navy, each with its complex organization and system of command, have pulled together so effectively as members of a team," he asserted.

Allies To Press Battle

After giving his appraisal of the battle of the Philippines, King declared:

"The enemy is welcome to know that we shall continue to press them with every means at our command. The enemy already knows — the world knows — that, when the war in Europe releases the powerful forces engaged there, the greater part of them will be brought to bear against Japan.

"It would seem that even the sons of—heaven—can read that handwriting in letters so tall and so clear that they are visible around the world."

GREW EXPECTS JAP PEACE BID

OCT 28 1944

Former Envoy Calls Upon Tokyo To Consider Now

Washington, Oct. 27 (AP)—Calling upon the Japanese to surrender unconditionally, Joseph Clark Grew American Ambassador to Japan from 1932 to Pearl Harbor, tonight warned the American people that with the Japanese fleet defeated in a major battle "an enticing peace offer may come from Japan at any time."

In a Navy Day radio address Grew told a Navy League audience here that "there are many shrewd level-headed, coldly calculating Japanese—including not only some of their statesmen but also men such as those who built up the great business houses and shipping companies and industrial concerns of Japan.

"Before the complete ruin of Japan these men are almost certain to make an attempt to save something from the wreckage."

Looks For Liberal Cabinet

Grew foresaw that they would make some former statesman bearing a "liberal" label Prime Minister and reinforce him with an ostensibly liberal Cabinet. They might even offer to withdraw from Manchuria, he suggested.

The Japanese will try to make peace, he said, because a growing number of them realize "beyond peradventure that they are going to be defeated, that their merchant fleet is being whittled down to the vanishing point, that their war plants are gradually being blotted out of existence, and that their gangster loot will eventually be taken from them.

Bans Compromise Peace

"... We must not, under any circumstances, accept a compromise peace, no matter how alluring such a peace may be or how desirous we may become of ending this terrible conflict."

Grew said the only alternative remaining to Japan is to surrender unconditionally now if it would avoid useless sacrifice of lives and wholesale destruction.

"I address these words directly to the more intelligent elements in that misguided country," he declared.

ADM. FITCH PRAISES U.S. THIRD FLEET

ATLANTA, Oct. 27 — (AP) Vice Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch of the United States Navy said tonight that "Navy Day finds us at the Philippines and knocking on the very door to Tokyo because of the brilliant achievements by Admiral Halsey's Third Fleet in the Ryukyus and Formosa."

The vice admiral, deputy chief of Naval operations (air) in a prepared Navy day address, added that United States Naval forces "have seriously crippled but not destroyed the Japanese Navy," and declared the "greatest part of our job remains ahead."

Of successes in the Pacific, he said:

"We are dealing with vast differences and a stubborn foe. What we have done must not be compared with what remains to be done. The greatest part of our job lies ahead."

Establishment of bases from which to bomb Japan, the Vice Admiral said, would not be easy as the Japanese have cut China in two "and are in complete control of the China coast, the logical place for our air bases."

Japan has built up stockpiles to last two years, in case of blockade, Adm. Fitch said, and added:

"Japan has the will to win. Perhaps many of us thought she was talking loosely when she said she would spend fifty years at war and sacrifice ten million men. I have seen her fanaticism demonstrated in the Pacific and I, for one, take her at her word.

30. 24 — 19937

"Seventy million Japanese are totally mobilized. They think only of war. And to them, death is more acceptable than defeat."

U.S. SEEN AS GREATEST NAVAL POWER ON EARTH

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—(AP) Lt. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, U. S. Marine corps commandant, said tonight that our future security depends upon whether we "preserve naval power sufficient to impress upon any would-be international ruffians the suicidal futility of attacking us."

Our Navy has entered into almost every war as the underdog, Gen. Vandegrift said in a Navy Day address, "because after each war we have naively scrapped most of what we have built."

"Our Navy today," he said, "is bigger than the combined fleets of all the world five years ago. The United States has become, for the first time, the greatest naval power on earth."

The General said there still is a tough fight ahead in the Pacific; that the Japanese are prepared to put up a desperate battle in the hope that Americans will "grow impatient and fall prey to a compromise peace."

JAPS RELYING ON SUBMARINES

Cincinnati, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Belief that growing American naval power has force the Japanese to divert their submarines to logistical (supply-bearing) use came today from Rear Admiral De Witt Clinton Ramsey, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

"As the Japs' position changed from the offensive to the defensive," Admiral Ramsey told a press conference, "I believe they found it necessary to use their submarines for other than destructive purposes."

"We found that was the case at Bougainville and again in the eastern Marshalls," Ramsey commented.

17 U. S. Vessels Lost In Fight For France

Washington, Oct. 27 (AP)—Seventeen small naval vessels, including six landing ships and three mine sweepers, have been lost in European operations connected with the liberation of northern France, the Navy Department announced.

Largest of the ships was the Miantonomah, a mine layer carrying a crew of about 300 officers and men.

The navy attributed the losses to enemy action or the perils of the sea.

All next of kin of casualties have been notified.

TO RETAIN 4 PLANTS

Great Lakes, Ill., Oct. 27 (A. P.).—The Navy announced today that naval ordnance plants at Canton, Ohio; Louisville, Ky.; Forest Park, Ill., and Indianapolis, Ind., would be retained as a part of the permanent ordnance shore establishments of the Navy.

A policy statement to employees by the Navy Department Bureau of Ordnance said new naval ordnance plants were operated through commercial contractors, instead of directly, but congressional authorization limited such contractor-operator arrangements to the period of the war and six months thereafter.

Japs Began Fight At Full Strength

Chicago, Oct. 27 (AP)—Japan's navy entered the Philippines battle "as strong or stronger in some major units" as at the start of the war, but fled "in straitened circumstances," James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, said tonight.

Reports from the scene, Forrestal said at a Navy League dinner, show that the battle "laid up, at least temporarily, two thirds of the Japs' battleships. It chewed up a sizable portion of their carriers. And it subtracted further from an inadequate number of cruisers and destroyers."

But, he added:

"Let me say again that crippled ships may live to fight again, and we never scratch a Jap vessel unless we see it go down."

Strength Built Up

The Nipponese fleet, Forrestal said, built up its strength in hiding for nearly two years. When it finally challenged American fire power it was as strong or stronger in battleships and carriers as when the war began.

In repair and replacement efforts, Forrestal pointed out, the Japanese will be working against this year's scheduled additions to the United States Navy, already "the mightiest sea power in history." He gave these reinforcement figures: 27,000 aircraft, 2 45,000-ton battleships, 7 big carriers, 40 escort carriers, 15 cruisers, 85 destroyers, over 200 destroyer escorts, about 80 submarines, 31,000 landing craft.

Each of the four pillars of Japanese strength—army, navy, merchant shipping and air power—is "cracked and weakened," Forrestal said, but holds together because of "barbaric and fanatic determination."

CIVIL AIR PARLEY DELEGATES PICKED

Washington, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—The State Department today announced the composition of a ten-member delegation, headed by Assistant Secretary Adolf A. Berle Jr., to the International Civil Aviation Conference which opens at Chicago next Wednesday.

The delegates, designated by President Roosevelt to represent this country in what has been described as the aviation branch of the peace conference, will have a staff of four consultants, seven advisors and nine technical experts.

Serving as delegates with Mr. Berle will be:

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, L. Welch Pogue, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board; Edward Warner, CAB vice-chairman; William A. M. Burden, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Air; Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd (retired), of Boston; Chairman Bailey (D.-N. C.) of the Senate Commerce Committee; Senator Brewster (R.-Me.), a member of the Commerce Committee, and Representatives Bulwinkle (D.-N. C.) and Wolverton (R.-N. J.).

Appointed as consultants were Artemus L. Gates and Robert A. Lovett, aAsistant Secretaries for Air of Navy and War, respectively; Major-Gen. C. R. Smith of the Air Transport Command, and Dr. J. C. Hunsaker, chairman of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronuatics.

The advisors will be John C. Cooper, vice-president of Pan American Airways; Ralph Damon, vice-president of American Airlines; Carleton Putnam, president of Chicago & Southern Airlines; Col. H. R. Harris, chief of staff of the Air Transport Command; Frank Russell, manager of the National Aircraft War Production Council and president of the Cerro de Pasco Copper Company; Stephen Latchford, Adviser on air law in the aviation division of the State Department, and Commander Paul Richter of the Navy.

D'OLIER TO MAKE BOMBING SURVEY

OCT 28 1944

Washington, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—The creation of a bombing survey mission, headed by Franklin D'Olier, industrialist and insurance official, to appraise the effectiveness of strategic bombing of Germany's war economy was announced today by the War Department.

The mission, acting under presidential authorization, will undertake the survey "for the benefit of the American people," the department said. While the announcement did not detail reasons for the survey, apparently one purpose is to provide information based on a study by civilian experts for comparison with the findings of purely military agencies.

The advance of land armies across Europe and into the edge of Germany now makes possible an on-the-scene inspection of bomb damage for comparison with estimates based on aerial photographic interpretation.

Mr. D'Olier, a resident of Morristown, N. J., is president of the Prudential Insurance Company and a director in several large concerns, including the General Refractory Company, and the Pennsylvania Railroad. Oil plants and transportation have had high priority on the Allied air forces' list of Nazi targets.

Mr. D'Olier retired after service in world war 1 with the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Italo-American Relations Are Clarified

OCT 28 1944

Washington, Oct. 27 (AP)—Acting Secretary of State Stettinius said today that the resumption of formal diplomatic relations with Italy—with whom we are still technically at war—is intended "to facilitate our return to a state of peace."

He issued at his press conference a statement intended to clarify just where American-Italian relations stand at this point.

The statement made these points:

1. The United States and Italy are still formally at war.

2. The United States and Italy cannot make peace before there is a peace conference and a treaty is drawn up and submitted to Congres.

3. Meanwhile Italy is a "cobelligerent" of the United States and other Allied powers in fighting the common enemy, Germany.

4. As a result of joint Allied action earlier this week, the Italian Government is now formally recognized as a friendly Government, but it remains in large measure under Allied military control.

Cites Italians' Efforts

Stettinius said the diplomatic action was in recognition of the efforts of the Italian people "to establish a healthy political basis for government," to create a representative government out of anti-Fascist groups, and to aid the "bitter struggle against our common enemy."

"The resumption of diplomatic relations with Italy," he said, "does not reestablish peace, nor does it settle the many questions which will have to be dealt with before a formal state of peace is declared.

"Only the Congress can pass upon that final step. The resumption of formal relations with Italy is intended, however, to facilitate our return to a state of peace, which is, of course, an objective of our Italian policy."

Called Basic Policy

In response to questions Stettinius said it is basic policy to return control over Italian affairs to the Italian Government as rapidly as that can be done.

Asked why the United States recognized the de Gaulle Government in France only on a "provisional" basis, while it recognized without qualification the Government of Italy, Stettinius replied by saying he thought the time would come when all the occupied countries would have their own governments.

Greeks Get 7 Liberty Ships

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Two additional Liberty ships have been allocated to the Greek Government, making seven of these freighters chartered to the Greeks, the War Shipping Administration announced today. Ownership of the vessels remains vested in the United States.

Ex-Guatemala Leader Is In New Orleans

New Orleans, Oct. 27 (AP)—Jorge Ubico, former President of revolt-torn Guatemala who was grounded for three days at Brownsville, Texas, watched the Navy Day parade on Canal street here today and went shopping. Ubico and his wife arrived early today by plane.

E. J. Lagarde, of the New Orleans airport, a friend of Ubico who was with the general at his hotel here, said Ubico did not wish to discuss political questions at this time.

Lagarde reported that Ubico, the former "strong man" of Guatemala, was recuperating and wished to be alone.

Air Force Reduces Jet Plane Production

Buffalo, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—The Army Air Force has ordered a reduction in its contract for P-59 Airacomets, the first jet-propelled plane produced in this country, Bell Aircraft Corporation announces.

A company spokesman said last night that the firm will continue to produce Airacomets to meet its revised schedule. The reduction will have no effect on present employment levels, he declared.

The firm will remain active in jet research and continue to develop new designs for utilization of this form of power, the official asserted.

Big Budget For Rockets

Boston, Oct. 27 (AP)—Rear Admiral George F. Hussey, Jr., USN, chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, said today that early in 1945 the United States Navy will be expending $100,000,000 a month for rocket ammunition alone.

In a Navy Day address prepared for delivery before the Advertising Club of Boston, Admiral Hussey said "the over-all peak of ordnance expenditures will not be reached until the latter part of the first quarter of the coming calendar year. By that time our expenditures will be approximately $350,000,000 per month.

"Right now," he said, "we are expending approximately $100,000,000 per month for ammunition.

"By the time we reach the peak of our rocket program, which will be late in the first quarter or early in the second quarter of 1945, we will be expending $100,000,000 a month for this one type of ammunition."

Strike Situation Better Last Month

Washington, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Less time was lost through strikes in September than in August, the Labor Department Bureau of Labor Statistics reported.

Idleness was .09 of 1 per cent of the available working time, the bureau said. There were 390 strikes in September involving 185,000 workers and 660,000 man days of idleness, according to preliminary estimates. August strikes totaled 485, involving 190,000, and the number of man days lost totaled 935,000.

MESA WORKERS STRIKE IN 11 TOLEDO PLANTS

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 27.—(AP) Members of the Mechanics Educational Society of America began walkout of 11 manufacturing plants at mid-afternoon today and a union official said members in Detroit and Cleveland probably would follow shortly.

Earl Street, local secretary of the MESA, said the walkout would affect at least 4,500 men here and possibly 50,000 in other cities.

It was, he said, called in sympathy with 350 MESA members in four Toledo plants of the Electric Auto-Light Co., who quit Tuesday over what Streeter said was a protest that the company discharged six MESA members because they failed to maintain membership in the C.I.O.-United Automobile Workers which has a contract with the company.

UMW Makes New Charge

Washington, Oct. 27 (AP)—The United Mine Workers Journal suggested in an editorial today that Frances Perkins might be replaced by Anna Rosenberg, a Presidential labor adviser, as Secretary of Labor if President Roosevelt is reelected.

The Journal also contended editorially that the indorsement of President Roosevelt by Senator Ball (R., Minn.) was the result of "a vote-getting deal" managed by Harry Hopkins.

"If President Roosevelt is reelected he may appoint Anna Rosenberg as your next Secretary of Labor," said the Journal, official organ of John L. Lewis' mine union.

For Willkie In 1940

(Lewis, bitterly opposed to the President, indorsed Wendell L. Willkie in 1940 and has praised Governor Dewey this year.)

"This would be a clever maneuver—and he is good at maneuvering—to make the people think that he is making a long-demanded change," the editorial continued. "Certainly, the President has not guaranteed labor any representation if he is reelected. And labor can be assured that, regardless of all the Roosevelt Administration promises, the squire of Hyde Park will see to it that labor doesn't get a chance to plant its hoofs under the Cabinet table."

Calls Her Politician

The Journal described Mrs. Rosenberg, New York regional director for the War Manpower Commission and the United States Employment Service as "a personnel director for millionaire department-store owners" and "an out-and-out Roosevelt politician."

Jap-American Migration

Salt Lake City, Oct. 27 (AP)—Saburo Kido, president of the Japanese-American Citizens' League, said yesterday that he believed that West Coast Japanese-Americans who have settled in the East will not want to return after the war.

Sale And Rent Curbs Eased To Spur Housing

OCT 28 1944

Washington, Oct. 27 (AP)—Higher sale and rental ceilings on new houses, ranging up to an $8,000 purchase price and $65 a month rent in high-cost areas, were authorized today by the National Housing Administration and the War Production Board.

The action, coupled with the removal of all occupancy restrictions, applies to the NHA's so-called "H-2" housing program which was announced in July but stalled from the start because builders were not interested in building homes at the prices then specified.

80,000 Units Expected

Upward of 80,000 new units of "larger and better quality housing" are expected to result from the liberalization of rules. Many will be built to sell below $8,000 because the NHA will set lower ceilings, it was stated, in areas where less money is required to get needed homes built.

Lifting of occupancy restrictions means that persons other than war workers can buy or rent the new houses. Builders have held back in fear that prospective purchasers would move away when war industry is cut back.

The new step completes a liberalization program begun last week with the lifting of some restrictions on materials and design—a move which the NHA said would permit the building of houses "approximating pre-war standards."

"H-1" Limit Stands

The $8,000 and $65 limits replace ceilings of $6,000 and $50, which could be increased in some areas of high building costs to $7,500 and $62.50.

The $6,000 limit continues to apply to homes built under the "H-1" program—the original housing program for war workers newly entering a community. This program now is drawing to a close.

Housing quotas under the new program will be set for each locality, with maximum prices and rentals specified. Specific sale prices and rentals will then be approved by the NHA for each project as a condition to the granting of priorities for building materials.

CHARLES E. WILSON CANCELS SPEECHES

ATLANTA, Oct. 27 — (AP) Charles E. Wilson, recently resigned executive vice chairman of the War Production board, announced today cancellation of two postwar planning speeches at request of the War and Navy departments.

Wilson, who made the first of a scheduled series of talks to utility executives here last night, made public a joint telegram from Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal and Assistant Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson expressing apprehension that the meetings "might be misunderstood and taken to mean that needs of (war) production are declining."

The former WPB executive, who has resumed his post as president of the General Electric Co., was scheduled to address a planning meeting at New York Oct. 31-Nov. 1 and at Chicago Nov. 9-10. He previously had cancelled similar engagements at San Francisco and Dallas because of travel difficulties.

Praising industry for its war job, Wilson told the meeting last night it had been a "magnificent demonstration of America in action" by the "men in factories, and offices and laboratories, men on farms and in mines."

"It is not credit for their performance that they should seek as we come to the victory and the peace," he said, "but recognition of their own strength and their own importance in shaping tomorrow. They must not let themselves be shoved and jockeyed and bullied out of their rightful places as masters of their own fate by any handful of ideologists and rabble-rousers."

The Forrestal-Patterson telegram made public by Wilson said in part:

"We are receiving urgent appeals for war supplies on an increasing scale from the commanders of our fighting forces overseas. These demands make it plain that production of war material must be increased rather than reduced. In view of these facts, it seems to us that any meeting of your executives at this time to consider postwar planning might be misunderstood and taken to mean that needs of production are declining."

Money Spent By Democrats At $1,052,589

OCT 28 1944

Roosevelt Donates $1,000, Tobin, $1,000; Sinatra Gives $5,000 to P. A. C.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Democratic National Committee spent $1,052,589 between Jan. 1 and Oct. 25, out of $1,093,178 in contributions during the same period, it reported to the Clerk of the House of Representatives today. With a bank balance of $40,588 on Oct. 25, the national committee, in a report submitted by Miss Mae Oliver, assistant treasurer, said it had unpaid obligations of $131,015.40

The National Citizens Political Action Committee reported to the House Clerk that up to Oct. 23 it had received contributions totaling $271,531 and spent $165,018. The Political Action Committee reported that it had received $5,000 from Frank Sinatra, the singer.

The Democratic National Committee report showed that President Roosevelt, candidate for a fourth term, has contributed $1,000.

Among the various contributors were:

Francis Biddle, $500; Samuel Goldwyn, Hollywood, $5,000; Daniel J. Tobin, Indianapolis, $1,000; Dave Beck, Seattle, $500; Herman B. Also Democratic National Committee, Myron G. Blalock, Director, Dallas, $15,000; Louis Pokrass nd Harry Davis, 385 Gerard Avenue, Bronx, New York, $5,000 each.

Receipts of $912,713.18 from an. 1 to Oct. 25 were reported by he Pennsylvania State Republican nance Committee, which also id it had spent $609,477.17.

CHAIRMAN DEFENDS ONE THOUSAND CLUB

Chicago, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—The "One Thousand Club," described in a speech here Wednesday night by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as organized by the Roosevelt administration to "sell special privilege" to $1,000 donors to the Democratic fourth term campaign, is "non-partisan," says Frank J. Lewis, the group's national chairman.

Mr. Lewis, Chicago manufacturer, said last night that the club "has not sought and will not be entitled to receive patronage from any political party." He declared that there were prominent Republicans as well as Democrats among the organization's present members, and he added that all of them subscribe to the belief that President Roosevelt "should be permitted to carry on the present war to a conclusion."

Mr. Lewis, who is chairman of the Soldier Field rally that President Roosevelt is to address here tomorrow night, said that the club's policy was "to put the war above partisan politics, in so far as this election is concerned." Referring to the Republican presidential nominee's Chicago address, identifying the club as organized by the Roosevelt administration, he said that if Gov. Dewey had "consulted an officer or member of the club" he "could not, with any regard for the truth, have made the statements about the club that he did in Chicago."

Lewis, a former chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, said the club's birthplace was Chicago, not the White House, and that it was organized last September 11 by Mid-Western business and professional men "who in large part were not actively identified with either major political party."

ROOSEVELT SAYS REPUBLICANS PUT POLITICS 'FIRST'

Charges G.O.P. 'Intimating' Lack of Co-operation if Democrats Win.

CITES NAVAL POWER

Says Halsey's Fleet Begun Before '41; Thousands Hail Him in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27—(AP) President Roosevelt, in his fourth major speech for a fourth term, attributed to Republican politicians tonight a "deliberate and indefensible effort" to put political advantage over devotion to country and over avoidance of the agony of future wars.

"I do not think," he said, "that the American people will take kindly to this policy of vote my way or I won't play."

To thousands of Philadelphians in the stands of Shibe Park and spilling onto the ball field he gave, too, what he called a "once and for all" answer to opposition charges of unpreparedness.

Refers to Naval Strength

He pointed to the powerful warships of Admiral William F. Halsey's Third fleet and remarked that all its battlewagons, all its aircraft carriers and all but two of its cruisers were authorized by his administration before Pearl Harbor.

After a day of electioneering at Wilmington, Del., Camden, N. J., and here in Philadelphia, the Chief Executive motored from his special campaign train to the ball yard of the city's two major league teams. His car slid into second base, and he spoke from it on a platform in the middle of the infield. The address was broadcast.

It was right at the end that Mr. Roosevelt said Republican politicians were "clearly intimating" that party members in Congress would not cooperate, in the event of a Democratic election victory, in establishing a world organization for peace.

"That, it seems to me," he asserted, "is a deliberate and indefensible effort to place political advantage not only above devotion to country but also above our very deep desire to avoid the death and destruction which would be caused by future wars."

Ball Park Crowded

Long before that, crowds which had claimed all the 33,000 seats in the ball yard had begun yelling and applauding his remarks. The sleeve of a grey sweat shirt looking like long underwear stuck out of the President's coat when he took off his hat and waved at the audience.

For minutes before he began speaking, the crowd stood and cheered. And they broke into applause immediately when he classified the American Navy as bigger now than all the fleets of the world combined.

He drew a big hand when he spoke of the invasion of the Philippines and asked whatever became of criticism directed at him on grounds he had not sent enough forces or supplies to Gen. Douglas MacArthur for political reasons.

Dressed in a gray business suit, no hat or overcoat, Mr. Roosevelt's breath was visible in the frosty night air as he continued, making minor modifications in his text as he went along, emphasizing his words with vigorous movements of his head.

Boos welled through the ball yard when Mr. Roosevelt took a swipe at Thomas E. Dewey—not by name—but by singling out some of his campaign utterances and giving his answers to them.

The crowd got his point and laughed with the Chief Executive when he referred to the Constitution and said "I hope you will pardon me if I quote it correctly."

One signal for boos was the President's statement that a prominent Republican orator had described the administration as "the most spectacular collection of incompetent people who ever held public office."

Cites Jap Defeat

The audience whooped it up a moment later when he said Halsey's fleet had given the Japanese navy the worst licking in its history.

A reference to Democratic Vice Presidential nominee Truman and his record as chairman of a Senate War Investigating committee got a hand, and so did a declaration that American soldiers can take our militaristic enemies and beat them.

Volleys of cheers went up from the crowd when the President opened up with his pointed criticism of "some Republican politicians"—those he accused of putting politics above the prevention of future wars.

After Mr. Roosevelt finished speaking his car made a slow circuit of the ball park—a trip that brought the crowd to a frenzied rush across the field. So insistent was the throng that it was all mounted police could do to fight the spectators back from the President's car.

Several times men and women, ignoring the prancing legs of police horses, darted out into the procession. At one point the crowd swelled to the front of the official car, almost stopping its slow trip.

The President gave this promise:

"When this great job in winning this war is done, the men of our armed forces will be demobilized and returned to their homes just as rapidly as possible. The War and Navy departments are pledged to that. I am pledged to that. The very law of this land, enacted by the Congress, is pledged to that. And there are no strings attached to this pledge."

After all, he said, he could speak

OCT 28 1944

OCT 28 1944

30. 24— 19939

"as one who knows something of the feelings of a parent with sons who are in the line of battle overseas."

Hits at G.O.P.

Levelling directly at Republican politicians, the Chief Executive asserted there were some in and out of Congress, who are introducing into the campaign what he described as "a very ugly implication" of profound concern to all Americans.

He said they are stating that Republicans in Congress would cooperate with a Republican President in establishing a world organization for peace—"clearly intimating that they would not cooperate toward the same end in the event of a Democratic victory." He added:

"That, it seems to me, is a deliberate and indefensible effort to place political advantage not only above devotion to country, but also above our deep desire to avoid the death and destruction which would be caused by future wars."

As usual, the President refrained from mentioning Dewey by name. But he did talk about a Republican candidate, and a prominent Republican orator. There was no misunderstanding the identity of his target.

He mentioned glorious operations in the Philippines" and said he wondered "whatever became of the suggestion made a few weeks ago that I had failed for political reasons to send enough forces or supplies to General MacArthur."

Answers Criticism

With figures and names, the Chief Executive gave his "answer—once and for all—to a Republican candidate who said that this administration had made 'absolutely no military preparations for the events it now claims it foresaw'."

Starting with a Navy day theme, he asserted that the American fleet now is greater than all the navies of the world together, including "what was—until three days ago—the Japanese fleet." He mentioned 27 different landings in force on enemy-held shores in the last year, every one "a triumphant success."

The President said every battleship in "Admiral Halsey's powerful Third fleet which has just given the Japanese Navy the worst licking in its history" was authorized between 1933 and 1938 and construction on all of them had begun by September, 1940, more than a year before Pearl Harbor.

All but two of the cruisers in that fleet were authorized between 1933 and 1940, and construction had started on all but one, while all the aircraft carriers in the fleet were authorized and half were under construction before Pearl Harbor, Mr. Roosevelt added.

He said he wasn't supposed to mention it, and that he hoped he would be pardoned for quoting the Constitution correctly, but the President shall be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy. He said it was the duty of the Commander in Chief to appoint Secretaries of War and Navy and chiefs of staff and he felt no apologies were needed for his picking Secretary of War Stimson, the late Navy Secretary Frank Knox, his successor, James Forrestal, or the men of the Army and Navy high command.

He said teamwork with the Allies had been achieved through conference table efforts by those with final authority, although he was told a prominent Republican orator stated there were not five civilians in the national government with the confidence and respect of the American people.

Replies to Dewey

"In fact," the President asserted, "he described your present administration as "the most spectacular collection of incompetent people who ever held public office'."

"Well, now—that is pretty serious. The only conclusion to be drawn from that is that we are losing the war. If so that will be news to most of us—and it will certainly be news to the Nazis and the Japs."

Going back to the record, Mr. Roosevelt said it would show that almost from the first minute of his administration he started rebuilding a Navy which previous administrations had whittled down through "drastic false economy."

By way of contrast, he said that less than three months before Hitler launched a murderous assault on Poland, House Republicans voted 144 to 8 for cutting Air Corps appropriations.

When, in the Spring of 1940, he called for production of 50,000 planes, the President said, the same Republican candidate termed it a publicity stunt and said it would take four years to reach the goal.

Since then, he said, America has turned out more than 240,000 airplanes.

"The whole story of our vast effort in this war," the Chief Executive said, "has been a story of incredible achievement—the story of the job that has been done by an administration which, I am told, is 'old and tired and quarrelsome'."

Praises Truman

Then, with a word of praise for his running-mate, Senator Harry S. Truman, Mr. Roosevelt said that while doing the production job, the government, on a non-partisan basis, constantly investigated and publicized the whole management of the war effort. He directed a mention to the work done by a Senate committee over which Truman presided until nominated for the vice presidency.

Mr. Roosevelt also gave a measure of tribute to American businessmen who, he said, have displayed the highest type of patriotism by their devotion, industry, ingenuity, and cooperation with the government.

To families of the fighting men, the Commander-in-Chief promised that their boys always will be given the best equipment, arms, food and medical care that the resources and genius of the nation can provide.

Never in history, he said, have soldiers and sailors of any nation gone to battle so thoroughly trained, so thoroughly equipped, so well fed and so well supported.

Yet, he said the quality of our American fighting men is essentially a matter of spirit, expressive of their faith in America.

Discussing war strategy, Mr. Roosevelt said it was designed to bring battle to the enemy on his home grounds. He said it had three major phases. The first was "plugging the line" by stopping the advance of German and Japanese conquests short of Britain and Australia.

The second was shattering enemy outer defenses and establishing bases from which to launch major attacks.

Now, in Europe, the final, decisive phase of the attack on Germany itself has been reached, although "we have much longer and much farther to go in the war against Japan."

Goes to Chicago Next

This was the first of two major speeches scheduled on a fast, two-day bid for 95 vital electoral votes in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Indiana and Illinois. Tomorrow night the Chief Executive talks in Soldier's Field, Chicago.

Just as noisy, perhaps just as big, as in New York last Saturday, throngs of Philadelphians poured out an ovation to the President today as toured war establishments and passed three times through the heart of the city on a 45-mile automobile drive that required three and a half hours.

Part of the time they stood in a light rain to watch him roll past.

In fact, from the time he made a train platform' appearance at Wilmington, Del., late this morning, it was a toss-up whether it would rain on the sun would shine. In Navy cape, gray hat, with a robe over his lap, the Chief Executive was ready for whatever the weather man served up.

A trace of rain was on tap at Wilmington, where he urged a big vote Nov. 7, and added, laughing: "I won't urge you to vote early and often because if I did I might go to jail."

There was a heavier rain when he rode through thick crowds and storms of torn paper filtering down from open windows, in Philadelphia's busiest business district.

A few minutes later, across the Delaware river at Camden, N. J., Mr. Roosevelt eyed low-scudding clouds that still dripped inhospitable rain and told a throng at City Hall Plaza:

"Things are going along pretty well and I'm getting accustomed to the rain."

Valet Arthur Prettyman had gone along with a change of clothes, but they weren't needed. Mr. Roosevelt took nothing like the drenching he did in New York.

And, as in New York, he showed himself as candidate and Commander-in-Chief.

Visits Navy Yard

His first stop on a long motor tour of Philadelphia was at the Navy Yard—a Navy day appearance which brought a halt to all the work at the sprawling establishment. Mr. Roosevelt saw thousands of civilian workers clustered in roadways or jamming the superstructure of ships being built or getting battle damage mended.

He showed up, too, at a naval hospital, an Army quartermaster depot a Marine depot and the Cramp shipyards. And his tour took him through a smoking industrial district, where the Budd, Bendix, Midvale, and Philco companies are turning out war supplies by countless carloads.

Tremendous, vociferous crowds shrieked their greetings along the way, sometimes packed from buildings to street car tracks, sometimes breaking through police lines. And, of course, in some areas there are no spectators at all.

The reaction ranged from formal chants of "We want Roosevelt" and intimate calls of "Hi, Ya, Frankie, old boy," to demands for Thomas E .Dewey.

The steps of the Union League, traditional stronghold of Republicanism, were jammed with intent if undemonstrative spectators. At one point, a mass of Dewey literature poured down from a tall building and floated over the 50 odd cars in the presidential entourage.

NELSON SAYS U. S. NEEDS ROOSEVELT

Washington, Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Donald M. Nelson, describing himself as an independent voter, says the nation's chances of preventing future wars depend largely on President Roosevelt's statesmanship.

In a radio address last night urging the President's re-election, Mr. Nelson said "his (Mr. Roosevelt's) actions and words play a big part in shaping the attitude of our Allies; the attitude of neutrals, and even the morale of the enemy.

"The President's decisions can go a long way toward assuring post-war jobs for all and good wages for all. We need to elect a man who we know—not guess but know—is able to work out the great problems which lie before us."

The former War Production Board chairman described Mr. Roosevelt as the man with "the best know-how for that job."

The President, he said, has shown "how deeply he is devoted to democracy and the American way of life" in his relations with the WPB by backing a WPB policy of "fair play for business." This policy, Mr. Nelson said, kept controls at a minimum and "kept intact the basic institutions of the country."

Truman Asks Taft Defeat

With Truman En Route to Akron, Ohio, Oct. 27 (AP)—Senator Harry S. Truman invaded Ohio today to ask the defeat of Republican Senator Robert A. Taft in another lap of a transcontinental campaign tour into which, he says, "a reactionary, isolationist press" has sought to inject "a false" Ku Klux Klan issue.

The Democratic Vice-President nominee reiterated to reporters that he "never was, am not and never will be" a member of the Ku Klux Klan, and added, "anybody that knows me and my record knows how I fought and helped defeat Klan candidates in Missouri."

Desperate, He Says

Departing from his prepared farm-policy speech at Peoria, Ill., last night, Truman said:

"The isolationists are desperate to win this election. The Hearst papers even go so far as to call me a member of the Ku Klux Klan. That charge is a falsehood.

Truman said the nation's farm program, carried out by the Democratic Administration, has brought advances to the farmers "beyond anything they had ever experienced in tneir entire history."

Truman said that under Republican administrations the Government was "too busy helping big business to spare any time for the farmer."

Cites Bank Deposits

"In the hands of our farmers right now is approximately 12 billion dollars in cash in bank deposits and in war bonds," he added.

Truman planned to make brief stops this afternoon in Toledo and Cleveland before moving on into Akron tonight for a foreign-policy address. He said he would call for the defeat of Taft and the rejection "of Dewey's attempt to carry water on both shoulders" in an attempt to win votes "from both isolationists and advocates of a strong foreign policy."

DETROIT, Oct. 27 (AP).—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace cast his absentee Iowa ballot today and at a subsequent press conference announced to a group of news men that it had been a "straight Democratic ballot."

"You know," he said, after filling out the ballot in his hotel room here, "the more votes that are cast the more democracy you have."

The Vice-President, on a three-day campaign tour of Michigan, repeated the assertion he made in an address yesterday that President Roosevelt would carry Michigan by 100,000 votes.

He said he was trying to emphasize in his campaign talks "that the isolationists should be left at home, so that they will not prevent a permanent peace."

Asked about the likelihood of post-war controls, Mr. Wallace said he looked for some such controls; "otherwise," he said, "we will have inflation."

"But," he added, "that's not a political matter; it's simple business sense."

Hannegan Calls GOP 'Frantic, Hysterical'

New York, Oct. 27 (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan said today that injection into the campaign of references to the "One Thousand Club" and the charge—denied by Vice-Presidential Candidate Harry S. Truman—that Truman was a member of the Ku Klux Klan showed, "our opponents are frantic and hysterical."

"In these campaigns, when the opposition is reconciled that the cause is lost," Hannegan said at a press conference, "they do as some fighters do—hit below the belt in the hope of extricating themselves. . . . But we didn't think they would give up as they have two weeks in advance of election day."

Ickes And Ferguson Duel Over Air Waves

New York, Oct. 27 (AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes and Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) took each other on in Town Hall last night on the respective merits of President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Presidency and the referee had trouble keeping order.

Ickes called Dewey "an untruthful man" and "that intrepid young gladiator" and said "the nation will not permit a chocolate soldier to take over the war leadership in January, 1945."

Ferguson declared "the New Deal is bankrupt; bankrupt in principle, bankrupt in policies, bankrupt in personnel."

Applause And Boos

Throughout their hour debate, heard by a nation-wide radio audience, applause for each speaker was mixed with boos. Shouts of "No! No!" interrupted them and Moderator George V. Denny had to appeal several times for order. He ordered one heckler from the hall.

"Mr. Dewey's falsifications and distortions have demonstrated that he does not have the character for the highest office in the land," Ickes said. "They have also clearly shown that he is willing to achieve his ambition by doing mischief to his country and its allies."

"All Jobs Badly Done"

Said Ferguson:

"Every time the New Deal got its hands on a home-front job that job was badly done. . . . "New Deal policies are, of course, a reflection of New Deal bankruptcy."

"Mr. Roosevelt declared that bankruptcy himself when he said, 'we must anticipate that there may be unemployment during the period of reconversion.' He should have been devising means to avoid unemployment, not bemoaning its inevitable approach—but the New Deal was conceived in defeat and nurtured on planned scarcity."

BRICKER ATTACKS FDR ON 'FAILURE'

TO 'PREPARE' U.S.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 27 — (AP) Gov. John W. Bricker, labelling the President's foreign policy an "utter failure," declared tonight that for eight years Mr. Roosevelt failed to heed evidence of German and Japanese aggression.

During that period, said the Republican candidate for Vice President, the administration was "spending billions of taxpayers dollars on non-useful made-work and boondoggling" and "neglecting the defense of the United States."

"Even now Mr. Roosevelt is committing the same kind of blunders in handling foreign relations. He is pursuing a course of personal, secret diplomacy," Bricker said in a nation-wide broadcast.

The Ohio Governor selected the home grounds of his democratic rival, Senator Harry S. Truman, for one of the major addresses of the campaign.

It was here, he has said, that Senator Truman was boosted to political prominence by "the corrupt Pendergast machine."

Bricker reviewed the period of 1933 to 1941, and said that while Germany and Japan were preparing for large scale war and launching upon preliminary aggressions, Mr. Roosevelt continually talked disarmament and devoted his attention to a domestic program that included "attacks on business" and "his bitter fight to pack the Supreme court."

Says U. S. Warned

During that time, he added, the State department was advised of German-Japanese war developments and the President's military advisers cautioned him that the Army and Navy were not adequately prepared.

Not until May of 1940, after Japan invaded French-Indo China, Italy invaded Greece and Hitler conquered Norway, Denmark, France and the Low Countries, did the President "for the first time plainly" pointed out the danger to America and ask for rearmament, Bricker asserted.

"But even then he did not discuss the Japanese menace. Instead he turned his attention to the campaign of 1940."

Says President Erred

The Republican candidate summed up:

"Here then is the year to year account of the events that led up [illegible] Roosevelt to Pearl Harbor. Mr. Roosevelt gave word service to peace, did nothing to preserve it here or elsewhere. His foreign policy was an utter failure. He did not keep us out of war. Moreover, he knew, or should have known, that America would be drawn in. Yet he refused to take us into his confidence. He minimized the danger and lulled us into a sense of security until after the fall of France."

The Ohio Governor said "there is no reason whatever for believing that he will be any more successful in the future than he was in the past."

To meet the problems on international security, Bricker asserted, th e nation needs a President with "a fresh viewpoint"; "a world organization for peace" must be established, embodying a "world court to deal with international disputes"; and problems of world currency, markets and trade must be dealt with.

"We desperately need a president who will courageously speak out for America's convictions—who will speak with the same sturdy voice that Churchill speaks for Britain and Stalin speaks for Russia—and who will be just as diligent in protecting our own national rights as they are diligent in protecting theirs."

dealing with the record of President Roosevelt in international affairs and national defense. The speech will be broadcast (NBC) at 9:30 Central wartime, tonight.

Arbitrary Control by Bureaucrats.

In his speech here the Ohio Governor declared the farmer had turned against the New Deal because he had been subjected to "arbitrary control, often by bureaucrats who have no conception of his problems and processes."

"He recalls," Bricker continued, "promises the New Deal has made on his behalf — promises that were shamefully broken. He wonders what other promises have been made that he does not know about, what future New Deal and international controls are in store for the land."

As an example for what he described as misconception of the farmers' problems and mismanagement of the agricultural program, the vice-presidential nominee said that "hundreds of thousands of farmers all over the country were unable to get the machinery they needed in 1944."

Supplies Shipped Abroad.

Sees Farm Promises Broken

OCT 28 1944

Bricker Charges New Deal Deprived Food Producers of Needed Supplies.

Wichita, Kan., Oct. 27 (A. P.).—Turning his attention to this breadbasket of the United States, Gov. John W. Bricker asserted today that New Deal promises to the farmers had been "shamefully broken."

The Republican nominee for Vice-President said that those who toil to produce the nation's food had been deprived of what he called sufficient labor, machinery and supplies, vexed by Government regulations and made to face unwarranted shortages of feed grains.

"Yet," he continued in a prepared speech released by his campaign managers, "the American farmer has continued to establish new production records—not because of the New Deal but in spite of the New Deal."

Bricker scheduled stops also at Wellington, Newton and Emporia, Kan., today as he proceeded to Kansas City for a major address tomorrow.

[illegible] while they continued to hold their worn-out machinery together as best they could," he added, "great quantities of machinery were being shipped abroad where it is even now part used and part unused." Bricker summed up his his conceptions of the farmers' attitude in this manner:

"The American farmer wants reliable advice on agricultural problems. He wants the natural law of supply and demand to be recognized, and he wants his marketing system in the hands of experts. He wants to be freed from the strait-jacket of planned economy and world-wide WPA's. He wants help in the conservation of his soil, water and forests."

Speaking at Enid, Okla., last night, Bricker told listeners in an Oklahoma - Missouri - Texas - Kansas radio broadcast that the present national administration had flouted, circumvented, disregarded and twisted laws in seeking power beyond anything that Congress ever intended it should have.

In view of this, he asked, "is it any wonder that the American people are worried lest New Deal wartime controls be extended into the post-war period?"

Dewey Will Tour New York And New England

OCT 28 1944

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 27 (AP)—His Western campaign ended, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey started his stretch drive for the Presidency today by lining up a schedule of appearances in New York State and New England.

The Republican nominee will travel to Syracuse tomorrow for a broadcast major farm speech at 12 30 P. M. (Station WCBM, Baltimore), traditional of national campaigns, but for which a candidate ordinarily selects a setting in the agricultural Middle West.

Tuesday Subject Unannounced

The GOP Presidential candidate left unannounced the subject of a Tuesday night speech at Buffalo, apparently to leave the way open if he feels called upon to answer anything President Roosevelt might say in talks at Philadelphia tonight and in Chicago tomorrow night.

Dewey's Syracuse visit will take him into a New York State area which ordinarily could be expected to give him a substantial margin of votes. Because New York city traditionally has returned thumping majorities for Mr. Roosevelt, the Republicans are overlooking no opportunities to attempt to boost the upstate GOP vote.

Dewey personally gives every appearance of being entirely confident of the outcome. His recent audiences have given quick-triggered responses to his attacks on the Democrats and street crowds have been liberal with their applause—although here and there an ocasional "boo" is heard or a shout for Roosevelt.

Text of Churchill's Report on War to the House of Commons

OCT 28 1944

LONDON, Oct. 27 (UP)—The text of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's address in the House of Commons today follows:

The present stage of the war is dour and hard, and fighting must be expected on all fronts to increase in scale and intensity. We believe we are in the last lap, but this is a race in which failure to exert the fullest effort to the end may protract that end to a period almost unendurable to those who have the race in their hands after struggling so far.

The enemy has two hopes. The first is that by lengthening the struggle he may wear down our resolution. The second and more important hope is that division will arise between the three great powers by whom he is assailed and whose continued union spells his doom. It is this hope that there will be some rift in this alliance—that the Russians may go this way and Britain and America that—that quarrels may arise about the Balkans or about Poland or about Hungary which he hopes will mar the harmony of our counsels and consequently the symmetry and momentum of our converging advance. There is the enemy's great hope, and it is to deprive that hope of all foundation of reality that our efforts must ceaselessly be lent.

You would not expect three great powers so differently circumstanced as Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia not to have many differences in views about the treatment of the various numerous countries into which their victorious armies have carried them. The marvel is that all hitherto has been kept so solid, sure and sound between us all.

Problems Difficult to Deal With

But this process does not arise of itself. It needs constant care and attention. Moreover, there are those problems of distance, occasion and personalities which I have so often mentioned to the House and which make it extremely difficult to bring the heads of the three principal Allies together at one place and at one time.

I have not, therefore, hesitated to travel from court to court like a wandering minstrel, but always with the same songs or the same set of songs.

The meeting at Moscow was a sequel to Quebec. At Quebec the President and I felt very much the absence of Russia. At Moscow Marshal Stalin and I were deeply conscious that the President was not with us, although in this case the American observer, Averell Harriman, the accomplished Ambassador of the United States, made us feel at all times the presence of the great Republic.

There was a special reason for our dual conference at Quebec. British and American fighting forces are intermingled in the lines of battle as the fighting men of no two countries have ever been intermingled before so closely or so easily. We must meet, therefore, we must discuss. As to Russia, Great Britain has so many problems in eastern Europe to solve in common with Russia and practical issues arise on these problems from day to day. We must disperse misunderstandings and forestall them before they occur. We must have a practical policy to deal with day-to-day emergencies and, of course, we must carry with us at every stage the government of the United States.

Hopes for Early Meeting

I am satisfied that the results achieved on this occasion at Moscow have been highly satisfactory. But I am quite sure that no final result can be obtained until the heads of the three governments have met again together, as I earnestly trust they may do before this year is at its end.

After all, the future of the world depends upon united action in the next few years of our three countries. Other countries will be associated but the future depends on the union of the three most powerful allies. If that fails, all fails. If that succeeds, a broad future for all nations may be assured.

I am very glad to inform the House that our relations with Soviet Russia were never more close, intimate and cordial than they are at the present time.

Never before have we been able to reach so high a degree of frank and friendly discussion on a delicate and often potentially vexatious topic as we have done at this meeting from which I have returned and about which I think it would be only respectful to the House to make some short statement.

Where we cannot agree we understand the grounds for each other's disagreement and each other's point of view. But over a very wide area, an astonishingly wide area considering all the different angles from which we approach these topics, we found ourselves in full agreement.

German Hopes Doomed

Of course it goes without saying that we were united in prosecuting the war against Hitlerite Germany to absolute victory and in using to the last every resource of our strength and energy in combination for that purpose. Let all hope die in German breasts that there will be the slightest division or weakening among the forces that are crowding in upon them and will crush the life out of their resistance.

Upon the tangled questions of the Balkans, where there are Black Sea interests and Mediterranean interests to be considered, we were able to reach complete agreement, and I do not feel that there is any immediate danger of our combined war effort being weakened by divergencies of policy or of doctrine in Greece, Romania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and beyond the Balkans in Hungary. We have reached a very good working agreement about all these countries, singly and in combination, with the object of concentrating all their efforts and concerting them with our efforts against the common foe, and of providing so far as possible for peaceful settlement after the war is over.

We are, in fact, acting jointly —Russia and Britain—in our relations with both the Royal Yugoslav Government headed by Dr. Subasic and with Marshal Tito, and we have invited them by joint message to come together in the common cause as they had already agreed to do at a conference between them both at Naples. How much better that there should be a joint Anglo-Russian policy in this disturbed and very complex area than that one side should be backing one set of ideas and the other side the opposite. That is a most pernicious state of affairs to grow up in any country because it might easily spread to misunderstandings between the great powers themselves.

30. 24 — 1944

Regard for Small Countries

Our earnest hope and our bounden duty is so to conduct our policy that these small countries do not slip from the great war into internal feuds of extreme bitterness.

We have invited them to come together and form a united government for the purpose of carrying on the war and, of course, until the countries themselves can pronounce. All this, of course, is only a guide for handling matters from day to day, because it is so much easier to come to an arrangement by conversation than by diplomatic correspondence, however carefully their are phrased or however lengthily they are expressed or however patiently discussions are conducted. Face to face, difficulties which appear really insuperable at a distance are very often removed altogether. But these workaday arrangements must be looked upon as temporary expedients to meet an emergency.

All permanent arrangements await the presence of the United States, who have been constantly informed of what is going forward. Everything eventually will come to review at some future conference or the armistice or peace table.

There were, of course, many serious military questions to be discussed. I had with me the chief of the Imperial General Staff, General Ismay, and other officers acquainted with the conduct of the whole of our military affairs and strategy, and we had also the advantage of assistance of not only of the American Ambassador but also of the very able United States technical representative, General Deane. All of these discussions were a part of the process of carrying out and following up the great decisions taken now nearly a year ago at Tehran, which I think without exaggeration may be said to have altered the face of the World War.

Question of Poland Urgent

But naturally I cannot say anything about these discussions or decision except that I found them very good indeed—the best that could be devised to lift the cruel scourge of war from Europe at the earliest possible moment.

The most urgent and burning question was, of course, that of Poland, and here again I speak words of hope reinforced by confidence. To abandon hope in this matter would indeed be to surrender to despair.

In this sphere there are two critical issues. The first is the question of the eastern frontier of Poland with Russia and the Curzon line, as it is called, and the new territories to be added to Poland in the north and west. This is the first issue, and the second is the relation of the Polish government with the Lublin National Liberation committee. On those two points apart from many necessary ancillary points —on these two main points—we held a series of conferences with both parties. We held them together and aw them separately and of course we were in constant discussion with the heads of the Soviet government.

I had several very long talks with Marshal Stalin, and the Foreign Secretary was every day working on these and cognate matters with Molotov. Two or three times we all four met together with no one but interpreters present. I wish I could tell the House we had reached a solution of these problems. It certainly is not for the want of trying. I am quite sure, however, that we have got a great deal nearer to it. I hope Mikolajczyk will soon return to Moscow and it will be a great disappointment to all sincere friends of Poland if a good arrangement cannot be made which will enable him to form a Polish government on Polish soil, a government recognized by all the great powers concerned and indeed by all those governments of the United Nations which now recognize only the Polish government in London.

Although I do not underrate the difficulties which remain, it is a comfort to feel that Britain and Soviet Russia and, I do not doubt, the United States are all firmly agreed in the re-creation of a strong, free, independent, sovereign Poland, loyal to the Allies and friendly to her great neighbor and Liberator Russia.

Speaking more particularly for His Majesty's Government it is our persevering and constant aim that the Polish people, after their suffering and vicissitudes, shall find in Europe an abiding home and resting place which, though it may not entirely coincide or correspond with the pre-war frontier of Poland, will nevertheless be adequate for the needs of the Polish nation and not inferior in character or in quality, taking the picture as a whole, to what they had previously possessed.

These are critical days and it would be a great pity if time were wasted in indecisions or in protracted negotiations. If the Polish government had taken the advice we tendered them at the beginning of this year, the additional complication produced by the formation of the Polish National Committee of Liberation at Lublin would never have arisen. Anything like a prolonged delay in settlement can only have the effect of increasing the division between the Poles in London and the Poles in Warsaw and hampering a common action which the Poles and Russians and the rest of the Allies are taking against Germany. Therefore, I hope no time will be lost in continuing these discussions and pressing on to an effective conclusion.

The Situation in France

I told the House on Sept. 28 of my hope that the reorganization of a French consultative assembly on a more representative basis would make it possible for His Majesty's Government at an early date to recognize the then French administration as the provisional government of France. The assembly has now, in fact, been enlarged and strengthened by the addition of many further representatives of both the resistance organization in France and the old parliamentary group. It constitutes as representative a body as it is possible to bring together in the difficult circumstances today in France, and it will be holding its first session in Paris in a few days' time.

This development was closely followed by a further step toward restoration of normal conditions of government in France. A civil affairs agreement concluded by France with Great Britain and the United States last August, after long and patient exertion by the Foreign Secretary, provided for division of the country into a forward zone, in which the supreme Allied commander would exercise certain over-riding powers of control considered necessary for the conduct of military operations, and an interior zone, where conduct of and responsibility for interior administration would be entirely a matter for the French authority. For obvious reasons at the beginning, when for those anxious weeks we stood with our backs to the sea a few miles from the beaches, the whole of France had to be included in the forward zone.

Then as the tide of battle moved up to and beyond France's eastern frontiers, working in closest co-operation with the French authorities, we found we could hand over these powers to the authorities except in the area immediately behind the battle zone. We felt these authorities had shown themselves fully capable of understanding the grave responsibilities which fall to the government of any country on which a vast modern army on active service is to be based. The French administration was accordingly able to announce on Oct. 20 that with the concurrence of the Allied High Command it had established an interior zone comprising the larger part of France, including Paris.

This marked the final stage of the transformation of the Committee of National Liberation into a government exercising provisionally all the powers of the government of France and a government accepted as such by the people of France in their entirety.

The way was thus clear for formal recognition of the committee as the provisional government, and His Majesty's Ambassador in Paris was accordingly instructed on Oct. 23 to inform the French Minister of Foreign Affairs of the decision of His Majesty's Government.

The Union of South Africa and New Zealand have also accorded such recognition. A similar communication was made by the Canadian government to the Canadian Ambassador in Paris and by the Commonwealth of Australia from Canberra. The United States and Soviet governments, with whom we had acted throughout in the closest agreement and concert in this matter, were taking similar simultaneous action.

Answer to Criticism

Some critics have asked why should this step not have been taken earlier. The reason is very simple. The British and American Armies had something to do with the liberation of France and the British and United States governments had, therefore, the responsibility at this particular moment for making sure that the French government emerging in power from their military actions would be acceptable to France as a whole and would not appear to be a government imposed on the country from without. It was not for us to choose the government or rulers of France at this particular juncture, and for that very reason we had special responsibility.

OCT 28 1944

I have been myself for some weeks past satisfied not only that the present French government under General de Gaulle commands the full assent of the vast majority of French people, but that it is the only government that can possibly discharge the very heavy burdens which are being cast upon it, and the only government which can enable France to gather its strength in the interval which must elapse before the constitutional and parliamentary processes which it has declared its purpose to reinstitute, can again assume their normal functions.

I also made it clear in my speech on Aug. 2 that France can by no means be excluded from discussions of the principal allies dealing with the problem of the Rhine and of Germany. This act of recognition may therefore be regarded as a symbol of France's emergence from four dark years of a terrible, woeful experience and as heralding a period in which she will resume her rightful and historic role upon the world stage.

I have but one other subject to mention, as I stated that these remarks would be in the nature of a supplement to the statement I made some time ago, and it is one which is the cause of universal rejoicing. I mean the liberation of Athens and a large part of Greece.

I was able when I visited tIaly six or seven weeks ago to arrange with General Wilson, after a very careful discussion, for the necessary measures to be set in train which would enable the Royal Greek government of Mr. Papandreou to return to Athens at the earliest possible moment, and, as a preliminary to this, I advised the government to move from Cairo to Caserta, where they would be in the closest touch with the Commander in Chief. I think the arrangements were extremely well made by General Wilson, to whom we intrusted the task of watching the exact moment to intervene, and he found that moment with very happy discretion, so that hardly any loss of life has occurred and no damage has been done to the immortal capital which is dear to the hearts of so many nations throughout the world. Vivid and moving accounts heve appeared in the press of the decisive events which have recently taken place and of the fervid welcome which our forces received throughout Greece, above all in Athens.

When we were driven out of Greece in 1941 amid so much bloodshed and disaster and with the loss of over 30,000 men, we promised to return. The Greek people never lost faith in that promise nor abandoned their belief in final victory. We have returned. Our pledge has been redeemed. The lawful Greek government sits in Athens. Very soon the Greek brigade which has distinguished itself in fighting at Rimini on the Italian front, helping to drive the Germans out of Italy, will return with honor to its native land.

The tide of war has rolled far to the northward in Greece. Behind the British troops, the organization of U. N. R. R. A., in which the United States has played so great a part, is already moving to the scene, ships having been loaded for many weeks past and much needed supplies of food for the sorely tried Greek population will soon be in active process of distribution, if indeed that process has not begun already.

We are going to do our best to assist in stabilizing the Greek currency which had been a special mark of sabotage by the Germans, and highly competent officials from the Treasury are already on their way to Athens, where the Foreign Secretary is at the present time and is remaining, according to my latest information, until he can confer with them and with the Greek government on this subject. We are doing our best in every way to bring this country back to normal.

Although, of course, we are actively aiding the Greeks in every sphere to recover from the horrible injuries inflicted on them by the Germans and are thus adding another chapter to the history of friendship between our countries, we do not seek to become the arbiters of their affairs. Our wish and policy is that when normal conditions of tranquillity have been restored throughout the country, the Greek people shall make in perfect freedom their own decisions as to the form of government under which they desire to live. Pending such a decision, we naturally preserve our relations with the Greek royal house and the existing constitutional government, and we regard them as the authority to whom we are bound by alliance made at the time of the Italian attack on Greece in 1941.

Meanwhile, I appeal to all Greeks of every party and every group—and there is no lack of party or group—I appeal to them all to set national unity above all other causes, to cleanse their country of the remaining German forces, to destroy and capture the last of the miscreants who have treated them with indescribable cruelty, and finally to join hands and to rebuild the strength and to reduce the suffering of their famous and cherished land.

WITHHLONDON
LONDON, SATURDAY, OCT. 28-(AP)-THE MOSCOW RADIO ASSERTED EARLY TODAY THAT THE RECENT CONFERENCES OF PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND MARSHAL STALIN "CONSIDERABLY SHORTENED THE WAR" AND BROUGHT A COMPLETE UNDERSTANDING ON PROBLEMS OF SOUTHEAST EUROPE.

"THE DISCUSSIONS DEFINITELY SHOW THE DESIRE OF THE ALLIED POWERS TO SOLVE ALL THE COMPLETE POSTWAR PROBLEMS WHILE THE WAR I STILL ON," MOSCOW SAID IN A BROADCAST.

"IT HAS BECOME CLEAR THAT THE ANTI-HITLERITE COALITION RESTS ON A MIGHTY FOUNDATION AND AFTER HAVING SUCCESSFULLY WITHSTOOD THE BITTER EXPERIENCE OF WAR IT WILL BE ABLE TO ENSURE A LASTING PEACE."

MOSCOW SAID THAT "CONSIDERABLE SUCCESS WAS REACHED IN THE SOLUTION OF THE POLISH QUESTION" AND THAT "PROBLEMS CONNECTED WITH EVENTS IN SOUTHEAST EUROPE WERE DISCUSSED AND SUCCESSFULLY SOLVED."

"A FULL UNDERSTANDING WAS REACHED ON THE QUESTION OF ARMISTICE TERMS WITH BULGARIA AND ON A COMMON POLICY IN YUGOSLAVIA," THE BROADCAST ADDED. "THE CONFERENCE DID NOT DEAL ONLY WITH THE MAIN GOAL OF THE ALLIED POWERS -- THE COMPLETE CRUSHING AND DESTRUCTION OF HITLERITE GERMANY -- BUT ALSO WITH THE BUILDING OF A STRONG AND LASTING PEACE AFTER THE WAR."

WILLIAM F.BONI OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTED THE GERMANS WERE USING "ERSATZ" TROOPS IN THE AREA OF BERGEN OP ZOOM, NORTH OF ANTWERP--UNITS THAT WERE BEING TRAINED FOR USE AGAINST THE RUSSIANS BUT WERE SUDDENLY RUSHED TO HOLLAND.

OCT 28 1944

NORTH OF AACHEN IN GERMANY UNITS OF THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY MADE MINOR GAINS AGAINST STUBBORN OPPOSITION. THE THIRD ARMY FRONT IN FRANCE WAS QUIET EXCEPT FOR THE HARASSING FIRE OF GERMAN BIG GUNS. AMERICAN FIGHTER-BOMBERS DESTROYED 15 LOCOMOTIVES AND 11 RAILWAY CARS IN THE METZ AREA, AND TWO WERE SHOT DOWN BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE FROM THAT CITY.

'S HERTOGENBOSCH, A CITY OF 48,000 LIES ON ONE OF THE TWO MAIN RAIL LINES BETWEEN NORTH AND SOUTH HOLLAND AND HAD BEEN IN GERMAN HANDS SINCE MAY 12, 1940. ITS FRENCH NAME "BOIS-LE-DU" MEANS "THE DUKE'S WOOD." IT IS THE CENTER OF SEVERAL HIGHWAYS AND FORMERLY WAS A STRONGLY FORTIFIED CITY. THE CITY IS THE CAPITAL OF NORTH BRABANT PROVINCE AND LIES AT THE JUNCTION OF THE DOMMEL AND AA (CQ) 32 MILES SOUTHEAST OF UTRECHT. THE 15TH CENTURY GOTHIC CATHEDRAL OF ST.JOHN DOMINATES THE CITY'S BUILDINGS.

...BRITISH SECOND ARMY FORCES THREATENED TODAY TO ENCIRCLE TILBURG, PIVOTAL GERMAN STRONGHOLD IN HOLLAND.

OCT 28 1944

ALREADY BESIEGED ON THE SOUTH AND EAST BY TROOPS PRESSING IN FROM POINTS HALF A MILE TO A MILE AWAY, THE FORTRESS CITY WAS VIRTUALLY OUTFLANKED YESTERDAY BY THE SECOND ARMY'S CAPTURE OF THE TOWN OF UDENHOUT, FOUR MILES TO THE NORTH.

THE ADVANCE TO UDENHOUT CUT ACROSS THE TILBURG-'S HERTOGENBOSCH HIGHWAY. IN 'S HERTOGENBOSCH, 12 MILES NORTHEAST OF TILBURG, HARD FIGHTING BRITISH TOMMIES BY DUSK LAST NIGHT HAD DRIVEN THE ENEMY FROM ALL BUT THE LAST FOURTH OF THE CITY.

THESE ATTACKS AND CANADIAN ADVANCES ON BOTH SIDES OF THE SCHELDE ESTUARY ON THE NORTH SEA COAST INCREASED THE PERIL TO THOUSANDS OF GERMANS REMAINING IN SOUTHEAST HOLLAND. ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT ROGER D.GREENE DECLARED THE GERMAN ARMY "WAS IN A CRITICAL PLIGHT AND THAT ITS ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE NORTHWARD ACROSS THE MAAS AND WAAL RHINE WAS GRAVELY JEOPARDIZED."

FOR THE GERMANS, THE COMMUNICATIONS CENTER OF BREDA, 12 MILES WEST OF TILBURG, WAS ASSUMING EVER INCREASING IMPORTANCE. THE HUB OF FIVE MAJOR HIGHWAYS, IT IS THE LAST STRONGPOINT THAT MIGHT SHIELD A GENERAL NORTHWARD WITHDRAWAL ACROSS THE MAAS, WAAL RHINE AND THEIR VARIOUS BRANCHES.

IN ADDITION TO THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY COLUMN AIMED IN THE BREDA DIRECTION AT UDENHOUT ABOVE TILBURG, A CANADIAN FIRST ARMY THRUST FROM ANTWERP HAD REACHED THE VICINITY OF ZUNDERT, NINE MILES FROM BREDA. CANADIANS THREATENING BERGEN OP ZOOM ON THE COAST CAPTURED THE VILLAGE OF NISPEN TO THE EAST.

OCT 28 1944

SOME 11,000 GERMANS REPORTED STILL HOLDING OUT ON SOUTH BEVELAND AND WALCHEREN ISLANDS ON THE NORTH SIDE OF THE SCHELDE ESTUARY WERE BEING SHOVED BACK BY CANADIANS WHO DROVE ACROSS THE CAUSEWAY FROM THE MAINLAND AND DOWN THE NARROW NECK OF SOUTH BEVELAND. BERLIN REPORTED YESTERDAY THAT STILL ANOTHER CANADIAN FORCE HAD LANDED ON THE ISLANDS. A MOPUP OF THE GERMAN POCKET ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE ESTUARY APPARENTLY WAS APPROACHING ITS CONCLUSION.

THE AMERICAN FRONT IN GERMANY AND FRANCE REMAINED VIRTUALLY STATIONARY. ADDITIONAL GERMAN COUNTERATTACKS WERE REPULSED BY THE SEVENTH ARMY IN THE EPINAL SECTOR.

RECENT GERMAN LOSSES ON THE WESTERN FRONT INCLUDED TWO MAJOR GENERALS--ERICH VON KIRCHBACH, 58, AND FRITZ REINHARDT, 53--THE BERLIN RADIO ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT.

OCT 28 1944

IN A DISPATCH FROM SUPREME HEADQUARTERS IN PARIS, AP CORRESPONDENT EDWARD KENNEDY WROTE THAT AT PRESENT THE GERMANS HAVE WELL UNDER 100 DEPLETED DIVISIONS WITH WHICH TO DEFEND THE LONG FRONT FROM THE NORTH SEA TO SWITZERLAND. THIRTY-SIX GERMAN DIVISIONS WERE DESTROYED BY THE ALLIES IN THE ADVANCE THROUGH FRANCE.

GOEBBELS ACCUSED THE ALLIES OF IMPERIALISM AND "ALL AIMING AT OUR DESTRUCTION."

WITH THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY IN HOLLAND, OCT. 27-(AP)-BRITISH TROOPS OF THE CANADIAN ARMY IN A COMBINED OPERATIONS ASSAULT ACROSS THE FOGBOUND SCHELDE ESTUARY HAVE ESTABLISHED A SEVEN-SQUARE-MILE BEACHHEAD ON SOUTH BEVELAND ISLAND.

THE ATTACK TOOK PLACE YESTERDAY MORNING BUT A BLACKOUT WAS IMPOSED ON THE NEWS UNTIL TODAY FOR SECURITY REASONS. CANADIAN TROOPS ASSISTED.

WHILE BRITISH TROOPS DEVELOPED THIS BEACHHEAD, CANADIAN INFANTRY MADE SPECTACULAR ADVANCES ALONG THE EASTERN PENINSULA OF SOUTH BEVELAND. LEADING ELEMENTS HAVE REACHED THE BIG CANAL WHICH CUTS THE PENINSULA FROM THE MAIN PART OF THE ISLAND.

THE BRITISH LANDING APPARENTLY SURPRISED THE GERMANS. THE ASSAULT TROOPS WON THE BEACHHEAD QUICKLY WITH LIGHT CASUALTIES.

THE OPERATION, COUPLED WITH THE CANADIAN DRIVE UP THE BEVELAND PENINSULA, HAS SPEEDED THE WHOLE CANADIAN CAMPAIGN AIMED AT DESTRUCTION OF GERMAN FORCES ON THE SCHELDE AND OPENING THE PORT FACILITIES OF ANTWERP TO THE ALLIES.

ROME, OCT 27-(AP)-BEHIND ENEMY LINES IN NORTHERN ITALY MEN OF MANY RACES, CREEDS AND POLITICAL OPINIONS ARE FIGHTING ONE OF THE STRANGEST CAMPAIGNS OF THE WAR.

IT IS BEING FOUGHT BY THE ITALIAN PATRIOTI (CORRECT) AND A STRANGE GROUP OF ALLIES -- ESCAPED PRISONERS OF WAR, BRITISH AND AMERICAN AIRMEN SHOT DOWN OVER ENEMY TERRITORY, GERMAN DESERTERS AND RUNAWAY CONSCRIPTS, AND TRAINED BRITISH OFFICERS WHO HAVE PARACHUTED INTO THE AREA TO ESTABLISH LIAISON WITH THE ALLIED FORCES ATTACKING FROM THE SOUTH AND FROM FRANCE.

THESE BRITISH LIAISON OFFICERS, KNOWN AS "BLOS," TRAIN THE PATRIOTI IN THE USE OF ARMS AND EXPLOSIVES, ORGANIZE SABOTAGE AND RESISTANCE AND ARRANGE A STEADY FLOW OF ARMS AND AMMUNITION. THE BLOS, WITH AFFECTED SCORN, CALL THEMSELVES "THE CLOAK AND DAGGER BOYS."

OCT 28 1944

BUT THIS IS NOT THEIR STORY. TWO MONTHS AGO I PARACHUTED INTO NORTH ITALY TO LIVE AND TRAVEL WITH THE PATRIOTI. DURING THIS TIME I HAVE SEEN THEM UNDER ALL CONDITIONS. ONE EVENING I MIGHT BE EATING A GOOD DINNER WHILE COMPARATIVELY SAFE IN A COMFORTABLE HOTEL, THE NEXT HIDING IN THE HILLS, DRENCHED WITH RAIN WHILE GERMAN PATROLS SOUGHT US.

THIS, BRIEFLY, IS WHAT I LEARNED:

1. THE ITALIANS ARE TERRIFIC GUERRILLA FIGHTERS AND ARE DOING THEIR BEST TO OBEY PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S INJUNCTION TO "EARN THEIR PASSAGE HOME."

2. THE GERMANS AND FASCISTS ARE SCARED STIFF OF THE PATRIOTI AND CONSIDER THEM A DANGEROUSLY MOUNTING OBSTACLE.

3. THE PEOPLE OF ITALY ARE WHOLEHEARTEDLY BEHIND THE PATRIOTI AND ARE PREPARED TO DO ALL IN THEIR POWER TO HELP.

30.24— 1994

ILLUSTRATIVE ANECDOTES WILL BEST SUPPORT THESE THREE IMPRESSIONS OF THE ITALIAN PEOPLE IN THEIR PERSONAL WAR AGAINST THE GERMANS:

CAPT. GEOFFREY LONG, A SOUTH AFRICAN WAR ARTIST WHO JUMPED INTO THE REGION TO DO A SERIES OF DRAWINGS OF THE PATRIOTI IN ACTION, AND I WERE SEATED ON THE VERANDA OF A VILLAGE HOTEL ONE AFTERNOON WHEN THE GERMANS STARTED THROWING MORTAR BOMBS INTO THE PLACE.

GATTO -- IT'S NOT HIS NAME -- TURNED TO HIS SECOND IN COMMAND AND SAID: "TELL THE PEOPLE THERE'S NO NEED TO EVACUATE THE VILLAGE THIS TIME. THE GERMANS ARE JUST TRYING TO FEEL OUT OUR MACHINEGUN NOSTS. WE'LL LET THEM GET A BIT CLOSER."

THE BOMBING CONTINUED DURING MOST OF THE AFTERNOON. AS WE TURNED IN GATTO SAID: "SLEEP WELL. THE GERMANS WOULDN'T DARE MOVE AGAINST US AT NIGHT."

OCT 28 1944

NEVERTHELESS I SPENT A NERVOUS SIX HOURS ABED. AT 5 A.M. GATTO APPEARED AND SAID "LET'S GET GOING. THE GERMANS ARE MOVING FIELD GUNS INTO POSITION. IT LOOKS LIKE THEY'RE GOING TO TRY TO TAKE THE VILLAGE. BUT THEY WON'T. YOU'LL SEE."

AND THE GERMANS DIDN'T. THE FINAL REPORT: ONE PATRIOTI WOUNDED IN THE FOOT, TWO GERMANS KILLED AND ONE WOUNDED. THE GERMANS RETIRED.

THE ENEMY HAD 600 MEN READY TO FOLLOW UP THEIR ARTILLERY. GATTO HELD THEM OFF WITH 50 PATRIOTI, USING ARMS CAPTURED OR STOLEN FROM THE GERMANS. HE COULD HAVE CALLED IN PERHAPS 1,000 MEN.

WHY, THEN, DID HE NOT STAGE A FULL SCALE ATTACK? GATTO EXPLAINED: "WE HAVEN'T THE ARMS," HE SAID. "WE HAVEN'T THE AMMUNITION. WE ARE ALL RIGHT WHEN IT COMES TO FIGHTING DEFENSIVELY AND CAREFULLY FROM CHOSEN POSITIONS. BUT TO GO LOOKING FOR HIM IN HIS OWN POSITIONS WE NEED HEAVIER STUFF."

"FIGHTING AND KILLING FASCISTS," HE SAID. "DRIVING THE GERMANS OUT OF ITALY AND FOLLOWING THEM INTO THEIR OWN COUNTRY. THAT'S ALL FOR THE MOMENT."

AS I HAVE SAID, THE ITALIANS ARE TERRIFIC GUERRILLA FIGHTERS. GATTO'S DIVISIONAL COMMANDER SURPRISED ME WITH HIS ANSWER TO MY QUESTION WHY THE ITALIANS ARE CONSIDERED POOR SOLDIERS.

"THE TROUBLE IS THEY'RE INDIVIDUALISTS," HE SAID. "GUERRILLA FIGHTING LET'S EACH MAN EXPRESS HIMSELF."

THE COMMANDER TOLD ME HE TRIED TO BE COMPLETELY DISPASSIONATE IN HIS JUDGMENTS OF THE ENEMY.

"IF I THINK THEY ARE SO POLITICALLY IMMATURE AS TO BE INCAPABLE OF FORMING EVEN SIMPLE JUDGMENTS," HE SAID, "I OFFER THEM EMPLOYMENT IN THE DIVISION. USUALLY IT'S PEELING POTATOES FOR A START. BUT MANY WORK TO BE FIGHTING PATRIOTI."

I HAVE SEEN GERMANS MANNING MACHINEGUNS AGAINST THEIR OWN PEOPLE. I HAVE SEEN RUSSIANS, POLES, AUSTRIANS AND CZECHS WHO HAD BEEN CONSCRIPTED INTO THE GERMAN ARMY PREPARING MEALS FOR THE PATRIOTI BANDS IN THE MOUNTAINS.

BUT LET ANY CAPTURED GERMAN OR FASCISTI CONTINUE TO SHOUT HIS

LOYALTY TO HITLER OR MUSSOLINI AND IT IS A DIFFERENT STORY. THE PATRICTI WILL TURN THE MAN'S FACE TO THE NEAREST WALL AND SHOOT HIM.

MOSCOW, OCT 27-(AP)-HEAVY COUNTERATTACKS BY GERMAN ARMOR AND INFANTRY AGAINST THE GROWING RUSSIAN SALIENT IN EAST PRUSSIA WERE BEATEN BACK TODAY BY RED ARMY GUNNERS WHO LEVELLED THEIR FIELD ARTILLERY INTO A DEADLY ANTITANK SCREEN.

DESPITE THE ENEMY'S CONTINUAL REINFORCEMENT, GEN. IVAN CHERNIAKHOVSKY SECURED CONTROL OF A 15-MILE STRETCH ON THE SECONDARY RAIL LINE WHICH RUNS NORTHWEST TO TILSIT FROM THE JUNCTION ON THE MAIN KONIGSBERG-KAUNAS LINE, NEAR STALLUPOENEN.

FRONTLINE DESPATCHES SAID "DOZENS OF NEW GERMAN BATTERIES" WERE INTRODUCED IN AN EFFORT TO CONTAIN THE RUSSIAN THRUSTS AIMED AT GUMBINNEN, FROM THE NORTHEAST AND SOUTHWEST.

AGAINST ONE SIDE OF THE RUSSIAN BULGE THE ENEMY LAUNCHED FIVE CONSECUTIVE ATTACKS EMPLOYING AS MANY AS TWO BATTALIONS OF INFANTRY EACH TIME, SUPPORTED BY PANTHER TANKS AND SELF-PROPELLED GUNS. THEY WERE BROKEN UP WITH HEAVY LOSSES TO THE GERMANS.

RUSSIAN COMBAT CORRESPONDENTS SAID THE CANNONADING WAS UNCEASING NIGHT AND DAY.

RED TROOPS HAVE NOT YET COMPLETELY TRAVERSED THE ZONE OF CONCRETE AND STEEL FORTIFICATIONS WHICH THE GERMANS FOR YEARS HAVE BEEN BUILDING TO PROTECT THE HOME OF JUNKERDOM.

THE BATTLE FOR EAST PRUSSIA LOST ITS FLUIDITY AND BECAME A STUBBORN TEST OF ENDURANCE AND RESERVES. THE GERMANS DREW HEAVILY ON RESOURCES OF THE AIR AND TANK CORPS.

OCT 28 19

NEW ADVANCES WERE SCORED AT EXTREMITIES OF THE GARGANTUAN EASTERN FRONT AND COMMANDERS AT EACH END WERE PROMOTED. KIRILL AFANSIEVICH MERETSKOV WAS PROMOTED TO MARSHAL OF THE SOVIET UNION AFTER HIS KARELIAN ARMY GROUP INVADED NORWAY, CAPTURING KIRKENES. IVAN YEFIMOVICH PETROV, COMMANDER OF THE FOURTH UKRAINIAN ARMY GROUP IN HUNGARY AND CZECHOSLOVAKIA, WAS ELEVATED TO A FULL GENERAL WHILE HIS TROOPS STRUCK IN TWO DIRECTIONS TOWARD UNGVAR, EAST IMPORTANT TOWN HELD BY THE FOE IN THE CARPATHO-UKRAINE SECTOR OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

REPORTS FROM NEWLY CAPTURED MUKACEVO (POP: 26,000) SAID HUNGARIAN FORCES WERE STILL FIGHTING ALONGSIDE THE GERMANS. PETROV SEIZED 60 SETTLEMENTS AND SEVERAL THOUSAND PRISONERS FOR A BAG OF 11,230 FROM OCT. 20-26. RUSSIAN COMMUNICATIONS WERE IMPROVED VASTLY BY CLEARANCE OF ROADS AND RAILS FROM THE UKRAINE THROUGH THE CZECHO-SLOVAK PASSES TO HIS DIVISIONS DRIVING DRIVING WESTWARD ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE CARPATHIANS.

THE RUSSIANS ANNOUNCED THAT 25 REFINERIES HAD RESUMED OPERATION IN THE KROSNO-REZESZOW OIL FIELDS OF SOUTHEAST POLAND AND THAT THESE NOW ARE LINKED SOLIDLY BY RAIL WITH THE FRONTS IN CZECHOSLOVAK, HUNGARY AND YUGOSLAVIA.

CONTINUED FIGHTING WAS REPORTED AT TWO KEY POINTS OF THE EASTERN FRONT. THESE WERE AT SZOLNOK, LESS THAN 50 MILES SOUTHEAST OF BUDAPEST, AND IN THE WARSAW SUBURBS NORTH OF THE POLISH CAPITAL ON THE VISTULA.

REPORTS FROM THE NORWEGIAN FRONT SAID KIRKENES WAS IN FLAMES WHEN THE RUSSIANS CAPTURED THAT AIR AND NAVAL BASE TWO DAYS AGO. NORWEGIAN FISHERMEN IN MOTORBOATS TRANSPORTED RUSSIAN INFANTRY ACROSS A WIDE FJORD TO OUTFLANK A GERMAN HIGHWAY STRONGPOINT. THE ELEVENESS FJORD WAS SPANNED BY AMERICAN-MADE DUCKS WHICH LANDED SEVERAL THOUSAND SOVIET TROOPS ON THE ENEMY SIDE DESPITE SEVERE ARTILLERY FIRE.

THE GERMANS HAD BURNED A PAPER FACTORY, FISH CANNERY, BATH-HOUSES, SCHOOLS AND MANY HOMES IN KIRKENES, DISPATCHES SAID. SEVERAL THOUSAND TOWNFOLK HUDDLED IN A MOUNTAIN TUNNEL NEARBY WHILE THE RED ARMY WON ITS FIRST NORWEGIAN VICTORY.

THERE ARE TWO JAPANESE PLANES OVER TACLOBAN AT THIS MOMENT... ONE CAN'T BE MORE THAN 600 OR 700 FEET OFF THE GROUND...IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO GET THEM WITH ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE....NOW THERE'S TWO OF THEM--ONE IS STILL LOWER...CAN'T BE OVER 200 FEET... THEY CAN'T GET THE GUNS TRAINED ON THEM...THERE ARE TWO MORE COMING DIRECTLY OVER TACLOBAN... OUR NAVY PLANES ARE IN THE AIR ALL AROUND BUT THEY ARE HAVING A HARD TIME...THEY CAN'T DIVE DOWN ON THE JAPANESE PLANE WHEN THEY COME SO LOW. OVER ON THE LEFT ON THE BEACH I SEE AN LST SMOKING HEAVILY...IT HAS BEEN HIT.

....THE JAPANESE PLANES ARE DISPERSING NOW AND OUR FIGHTERS ARE GOING IN AFTER THEM VERY RAPIDLY.

I THINK THE RAID IS ABOUT OVER. IT IS BEGINNING TO DRIZZLE HERE AND IT IS PROBABLY ONE OF THE LUCKIEST BREAKS THAT WE HAVE HAD.

LEYTE,OCT 27 (AP)-WHEN ENS.JAMES LISCHER TOOK OFF FROM HIS CARRIER "THE JAP FLEET WAS SO CLOSE TO OUR TAIL WE COULD CLEARLY SEE THE FIRE FROM THE GUN FLASHES."

HEAVY SHELLS FROM BIG GUNS OF THE JAPANESE BATTLESHIPS AND CRUISERS WERE STRADDLING THE CARRIER AS LISCHER TOOK OFF IN HIS WILDCAT FIGHTER.

"WE TOOK OFF IN SUCH A HURRY IT WAS CATCH AS CATCH CAN STRAFING FOR US UNTIL THE TORPEDO BOMBERS COULD FORM UP," SAID LISCHER, OF 145 FOREST ROAD, DAVENPORT, IOWA.

"WE WENT IN AFTER THE CRUISERS. I MADE THREE STRAFING RUNS ON ONE CRUISER AND FOUR ON ANOTHER WHILE BOMBERS WENT AFTER THE BATTLE-SHIPS. THE JAPANESE ACK-ACK FIRE WAS THE BEST I HAVE EVER SEEN. IT WAS RIGHT ON THE LEVEL AND RANGE. I DON'T KNOW HOW MUCH DAMAGE WE DID TO THE JAPS, BUT I BELIEVE WE SLOWED THEM UP ENOUGH TO LET THE CARRIERS ESCAPE."

LISCHER AND OTHER FLIERS COULDN'T GET BACK TO THEIR CARRIERS SO THEY LANDED ON AN UNFINISHED LEYTE LANDING STRIP. A FEW HOURS

JAPANESE NAVAL HEADQUARTERS FIRED ANOTHER STATISTICAL BROADSIDE TODAY WITH THE CLAIM THAT 680,000 TONS OF AMERICAN NAVAL CRAFT WERE SUNK OR DAMAGED IN THE OCT. 24-26 BATTLES OF THE PHILIPPINES.

DOMEI, THE JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY, BROADCAST THE FIGURE AS QUOTED BY CAPT.ETSUZO KURIHARA, CHIEF NAVAL PRESS OFFICER AT IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS. THE STORY, BEAMED TO AMERICA, WAS HEARD BY FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION MONITORS.

THE U.S.NAVY DEPARTMENT AT WASHINGTON ANNOUNCED THAT AMERICAN SHIP LOSSES IN THE PHILIPPINES BATTLES WERE THE LIGHT AIRCRAFT CARRIER PRINCETON, TWO ESCORT CARRIERS, TWO DESTROYERS AND ONE DESTROYER ESCORT, TOTALING POSSIBLY 30,000 TONS.

BUT KURIHARA MULTIPLIED THIS BY 10 IN HIS STRATOSPHERIC COMPUTATION OF 310,000 TONS OF AMERICAN WAR VESSELS SUNK, LEAVING THE REMAINING 370,000 TONS IN THE DAMAGED CATEGORY.

DOMEI ALSO SAID THAT KURIHARA CALLED "CONSERVATIVE" HIS ESTIMATE THAT UNITED STATES PERSONNEL LOSSES IN THE PHILIPPINES BATTLES WERE 14,300.

THE JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS IN A TOKYO BROADCAST TODAY PLACED THEIR PHILIPPINES NAVAL LOSSES AT SIX WARCRAFT SUNK -- A CARRIER, A BATTLESHIPS, TWO CRUISERS AND TWO DESTROYERS -- AND A CARRIER AND ONE BATTLESHIP DAMAGED. THIS WAS AN INCREASE OVER THE ENEMY'S PREVIOUS ANNOUNCEMENT OF LOSSES.

AMERICAN COMMUNIQUES AND FIRST-HAND REPORTS OF THE FIGHTING PUT JAPANESE PHILIPPINE LOSSES AT MORE THAN 27 WARSHIPS. THESE INCLUDED TWO CARRIERS, TWO BATTLESHIPS, FIVE CRUISERS AND THREE DESTROYERS SUNK; ONE CARRIER AND TWO BATTLESHIPS PROBABLY SUNK, AND SIX BATTLESHIPS, FIVE CRUISERS AND AT LEAST ONE DESTROYER DAMAGED.

IT SAID DAMAGE WAS DONE TO SEVEN MORE CARRIERS, ONE BATTLESHIP AND TWO CRUISERS.

IN ITS PREVIOUS REPORT THE JAPANESE HEADQUARTERS HAD CLAIMED TWO AMERICAN CARRIERS SUNK AND SIX DAMAGED. THE REVISED TABULATION MADE NO MENTION OF THE EARLIER CLAIM OF 17 AMERICAN TRANSPORTS DAMAGED, 17 LARGE LANDING CRAFT SUNK AND TWO DAMAGED.

40,000 Nazis in Western Holland Reeling Back Toward Rhine River; Gen. Stilwell Is Recalled to U. S.

ENEMY DEFENSES CRUMBLE UNDER BRITISH ATTACKS

Full Scale German Withdrawal in Progress After Resistance Ends.

BERGEN OP ZOOM FALLS

Only Isolated Batteries on Walcheren Island Block Antwerp.

LONDON, Oct. 28 — (AP) Forty thousand Germans reeled northward today in a scramble to get across the Maas (Meuse) and Waal Rhine and escape destruction at the hands of advancing Canadian and British forces who smashed the enemy defense lines in western Holland.

Field dispatches from the muddy Dutch front said that the 50-mile long German line from the sea to 'S Hertogenbosch had fallen to pieces and that it was evident a full-scale German withdrawal was in progress after some of the most stubborn fighting of the Western front campaign.

Abandon Bergen Op Zoom

Significance of the retreat was pointed up by enemy abandonment of Bergen Op Zoom, mainland coastal key to his line.

Allied headquarters announced that, as a result, free use of the great Belgian port of Antwerp was now blocked only by the isolated German batteries at Vlissingen (Flushing) on Walcheren island, and these were doomed.

Even when the Germans there and in the contracting pocket south of the Schelde are liquidated, however, a gigantic minesweeping and dredging job must be done on the 100-mile Schelde estuary before deep-draft ships can use the port readily, it was disclosed.

On the American and French sectors of the Western front in France and Germany, the situation was generally unchanged. The U. S. First army in Germany made exploratory patrol thrusts while American fighter-bombers struck German communications around Cologne, Dusseldorf and Duren.

Batter Rail Movements

These blows were thrown against a heavy German daylight movement by rail, a movement which was not explained or amplified in field dispatches that noted, "the enemy does not attempt heavy movement by day unless he is in an emergency situation at the front or thinks he is."

The Germans also intermittently shell the city of Luxembourg and made nervous patrols against the Americans, and the entire situation suggested that the comparative lull on the First army front would not long endure.

With a great victory within their grasp, the Canadian First and British Second armies were racing the Nazis for the Maas and Waal Rhine crossings.

From west to east they scored these successes:

Canadian infantry crossed the Beveland island canal to the west bank and reached to within seven miles of a junction with the forces expanding a bridgehead on the island's southeast coast.

On the mainland, the Germans abandoned without a fight the anchor of their defense line at Bergen Op Zoom, which the Canadians quickly occupied. Bergon Op Zoom, historically called "the key to Holland," has repulsed numerous assaults in the past 400 years, but this time it fell without a shot.

Approach Roosendaal

Hastening northward British and Polish units under Canadian army command were within a mile of Roosendaal, which is ten miles below the Willemstad ferry crossing of the broad Hollandsch diep, one of the Rhine's seaward outlets.

The road hub of Breda was being approached by converging Canadian and Polish units, while seven miles eastward the British cut the Breda-Tilburg road.

Tilburg itself fell to British Tommies, and the happy citizens billeted the muddy, wet soldiers in the plus magnificence of the palace of William II, grandfather of Queen Wilhelmina. The Dutch said the Germans went on a looting spree before fleeing and finally left in such haste they even pedalled away on stolen bicycles with flat tires or bare rims.

The British armor and infantry slashed on through Loon Op Zand five miles north of Tilburg, and headed for Oosterhout and the Geertrudenberg bridge across the Maas, a main German escape route.

'S Hertogenbosch was cleaned up and a German counter-attack on the east side of the Allied salient had been checked.

Fight Continues in Holland

The German High command declared there still was fierce fighting all along the line in Holland, particularly at Bergen Op Zoom and 'S Hertogenbosch, but front-line dispatches from the British and Canadian sectors were emphatic that the Nazi defenses were broken and a chase was in hurried progress, although the German withdrawal, speedy as it was, continued orderly in a strictly military sense.

Field correspondents said the German Fifteenth army was withdrawing everywhere and was likely seeking to cross the great bridge over the Waal Rhine near Moerdijk.

The heavy fog which had covered southwest Holland for several days finally lifted, and Allied planes roared to the ground troops' support, hammering at the fleeing Germans and aiding the Canadians in their blasting away at the German remnants south of the Schelde and on Walcheren and South Beveland islands.

Nearly 6,000 Germans already have been taken prisoner in the South Schelde pocket since the operations there began Oct. 6.

40,000 Of Foe Face Trap; Canadians In Bergen Op Zoom

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—The whole German stand in southwestern Holland is collapsing, dispatches from the front declared today as British-Canadian columns raced toward the enemy's last two escape bridges in an effort to cut off perhaps 40,000 Nazi troops below the Maas river.

Canadians seized the Germans' western anchor of Bergen op Zoom without a fight, and got within a mile of the stronghold of Roosendaal. British troops got within five miles of the central bastion of Breda, after winning Tilburg as well as 's-Hertogenbosch.

The German defense line below the Maas "has fallen to pieces."

30.24— 19955

one field dispatch said. Another said Allied armor and infantry were moving so rapidly that Field Marshal General Walther von Model either had to pull back across the bridges at Moerdijk and Geertruidenberg, 10 miles northwest and northeast of Breda, "or have his reeling forces cut to bits."

Lone Set Of Guns In Way

As success followed success, Allied headquarters announced that the free use of the great port of Antwerp, the aim of this campaign, is now blocked only by one battery of isolated and doomed enemy costal guns at Vlissingen, on Walcheren Island.

The Germans are abandoning their positions from the Schelde to Tilburg, Associated Press War Correspondent William F. Boni reported from the field, and the campaign has become a race to reach the Maas bridges.

Major Developments

The swift-moving Allied drive brought these major developments along a 40-mile front:

1. Bergen op Zoom, stoutly defended western anchor of the enemy line, was abandoned suddenly by its garrison and entered without opposition last night by Canadian armor and infantry.

2. Canadian infantry on South Beveland Island crossed the north-south canal to the main part of the island and fought their way toward reinforced British units which crossed the Scheide and expanded their bridgehead on the southeast coast of Beveland.

Nazis Admit Allied Gain

3. Allied troops were within 2,000 yards of Roosendaal, and the German radio admitted that they had penetrated the Nazi defenses south of the city. To the east, the Breda-Tilburg road was cut, and Breda itself was a target for converging columns of Polish and Canadian troops.

4. Tilburg was in the hands of British troops, who got a tumultuous welcome from the Dutch population, although a few snipers still clung to the western fringes of the city.

5. North of Tilburg, an armor and infantry slash carried through Loon op Zand and headed for Oosterhout on the escape route from Breda to the Geertruidenberg bridge over the Maas. Here the British were only six miles from the Maas.

Germans Take Meijel

In the 's-Hertogenbosch area, the British strengthened their hold along the Aftwatering Canal two miles below the Maas, and beat off a weak enemy counterattack.

But in the eastern sector of the Allied salient into Holland the Germans struck hard at American armor in the Venlo sector and took the town of Meijel, north of the Roermond-Weert railway. A British staff officer said the enemy used 30 tanks in this fight.

Bergen op Zoom was the fourth major stronghold in the German line to fall in three days.

Big Cities May Fall

Parts of eight German divisions were pulling back along the southwestern Dutch front, and remnants of two more were cut off at the Schelde estuary.

Front line reports said the enemy might yield all of western Holland, including the cities of Rotterdam, Amsterdam and the Hague.

German Divisions in Trap.

Along the south bank of the Schelde, the survivors of the trapped German Fifty-fourth Division were being hammered into submission, and the Canadians had pushed to within little more than a mile of Cadzand, one of the last remaining Nazi strongholds. In one day Canadians took 600 more prisoners, raising the total in that operation to 5,922, at a cost of fourteen casualties.

The German Seventieth Division is holding on South Beveland, with little hope of escape.

Motor columns streaming north from Breda and Roosendaal indicated that Field Marshal Gen. Walther von Model was attempting to withdraw the bulk of his forces before the closing pincers of the Allied drive became a disastrous trap. But there was no such sign of enemy demoralization.

In the pocket on the south side of the estuary, the town of Groede — by-passed earlier — was captured and the Canadians reached the coast northwest of the town.

The German pocket now has been squeezed to a fifteen-mile bogland triangle.

Allied successes in the Schelde Estuary area do not mean that a flood of shipping can start to Antwerp at once, even after the Vlissingen guns are silenced. There remains the nasty job of sweeping and clearing the long waterway approach to the port.

The German counter-attack against American positions on the east side of the Netherlands salient, launched in an effort to relieve the pressure on Nazi forces in southwestern Holland, was checked. But the communique reported fighting still in progress around Meijel, ten miles west of the German border at Venlo.

On the main Allied front facing east, United States First Army troops were subjected to light artillery fire in the Aachen area and to the south along the Belgian frontier east of St. Vith.

Far to the south the communique reported slight gains on the Allied Sixth Army group front in the vicinity of Rambervillers, including the capture of the village of Housseras, fifteen miles northeast of Epinal.

German attempts to infiltrate Allied positions in the Vosges Mountains were beaten back.

Fallen Bergen-op-Zoom Called 'Key to Holland'

Often Besieged, Napoleon Held It Against British

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP).—Bergen-op-Zoom—Fortress on the Zoom—captured by the Canadians, once was one of the most strongly fortified cities in the Netherlands. It often has been called "the key of Holland."

The Spanish vainly besieged it in 1588, 1597, 1605 and 1622. It was taken by the French in 1747 and, while held by Napoleon's troops, withstood an attack by the English in 1814.

With a population of 25,343, the town is situated on both sides of the small Zoom River, near its confluence with the east Scheldt.

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Polish armored forces cutting across the main road west of Tilburg are reported within two miles of Breda, the London radio said tonight in a broadcast recorded by CBS.

WAR DEPARTMENT SAYS LEADER TO RECEIVE NEW JOB

Washington Order Splits CBI Theater into Two Commands.

HELD THREE POSTS

'Vinegar Joe' May Be Assigned to Head Invasion of China.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28—(AP) General Joseph W. Stilwell was jerked out of the key China-Burma-India command today to take what the War department said will be a "new and important" assignment.

The unexpected shakeup in the far East top command, announced from the White House, immediately stirred speculation along two lines:

1. Is the move a definite and severe reprimand for Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, stemming from dissension within Chinese forces and the Japanese threat to overrun Chinese barriers and engulf American air bases?

2. Is "Vinegar Joe" being pulled out to head up forces for an invasion of China?

Relieved of Duties

The order relieved Stilwell from his assignments as chief of staff to Chiang, as deputy to Lord Louis Mountbatten, the Supreme Commander of the southeast Asia theater, and of command of American forces in the theater.

It split the CBI theater into two smaller commands, China and Burma-India. The China command was assigned to Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, who had been deputy chief of staff in Southeast Asia. The India-Burma theater was assigned to Lt. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, now deputy commander of the CBI theater.

The War department said Stilwell "will be given a new and important, but at present, undisclosed assignment."

It was this statement which produced unofficial discussion of Stilwell's new job. In his forty years of military career, "Vinegar Joe" has served often in the East, in China when American troops were garrisoned there and in the Philippines. This military experience, coupled with his intimate knowledge of the geography, peoples and economy of Asia, tended to give him priority for the Pacific theater.

While Stilwell's tours of duty in the Philippines would give him excellent background for an assignment in that recently opened theater, the Philippine campaign already is under command of a man of equal rank, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

May Head Chinese Invasion

This raised the possibility that Washington is looking ahead to using Stilwell elsewhere in the vast Pacific war zone. The victory over the Japanese Navy, coupled with the long westward leap of MacArthur's forces to the Philippines, has brought into sharp focus the likelihood of an American move to seize a foothold on the Eastern coast of China.

The setbacks encountered in China by Chiang's forces and the slow northward progress to reopen the Burma road connection with China also give urgent reasons for a beachhead on the China coast.

Such a new operation, it was suggested in circles outside the War department, might come under the command of Stilwell, with MacArthur continuing in the Philippines.

If the move is one aimed at putting Stilwell in command of forces which eventually will invade China or Japan proper, this is not interpreted as meaning that the invasion would come soon. No secret has been made here of a belief in military circles that such a large-scale effort would have to await the end of the war in Europe and a transfer of men and materiel.

The American joint command here has been seeking a revision of the China-Burma-India organization since before the Roosevelt-Churchill conference at Quebec more than a year ago.

The triple post Stilwell held has been regarded in some circles as an impossibly complicated assignment.

Decided at Quebec

The break-up probably was decided on by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at the recent Quebec conference in preparation for the final developments of the war in that area. That program calls for British amphibious operations from India against the Dutch East Indies and Singapore.

The speculation on a rebuke from Chiang took most of its support from reports in recent weeks, cleared through military censorship in China, of dissension within the Generalissimo's regime and accompanying difficulties in military operations.

The security of American airfields in China, including both those for the 14th Air force and the B-29 Superfortresses, has depended almost entirely on the efforts of Chiang's ground forces.

One fact contributing chiefly to speculation that Stilwell may return to China at the head of a force of American and Allied troops is the veteran leader's own record of accomplishment against incredible hardships there. Military sources said today that there could be no reflection in any way on his record in the fact that he has been recalled to Washington.

Similarly there was little inclination here to view the recall of Stilwell as reflecting any major misunderstanding with the British.

Neither the White House nor the War department announcements made clear whether Stilwell had returned to this country.

Stilwell Relieved of Duties In China-Burma-India Area

Recalled to Washington—War Department Says He Will Get New Post.

Washington, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell has been relieved of his triple command in the Far East and has been recalled to Washington, the White House announced today.

The announcement said Gen. Stilwell "has been relieved as Chief of Staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, as deputy to Admiral Mountbatten, commander of the Southeast Asia Command, and as American Commander of the China-Burma-India theater and has been recalled to Washington." The former China-Burma-India theater will be divided into two theaters under separate commanders, said the announcement.

War Department Statement.

A few minutes after Gen. Stilwell's recall was announced by the White House, the War Department added that he was headed for an inportant new post. The War Department had this to say about Gen. Stilwell's recall from the China-Burma-India theater.

"In answer to queries, the War Department stated that in view of the decision to divide the China-Burma-India into two smaller theaters, Gen. Stilwell has been recalled to Washington.

"He will be given a new and important, but at present, undisclosed assignment."

Gen. Stilwell's withdrawal was interpreted by some students of Chinese affairs as a public spanking to the Chungking regime for failure to reorganize Chinese armies into a more efficient fighting force. It is no secret that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has been urged to take steps to make use of Chinese communist armies in North China and to provide more efficient leadership for his own armies.

Recent successes of the Japs on the China mainland, besides stemming in great measure from the paramount problem of supply, also have been attributed in part to internal dissension and lack of skilled generalship of the Chinese armies.

Gen. Stilwell was assigned to command United States Army forces in the China-Burma-India theater in March, 1942. At the same time Generalissimo Chiang placed him in command of the Fifth and Sixth Chinese armies. Gen. Stilwell subsequently relinquished this command, but retained his designation as commanding general of the United States Army forces in the Asiatic theater and also as chief of staff to Chiang.

The 61-year-old Vinegar Joe began his military career in 1904 upon graduation from West Point. He has seen much foreign service since, including tours of duty in the Philippines, in China and in France during world war I, where he participated in a number of the major engagements of that war.

An expert on Chinese affairs, Gen. Stilwell went to that country for the first time in 1919, serving there until 1923. He went back to China in 1926 for a two-year tour of duty with the Fifteenth Infantry and in the summer of 1932 was detailed as military attache at the American embassy in Peiping. He held that post until 1939 when he was ordered back to this country. He was commander of the Third Army Corps, with headquarters in California, at the outbreak of the present war.

He's a Four-star General.

As late as August 1, Gen. Stilwell joined the select group of four-star generals. By that promotion he gained rank equal that of America's other top field commanders—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in Europe and Gen. Douglas McArthur in Southwest Asia.

Testy, ascetic and quick-tempered, Gen. Stilwell is also kindly and considerate—witness his two nicknames, Vinegar Joe and Uncle Joe with Uncle Joe the more frequent. He detests the ceremony and routine of headquarters and most of the time has been found slogging through the jungles with his troops.

During the Allied disasters in Burma in the spring of 1942, Gen. Stilwell was with the troops in the fighting and the retreat. His comment on that campaign became a classic: "We took a hell of a beating."

But he won the Distinguished Service Cross for his leadership.

Gen. Wedemeyer, who takes over in China, became deputy chief of staff of the Southeast Asia Command in October, 1943. He went to that assignment from his previous job in the office of Assistant Chief of Staff in the Operations Division at Washington. Gen. Wedemeyer, 58 years old and a native of Omaha, Neb., entered upon his Army career as a second lieutenant of infantry in 1918.

Gen. Sultan, 58 years old, was commanding general of the Eighth Corps in November, 1943 when he was transferred to the China-Burma-India theater to become deputy commander in chief

STILWELL'S SHIFT IS LAID TO CHIANG

Chinese Leader Said To Have Requested Yank's Recall

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—A high official of the Chinese Government, says Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, was removed from his Far Eastern command following a request from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The official, who declines to permit use of his name, says Stilwell and Chiang have been "at swords points" since the battle for the Burma Road, and that until Madame Chiang left China about two months ago, she was the one who kept them from actually fighting with each other.

Madame Chiang—now recuperating in New York from an illness—was the only communications link between the generals, who refused to write or speak to each other, the official says.

His account of strained relations was given to an Associated Press reporter several days ago, but permission to make it public was withheld until tonight.

Official's Story

The official's story, in substance:

The original dispute between Stilwell and the Generalissimo occurred at the time of the battle for the Burma road. Chiang, who was in control at that time of the northern end of the road, felt that due to the small amount of resources at his disposal he should concentrate on defending that sector and not attempt to defend the entire road.

Chiang felt that the lend lease he was receiving from the United States, plus the resources of China, were not sufficient for him to extend his activities, so he requested General Stilwell to remain with him and fight for China as he (Chiang) thought best.

Stillwell's Viewpoint

However, Stilwell seemed to think that the generalissimo was acquiring too much authority. As a result of their difference of opinion Stillwell went into Burma and attempted to protect the southern approach to the Burma road.

This effort resulted in complete failure. Stillwell was forced to retreat and the Burma road was lost. From that time on, the generals did not get along or see eye-to-eye wtih regard to any of China's defenses, and they both attempted to fight the war by themselves.

The result of Mme. Chiang's leaving China was a request from the generalissimo to the United States Government to have Stillwell removed from his command.

RUSSIAN FORCES INVADE SLOVAKIA

Four Soviet Armies Launch Big Offensive in Latvia.

LONDON, Sunday, Oct. 29—(AP

Soviet mountain troops invaded Slovakia on a broad front west of conquered Ruthenia yesterday as Berlin announced that four other Russian armies had begun a big new offensive in Latvia aimed at wiping out scores of thousands of Germans pinned against the Baltic sea.

Moscow's communique, as is usual at the start of Russian offensives, did not mention the Latvian operation, but Berlin said the Russians had ripped through Nazi lines southeast of the west Latvian port of Liepaja on the Baltic, and also in the Auce area, 70 miles to the east.

Reds Silent on Prussia

For the first time since the beginning of the invasion of German East Prussia, Moscow was silent about that sector where the Germans said a titanic battle of endurance still raged. Berlin acknowledged small Soviet penetrations west of Ebenrode on the Kaunas-Konigsberg highway, and told of heavy fighting on a broad front south of Gumbinnen, 16 miles west of Ebenrode.

The Russian bulletin announced the capture of nearly 200 towns and villages on a front extending from northern Norway down to Yugoslavia, and Marshal Tito's headquarters said that the Adriatic port of Split had fallen to the Yugoslav Eighth corps after a fierce three-day battle.

Warsaw, shattered Polish capital, was further outflanked by Russian and Polish troops who captured six localities northwest of there between the Vistula and Narew rivers, reaching the big bend of the Vistula nine miles west of Nowy Dwor, a town at the confluence of the two streams.

In these battles of "local importance" the Russians seized Komarnica, near the Narew, and Cegielnia and Jablonna, six miles to the south on the Vistula. The intermediate rail town of Jablonna Legjonowo, also was taken.

In Czechoslovakia, where the Russians crossed into Slovakia, middle component of that Axis-shattered republic, 60 localities were captured north and south of Ungvar, seized Friday.

At the top of a front stretching clear across Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Alpine units captured Cukalovce, five miles inside Slovakia from the Polish frontier, Klenova, six miles inside the province from Ruthenia and 21 miles north of Ungvar, and Lekart, six miles west of Ungvar, also were swept up.

Russians Converge on Csap

The Russians were converging rapidly on Csap, strategic rail junction through which Nazi units are falling back from northeastern Hungary to escape entrapment. They seized Tarnovce, nine miles north of Csap; Maly Dobran, six miles on the east; and Batovo, nine miles on the southeast.

Herding the Germans toward Csap from the south other Soviet units crossing the northeastern corner of Hungary drove to within 27 miles of Csap with the seizure of Nagydobos.

A total of 40 localities were taken in Hungary, including Mateszalka junction, and Nyirbogat at the lower end of a 20-mile front. Hungarian and German announcements claimed the recapture of the big Hungarian city of Nyiregyhaza, 18 miles northwest of Nyirbogat.

Enemy broadcasts also disclosed that the Russians were fighting beyond the Tisza river in Hungary in the area of Kecskemet, only 45 miles southeast of Budapest. On the approaches to the Hungarian capital thousands of civilians were digging trenches under supervision of Germant Todt engineers, Berlin said.

It has been estimated that upward of 100,000 Germans have been pocketed in western Latvia in a 5,000-square-mile sector of the Courland Peninsula north of Lithuania and the Russian line which has ringed the Baltic port of Memel, fifty-five miles south of threatened Liepaja.

The Russians last were reported only fifteen miles southeast of Liepaja, an ice-free winter port whose seizure would cut another Nazi sea escape route and leave the port of Ventspils, fifty-eight miles farther north along the Baltic coast, as the only supply depot of the stranded Nazis.

NOV 29 1944

Present battle lines extend eastward from the Liepaja sector to Auce, and thence northeastward to the Gulf of Riga at a point twenty-three miles west of fallen Riga.

Once the Russians eliminate the west Latvian pocket they can throw the whole weight of their northern armies against German East Prussia in aid of General Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky's 3d White Russian Army, which already has penetrated nearly twenty miles inside that province from the east.

Units of General Ivan Bagramian's 1st Baltic Army, which has conquered all of German-annexed Memel territory except the town of Memel and a narrow circle around that Baltic port, presumably is attacking in the Liepaja area.

Czecho-Slovak patriots fighting in central Slovakia suffered another reverse, evacuating the area of Banska Bystrica and taking up new positions in the mountains, a Czecho-Slovak communique issued in London said.

Banska Bystrica, seventy miles north of Budapest and 145 miles west of Ungvar, Ruthenian stronghold captured Friday by General Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukraine Army, was the patriots' headquarters.

Reds Start New Drive In Latvia

London, Oct. 28 (AP) — The Moscow radio announced today that the Bulgarian delegation had accepted Allied armistice terms.

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—Col. Ernst von Hammer, German military commentator, said today that the Russians had opened a new and carefully-prepared offensive southeast of Liepaja (Libau) and east of Auce in southern Latvia.

The Russian forces opened several breaches, some of which were beaten back by strong German tank counterattacks, the commentator said in a broadcast dispatch.

The attacks, designed to clear western Latvia and open up another Baltic port for the Russians, were reported preceded by a long artillery barrage and repeated air raids.

Caution Against Optimism

Martin Hallensleben, DNB military commentator, cautioned the German people today in a Berlin broadcast against hoping that German counterattacks, which he said had slowed the Russian offensive in East Prussia and Hungary, could slacken completely the Russian autumn offensive.

"These German counter-measures have a limited task," he said. "Russian reserves, especially in East Prussia, are very great."

Another Berlin broadcast described the new Nazi Home Guard in East Prussia as 40 per cent. veterans of the last war, 20 per cent. Hitler youth and 40 per cent. "men in their best years," who fought during the opening battles of this war. It said their equipment was "satisfactory."

Crossing Slovak Border.

Moscow, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—Russian mountain troops were driving across the threshold of Slovakia today after virtually completing the conquest of Hungarian-annexed Ruthenia with the capture of Umgvar, its chief city and former capital.

Seizure of Umgvar gave Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukrainian Army a southern terminus for a supply route through the Carpathian Mountains by way of the Uzok Pass for an accelerated effort to reach the isolated Czecho-Slovak Patriot resistance forces at Banska Bystrica, 140 miles west, now linked with the Allies only by plane.

Gain in East Prussia.

Twenty - five miles north of Umgvar other units of Petrov's army penetrated six miles into Slovakia, capturing the town of Starina, in the Ciroka Valley nine miles northwest of Ulic, taken along with forty - eight other localities.

Gen. Ivan Cherniakovsky's battle of attrition against the furiously fighting Nazis in East Prussia forced the Germans out of three more village fortresses in the Ebenrode area yesterday, one of them twenty-one miles northwest of Insterburg and seventeen miles east of the main Insterburg-Tilsit railroad.

The only Russian progress of any consequence in East Prussia appeared to be on the secondary road west of Pillkallen, where the capture of Kussen put Cherniakhovsky's forces deep on the northern flank of enemy defenses concentrated around Gumbinnen.

The midnight Soviet war bulletin said that the Russians, beating off numerous counter-attacks by large forces of German infantry and armor, killed 3,000 Nazis, making a two-day total of 5,800.

The predicament of the Czecho-Slovak Partisan forces awaiting the arrival of Petrov, ironically became more hazardous as the Russian advance toward them gained momentum.

Patriots In Danger

It was too early to say how the situation might develop, but potentially the estimated 25,000 Patriot soldiers faced the hazard of being overrun by Germans hastening their escape from Petrov's army.

The immediate course of the Russian campaign into central Hungary appeared to hinge on the outcome of strong German-Hungarian counter-attacks against the Russian salient at Nyiregyhaza, northwest of Budapest.

Russ See Lasting Peace Ensured

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Moscow radio declared today that "the anti-Hitlerite coalition rests on a mighty foundation and after having successfully withstood the bitter experience of war it will be able to ensure a lasting peace."

The broadcast said the recent Churchill-Stalin conference in Moscow, sequel to the Churchill-Roosevelt talks in Quebec, "considerably shortened the war."

A few hours before the Moscow announcement, Paul Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda minister, in a broadcast to the German nation, declared the Germans would "go on fighting until a peace is possible which guarantes our people's right to live."

Goebbels declared that "every house and street" would be made a battlefield to bar the enemy's way into the Reich.

POLES WEIGH RUSS OFFER

"Last Chance" Proposal Debated By London Group

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—Poland's exiled Government weighed today an apparent last-chance offer to settle its differences with Soviet Russia for the sacrifice of a huge section of its pre-war territory.

There appeared no other alternative. For Prime Minister Churchill, bent on removing the dynamite-laden Polish Soviet dispute from the Allied agenda, had outlined in terms of growing impatience Britain's backing for a Russian west front border along what is known as the Curzon Line.

Poland's peasant-born Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, in a series of detailed reports on his second mission to Moscow, has laid before his Cabinet the take-it-or-leave-it price of accord with Russia and the rival Polish Committee of National Liberation.

Policy Of Delay Past

There has been no indication which way it will swing. In the past, its policy has been one of delaying a decision—a policy born of optimism and nurtured by the hope it could strike a better bargain with British-American support at the peace table.

But Churchill, in his address before Commons Friday, for the first time gave a clear indication that, if Poland turns down Russia's proposal, Britain would give Mikolajczyk the nod to form a new government on Polish soil.

"I hope," he said, "that Mr. Mikolajczyk will soon return to Moscow as it will be a great disappointment to all the sincere friends of Poland if a good arrangement cannot be made which will enable him to form a Polish Government on Polish soil."

Mikolajczyk Acceptable

Unlike several members of his Cabinet, Mikolajczyk is acceptable personally to both Moscow and the Lublin committee. His reluctance against striking an enforced bargain has centered in part upon his belief that it might be repudiated by the Poles after the war.

There are other difficulties. Perhaps the chief problem centers around proposed acquisition of a large part of East Prussia in a territorial swap from eastern Poland—an exchange which would involve mass transfer of populations.

Against these the Polish Government here is considering the progress of the Lublin committee, supported by the Red army, in taking over control of the liberated part of its homeland, and the mounting urgency of beginning Poland's gigantic job of relief and reconstruction.

YANKS BOMB GERMAN RAILS

Hamm and Munster Hit by 350 Heavies.

London, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—Two of western Germany's biggest railroad yards at Hamm and Munster were attacked today by American heavy bombers for the third time in less than a week. The raiding force consisted of 350 Fortresses and Liberators, with an escort of 200 fighters, the smallest the Eighth Air Force has dispatched to Germany in some time.

At the same time a strong force of R.A.F. heavies, also with fighter cover, attacked German ground emplacements on Walcheren Island, off the Dutch Schelde coast. Two R.A.F. bombers were lost.

Allied planes streamed across the coast during the afternoon and the German radio at midafternoon reported a second bomber fleet over the Reich.

British Bomb Berlin.

Tactical air force Mitchells attacked bridges over the Maas at Roermond and Venlo. A span at Roermond was destroyed.

Ninth Air force fighter bombers struck at road and rail communications in the Aachen area and between Cologne and Duisberg and at barges on the Rhine.

Two sharp air attacks hit Berlin last night a short time after Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi Propaganda Minister, completed a "battle-to-death" plea to the German nation.

The first force of swift Mosquito bombers dumped their bombs on the Nazi capital almost as soon as Goebbels left the air. An hour later, a second group struck. The operation put Berlin under attack for the sixth night this month.

"To Fight To Finish"

The Nazi propaganda and home defense minister declared that Germany had no choice but to fight to the finish and threatened that a new German air force would take the war to her enemies.

Other objectives in western Germany were bombed—also without loss.

New Raids Launched

After another break because of unfavorable weather, the air offensive was resumed today. The German radio reported bomber formations over western Germany before noon.

While the Allied air forces in Britain and Italy have been given the "green light" for an all-out campaign to starve the German army by cutting off its supplies from behind, the weather at this time of year is their main handicap. Up to last night the RAF had been idle two nights in a row for the first time in months.

Tito Captures Split, Holds 125 Miles of Coastline

Says His Forces, With Reds, Have Taken Ruma

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP).—Marshal Josip Broz' (Tito), Yugoslav partisans have captured the big Dalmatian port of Split (Spalato) after a fierce three-day battle, a communique broadcast from Tito's headquarters said tonight. It said 1,500 Germans were killed and 1,300 captured in the storming of Split and several other German strongpoints in the vicinity.

"With the capture of Split, 125 miles of the Dalmatian coast, from Herceg Novi to Sibenik, is in Partisan hands," the communique added.

Earlier today, Marshal Tito announced that his troops, in cooperation with the Russians, have captured Ruma, forty-five miles northwest of Belgrade. Ruma is ten miles south of Novi Sad on the road to Zagreb, the Croatian capital.

Benes Advises Czechs To Prepare For Peace

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—President Eduard Benes told his homeland to prepare for peace and promised punishment for Germany in a broadcast today on the 26th anniversary of Czechoslovakian independence.

He received messages from President Roosevelt and other heads of state, including President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz of Poland.

British Coastal Evacuees To Return Home Free

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Government announced today that persons evacuated from more than 50 coastal towns and districts when a German invasion of Britain was feared, might now return to their homes at Government expense.

However, those who fled from the Greater London area during the height of the flying-bomb attacks were told that it was not desirable for them to return yet.

The Government revealed that for four years authorities kept ready an evacuation scheme which would have cleared the civilian population out of 15 Kent cities by special trains within 48 hours of an invasion threat.

Champagne Bubbles Into Air Cargo Inquiry

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—A cache of 1,000 bottles of champagne valued at $20 a bottle has bubbled into an investigation of cargoes brought from France on United States Army cargo planes.

The rain-soaked cases were found by police behind a house in Chelmsford, Essex.

Customs officials questioned two United States air officers and communicated with a French airfield.

It was stated that stricter inspection of Allied aircraft returning from France is likely.

The matter of customs duties and purchase tax for property of American military men returning from France will be discussed in the House of Commons Tuesday as a result of the discovery.

Flyer Saves Fort With Bit Of String

A United States Bomber Base in Britain, Oct. 28 (AP)—Master Sergeant Harold B. Blumberg, 22, of Savannah, Ga., saved a Flying Fortress with a piece of string and shot down a German fighter on his first combat flight.

It was on a mission to Warsaw September 18. Supplies were dropped to beleaguered Polish forces and the bombers flew on to Russia.

Enemy fighters attacked the Fortress twice. The pilot, Lieut. Paul R. Hibbard, Seattle, was killed. Two other crewmen were wounded seriously and the bomber was crippled.

Forty 20-mm. shells riddled the fuselage. The control cables were severed by flak and without them the plane could not navigate.

Blumberg crawled 10 feet to the narrow catwalk above the open bomb bay doors and spliced the cables with a length of silk cord from his flying suit.

Formerly a welder, Blumberg has been overseas 15 months with the 380th Bombardment Group which holds a Presidential citation for attacks on Nazi warplants.

He fired both waist guns after Sergt. William C. Fletcher, Big Stone Gap, Va., went back to relieve the wounded tail gunner. It was while jumping from one gun to the other that he bagged a ME-109.

SIEGFRIED REPLICA SMASHED AT HOME

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—The Siegfried Line was smashed first right back home in the United States.

Major-Gen. Henry B. Saylor, Chief of Ordnance in the European Theater, disclosed today that models of every known type of Siegfried fortification were built at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds long before D day, and were smashed to smithereens to determine the most effective types of concrete-piercing ammunition.

Col. Joel G. Holmes, Gen. Saylor's Deputy chief, said American ground forces alone have fired 50 pounds of ammunition per second against the Germans since D day, and in that time have brought to France 1,000,000 tons of ammunition—the equipment of 266 Liberty Ship loads. Gen. Saylor said the Allies now have a 45-day reserve of over-all essential supply.

Men Live 19 Days In Tanks In Sight Of Nazi Lines

By J. W. Gallagher

Palenburg, Germany, Oct. 28 (AP). How would you like to live, sleep and eat for 19 days in a Sherman tank in plain sight of the German lines 300 yards away?

That is what virtually a whole battalion of tank men of a widely-known armored division have been doing while holding a frontline sector. It has been a case of doing light housekeeping inside cramped and chilly Shermans, or getting shot.

These tanks are squatted in shallow holes to control given parts of the front. Every time one of the tank men lifted his head in daylight, the Germans cut loose with artillery, mortars and sniper fire.

"All I want to see is the guy who designed these Shermans locked up inside one with his mother-in-law for just a week," declared Lieut. James Rose, of Beaumont, Texas, who has just returned from the front line outpost after 19 days.

Commander Sleeps Upright

Drivers and assistant drivers in the Shermans had the comparative luxury of being able to stretch out some on their seats, but the tank commanders had to sleep bolt upright in what amounted to a steel straitjacket.

"When we first moved into that position we could not even look outside the turret," said T/4 James I. Harris, a driver from Hartwell, Georgia. "Every time a head popped up snipers all around us cut loose. We did not need any persuading to stay inside. Some doughboy behind our tank tried to make a dash for it one day and got three steps before he was shot down. The body lay there for three days before we could move it."

Rose and his crew ate "K" and "C" rations for the entire stay.

Smell French Fries

"Doughboys in a pillbox 50 feet away cooked themselves some French fries and they sure smelled good, but they did not do us any good," lamented Corporal William F. Hobbs, of Fort Smith, Ark., a gunner.

During the day time the tank men were alone in an open spot before the German trenches, but at night the infantry came up to protect the tanks from German bazooka attacks. But even at night it was difficult for the tank men to move around. Rose went on a raid of a German cabbage patch one night and got pinned down by machinegun fire.

"We did all our cooking on a small stove in the tank, in one pan which was never washed," explained T/5 Elwood Hall, of Moline, Ill., a radio operator. "And not a guy got sick."

Despite the confined quarters there were no fights or bad feelings and no "cabin fever," Rose said.

"Those guys just laughed and joked, and if anyone started beefing we would say 'This isn't the the chaplain's tent,' and they would shut up," he said.

Germans Use Captured P-47's

UEBACH, Germany, Oct. 28 (AP)—This American-held German frontier town, eleven miles north of Aachen, was bombed and strafed today by several German-flown P-47 Thunderbolts. The Germans apparently put the fighter bombers together from parts of American P-47's shot down over Germany.

'Disease Threatens 75 P. C. Of French'

Paris, Oct. 28 (AP)—Four years of German occupation left 75 per cent. of the French people underweight and threatened by disease, Public Health Minister Francois Billoux declares.

Billoux was quoted yesterday in the newspaper Liberation as saying that hotels and homes must be requisitioned if necessary to cure a situation arising from a shortage of hospital space and facilities so that proper medical care can be provided during the winter.

"Don't Judge By Looks"

"You must not judge the French people by the way they look," he said. "Our Allied friends are wrong in thinking from our appearances that we haven't suffered."

Although France has thus far escaped severe epidemics, Billoux said the French people were hard hit by the generally difficult food situation, with infantile paralysis, rickets and tuberculosis on the increase.

Correspondent Denies Reports Of Clashes on Spanish Border

By GEORGE TUCKER

BOURG MADAME, France, Oct. 26.—(Delayed)—(AP) After a laborious personal inspection, I have found no evidence that Spanish battalions of the FFI have crossed the French border into Spain to engage troops of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Such attacks as there have been were made by local Republicans, who in the opinion of FFI leaders along this frontier acted prematurely and were foredoomed to defeat.

Denies Reports of Battle

The widely-publicized battle of Figueras, in which raiders were said to have driven 25 miles inside Spain and to have liberated a number of political prisoners after engaging Franco's guards, appears never to have happened—at least from the accounts given by persons along the border.

With Philip Jordan of the London News Chronicle, I spent four days and three nights with frontier police, members of the FFI, and Spanish Republican leaders.

We visited every important frontier post from the Mediterranean to the very highest pass over the snow-clogged Pyrenees, and found nothing even remotely resembling reports of sanguinary guerrilla activities.

Last night I talked for more than an hour with the Supreme commander of all Spanish members of the FFI. This dark, truculent little man had his headquarters in an old frame building some miles behind the frontier.

He denied that any Spaniards in the FFI had crossed the border to fight Spanish troops. Two days after the frontier area was liberated, he said, all Spanish elements of the FFI were withdrawn 10 kilometers behind the frontier. In my presence he issued an order withdrawing them an additional 15 kilometers in order to prevent incidents which might prove embarrassing to the French and Spanish governments.

At the tiny frontier station of Le Perthus, which is the only entry into Spain by which any raiders could have reached Figueras, the townspeople and police were unable to account for the growing volume of rumors about a Spanish Maquis uprising.

Here at Bourg Madame high in the Pyrenees, separated from Spain only by a little international bridge, leaders of the FFI and Spanish Republicans deny that a single Spaniard has been sent on a foray against Spanish troops across the frontier.

Jordan and I talked to trappers, hotel keepers, woodchoppers and barmaids as well as the rank and file of maquis along a 100-mile stretch of frontier.

Reports Without Substance

Everywhere the answer was the same—that reports of Spaniards in France crossing into Spain to fight Franco's men were irresponsible and without substance.

It is true there are thousands of Spaniards in the frontier area of Spain, but these are Republicans who fled into France after Franco's victory in the Spanish civil war to save their lives, and they cannot return so long as the present administration remains in power.

All along the way through France we picked up stories of whole camps of wounded Spaniards whose luckier comrades had brought them back onto French soil. The only wounded I have been able to find and the only ones the FFI says it knows anything about are those who were wounded by the Germans in France during the fighting late in August to liberate this district.

Daily broadcasts from the free Spanish radio, however, tell of hard fighting in the vicinity, in which Spanish Republicans are alleged to have taken four villages from Spanish regulars.

That a war of nerves does exist within Spain is evident by the presence of 25,000 Spanish troops with artillery and tanks in the area between Ripoll, Spain, and the frontier. Another Spanish division recently arrived at Organa southeast of Andorra, and the old Spanish blue division which fought for the Germans in Russia has been stationed at Tremp, southwest of Andorra.

It is no longer a secret that thousands of Germans in the French frontier area crossed into Spain after liberation of French areas. Three thousand alone are reported to have crossed the frontier here at Bourg Madame. Instead of being interned, these escapees were incorporated into the old German condor legion which fought for Franco during the civil war, and which lately has been revived. Currently the legion is said to be maintaining garrisons at Manlleu, Ribas, Vich, Grandollers, and Ripoll. It also has units attached to the Spanish Blue division.

Spanish Embassy Denies Gestapo Aid In Spain

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Spanish Embassy said tonight that all Germans who fled from France into Spain "have been interned and are dealt with in strict conformity with the regulations of international law, without their having any participation in Spanish public affairs."

The embassy said it was issuing this statement because of published reports which it called "pure fabrication" that 15,000 Gestapo men had entered Spain, taken possession of the Spanish police and were directing "tyrannical persecution of moderate liberals and Catholics."

Fifth Army Gains South Of Bologna

Rome, Oct. 28 (AP)—American Fifth Army troops, in cold rain, improved their positions today along the line of hills eight miles south of Bologna overlooking Italy's eastern Po valley.

Floods and gales the past 48 hours, however, brought most operations along the entire Italian front to a standstill, and gave the Germans more time to improve their defenses south and southeast of Bologna.

British troops of the Fifth Army were able to move up Highway 67 and enter Rocca San Casciano, about 15 miles southwest of Forli. Indian troops took a hill or two in this central sector without opposition.

In some forward areas Fifth Army units, cut off by flooded streams, were being supplied by rope and ferries.

Patrols performed most of the work on the Eighth Army front.

The Nazis increased their shell fire against the British, who have bumped up against the main Nazi defenses before Forli, 37 miles southeast of Bologna.

force their defenses south and southeast of Bologna.

Allied headquarters said adverse weather also restricted the Mediterranean Allied Air Force operations.

Vital Bridges Bombed

In one attack fighter bombers hit an important bridge in an unnamed location in northern Italy. Three Allied planes were missing from the mission.

The battle line between the British Eighth Army and the Nazis in the Adriatic sector, east of Bologna, was drawn up along the main German defenses at the Ronco river, two miles east of Forli.

American and other troops of the Fifth Army were bogged down eight miles south of Bologna.

British forces in the central sector, however, were able to move up Highway 67 and occupy Rocca San Casciano, and Indian troops in the area occupied several hills without meeting any opposition.

American Fifth Army troops south of Bologna in some forward areas were being supplied by ferries as flood waters cut them off from main supply depots.

Pope Asks Rome to Pray To Avert 'Moral Ruin'

Blames War for Petty Crime, Black-Market Activity

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 28 (AP).—Francesco Cardinal Marchetti Selvaggiani, Vicar General for the District of Rome, prepared today a call to prayer and penitence for the people of Rome, on the order of Pope Pius XII, to save them from "moral ruin" brought about by war-time conditions.

In a letter handed to his vicar yesterday, the Pontiff said his heart shuddered at the "heap of moral ruins which is accumulating daily in the midst of the Christian family, driving those weak in the faith to the most deplorable religious thoughtlessness with the neglect of the most sacred duties."

The Vatican newspaper "L'Osservatore Romano," said Pope Pius had in mind widespread petty crime, black-market operations and moral laxity.

Floods Bog Italy Drive

Rome, Oct. 28 (AP)—Gales and floods brought operations on the entire Italian front to a virtual standstill today and the Germans were capitalizing on the weather-imposed letup in fighting to rein-

New Albanian Government Formed

Bari, Italy, Oct. 28 (AP) — The Albanian military mission here announced last night that a new Albanian Government, headed by Col. Gen. Enver Hexha, commander of the Albanian Army of National Liberation, was formed October 20 in the liberated city of Berati. King Zog, who ruled prior to the German and Italian occupation, now is in London.

BRITISH LAND UNITS MEET FOE IN GREECE

Inflict Casualties on Germans 40 Miles From Yugoslavia—Salonika Fighting Told

ATHENS, Oct. 28 (AP)—British land forces, cooperating with Greek guerrillas, have made their first contact with retreating German troops in Greece in the area of Koziani, sixty miles northwest of Larissa and forty miles below the Yugoslav frontier, it was announced today. A communiqué said casualties were inflicted on the enemy.

Fighting was reported unofficially to have broken out in the big port city of Salonika, fifty-eight miles northeast of Koziani. Royal Air Force pilots said heavy smoke blanketed the city as a result of extensive demolitions preparatory to evacuation by the Germans.

German evacuation trains have left Katerini, half way between Larissa and Salonika, an RAF announcement said, "and on the way out the enemy blew up a tunnel at Iraklion."

It was reported here that the Germans were beginning to show signs of panic and that the withdrawal was taking the form of a rout. Returning pilots said it was apparent that the Germans were running short of transport and some were compelled to move on foot.

RAF planes based in Greece attacked German evacuation trains spotted between Katerini and Salonika as well as other transport.

British, Greeks Contact Nazis In Kozane Area

Athens, Oct. 28 (AP)—A British force cooperating with Greek Andartes has established contact with retiring German forces in the area of Kozane, 60 miles northwest of Larissa and 40 miles below the Yugoslav frontier, it was announced today.

This was the first contact made by the British with the Germans in the Greek theater since the enemy withdrawal began.

Fighting was unofficially reported taking place in the area of Salonika, major port 58 miles northeast of Kozane.

Low-cloud formations and rainstorms continued to hamper Allied air operations against the Germans.

Isle Of Piscopi Taken

Rome, Oct. 28 (AP)—Allied troops landed from the British cruiser Sirius and occupied the island of Piscopi, northwest of Rhodes, the night of October 26, Allied headquarters announced today.

Piscopi (Tilos) is a small mountainous island of the Dodecanese group formerly held by Italy and now claimed by Greece. It is less than 25 miles from Rhodes.

The communique said also that the Island of Melos (Kilo), one of the Cyclades group, was bombed by four British warships Thursday.

No Report Of Resistance

There was no report of resistance to the landing at Piscopi, the communique said.

Historic Melos, the southwesternmost island of the Cyclades, is 70 miles east of the Peloponnesus and approximately the same distance north of Crete. It has an area of 60 square miles and is the site of an airfield, near Trapani. It was on Melos that the famed Venus de Milo was discovered in 1820 and taken to the Louvre.

Yesterday an Allied air force announcement said that the Germans "have practically no prospect of saving" forces totaling some 23,000 men in Crete, Rhodes and the remaining Nazi-held Ægean islands because they lack aircraft and their air evacuation lines are under constant Allied observation.

Landing Tales

In Norway

Stockholm, Oct. 28 (AP)—"Reports of Allied landing operations along the Norwegian coast already are so numerous it is impossible to deny them all," the German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau reported today in announcing that blackout measures had been tightened throughout the country.

Plans for the evacuation of civilians in northern Norway were said to involve 200,000 persons.

BULGARS SIGN ARMISTICE

Come To Terms 10 Days After Churchill-Stalin Concord

Moscow, Oct. 28 (AP)—Bulgaria signed an armistice today with Russia, the United States and Great Britain, ten days after conclusion of talks between Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin at which an agreement on main points of the armistice was reached.

Terms of the armistice agreement were not disclosed immediately. Preliminary conditions accepted by Bulgaria from the Allies October 11 included evacuation of Greek and Yugoslav territories seized by the Bulgarians.

Bulgarian Foreign minister Petko Stainov declared that the armistice delegation from his country "regards it as its duty to inform representatives of the Allied governments that the new Bulgarian Government of the patriotic front has been able to carry out a considerable part of the conditions provided for in the draft terms of the Allied governments."

"Fundamental Duty"

He asserted that the Bulgarian Government "considers it its fundamental duty to implement the armistice terms in a most conscientious manner.

"This armistice will assist the Bulgarian Government to establish relations between Bulgaria and the peoples of the United Nations, and will inaugurate a policy of cooperation with these nations."

The "whole people" of his country backed the Government in the realization of this policy, he added.

Negotations for the armistice agreement opened Thursday and ended with the formal signing today.

Tolbukhin Signs

It was signed on behalf of the three Allies by Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin, as "representative of the Allied command," and by Lieut. Gen. J. A. H. Gammell, as representative of the "Allied supreme commander in the Mediterranean area." Marshal Tolbukhin's Third Ukraine Army invaded Bulgaria.

For Bulgaria the signers were Stainov, Dobri Tarpeshev and Nikola Petkov, ministers without portfolio in the government of Premier Kimon Georgiev, and Petko Stoyanov, Bulgarian Finance Minister.

A communique issued after the Stalin-Churchill conference declared "the march of events in southeastern Europe was fully considered and full agreement was reached on main points in the Bulgarian armistice terms."

BULGAR DELEGATES ACCEPT ARMISTICE

Moscow, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—An official announcement tonight said that Bulgaria had signed an armistice with the Allies.

A Moscow broadcast, reported by the Federal Communications Commission, said the armistice came at the conclusion of two days of negotiations in the Russian capital between representatives of Russia, Great Britain and the United States and the Bulgarian delegation.

The armistice was signed on behalf of the three Allies by Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin, acting as representative of the Allied Command, the broadcast added, and by Lieut.-Gen. J. A. H. Gammell, as representative of the Allied Supreme Commander in the Mediterranean area. On the Bulgarian side the armistice was signed by Petko Stainov, head of the Bulgarian delegation and Foreign Affairs Minister in the government of Simon Georgiev; Dobri Tarpeshev and Nikola Petkov, ministers without portfolio in the Georgiev Government, and Petko Stoyanov, Bulgarian Finance Minister.

Bulgarian Armistice Discussed

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—A representative of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander in the Mediterranean, has arrived in Moscow to take part in the Bulgarian armistice discussions, Moscow radio announced today.

Later, another Moscow broadcast by the Soviet monitor said that negotiations for conclusion of the armistice began yesterday.

"They were conducted on one side by representatives of the Soviet, United States and British governments and on the other by representatives of the Bulgarian Government," the announcement said.

JAPANESE FORCES LAUNCH ALL-OUT DRIVE ON KWEILIN

CHUNGKING, Oct. 28. — (AP) The Chinese announced today that Japanese troops had opened an all-out offensive and reached the outskirts of the Kwangsi province capital of Kweilin, whose fall would represent a major achievement in the Japanese effort to isolate eastern China.

The Japanese, last reported stalled about 20 miles north of Kweilin, opened their drive yesterday with twin thrusts on both sides and directly down the Hunan-Kwangsi railway. Chinese positions on the city's outskirts were under attack.

During the lull which preceded the renewed offensive the Japanese regrouped their forces, built roads, brought up supplies and completed other military preparations.

As one column of the invaders attacked Chinese defenses 14 to 18 miles east of Kweilin, another swung southwest from Kwangyang, 50 miles northeast of the city, and joined the attack.

Thus the Chinese defenses east of Kweilin were being pounded from two sides.

While the Japanese blasted their way down the railway itself, a supporting column moved to outflank Kweilin on the west. Fighting was in progress at all points of the attack.

To protect their left flank Japanese forces based at the Hunan province town of Yungming, 75 miles east of Kweilin, struck across the Kwangsi border toward Fuchwan, 35 miles to the south.

In a renewed thrust from their West river base at Pingnam, 115 miles south of Kweilin, the Japanese scored a six-mile advance that carried them 18 miles west of Pingnam. Kweiping and Pingnam are the main bases for the drive on Liuchow, 95 miles southwest of Kweilin.

The only Chinese success recorded by the High command was the occupation of a major part of a Japanese stronghold eight miles southwest of Kweiping. The Chinese have been counterattacking in this area the past week with continual support of the U. S. 14th Air force.

On the east coast of China the Japanese advanced westward from the recently-seized seaport of Foochow and fighting was in progress six miles from the city. The Japanese are converging the recently invaded Foochow region into a base for possible use against feared American landings on the China coast. They are presumably planning to either extend their holdings in this area or mop up any Chinese forces likely to disturb their hold on the city.

JAPS AT POINT NEAR KWEILIN

Are Now Attacking Chinese at City's Outskirts.

Chungking, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—The Japanese opened an all-out offensive against the northern Kwangsi defense center of Kweilin yesterday and are now attacking Chinese positions at the outskirts of the city, a Chinese communique announced today.

The Japanese also advanced six miles in a renewed thrust westward from Pingnam, 115 miles south of Kweilin, and at the same time struck westward from the recently occupied East China seaport of Foochow.

The new Japanese push began after a long lull during which they regrouped forces, built roads to bring up supplies and completed other preparations for the major operation.

The drive began with twin thrusts down both sides of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway, which struck at Chinese defenses from fourteen to seventeen miles east of Kweilin. Still another column swung southwestward from Kwangyang, fifty miles east northeast of Kweilin, with the ultimate aim of joining the general attack and bringing under two-sided pressure the city which the Chinese have said would prove China's Stalingrad.

As the Japanese blasted their way down the railway, a supporting column moved to outflank Kweilin from the west. The Chinese said fighting raged at all points of the attack.

In a move to protect the left flank of this offensive, a Japanese force based in the Hunan province town of Yungming, 75 miles east of Kweilin, jabbed southward across the Kwangsi border against Fuchwan, 35 miles distant.

On the West River front, the Chinese said, another new Japanese drive, one of two aimed at the American air base city of Liuchow, 95 miles southwest of Kweilin, had sprung westward 18 miles beyond its base at Pingnam. The other push toward Liuchow is being attempted from the Kweiping area, southeast of Liuchow.

The only Chinese success claimed by the high command was the occupation of the major part of a Japanese position eight miles southwest of Kweiping.

In the Fukien province fighting on the east China coast, the high command announced that the Japanese had advanced six miles west of the fallen seaport of Foochow. The Japanese are converting the Foochow area into a strong defensive base against feared American landings on the China coast.

Bombers From China Sink Jap Destroyer

Chungking, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—One Japanese destroyer was probably sunk and another damaged by United States Fourteenth Air Force bombers during night operations October 26 in an area seventy-five miles west of Luichow peninsula, a communique from Gen. Joseph Stilwell's headquarters announced today. In addition an enemy tanker and cargo vessel were damaged during the attack, the communique said.

China Victory In '45 Seen

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, told a group today that she believed China's eight years of war with the Japanese would end in victory by the early part of next year.

CHUNGKING, Oct. 28 (AP).—Brigadier General Benjamin G. Ferris, of Pawling, N. Y., and Watertown, Mass., deputy chief of staff at United States Army headquarters in Chungking, will return soon to America and report for duty to the commanding general of the Army Ground Forces.

General Ferris came to Chungking as deputy chief of staff last Oct. 4. He had served with General Joseph W. Stilwell in Burma in 1942 and later helped to organize Stillwell's rear echelon headquarters at New Delhi.

B-29 Base Little Damaged In Jap Raid

A Superfortress Base in West China, Oct. 27 (AP—Delayed)—A considerable force of Japanese medium bombers made an ineffective raid on a Superfortress base in west China last night.

Less than a dozen of the planes pierced the defenses and dropped bombs on three fields. The rest were driven off by Allied interceptors.

Four cargo aircraft and two light tactical planes were damaged on one field, while the other two reported moderate, repairable damage to three Superfortresses and seven light planes.

42 Claimed By Japs

(Japanese imperial headquarters declared yesterday that 42 Superfortresses were destroyed and 15 others were set afire in a raid Thursday night on a United States airbase at Chengtu, northwest of Chungking.)

Eight waves of enemy planes approached the fields during a three-hour aiert. Damage to runways was slight and the fields were back in use almost immediately after the alert ended.

Mot[illegible] Titles Conferred

Moscow, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Supreme Soviet conferred the first titles of "Mother Heroine" today on 14 mothers who have ten or more children. Leading the group was Ann Alexakhina, eight of whose 12 children are in the Red army. Second was Xenya Zotova with 13 children, five of whom are in the army.

Allied Forces Gain On Arakan Front

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 28 (AP)—West African troops have made further progress in the Kaladan Valley on the Arakan front, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten announced today, but elsewhere in Burma operations were limited to patrolling.

Eastern Air Command aircraft made concentrated attacks yesterday on enemy concentrations on the Chindwin front.

15 More Towns On Leyte Freed

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 28 (AP)—The crushing power of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion armies, released as Japan's shattered fleet fled the Philippines, rapidly engulfed Samar Island today, within 275 miles of Manila, aided brilliantly by Filipino guerrillas.

On Leyte, where land-based fighter planes drew cheers from elated soldiers as they began operating from captured airfields, great segments of the island fell to the onrushing Yanks.

By the hour, Japanese dead and wounded were added to the more than 14,000 casualties already inflicted. Most of the dead were men of Nippon's defeated and demoralized 16th Division which perpetrated the tortures on Bataan.

Capital Captured

Virtually all Samar's more than 1,200 square miles, which extend to within 15 miles of Luzon, were under American and Filipino domination. The capital city, Catbalogan, was captured by men of Maj. Gen. Franklin C. Sibert's Tenth Corps.

It was the second island capital invested in the Philippines, the other being Leyte's Tacloban, now provisional capital for Sergio Osmena's Philippines Government.

Twelve more towns and villages were liberated on Leyte. At least 55 now are freed.

Bottled Up In Valley

Disaster from many directions confronted the selfsame Japanese who brutally compelled the hegward into the valley. They drove through Santa Fe and Pastrana.

Drive On Supply Base

Elements of Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's Seventh and Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley's 96th divisions struck north above captured Burauen to within two miles of Dagami, main supply and troop concentration center for the Nipponese 16th.

The gap between the converging Yanks is less than ten miles. When it is closed, the plight of all Japanese between there and the east coast is hopeless.

Japanese facing the 24th blew up bridges to slow the American advance, but makeshift spans were built and the infantrymen continued the relentless pursuit.

Facing New Peril

Such Japanese as escaped north of Irving's valley spearheads headed straight for a new peril. Barring their way at Carigara Bay are 10th Corps elements of General Sibert, which have seized the coastal town of Barugo. It is the terminus for one of two escape roads the Japanese can use and is only five miles east of Carigara, terminus of the other.

MacArthur's communique today reporting the capture of Barugo also disclosed that men of General Arnold's Seventh have pushed down Leyte's east coast 14 miles below Dulag to enter Abuyog. From Barugo to Abuyog stretch 70 miles of Leyte coast now under control of the Yanks.

Airmen Cheered

Control of Samar Island plus the seizure of Barugo on Leyte would mean command of a 100-mile coastal segment bordering the Samar Sea. MacArthur's men, in gard Filipino-American garrison which surrendered on Bataan to march for days, killing the men who faltered.

Some Nipponese are bottled up in the Leyte Valley, with Yanks moving on them from north and south. They had two choices: Flee into the hills—or stand and die.

Spearheads of Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving's 24th Division, crashing through the 16th's backbone of resistance west of Palo, pushed spearheads six miles south-shore-to-shore movements, earlier this week won both sides of San Juanico Strait, which leads into the Samar Sea from Leyte Gulf.

The appearance of land-based fighters on captured Leyte fields, after engineers had finished them for use, had an electrical effect. Soldiers, seeing an end to daylight enemy plane sallies, paused to cheer. Filipinos, told these were American planes back on the Philippines to stay, yelled wildly.

Requiem Sounded

Sailors aboard warships of the navy, whose carrier planes previously have had to cover land operations as well as pile into the Japanese fleet, waved to the army planes in friendly greeting.

MacArthur, who has made it plain he was eager to get at the Japanese who tortured his men on Bataan, sounded the requiem in today's communique:

"The Japanese 16th Division, commanded by Lieut. Gen. Shiro Makino, which participated in operations in the Philippines in 1942, has been thoroughly defeated. Remnants are retreating either toward the west coast or into the mountain ranges paralleling Leyte Valley on the southwest."

518 Yanks Killed

As against Japanese casualties of 14,045—practically half of the enemy forces on Leyte—during the first week's fighting, American casualties were 518 killed, 139 missing and 1,503 wounded.

American patrol torpedo boats now are operating on Leyte's west coast. Today's communique disclosed the PTs sank ten Japanese barges loaded with troops, and two coastal freighters in Ormoc Bay.

Foe Reported Demoralized

WITH THE 7TH DIVISION, Leyte, Oct. 28 (AP).—Japanese troops in the southern Leyte battle sector are demoralized, with American forces in possession of all airdromes and in hot pursuit of the enemy.

Buri Airdrome, where the enemy tried to make a stand, fell yesterday before a tank and infantry team which left Japanese dead strewn in its wake.

American troops to the north, at Burauen, are pushing toward the village of Dagami along one of the main inland roads and it is only a matter of time until forces from the south and the north join.

To the south, patrols have fanned out as far down the coast as Abuyog, eight miles beyond our present lines. They found little Japanese activity.

The few Japanese prisoners taken for the most part took undernourished. The collar bones of one captive taken yesterday stood out and he didn't appear to weigh more than 100 pounds.

Much equipment is being abandoned by the hard-pressed enemy, including quantities of personal belongings left behind in their headlong flight—sometimes just a few moments ahead of American troops.

Leyte Invaders Surge Beyond River Barrier

Engineers Bridge the Palo; Infantry Takes Pastrana, Pays a Stiff Price for It

WITH THE 24TH DIVISION, Leyte, Oct. 28 (Via Army radio) (AP)—The drive of the 24th Division through the central Leyte Valley, which holds the strategic key to reconquest of the Philippines, is rolling forward again today after having been held up while engineers rebuilt bridges across the Palo River.

In their retreat the Japanese destroyed the bridges and the general American advance was stopped yesterday. While waiting for artillery to cross the river infantrymen advanced to take Santa Fe and Pastrana.

The Americans paid a stiff price for Pastrana, which was taken only after the toughest fighting encountered since units of the 24th Division smashed through Japanese opposition at the Palo beachhead.

American mortars blasted the Japanese from poorly built blockhouses. Only a few Japanese escaped. Another unit which pushed beyond Santa Fe met stiff resistance, but by nightfall artillery was brought up to support the Americans. Fighting at this point went on through the night.

Meanwhile the 24th Division of the 10th Corps pushed its spearhead toward the center of the valley, where it expects to join the 24th Corps coming up from the south and thereby cut off the Japanese retreat westward.

A sizable Japanese force was reported at a bend on the Binhaan River to the south between Pastrana and Gagami. The Binhaan River bisects Leyte Valley.

The Japanese are making a supreme effort to keep this road open by using light artillery.

Adapting a page from the German book of strategy, the Japanese slowed the American advance yesterday with numerous land mines. They booby-trapped numerous native shacks along the road of the American advance.

Running Japs Speed Drive

With the 24th Corps, Leyte, P. I., Oct. 28 (AP)—Japanese troops will "run if they have a place to run to," Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge, 24th Corps commander, observed today in describing the Leyte campaign as the "fastest in the Pacific war."

"The Japs have been running in all directions on Leyte," the stocky, firm-jawed, 51-year-old veteran of Guadalcanal and Bougainville said. "I think we could have chased them faster, although I can't say I'm not satisfied with the performance of our troops in the first week."

Hodge paid tribute to the 96th Division, now driving northwest through swampy terrain to cut the east-west road from Tanauan to Dagami.

Bong Gets 31st Kill In Pacific

At a Leyte Airstrip, Oct. 27 (AP—By Army Radio—Delayed)—Four hours after Major Richard Bong, top ranking American fighter Ace, landed with the first army planes to be based here, he collected his 31st "kill."

The chunky, blond, Poplar (Wis.) pilot was flying his second combat mission since returning to this theater several months ago.

Shortly after the army P-38 landing on this field, five Japanese planes were reported approaching from the west.

Bong and several other pilots hurriedly refueled and took off to intercept the raiders before they could reach this base. They did.

Bong blew up a Japanese fighter and Col. Robert Morrissey, of Tecumseh, Neb., bagged another. Two more planes fell before the guns of Major Gerald Johnson, of Eugene, Oregon.

Bong and his flying mates pursued the last Japanese who fled and made good his escape after 50 miles.

The top-ranking army flyer in the Pacific says he wants combat duty, but his official status in this area is gunnery instructor.

Under regulations Bong can take active part in combat only if American installations are attacked.

JAP LOSSES MOUNT TO 40 WARSHIPS

U. S. Troops Swarm Rapidly Over Leyte Against Weak Resistance.

MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Sunday, Oct. 29—(AP)—(Via Army Radio)—Gen Douglas MacArthur revised upward today Japanese naval losses in the Philippines and announced his fighters had damaged an enemy destroyer near Cebu, thus raising to at least 40 the confirmed total of Nipponese warships sunk or damaged in the three battles.

At the same time, he justified Tokyo radio's broadcast concern over the ground situation in the Philippines by reporting that his troops were swarming rapidly over Leyte against enemy remnants who are fighting only delaying actions.

16 Enemy Warships Sunk

MacArthur confirmed that in the southernmost of the three naval actions, that directed through Surigao gulf, all 16 enemy warships—the battleships Yamasiro and Fuso, four cruisers and 10 destroyers—were sunk. Ten were sent down Oct. 25 in the first four hours of battle with the forces of Rear Adm. Jesse Oldendorf. The rest were tracked down and sent to their doom.

The destroyer was damaged in a separate action off Cebu by low-flying fighter planes.

These new MacArthur figures, added to confirmation of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz for the two other battles off Samar island and south of Formosa, make a total of 23 enemy warships sunk, including two aircraft carriers, two battleships, eight cruisers and 11 destroyers. An overall total of three ships probably were sunk and 14 damaged. Even these totals appeared likely to be increased with revisions to be expected on the Samar-Formosa actions.

Aground, MacArthur's men liberated sections of Leyte so far inland that behind the soldiers Filipino children trooped back to reopened schools.

Fighters Land on Leyte

His fighter planes, newly arrived at captured airfields on Leyte, lost no time in proving their prowess. MacArthur reported today that 18 enemy planes were shot down in combat and two more by anti-aircraft fire during "light and ineffectual raids."

On the north coast of Leyte, Tenth corps elements captured Carigara, thus seizing the last of two highway outlets for enemy forces which might be fleeing in that direction from the south. Yesterday MacArthur disclosed capture of the other highway terminus of Barugo.

To the south of there in the bottled up Leyte valley, Twenty-fourth division units compressed the north-south trap on the Nipponese to less than five miles. Troops moving north from Burauen to meet them were within one mile of Dagami. Dagami is the main supply and troop concentration point for remnants of Japan's demoralized and defeated 16th division, the torturers of Bataan.

The General said many survivors from the sunken enemy warships have been captured, including a captain of one of the destroyers.

The battleships were the Yamashiro and Fuso.

In his communique of October 26, MacArthur claimed only a battleship of the Yamashiro class had been sunk, along with "several cruisers and destroyers" and that a Japanese force east of Samar to the north had been beaten off and three battleships damaged and several cruisers and destroyers sunk. Today's announcement made no additional claims for the Samar engagement.

U. S. Losses Light

Seventh Fleet losses were one escort carrier and several PT boats sunk and one destroyer damaged.

MacArthur's communique also disclosed that Fifth Air Force planes sank one destroyer and "severely" damaged a light cruiser in the Camotes Sea on the west side of Leyte Island and shot down seven planes.

One American aircraft carrier sustained damage and casualties in this action.

North and south, ground forces fighting toward a juncture reported successes as MacArthur's Leyte campaign proceeded swiftly. Troops moved forward all along the line in pursuit of the demoralized troops of the Japanese 16th Division.

20 Jap Planes Downed

Aerial action on the island saw 20 Japanese planes shot down, 18 by American fighters and two by ack-ack.

Schools in the liberated areas of Leyte now are being reopened and enemy air raids while continuing are light and ineffectual.

The First Cavalry in the Fifth Corps sector operating on the west coast of Leyte made a three-mile advance along the coast to take Carigara town while units of the 24th Division advanced four miles farther up the Leyte valley to attack Japanese positions at Alanglang, 12 miles from the west coast. A Japanese counterthrust was beaten back.

7th Division Gains Mile

Elements of the Seventh Division, driving up from the south, moved to within one mile of Dagami, a gain of a mile since yesterday's communique. Dagami is the main supply and troop junction of the Japanese 16th.

MacArthur's men were bent on destroying the Japanese 16th to avenge the Death March of Bataan, which the 16th conducted.

There was no further word on the action on Samar where yesterday most of the island was under American-Filipino domination. Troops of the Tenth Corps are operating on the island which reaches to within 15 miles of Luzon, main island of the Philippines.

[John B. Hughes, broadcasting from General MacArthur's headquarters, said that Samar now is completely in American hands.]

Fighters Get Cheers

Appearance of the army fighter planes brought cheers from troops as they swooped to landings on newly completed airfields on Leyte. In their arrival soldiers foresaw a possible end to enemy daylight raids.

MacArthur's communique disclosed yesterday that more than 14,000 Japanese casualties had been counted. These constituted half the enemy force on Leyte.

Limping From Disaster.

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—American planes and surface craft today were hunting down the Japanese warships limping from disaster in the Philippines, where the Imperial Fleet lost probably forty ships and had its maximum strength cut at least in half.

Bombers maintained an aerial dragnet from south China to the Sulu Sea, searching for survivors. Secrecy shadowed the activities of Allied fleet units which, however, were not overlooking the opportunity for a more decisive "kill."

The loss of six American warships in the three vital naval engagements was announced yesterday. They included the light carrier Princeton, most of whose personnel were saved, two escort carriers, two destroyers and one destroyer escort, all unidentified.

Rear-Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of staff of the Pacific Fleet, reported: "It appears forty Japanese ships were sunk or crippled," although the box score of the naval engagements is not complete.

[Tokyo's latest claims of American losses were 108 warships and transports sunk or damaged, including eight carriers sunk and seven carriers and a battleship damaged. It acknowledged Japanese losses of six warcraft sunk—a carrier, a battleship, two cruisers and two destroyers—and a carrier and one battleship damaged.]

Navy Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said tonight that five American task forces, "probably the whole Pacific fleet," are on the move.

Two task forces are east of Leyte; two east of Luzon and the fifth is approaching the Philippines from New Guinea, the report said.

A revised total of Japanese losses in the Philippines fighting lists 40 Nipponese warships sunk or damaged, a loss which American naval officials said has drastically cut the enemy's capital striking force. The new figure, raised from 27, still was incomplete.

3 Small U.S. Ships Barred Jap Fleet

By SPENCER DAVIS

Aboard Admiral Kinkaid's Flagship, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 28 (AP—Via Army Radio) — Two American destroyers and a small destroyer escort in a virtual suicide stand, one of the most heroic actions of the war, straddled the path of the main Japanese battle fleet off the east coast of Samar to cover the retreat of vulnerable escort carriers the morning of October 25.

The odds against the trio were overwhelming. Four Japanese battleships, eight cruisers and 13 destroyers were enveloping the carrier.

Seen From Carrier

Joseph I. Russell, Miami, Fla., aviation chief machinist's mate, standing on the flight deck of a carrier in the center of the attack, saw the destroyer escort lay a smokescreen and then dart back into it to deliver a close-range torpedo blow.

The two destroyers then followed up.

Jap Battleship Hit

"Their torpedoes struck a Jap battleship," Russell said. "I saw it much later, dead in the water. That was one of the greatest performances I have ever seen. There were a lot of brave men fighting that day."

The carriers were under attack by the battleships and some 200 Zero land-based planes. Avenger and Wildcat pilots from baby flattops attacked the enemy with such fury that the Japanese were forced to withdraw.

(The dispatch from the flagship did not mention the fate of the two destroyers and the escort. Official American losses in the three battles in the Philippines announced at Pearl Harbor fleet headquarters, listed two unidentified destroyers and one unidentified destroyer-escort as sunk.)

JAP NAVAL FORCE WIPED OUT CLEAN IN ONE OF 3 FIGHTS

Two or Three Battleships, Five Cruisers and Several Destroyers Sunk.

Aboard Admiral Kinkaid's Flagship Off Leyte, Oct. 28 (A. P.). — The American warships guarding the Leyte invasion beachhead wiped out the entire Japanese naval force trapped in Surigao Strait, including at least two battleships and five cruisers, staff officers of the Seventh United States Fleet reported today.

This enemy force, based in Singapore waters, had been sent up to intercept the American fleet, and was met in a decisive battle before the dawn of October 25. A number of Japanese destroyers were also sunk in this action. Among the greater ships destroyed were the battleship Yamashiro and the heavy cruiser Mogami. The second battleship and the four other cruisers were not identified.

The staff officers said it was possible that a third Japanese battleship may have been among the vessels sent to the bottom in this fight. Earlier reports had indicated that the force included

No Doubt About Elimination

It is not known definitely if the last two ships were fugitives from the Surigao action or were another light force, but there is no doubt about their elimination.

Whatever crippled ships the Japanese were able to siphon off from the northern attack force through San Bernardino Straits are believed making for Coron Bay off Mindoro and for the protected anchorage on the west coast of Palawan.

The destruction of the Singapore force has reduced the Japanese naval strength to such an extent they will be hard put to defend the South China Sea. How strong their fleet remains depends largely upon their ability to make quick repairs.

Praise for the Old Fellows.

Admiral Oldendorf maintained his attack for four hours.

"Whatever forces the enemy got inside that strait, didn't get out," he declared today. He sent planes into the air to photograph the broken hulks of Japanese vessels and was chagrined because some of the beaten ships sank before the planes could get there.

Admiral Oldendorf gave particular praise to the American battleships, some of which had been sunk and refloated at Pearl Harbor and had come back to fight again. "Those old fellows proved they could deliver the goods," he said. "I've never seen more beautiful shooting."

Strange Things Happen In Midst Of Sea Battle

Aboard a United States Carrier Force Flagship, Philippines, Sea, Oct. 25—(AP—Delayed)—Strange things come to pass in historic naval engagements. Little things, along with the great actions, etch themselves into memory.

Heroes are created by the moment—in one minute a man is an ordinary fighting mortal; the next he is an immortal whose name will go down in history for the great deed he has just performed.

Six Planes Singlehanded

Such as:

The Hellcat fighter pilot who shot down six enemy planes singlehanded in one week of fighting.

The torpedo plane group who went in, unescorted, against an entire enemy task force and slammed home a "tin fish" against a carrier.

The divebombers who shot down seven enemy aircraft and destroyed another without firing a shot, and the intrepid fighter pilots who strafed battleships.

Voters' Call Posted

Amidst it all, our executive officer, with a sense of humor, posted a notice saying "Anyone who feels he is eligible to vote but has not had the opportunity to do so may call the balloting officer at Phone 298."

It was an unorthodox engagement, as navy engagements go, so nothing seems surprising after two days in the center of this battle of the Philippines sea. Humor mixed as naturally with the powder smoke as F6F (American fighter) pilots against the Zekes (Japanese fighters).

A United States admiral even suggested that we take a disabled Japanese destroyer in tow, as a souvenir, but was overruled by Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher.

Aboard United States Carrier Task Force Flagship, Philippine Sea, Oct. 26 (AP—By Army Radio—Delayed)—From his topside battle station aboard the light carrier U. S. S. Princeton, Clark L. Zeiders, chief gunner's mate, saw the first Japanese aerial bomb hurtle down on her, crash through her flight deck and start her on the way to destruction.

"A Japanese plane dived almost directly ahead of the ship from about 2,000 feet," Zeiders said.

Exploded In Third Deck

Zeiders, whose home address is RFD No. 1, Etters, Pa., said the bomb "looked like a 1,000-pounder, but appeared ten times that large as it came down."

The bomb smashed into the hangar deck and finally exploded on the third deck with a great burst of flame.

On the bridge of this carrier, two days ago, I saw the first smoke curl up from the Princeton at 8.45 A. M. During the next few hours we looked on helplessly as explosion after explosion tore into the ship, one sending a cloud of smoke billowing a thousand feet into the sky.

Baltimorean Twice A Survivor

What happened on the carrier itself was related today by the 25-year-old Zeiders and six other survivors who were brought aboard this ship. Two of them once before made the same fight to live when the original Wasp and Hornet were sunk.

The bomb hit overhead, aft the engine room. Leo J. Soboda, Jr., 27, chief machinist's mate, of 4304 Parkwood avenue, Baltimore, who survived the September 15, 1942, sinking of the big carrier Wasp, was in a forward part of the ship. In five minutes he couldn't see in front of him.

The smoke became unbearable—so bad that the crew was granted permission to leave the engine room.

On the way up the chief noticed a man who had lost a good part of his face. But nobody was hysterical.

Thought He Heard Strafing

"I started across the flight deck when I heard what I thought was strafing and immediately hit the deck," said Edward Mulgrew, 22, aviation chief ordnanceman, of 272 Willow street, Carlisle, Pa.

"I felt the jar of a bomb and saw a small fire on deck. Moving to the forward part of the deck I heard the muffled explosion of a bomb. In what seemed a few minutes the first torpedo went off on the hangar deck. It blew debris all over the place and took part of the flight deck right up in the air. Then there were small explosions. Probably of gasoline containers."

All But Two Returned

Leo P. Zilligen, 45, aviation chief machinist's mate, of Chicago, had gone to the flight deck to watch fighter planes land after they had shot down 37 Japanese planes out of several hundred which had attacked our carrier group that day. All but two Hellcats returned prior to the bombing.

A bomb made a hole three feet in diameter on the portside three fourths of the way aft, said Zilligen. He added, "Smoke started to come up. I heard the popping of .50-caliber ammunition below. The first explosion shook the ship and the next one blew the elevator fish (torpedo) off."

The torpedoes that went off were on nine planes due to be launched later and still on the hangar deck.

Flyer Sees First Casualties

Ensign Frank Goodrich, 23, a fighter pilot of Iron Mountain, Mich., was in the ready room just forward and below the ship's island structure. When the ack-ack firing began the flyers dispersed, but "we had no idea of its seriousness." Smoke already was beginning to fill the wardroom and Goodrich saw his first casualties—men badly burned.

In a communications office under the flight deck Lieut. (j. g.) Charles Avery, 42, Terrebonne, Ore., baldish veteran of 24 years with the navy, felt a slight jar and thought a plane had crashed while landing.

"No one was particularly worried until 20 minutes later," he said, "when smoke started coming into the passageway. It got thicker. We put on gas masks."

50 Feet From Big Explosion

"I was 50 feet away when a big explosion tore away the elevator, or part of the flight deck, but I don't remember any concussion and was not hurt. After the second explosion farther aft word was passed to put lines over the side."

Frederick A. Plath, 29, of McAllen, Texas, chief commissary steward, was in the provision issue room, about amidship on the starboard side of the second deck.

He was reading "The Last Flight of Butch O'Hare," a magazine account of the exploits of the famed navy flying hero. Plath had just prepared the lunch menu. The enlisted men were going to have asparagus tips, mashed potatoes, boiled red beans, chile and mince pie.

Had Baked 240 Pies

"We baked 240 pies the night before," the tatooed Texan related. "I remember we baked 400 mince pies on the Hornet the night before she was sunk, two years ago today.

"I had taken off my flashproof clothing just before the explosion. The pay clerk hit the deck in front of me. An ash tray fell off the desk. The light bulbs smashed. Someone in the gallery yelled 'help.' After the second explosion on the hangar deck the smoke was so thick a flashlight was no help at all."

Aids Injured Fellow Flyer

Plath felt his way around a bulkhead and an ensign told him to go forward. From the catwalk Avery climbed to the forward part of the flight deck and saw pharmacist's mates working over several wounded.

Goodrich, who had gone to the side of Lieut. Ralph S. Taylor, of Kerns, W. Va., after the bombing, started to help a fellow flyer who received an injured leg in aerial combat. Goodrich himself had a plaster cast on his head to support a brace on his nose, which had been broken in a sports accident.

Zilligen saw two fighter planes being shoved off the deck to prevent further fires.

Mulcrew got half way down the hangar deck but found it "an inferno."

Zeiders was forced to leave the enlisted men's ready room when the temperature topped 120 degrees. He threw gun clips overside from a gun mount.

Some In Water Four Hours

All seven made their way to the forecastle. Word spread to abandon ship. One by one they slid down lines or anchor chains into the water, where some remained as long as four hours.

When a destroyer came along, at least 150 other men jumped into its deck from the carrier's port gun mount in a few minutes.

Then the men who lived through the fires and explosions fought heavy swells in the sea and kept being swept under the ships. Several were crushed between the Princeton and another ship.

Some, like Saputo and Mulgrew, joined up in the water, swimming or floating in groups until they reached destroyers or were picked up by their motor whaleboats. Mulgrew yelled to one destroyer, "Come back for me," a statement he was able to laugh about today.

Could See Japs Shot Down

Even as hundreds of men bobbed about in the water the Japanese attempted new attacks. Two miles off an aerial dogfight could be seen. Then a Japanese plane went flaming into the sea.

Survivors used lifeboats, Mae Wests, watertight ammunition cans and life rafts to remain afloat until it was their turn to be picked up.

Zeiders sighted an elderly man who could not swim and took him in tow. For nearly three hours the latter held on to his right arm. When they approached a destroyer the old man kicked his legs to help get there faster.

Plath went to the aid of a man who cried "help" and who was floating on his back obviously sick. Plath secured the man's lifejacket which was not on properly.

Gives Powder Can To Youth

When someone called "Chief, help me" Zilligen gave his empty powder can to a youth who could not swim.

Sharks appeared but there was no report of their attacking any of the survivors. Sailors aboard the destroyer shattered the water with submachine gunfire around the men to make certain they would not be bothered by the sharks.

One engine crew was rounded up and told to prepare to return to their ship but it became apparent it would be useless to attempt to pump life into her.

About 6 P. M., a destroyer fired a torpedo into the smoking hulk of the Princeton on orders to scuttle her. The first hit seemed to have no effect. Then a cruiser closed in and gave her another torpedo. Those who saw it said the ship seemed to blow apart with flame that shot a thousand feet in the air. Part of the fantail floated awhile. Then it too disappeared.

Soboda In Navy 9 Years

Machinist's Mate Soboda, who has been in the navy nine years, is the husband of Mrs. Frances Penn Soboda, of 4304 Parkwood avenue. His mother, Mrs. Helen Millionie, lives at 204 East Lanvale street.

The last letter from the 27-year-old sailor was written on October 9.

Japs Call Plight Serious

San Francisco, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Japanese in a radio broadcast today reported that the situation has taken a serious turn for them in the Philippines because the Americans were pouring in reinforcements at a rapid rate.

Arrival of between 20 to 30 more American transports in Leyte Gulf yesterday was reported by the broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Nippon broadcast said that the Americans had been able to restore "all airfields lying within the Tacloban and Dulag areas on Leyte Island" and were "trying desperately to construct more airfield."

The Japanese implied that they were outclassed in the air. They said an average of 300 American planes raided undisclosed targets in the Philippines Thursday and yesterday.

Japanese troops, the broadcast added, are attacking one American division in the Tacloban area and two divisions in the Dulag area to the south.

"The enemy," the announcer said, "is throwing in all of his strength to determine the fate of the Pacific and his design cannot be disregarded. Consequently the war situation cannot be viewed with optimism."

Optimism Brings Jap Warning

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—Berlin indicated today that the Japanese press was recanting on its claims to great Japanese victories off Formosa and in the Philippines, quoting the Tokyo Asahi as warning "against too much optimism concerning Japanese successes."

"Premature optimism over the situation in the Philippines is out of place," the Berlin radio quoted the newspaper as saying.

"438 Planes Lost"

"For example the number of Allied aircraft carriers in the Pacific is estimated at roughly 60 to 70 while the enemy lost only 34 at Taiwan (Formosa) and the Philippines," the Asahi article was quoted as saying.

In addition Asahi reported that the Japanese had lost 438 planes in the two areas, "the heaviest losses in machines suffered during the war."

Asahi said Gen. Douglas MacArthur was continuing to pour reinforcements ashore at Leyte "notwithstanding the serious blows" dealt by the Japanese.

Transports Sighted

"Yesterday an additional 20 to 30 transports were sighted off Tacloban," Asahi said.

The broadcast said "seven more enemy surface craft," including five United States destroyers and two transports were heavily damaged by Japanese planes in Leyte Gulf.

More Sinkings Claimed

San Francisco, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Japanese Domei Agency in an English-language broadcast beamed to North America claimed Nipponese planes sank three large transports and one unidentified vessel, torpedoed two cruisers and damaged three other unidentified vessels in continuing attacks on Allied shipping in Leyte Gulf today.

The report brings to 141 the number of warships, transports and auxiliaries claimed sunk or damaged in the Philippines area in Tokyo propaganda broadcasts. (In contrast, Japanese imperial headquarters communiques have claimed the sinking of 17 warships and damaging of ten others.)

Trapped, Japs Say

The Domei dispatch, recorded here, said the Japanese naval planes "continued throughout yesterday to pound enemy warcraft and transports trapped in Leyte Gulf."

A picture of broken morale among American forces on Leyte was given in a later broadcast by

Domei which said "the enemy seem to be cowering in extreme fear and confusion before the relentless Japanese land assaults."

American forces on Samar Island were not mentioned in the broadcast.

Many "Planes Bagged"

Some dozens of carrier planes based near Tacloban were destroyed by Japanese planes, Domei said, "thereby smashing whatever little hopes the enemy had of creating an air attack force."

The liberation forces "have been forced to call for reinforcements of B-24s and navy bombers from distant bases at Morotai and Peleliu islands" in efforts to retain control of the air, the propaganda broadcast claimed.

Churchill Message Hails Pacific Victory

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill sent his congratulations to President Roosevelt today "on the brilliant and massive" American victory in the Philippines.

The text of the message issued from No. 10 Downing street:

"Pray accept my most sincere congratulations which I tender on behalf of his Majesty's Government on the brilliant and massive victory gained by the sea and air forces of the United States over the Japanese in the recent heavy battles.

"We are glad to know that one of his Majesty's Australian cruiser squadrons had the honor of sharing in this memorable event."

Jap Claims Called Wishful Thinking

San Francisco, Oct. 28 (AP)—An explanation of the extravagant claims of Japanese propagandists as "wishful thinking" was given by Rear Admiral Frederick C. Sherman in a radio network pool broadcast today from a carrier off Leyte in the central Philippines.

In a radio interview recorded by NBC, Admaril Sherman, commander of the original carrier Lexington, said:

"We sometimes destroy an entire flight of Japanese planes. When they fail to return, the Japanese get to thinking about what damage they might have done to us before we brought them down.

"Their wishful thinking leads to their big damage claims. Generally, the greater the damage they claim to us, the greater the damage has been to themselves."

NAVY DEFEAT

JAPS' WORST

Nimitz Foresees Swift U. S. Drive Westward

NOV 29 1944

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz tonight described the naval beating given the Japanese in Philippine waters as "the greatest defeat our foes have yet suffered in this war."

"This is just a taste of what lies in store for him—whenever he heals his wounds and returns for more action," the Pacific fleet commander in chief added in a speech made public by the navy here.

"Th etime will come when our fleet, unhampered by the necessity of guarding American troops employed in seizing bases, will seek out the Japanese fleet wherever it may be and completely destroy it."

New Bases In Making

He pointed out that "the the Philippines under liberation by General Douglas A. McArthur, new bases from which Allied sea and air power can operate" are in the making.

"When the smashes will come I do not say—beyond stating that they will come, and as fast as we can push bases westward," Nimitz said.

Those steps will come, he went on, despite the fact that the American navy's problems increase as the advance continues. "More ships are needed, for replenishing the fleet and fuel, provisions and ammunition, as the attacks get nearer and nearer the Japanese homeland."

Japs Lost At Own Game

By Russell Brines

[Associated Press War Editor]

Allied warships crushed the Japanese task force in Surigao Straits with the same classic naval maneuver which Japan's Admiral Togo used to defeat the Russian fleet at Tsushima in 1905.

"We completely crossed their 'T,'" said Rear Admiral Jesse Oldendorf, who commanded the forces which beat back this direct Japanese threat to the Allied supply armada off Leyte beachead in the Philippines.

Higher Speed Needed

This maneuver, which modern Tokyo jingoists mistakenly claim the Japanese originated, is accomplished only by a fleet superior in speed, maneuverbility and leadership.

The "T" was crossed when the Allied naval column, cruising at right angles to the Japanese battle line, passed ahead of the Mikado's lead ships. Guns from each ship in the topbar roared in a concentrated blast on the first Nipponese warships which then were brought under far superior firepower.

Range Cut Japs Off

The Japanese warcraft near the stem of the "T" were out of the battle temporarily, because of the range. They were attacked subsequently with the same concentration of power when the lead ships were knocked out.

The principle of this maneuver was developed by British men-of-war in the 18th century. Admiral Jellicoe crossed the "T" twice in the Battle of Jutland during World War I.

The maneuver is considered a "knockout blow" by a battle force which already had gained an advantage in the engagement.

Used Against Czarist Fleet

Togo so used it against the inept Czarist fleet, in the narrow Straits of Tsushima, by employing greatly superior speed and seamanship.

Because of his success, the "T" is a standard part of Japanese naval strategy, and the island admirals have trained extensively to avoid having it applied against them. Moreover, they long have considered themselves supreme in their ability to fight in narrow, treacherous waters, such as Surigao.

They were beaten in their own game in a naval battle area which resembles Tsushima, where their greatest sea victory was won.

BELIEVES WAR CUT 6 MONTHS

Tydings Hails Pacific Victory As Saving American Lives

NOV 29 1944

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The navy's smashing victory in Philippine waters probably has shortened the Pacific war by six months, Senator Tydings declared today.

He figured the saving at "thousands of lives and billions in national treasure."

Tydings, chairman of the Senate Insular Affairs Committee and also of the joint Philippine Relief Commission, predicted that the Philippines will be given independence as scheduled, not later than July 4, 1946.

Sure Japs Will Be Out

"I feel certain that well before that date the Japanese will be either completely or substantially driven out of the islands," Tydings said in an interview, "but even if the war is still going on our pledge of independence will be carried out."

The Maryland Senator was author of the Philippine independence law of 1934 and also sponsored a bill, enacted by Congress early this year, authorizing the President to grant the Philippines independence sooner that 1946 if he considered that step advisable.

Says Filipinos Trust U. S.

Senator Tydings said that because Filipinos have come to trust "implicitly in the good faith and fairness of the United States . . . at the time of our invasion of the Philippines we had 18,000,000 friends—the entire population of the islands—morally and physically on our side."

Tydings said that ever since Bataan Filipinos have kept United States military authorities "fully informed" on what the enemy was doing.

"The Japs didn't get anywhere politically with the Filipinos," Tydings asserted. "Thus the Philippine independence law, idealistic in conception, has paid gigantic material dividend."

GREW WARNS JAPS MAY SEEK WAY OUT

Washington, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—Calling on the Japanese to surrender now unconditionally, Joseph Clark Grew, American Ambassador to Japan from 1932 to Pearl Harbor, last night warned the American people that with the Japanese fleet defeated in a major battle "an enticing peace offer may come from Japan at any time."

Mr. Grew told a Navy league audience here that "there are many shrewd, level-headed, coldly calculating Japanese — including not only some of their statesmen but also men such as those who built up the great business houses and shipping companies and industrial concerns of Japan.

"Before the complete ruin of Japan, these men are almost certain to make an attempt to save something from the wreckage."

The Japanese will try to make peace, he said, because a growing number of them realize "beyond peradventure that they are going to be defeated, that their merchant fleet is being whittled down to the vanishing point, that their war plants are gradually being blotted out of existence, and that their gangster loot will eventually be taken from them.

". . . We must not, under any circumstances, accept a compromise peace, no matter haw allurring such a peace may be or how desirous we may become of ending this terrible conflict."

Malayan Isle Blasted.

San Francisco, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—An Allied air attack on Penang, Japanese-held island off the west coast of the Malay Peninsula about 400 miles north of Singapore, was reported by the Tokyo radio today.

In a broadcast recorded by the FCC, today said that about ten nuisance raiders made the attack last night, but that no damage was caused.

Former Jap Fleet Chief Gets Cabinet Post

San Francisco, Oct. 28 (AP)—Two pre-war Cabinet Ministers and a one-time commander in chief of the combined Japanese fleet were included in the 12 men named by Premier General Kuniaki Koiso as a Cabinet advisory group, the Japanese radio said today.

The group, named because "the war situation has grown more pressing than ever," was immediately approved by Emperor Hirohito, according to the broadcast recorded here.

Prominent among the members were Hachiro Arita, member of three pre-war Cabinets as Foreign Minister; Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu, one-time commander in chief of the combined Japanese fleet and a perennial Government adviser; Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, president of the Japan Iron Works and Foreign Minister in the third Konoye Cabinet, and Toyotaro Yuki, president of the Bank of Japan.

On Canadian Naval Mission

OTTAWA, Oct. 28 (AP).—Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles, chief of the Canadian naval mission in Great Britain, arrived here today, possibly for consultations on a switch of naval operations to the Pacific after the war with Germany, the increase in U-boat activity in the Atlantic and demobilization plans.

Natal-to-Montreal Trip Flown in Under 27 Hours

R. A. F. Plane Makes 5,600-Mile Flight in Record Time

MONTREAL, Oct. 28 (AP).—A plane of the Royal Air Force Atlantic Transport Command, carrying a maximum load, ended at Dorval Airport today a journey officially described as "a performance without precedent among flights along the lengths of the American continent."

The plane, a converted Liberator bomber, took 26 hours and 52 minutes for a flight of 5,600 miles from Natal, Brazil, to Montreal, the, the R. A. F. said. Six hours of the total were passed in landing, picking up passengers and refueling.

ARGENTINA URGES PARLEY OF ENVOYS

NOV 29 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28—(AP)—Argentina declared today her desire to discuss with other American nations her "international conduct" but ruled out any "negotiations" on her internal affairs.

The declarations were made in a note circulated by the Argentine embassy here to the embassies of the other American countries. The action was taken after the Buenos Aires government formally requested the Pan-American union to call a conference of American foreign ministers to consider the situation created by the almost solid American front of non-recognition of the militaristic Farrell regime in the South American country.

Officials of the union said that the organization's governing board, composed of representatives of all the American governments, will take up the request Wednesday.

The United States member of the board is Secretary of State Hull, a leading advocate of the policy of diplomatic isolation for Argentina.

The State department said today that it had not been officially informed of Argentina's request for a Foreign Ministers' conference, but that if and when it comes through this country will consult fully with the others before reaching any decision.

It was subsequent to this that the embassy issued its statement and a spokesman said that would be officially delivered to the Department through the Chilean embassy here.

"It is unusual," the statement says, "for a country to show its will openly to consider, with its peers, a fundamental aspect of its international conduct." It adds that "because of the exceptional times the world is going through, exceptional spiritual understanding and generosity is required."

Argentina believes, the statement says, "that no stable and authentic order can be established among the American community of nations on the basis of the arbitrary exclusion of which one of its members is object."

two or three battleships.

[This is the first final report on any of the three battles which made up this week's great naval battle of the Philippines. The battle here referred to was only one of three distinct actions which developed when the Japanese sent three separate task forces converging on the Leyte invasion beaches and all three were intercepted.]

Dumbarton Oaks Conferees Asked to Define Aggressor

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 — (AP) There is worry here among the little nations' representatives over the Dumbarton Oaks plan for world security because, they say, the conferees ran away from the $64 question.

This is the question, "when do you say that a nation has gone to war?"

And just to see how confusing that can be try the questions that came up before the Old League on your dinner table arguments:

Jap Attack Cited

Was it war when the Japs said

30. 24 — 19963

the Chinese bombed a railroad in Mukden? It was on Chinese soil, and therefore should have worried Chinese alone. But the Japs claimed they had treaty rights to protect that railroad, so they moved in troops (while the League debated) and took Manchuria.

Was it war when the Germans sent radio programs into Czechoslovakia to make the German-Czechs sorry enough for themselves to help German troops which came along shortly?

Was it war on the Russian-Finnish border when a shot was fired? Both nations claimed the other fellow did it.

Was it war when Italy sent troops into Ethiopia after a shooting at the Wal-Wal water-hole which both nations claimed was under their own jurisdiction, and from Italy's point of view, not the worry of the League. The League argued and voted economic sanctions, and Italy took Ethiopia.

So there's much underground pressure here to have the United Nations Security agency set up a long list of specific acts labeled "war". The proposed "security armies" should move, say the pressure groups, when any one of the listed acts has been committed.

One such attempt has been made before. In the 20's Maxim Litvinoff, then Russia's commissar of foreign affairs, tried to get the Old League to adopt a "definition of an aggressor" which named five acts which might have set the League forces in action.

NOV 29 1944

Litvinoff's Plan Rejected

Litvinoff failed to put his "definition of an aggressor" through the League. But he kept on, and got seven nations to adopt it. They were Romania, Estonia, Latvia, Poland, Turkey, Persia, and Afghanistan. They signed the pact July 3, 1933. But it fell through when Germany attacked Poland, in September, 1939.

Here's Litvinoff's formula for defining an aggressor. It's any nation that:

1—Declares war on another state.

2—Invades with armed forces, with or without a declaration of war. (That would have taken care of Japan when she invaded Manchuria.)

3—Attacks by its land, naval or air forces, with or without a declaration of war, on the territory, vessels or aircraft of another state. (That could have moved the League against Japan when she sank the U.S.S. Panay in the Yangtze river.)

4—Puts up a naval blockade against another state.

5—Supports armed bands which have invaded the territory of another state; or refuses, to take, in its own territory, measures to deprive such bands of assistance or protection, despite the request of the invaded state for aid. (That might have stopped the war in Spain when Germany and Italy were sending in planes and infantry to help one side.)

Now Russia has sat in on writing the Dumbarton pact which is supposed to do a better job than the old league. But no "definition of an aggressor" was mentioned, Litvinoff has been demoted to assistant-commissar of foreign affairs, and his successor, Molotoff, is described as less interested in international co-operation.

No Attempt to Be Made

Furthermore, our State department is telling inquiring ambassadors from the little nations that there will be no attempt to "define an aggressor" even when all the United Nations are called together here, early this winter, to modify and adopt the Dumbarton pact.

And there actually is little difference between the manner in which the Old League, and the Dumbarton pact would deal with a war-making nation.

Both of them would permit the other nations to investigate a scrap that might break the peace. Both of them would like to see the quarreling nations come up to teacher's desk to state their complaints, and then listen to good advice on how to behave like nice little boys.

Then if the bad little boys don't behave, both of them had, and have, two means of punishment: 1—They can shut off the scrappy nation from any communication with other nations, whether by air, or telegraph, or financial transactions, or trade. And, 2—They can (and the Old League could) call on air, naval, and land forces to quell the scrapper.

Nazi Torture Camp Becomes Allied Haven

Vught, The Netherlands, Oct. 28 (AP) — The largest concentration camp in the Netherlands, where an estimated 30,000 persons died at the hands of German torturers, was being transformed into a shelter for refugees today by Allied Civil Affairs officials.

The 640-acre estate near Vught fell into Allied hands yesterday. Eyewitnesses said that on one occasion there the Germans crowded 67 women into an airless, lightless room 12 feet by 7 feet and 8 feet high, for 13 hours. Twelve died, three became insane and 30 were hospitalized. Other inmates were beaten until their bones were broken, then ordered to lineup for roll call.

LIBERTY SHIP SUNK OFF NORTH AFRICA

NOV 29 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP) The Liberty ship Edward H. Crockett, named for an Associated Press War Correspondent who lost his life when an Axis submarine sank the British minelayer Welshman off the North African coast early in 1943, has been torpedoed and sunk.

The loss of the Crockett and another Liberty ship, the John Barry in widely separated war areas was announced today by the War Shipping administration.

The Edward H. Crockett, built in South Portland, Me., and delivered Jan. 31, 1944, was in a convoy on the way from Murmansk, Russia, when it was hit and crippled by one torpedo. One crew member was lost, but the others were picked up by the steamship Zamalek. An escort vessel sank the damaged Liberty ship with gunfire.

WSA announced that the Edward H. Crockett was under the command of Captain Albert Baldi, the Bronx, New York. Date of the sinking was not revealed.

The John Barry, built at Portland, Ore., and commanded by Captain Joseph Ellerwald, New Orleans, was torpedoed in the Arabian sea "a few weeks ago." Two of the vessel's crew are missing, and two others were injured.

Lend-Lease Shipments For 9 Months Under '43

Crowley Reports Beef Quota Less, Milk Products Up

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP).—Lend-lease shipments of food the first nine months of 1944 were lower than in 1943, Foreign Economic Administrator Leo Crowley reported today.

The most striking change was in beef and veal, where eight-tenths of 1 per cent of the United States' supply was lend-leased to the Allies as against 1.7 per cent in 1943, Mr. Crowley said. Smaller proportions of all other meats were sent broad.

A slight increase in the lend-lease shipment of milk products was noted, however. Smaller quantities of eggs, fats and oils, canned fish and canned fruits and juices were lend-leased abroad, Mr. Crowley reported. The shipments this year required 12.1 per cent of American eggs, 15.9 per cent of edible fats and oils, 6.9 per cent of canned fruit and juices and 10.3 per cent of canned fish.

Food received as reverse lend-lease by United States armed forces continued in heavy volume, particularly in England, Australia and New Zealand.

Mrs. Rogers Back in U. S. From European Fronts

Calls Italian Situation 'Bad,' Says Casualties Are Heavy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP).—Seven weeks of mud, bouncing jeeps and Army potluck in Italy and France have convinced Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican of Massachusetts, there's a long fight ahead in Europe.

Returning to the Capitol today, the sixty-three-year-old high-ranking member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, started work on a round-house blast about the war effort. She declined to say what will be in the statement summing up her findings—but it will be sharply critical on supplies.

"There's a bad situation in Italy," she said in an interview. "The President promised them (the civilian population) food and it didn't arrive.

"General Clark's 5th Army didn't have replacements. I'm thankful they're getting them now."

"There's no license for unnecessary delays in the conduct of the war. There is too much "overoptimism" in this country about the European situation.

"Casualties are very heavy. At that it's amazing the care the boys get under tremendous handicaps and didn't hear one complaint."

She said Prime Minister Churchill criticized what he called "the overoptimism of the American press," but at the same time she asserted "the English press was more overoptimistic than the Americans."

GETS MEDAL IN HOSPITAL

Wife of Lieut. Darst, Missing, Receives Award for Him

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Lee M. Darst received today at an Alexandria, Va., hospital, where she gave birth to a son on Oct. 19, the Air Medal on behalf of her husband, Second Lieut. Rayburn Darst, aged 28, missing since July 26, when a hospital plane was lost between Iceland and Newfoundland.

Lieutenant Darst, a flight engineer, was a member of the crew of the plane which was on its way to this country from England with twenty-six persons aboard, including eighteen stretcher cases. The officer was a member of the crew that flew President Roosevelt to the Teheran conference with Premier Stalin and also of the crew that flew Mme. Chiang Kai-shek from the United States to China in 194[illegible].

NOV 29 1944

Salvadorian Envoy Resigns

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP) — Ambassador Hector David Castro of El Salvador, has resigned, the embassy reported tonight. The resignation was submitted to the provisional government three days ago but has not yet been accepted. Dr. Castro, who has been in Washington for ten years, was said to desire to return to his homeland and practice law.

Closed-Shop Ban Up To Voters

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—You may never have heard of it because of the uproar over the Presidential race, but voters in Arkansas, California and Florida will ballot November 7 on proposed amendments to those States' constitutions involving organized labor. The amendments are practically identical.

They propose that a person shall not be denied a job because of membership or non-membership in a labor organization. That's all.

But labor says the amendments are deliberately aimed at smashing union shops. The AFL and CIO are fighting the proposals.

A union—or "closed"—shop is a place where none but a union man may work. This arrangement is the result of agreement between labor and management in the individual shop.

Other States Expected To Follow

Labor says further:

These amendments—if they pass—are the signal for a torrent of similar amendments to be offered in other States by forces eager to destroy organized labor.

They actually would prevent strikes or threats of strike, they say.

Singling out the California amendment, labor says:

"Under the broad language of the proposed amendment, a corporation could challenge the right of a union even to attempt to organize its employes.

"Any union purusing an organizational campaign in California could be kept so busy in the courts that it would have no time to organize. It would be compelled to retain a corps of lawyers to defend itself against damage actions brought by employers. And the lawsuits would not be limited to what the union had done. It could be sued for what it intended to do."

From Tobin's Union

This quotation is from the International Teamster, official magazine of Dan Tobin's (AFL) International Teamsters' Union. The magazine says further:

"If that amendment passes it would automatically set aside all California laws which protect the rights of labor to organize, strike or peacefully picket. And no future law could be passed by the Legislature to restore these rights because it would conflict with the State Constitution."

AFL attorneys say the amendments are unconstitutional because:

The 14th Amendment says no State shall pass laws abridging the privileges or rights of citizens. (Collective bargaining, they argue, is a privilege of citizenship.) And the amendments are discriminatory because they would enforce an open shop by legislation.

Closed Shop Law Not Sought

One high-place AFL attorney said:

"Labor has never sought to obtain a closed shop by legislation. We have sought it by collective bargaining with employers. So we fight any attempt to force an open shop by legislation."

Joseph A. Padway, chief AFL attorney, writing in the AFL's magazine, The Federationist, says:

"Because of the apparent simplicity of these proposals, uninformed persons reading them are amazed to find anyone opposing them; but the truth is that the amendments are loaded with dynamite, for they expressly seek to outlaw the union shop; they seek to protect open-shop employers who do not wish to negotiate agreements with unions, and they have for their ultimate objective the destruction of collective bargaining.

Pre-Wagner Act Move

"The amendments seek to revert to the employer-employe relationship which existed before the passage of the Wagner Act."

(The Wagner Act guarantees the right of collective bargaining, says it is unfair labor practice for an employer not to bargain with the representatives of labor organizations and imposes penalties for refusing to recognize bargaining representatives.)

As an example of what the amendments would do, AFL people say they would tend to disrupt the meta and building trades unions, which have had closed shops for more than 30 years.

URGES POST-WAR SALE OF SURPLUS VESSELS

NOV 29 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—The United States will have more than half the world's ocean shipping facilities by the middle of next year, Will Clayton, Surplus Property Administrator, told a subcommittee of the House today.

"There is only one thing to do with all these ships when the war ends," he declared. "We must use those we need and sell the rest to other nations who have lost theirs. We must not try to operate them all ourselves."

By mid-1945 the United States would have 56,500,000 deadweight tons of shipping out of a world total of 95,000,000 tons, he stated.

"We must help other countries get their foreign trade started again if we are going to prosper ourselves."

He also recommended two steps to expand post-war world trade, extension of credit to foreign nations and reduction of tariff barriers.

"Tariffs which keep the other fellow's goods out of our country are just as effective in keeping our goods in," he said.

Halts Sale of Plants to Alcoa

Department of Justice Takes Step Lest It Foster Aluminum Monopoly.

Washington, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—A new factor delaying sale of surplus war plants emerged today. It was disclosed that the Department of Justice has refused to approve the sale of Government-owned aluminum plants to the Aluminum Company of America on the ground that this would contribute to the growth of monopoly.

Three huge Alcoa-operated, Federally-owned aluminum plants—at Queens, N. Y., Burlington, N. J., and Riverbank, Cal., which together cost more than $60,000,000—have been declared no longer needed for aluminum production by the War Production Board.

In due course it is assumed they would be declared surplus and available for sale by the Defense Plant Corporation, but when this occurs Alcoa will not get consideration as a prospective purchaser, despite the general policy of giving plant operators first opportunity to buy surplus property.

Already alarmed at the indefinite delay confronting them in the sale of about $10,000,000,000 worth of war plants, as a result of restrictions written into the surplus war property act, disposal officers acknowledged that the anti-trust considerations would be a further deterrent.

Officials of the Surplus War Property Administration, who halted all sales of big plants as soon as the law was signed, have predicted dangerous delay in getting the Government's aluminum, steel, chemical and other plants, which give employment to 5,000,000 persons, into peace-time production.

Regarded as Monopoly.

A Department of Justice spokesman said that the anti-trust division had written the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that it regards Alcoa a monopoly and that approval would not be given to Alcoa purchase of the plants it has been operating.

Disposal officers pointed out that in view of the surplus law's strict provisions against fostering monopoly, the anti-trust division's opinion would govern their sale negotiations.

There was doubt, in any event, that Alcoa would be interested in the purchase of the three plants named, since the country's aluminum capacity is expanded far beyond any peacetime use that Government agencies can foresee.

Taken from Surplus List.

One of the plants, that at Maspeth, Queens, New York, was declared surplus some weeks ago and then removed from that category when the Navy leased part of it. The rest is being used by the DPC for storage. The other two, affected by Government aluminum cutbacks, have not been declared surplus by the DPC despite WPB's finding that they are no longer needed in aluminum production.

Two magnesium plants, one at Dearborn, Mich., and another at Lake Charles, La., have also been ruled unneeded.

Under the act, which President Roosevelt signed "with reluctance" on October 3, the Surplus War Property Administration cannot sell any plant costing more than $5,000,000 without first reporting to Congress and awaiting Congress's consent.

Surplus Administrator William L. Clayton has halted all sales until the three-man board created by the bill is appointed. He has refused to serve under the act, which he calls unworkable.

Senator Ball Lauds Ex-Gov. Stassen

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—Senator Ball (R., Minn.), who is backing President Roosevelt against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, today described Commander Harold E. Stassen, Minnesota's former Republican Governor now in the navy, as standing "head and shoulders above most of the political leaders in both parties."

"Stassen is a very big man, who stands for principles and is willing to be judged on those principles," Ball told reporters. "Inevitably he is going to be a big figure in national affairs. . . ."

Ball was asked to comment on the statements of some Stassen supporters that the Senator's support of the President jeopardized Stassen's political future.

"U. S. Needs Men Like Him"

He said:

"The people are looking for and the country needs men like Stassen, and that is what will determine his future, not what I say or do."

Ball declined to say whether he thought Stassen would be a Presidential aspirant in 1948, or to comment on the fact that the wife of the former Governor had a place on the platform at Governor Dewey's Minneapolis rally earlier this week. Ball originally was appointed to the Senate by Stassen.

He reiterated that he had not consulted with Stassen before indorsing Roosevelt.

"I never tried to speak for Stassen, or Willkie either," he said.

Widow Quotes Borah Notes In an Answer to Roosevelt

Senator Reported President as Saying That if War in Europe Could Not Be Avoided, We Must Go In.

Washington, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt was quoted in personal notes of the late Senator William E. Borah of Idaho as saying in July of 1939 that if war came in Europe and "if we could not do that which would avoid war, we must go in."

Senator Borah's notes were made public by his widow because, she said, of the President's references to Senator Borah in his foreign policy speech last week. Mr. Roosevelt reported that Senator Borah had said "his own private information from abroad was better than that of the State Department—and that there would be no war in Europe."

The notes dealt with a White House conference the night of July 18, 1939, on revision of the neutrality act. Mr. Roosevelt asked leading members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to the White House.

Written in the third person, the Idaho Republican's notes related his recollection of what transpired at the conference. He quoted Mr. Roosevelt as saying that he thought there was "great danger ahead and that he as President of the United States wanted to be prepared to do our part in preventing war or meeting the situation should war come."

The notes also said with reference to the President:

"He made it clear, however, that he did not minimize the fact that we might be called upon to take part in the war and that we must be prepared to take our part when the time came; that if we could not do that which would avoid war, we must go in."

$35,000

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—Two Arkansas State Democratic finance directors, whose letters seeking party funds have been sharply criticized by Republican Presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey, are listed among top contributors to the Democratic campaign chest.

A report filed with the Clerk of the House of Representatives by Miss Mae Oliver, assistant treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, showed contributions of $35,000 by H. L. McAlister and Sam J. Watkins, of Little Rock.

Charges "Privileges" Sold

Dewey in a Chicago address this week read a letter written by McAlister and Watkins soliciting memberships in the "One Thousand Club" and stating that persons who contributed $1,000 would be granted "special privileges and prestige by party leaders." Dewey charged the National Administration "boldly offers for sale 'special privileges.'"

Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, of the Democratic National Committee, denied in a statement the same night that he had discussed organization of the "One Thousand Club" with President Roosevelt and said a quotation read by Dewey and attributed to the President "is wholly without substance and unauthorized."

NOV 29 1944

Chance To Meet Roosevelt

Representative Hebert (D., La.) later told newsmen in Washington that he is one of three executive directors of the "One Thousand Club" and that membership carries no special privilege, except that each member eventually will have the opportunity to meet the President. McAlister and Watkins said in Little Rock that Dewey's interpretation of "'special privileges and prestige by party leaders' does not mean to us what has been inferred by him."

The Democratic committee's report showed it spent $1,052,589 between January 1 and October 25 out of $1,093,178 in contributions in the same period, leaving a balance of $40,589, with unpaid obligations of $131,015.40 as of October 25.

$1,000 F. D. R. Contribution

The report showed that President Roosevelt contributed $1,000. Other contributors listed included:

Francis Biddle, $500; Samuel Goldwyn, Hollywood, $5,000; Daniel J. Tobin, Indianapolis, $1,000; Dave Beck, Seattle, $500; Herman B. Baruch, New York city, $2,500; Cordell Hull, Washington, $250; Walter Kirschner, Los Angeles, $4,000; Mrs. D. F. Zanuck, Los Angeles, $3,000; Frank Altschui, New York city, $5,000; Mary E. Rosett, Chicago, $5,000; Otto L. Spaeth, Dayton, Ohio, $5,000; Floyd V. Odlum, New York city, $5,000; R. S. Reynolds, Richmond, Va., $5,000; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., $2,000; R. S. Reynolds, Jr., of the Reynolds Metal Company, Richmond, $2,500.

Albert, Jack and Harry L. Warner, $5,000 each; Andrew J. Higgins, New Orleans, $350; Roosevelt for National Security Club of Higgins Employes, New Orleans, $4,109; Paul Eisner, New York City, $5,000; Frank Frankel, Houston, $5,000; George Frankel, Houston, $5,000; Tennessee State Democratic Committee, $27,500.

The House clerk also received a report from the National Citizens' Political Action Committee showing $271,531 in contributions up to October 23 and $165,018 in expenditures. Frank Sinatra, crooner, was listed as having given $5,000.

Other Contributors

Democratic National Committee, Myron G. Blalock, director, Dallas, $15,000; Louis Pokrass and Harry Davis, New York City, $5,000 each; Randolph Paul, Washington, $500; Robert S. Hayes, Democratic committee finance director, Columbus, Ohio, $5,000; Midwestern Regional Headquarters, Chicago, George D. Crowley, director, $10,000; Leon Henderson, $200; Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Slippery Rock, Pa., $2,000.

Report By PAC

A report filed by the Pennsylvania State Republican Finance Committee gave receipts of $912,713.18 and expenditures of $609,477.17 from January 1 to October 25.

Among Democratic expenditures were listed $384.61 weekly salary to National Committee Chairman Robert E. Hannegan and $168 paid to the Republican National Committee for half the cost of a telephone switchboard at the Chicago Stadium, scene of both party conventions.

CHIEF PARTIES LIST GIFTS FOR CAMPAIGN

Republicans Got $2,428,321 Spent $1,688,368 — Rivals $1,093,178 and $1,052,589

NOV 29 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Republican National Committee reported to Congress today contributions totaling $2,428,321 for the Presidential campaign up to this week. The party has spent $1,688,368. The Republican Congressional Committee also reported a separate campaign chest of $382,669 and expenses of $353,465.

The Democrats have listed with the clerk of the House contributions of $1,093,178 and an outlay of $1,052,589.

Major gifts, the Republican statement showed, came from Pennsylvania, Illinois and Texas. Republicans in the Keystone State gave up $912,713 for the national campaign and spent $609,477.

Individual contributors included the family of Joseph N. Pew Jr. for $12,000, Ernest T. Weir for $2,000 and W. L. Mellon, Sarah Mellon Scaife and Paul Mellon of Pittsburgh a total of $8,000.

Other contributors were:

1000 CLUB PLAN SAID TO INCLUDE WASHINGTON PASS

Chattanooga Paper Claims Congressman Sent Out Letters on Privilege.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 28 (A. P.).—The Chattanooga News-Free Press asserted in a copyrighted story today that Representative Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) had written a Tennessee business man that membership in the Democratic campaign fund-raising 1,000 Club was all the pass they need here in Washington to go anywhere.

The newspaper said it had possession of the letter, written on Mr. Kefauver's Congressional stationery and signed "ESTES." It Published a photo-engraving of the letter, withholding the recipient's name.

The letter was quoted as saying the 1,000 Club plan had been suggested by President Roosevelt and that the President "would like to counsel and advise with them (club members) through the rest of his term, if he were re-elected."

"Then, of course," the newspaper continued quoting, "there are many matters coming up in which membership in the One Thousand Club would not do any harm. Each member receives a copper-plated identification plate and certificate which is all the pass they need here in Washington to go anywhere."

Mr. Kefauver, who lives here and represents the Third Tennessee District, left Chattanooga yesterday and could not be reached for comment immediately. In an interview with the Chattanooga Times Thursday he said that he had not intended in any letter to convey the impression that membership in the club carried special privileges in dealing with governmental agencies. "I have written that we wanted money and needed it," he said in the interview.

A paragraph of the letter published today said:

"Incidentally, we have a lot of 'big shots' in our club. Including Jesse Jones, most of the members of the Cabinet, Marshall Field, Mr. Lewis of the Federal Reserve Board, who is national chairman, and Josephus Davies, who is head of the Washington chapter. So you see we have a pretty good bunch."

PRESIDENT SAYS FOES RESENT HIS CAMPAIGN TOUR

Roosevelt Asserts He Is Out to Correct Opposition's Misrepresentations.

NOV 29 1944

SPEAKS IN CHICAGO TONIGHT

Will Offer Plan to Aid Industry in Maintaining Employment in Address on Taxes.

En Route to Chicago With President Roosevelt, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt, campaigning in the Middle West, told a Fort Wayne, Ind., station crowd today he is on tour to correct "misrepresentations" by his Republican opposition.

"I expect between now and election day to point out and correct more of them," he said as his train paused en route to Chicago where he will deliver a major address in Soldiers Field tonight.

At Fort Wayne Mr. Roosevelt called this a "campaign trip" for the first time—and said Republican orators resent it. He said: "They seem to believe I promised them that I wa snot going to campaign under any circumstances and, that therefore, they could say anything they wanted about my policies and my administration." He sai dthey forget his acceptance speech promise to "report to the people the facts about matters of concern to them, and especially to correct any misrepresentations."

"I believe that the American people know what those misrepresentations have been—and just who have made them," he declared.

He Praises Rail Record.

In Fort Wayne, a railroad center, Mr. Roosevelt praised the war job record of the railroads and the production abality of Indiana's farms and industry. Then he concluded: "I hope that—regardless of which party you support on election day—you will produce a record crop of votes."

Before reaching Fort Wayne the President's train went through Lima, Ohio, at a five-mile-an-hour pace while the President, seated on the rear platform waved a greeting to the crowd. In mid-morning a small throng gathered at Crestline, Ohio, but the shades on the President's car remained drawn and they did not get a glimpse of the Chief Executive.

To Discuss Taxes in Chicago.

In his speech tonight, it is expected that he will outline an inducement tax policy intended to help private industry maintain full employment into the post-war era.

The Chief Executive, stalking forty-one electoral votes in Indiana and Illinois, moved to the West after an administration war policy speech in Philadelphia last night in which he accused some Republican politicians of putting political advantage above effort to guarantee future peace.

One of the things he expects to advance is an administration policy for helping private enterprise through adjusted taxation, to maintain full pay rolls after the boom of war industries employment ends.

The Chief Executive wrote his Chicago speech as he rode today, probably still recalling the noisy reception in Philadelphia's jam-packed Shibe Park last night as he recounted his administration's preparedness and war record.

As Commander in Chief, he emphasized, he chose the nation's present top commanders — men responsible for what he called twenty-seven successful D days within the past year.

After checking over his administration's war record he declared to shouting Philadelphians that "some Republican politicians are stating that the Republicans in the Congress would co-operate with a Republican President in establishing a world organization for peace—clearly intimating that they would not co-operate toward the same end in the event of a Democratic victory."

"That, it seems to me, is a deliberate and indefensible effort," he said, "to place political advantage not only above devotion to country, but also above our very deep desire to avoid the death and destruction which would be caused by future wars."

ROOSEVELT SEES 60 MILLION JOBS IN POSTWAR PLAN

President Calls for 'High Wages and Decent Living' in Chicago Talk.

110,000 HEAR HIM

He Promises Wartime Controls Will Be Lifted as Soon as Possible.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP) President Roosevelt outlined for America tonight a 60,000,000-job post-war program and said he was giving Republican campaign orators more opportunities to say "me too".

"America" he said "must remain the land of high wages and efficient production. Every full-time job in America must provide enough for a decent living". Roaring Midwesterners crammed into Soldier Field beside Lake Michigan —capacity 110,000—hailed his words with thundering applause. It was his fifth major campaign speech and he gave it over to an exposition of his economic views and to jabs at his fourth-term opposition.

Voicing faith in America's ability to meet the challenge of stupendous peacetime problems, Mr. Roosevelt pledged that wage, price and production controls would be lifted, and this time, he said, veterans "can grow apples on their own farms instead of having to sell apples on street corners."

From a nearby railroad siding Mr. Roosevelt drove to the tremendous Lake-front stadium and waited outside until a few moments before he was to speak—directly to a vast audience and by radio to the nation.

Andy Frain, chief of ushers at the Stadium, estimated 110,000 persons were in the big enclosure and 150,000 others were outside.

Hatless and coatless, despite a frosty fall night, Mr. Roosevelt battled a stiff northeast wind for possession of his manuscript—and won.

Assails Nye, Smith

Applause and lusty boos greeted his "me too" crack, but they swelled into heavier volume when he picked Senator Gerald Nye (R., N. D.), Gerald L. Smith, and the Chicago Tribune for targets.

As the President rode across the green turf that has seen many a stirring football game, he heard thousands of throats declaring "We Want Roosevelt"—like an organized rooting section for the favorite team.

Floodlights played on the Chief Executive from the top of impressive fluted colonnades and an electrical Stars and Stripes waved from the football scoreboard.

The crowd yelled lustily when Mr. Roosevelt declared men and women in the armed forces are coming back to "the best possible place on the face of the earth—to a place where all persons—regardless of race, color, creed or place of birth, can live in peace, honor and human dignity—free to speak and pray as they wish—free from want—and free from fear."

Something apparently was wrong with the amplifying system, and Mr. Roosevelt's voice was scarcely audible much of the time to reporters working on the Stadium's playing field.

And midway in the address, people were observed making their way out of exits at the far end of the stadium.

But the mention of 60 million productive jobs brought out a heavy hand, and so did a statement a minute or two later that "never again must we in the United States attempt to isolate ourselves from the rest of humanity."

The promise to remove wartime controls over wages and salaries coupled with a declaration that colective bargaining between unions and employers must determine pay adjustments, produced a resounding volley of cheers.

So did the mention of veterans growing apples instead of peddling them on street corners.

He proposed:

Congressional creation of a Permanent fair employment practices committee.

A "genuine crop insurance program" for farmers and continuation of a policy of giving them a chance to own their own land—with veterans growing apples instead of selling them on street corners.

Expansion of the Tennessee Valley Authority idea into similar development [illegible] Missouri, Arkansas [illegible] Columbia river basins.

NOV 29 1944

Special capital and credit for small business, with every facility to buy government-owned plants, equipment and inventories.

For business large and small, encouragement of plant expansion and replacement of obsolete equipment, with the depreciation rate on new plants and facilities accelerated for tax purposes.

Hits G.O.P. Claims

Amplifying his point that this is the strangest of political campaigns, Mr. Roosevelt asserted he had listened to various Republican orators urge the people to throw out the present administration and put in the Republicans. In effect, he said, they say just this:

"Those incompetent bunglers in Washington have passed a lot of excellent laws about social security and labor and farm relief and soil conservation—and many others—and we promise if elected not to change any of them."

"And they go on to say: 'These same quarrelsome, tired old men have built the greatest military machine the world has ever known, which is fighting its way to victory, and if you elect us, we promise not to change any of that, either.

"'Therefore,' say these Republican orators, 'it is time for a change.'

"They also say in effect: 'Those inefficient and wornout crack-pots have really begun to lay the foundation of a lasting world peace. If you elect us, we will not change any of that either, but they whisper, we'll do it in such a way that we won't lose the support even of Gerald Nye or Gerald Smith—and —and this is very important—we won't lose the support of any isolationist campaign contributor. We will even be able to satisfy the Chicago Tribune.'"

The Chief Executive repeated and reindorsed an "economic bill of rights" which he first laid before congress [illegible] and added:

"To assure the realization of the right to a useful and remunerative employment, an adequate program must provide America with close to 60,000,000 productive jobs."

Urges Government Aid

He proposed that government do its part in helping private enterprise finance plant expansion through normal investment chan-

Text of Roosevelt's Chicago Address

CHICAGO, Oct. 28—(AP) Following is the prepared text of President Roosevelt's speech in Soldier Field tonight:

The American people are now engaged in the greatest war in history—and we are also engaged in a political campaign.

We are fighting this war and we are holding this election—both for the same essential reason: because we have faith in democracy.

And there is no force and there is no combination of forces powerful enough to shake that faith.

As you know, I have had some previous experience in war—and I have also had a certain amount of previous experience in political campaigning.

But—I must confess—this is the strangest campaign I have ever seen.

Raps Republican Orators

I have listened to the various Republican orators who are urging the people to throw the present administration out and put them in and what do they say?

Well, they say in effect, just this:

"Those incompetent bunglers in Washington have passed a lot of excellent laws about Social Security and labor and farm relief and soil conservation—and many others—and we promise if elected not to change any of them."

And they go on to say: "these same quarrelsome tired old men have built the greatest military machine the world has ever known, which is fighting its way to victory; and if you elect us we promise not to change any of that, either."

"Therefore," say these Republican orators, "it is time for a change."

Have Laid Peace Plan

They also say in effect: "those inefficient and wornout crackpots have really begun to lay the foundations of a lasting world peace. If you elect us, we will not change any of that either.

"But" they whisper, "we'll do it in such a way that we won't lose the support even of Gerald Nye or Gerald Smith—and—and this is very important—we wont' lose the support of any isolationist campaign contributor. We will even be able to satisfy the Chicago Tribune."

Tonight I shall talk simply about the future of America—about this land of unlimited opportunity. I shall give the Republican campaign orators some more opportunities to say—"me too."

Today everything we do is devoted to the most important job before us—winning the war and bringing our men and women home as quickly as possible.

U. S. Astonished World

We have astonished the world and confounded our enemies with our stupendous war production, with the overwhelming courage and skill of our fighting men—with the bridge of ships carrying our munitions and men through the seven seas—with our gigantic fleet which has pounded the enemy all over the Pacific and has just driven through for a touchdown.

The American people are prepared to meet the problems of peace in the same bold way that they have met the problems of war.

The American people are resolved that when our men and women return home from this war, they shall come back to the best possible place on the face of this earth—to a place where all persons, regardless of race, color, creed or place of birth, can live in peace, honor and human dignity—free to speak and pray as they wish—free from want—and free from fear.

Outlines Economic Bill

Last January, in my message to the Congress on the state of the union, I outlined an Economic Bill of Rights on which "a new basis of security and prosperity can be established for all—regardless of station, race or creed":

I repeat them now:

"The right of a useful and remunerative job in the industries or shops or farms or mines of the nation;

The right to earn enough to provide adequate food and clothing and recreation;

The right of every farmer to raise and sell his products at a return which will give him and his family a decent living;

The right of every business man, large and small, to trade in an atmosphere of freedom from unfair competition and domination by monopolies at home or abroad;

The right of every family to a decent home;

The right to adequate medical care and the opportunity to achieve and enjoy good health;

The right to adequate protection from the economic fears of old age, sickness, accident and unemployment;

The right to a good education.

Aimed at Security

All of these rights spell security. And after this war is won we must be prepared to move forward, in the implementation of these rights, to new goals of human happiness and well-being.

Some people have sneered at these ideals as well as the ideals of the Atlantic Charter and the four freedoms—saying they were the dreams of starry-eyed New Dealers—that it is silly to talk of them because we cannot attain these ideals tomorrow or the next day.

Americans Demand Objectives

The American people have greater faith than that. I know that they agree with these objectives—that they demand them—that they are determined to get them—and that they are going to get them.

The American people have a habit of going right ahead and accomplishing the impossible.

And the people today who know that best are the Nazis and the Japs.

This Economic Bill of Rights is the recognition of the simple fact that, in America, the future of the worker and farmer lies in the well-being of private enterprise; and that the future of private enterprise lies in the well-being of the worker and farmer.

The well-being of the nation as a whole is synonymous with the well-being of each and every one of its citizens.

Now I have the possibly old-fashioned theory that when you have problems to solve, objectives to achieve, you cannot get very far by just talking about them.

You have got to go out and do something:

60 Million Jobs Needed

To assure the full realization of the right to a useful and remunerative employment an adequate program must provide America with close to sixty million productive jobs.

I foresee an expansion of our peacetime productive capacity which will require new facilities, new plants and new equipment—capable of hiring millions more men.

I propose that the government do its part in helping private enterprise to finance expansion of our private industrial plant through normal investment channels.

For example, business, large and small, must be encouraged by the government to expand their plants and to replace their obsolete or worn-out equipment with new equipment, and to that end, the rate of depreciation on these new plants and facilities for tax purposes should be accelerated.

Great Unemployment in 1933

In 1933, when my Administration took office, vast numbers of our industrial workers were unemployed, our plants and businesses were idle, our monetary and banking system in ruins—our economic resources were running to waste. That means more jobs for the worker, increased profits for the business man, and lower cost to the consumer.

By 1940—before Pearl Harbor—we had increased our employment by ten million workers. We had converted a corporate loss of five and one-half billion dollars in 1932, to a corporate profit (after taxes) of nearly five billion dollars in 1940.

Obviously, to increase jobs after this war, we shall have to increase demand for our industrial and agricultural production not only here at home, but also abroad.

I am sure that every man and woman in this vast gathering here tonight agree with me in my conviction that never again must we in the United States attempt to isolate ourselves from the rest of humanity.

Expects to Treble Trade

I am confident that, with Congressional approval, the foreign trade of the United States can be trebled after the war—providing millions of more jobs.

Such cooperate measures provide the soundest economic foundation for a lasting peace. And, after this war ,we do not intend to settle for anything less than lasting peace.

When we think of the America of tomorrow, we think of many things.

One of them is the American homes — in our cities, in our villages and on our farms. Millions of our people have never had homes worthy of American standards—well built homes with electricity and plumbing and air and sunlight.

The demand for homes and our capacity to build them call for a program of well over a million homes a year for at least ten years. Private industry can build and finance the vast majority of these homes. Government can and will assist and encourage private industry to do this, and it has for many years. For those very low income groups that cannot possibly afford decent homes, the Federal government should continue to assist local housing authorities in meeting that need.

Many Post-War Improvements

In the future America we think of new highways and parkways. We think of thousands of new airports to service the new commercial and private air travel which is bound to come after the war. We think of new airplanes, new cheap automobiles with low maintenance and operation costs. We think of new hospitals and new health clinics. We think of a new Merchant Marine for our expanded world trade.

Think of all these vast possibilities for industrial expansion—and you will foresee opportunities for more millions of jobs.

Our Economic Bill of Rights—like the sacred Bill of Rights of our Constitution itself—must be applied to all our citizens, irrespective of race, creed or color.

Praises Work of FEPC

In 1941, I appointed a Fair Employment Practice committee to prevent discrimination in war industry and government employment. The work of the committee and the results obtained more than justify its creation.

I believe that the Congress should by law make the committee permanent.

America must remain the land of high wages and efficient production. Every full-time job in America must provide enough for a decent living. And that goes for jobs in mines, offices, factories, stores, canneries—and everywhere where men and women are employed.

During the war we have been compelled to limit wage and salary increases for one great objective—to prevent runaway inflation. You all know how successfully we have held the line by the way your cost of living has been kept down.

Sees More Goods After War

However, at the end of the war there will be more goods available, and it is only good common sense to see to it that the working man is paid enough, and that the farmers earn enough, to buy these goods and keep our factories running. It is a simple fact that a greatly increased production of food and fibre on the farms can be consumed by the people who work in industry only if those people who work in industry have enough money to buy food and clothing. If industrial wages go down, farm prices will go down too. After the war, we shall of course remove the control of wages and leave their determination to free collective bargaining between trade unions and employers.

In this war, the American farmer has been called upon to do far and away the biggest food production job in history.

The American farmer has met that challenge triumphantly.

Commends American Farmer

Despite all manner of war time difficulties—shortage of farm labor and of new farm machinery — the American farmer has achieved a total of food production which is one of the wonders of the world.

The American farmer is a great producer; and he must have the means to be also a great consumer. For more farm income means more jobs everywhere in the nation.

Let us look back for a moment to 1933. All of us remember the spreading tide of farm foreclosures; we remember four cent hogs, twen-

---

Voicing confidence that foreign trade can be trebled after the war and provide millions of jobs, the President said that the demand for industrial and farm production must be increased not only at home but also abroad. Never again, he said must "we in the United States attempt to isolate ourselves from the rest of humanity."

Mr. Roosevelt came to Chicago at the end of a day-long train trip across the prairies country of Ohio and Indiana, where he waved to potential voters and spoke briefly at Ft. Wayne, Ind.

He came here to give an economic credo:

"I believe in free enterprise—and always have.

"I believe in the profit system—and always have.

"I believe that private enterprise can give full employment to our people."

And, he said, if any one feels his faith in America's ability to provide 60,000,000 peace-time jobs is fantastic, he should remember some people said the same thing about this 1940 demand for 50,000 airplanes.

Production and price controls will be lifted, he promised, as soon as they are no longer needed, to encourage private business to produce more under conditions of free and open competition.

Wage and salary restrictions, he said, were necessary to prevent runaway inflation but after the war, he pledged, "we shall of course remove the control of wages and leave their determination to free collective bargaining between trade unions and employers."

The future of America, like its past, the President declared, must be made by deeds—not words. And he emphasized what he termed the need for keeping together in peacetime a winning team made up of American business men, workers and farmers.

"We are not going to turn back the clock" he declared.

"Going Forward," He Says

"We are going forward—and—with the fighting millions of our fellow countrymen—we are going forward together."

In his analysis of prospective postwar economic conditions, the President foresaw a demand for "well over a million homes a year for at least 10 years," for the most part privately built and financed. But government, as it has for years, can and will encourage private industry in this, he said.

He spoke, too, of an America of new highways and parkways, thousands of new airports, planes new, cheap cars, new hospitals and health clinics and a new Merchant Marine for expanded world trade.

Sees Jobs in Future

"Think of all these vast possibilities for industrial expansion—and you will foresee opportunities for more millions of jobs," he declared.

The American people, their President said, are prepared to meet problems of peace in the same bold way they have met problems of war. They are resolved, he said, that men and women returning from war, shall come back "to a place where all persons, regardless of race, color, creed or place of birth, can live in peace, honor and human dignity—free to speak and pray as they wish—free from want—and free from fear."

These American people, he said, have a habit of accomplishing the impossible and those who know it best are the Nazis and Japs.

He said he knew they demanded the eight points in his economic bill of rights and were determined to get them and he pledged that "they are going to get them."

They encompass such things as rights to remunerative jobs, adequate food, clothing and recreation, trade by businessmen without unfair competition, decent homes for every family, a good education, protection from economic fears, a fair return to every farmer for his products.

Defends Economic Record

Mr. Roosevelt spoke up for the economic record of his administration, declaring that in 1933 vast numbers of industrial workers were unemployed, plants and businesses were idle and the monetary and banking system in ruins. By 1940, he said, employment had risen by 10,000,000 and a corporate loss of five and a half billion dollars in 1932 had been transformed into a profit, after taxes, of nearly five billion dollars in 1940.

In 1933, he said, there was a "spreading tide of farm foreclosures, 3¢ hogs, 20-cent wheat, five-cent cotton. But from $2,250,000,000 in 1932, farmers' net income rose to $5,500,000,000 in 1940," he said, "and to about $14,500,000,000 in 1944.

"Certainly the American farmer," Mr. Roosevelt asserted, "does not want to go back to a government owned by the moguls of 1929—and let us bear it constantly in mind that these same moguls still control the destinies of the Republican party."

ty cent wheat, five cent cotton.

Cites Recovery Figures

I am going to give you some figures of recovery—and I am sure you will pardon me if I quote them correctly.

In 1932 the American farmers' net income was only two and one-quarter billion dollars.

In 1940—a year before we were attacked—farm income was more than doubled to five and a half billion dollars.

This year—1944—it will be approximately thirteen and one-half billion dollars.

Certainly the American farmer does not want to go back to a government owned by the moguls of 1929—and let us bear it constantly in mind that these same moguls still control the destinies of the Republican party.

Must Conserve Forests

We must continue this Administration's policy of conserving the enormous gifts with which an abundant Providence has blessed our country—our soil, our forests, our water.

The work of the Tennessee Valley authority is closely related to our National Farm program, and we look toward the similar developments which I have recommended in the Valley of the Missouri—in the Valley of the Arkansas—and in the Columbia basin.

And incidentally—and as an aside—I cannot resist the temptation to point to the gigantic contribution to our war effort made by the power generated by TVA and Bonneville and Grand coulee.

Do you remember when the building of these great public works was ridiculed as New Deal "boondoggling"? and we are now planning developments at Grand coulee, which will provide irrigation for many thousands of acres—providing fertile farm land for settlement—I hope—by many of our returning soldiers and sailors.

More "boondoggling"! !

Farmers Dream Realized

This administration has put into the law of the land the farmer's long dream of parity prices.

And we propose, too, that the government will cooperate when the weather will not—by a genuine crop insurance program.

This administration adopted—and will continue—the policy of giving to as many farmers as possible the chance of owning their own farms.

That means something to those veterans who left their farms to fight for their country.

This time they can grow apples on their own farms instead of having to sell apples on street corners.

I believe in free enterprise—and always have.

I believe in the profit system—and always have.

I believe that private enterprise can give full employment to our people.

And if anyone feels that my faith in our ability to provide sixty million full-time jobs is fantastic, let him remember that some people said the same thing about my demand in 1940 for fifty thousand airplanes.

I believe in exceptional rewards for innovation, skill, and risk-taking by business.

We shall lift production and price control as soon as they are no longer needed — encouraging private business to produce more of the things to which we are accustomed and also thousands of new things, in ever-increasing volume, under conditions of free and open competition.

This Administration has been mindful from its earliest days, and will continue to be mindful, of the problems of small business as well as large.

Small business played a magnificent part in producing thousands of items needed for our armed forces. When the war broke out, they were mobilized into war production. Money was loaned to them for machinery. Over one million prime and subcontracts have been distributed among sixty thousand smaller plants of the nation.

We shall make sure that small business is given every facility to buy government-owned plants, equipment and inventories. The special credit and capital requirements of small business will be met.

And small business, will continue to be protected from selfish and cold-blooded monopolies and cartels. Beware of that profound enemy of the free enterprise system who pays lip service to free competition—but also labels every anti-trust prosecution as a "persecution."

This war has demonstrated that when the American business man and the American worker and the American farmer work together, they form an unbeatable team.

We know that—our Allies know that—and so do our enemies.

That winning team must keep together after the war, and it will win many more historic victories of peace for our country, and for the cause of security and decent standards of living throughout the world.

We owe it to our fighting men and to their families—we owe it to all of our people who have given so much in this war—we owe it to our children—to keep that winning team together.

The future of America, like its past, must be made by deeds—not words.

America has always been a land of action—a land of adventurous pioneering—a land of growing and building.

America must always be such a land.

The creed of our democracy is that liberty is acquired and kept by men and women who are strong and self-reliant, and possessed of such wisdom as God gives to mankind—men and women who are just, and understanding, and generous to others—men and women who are capable of disciplining themselves.

For they are the rulers and they must rule themselves.

I believe in our democratic faith and in the future of our country which has given eternal strength and vitality to that faith.

Here in Chicago you know a lot about that vitality.

And as I say good-night to you, I say it in a spirit of faith—a spirit of confidence.

We are not going to turn back the clock.

We are going forward—and—with the fighting millions of our fellow countrymen—we are going forward together.

Truman Challenges Dewey Again To Act

With Truman En Route to Worcester, Mass., Oct. 28 (AP)—Senator Harry S. Truman gave Thomas E. Dewey what he described as a "last chance" to reply at Syracuse, N. Y., today, to his recent suggestion that the Republican standard bearer repudiate eight "isolationists" Republican Senators seeking reelection.

The Democratic candidate for Vice-President said that "the time has come for Mr. Dewey to act" and added:

"If he will not act this noon when he speaks at Syracuse, I think that we can fairly assume that he has no intention of acting.

"Last Opportunity"

"This is Mr. Dewey's last chance. Let us hear from him, or let him be judged by his silence."

(In his Syracuse talk, Dewey did not mention the subject.)

Truman indicated he would have more to say on the subject in another foreign policy speech tonight at Worcester, Mass. His statement was released under an Albany (N. Y.) heading.

The statement followed a speech at Akron, Ohio, where Truman asserted that the national election campaign had degenerated in closing weeks because of his Republican opponents whom he termed "fakers who want to get into power."

Misquoted, He Says

Departing from his prepared address, the Senator declared:

"The President has been misquoted. I have been misquoted. They've called the President a Communist and called me a Ku Kluxer when I have been fighting the Klan organization all of my political life."

Truman said Dewey should be compelled to make a stand with reference to Senators Taft, Ohio; Nye, North Dakota, and "six other isolationists" running on the Republican ticket.

Truman told the Democratic rally that Taft voted against a number of defense bills, including lend-lease, "which saved Britain and Russia from defeat" and "gave us nearly a year's start on war production."

Taft's Stand Cited

Taft, he said, took the position "we were strong enough to defend ourselves."

"Maybe we could have done it," Truman continued, "but, thank God, our boys did not have to die trying to do it. We are losing enough men in battle as it is, when we are fighting shoulder to shoulder with courageous Allies."

In his statement today, Truman said Dewey has "indulged in double talk" on foreign policy.

Sees Public Demand

He said Dewey abandoned a farm speech at Minneapolis to make a fourth address on foreign affairs there "because the people of the country demanded to know where he stood."

"Mr. Dewey had to give a fourth speech, but he refused to tell the people whether he was for a Congress that would work with him," Truman asserted.

Truman quoted Dewey as saying to reporters at Chicago: "I never comment upon the statements of Senators," and added:

"In other words, the Republican candidate refuses to take action necessary . . . to make his words mean something.

"Now that will not do when the lives of Americans are at stake."

Bowles Is For Roosevelt, But He Won't Campaign

He Says O. P. A. Will Preserve Its Non-Partisanship

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP).—Price Administrator Chester Bowles declared tonight he is a "strong believer" in the policies of President Roosevelt and will vote for him.

He added that in order to preserve the O. P. A.'s non-partisan position he will take no active part in the campaign.

Mr. Bowles's statement was in reply to a report that he had refused an invitation of the Democratic National Committee to make a speech in behalf of Mr. Roosevelt. This Mr. Bowles did not deny.

Circulation of the report, however, "leads to serious misrepresentations of my personal views on the election," the O. P. A. administrator said. "For this reason, and only for this reason, I am called upon clearly to state my position as a voter."

"I have been a lifelong Democrat," the statement continued. "I am a strong believer in the policies of Mr. Roosevelt. I shall vote for him on Nov. 7. The non-partisan programs and policies of the Office of Price Administration as a war-time agency have been rigidly adhered to in the past. We will adhere to them with equal vigor in the future."

DEWEY HITS BACK AT ROOSEVELT IN SPEECH AT UTICA

'Won't Claim Credit for Achievements of People,' He Declares.

WILL END QUARRELING

Must Avoid Extreme Price Fluctuations, He Says in Farm Talk at Syracuse.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 28—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey struck tonight at President Roosevelt's recital of the Democratic administration's war accomplishments.

The Republican presidential nominee asserted at Utica that if he were elected he "would never use the office of President to claim personal or political credit for the magnificent achievements of the American people or for the sacrifices of their sons."

Stopping at Utica on his return to Albany after delivering a noon farm address at Syracuse, Dewey told a [illegible]-card-bearing station crowd of several hundred persons that he had "not yet found one single, constructive suggestion for the future of our country" in any of his Democratic opponent's addresses.

The crowd received with applause his indirect reference to the President's Friday night talk at Philadelphia in declaring:

"I want to give you one assurance, your next President will never use his office to claim personal or political credit for the magnificent achievements of the American people or for the sacrifices of their sons."

Will End "Quarreling"

"We will bring government by quarreling, by epithet and by abuse to an end," Dewey continued. "We will respect the opinions of every American and by so doing we can unite our people."

At Philadelphia, Mr. Roosevelt said that as Commander-in-Chief he had assumed a responsibility in the conduct of the war. He outlined the production and fighting accomplishments of Americans in general, with emphasis on the victories the Navy had won.

Dewey said if he became President next Jan. 20 he wanted, with the aid of Congress, to change the tax laws which, he said, now are "choking little business to death and making it impossible to run a business in this country."

In Albany, the Governor and Mrs. Dewey walked from Union station to the Executive Mansion.

In his Syracuse speech, directed to the nation's farmers, Dewey demanded "an end of generalities about the abundant life from a government which for eight long years promoted a chattering fear of production."

The Republican candidate for President, speaking from the center of New York's upstate Republican territory, assailed what he called "New Deal theorists in Washington" and said:

"The White House spreads confusion from the cabinet level up. And the Secretary of Agriculture spreads confusion from the cabinet level down."

Citing what he termed the hog market price support "scandal" of the past year, Dewey said this was "but another example of the fact that for 12 years in this country we have had an unmanageable surplus of promises — promises lightly made, sketchily kept, or openly violated."

Urges Price Support

"We cannot control the weather," he said. "But for the sake of the nation, we can and we must avoid these extreme price fluctuations. As a nation, we are committed to the proposition that the prices of major farm products must be supported against the sub-standard levels we saw for so many years before this yar.

"We have learned that depression on the farm leads inevitably to depression in the nation, just as unempoyment and misery in the city lead to misery on the farm.

"If we are to have a strong, vigorous and happy country, we must have full employment in the factories and fair prices on the farms."

The Governor chose the seat of the annual New York State Fair for the traditional farm speech which presidential candidates usually deliver in the Midwest. The choice was made after Dewey switched topics in Minneapolis earlier this week to renew his foreign policy debate with President Roosevelt.

Introduced By Iowa Governor

The Midwest was tied into today's address through a radio hookup which enabled Gov. Bourke B Hickenlooper of Iowa to introduce Dewey over the Blue Network from Burlington, Iowa.

The introduction was dramatic. Dewey and his wife did not appear in the hall until the Iowa governor's voice was heard presenting him as the next President of the United States.

When Dewey strode on to the platform, the tightly packed crowd in Central High school's Lincoln auditorium stood and cheered.

Hickenlooper declared the New York Governor would establish a farm program "free from political control and practical in operation." He predicted a "magnificent" farm belt majority for the Republican nominee.

DEWEY OFFERS PLAN TO SOLVE

FARM PROBLEM

Governor Would Bar Theory of Scarcity and New Deal Shrinking Economy.

CALLS FOR BETTER DIETS

Charges Washington Attempts to Force More Regimentation on Farmers---Speaks in Syracuse.

Syracuse, Oct. 28 (A. P.).—Charging the New Deal with attempting to force "increased regimentation" upon the farmers, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey pledged the Republican party today to a simplified agricultural administration which would provide firm support for farm prices.

Declaring that "three square meals a day" for all Americans would solve the post-war farm problem by requiring even greater production of food than now, the Republican presidential nominee said that to continue the New Deal in office would mean an eventual return to the "substandard prices our farmers were still receiving after eight peacetime years . . . in 1940."

Gov. Dewey, who came here on short notice for a major farm speech that he had postponed in Minneapolis, was applauded loudly by a crowd of 3,100 persons who jammed themselves into a combined auditorium and gymnasium. Several hundred failed to gain admission.

Gov. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, introducing Gov. Dewey from Burlington, Iowa, by radio, said he was satisfied that if he were elected the New York Governor would cooperate with Congress to "establish a farm program free from political control, practical in its operation and with long range prosperity as its objective."

"Despite our war prosperity," Gov. Dewey said, "millions of families in America do not get enough of the right things to eat. We still have further to go. We must never go back to the scarcity theories and shrinking economy of the New Deal years.

"We must go forward and develop the great American market for our farm products through improved diet for the American people. If we can keep set on this objective we shall need, not a reduction, but an increase in food productions. We must not go back to those dismal days in the middle age of the New Deal when two families out of five in America were living at the undernourished level of less than $20 a week."

To Stop in Utica.

Gov. Dewey planned to stop in Utica for a brief address on his way back to Albany.

Although President Roosevelt spoke in Philadelphia last night, the Republican candidate made no direct attempt to answer any of his opponent's statements, except to repeat his assertion that there was "bickering, chaos and confusion in Washington" and to reiterate the Republicans' intention to "bring our fighting men home promptly when victory is achieved."

Charging the administration with "attempts at increased regimentation by New Deal terrorists in Washington," Gov. Dewey said that the nation should be committed "to the proposition that the prices of major farm products must be supported against the sub-standard levels we saw for so many years before this war."

"It took a war to get decent farm prices, just as it took a war to get jobs," he declared

Declaring President Roosevelt often put "two men in one job," the candidate said the executive order which had given the Secretary of Agriculture and the Food Administrator co-equal powers had caused the country to lose "a first class man" in Chester Davis, Food Administrator. Mr. Davis, he said, resigned with the statement that he had—and here Gov. Dewey quoted—"assumed a public responsibility while the authority, not only over broad food policy, but day-to-day actions, is being exercised elsewhere."

Likewise, Gov. Dewey said that a "White House cabal" had been "trying to get rid of" Harry Slattery, the rural electrification administrator, but that Slattery had turned down an offer of a new job at the same salary to study rural electrification in Europe. As a result, Gov. Dewey said, the Secretary of Agriculture had moved in a deputy administrator to take charge so that the REA "has been torn apart by conflict and confusion between the usual two men in a job."

Cites Hog Market Scandal.

When the Government makes a pledge to support hog prices, the nominee said, the farmers ought to know "who is responsible—whether it is the OPA or the War Food Administrator or the director of Economic Stabilization or the Secretary of Agriculture or who."

"The hog market scandal," he declared, "is but another example of the fact that for twelve years in this country we have had an unmanageable surplus of promises—promises lightly made, sketchily kept, or openly violated."

"Let us have an end to generalities from a Government which for eight long years promoted a chattering fear of production," he said.

Gov. Dewey recalled the Republican platform promises to put the Agriculture Department "under practical and experienced administration free from regimentation and confusing government manipulation."

He goes to the ODT for a truck permit, to the OPA for a rubber boot permit, to the AAA for his lime and phosphate, to the post office for his auto use stamp, to the Selective Service board about his hired man, and until this election was drawing near, he went to the county war board to get permission to buy machinery. He may have other assorted errands in town at the OCD, the USES, the WFA, the USC or the SCS.

Refers to St. Louis Speech

The other night in St. Louis I told about an executive order in which my opponent, on April 19, 1943, dealt with the powers of his new War Food administrator, whom he had appointed to take over the job of the secretary of Agriculture in handling our critical food situation. Referring to both of them, he declared, they "shall each have authority to exercise any and all of the powers vested in the other by statute or otherwise."

There it is in his own words—two men in one job.

Now, my opponent has complained that I did not tell the whole story about that executive order. I am happy to accept the invitation. Here's the rest of it.

That executive order created the port to the administrator through his deputy. The deputy moved in and took charge, firing people right and left. And just at the time when the REA should be getting ready to do a big post-war job providing electricity to farmers, it has been torn apart by conflict and confusion between the usual two men in one job.

White House Spreads Confusion

The White House spreads confusion from the cabinet level up. And the Secretary of Agriculture spreads confusion from the cabinet level down.

That's why we need a responsible cabinet in this country. That's why it's time for a change.

I am resisting the temptation to talk at length about these things. Time does not permit discussion of what happened to support prices in the hog market and the egg market during the past year. But one thing is very clear: when the government makes a pledge to support hog prices, for example, the farmer ought to know who is responsible — whether it is the OPA or the War Food administrator or the Director of Economic Stabilization or the Secretary of Agriculture or who.

Cites Hog Market Scandal

The hog market scandal is but another example of the fact that for twelve years in this country we have had an unmanageable surplus of promises—promises lightly made, sketchily kept, or openly violated.

That is why it is so important to restore efficiency as well as integrity to our government, so that its spoken word may be trusted once again.

To that end my party in its national convention adopted a platform to which I am pledged. The unqualiifed pledges of that platform read in part, as follows:

"A Department of Agriculture under practical and experienced administration free from regimentation and confusing government manipulation and control of farm programs.

Fair Market Prices

"An American market price to the American farmer and the protection of such price by means of support prices, commodity loans, or a combination thereof, together with such other economic means as will assure an income to agriculture that is fair and equitable in comparison with labor, business and industry. . .

"Disposition of surplus war commodities. . . without destroying markets or continued production and without benefit to speculative profiteers.

Text of Dewey's Syracuse Address

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP) The text of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's farm speech here today follows:

These war years have produced trying days on the farms all over our country. Millions of sons from our farms are fighting on battlefronts all over the world. Fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers have taken over the extra work, without regard to age or physical handicaps. Shortage of help and shortage of equipment have increased the burdens. And to cap it all, have been the inexcusable attempts at increased regimentation by New Deal theorists in Washington.

As one who has worked with our own farm leaders day and night to achieve the success of our farm manpower service, our emergency food commission and the farm machinery repair program, I have come to feel that of all the heroes of this war, our farmers have received the least credit for the tremendous job they have done.

War Drawing to Close

Now the war is drawing ever closer to its conclusion. With mighty triumphs in Europe and the Pacific, our fighting men are bringing victory nearer every day. As you know, a change of administration next January 20 will not involve any change in our military command. But it will bring an end to the bickering, chaos and the confusion in Washington. It will bring a stronger, more United Nation backing up our fighting men without division and warring at home.

It will be a signal to all the world that free government is strong and able to strengthen itself in total war. It will mean quicker victory And it will mean an Administration which does not fear the peace—one which will bring our fighting men home promptly when victory is achieved.

What will peace mean to our farmers? Will it mean just continued efforts to control their lives from Washington? Will it mean the same collapse of prices which occurred under a Democratic administration after the last war? Will it mean a return to the sub-standard prices our farmers were still receiving after eight peacetime years of the New Deal in 1940? It must not mean these things. We can and must do better if we are to have a free and progressive America.

Farmer is Heavy Purchaser

Few people seem to realize that the American farmer is the largest purchaser of the products of our mills and factories. Every American, regardless of his business or employment, has a direct interest in the prosperity and stability of agriculture.

Unlike other producers, the farmer deals with elements wholly beyond his control. He may plant wisely and well and then the weather can destroy his crops. He may produce to the maximum and find that a national surplus has broken his prices to the point where he has a loss for an entire year's work.

We cannot control the weather. But for the sake of the nation, we can and we must avoid these extreme price fluctuations. As a nation, we are committed to the proposition that the prices of major farm products must be supported against the sub-standard levels we saw for so many years before the war.

Fair Farm Prices Urged

We have learned that depression on the farm leads inevitably to depression in the nation just as unemployment and misery in the city lead to misery on the farm. If we are to have a strong, vigorous and happy country, we must have full employment in the factories and fair prices on the farms.

Is there any hope of achieving this result under the New Deal? Well, the simple answer is that after it had been in office nearly eight years in 1940, the New Deal had still failed to achieve anything like fair prices for farm products And one of the main reasons for that was that there were still 10 million Americans unemployed. Now, my opponent seeks a vote of confidence on that record. He asks for 16 straight years in the White House. And what does he offer for the future? Nothing different from or better than the program which failed. It took a war to get decent farm prices, just as it took a war to get jobs.

From the very beginning of the New Deal, farm programs put forward by the farmers have been set up, only to be exploited for political profit and to gain control over the operation of our farms.

Urges Restoring of Resources

For example, one of our most important needs is to preserve, restore and build up our soil resources. The soil conservation service has done a good job in some parts of the country. But this program will fail if it is used as an excuse for regimentation and wasteful bureaucracy.

Let's be specific. Take, for example, a farmer not far from here who signed up with the soil conservation program. Within a period of four months 14 different government agents travelled to this one little farm of 45 acres to tell how his job should be done. Several came many times. When he got all through, the farmer paid for the actual work, and he also paid in taxes for the 13 unnecessary government agents.

That sort of thing would not have happened if local people had anything to say about it, if state and county, with Federal aid, were permitted to share in the job of seeing that Federal programs were adapted to local needs. This has been so well demonstrated by the successful work of the land grant colleges and the extension service, that even the New Deal should have found it out by now.

Farm Credit Is Important

Government assistance in farm credit is also of the utmost importance, but if the farmer needs to borrow some money, he may go to a national Farm Loan association, the Production Credit association, the Farm Security administration, the Office of the Emergency Crop and Seed loan, or to the Regional Agricultural Credit corporation. If he wants a seal-up loan on his wheat or corn, he has to go to the AAA in still another office.

usual conflicts. Within two months that War Food administrator, Mr. Chester Davis, resigned. He was drafted to do a big job and then prevented from doing it. Here is what he said: "I find that I have assumed a public responsibility while the authority, not only over broad food policy, but day-to-day actions, is being exercised elsewhere."

Lost First Class Man

So, we lost a first class man. Another man was put in the job and the chaos rolled on. But there is still more to this story of two or more men in one job. The White House cabal had been trying to get rid of Harry Slattery, the Rural Electrification administrator. Finally they offered to create a new job for him, at the same salary and at the taxpayers' expense. He was asked to undertake a special study of rural electrification not in China, this time, but in war-torn Europe in 1943.

But Mr. Slattery stuck to his job. So the Secretary of Agriculture appointed a deputy administrator and gave orders to the entire REA staff that henceforth they should all report to the administrator through his deputy.

30. 24 — 19969

"The control and disposition of future surpluses by means of new uses developed through constant research, vigorous development of foreign markets, . . . adjustments in production of any given basic crop only if domestic surpluses should become abnormal and exceed manageable proportions.

"Intensified research to discover to discover new crops, and new and profitable uses for existing crops.

"Support of the principle of bona fide farmer-owned and farmer-operated cooperatives.

"Consolidation of all government farm credit under a non-partisan board.

Improve Farm Life

"To make life more attractive on the family-type farm through development of rural road, sound extension of Rural Electrification service to the farm and elimination of basic evils of tenancy. . .

"Serious study of and search for a sound program of crop insurance with emphasis upon establishing a self-supporting program.

"A comprehensive program of soil, forest water and wild life conservation and development and sound irrigation projects, administered as far as possible at state and regional levels."

To these pledges we stand committed and while this program is comprehensive, we may be sure that the farmers of our country can be relied upon to propose sound measures to meet any new kind of emergency which may arise. As the farmers of my own state, here today, know so well, your next administration may be counted on to welcome such programs.

Here we have a broad, forward-looking policy for the specific welfare of agriculture. But unless we have a market which can pay a fair price, the farmer will continue to have an inadequate income. He must not again find it necessary to live on his depreciation, on the paint he cannot afford to put on his barn.

The far mand food problems of the United States are inseparable. Neither will be solved until all our people are well fed, and our agriculture is stabilized on a par with industry and labor.

Must Have Real Market

We can have fully employed agriculture with fair prices and a real market if we have three square meals a day for all our people. That can be obtained through a fully employed, expanding industry with real money for real jobs.

By heroic efforts and against every obstacle, our farmers have increased food production by one-third. It will not be easy to maintain balance during the changeover from war to peace. It is going to take ingenuity, teamwork and the unhesitating will of government to maintain prices and wages and income without undue inflation or shrinkage from the present scale.

We in America have had the American standard of living—we have had more to consume than any other nation, because we produced more. We must again have the courage to push forward as our forefathers pushed beyond the frontiers of their day.

Must Go Forward

Despite our war prosperity, millions of families in America still do not get enough of the right things to eat. We have still further to go. We must never go back to the scarcity theories and shrinking economy of the New Deal years. We must go forward and develop the great American market for our farm products through improved diet for the American people. If we can keep set on this objective, we shall need, not a reduction, but an increase in food production. We must not go back to those dismal days in the middle age of the New Deal when two families out of five in America were living at the undernourished level of less than $20 a week.

Let us have an end of generalities about the abundant life from a government which for eight long years promoted a chattering fear of production.

For this we need a government in Washington whose primary interest is not in fighting within itself, not in teaching people to feed a family of five on a relief income of $700 a year.

Jobs Seen in Future

Before us lies the immediate practical prospect and reality of jobs — the business of making things and doing things—real jobs for real money, real prices in a real market.

This must be the fundamental which provides three square meals a day for our people, as well as cars, washing machines, radios, tractors, highline power, running water, education and all the undeveloped realities which lie within our reach.

To these fundamentals, a productive and a prosperous agriculture is essential to the future of America. That future we can and will achieve by the constructive program I have outlined since the beginning of this campaign. And in doing so, we must again restore the freedom of the individual farmer from dictation and control by this own government. The farmers of our country have broken new frontiers in their productive power. It is our solemn duty to equal their contribution by going forward with a prodctive, growing and secure America.

AP And Rail Suits Political, Says Bricker

NOV 29 1944

Joplin, Mo., Oct. 28 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker asserted today that the New Deal resorted to attacks on business as part of a "scheme to build political power by setting class against class."

As an example, said the Republican nominee for Vice-President, "the anti-trust suit against the Associated Press has all the earmarks of a political speech. So also has the recent anti-trust suit against 47 Western railroads."

The Ohio Governor was booked at Memorial Hall here in a one-day, eight-speech campaign through Missouri, home of Senator Harry S. Truman, his Democratic opponent.

"Tired And Confused"

He opened his drive for Missouri's 15 electoral votes last night in Kansas City with an address branding President Roosevelt's foreign policy as an "utter failure" and contending that the nation could not afford "to leave world peace and national security in the hands of an administration that is tired, confused and afflicted with dismal failure."

In a prepared text of his Joplin speech the Governor said Attorney General Biddle admitted that his charges against the Western railroads "cannot be supported for at least six months, and that it will be a year before the case can be heard."

"'It looks,'" he remarked, quoting the Saturday Evening Post, "'as if the Roosevelt administration had begun filing fireside chats with Federal district courts and calling them lawsuits.'"

Bricker declared that small business "has been injured more than any other"; that before the war it "literally was stunted in growth by arbitrary and restrictive New Deal policies."

Among the purported handicaps he listed discouragement of private investment, tax legislation devised "to obstruct equity financing," forced distribution of earnings, "governmental questionnaires, complicated reports, regimentation and red tape."

New Tax Setup Planned

He said the Republican party recognized small business "as the basis of American enterprise," and proposed to help by revising taxation, "by eliminating excessive and repressive regulation and Government competition—by the enforcement of laws against monopoly and unfair competition—and by providing simpler and cheaper methods of obtaining venture capital necessary for growth and expansion."

Bricker will end his Missouri tour with a speech tonight in Springfield after visiting Harrisonville, Rich Hill, Nevada, Lamar, Neosho and Aurora. Truman accepted the Democratic nomination at Lamar, his birthplace.

SECOND NIGHT LEAD AERIAL

BY ROBERT EUNSON

LONDON, OCT. 28-(AP)-COLOGNE GOT ITS WORST BLASTING OF THE WAR TODAY DURING AN INCREASINGLY FEROCIOUS AERIAL ASSAULT ON THE REICH THAT BEGAN WHEN BRITISH MOSQUITO BOMBERS STRUCK BERLIN LAST NIGHT AND HAS SENT 2,500 PLANES OVER GERMANY WITHIN 24 HOURS. NOV 29 1944

THE GERMAN RADIO REPORTED THAT ALLIED BOMBERS WERE APPROACHING WESTERN GERMANY AGAIN TONIGHT. DURING THE DAY 350 AMERICAN BOMBERS LAMBASTED MUNSTER AND HAMM AND ABOUT 250 RAF HEAVIES STRUCK THE DUTCH ISLANDS NORTH OF THE SCHELDE RIVER ESTUARY.

BUT COLOGNE CAUGHT A BLOW FROM MORE THAN 750 LANCASTERS AND HALIFAXES THAT DUMPED AN ESTIMATED 4,000 TONS OF BOMBS DIRECTLY INTO THE CITY'S FACTORY DISTRICT. NOV 29 1944

AIRMEN RETURNING FROM THIS LATE AFTERNOON ATTACK SAID THAT FIRES WERE OUT OF CONTROL. IT WAS THE ELEVENTH TIME THIS MONTH THAT COLOGNE HAD BEEN ASSAULTED FROM THE AIR.

RAILWAY YARDS AT HAMM AND MUNSTER WERE ATTACKED BY THE LIBERATORS AND FORTRESSES, WHICH DROVE THROUGH CLOUDS SO THICK THE CREWMEN COULD

NOT SEE THE DEFENSIVE ANTIAIRCRAFT BURSTS. ABOUT 200 AMERICAN FIGHTERS AS ESCORT WERE UNOPPOSED.

BRITISH HEAVIES ESCORTED BY SPITFIRES WENT BACK TO WALCHEREN ISLAND BY DAYLIGHT AND RAF CREWS SAID THE WEATHER CLEARED FOR THEM ABOUT 15 MINUTES, ENABLING THEM TO COME IN AT VERY LOW LEVELS. THE BIG LANCASTERS AND HALIFAXES WERE SHAKEN BY EXPLOSIONS FROM THEIR OWN BOMBS AS THEY JOINED IN THE BATTLE FOR THE USE OF THE PORT OF ANTWERP. EIGHT LARGE GUN EMPLACEMENTS WERE HIT. TWO OF THE BOMBERS ARE MISSING.

NOV 29 1944

A LARGE ROAD BRIDGE OVER THE RIVER MAAS AT ROEDMENS, HOLLAND, WAS DESTROYED BY FRANCE-BASED BRITISH MITCHELLS AND BOSTONS. CREWS SAID THE CENTER OF THE BRIDGE COLLAPSED AFTER BEING HIT BY THREE STICKS OF BOMBS.

THE GERMAN RADIO REPORTED ALLIED BOMBERS OVER SOUTHWESTERN GERMANY LATE THIS AFTERNOON, INDICATING THE AERIAL OFFENSIVE WAS GOING AROUND THE CLOCK.

DESPITE GOEBBELS' THREATS, AMERICAN PILOTS OVER HAMM SAID THEY SAW ONLY ONE GERMAN PLANE, A JET-PROPELLED JOB, AND RAF CREWS HAD A FIELD DAY EXCEPT FOR FLAK.

THUNDERBOLTS HIT RAILWAYS, ROADS AND RIVER TRAFFIC NORTHEAST OF AACHEN AND BETWEEN COLOGNE AND DUSSELDORF.

TWO FIGHTER BOMBERS FROM THE U.S. NINTH AIR FORCE STRIKE FAILED TO RETURN.

STILWELL (450)

BY THOBURN WIANT

(ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WHO RECENTLY COMPLETED TWENTY MONTHS IN THE CHINA-BURMA-INDIA THEATER, INCLUDING MANY FRONTLINE ASSIGNMENTS WITH GEN. STILWELL)

LONDON, OCT. 28-(AP)-THE RECALL OF GEN. JOSEPH W.STILWELL TO WASHINGTON FOR A "NEW AND IMPORTANT" ASSIGNMENT MAY WELL MEAN THAT HE IS TO BECOME SUPREME COMMANDER OF THE ALLIED ARMIES WHICH EVENTUALLY WILL DRIVE THE JAPANESE FROM THE ASIATIC CONTINENT.

STILWELL KNOWS CHINA BETTER THAN MOST CHINESE--AND THE DECISIVE BATTLES AGAINST THE JAPANESE UNDOUBTEDLY WILL BE FOUGHT THERE. HIS MILITARY ABILITY IS UNQUESTIONED. HIS RESOUNDING SUCCESSES IN THE 1943-44 BURMA CAMPAIGN DREW TRIBUTES FROM HIS CHINESE AND BRITISH ASSOCIATES.

BEFORE LEAVING THE CHINA-BURMA-INDIA THEATER LATE LAST SUMMER, I HEARD FREQUENT SPECULATION THAT STILWELL MIGHT TAKE OVER THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST JAPAN AFTER GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR HAD DRIVEN THE ENEMY FROM THE PHILIPPINES.

IT IS TRUE THAT STILWELL ALWAYS HAS BEEN MORE OF A SOLDIER THAN A DIPLOMAT. "VINEGAR JOE'S" FRANKNESS AND SHARP TONGUE SOMETIMES HAVE GOTTEN HIM INTO HOT WATER. HE HAS HAD SOME HEATED DEBATES WITH HIS FAR EASTERN SUPERIORS, LORD LOUIS MOUBTATTEN AND GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK. BUT THESE DEBATES ENDED AMICABLY, AND STILWELL USUALLY PROVED HIS POINTS LATER IN ACTION.

IF STILWELL HAD NOT FITTED INTO THE FAR EASTERN PICTURE SO WELL, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT UNDOUBTEDLY WOULD NOT HAVE NOMINATED HIM TO BECOME FULL GENERAL AS RECENTLY AS LAST AUGUST.

ONLY YESTERDAY, BRIGADIER N.L. C. IRWIN, CHIEF STAFF OFFICER OF THE BRITISH 14TH ARMY, PAID HIGH TRIBUTE TO STILWELL AT A LONDON PRESS CONFERENCE. IRWIN MENTIONED THAT STILWELL HELD THREE JOBS: DEPUTY TO LORD LOUIS, CHIEF OF STAFF TO THE GENERALISSIMO, AND COMMANDER OF ALL AMERICAN FORCES IN CBI.

"A DIFFICULT POST, BUT ONE WHICH CLOSE PERSONAL RELATIONS AND FRIENDSHIPS OVERCAME," IRWIN SAID. "JOE STILWELL, GREAT SOLDIER THAT HE IS, DID THAT--AND THERE NEVER WAS ANY TROUBLE THERE."

A52

STILWELL'S ALLIED FORCES IN NORTHERN BURMA WERE UNDER THE COMMAND OF IRWIN'S SUPERIOR, LT.-GEN.WILLIAM JOSEPH SLIM.

"STILWELL, FULLY REALIZING THAT AN UNDIVIDED COMMAND WAS ESSENTIAL, TOOK AND ACCEPTED ANY INSTRUCTIONS FOR BATTLE FROM GENERAL SLIM," IRWIN SAID.

DURING NEARLY FIVE MONTHS IN THE BURMA JUNGLE WITH STILWELL, I WAS AMAZED TO FIND MORE CHINESE THAN AMERICANS RECOGNIZING AND SALUTING THE GENERAL, WHO RARELY WORE ANY INSIGNIA. HE AND HIS CHINESE OFFICERS WERE ON FRIENDLY, HIGHLY-COOPERATIVE TERMS.

THE POSITION OVER THE HUMP IN CHINA HAS STEADILY DETERIORATED, HOWEVER. THE CHINESE HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO PREVENT THE JAPANESE FROM SEIZING MOST OF THE AMERICAN AIR BASES IN EASTERN CHINA. STILWELL CONCEIVABLY MAY HAVE BECOME CRITICAL OF THE CHUNGKING GOVERNMENT'S FAILURE TO REORGANIZE ITS ARMIES INTO MORE EFFICIE FORCES.

LONDON'S NEWSPAPERS PLAYED THE STORY OF STILWELL'S RECALL PROMINENTLY, BUT APPARENTLY DID NOT KNOW EXACTLY WHAT IT MEANT. THE SUNDAY EXPRESS, HOWEVER, HAD A TWO-COLUM, FRONT-, HEADLINE SAYING, "STILWELL HAS BEEN RECALLED TO GET BIG SECRE. JOB."

THERE WAS NO OFFICIAL COMMENT.

PARIS, OCT 27-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A FLAK-SCARRED PLANE WHICH NO PILOT WANTED AT FIRST WAS THE CENTER OF A MILITARY CEREMONY AT LE BOURGET AIRFIELD TODAY.

THE PLANE IS AN A-20 HAVOC, THE FIRST NINTH AIR FORCE LIGHT BOMBER TO COMPLETE 100 MISSIONS WITHOUT ONCE TURNING BACK. RENAMED "LA FRANCE LIBERE," THE PLANE WAS DEDICATED BY BRIG.GEN.VICTOR H.STRAHM AS "A NAME WE HOPE WILL TRULY AND WORTHILY SYMBOLIZE FRANCE FOREVER."

THE SHIP BEGAN ITSCAREER AS A "HANGAR QUEEN." PILOTS USED IT FOR ODD JOBS AROUND ITS BRITISH AIR BASE, AND REPAIR CREWS STRIPPED IT OF PARTS NEEDED FOR OTHER PLANES. SOMEHOW, NO PILOT SEEMED TO REALLY WANT IT.

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, FRANCE, OCT.28-(AP)-SGT.ALLEN NUGENT OF OKEANA,OHIO, HAS DRIVEN BOTH THE AMERICAN 30-TON SHERMAN TANK AND THE GERMAN 50-TON PANTHER TANK, AND IS CONVINCED THE SHERMAN IS SUPERIOR.

NUGENT IS CREW CHIEF IN A MAINTENANCE UNIT OF THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION'S EIGHTH TANK BATTALION, AND RECENTLY DROVE BACK TO THE REAR A NEARLY-NEW PANTHER TANK KNOCKED OUT NEAR RECHICOURT BY A SHELL THROUGH ITS SIDE.

THE PANTHER TANK HAS SOME SUPERIORITIES OVER THE SHERMAN, HE SAID, BUT "I SOON FOUND THAT ONE OF ITS WORST DISADVANTAGES WAS THAT THERE WAS NO WAY FOR THE DRIVER TO RUN THE MACHINE WITH HIS HEAD STICKING OUT, AS HE CAN IN THE SHERMAN, SO HE HAS TO USE THE PERISCOPE ALL THE TIME.

"I FOUND IT TRICKY TO STEER BECAUSE WHEN YOU PULL EITHER CONTROL LEVER FAR BACK IT LOCKS THE TRACK ON THAT SIDE, WHILE THE OTHER DOUBLES ITS SPEED, SPINNING YOU AROUND LIKE A TOP."

SUCH LOCKING PREVENTS REMOVA OF A DISABLED TANK FROM SUCH LOCKING PREVENTS REMOVAL OF A DISABLED TANK FROM THE BATTLEFIELD EXCEPT BY USING HEAVY RECOVERY MACHINES.

SEVERAL TANK EXPERTS INCLUDING NUGENT'S COMMANDER, CAPT. JAMES CHESTER OF NEW BRIGHTON, PA., AND WARRANT OFFICER LLOYD R. KELLY OF 529 WINNIPEG ST., SAN ANTONIO, TEX., EXAMINED THE PANTHER. SOME OF THEIR CONCLUSIONS WERE:

NOV 29 1944

THE PANTHER'S BIGGEST WEAKNESS FROM A MAINTENANCE STANDPOINT IS THAT ALL REAR ARMOR HAS TO BE TAKEN OFF TO GET AT THE ENGINES.

THE SHERMAN'S TURRENT SWINGS FASTER THAN THE PANTHER'S WHEN POWER OPERATED, AND MUCH FASTER AND EASIER WHEN IT HAS TO BE TURNED BY HAND.

ALTHOUGH THE PANTHER IS HEAVIER, CREWMEN SAY IT HAS LESS ROOM INSIDE.

THE PANTHER'S 75-MM. GUN IS HARDER HITTING WITH AN OUT-SIZE POWDER CHARGE, BUT THE TANK CAN CARRY ONLY ABOUT 60 ROUNDS, AS AGAINST MORE THAN 80 IN THE SHERMAN, WHICH HAS A FASTER FIRE RATE.

THE PANTHER LACKS THE SHERMAN'S ANTIAIRCRAFT PROTECTION.

THE GERMAN'S TRACKS ARE WIDER, GIVING IT BETTER FLOTATION, BUT THIS IS PARTIALLY OFFSET BY GREATER WEIGHT.

NAVY SECRETARY FORRESTAL, AT CHICAGO -- THE PHILIPPINE BATTLES "LAID UP, AT LEAST TEMPORARILY, TWO-THIRDS OF THE JAP'S BATTLESHIPS. IT CHEWED UP A SIZABLE PORTION OF THEIR CARRIERS. AND IT SUBTRACTED FURTHER FROM AN INADEQUATE NUMBER OF

THE IMPERIAL FLEET "RIGHT NOW IS LIMPING AWAY FROM THE SCENE OF ITS DISASTER." THE "SUPREME TEST" WITH THE JAPANESE "WILL COME IN THE YEAR AHEAD."

FROM THE PHILIPPINES CAME FULLER REPORTS OF THE FOUR-HOUR BATTLE OF SURIGAO STRAITS, SOUTHEAST OF LEYTE, WHERE ALLIED UNITS UNDER REAR ADM.JESS OLDENDORF CRUSHED A JAPANESE FORCE OF 13 TO 15 WARSHIPS. THE NIPPONESE OF THIS SOUTHERN UNIT OPENED FIRE ON TRANSPORTS AND AUXILIARY SHIPS SUPPORTING GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S LANDING, BEFORE THEY WERE BEATEN BACK.

THE BASIS OF THE ACTION WAS "NEVER GIVE A SUCKER AN EVEN BREAK," ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT SPENCER DAVIS REPORTED AFTER INTERVIEWING ADMIRAL OLDENDORF. THE JAPANESE WERE "SUCKERS" FOR ENTERING THE NARROW, TWISTING STRAITS.

THE ADMIRAL PLACED HIS CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS ON EITHER FLANK AND THREW HIS BATTLE LINE OF PRE-PEARL HARBOR BATTLESHIPS SQUARELY ACROSS THE STRAIT OFF PORT HINGATUNGEN, SOME 30 MILES INSIDE THE ENTRANCE.

ON A RECENT RAID ON THE BALIKPAPAN OIL CENTER IN BORNEO HE WENT ALONG AS A "TEACHER" TO INSTRUCT OTHER AMERICAN PILOTS IN THE ART OF AERIAL WARFARE. MORE THAN A SCORE OF ENEMY PLANES ATTEMPTED TO DEFEND THE IMPORTANT OIL INSTALLATIONS, WHICH SUPPLIED 15 PER CENT OF JAPANESE AVIATION GASOLINE AND OIL.

"TEACHER" BONG DOWNED TWO PLANES AS PART OF HIS "CLASSROOM DEMONSTRATION" AND RAN HIS TOTAL BAG OF JAPANESE PLANES TO 30.

ALTHOUGH OFFICIALLY THE AMERICAN ACE ISN'T SUPPOSED TO FIGHT, BECAUSE OF HIS "TEACHER" STATUS, AIR FORCE OFFICIALS EXPLAINED "IF ENEMY PLANES ATTACK, AND IF WE HAVE PLANES ON THE GROUND, ANY PILOT MAY BE SENT UP. IF BONG IS AVAILABLE AND NEEDED HE WILL GO AND OF COURSE BONG MIGHT HAVE TO GIVE PRACTICAL INSTRUCTION

WHILE FINAL FIGURES WERE NOT YET AVAILABLE FOR JAPANESE LOSSES SUFFERED IN THE THREE SEPARATE ACTIONS WHICH DOOMED THE ENEMY'S ATTEMPTS TO HALT GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S INVASION OF THE PHILIPPINES, REAR ADM.FORREST P.SHERMAN, CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE PACIFIC FLEET, SAID:

"IT APPEARS THAT 40 JAPANESE SHIPS WERE SUNK OR CRIPPLED."

JAPANESE LOSSES BASED ON AMERICAN COMMUNIQUE INFORMATION RELEASED SO FAR TOTALED AT LEAST 39 WARSHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED. THE FIGURES, INCREASED FROM FORMER COMPUTATION OF 27 BY MACARTHUR'S REVISED TABULATION OF ENEMY SHIPS SUNK BY KINKAID'S FLEET IN SURIGAO STRAIT, ARE AS FOLLOWS:

NOV 29 1944

SUNK--TWO CARRIERS, TWO BATTLESHIPS, EIGHT CRUISERS AND 11 DESTROYERS; PROBABLY SUNK--ONE CARRIER AND TWO BATTLESHIPS; DAMAGED--SIX BATTLESHIPS, FIVE CRUISERS AND TWO, PERHAPS MORE, DESTROYERS.

SHERMAN IN HIS ESTIMATE OF 40 ENEMY VESSELS SUNK OR CRIPPLED GAVE NO DETAILS.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT SAID THE AMERICAN FLEETS LOST SIX VESSELS SUNK, THE LIGHT CARRIER PRINCETON, TWO ESCORT CARRIERS, TWO DESTROYERS AND A DESTROYER ESCORT.

NOV 29 1944

STRIDENT TOKYO CLAIMS PLACED AMERICAN LOSSES AT 141 WARSHIPS, TRANSPORTS AND AUXILIARIES SUNK OR DAMAGED, INCLUDING CARRIERS SENT DOWN OR HIT. THE ENEMY ACKNOWLEDGED THE LOSS OF SIX VESSELS SUNK--AMONG THEM A CARRIER AND A BATTLESHIP-AND A CARRIER AND ANOTHER BATTLESHIP DAMAGED.

CHINA-BASED UNITED STATES LIBERATOR BOMBERS ADDED FOUR ENEMY VESSELS TO THE NAVY'S TOTAL-A DESTROYER PROBABLY SUNK, ANOTHER DAMAGED, AND A TANKER AND CARGO SHIP DAMAGED-IN BLOWS DELIVERED AGAINST JAPANESE WARSHIPS RETREATING HOMEWARD THROUGH THE CHINA SEA.

IN A VIVID ACCOUNT OF ONE OF THE PHILIPPINE ACTIONS, SPENCER DAVIS, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT, SAID THE SHIPS OF KINKAID'S SEVENTH FLEET WIPED OUT THE ENTIRE ENEMY NAVAL FORCE TRAPPED IN SURIGAO STRAIT BELOW LEYTE ISLAND, BEFORE DAWN OCT. 25.

"WHATEVER FORCES THE ENEMY GOT INSIDE THE STRAIT DIDN'T GET OUT," SAID REAR ADM.JESSE OLDENDORF, COMMANDER OF KINKAID'S BATTLESHIPS.

STAFF OFFICERS SAID THE JAPANESE FORCE INCLUDED AT LEAST TWO BATTLESHIPS, FIVE CRUISERS AND A NUMBER OF DESTROYERS. THEY SAID THAT PERHAPS A THIRD BATTLESHIP ALSO WAS SUNK.

IT WAS A SWEET REVENGE FOR SOME OF OLDENDORF'S BATTLESHIPS, WHICH WERE AMONG SHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED IN THE JAPANESE SNEAK ATTACK ON PEARL HARBOR.

AUSTRALIAN CRUISERS SHARED IN THE FIGHTING AND FROM LONDON PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL SENT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CONGRATULATIONS ON THE "BRILLIANT AND MASSIVE" AMERICAN VICTORY IN THE PHILIPPINES.

"WE ARE GLAD TO KNOW THAT ONE OF HIS MAJESTY'S AUSTRALIAN CRUISER SQUADRONS HAD THE HONOR OF SHARING IN THIS MEMORABLE EVENT," CHURCHILL SAID.

NOV 29 1944

DOMEI, THE JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY, IN A TOKYO BROADCAST, SAID NIPPONESE PLANES WERE CONTINUING STRIKES AGAINST ALLIED SHIPPING IN LEYTE GULF. IT SAID THREE LARGE TRANSPORTS AND ONE UNIDENTIFIED VESSEL WERE SUNK, TWO CRUISERS WERE TORPEDOED AND THREE OTHER VESSELS WERE DAMAGED.

THERE HAS BEEN NO ALLIED CONFIRMATION OF THIS. U.S. NAVAL FORCES THERE HAVE BEEN COVERING GENERAL MACARTHUR'S LANDINGS ON LEYTE ISLAND.

FROM BERLIN CAME A BROADCAST QUOTING THE TOKYO NEWSPAPER ASAHI AS WARNING AGAINST "TOO MUCH OPTIMISM CONCERNING JAPANESE SUCCESSES," INDICATING A COOLING OF SUCCESS HYSTERIA BRED OF IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS' CLAIMS.

ASAHI SAID THE JAPANESE HAD LOST 438 PLANES IN THE FIGHTING IN THE FORMOSA-PHILIPPINES AREAS, "THE HEAVIEST LOSSES IN MACHINES SUFFERED DURING THE WAR," AND TOLD OF CONTINUED ALLIED AIRCRAFT CARRIER STRENGTH IN THE PACIFIC, "ESTIMATED ROUGHLY 60 TO 70," DESPITE THE ALLEGED HEAVY LOSSES LISTED IN JAPANESE COMMUNIQUES.

NOV 29 1944

HE SECOND BATTLE OF THE PHILIPPINE SEA, COST THE IMPERIAL NAVY BETWEEN 27 AND 40 WARSHIPS SUNK OR CRIPPLED. AMONG THEM WERE THREE CARRIERS AND PROBABLY 10 BATTLESHIPS, A HEAVY TOLL OF THESE LARGEST AND MOST VITAL WARCRAFT. AMERICAN LOSSES WERE SIX WARSHIPS.

OTHER KEY PACIFIC WAR NAVAL ENGAGEMENTS AND LOSSES INCLUDE:

THE BATTLE OF THE CORAL SEA, MAY 7-8, 1942--

JAPANESE LOSSES: ONE CARRIER, ONE DESTROYER, THREE FREGHTERS OR TRANSPORTS SUNK; ONE CARRIER, ONE SEAPLANE TENDER, ONE DESTROYER AND ONE FREIGHTER DAMAGED. TOTAL: 9.

ALLIED LOSSES: THE U.S. CARRIER, LEXINGTON, THE DESTROYER, SIMMS, AND THE TANKER, NEOSHO, SUNK; THE CARRIER YORKTOWN, DAMAGED. TOTAL: 4.

IT WAS BELIEVED AT LEAST 125 JAPANESE PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN, TO 66 AMERICAN PLANES.

(IN THIS BATTLE, AN AMERICAN CARRIER FORCE WITH AUSTRALIAN DESTROYERS TURNED BACK AN ENEMY FORCE BELIEVED BOUND FOR AN AMPHIBIOUS LANDING AT PORT MORESBY. THE VICTORY HALTED JAPAN'S WINNING STREAK, PROBABLY FORESTALLED AN INVASION OF AUSTRALIA AND LAID THE GROUNDWORK FOR THE AMERICAN INVASION OF GUADALCANAL.)

THE BATTLE OF MIDWAY, JUNE 3-6, 1942--

JAPANESE LOSSES: FOUR CARRIERS, ONE HEAVY CRUISER, ONE LIGHT CRUISER SUNK; TWO BATTLESHIPS, THREE HEAVY CRUISERS, ONE LIGHT CRUISER, ONE FREIGHTER, DAMAGED. TOTAL: 13.

AMERICAN LOSSES: THE CARRIER, YORKTOWN, AND THE DESTROYER, HAMMAN, SUNK. TOTAL: 2.

JAPANESE AERIAL LOSSES, 300 PLANES; AMERICAN, 150, INCLUDING THE ENTIRE FAMED TORPEDO SQUADRON EIGHT FROM THE CARRIER HORNET.

(IN THIS VICTORY, THE AMERICANS TURNED BACK PROBABLY THE LARGEST JAPANESE ARMADA OF THIS WAR, FRUSTRATING THE INVASION THRUST AT MIDWAY AND THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS. IT ENDED THE IMPERIAL NAVY'S PERIOD OF OFFENSIVE NAVAL ACTION IN THE PACIFIC.)

JAPANESE LOSSES, ACCORDING TO REVISED U.S. FIGURES ISSUED TODAY: TWO BATTLESHIPS, ONE HEAVY CRUISER, THREE DESTROYERS, 12 FREIGHTERS OR TRANSPORTS SUNK; FOUR CRUISERS, FOUR DESTROYERS, DAMAGED. TOTAL: 26.

AMERICAN LOSSES: THE CRUISERS, ATLANTA AND JUNEAU, AND SEVEN DESTROYERS SUNK; ONE BATTLESHIP, THREE CRUISERS, FIVE DESTROYERS, ONE CARGO SHIP DAMAGED. TOTAL: 18.

(PREVIOUS AMERICAN FIGURES WERE 35 JAPANESESHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED IN THE GUADALCANAL BATTLES, WHICH SMASHED JAPAN'S SUPREME EFFORT TO RETAKE GUADALCANAL AND MARKED A DECISIVE SHIFTING OF THE BALANCE OF NAVAL POWER IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC TO THE UNITED STATES' FAVOR. THE SIBUYAN SEA BATTLESHIP FORCE, WHICH MOVED OUT BETWEEN LUZON AND SAMAR FOR THE BATTLE OFF SAMAR CONSISTED OF FOUR BATTLESHIPS, 10 CRUISERS AND ABOUT 13 DESTROYERS.

NIMITZ-MACARTHUR COMMUNIQUES REPORTED TWO CRUISERS WERE SUNK IN THIS FORCE, FOUR BATTLESHIPS DAMAGED AND ONE DESTROYER WAS LEFT DEAD IN THE WATER.

ONE CRUISER INITIALLY REPORTED DAMAGED PROBABLY WAS ONE OF A PAIR LATER REPORTED SUNK. THESE INCOMPLETE REPORTS INDICATE EIGHT CRUISERS AND A DOZEN DESTROYERS MIGHT HAVE ESCAPED.

PHILIPPINES LAND ACTION (320)

MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS,PHILIPPINES,SUNDAY,OCT.29-(AP)-AMERICAN INVASION FORCES FANNED OUT SO FAST TODAY IN ALL DIRECTIONS ON LEYTE TODAY THAT THE JAPANESE COULD DO NO MORE THAN OFFER DELAYING ACTIONS AND FILIPINO CHILDREN TROOPED SAFELY TO REOPENED SCHOOLS IN AREAS BEHIND THE LIBERATING ARMIES.

ON LEYTE'S NORTH COAST, 10TH CORPS ELEMENTS SWEPT WESTWARD FROM BARUGO TO CARIGARA. THOSE TWO TOWNS TERMINATE THE ROADS FROM WHICH JAPANESE FORTUNATE ENOUGH TO ESCAPE ENTRAPMENT TO THE SOUTH IN THE LEYTE VALLEY MIGHT FLEE TO CARIGARA BAY. THEY ARE FLEEING BEFORE 24TH DIVISION UNITS WHICH ARE LESS THAN 15 AIR LINE MILES FROM THE BAY AT THE LEYTE VALLEY TOWN OF ALANGALANG.

IN THE CENTRAL LEYTE VALLEY, YANKS PRESSING DOWN THE NORTH ARM OF A SQUEEZE ON BOTTLED UP NIPPONESE REPULSED AN ENEMY COUNTERATTACK AT SANTA FE. OTHER YANKS PREVIOUSLY HAVE BEEN REPORTED STILL FURTHER SOUTH AT PASTRANA.

MOVING FROM THE SOUTH TO A JUNCTURE WITH THE PASTRANA SPEAR-

HEADS, SEVENTH DIVISION ELEMENTS HAVE FOUGHT UP FROM BURAUEN TO WITHIN ONE MILE OF DAGAMI, THE MAIN SUPPLY DEPOT AND CONCENTRATION BASE FOR SURVIVORS OF THE JAPANESE 16TH DIVISION, THE TORTURERS OF BATAAN. THENORTH AND SOUTH FORCES ARE LESS THAN 10 (CORRECT) MILES APART. SOUTHEAST OF BURAUEN, THREE MORE TOWNS HAVE BEEN ADDED TO THE APPROXIMATELY 60 LIBERATED ON LEYTE.

FIFTH AIRFORCE FIGHTER PLANES, NEWLY ARRIVED AT CAPTURED AIR BASES, LOST NO TIME IN GETTING INTO ACTION. GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE TODAY DISCLOSED THAT 18 ENEMY PLANES MAKING WEAK RAIDS WERE SHOT DOWN IN COMBAT. TWO MORE FELL VICTIM TO ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE.

BY PUSHING ALONG THE NORTH COAST TO CARIGARA, THE YANKS HAVE EXTENDED TO MORE THAN 70 MILES THEIR SHORELINE HOLDINGS WHICH REACH ON AROUND THE EAST COAST DOWN TO ABUYOG. CAPTURE OF ABUYOG WAS ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY. TODAY MACARTHUR SAID SIX HIGH-CALIBRE COAST DEFENSE GUNS AND 40 VEHICLES WERE SEIZED THERE. PATROLS PUSHED INLAND FROM ABUYOG, ENCOUNTERING SLIGHT RESISTANCE.

YESTERDAY MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED THAT BIG SAMAR ISLAND, WHICH EXTENDS TO WITHIN 15 MILES OF LUZON AND IS WITHIN 275 MILES OF MANILA, WAS ALMOST ENTIRELY IN THE HANDS OF AMERICAN TROOPS AND FRIENDLY, WELL-ORGANIZED FILIPINO GUERRILLAS.

TOKYO RADIO ACKNOWLEDGED THE PHILIPPINES SITUATION HAD BECOME WORSE FROM THE JAPANESE STANDPOINT. IT REPORTED 20 TO 30 AMERICAN TRANSPORTS WERE FEEDING ASHORE MORE REINFORCEMENTS AND TOLD THE HOMELAND THE YANKS HAD BEEN ABLE TO RESTORE "ALL AIRFIELDS LYING WITHIN THE TACLOBAN AND DULAG AREAS." TOKYO CONCEDED THE JAPANESE WERE OUTCLASSED IN THE AIR.

ALL THIS WAS STRANGE TALK FOR TOKYO RADIO. LITTLE MORE THAN A WEEK AGO, IT TOLD THE NIPPONESE THAT THE AMERICAN THIRD FLEET WAS BADLY WHIPPED OFF FORMOSA AND THE RESULT HAD DELAYED INVASION OF THE PHILIPPINES BY TWO MONTHS. A DAY LATER IT WAS TELLING OF THE INVASION.

THEN EARLIER THIS WEEK, TOKYO RADIO TOLD THE HOMELAND THAT THE NAVAL AND AIR BATTLES OFF THE PHILIPPINES CONSTITUTED GREAT VICTORIES FOR JAPAN. IT SAID MACARTHUR'S SITUATION ON LEYTE WAS AKIN TO A MAN WHO WAS CAUGHT UPSTAIRS WITH THE STAIRS PULLED DOWN.

BUENOS AIRES, OCT. 28-(AP)-THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT IT HAD ASKED THE PAN-AMERICAN UNION IN WASHINGTON TO CALL A CONFERENCE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS OF ALL AMERICAN NATIONS TO CONSIDER ARGENTINA'S INTERNATIONAL STATUS AND SEEK AN "ADEQUATE SOLUTION."

"IT HAS BEEN ALLEGED," SAID A MEMORANDUM FORWARDED TO ALL FOREIGN MINISTERS, "THAT ARGENTINA HAS NOT FULFILLED ITS INTERNATIONAL OBLIGATIONS, WHICH FACT X X X INVOLVES A PROBLEM WHICH INTERESTS NOT ONE COUNTRY, NOR A GROUP OF COUNTRIES, BUT THE ENTIRE CONTINENT."

WHILE DECLARING THAT ARGENTINA WOULD "RECEIVE IN A CORDIAL SPIRIT ANY INITIATIVE TENDING TO ACCENTUATE THE COLLABORATION AMONG THE NATIONS," THE STATEMENT MADE CLEAR THAT "IN NO CASE CAN THE ADOPTION OF MEASURES OF INTERNAL ORDER, RELATED TO THE JURIDICAL AND INSTITUTIONAL REGIME OF THIS COUNTRY, BE MATTERS OF INTERNATIONAL NEGOTIATION."

THE FOREIGN MINISTRY SAID THE REQUEST FOR THE CONVOCATION WAS MADE IN A NOTE HANDED BY THE ARGENTINE CHARGE D'AFFAIRS IN WASHINGTON, RODOLFO GARCIA-ARIAS, TO THE PAN-AMERICAN UNION.

THE STATEMENT DECLARED THE CONFERENCE WOULD AFFORD ALL COUNTRIES "AN OPPORTUNITY TO EXPLAIN THEIR POINTS OF VIEW" AND ADDED:

"THUS THEY WILL HAVE AVAILABLE ALL THE ELEMENTS INDISPENSABLE FOR JUDGMENT ON WHICH TO ACT WITH FULL KNOWLEDGE OF THE CASE. ONLY A CORRECT STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM CAN TAKE INTO ACCOUNT THE EXTERNAL ACTIONS WHICH MARK THE INTERNATIONAL CONDUCT OF A COUNTRY AND NOT THE PRESUMED INTENTIONS ATTRIBUTABLE TO ONE GROUP OR ANOTHER."

IN ASKING FOR THE CONFERENCE, THE STATEMENT SAID, THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT "HAS A CLEAR UNDERSTANDING" THAT "IT IS INDEED UNUSUAL THAT A COUNTRY SEEKS TO CONSIDER JOINTLY WITH ITS PEERS THE FUNDAMENTAL ASPECTS OF ITS INTERNATIONAL CONDUCT."

"BUT ARGENTINA," IT ADDED, "CAN DO SO WITHOUT PREJUDICE TO ITS DIGNITY. IN THE FIRST PLACE, BECAUSE THIS ATTITUDE IS CONSONANT WITH ITS BEST DIPLOMATIC TRADITIONS OF LOYALTY AND FRANKNESS.

"IN THE SECOND PLACE, BECAUSE THE UNUSUAL PERIOD THROUGH WHICH THE WORLD IS PASSING REQUIRES COMPREHENSION AND SPIRITUAL GENEROSITY EQUALLY EXCEPTIONAL."

ARGENTINA, THE MEMORANDUM DECLARED, BELIEVES THAT "THE GREAT AND ARDUOUS PROBLEMS WHICH THE NATIONS MUST SOLVE REQUIRE THE FIRM COLLABORATION OF ALL" FOR "NO STABLE AND AUTHENTIC ORDER CAN BE CREATED IN THE AMERICAN COMMUNITY ON THE BASIS OF THE ARBITRARY EXCLUSION OF WHICH ONE OF ITS MEMBERS IS THE OBJECT."
